"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

SMOKE

FROM THE MOUNTAIN

So the Mayor can't stay on his horse. That was fully worth the price of admission Tuesday night when our head city official bit the dust when he descended unexpectedly from the back of his mount. We noticed he was walking the greater part of the night Wednesday.

The Hill Billy Boys and their manager, W. Lee O'Daniel, really were the center of attraction wherever they stopped Tuesday afternoon. In fact they were so much the attraction that some of them almost got kidnapped by some of the local girls. The group was brought here under the personal sponsorship of W. H. Thate, Piggly Wigly manager.

If some names of winners are misspelled, please notify us and we will make corrections. We had written carbon copies in some cases and as much as we hate to say it, some of the writing was very, very hard to read. So you might be surprised to see your name in as a winner when you didn't even enter in any show. In that case, you might try collecting some prize money, but you probably won't have any luck.

Zenor Orchestra Dedicates Night for Lung Fund

Ed Zenor and his band will sponsor a dance Oct. 7 at one of the Shield buildings, proceeds to be given to the Iron Lung Fund, Mr. Zenor stated this week.

SANTA ANNA GAS RATE

The subject of the Santa Anna Gas rate, like all other subjects, can never be settled until it is settled right. The people of Santa Anna undoubtedly can see no reason why they should pay a higher gas rate than their neighbors, the City of Coleman on the west and the City of Brownwood on the east, both of whom are enjoying and for years have enjoyed a much lower gas rate than the people of Santa Anna. It seems unjust that the people of Santa Anna should be penalized by reason of the fact that some years ago the City Commission saw fit to introduce into the city a second gas utility. The City Commission undoubtedly knew then that there was at that time and always had been and always would be some tribunal to whom the city or any gas company could appeal to have a reasonable gas rate fixed, and no gas rate has ever been fixed either in Santa Anna or elsewhere solely by the gas company.

The present gas rate was fixed about three years ago fixing the rate at 50c over the protest of the Coleman Gas & Oil Company, after the Coleman Gas & Oil Company had successfully fought a case through the Federal courts and through all the state courts to the Supreme Court of Texas and finally established its right to give the citizens of Coleman the same gas rate that it was giving the citizens of Coleman. It protested the rate in 1934 and has shown that the rate is giving the Coleman Gas & Oil Company a net profit of 13.55% on its investment being more than 5% higher than the maximum rate fixed by law, Article 1119 Revised Statutes as amended in 1927. It has always seemed to the Coleman Gas & Oil Company that a late comer into the utility field in Santa Anna should not ask that an unjustly high rate be maintained for the benefit of a second utility, when the people pay the bill and take the loss, which is estimated at between $5,000.00 and $8,000.00 per year. It would only take three, four or five years for the amount that the people of Santa Anna are losing to pay for the gas distributing system in the City of Santa Anna.

Fair, Rodeo Draw Record-Breaking Crowds to City

About Sixty Entries for Rodeo Events; Parade Colorful for Opening Day

Approximately sixty cowboys and cowgirls entered the rodeo events during the past week for the second annual rodeo in connection with the third annual fall fair. Earl Sellers of Del Rio was arena director for the three day events and managed the show for the pleasure of the 10,000 visitors who came here during the fair.

Before a capacity crowd each night, the cowboys and cowgirls gave the visitors a good specimen of true rodeo events, from bronc riding and steer riding to wild cow milking. Featured attractions each night was a match roping contest between Jack Sellers, Del Rio, and Roy Mathews, Fort Worth, who roped five calves apiece each night.

The first event each night was the grand entry with the introduction of Sellers, Mayor McDonald, Judges Tom Taylor and Harold Jackson, Mathews and Jack Sellers, and other men in charge of arrangements.

All events of the rodeo were broadcast through courtesy of the Gulf Sound truck, secured through the local distributor, Calvin Campbell.

Bronc riding, steer riding, wild cow milking, calf roping, match calf roping and cowgirls flag races and cowgirls bronc riding were included in the programs.

Entries included among the riders and ropers were:

- Roy Mathews, Fort Worth; Frank Hoslick, Cameron; Travis Hays, Santa Anna; Earl Sellers, Del Rio; Jack Sellers, Del Rio; Roy Sewalt, Brownwood; Dolf Ehrler, Coleman; Otto Pridemore, Coleman; Fred Barrett, Comstock; James Kinney, Comstock; Charlie Bruce, Santa Anna; Tom Taylor, Sonora; Charlie Conway, Brownwood; Harold Jackson, Abilene;

Rev. Reynolds, Former Local Pastor, Coming

Will Arrive to Preach at Baptist Church Tuesday

To his many friends of former years, the coming of Rev. J. M. Reynolds, former pastor of the Baptist Church here, is an event of great interest. Rev. Reynolds will arrive Tuesday of next week and will preach that night at 8 o'clock. It is hoped also that he will be available for the sermon the next night. Rev. Reynolds was pastor here during the period of growth which followed the construction of the present church building. Many of the members of the local church were baptized by him. All the officers of all church organizations are to be installed with these two services of recognition next week.

To be wrong every time is a poor way to be consistent.

County Agent Tells Farmers About Subsidy

Qualifications for Cotton for Government Loan are Rather Drastic, Stated County Agent C. V. Robinson Tuesday and it will be necessary to have cotton picked soon since so much of it is going 13-16 staple.

The price per grade in making the loans are 7-8 staple middling or better, 9c; 7-8 staple strict low or low middling, 7.3-4c; 13-16 staple, middling to better, 8c.

No grade of cotton will be accepted on any of these prices below middling white, strict low and spotted.

A great deal of cotton in Coleman County is 13-16 strict middling spotted and middling spotted. Middling spotted will not qualify.

Cotton has to be in a bonded warehouse approved by the government and held by the producer until he sees fit to sell it not later than July, 1938. After that time it will be turned over to a loan association without recourse to the producer.

Santa Anna Had First Fair in 1898; Thirty Seven Years Elapsed Before Annual Fairs Initiated Here

(By Miss Luella Chambers)

In October 1898 Santa Anna had her first fair. It was held in the Stockard Hall.

The ladies entered all kinds of preserves, pickles and jellies and my mother received first prize on sweet pickles, peaches and my sister, Mrs. Mathews, won first on canned peaches. We had a nice program. May Stockard read "The Ride of Brave Jennie McNeil." The Thompson girls loaned their six octave organ and the music was furnished by a string band north of the mountain. Lillie Rutherford, now Mrs. Sterling Price, was accompanist. We all enjoyed the day and hoped to have another.

But it was a long time between 1898 and 1935-36-37. Now we have all kinds of fruits, vegetables, and meats, canned, pickled and preserved and all kinds

A Record Crowd

Indications of the crowd attending Santa Anna's Third Annual Fall Fair and Rodeo through Wednesday night show that the number of visitors far surpasses and crowd previously gathered in Santa Anna.

Proof of the efforts was shown by the excellent exhibits and rodeo performances, the latter directed by Earl Sellers, well-known rodeo manager, and by the comments of the spectators who were enthusiastic in their praise.

Much credit is due the directors of the Fair and Rodeo committees and to each person assisting in putting on this program. We have here a fine example for a start in next year's celebration.

THE STORY

CHAPTER IX—Rachel meets Curt on her day off and he expresses surprise over her concern about the Cayne family. She finds she is increasingly interested in him. Later she reports to Terriss and he complains that Cayne will not let him work on the servants or talk to Mrs. Cayne or Holbrook.

CHAPTER X—Rachel overhears a quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Cayne over Holbrook's schooling. Elinor has hysterics and again is heartlessly rude. Holbrook attempts to borrow money from Rachel. Later Mr. Cayne tells her a sapphire bracelet has been stolen. When she phones Terriss and tells about Holbrook's attempted borrowing, he reveals he suspects Holbrook is the thief and instructs her to search his room.

CHAPTER XI

They lingered over dinner together in the quiet restaurant where they had lunched the first time and he had brought Rachel a quaint round bouquet of red and yellow carnations set in circles, spicy sweet.

"I couldn't afford orchids, and anyway these look like you," he had said.

"I like these better than orchids," Rachel replied. "They're fascinating."

She laid the flowers at the side of her plate and now and then, as all flowers do, they drew her eyes and attention. They helped to normalize her strained and acid thoughts. Curt's presence helped much more.

Once more she told all except the essential fact of her relationship to Elinor. He sided with Terriss.

"But, Curt," she objected, "I have this awful hunch that it's Holbrook and if I find it out his father has to be told. It will be horrible. Mr. Cayne'll suffer so."

"You're too sensitive and your imagination's running wild. Look at it from the other end—if you can prove Holbrook didn't do it, then you've freed Mr. Cayne forever from the danger of having a criminal child. What you tell me about the boy sounds as if he was spoiled and silly and effeminate, but he doesn't sound exactly like a crook."

"All right, all right, maybe not, but what does he do with his allowance? Lena says he gets at least a hundred and fifty a month."

"That's something for Terriss to discover. I must say I don't like his trying to get money out of you, but there again, he's spoiled and he may have wanted to buy something his father wouldn't approve of, or throw a party unbeknownst to his family. Boys at that age often do things like that, they want to appear grand and lavish to their friends. What sort are his friends?"

"They look like any other boys to me, weedy and pimply and know-it-all; not terribly common, but I wouldn't say any of them would ever be intellectual giants."

Curt laughed unreservedly. "Nothing sinister in that picture. Don't you think you're overplaying

"It's What You Hired Out for, My Dear Girl."

your imagination about Holbrook? If I were you I'd simply give his room a thorough search—"

"It seems so sneaky and under-handed."

"It's what you hired out for, my dear girl. You may find nothing. Even if the boy did steal the bracelet, he may have eaten the ticket or thrown it down a sewer. Or he may have dealt with a smart fence and not got ticket."

"I'll be glad when this is over and I can leave."

"So will I. This one night out a week business is no help at all to me. I've been thinking that I'd get a job on the back elevator in your house and see you every day"

"Our present back elevator men are very nice. And they need their jobs more than you do."

"Aha, it is a social consciencel I wasn't going to gyp any worthy comrade out of work. I would pay a bonus for the privilege of taking his place a week or so, that's all."

"Curt, you're crazy, but I hope you won't do anything as crazy as that."

"It's not crazy to want to see you every day."

"It would be—unsettling—to have you on the back elevator, Curt. And it might make difficulties—I don't know—"

"I thought maybe you might need me sometime in a hurry. And I'd be there."

"That's your imagination running wild, isn't it? This job isn't dangerous."

"Lord, no, if it had been I'd never have let you take it."

"Oh, phooey! You wouldn't have let me take it, indeed!"

"I couldn't have bent you to my will, I know that, proud beauty, but I could have worked on Vinco and Terriss and—"

"How is Vinco?"

"Mourning your absence. You'll find welcome on the mat when you return, though he'll pretend to be sore at you."

"I'll be very sweet and grateful to be back then."

"Don't be too sweet and grateful. Vinco's dealt with sweet young ladies before. He might give you a wage cut just to keep you disciplined."

"I talk about being back as though it was very near. I hope it is. I'm not going to stay at the Caynes' much longer no matter whether the thief's discovered or not."

"But you're going to search the boy's room. You owe that to Terriss."

"Yes, I suppose I do. Yes, I'll search Holbrook's room. I hope I don't find anything."

"You're still thinking about his parents, but it's far better they should know the truth if he's a bad lot. Every time I go past the library there at Forty-second street I look at that motto: 'But above all things, truth beareth away the victory.' Truth may hurt, but it's curiously satisfactory."

"Write a good book sometime and put that in, Mr. Elton," said Rachel flippantly; but she thought: "That's so, I can see it for myself. If I hadn't gone to the Caynes' and seen and known my own mother, it would have ruined everything between Anne and me. Whereas now—" she went on aloud. "I've got to go back to the apartment and see Pink and write some letters. There's a fast boat sailing tomorrow and I want to send a letter to France."

At the door Curt said, "You don't want me on the back elevator? Sure?"

"It would be silly. After all, I'm not exactly helpless."

"Let me know as soon as you can if you do get anything on the rat, though. You might not need any help, but you might use some moral support, spiritual sustenance, or whatnot."

"Coming in to see Pink? I might give you some moral support and spiritual sustenance for that."

But Curt went on his way and Rachel settled to her letters. It was the first time she had really been eager to write to Anne, the first time she had felt right toward her since she had been gone. But even now she could not tell her about being in the Cayne house; that story must be revealed only when it was over and she was back at Vinco's. Then she would tell the whole thing, the start, the middle and the end. There was no end to tell at present. Perhaps she would wait until Anne came home, written words were so hard to use, their sense changed between the hand of the writer and the eyes of the reader. Moreover, tonight she had no time to write a long letter, but she must tell Anne how dearly she loved her, how little she had appreciated her.

"Mother'll probably think I've gone fearfully soppy," she thought, "or else that I'm trying to get round her to send for me. I'll have to put in that I'm having a marvelous time, lots of dates, lots of dancing and playing around. I'll give Curt a good hand, too."

But when she sat down to write about Curt an odd sense fell on her. Maybe she was beginning to depend too much on Curt, maybe she was beginning to mean more than she knew, more than she was sure she wanted. "I wonder if I am falling for him," she thought, "and if he's fallen as hard as he seems to for me. On the back elevator! The idiot! But it's a rather pleasing sort of idiocy." She finished her letter with a flourish, put it in the envelope and whacked the stamp tight with her fist.

"Now I must get up to my peasant costume," she said to Pink, "and his me back to the mountaintop. Listen, Pink, what do you think about Curt Elton?"

Pink looked up from the page of copy she had been frowning over. "I could go for him in a big way if I could ever get him to look at me. He's tops, that lad. Those carnations, for instance, do they suit you? What do I get from my suitors? Nothing but perfectly obvious co-sages made up by the florist by the dozen and wholesaled to young men with no imagination or flair for the right thing. I'll bet Curt writes poetry."

"He's never mentioned it if he does."

"If he doesn't write it he reads it, and that's all right so long as he doesn't read it aloud. I would just der people who read poetry aloud. These radio mushtraps! The quiver of emotion in the voice, the self-conscious elegance of the pronunciation, the unnatural pauses and dramatic swoops! Did I say swoops? They darn near give me the coops! Shoot 'em at sunrise, along with the singing guys and gals who come on humming through their noses!"

Pink threw down her pencil. "I've been listening to the radio too much, I wish you'd stop being a punk detective and come back home. But I suppose you'd be galloping about with Curt all the time even if you were here."

"I'm going to quit being a punk detective very soon. I'm sick of it."

"But you haven't found out anything?"

"I've found out a lot, but not about the thefts. I'm older, wiser and considerably sadder than when I started this nonsense. Well, here I go, Pink. I'll be seeing you for keeps before long. Be a good girl and don't let Genie borrow your false eyelashes."

"Genie thinks she's going to Hollywood, didn't I tell you?"

"She'll do well there. Good night, Pinkie lamb."

Towers and Lena were still up when Rachel came in, drinking coffee and eating slices of Lena's special coffee cake, a melting confection covered with almonds and raisins. They offered room to Rachel but she refused. "I'll have a cup of coffee, though," she said and sat down with them in the kitchen.

"Anything happened since I went out?" Rachel asked casually, sipping her coffee.

"Nothing special. The family's out to dinner and going to the theater. There now, I forgot to turn back the beds, you always doing it, Rachel, puts it out of my mind."

"I'll do it," said Rachel. "Sit still, Mr. Towers. I'll do it right off."

She hurried through the work in the rooms of the elder Caynes, but in Holbrook's she lingered, looking round it carefully, wondering when and how she should begin the promised search. The desk, she must go through that, and the bookshelves.

"I suppose I ought to open every book, I could pretend to be dusting"—the dresser, the high chest where the boy kept his huge collection of shirts and ties and fancy pajamas, the clothes hanging in his closet, the night table drawer, behind the pictures—"there's nowhere else, yes, I'll turn up the rug and tear the bed to pieces. Oh, it is comic, it's crazy! And it's horrible."

Ward P. T. A. to Meet Tuesday

Mrs. Glen Williamson, president of the local P. T. A. called a meeting of the executive committee Friday, Sept. 17 at 3:30 at the Ward school to discuss the work for the year. The measures discussed will be presented for action at the next regular meeting of the membership.

Among the items discussed were the following proposals: that a donation be made to the iron lung fund; that the year-books be printed by local people; that the association dues be 25c.

Because of the fair this week, the regular meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 28 at the Ward school at 3 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

The program committee will present their first program for the October meeting.

W. T. Utilities Begins Contest

Believing that West Texans have an opportunity to "cash in" on a national contest, the West Texas Utilities company yesterday invited all Santa Anna citizens to participate in a $40,000 contest on the "electrical standard of living."

The company will cooperate with a national firm in distribution of two grand prizes and 10 prizes each worth $200 each week for 10 weeks. W. R. Mulroy, local manager, announced. Entry blanks may be secured at the local office, he said.

"All you have to do is write 100 words on why the electrical way of living appeals to you," he said. "Although similar to our recent contest for a new name for women, in which Neolactress was chosen as a substitute for housewife, there is no connection."

"In this new contest, the grand prize will be a $12,000 all-electric home. Second prize is an $8,000 home. Winners of these two prizes will be chosen from winners of weekly prizes. The contest will last ten weeks, beginning at once. Both men and women may enter, sending in entries each week."

Entries must be made on the official entry blank, he said, which gives all details and instructions. The entry blank may be obtained by request at the office here.

Town Turns Out for Fair Parade

The old gray mare isn't what she used to be, true enough, but she was sufficiently enthusiastic to come out for the Santa Anna Fall Fair and Rodeo parade Tuesday to pull two charming belles of the Santa Anna Home Demonstration Club down the street in an old time buggy.

In fact, the entire parade was something to be proud of as it was started off with the flag bearers, Dr. T. Richard Sealy, Mayor E. D. McDonald and Earl Sellers, leading the mile and a half procession. Coleman honored this city by bringing its band and pep squad to be in our parade and our own band was conspicuous with its playing.

It wasn't only the old gray mare, but everyone in Santa Anna and surrounding cities that turned out for that parade. Floats from practically all the main business houses in town were decorated in all colors and joined in the parade. Cowboys and cowgirls added color to the show.

THE ANTE-BELLUM BELLE

Are you the Girl of Yesterday Who couldn't do a thing But dance and flirt and sew a seam;
Or sigh, or weep, or sing? Fit alone for coquetry; for love and fancied fears—
Coy in all your laughter; helpless in your tears.
Just a bit of sweetness, so fragile and so fair—
And useless as the perfume, in your dainty hair!

And yet, you fired the hearts of men
Till steel struck steel—your lovers died in Sunrise Glen.
Patriots were your sons—you toiled for them;
Carded, wove and spun; sowed and reaped; faced battle line
To save, to succor dying men—
sires, mates and sons of thine—
And yet, today, we meet you—hear the legend ring;
Lo! The girl of Yesterday—who couldn't do a thing.
—May Terry Gill, Abilene

POEMS

Poems, poems, bound in black—
Foolish poems with meaning slack—
Perhaps the black is in good taste,
Showing I mourn for the time I waste.

Perhaps it's mourning the death of rhyme
In addition to the waste of time.
Only read a verse and you will see—
Black is used appropriately.
Harriet Dickinson, Canyon

WARNING

Words spoken play their part
In the orchestra of life and Living.
But the instruments—
Duty, Loyalty, Truth and Honor,
Determine the melody we're Giving.
Anna W. Hooker, Carthage
