Quarterback Club Athletic Banquet Friday; Baseball Program Underway

The annual banquet, honoring every student in the high school or elementary school that participated in any sport, will be held in the luncheon room Friday night, April 26, at 8:00 p. m. Over 100 students will be honored and a large number of the organization's members and others are expected to attend.

A good program with sports as the theme, has been arranged.

Plans for the Quarterback Club Summer Program was pretty well completed at the called meeting Monday night. A total of 50 boys have indicated they want to play in each division, the Pony League and Little League ages. This will give plenty of boys for four teams in each group. Also enough managers were on hand to manage three teams in each group.

There is an opening for a general supervisor over the summer program, the only paid job in the program. Anyone interested is requested to submit a sealed bid to the president, Add Walker, before May 13. Some of the duties of the general supervisor are to keep score at all league games, keep all records and standings and submit them to the local newspaper each Wednesday morning, keep field in playing condition, be responsible for the public address equipment and taking up collection at each game, sole responsibility for scheduling of all games to be played on the local field. There are other duties, but these are the primary ones.

The organization also needs at the very least, two more managers, one in the Pony League division and one in the Little League division.

Of interest to local fans is the fact that the Quarterback Club has voted that Santa Anna must be represented as a team before permission can be granted to play on the field.

It is planned to publish the entire set of rules that govern the program within the next week or two. However, of interest to those who live out of town and have to bring their boys in to practice, is that only one practice session will be held each week. This will be worked out to the best advantage of the boys and the time of practice will be designated.

Managers present at the meeting were: Pony League, Donnie Simmons and Robert E. Lancaster, James A. Harris and Ed Hartman, and Doug Moore is to get him a helper; Little League division, Byron Gilbreath and Freddie Dodson, Cullen N. Perry and Add Walker, and M. L. Guthrie is to get him a helper. At least two more managers with helpers are needed.

The annual membership drive was started Monday night with 16 paying their dues. The membership committee is composed of: Ellis Densman, Ed Hartman, L. M. Guthrie, Roy West, Eph Day, Earl Hardy, Bertha Allen and M. L. Guthrie.

The first 16 to pay their dues were: Earl Hardy, Joe Mathews, Bill Pritchard, W. R. Buse, J. A. Harris, Pierre Rowe, Santa Anna Co-op Gin, D. H. Moore, Tom White, Cullen Perry, H. C. Goodwin, Ed Hartman, E. V. Campbell, E. M. Niell, William R. Brown and Robert E. Lancaster. Membership dues are $3.00 per year. It is hoped the organization will have at least 100 paid members.

Eph Day and Ed Hartman are one year directors; Earl Hardy and James A. Harris are two year directors; and Tom Stewardson, J. K. Stearns and Jack Amarine are three year directors. Baseball commissioners are the same as last year, Bill Pritchard, Tom Stewardson and Tom Kingsbery.

Pierre Rowe was elected as reporter for the organization.

After the morning service at the first Methodist Church Sunday, Rev. Frank L. Turner left for Colorado City, to be with his wife and children for the funeral of her father, Mr. Hooks, who died early Friday night, after a long illness.

Civil Defense Plan Completed At Tuesday Meeting

The completion of the local Civil Defense plan was marked by a city-wide meeting at the high school auditorium Tuesday night, with most of the members of the organization present. Mrs. C. D. Bruce, director for Santa Anna, introduced the speakers: Judge Walter K. Boyd of Coleman, told of the Federal and State preparations in case of disaster or war. Chairmen or Vice Chairmen of the various panels were Dawson See of Public Relations, M. R. Simmons of Law Enforcement, Arlie Welch of Engineers, W. R. Mulroy of Communications, W. F. Barnes of Welfare, Norman Hosch of Transportation, W. T. Jones of Medical, and Cullen N. Perry of Schools. Each introduced their section chiefs.

Mrs. B. J. Robinett of the telephone committee and the Area Wardens, Albin Houdek, John Gregg, D. H. Moore, J. Frank Turner, Jr., and Walker Tatum, were introduced.

Mrs. Robert L. Markland, head of the Santa Anna Ground Observer Corp, told briefly of the plans for the group. Sgt. Jay Hyde of Abilene spoke on the work of the Federal Ground Observer Corp, and showed a film on the services of that organization.

R. B. McHorse of Coleman Administration Panel Chief for Coleman County, described the effectiveness of the Civil Defense as seen by Washington.

No other meeting of the local group is planned, as it is felt that a capable organization has been set up, ready for any disaster which everyone hopes will never come.

Good Rains Cover Wide Area

Two good rains have been received in this area since last week, and both have been of an inestimable value to the entire area. The one on Thursday night and Friday was very badly needed. It amounted to an estimated 2 inches throughout the Santa Anna area.

Monday night another good rain fell, measuring 1.15 inches at the official gauge at the Coleman Gas Company office. Some reports indicate as much as 1 1/4 inches fell in some of the rural areas.

A week ago most of the small grain and other crops that have been planted, were suffering considerable damage from the dry weather. However, most people are of the opinion that the rains came in time to save the crops. There is good stands of grain throughout this area and it looks now as if the prospects for good crops are fine.

MILFORD BLANTON

Milford Blanton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Blanton. He was born at Gouldskus, Texas. Later he moved with his family to Santa Anna.

Milford is now an active member of the Future Farmers of America organization. He is now in his junior year of Vocational Agriculture. As a project in this field he fed out twenty-three lambs and has a breeding flock of ten Southdown ewes. Also, he is a member of the Science Club. Although not an active member of the Feeder-Breeder, because he is not old enough, Milford thinks a great deal of the members of this organization because of the great work they sponsor.

He is a member of the Assembly of God Church. Milford attends Sunday School and church regularly.

He has worked with his father in the service station during the summer. Also, he and his brother completed seventy feet of sheds for lamb projects.

Milford has decided to try to go to college. He has decided to get the money through winnings on his lamb projects and other additional work that he can accomplish. He has not definitely decided whether he wants to be a school teacher or an engineer.

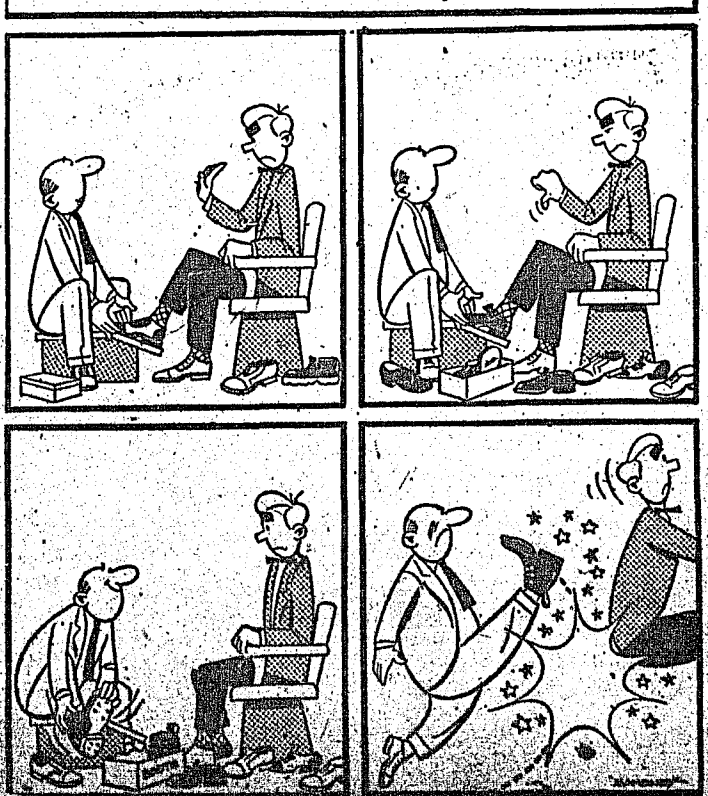

His objective at the present time is to provide his own way for a college education.

We can heartily applaud this warm sentiment for the tried-and-tested — because we too have had the privilege of serving one generation after another of many families hereabouts — have helped them to achieve security and success. The Budgetarians — folks who are sticklers for budget figures and seem to think they are sacrosanct — are resting during the Easter recess, licking their wounds and girding themselves for the second phase of the battle in May.

With only $15 billion of budget requests acted upon this far, the budgetarians fought valiantly against every one of the cuts that have totaled $1.1 billion thus far. That means the big battles are yet to be fought. The Senate has not yet acted on any appropriations.

President Eisenhower, following House prodding, came up with a $2 billion suggestion for cuts. That's in addition to what the House has done thus far. So the outlook brightens, and despite the stubborn opposition, coming in the main from liberal Democrats, aided and abetted by such liberal columnists as Drew Pearson, it now looks like we will be able to trim the budget estimates as much as $9 billion — again assuming the Senate will go along with us.

FARMERS ADVISED TO WATCH FOR GRASSHOPPER DEVELOPMENTS

College Station — Farmers and stockmen in many areas of Texas are advised by Extension Entomologists F. M. Fuller and C. F. Garner to be on the alert for possible damaging infestations of grasshoppers during this spring and summer.

Based on surveys made by the USDA the entomologists say that infestations ranging from very severe to light are forecast for the Panhandle, with Dallam, Moore, Hartley and Potter counties in the very severe area. Threatening is the term used to describe an even larger area to the east. Possible severe infestations could occur in Knox, King, Dickens, Motley, Floyd and parts of Crosby, Swisher, Hall, Donley, Armstrong, Randall, Deaf Smith and Castro counties. Also in parts of Wichita, Clay, Sherman and Hansford counties.

Threatening to light infestations could occur in wide areas from the Red River south into deep central Texas. The situation at present, point out the entomologists, should be watched very carefully. The first nymphs, newly hatched "hoppers," have been found in the Brazos River bottom and hatching will progress northward with favorable weather.

The time to do the most effective job of controlling "hoppers," emphasize the specialists, is before the young leave the hatching grounds. Roadside, field margins, ditch banks and idle lands bordering cropland should be watched carefully for the appearance of young "hoppers." When numbers justify the use of control measures, several insecticides are readily available for doing the control job and include aldrin, dieldrin, heptachlor, toxaphene and chlordane.

The entomologists suggest that the local county agent be contacted for complete details on control measures and when and how they should be applied. The insecticides are poisonous to man and animals as well as grasshoppers and the manufacturers' directions should be followed closely, says Fuller and Garner.

COTTON'S VITAL BY-PRODUCT

Many old-timers in Texas can recall the days when cottonseed was dumped away as waste. But cottonseed today plays a highly significant role in our every day life. The ingenious skills of American scientists and research specialists have taken this once-discarded agricultural commodity and put it into consumer channels throughout the world. Cotton producers have benefited greatly from development of seed uses. A market for the seed means some $100,000,000 annually to Texas farmers, or one-sixth of the lint's value. About 900 pounds of seed are in the average bale that goes to the gin.

Cottonseed crushing began 90 years ago at High Hill in Fayette County. Since then, this vital industry has expanded into every major cotton producing area. Lubbock, Texas, today has the world's greatest concentration of cottonseed crushing. Among the many consumer goods made possible by the former "waste" product are salad dressing, shortening, mayonnaise, margarine and a synthetic ice cream, known as mellorine.

Besides foodstuffs, cottonseed is made into feeds for animals and a variety of plastic products. Cottonseed meal is a popular fertilizer of high nitrogen content. The story of the cottonseed industry fits well into the picture of American progress — a perpetual progress based on the technological skills of a free and independent Democracy.

Research's role in past progress offers optimism for the future. New crop uses, new markets, new products from the farm, will be marvelled at by the old-timers of tomorrow.

The waste of today might be the necessity of tomorrow.

Visitors with Mrs. H. M. Smith over the weekend were: Mr. and Mrs. Noah Stacy and five sons of Texon; The Bob Whites of Fort Worth. All had dinner with Mrs. Beula Fleming. Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Thigpen of Abilene visited Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Smith and later her daughter, Mrs. R. O. White of Odessa called her by phone and they had a good talk.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Harlowe and children of Dallas, were here at the weekend, visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Irick. The Harlowes are moving back to Dayton, Ohio, after two months residence in Dallas. Mr. and Mrs. Irick and Frances visited in the Harlowe home during last week.

Miss Kathryn Baxter of Waco was home for the Easter weekend. Enroute she visited Friday night in the home of Mrs. Wylie Baxter in San Saba.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stephenson visited on Sunday afternoon in Abilene with their son, C. W. Stephenson and family.

DRESS UP FOR LOVE

By Lillace M. Mitchell

LULIE emptied the coffee grounds on the Spartan rose and eyed the ground around the plant as it drank the liquid almost thirstily. Although she did not look next door she could see, out of the corner of her purple eyes, Charley Cornell polishing his convertible. "Hoo hoo!" he said suddenly. "Hoo hoo yourself," she retorted. She laughed gaily and went back into the kitchen.

"I wish you'd press my blue nylon, Sis," Emmy said. "It only takes a whisper of the iron but—I'm really in a rush."

"Go on! My white shoes have to be whitened," Jimmy cut in. The other two sisters looked at the sink full of breakfast dishes distastefully. "My stars, when we all get up late on these holiday mornings," grumbled Grace, "it puts everything back—I simply can't take time to help with the dishes, Lullie."

Lullie noticed now that the oldest sister, Marcia, was already decked out in her "little cotton" that was skillfully cut and had cost forty-two-fifty at the dress shop. Lullie stood there for a few moments after they had all left the room, her eyes studying the dishes, the nylon dress that needed only the whisper of the iron and the white shoes that would need at least three coats of whitening — to look white.

Out in the yard next door she could hear Charley Cornell whistling tunelessly: a little sound that always pulled her heartstrings. For Charley Cornell had always whistled like that when he had been waiting to take her to the Prom or on a class picnic when they were in high school. Since graduation Charley Cornell has asked her for a dozen dates but Lullie remembered dully that she seemed never to be through with her tasks and she had refused him almost crossly. She was sorry now as she remembered back: after all, it wasn't his fault if the work was all too much for one slim girl to handle.

Her Mother had broken down under the strain and had been in the hospital for three months. No one else ever seemed inclined to shoulder any of the burden and somehow Lullie had found herself "elected" to the job. "Hoo, hoo! Where you going, for Pete's sake?" called Charley.

She looked over at him and smiled tantalizingly. "Did you have any special place in mind, Charley?"

He blinked. "ME? You mean you're going places with ME?"

"Oh, didn't you intend your kind words as an invitation, Charley? Excuse me!"

He shook his polishing rag un-easily. "Gee, I thought I was poison—r something. You kept turning me down every time I asked you. You want to go places today, Lullie?"

"Why not?" she asked simply. From the upstairs bedroom the sisters shared, Emmy called shrilly, "Bring my nylon up, Sis. I'm ready for it now."

Lullie looked up and waved carelessly. "It isn't ironed, darling. Charley and I are going places—" Jimmy crawled out his bedroom window onto the roof over the kitchen porch. "It's mutiny!" he howled. "Mutiny on the Bounty! It's mutiny, that's what—"

"H'm," laughed Charley loudly. "I thought Lullie was going to be MUTE all the rest of her life while you-all walked back and forth over her stretched-out body! Come along, Lullie—let's get going—I sure got sick and tired of those old cotton kitchen dresses you've been living in."

"I s'pose you're wanting to buy her real dress-up dresses, huh?" Jimmy yelled down angrily. "It's a right good idea, Buddy," said Charley. "Glad you mentioned it. It'll smooth the proposal for me—later in the day. Eh, Lullie?"

Elizabeth Smith, R. A. Thompson Vows Exchanged April 14th

Mrs. R. A. Thompson

Miss Elizabeth Smith and R. A. Thompson repeated double-ring wedding vows Sunday, April 14, in the First Baptist Church here. The pastor, Rev. A. G. Purvis, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Christine Smith of Santa Anna. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Thompson, Jr., of Slaton.

The arch, decorated with white satin and greenery, centered the wedding scene. The white candles were set in wrought iron candelabra.

Erenda Densman was flower girl and Marty Donham was ring bearer. Ushers were Doyle McIver and Hilary Rutherford.

The bride's attendants were Jean Smith, sister of the bride, maid of honor and Mrs. Martha Morrow of Lubbock, Judy Ford, Linda Moore and Naomi Baugh of Santa Anna. They were identically dressed in street length pink nylon organdy dresses with pink taffeta cummerbunds.

Each carried a bouquet of white roses, centered with pink carnations.

Billy Thompson, cousin of the groom, served as best man.

The groomsmen were Larry Donham, Pat Morrow of Lubbock, and Bob Thompson of Slaton.

Given in marriage by her brother, O. B. Smith, the bride wore a wedding gown of chantilly lace over white satin and net. Her fingertip veil was held to a seed pearl tiara and she carried a spray of iris.

Miss Barbara House of Abilene, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, cousin of the groom, who sang, "Because", and Mrs. James Mallow, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer".

The reception was held in the church annex.

For traveling the bride wore a pink cotton satin sheath with white accessories.

BEHIND THE BARE HALL

By Kathleen Donelson

"LULAMAE, you will remember that you're in Chicago and quit being friendly with everyone in the apartment," David Blair pleaded as he kissed his wife at the door.

Lulamae rubbed her cheek fondly against his, "I'll try, but I don't see why. Down home—" she began.

"Now you're not down home in Tennessee, you're in an apartment building on Chicago's south side. I don't like leaving you alone with your small town friendliness and your all consuming curiosity."

"If you mean that poor old Mr. Powell across the way in that horrible bare hall—"

"Lulamae stop it! Whether that old man is lonesome or not is none of your business. Besides I know you. You just can't stand not knowing if the rest of his apartment is as bare as the hall."

"Now darling, don't get all steamed up. Get on about your law practice. I'll be good." With another kiss she pushed him out the door.

She glanced at the closed door across the way, visualizing the bare narrow hall which was all she could see when tradesmen made deliveries. About this time every morning the boy brought the newspapers. She hadn't really been curious about the papers, but when she gave the boy a sample of her southern pecan rolls, he had mentioned that the papers were all southern dailies. "Mr. Powell must be a fellow southerner."

In her effort to be casual she waited almost too long, and Mr. Powell had his papers and was about to close the door.

Apparently surprised, Mr. Powell's pale set features relaxed. "Good morning, yourself child, you must be from the South."

"Yes, s-i-r-r-r, late of New Orleans, more recently Tennessee."

Lulamae purred sweetly, her eyes sweeping beyond his neatly dressed figure in the conservative black suit, to that mysterious door in the bare brown walled hall behind him.

Then Mr. Powell bowed curtly, slammed and bolted the door. Now he wouldn't poke his head out until the man delivered that one meal a day, that always came at one. Lulamae stopped as if something had struck her. "Why didn't I think of it before?"

The rest of the morning Lulamae worked happily in her kitchen. Only occasionally did she recall Mrs. Gordon's accounts of mysterious big packages and heavy objects that were delivered at night to Mr. Powell by way of the back stairs.

"But I won't be scared by such talk," she reassured herself. "I'm going to be as neighborly as I can. Mr. Powell lived across the street at home." She carefully spread a linen napkin over the quivering contents of the cut glass dish.

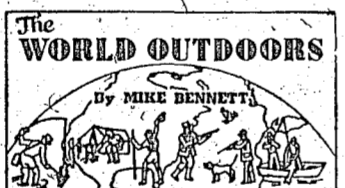

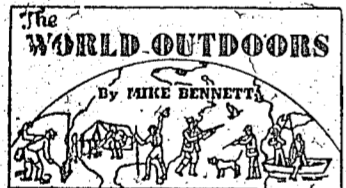

So just as Mr. Powell paid the boy who brought his meal, Lulamae propelled herself through her own door and into his hall, with her own little tray extended. "Please Mr. Powell," she said "I want you all to try my Grandma Clermont's boiled custard. It's so light and digestible we children always called it 'fairly pudding'."

Mr. Powell's grim face relaxed. "Digestible uh?" Lemon flavor?"

"Of course." "Bring it in." He pushed open the inner door and taking the big tray from the restaurant motioned Lulamae to follow.

Her breath came out in one big gasp, when she saw the room behind the bare hall. "Beautiful!"

The man chuckled. "Being a southerner I thought you'd understand. I had a New Orleans grandmother, too. I like her beautiful things around me. Besides I like to buy any oriental rug or tapestries that appeal to me and I like living in a dump so people don't bother me."

WHAT'LL you have—the Micropterus salmoides or the Micropterus dolomieu?

Regardless of your choice, you are in for some fine fishing action and you can quite often work up a good campfire argument by suggesting that the salmoides (largemouth bass) is a more ferocious fighter than the dolomieu (smallmouth bass).

Although the two species are look-alikes, it doesn't take an expert to distinguish between them. The key to identification is the jaw joint, or maxillary, which non-fishermen might call the thick upper lip. The jaw joint extends to a point beyond the eye on a largemouth, whereas it ends directly below the eyes on the smallmouth.

With some exceptions, the type of water in which you catch your bass should tell you if he is a largemouth or a smallmouth. The smallmouth frequents rocks and other hiding places in clear, cold water, preferably about 65 degrees. You'll find the largemouth in water temperature of about 70 degrees and Mr. Bigmouth has a fondness for lily and weed beds.

Although neither fish is too selective in his feeding habits, the smallmouth often hits at moving objects out of pure meanness. At spawning time, a male bass guarding a nest and fry will attack any object that ventures near.

Best natural baits are crawfish (preferably softshells), helgramites, minnows, worms and frogs. Crawfish makes up the bulk of the bass' diet in areas where they are plentiful. In the way of artificial lures, bass will take almost anything; wet or dry flies, sinkers, floaters, spoons, spinners or, you name it. All that is required is action—something you always get when a bass ties into the end of your line.

MOST of us miss the miracle and the magic that is the coming of spring. Mother Nature touches her fruitful wand here and there and for the most part the marvel of it all goes unnoticed. How many can rightfully claim to have found the first bud or bloom, to have been first witness to the building of the first cozy nest in the neighborhood? Has anyone seen the revival of a lowly blade of grass, long stunted and bent by the heavy weight of snow and sleet? Touched by the wand, it becomes erect and, tip pointed to the sky, it begins to grow.

Spring and its magic are old long before most of us recognize the wonders that have been accomplished. One bright and beautiful morning, we discover a world outdoors that is a panorama of beauty. The trees are full-blown and decked in their most appealing green and the fresh fragrance of youth is everywhere about us. The willow dips its boughs to drink the cool waters of the stream and on a distant hill a throaty Bob White whistles to his mate. "Ho-ray. Spring is here," say we.

Mother Nature's presentation of spring will never win an Oscar or an Emmy. The action moves slowly and only the trained eye appreciates the precision and the attention to detail that makes its accomplishment a masterpiece of art. But, think how dramatic it would be if, in the space of a single night or day, snows were brushed away and in one all-sudden transposition, the world of new life that is spring became unrolled in its full glory and splendor! But such is not nature's way.

Spring comes to us slowly. In spring are the leisurely days of fulfillment, the time for sharing in the fullness and goodness of all that earth has to offer.

THE WORRY HABIT

"Dear God help me through just this day."

When he got up the next morning, he said he spoke that sentence aloud as he was shaving. When he sat down to breakfast he felt much happier than usual. His wife was a bit surprised by his pleasant attitude but she responded with a warm kiss as he was leaving.

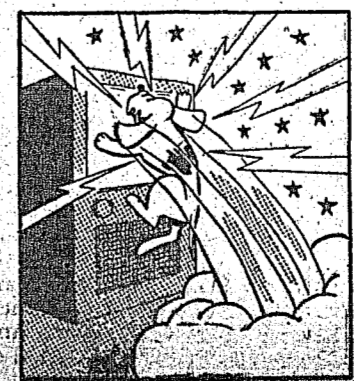

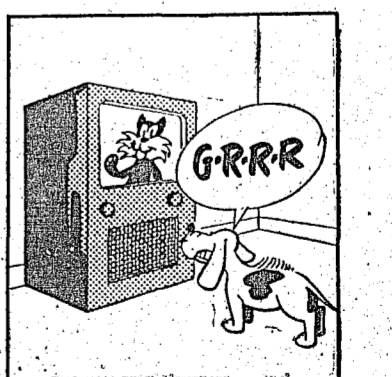

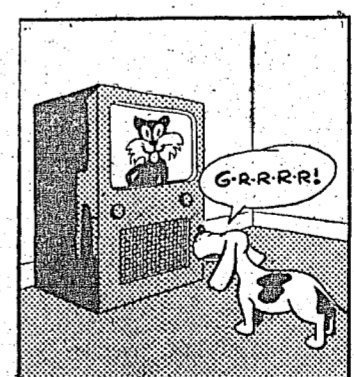

During the day he spoke those words several times to himself. At home that evening he learned that his wife had worked out a plan:

1—They would not buy any more furniture or accessories until what they had were paid for.

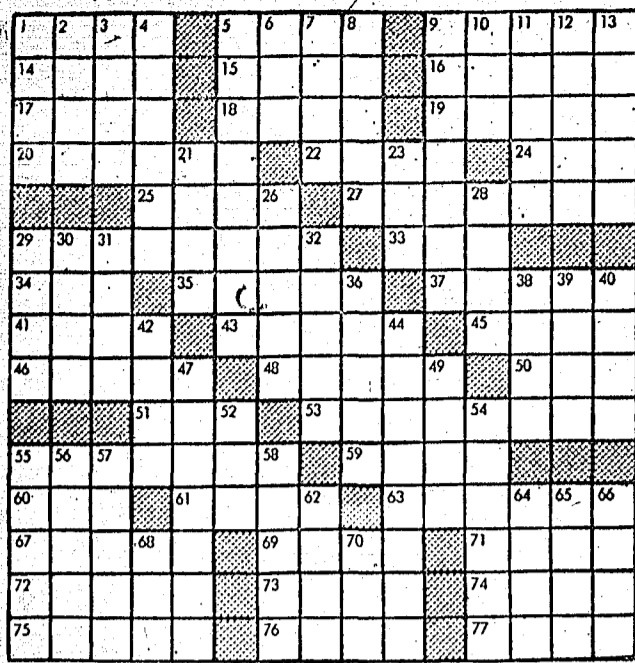

2—They would apply each week something on the various bills, first telling each creditor what to expect. (The attitude of those creditors was most encouraging, simply eradicated all his worry.)

He is now very glad he got married when he did for if he had waited he might not have succeeded in marrying this girl, who, he declares, "is a helpmeet, a partner, and really knows how to make a husband happy."

SCANNING THE NEWS

DURING the next few months there will be much information and speculation published about the Geophysical year, which actually will start July 1, 1957 and continue through two years to July 1, 1959.

Do not dismiss this information and speculation as some long-haired dreamer's idle talk for it will be based upon the combined opinions of some 5,000 scientists in 60 countries, backed by an appropriation of some $40 millions by our own Congress, as well as other appropriations from the participating countries.

For the farmers—the results of studies may help solve his most unpredictable problem—the question of weather, the origin and course of storms, accurate and complete information, ahead of time, on rainfall—what effect rapidly melting glaciers is having on climate and what other atmospheric phenomena has to do with our rainfall and climate.

Do atomic explosions affect our climate? Can we safely dump radioactive waste in the oceans, or will it end up floating up to damage marine life and even mankind? Can atomic waste, which in ten, fifteen or twenty-five years, may amount to millions of gallons or tons, be buried safely on land? For some of this waste will be dangerously radioactive, not for months or years, but for centuries. For instance, even today, scientists estimate that for every nuclear power plant big enough to supply a city the size of Philadelphia or Pittsburgh, a new one-million gallon storage tank for radioactive waste material will have to be installed every year at

TODAY'S Meditation

Read I Corinthians 15:20-28. But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead. I Corinthians 15:20 RSV.)

In her forest home a little child lay dying. Death was a certainty, but the parents would not accept it. Looking to them, Derli said she would soon be with her heavenly Father. They wishfully assured her that she was not going to die. "No," she replied "I am leaving to be with my father in heaven." In a few hours she died.

Through the brief years of her life, this child had come to know the truth central in our Christian faith — the power of God to resurrect His loved ones from the dead. The teachings within the home, the many hymns she knew by heart, the strength of prayer, and the presence of the resurrected Christ — these provided firm reality for even this little one.

Our faith in the power of God can also be unclouded by doubt as we look to Him who raised His Son from the dead. In Him is the power to raise up new creatures in Christ.

PRAYER

O God, of the living, may Thy Son dwell in us today that there shall be in us no room for sin. Let the victorious Christ command our spirits that we may one day be with Thee eternally. In His name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

PARK OF THE WEEK

GARNER STATE PARK north of Uvalde on U.S. Highway 83 is noted for its trails and bridle paths. The park is named in honor of Former Vice-President John Nance Garner. It is on the Frio river at the highest point in Uvalde county. Camp grounds and roomy cabins share in popularity with the park's half million visitors a year. Photo Texas Highway Department.

Garner State Park occupies a full section of vacation land at the highest part of Uvalde County, along the cypress shaded Frio River. The park is on U. S. Highway 83, between Leakey and Concan.

This park is especially popular among those who want to spend a week or two away from home. Because of the heavy demand for its 18 roomy cabins and its 120 camping spaces, occupancy is limited to two weeks. This permits more people to enjoy the park. Last season approximately half a million were cared for in the park.

In response to the nationwide trend toward camping, the winter months were used for installation of improvements that will make campers more comfortable and take care of more visitors than in past years. Metered electricity is furnished at 25 of the camping spaces. Recent construction of a small dam in the park has greatly helped boating and shallow water bathing, leaving the deeper water for swimmers. Swimming is free. There is no life guard in attendance.

Well planned and well cooked meals are served in the park's attractive stone and cypress dining hall. Rates are so reasonable that most cabin occupants do little cooking — a boon for the housewife with a family on vacation.

A large dance terrace overlooking the Frio River, a good stable for safe, well-trained riding horses, fishing, pedal boats and limited park amusement devices offer variety.

Ice, staple groceries, dairy and motor supplies are obtainable in the park. Cabins have hot plates but other utensils are not furnished.

Fountain of Freedoms...a Free Press

The history of the press, since its development five centuries ago, has been a history of restraint. It is natural for men in authority to resent the sting of criticism. It is human for them to be ambitious, and to seek to entrench themselves. Hence rulers often avoid criticism and disagreement by stifling it. But the courageous men who founded this new nation sought here full freedom for each individual. When they established a constitution, aware of the human frailty even of rulers elected from among them, their First Amendment provided that "Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom of speech and of the press..." With the widespread education and enlightenment that resulted, the people here have advanced farther toward all freedoms than the people of any other nation. The beacon of this Western World, marks for all nations the start of the path to Freedoms: Freedom of Speech and of the Press.

Easter Cantata Well Attended

The Easter Cantata at the First Methodist Church Sunday afternoon was very well attended. Ladies of the Methodist Choir was assisted by several ladies of the First Presbyterian Church.

The full choir did themselves proud as they rendered "Calvary", by Wessel.

Kenneth Bowler, in the absence of the pastor, led the devotions and made a good talk. The songs depicting the crucifixion and resurrection were in perfect harmony, the group singing in great volume and solo parts extra well done, as the Biblical story proceeded. There was a joyous crescendo of sound when the resurrection was the theme and the program came to a close in a great way, as all the choir together sang, "Onward Christian Soldiers".

Miss Elsie Lee Harper played the organ accompaniments.

Slice frankfurters and mix these with cooked macaroni and cheese sauce. You'll have a meat and macaroni dish all in one, nice to serve in squares.
