ideas from other editors

From the Tallapoosa Tribune, Tallapoosa, Alabama: Although we do not know enough about the so-called Gwinn amendment, a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States to intelligently discuss it, there are tremendous possibilities contained in one sentence of it.

The sentence reads: "The government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution."

There is no doubt about it, we are now living in an age of super-government, certainly not what the founding fathers had in mind. Centralization of power is the mortal enemy of all save those with the reins in their power-hungry hands. That is no mere idle political philosophy, it is history, clearly written in the books.

Aside from the fact that when government displaces private enterprise it loses a tremendous tax take, it is a common thing for government-controlled businesses to operate at a loss which means that the taxpayers must subsidize them.

From the Ravenswood News, Ravenswood, W. Va.: Human nature being what it is, we frequently remember "the good old days" with nostalgia. Among our fond memories are the prices things used to cost in long past times.

For the most part, those prices were much lower than the prices we pay today—in terms of dollars and cents. But there are other and better yardsticks of price than money alone.

A tabulation concerning meat prices from 1919 to 1956 is an excellent example. The tabulation lists the average retail price of meat in each of the years, along with the workers' average hourly earnings. From this, the amount of working time that was needed to buy a pound of meat is computed.

In 1919, the typical worker had to put in 44.5 minutes of labor to buy that pound of meat. Thereafter, the figure rose and fell, reaching its pre-war low of 21.6 minutes in 1940.

The war years are not included in the tabulation, because the artificial conditions and restrictions then in effect make accurate comparison impossible. In 1947, a worker could earn his pound of meat for only 17.5 minutes of labor—which was the lowest figure ever recorded.

In other words, meat prices have risen—but wages have risen much more.

Ants Are Menace In All Areas Of World

Third in a series on bug control prepared by the Home Insect Control Bureau for the Real-Kill Co.

Ant

The ant is the most familiar of all insects. Ants are found everywhere on the face of the globe, from the Arctic to the tropics.

They are socialist-like insects, living in colonies where there is a true division of labor and a high degree of organization.

Ants vary in color from yellow to black, and are from 1/16 to 1/2 inch long. Feeding habits of the ants are many and varied. Some are carnivorous; others feed on plants and many feed on sap and nectar. Actually, ants will eat nearly everything.

Ants constitute a serious menace. For example, the imported fire ant has infested some 20 million acres in five Gulf Coast states, doing untold damage to crops and livestock. The seriousness of their bite has even prevented farmers from harvesting their crops.

How To Control Ants

Spray all surfaces where ants have been seen. Use a residual type surface spray containing a powerful killing agent such as Dieldrin. Spray all cracks and crevices and places where they can enter the home, particularly doors and window sills. Also spray cabinets, along shelves and drawer slides and into pipe openings. It is usually simple to find an ant trail and track the insect to the nest or ant hill. Wet ant hills thoroughly, and spray all ant trails. Look for ant nests in the basement, and under the porch and eaves. Spray each thoroughly. Repeat the treatment every two or three months to keep the danger of ant invasion at a minimum.

Termites Are Not Ants

Termites are known to some as "white ants," but they are not ants, nor are they even tropics.

They are socialist-like insects, living in colonies where there is a true division of labor and a high degree of organization.

How To Control Termites

Termite control may be relatively simple, or it can be difficult, depending on the infestation. The basic principle of all termite control is to first kill existing termites and then set up a barrier against future invasions. This is done through insecticides and mechanical barriers. Termite shields are effective, but care must be taken to see that they are installed properly.

Gift Tea Honors Martha Priddy

A gift tea, honoring Miss Martha Priddy, bride-elect of Eddie Don Floyd, was given in the home of Mrs. W. F. Barnes Tuesday evening, July 2, from 7 to 9 p. m.

Mrs. D. R. Hill greeted guests and presented them to Mrs. Barnes, the honoree, her mother, Mrs. W. V. Priddy, her sister, Mrs. Paul Vercher of Fort Worth, Mrs. E. L. Floyd of Snyder, mother of the groom-elect, and his sister, Mrs. Bill Boatman of Snyder.

Guests were invited into the dining room by Mrs. A. Preston Bailey.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Arthur Turner, Mrs. Norman Hosch and Mrs. Tom Kingsbery.

The table, laid with a hand woven cloth from Spain, had a centerpiece of pink gladiolus and roses from which pink satin streamers extended, bearing the names "Martha and Edd."

The table had silver and crystal appointments, from which white cake squares and frosted ping punch were served.

Miss Patricia Davis presided at the register and displayed the gifts. The affair was largely attended.

Governor Proclaims Farm Safety Week

College Station — The death toll from farmwork accidents last year in the nation was higher than in any other major industry. "Farm accidents," said Governor Price Daniel on June 13 when he issued his Farm Safety Week Proclamation, "have become a serious problem which not only causes untold suffering among our rural population, but which affects the economy of the entire nation."

In proclaiming the week of July 21-27 as Farm Safety Week, Governor Daniel pointed out that the Texas Safety Association, the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service would be cooperating with the National Safety Council and the U. S. Department of Agriculture in carrying out a farm accident-prevention educational effort. This campaign is in keeping with a proclamation issued earlier by President Eisenhower on a national basis.

Governor Daniel said, "The effect of accident-prevention programs has indicated that our rural residents, through attention to safety education, can greatly reduce accidents and the resulting loss and suffering. Therefore, as Governor, I urge all farm families to join in a continuing campaign against needless accidents."

The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council strongly believes that farm accident prevention efforts should be made a part of every family's plan for improving their farm and home. "Until farm families become conscious of the multitude of accident hazards which surround them, little progress can be made in removing the hazards," says the Council. "We would like to see the farmer and every member of his family become as safety-conscious as are the people who work in industries where the accident rates have been reduced almost to the zero point. We think it can be done, if as Governor Daniel says, everyone will participate in a continuing educational campaign to wipe out farm accidents."

"Appoint yourself a committee of one to start the ball rolling on your farm," urges the Council.

LOCKHART STATE PARK on State Highway 964 has a rehabilitated golf course as this season's major improvement. Both greens and fairways have been aerated and cultivated. Last year's improvement of the bath house and swimming pool has made the park more popular than ever with residents of nearby Lockhart and the personnel of Gary Air Force Base.—Photo by Gordon Lupton.

LOCKHART STATE PARK has a natural setting along Clarefoot Creek in Caldwell County. The site is so attractive that it was accepted for Civilian Conservation Corps construction though it was about half the 500-acre minimum then set as a standard.

The park's swimming pool and its varied nine-hole golf course are attractions that draw large crowds from nearby Lockhart and from Camp Gary.

Good views of the surrounding country are obtainable from the recreation building on the ridge top. A broad terrace on this hill top installation is especially enjoyable for evening dancing or dining.

CCC works cleared the site of the park golf course. The Lockhart Business Men's Club co-operating with the Works Progress Administration, completed it. The first tee, originally, was on the hill top and was said to have the greatest drop of any golf course. Its novelty was offset by the difficulty to climb, and the present course is all on lower ground. Extensive work has been done in the last year improving both fairways and greens. Modest green fees pay for its upkeep. The park swimming pool also has undergone recent improvement. The old bathhouse has been refloored. The water supply for the pool now comes from the artesian wells that supply the City of Lockhart. Formerly the flow of Clarefoot Creek was diverted into the pool. Pool play equipment has been installed. The sloping lawn from the pool to the bathhouse is a popular place for sunning.

Park visitors, by making a short drive, can see the site of one of the famous fights between Indians and white settlers. This was the battle of Plum Creek which took place August 12, 1840.

A war party of Comanches was halted there on their return from the sacking of Linnville in a bloody raid through the Guadalupe Valley. An aroused band of Texans who were determined to put an end to the Indian raids, soundly whipped the Redskins. Among the Texas leaders were General Edward Burleson, Matthew Caldwell, Jack Hays, Ben McCulloch and Felix Huston.

Road directions near the south limits of the City of Lockhart on U. S. Highway 183 show the way to the park.

FARM leaders in Washington split on the question before two House subcommittees on the matter of taking regulation of the meat packing industry away from the Department of Agriculture and placing it in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission.

Approach to the question of the meat packers is made from two angles; (1) that the Packers, through the operation of "private" stockyards, and direct over-the-fence purchase from producers, drive down the prices to the live stock producers, and (2) because the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 which gives jurisdiction to the Department of Agriculture, does not cover the big chain grocers, of which today own their own meat packing departments, so are not subject to any anti-trust regulation by the FTC, since they come under jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture. And the Department of Agriculture takes no action whatever on anti-trust regulation.

According to witness before the committee, the practice of operating "private" stock yards where there is no open competitive buying, as opposed to the public government regulated yards where livestock is purchased on an open bid basis is one of the evils which tends to drive down the price of livestock to the producers, since there is no regulation whatever of these private yards. They are used by so-called "professional" shippers who are given the right by the packers to exclusive purchase in a given territory and who ship to the private yards in car-load lots and at favored prices.

Frank K. Woolley, Legislative

Counsel for the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the House Anti-Trust subcommittee that neither the Department of Agriculture nor the packers were to blame for problems facing livestock producers, that the Farm Bureau opposed enactment of the legislation to transfer jurisdiction over meat packer trade practices from the Department to the Federal Trade Commission.

Woolley said that prices of beef cattle had been driven from $28.70 in 1951 to about $15.00 in 1956, and hogs roughly from $20 in 1951 to about $14.40 in 1956 because of an excess supply of meat animals directly attributable "to competition created as a result of the federal farm program." He blamed this price drop on acreage control programs which have forced farmers to shift from basic crops to feed grains and hay.

"There is only one place for such increased feed supplies to go and that is into livestock and products closely competitive with livestock products, such as poultry. Livestock production is at an all time high and livestock product prices have been depressed as a result of the high volume of production," Woolley said. And yet in Washington supermarkets only a short time ago the only meat at retail under $1 per pound was hamburger, stew meat and frankfurters.

Angus McDonald, assistant legislative secretary of the National Farmers Union, said his organization supported the measure which would remove administration of the Packers and Livestock Act of 1921 from the Department of Agriculture and place it in the Federal Trade Commission.

TODAY'S Meditation

Read Matthew 5:1-12. I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (John 8:12.) An artist once painted a picture of a dark and forsaken-looking house. In the winter twilight the trees surrounding it appeared dreary and heavily laden with snow. It was a scene of utter loneliness — until the painter dipped his brush into his yellow colors. With the skill of a true artist, he put a light in one of the windows, then into another and another. The entire scene was thus transformed into a place of warmth and cheer. Many times in our lives we seem to be alone. The problems of the home, of business, of health, of life itself seem overwhelming. Darkness prevails. Especially then we need to re-

TRAFFIC LAWS—

loss of life to our adults of tomorrow. We cannot expect our youth to learn to drive a car safely without adequate training, anymore than we could expect them to pilot an airplane without proper instruction.

Among adult motorists of today's "hurry up" world, impatience for speed seems to be the principal cause of most accidents. It's a hard factor to overcome, because it is difficult to understand why a supposedly intelligent driver will jeopardize his own life, that of his family and a fellow motorist, merely to save a few seconds of time. Ignorance must be the answer — somehow or other, this type of driver has failed to learn the simple ratio of speed to death. We Texans are paying for this sort of ignorance too; at the rate of seven lives and 305 injuries each day, plus an interest rate of over $150-million a year.

It looks as though the answer, to our highway accident ills, rests with the individual. As one sage has put it: "When the people tire of the present highway carnage they'll put a stop to it and not before."

Frankly, I hope we tire of it soon.

RIGHT-OF-WAY AT AN INTERSECTION WITH A STOP SIGN

1. Belongs to those vehicles on the protected highway which are within the intersection or approaching so closely as to constitute an immediate hazard. However, vehicles not close enough to be dangerous should slow down and allow a driver waiting at a stop sign to proceed.

2. Requires a vehicle approaching an intersection and facing a stop sign to stop at such sign, or at a clearly marked stop line, before entering the intersection.

RIGHT-OF-WAY AT AN INTERSECTION WITH A YIELD SIGN

1. Requires a vehicle facing the yield sign to give way to vehicles on the protected highway but does not require the vehicle to stop unless it will interfere with vehicles approaching on the protected highway.

RIGHT-OF-WAY ON ENTERING A ROADWAY

1. Requires a vehicle entering a roadway or traffic lane from an angle or parallel parking zone or from a highway shoulder to yield to vehicles close enough to constitute an immediate hazard. (It is illegal to start, for any purpose, a vehicle that is stopped, standing or parked unless it can be started with safety.)

2. Requires a vehicle entering a roadway from a building, an alley, or a private driveway to stop before crossing the sidewalk.

3. Requires a vehicle entering a roadway from a private road or driveway to yield to vehicles on the roadway.

1. Requires a vehicle turning left at an intersection to signal for 100 feet and to yield to those opposing vehicles that are so close as to constitute an immediate hazard. An opposing vehicle not close enough to be a hazard should yield to the vehicle turning left.

2. Requires a vehicle turning left into a private driveway to signal for the turn for 100 feet and to yield to all opposing vehicles until the turn can be made safely.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Talley and their three boys of Odessa, were weekend visitors here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Talley.

Carolyn Wilburn of Big Lake, came and visited at the weekend with her aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Herndon. On Monday she went with the G. A.'s of the First Baptist Church to Camp Brownwood.
