Qualifications for the scholarship are high. They include good rating in school grades, leadership, citizenship, attitudes toward study and work, community and church work, health status and responsibilities in home, school and community.

One, a City Election, will be to elect a mayor and two aldermen to serve on the City Council for the next two years; the second election will be to elect a United States Senator to serve out the unexpired term of Price Daniel, who became Governor of Texas last January 15.

There will be only one polling place for the City Election, and that will be at the City Hall. Everyone wishing to vote in the City Election must cast their ballot at the City Hall, where Jesse K. Barton and Jim Daniel will be the election officials. On the city ballot will be the names of W. Ford Barnes for Mayor and Ozro Eubank and D. H. (Doug) Moore for Aldermen. There is also places for write-in names if you prefer to write in some other names.

There will be two voting places for the Senate Election. The South Ward voting box will be in the former Corner Drug Store building at the corner of Wallas Avenue and North 2nd Street. Richard D. (Dick) Bass will be the election judge. No votes in the city election will be cast in the South Ward Voting Place.

The North Ward Voting Box will be at the City Hall and W. Ford Barnes will be the election judge.

Qualified voters who live in the North Ward of Santa Anna will have only one place to go to vote in both elections. However, they will have 2 ballots to cast. Qualified voters who live in the South Ward will have two places to go to vote in both elections. Qualified voters who live outside the City Limits will go to their respective voting places to vote in the Senate election. Voters outside the City Limits do not vote in the City Election.

There will be 22 names on the Senate ballot. However, two of the lesser known candidates have withdrawn from the race but their names are still on the ballot. Two of the remaining 20 are Republicans and 18 are Democrats.

Only Two-Thirds Of State Vehicles Inspected

Austin, Mar. 24 (Sp) — Only two-thirds of the total number of vehicle owners in Texas have received their 1957 vehicle inspection stickers, Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety said today. He warned against the last minute rush at inspection stations at the close of the inspection period April 15th.

"Of the more than four million vehicle owners in Texas only about 2,500,000 have had their cars, trucks and other vehicles inspected, leaving more than 1,000,000 to act within the remaining three weeks."

The state police director reminded motorists of the impending deadline with a note of concern. He suggested that automobile owners visit a near-by inspection station now before inspection lines become long and they suffer an undue loss of time and effort.

In commenting generally on the inspection program Col. Garrison said the correction of mechanical defects in vehicles operated upon our state highways plays a substantial part in preventing traffic accidents.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

MOths, RuSt, ThIEves

JESUS bade men to lay up their treasures beyond the reach of moths and rusts and safe from the flching of thieves.

It is bad to find that a beautiful garment has been marred by moths, that costly looks have been dulled by rust, and that a treasure in gold has been stolen by thieves. And men are constantly on the alert to save their treasure from moth and rust and thieves. Cedar chests, moth repellants, dry places with protection from moisture, and locks and bars are depended upon for preservation.

But a moth-eaten garment is not as bad a moth-eaten heart — a heart that is eaten by lust and greed. And worse than rusted tools are tarnished principles and ideals, a tarnished life, ruined by the touch of evil.

So Jesus bids men to lay up their treasures beyond the reach of time and its corrupting elements. Here is an instructive contrast between the material and the immaterial. There is wisdom in so using the things of time that they shall minister to temporal need and happiness and be transmuted into treasures beyond the reach of earthly ruin.

Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Dawson of Canyon, were visiting with relatives in Santa Anna on Friday of last week.

The five living Russell sisters spent Thursday night of last week in the home of one of them, Mrs. Jewel Powers, east of town. The others present were Mrs. Artie Magill of Fort Worth, Mrs. Emma Penny of Bangs Route Two, Mrs. Pearl Etheredge of Brownwood, and Mrs. Ruby Howard of Bangs. All had a great time together and talked themselves to sleep.

PARK OF THE WEEK

Long before the white settlement of West Texas, Indians used the site of Abilene State Park at the foot of Big Chief Mountain as a camping place. The present-day park has been developed to facilitate picnicking and camping in the park's large grove of native trees. Rest rooms, a hundred thousand gallon swimming pool, grills, tables, benches, large parking areas and playgrounds provide comfort and added enjoyment for modern visitors. The park is reached over Farm Highway 89, southwest of Abilene.

ABILENE STATE PARK has been a popular camping site in Texas since long before the first wagon trains stopped there in the shade of a grove of 4,000 native pecan trees. Even before the cattle drives passed that way the Indians had used the grove at the foot of Big Chief Mountain as a gathering place. Tonkawa markings still can be deciphered on old trees in the park.

Today's travelers follow markers leading to Farm Highway 89 southwest of Abilene to utilize the same site but with more comforts. A hundred thousand gallon swimming pool, playgrounds with slides, swings and other devices, a large dance terrace, picnic tables, seats and grills, rest rooms, parking spaces and other conveniences have been added.

Due to its central geographical location and its large grove, Abilene State Park probably has more reunions and picnics than any other 500 acres in Texas.

The park has been developed primarily for day visitors. Overnight camping is permitted. Because the park is designed to supply the needs of day visitors unusually spacious parking has been provided about the concessions building and swimming pool.

Adjoining the park is Camp Tonkawa of the Chisholm Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Christian Church Youth Have Delayed Meeting

The Christian Youth Fellowship of the First Christian Church, met in the annex on Friday afternoon, at 5:30 p. m. The meeting had been postponed from Wednesday afternoon.

Some of the women came earlier and planted flowers on the church ground. Several men also were busy on weeds, before and during the meeting.

Mrs. Oscar Boenicke, president, was in charge and several worthwhile things were agreed upon.

First, on Wednesday afternoon of April 3, in connection with the regular meeting, there will be an egg shower for the Juliette Fowler Homes. All church families are asked to assist. News just released says, the homes have used up all their supply of eggs, and are now having to buy.

It was also agreed to have a bake sale on the Saturday before Easter, April 20th. Place to be announced later.

Also plans were made for the local organization to be hosts on Thursday, May 9th, for a work shop of other C. W. F. organizations in this area, with morning and afternoon sessions and a covered dish luncheon at noon.

After the business was attended to, Mrs. Charles Benge and Mrs. Coy Brooke brought an interesting missionary program.

Since our last news items we have had wonderful rains. Although we received very unusual weather over the weekend. But wasn't so bad since we had received good rains previous, and say "Thanks for the Good" and accept the bad.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Page News and Courier, Luray, Virginia: If any of our readers feel there is serious need of another organization for the protection of something-or-other, we propose herein the American Association for the Prevention of the Disparagement of Corn!

No other member of the entire vegetable kingdom is quite thoroughly American as corn. It sprang from this continent, it gave the noble redman his most dependable sustenance. It even encouraged him to occasional spurts of industry.

Corn succeeded the first settlers, both in Massachusetts and Virginia. But for corn, we would have no "first families." Corn became our earliest important export, the backbone of Colonial foreign trade. It became a medium of exchange—to the discredit of foreign coinage, and before we had a system of our own.

The plow that broke the plains was planting corn at the time. The growth and prosperity that followed were based on corn. And while 85 per cent of this premier national crop still flows into feed troughs to fatten our pigs and cattle; and while today's Americans are as fond of roasting ears and succotash and corn bread and corn chowder as their ancestors—and have invented corn flakes besides—it further supports mighty industries producing starch, dextrose, syrups, corn oil—even alcohol and synthetic rubber!

But the end is not yet. In fact, say chemists who began seriously working only a score or so years ago to break down the starch molecule, this is the beginning. They now suspect, in fact, a curious chemical alliance between the petroleum hydrocarbon and the corn carbohydrate! They hope to find a corn-starch "ring," analogous to the "benzene ring," from which has sprung the synthesis of hundreds of unlikely petroleum products, such as plastics, rubber, drugs, paints, dyes and fabrics.

To this end, the Corn Industries Research Foundation, Inc., which began underwriting scientific investigation into our most useful grain since 1935, has this year allotted $200,000 for 20 fellowship grants to science centers over the nation. So perhaps, in view of the $2,000,000 already provided by C.I.R.F., and the scientific progress already achieved, we may be on the brink of discoveries that will make corn our leading industrial raw material, and the farmer a leading industrial personage!

In which case, you won't need to join the A.A.P.D.C. mentioned above.

Social Security Information On Household Help

(Editor's note: This is one of a series of articles to better acquaint employers of domestic help of their responsibilities under both tax and benefit laws of the Social Security Administration.)

Social Security tax must be paid by the employer for any household worker who receives $50 or more wages in any calendar quarter, according to R. R. Tuley, Jr., Social Security Administration District Manager of Abilene and A. E. Fogle, Jr., Administrative Officer of the Abilene district Internal Revenue Service.

This tax, 2 1/2 per cent each for employee and employer, since January 1957, applies to domestic workers ranging in jobs from upstairs maids to chauffeurs. From 1950-1957 it was two per cent.

The IRS director explained wages include payments in cash or by check or money order. Not included for household workers is the value of food, lodging or clothing. Cash payment for bus or car fare is included, but not the cost of bus or car tokens.

The tax is paid to the IRS district director on a simple form, 942, available at IRS Form 942, showing name, social security number, wages paid and tax withheld from each household employee, should be completed and returned to Revenue within one month after the end of the calendar quarter — that is, by April 30 for the January-March quarter.

Here are two typical questions and their answers most often heard at the Abilene social security district office.

An employer says: "I have just received a copy of the Household Employer's Social Security Tax Guide. On the inside of the back cover are copies of receipts I'm instructed to give my household employee. There's a blank in which I'm asked to fill in the amount of the social security tax I withheld from my employee's cash wages. Now, I pay the entire amount of the social security tax — my share and my employee's share. What do I write in this space?"

Reply: "Write 'None.'" While household employees, like employees in other kinds of work, are required by law to have their share of the social security taxes deducted from their wages, the law doesn't specify that you must withhold it. If you wish to assume the entire amount of the tax, that's your privilege.

A mother asks, "What about a baby sitter's wages? I pay mine $15 a month. Do I have to report her wages for social security?"

Reply: "No, the wages you pay her aren't covered by social security unless they amount to $50 a calendar quarter."

Both government representatives pointed out that there are severe penalties provided by law for persons willfully ignoring the law, "just the same as for evaders of the income tax."

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Browning and their four children from Oklahoma City, came last Friday afternoon and visited until Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Parker. They returned home through Abilene, where they formerly lived and visited with other relatives.

CHICK CHATS—Space Needs For Chicks Outlined

Chicks need plenty of floor space, feeder space, and waterer space to do well. The poultry raiser who skimps on these requirements reduces his own profits, for the chicks will not live and grow at a desirable rate.

The Nutrition Council of the American Feed Manufacturers Association has issued recommendations for brooding space and equipment for chicks. These recommendations should be carefully considered by all poultry raisers.

According to AFMA, each chick should be allowed a minimum of 7 sq. in. of space under the hover. For electric brooders, up to 10 sq. in. per chick may be needed.

Restrict Number of Chicks
The AFMA recommendations state that where chicks are brooded under individual units, 350 should be the maximum number per brooder unit. (For broiler chicks, 500 chicks per unit is permissible.)

Allow a minimum of 1/2 sq. ft. of floor space per bird through 6 weeks of age, and at least 1 sq. ft. from 7 through 12 weeks.

As for-feeder space, the recommendations are: day old through 2 weeks, 100 linear inches per 100 chicks; 3 through 6 weeks, 175 linear inches per 100 chicks; and 7 through 12 weeks, 300 linear inches per 100 chicks. "Linear inches" means the total inches of a hopper on both sides.

Watering Space
Provide 100 chicks with the following drinking space, the AFMA says: day old through 2 weeks, 20 linear or 2 gallon size fountains; and 3 through 12 weeks, 40 linear inches or two 3-gallon fountains.

Additional space for both feed and water should be provided in warm weather.

Other management recommendations of the AFMA include using a solid guard around the hover in cold weather (in warm weather, a wire guard). The guard should be moved back gradually and removed completely at the end of the first week.

The AFMA also recommends teaching early roosting, providing good litter, and using small night lights.

Mrs. Bill Pritchard left Tuesday morning for Dallas, to be with her sister, Mrs. Robert Turner, in a hospital there. Mrs. Turner phoned for Mrs. Pritchard to come. It is thought Mrs. Turner can be moved this week to her home at Denison.

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM
AND LET US PASS IT ON TO HELP OTHERS IN SOLVING THEIRS.
BY JOHN and JANE STRICKLAND

Today's Problem: Facing Discouragement

"IT WAS a discouraging moment," said Howard Grieves, of 5240 Centre Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, "when I found I had a cataract forming on my left eye. Old age was creeping up on me! I was further discouraged when I was told by my doctor that in time, the same catastrophe would befall the other eye.

"For a week I went about in a daze. Would I eventually become totally blind? I was so distressed about my affliction that I didn't even tell my wife for days; and then I made her promise not to mention it to anyone. I wanted no sympathy; in fact I almost felt I was facing disgrace, and I felt ashamed. Never having been around anyone afflicted with eye trouble.

One evening, as I stood on a street corner waiting for the lights to change someone tapped my arm: "Would you kindly tell me when the light is green?" I turned to face a man totally blind. As I walked across the street with him he made a cheerful remark about the beautiful sunny day. I was hesitant about replying, and he went on to say, 'I suppose you wonder that I know it is a sunny day?' I said, 'Well, yes—' 'Oh, I feel it,' he said, 'and that's just as satisfactory as seeing it.'

"I walked several blocks with him because he cheered me. As we talked, he told me that loss of sight wasn't the worst thing that could happen to a man. For instance, some people were permanently crippled, or paralyzed, or deaf. And there was never a day when he didn't experience the helpfulness of man, not only in crossing streets, but in devious other ways. Those he contacted showed they liked him, wanted to do something for him. I again felt ashamed. But this time, what a difference! I was ashamed because I had been such a coward in facing temporary disability of eyesight, and this optimistic man had had his disability made permanent.

"Never again did I succumb to a discouraging thought about my eyes. The doctor had said I could have an operation to restore the sight of one eye, long before the other eye would suffer. Why, I would never be totally blind from a cataract!

Only Few Days Left To Submit Bids On Veterans Lands

Austin, Mar. 25 — Texas veterans were reminded today that they have only another week to submit bids on 52 tracts of forfeited land to be sold by the Veterans' Land Board on April 3.

Bids will be received until 10 o'clock that morning when they will be opened.

The property offered for sale — located mostly in northeast, central, and southwest portions of the state — was originally bought through the Veterans' Land Program, but was later forfeited because original purchasers were behind in their payments.

Anyone desiring information about the sale may contact the Veterans' Land Board in Austin, Commissioner Rudder said.

The Delta Kappa Gamma met in regular session in the Hospitality Room of the First Coleman National Bank Monday night. This countywide organization includes teachers or those who have taught. They have interesting programs, usually by the members. Members in Santa Anna are Mrs. W. B. Sparkman, Mrs. Chas. Evans, Mrs. C. D. Bruce, Mrs. Jas. L. Harris, Mrs. Hardy Blue and Mrs. J. H. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton House and Bobbie visited with relatives at Junction last weekend.

Today's Problem: DOES FAITH HELP? DOES religion help one solve a problem? In other words, can God help you?

You may say that God never meant to do our work for us; that he expects us to solve our own problems. Or you may believe that God intends us to look to Him.

Ethel Webster, 430 Washington Avenue, Dunkirk, New York, says that she has embraced these beliefs alternately, but that she eventually combined the first with the second.

"It may be," she says "that faith in God's help means merely calming our fears, enabling us to look at a problem objectively, which always helps in coming to a solution."

"I lost my job during the middle of the Great Depression, and only those who had a similar experience can know how discouraging that was. For weeks I looked for a job, and got nowhere. One day, after trekking from one employment agency to another, I went into a church, not to pray, not to look to God, but just to rest my weary feet. A noon hour service was being held. When I left that edifice these words rang in my ears:

"God never meant you to be forever depressed; God never meant you to remain down in your luck; God never meant you to fail ultimately; He gave you problems in order to test you. Believe in Him and He will help you."

"It was as if that minister were speaking directly to me.

"The remainder of that day and all of the next, I held to those thoughts, though at times I had difficulty as discouraging thoughts tried to crowd them out.

"The third day, I was sent for by my old employer. Another had married, and unmarried women were being given priority over those who had another member of the family with employment.

"That religion helped me, you may doubt, but I do not. I know that my thoughts, inspired by the minister in that church, wrought gain out of havoc for me."

THE PANTHER STRIKES

By Allen Wishert

THE hour was nearing midnight, from out of the hills rolling over the prairie, came the distant scream of a panther, like the wailing of a lost soul.

Lem Garrett had been awaiting this hour, being foreman of the outfit, he had erected himself a shack several yards beyond the bunk-house where he could keep book away from the rowdyism.

Lem watched the hands of an alarm clock as they climbed toward the fateful hour. A Winchester rested across his knees.

Fifteen minutes to twelve. He arose, examined the rifle, assuring himself that a 30-30 cartridge was under the hammer, and again the panther screamed.

Lameul Garrett had taken life as it came, going about his ranch chores with heart and mind at peace with the world, until this latest event appeared. Nettie Ragsdale, three weeks ago had given him her promise. Nettie was 19, Lem 23. Considering their age and environments, every rancher predicted an ideal marriage.

However, there was one obstacle, Nettie's father, Gabe Ragsdale, a hardy plainsman, rugged, with the temper of a locost steer. He objected strenuously to the match; not that he objected to Lem, no more so than any other cowboy on the plains, but he possessed higher ideals for Nettie. She had attended boarding school, and he considered her slightly above any of the waddies thereabouts. He planned for her to marry some well to do man and live comfortably in a city, like Cheyenne, for instance.

When Nettie mentioned her selection to her father, he became explosive, raved and ranted, finally declared:

"The only way you'll marry Lem Garrett, will be over my dead body."

When Nettie informed Lem of her father's decision, he merely gazed into the far off yonder somewhere, and replied:

"Maybe he won't live so awfully long. Accidents do happen."

"Lem, you mean—"

"Pay no attention to what I'm saying, Nettie. Words sometime imply false meanings."

To the midnight in question, with rifle pressed snugly under his arm, Lem stepped through the door of his shack into the moonlight.

That very day Gabe Ragsdale had mentioned that he was going on a panther hunt.

Fifteen minutes to twelve, Lem rode into the hills; Gabe Ragsdale was doing likewise. Lem had in mind the exact boulder that would afford concealment.

He hadn't long to wait, a lone rider, Gabe Ragsdale, was approaching. Lem settled himself, rifle barrel atop the boulder, an eye squinting along the sights. He placed a finger on the trigger, the moon illuminated the scene as bright as day.

Gabe, only fifteen yards away, reined his horse under a large tree.

The slight wavering of a limb above Gabe's head, caused Lem to look upward. A panther, crouched, ready to spring, caught his gaze. That sleek, death-dealing cat would save Lem firing a bullet. Gabe Ragsdale's doom was sealed with no evidence of foul play.

The panther, slowly, without sound, edged its hind leg's forward beneath its body, giving momentum to the bound.

The brute quivered, a split-second and it would be on its way. Lem raised his sights and three 30-30 slugs curled the beast and it crashed beneath the tree, lifeless.

A month later Lem and Nettie were married. After the ceremony, Gabe Ragsdale grasped Lem Garrett's hand.

"Son," he said, "Somewhere it is said: 'A life for a life.' You gave me mine, I now repay by giving one of my own into your keeping."

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE American people are being spoon-fed on a diet of propaganda only slightly tinged with the pale color of fact concerning their government here in Washington. This propaganda diet is being screened through a tight censorship divulged to the people only through the medium of the press conference, speeches by public officials and the mimeographed press hand-out.

This dangerous pattern, which has been developing over the past few years is due partly, in some government agencies, to hold-over war time censorship practices; partly to hysteria over security consciousness which ran rampant during Communist probes and investigations; partly by just plain cover-up tactics by bungling government officials for fear of criticism, and partly because of the crack-pot and fallacious theory that what the people don't know won't hurt em.

That this is true is borne out every day in debates on the floor of the congress, debates which seldom see the light of dissemination through news media; in every-day discussions by veteran news reporters at the National Press Club; by resolution adopted by Newspaper Associations and various press organizations — all seeking to rip off the lid of unnecessary and arbitrary censorship which is withholding essential facts, or disseminating half-truths which confuse the people and prevent them from arriving at any informed opinion relative to their government and the issues confronting it.

It is further borne out and spread of record through thousands of pages of testimony by at least two congressional investigating committees, one which has been in session for months a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations, under chairmanship of Rep. John E. Moss, of California.

This Committee has just issued another progress report under date of Feb. 22. Here is a passage from this report:

"The maze of Federal restrictions on the people's right to know is becoming a little less complicated as clear policies are developed to spell out this basic right. Recent activities of the Special subcommittee on Government Information have bolstered an earlier conclusion that a major cause of the restrictive maze is the attitude of the Federal Executive agencies. The 25th Intermediate Report of the House Committee on Government Operations defined this attitude as one which says that we, the officials, not you, the people, will determine how much you are to be told about your own government."

Here is an example of misinformation from somebody. The news media for many months has been reporting on the need for new schools, more and better teachers and more classrooms. On February 22, 1957 the United States Chamber of Commerce, through its published Washington Report, said: "No classroom emergency exists. The emergency need for the Administration's school construction aid plan is disproved by the Administration's own studies. No critical national shortage in class rooms has been or can be demonstrated to exist."

OUR WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman C. C. FISHER

Capitol Hill continues to buzz about the budgets. And so last week another one of the 13 major appropriation bills that will be acted upon was approved, but with a half billion dollar reduction from budget estimates. It was a 5½-billion dollar bill.

That makes 5 out of the 13 already acted upon, and the total cuts up to now amount to $798,500,000. The $35 billion defense appropriation and the four and a half billion foreign aid bills will be acted upon a little later.

Thus, it now looks like the eventual reductions may run anywhere from two to five billion. Speaking of the money bill acted upon last week, it included an item of $95 million for subsidizing public housing obligations that are outstanding. That serves as a good reminder of what it means for chickens to come home to roost. As a result of the Congress — over the protest of many of us — year in and year out authorizing more of these projects to be built at taxpayers' expense, we are called upon to pay more and more each year on the amortized obligations. And the amount increases each year as new projects are built and more obligations are added.

Originally justified by sponsors as a way of providing housing for low-income and welfare families, Uncle Sam has now built about a half million units, making the Government the biggest of all landlords. Tenants pay only a fraction of the actual rental value of the public housing apartments they occupy.

Getting away from the original concept of helping the needy, it has been revealed that many of these projects are now occupied by families earning several thousand dollars annually. In debate last week, I cited an example of this: A housing project in Pittsburgh is occupied 80% by steelworkers who earn more than $100 per week, while American taxpayers are, in effect, paying a sizeable part of their rent bills for them each week. We have registered vigorous protest against this kind of business.

Recent visitors have included Mr. and Mrs. Max Eubank of Santa Anna. Max is attending specialist courses at nearby Ft. Belvoir, the Engineers' School, and will be assigned to NIKE (guided missile) project after another five weeks of training.

Read John 4:6-15.

There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me a drink. (John 4:7.)

This Samaritan woman had learned that the Messiah was to come. Unknowingly, she meets Him face to face at a well in Samaria. He asks of her a simple favor — "Give me a drink."

Is it not true that often we meet Christ in just such ways? It is not for us to hesitate, as did this woman, when a simple need arises. It is for us to meet each worthy need with prompt action, for Jesus says, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." God gave abundantly and Jesus gave freely. As Christians, surely we can do not less than give willingly. Isaiah tells us that God was his salvation and "with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation." Christ, the gift of God, gives living water. He is our salvation. With joy we can draw on this living water and share it in Christian service at every opportunity.

PRAYER
Prepare our minds, our hearts, our hands, O God, with a fervent desire to meet every worthy need. Make us appreciative of all opportunities to do good and to manifest our gratitude by loyalty to Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
In God's mercy we find our salvation; in service to others we express our love for Christ.

BEWARE THE RABID DOG

College Station — The rabid dog is a constant threat to all children, asserts Dr. C. M. Patterson, extension veterinarian, especially on warm spring days when large groups of youngsters congregate in play areas. Rabies is currently a serious problem in several sections of the state, he adds, and should be a subject of real concern to pet owners everywhere.

Dr. Patterson says any warm-blooded animal is susceptible to rabies, but that it is most likely to spread by the predator-type. Symptoms are hard to define, explains the veterinarian, but its a good practice to suspect any animal if it loses the fear of man.

Keep under observation any suspicious animal should it bite a human, advises Dr. Patterson. If the animal is not available, the person should be placed under competent medical supervision at once.

Texas law now empowers commissioners courts to declare the county a rabies control area, Dr. Patterson says. This should extend more efficient control programs into the state's rural areas. Vaccination of all pets and strict impoundment of every stray dog are essential features of a good control program, he adds.

Wild animals sometimes carry the danger of rabies to farms and ranches, endangering livestock as well as farmers. Dr. Patterson warns rural people to be on the lookout for strange-acting animals, particularly foxes, coyotes, skunks, and civet cats. Pets coming in contact with any suspicious domestic or wild animals should be given a booster shot, he warns, even if already protected by a standard rabies shot.

Newt Cuipepper returned to his home at Stude, Texas, Monday, after being here for a week end visit with his mother, Mrs. Annie Brannan. Mrs. Brannan is improving some from the serious illness of several weeks. Her daughter, Mrs. Carl Turner, stays with her all the time.
