"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

SMOKE

FROM THE MOUNTAIN

What was Leonard Phillips doing Saturday trying to whitewash the sidewalk near his place of business? He had a file and was on all four trying to saw away the cement. Maybe he has a buried treasure in that certain spot, but it really didn't look like he was making much headway.

John Allen Todd was really handing out the cigars Tuesday, but he had to work off his excitement some way over the new baby boy at his house. Congratulations are in order. And the cigars were good, too.

Reg Owens is in need of a big basket. Ask him why.

The News has received several cards jacking us up because our correspondents have been neglecting to send in their news. Of course Eureka is our stand-by and we can always count on them but we would like to see something from our other correspondents a little more often and more regularly. So we are sending the scolding we got on to you. Please make next week a record week and let's have every community with a correspondent represented in the paper. Our readers are counting on you. And PLEASE—mail your letters on Tuesday morning so we will get them not later than Wednesday morning.

Rev. Dunham Holds Meeting Now at Calvary

Rev. R. Elmer Dunham is conducting a revival at the Calvary Church near Voss, the meeting beginning last Friday night.

Rev. Dunham just completed a revival at the North Coleman Baptist church and reports three professions of faith, six additions by letter, money raised to pay off past due indebtedness on the building, and pledges taken for missions amounting to about $4 per month. Thirty-two also pledged to give a tenth of all money they have to give as a designated offering to missions.

Lester Newman assisted the revival in Coleman by leading the singing.

Former Pastor Baptist Church Gets High Post

Rev. Sidney F. Martin, former pastor of the Baptist church here and until recently pastor of Lamar Ave. Baptist Church in Wichita Falls, has accepted the pastorate of the Connell Memorial Baptist Church in Fort Worth and has already begun his duties.

Rev. Martin is well known here, having been pastor here about ten years ago.

INTERVENTION SUITS ARE FILED IN TAX CASES SANTA ANNA

Following the provisions of the new law for collection of taxes, the City of Santa Anna, represented by J. T. Williamson, attorney, has filed intervention petitions in three of the four tax suits brought by the Santa Anna Independent School District, Williamson said last week.

The suits involve six tax payers, and are for the collection passed by the last Legislature of school taxes, but the law provides that when one government unit enters suit for taxes, other units may intervene for collection of taxes due them, becoming a party in the suit. Intervention petitions for the county are to be filed by E. M. Critt, Coleman attorney, in two of these cases where the state and county taxes are delinquent.

No tax suits have yet been initiated by the City of Santa Anna, Williamson said, and a good response has been received to letters sent out some time ago to delinquent tax payers.

Sellers May Manage Rodeo for Fall Fair

Earl Sellers of Del Rio, well known Texas rodeo promoter, is being considered to manage the Santa Anna Rodeo to be held during the Fall Fair Sept. 21-22-23. The final decision depends, however, upon the financial cooperation of business men. Profit will be used in part for the improvement of the football field and other athletic needs, and part will be set aside for the next year's rodeo.

Sellers has managed many rodeos in large and small cities and draws many out-of-town visitors to his shows because of his ability to put on an unusual and well-managed rodeo.

The rodeo will attract many visitors besides the regular fall fair groups, who will bring exhibits from the various neighboring communities. A carnival is also scheduled for the three day celebration.

Farm Help for Season May Be Had From WPA

San Antonio, Aug. 26.—Farmers desirous of obtaining WPA workers to assist in seasonal crop-gathering have been invited by State Administrator H. P. Drought to direct their requests to county judges, county farm agents, or to the offices of the National Reemployment Service and Texas State Employment Service.

"These offices are familiar with our policy that Works Progress Administration projects will be suspended if necessary to provide workers for private employers," Drought said. "They are anxious to cooperate with farmers who need labor and I am sure that they will convey any private employer's request promptly to the proper WPA office."

Policy of closing WPA projects temporarily when outside job opportunities are available for workmen is in line with the provisions of the 1937 appropriation act. Drought stated:

"The 1937 appropriation act provided that the Works Progress Administration may employ no certified person who refuses a bona-fide offer of private employment under reasonable working conditions which pays as much or more than he receives for WPA employment. It provides furthermore that any person leaving WPA rolls for private employment is entitled to immediate resumption of his previous employment status if he is still in need of relief and has lost the private employment through no fault of his own. Thus, any private employer is assured that no WPA worker will turn down a legitimate offer of work and WPA workers are assured that they will not lose employment status with this agency by accepting such work."

Few complaints that WPA employment is interfering with crop-gathering have reached the state WPA office from Texas farmers, Drought stated, but all such instances have received prompt investigation. "To date," he declared, "all those investigated have been proven groundless and based upon misinformation."

Fred Watkins Family Fish at Port Arthur

A clipping from the Port Arthur Times on the proficiency of a Santa Anna fisherman has been brought to our attention after the fishing trip made by Fred Watkins and his family to that city.

The party which included the Watkins spent several days fishing off the jetties on Lake Sabine and climaxed the party with a big fish fry. Those present were J. A. Speyzer and Eric Wilsford and families, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilsford and Lewis and Orene Snyder, Elizabeth Prince and daughter of Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilsford and baby of Hebronville and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watkins and family.

It takes two to make a bargain but only one to make the money.

LOCAL VISITOR

GERALD C. MANN

Author of Texas Securities Act and former Secretary of State was a visitor in Santa Anna this week.

Securities Act Author Is Visitor In Santa Anna

Gerald C. Mann, Dallas attorney and author of the Texas Securities Act, visited friends in Santa Anna Tuesday and called at the office of the Santa Anna News.

It was while Mr. Mann was serving Texas as Secretary of State that he saw the need of a modern securities act to replace the old Blue Sky Law, which was falling in its purpose of protecting the small investor. Aided by friends, he succeeded in having the Legislature pass an Act that has driven from Texas many swindlers.

While serving as Secretary of State, Mr. Mann was a member of the Texas Planning Board. He resigned as Secretary of State to go to Washington as representative of the Planning Board to assist in securing P. W. A. and W. P. A. funds for Texas recovery and development. Completing his work in Washington he returned to Dallas and resumed the practice of law.

Mr. Mann first attracted the attention of the Texas Public more than a decade ago as a football player at Southern Methodist University. While there he made a record as a field general that can be equalled by few quarterbacks of the country.

While attending law school at S. M. U., Mr. Mann was on the Mustang coaching staff.

Citizens Plan Curb Building On Main Street

Cheaper Now With Assistance of Road Workers, Lions Learn

Property owners are being interested in improving the street in the resident district on the Coleman road by paying for curbs and gutters in front of their homes, it was learned at the Lions Club Tuesday. The state highway department will pave the street but the financing of curbs will be left to the property owners. They will find it cheaper to do now than at any other time, however, since the equipment is already here, it was stated.

The curbs, if secured would reach from the corner of the Burton-Lingo Co. to the residences in the western city limits.

Members present Tuesday were Roy F. Reid, Alan Lynch, D. L. Pieratt, M. L. Womack, C. A. Walker, Loyd Burris, J. B. Gregg, W. H. Ragsdale, O. A. Etheredge, W. R. Mulroy, Chas. Berry, F. C. Santa Anna Couldn't Laugh

Several folks got a big kick out of reading in the San Antonio Express Tuesday about Atascosa County forgetting to print ballots for the election Monday and had to rush over to Bexar county to borrow ballots for the voters. Now our commissioners didn't forget to order ballots printed—our voters forgot or neglected to use them, so ours could have been given to Atascosa County and never been missed apparently, judging from the number of votes cast.

There is no use crying over spilled milk and with the election all over, there is no use saying what voters should have done. However, just as a reminder for the next election, we will repeat that in practically every election which the city, county or state or nation holds, there is something in the election which is of vital interest to the taxpayer and voter, whether he shows interest or not. More often than not, elections deal with the spending of YOUR MONEY. You would very seriously object if your next door neighbor came to your house and told you how to spend your money and more than likely he would leave with his ears burning and he ought to. Then why do you let folks put that same gag over by neglecting to vote at election time. You let your neighbor vote and tell the government not only how his money will be spent and who shall spend it, but he told them how to spend yours also because you will pay government taxes whether you vote or not and you will be under someone's authority whether you vote or not.

You aren't going to let someone else tell you how to spend your money. No, sir. That's what you think. You are doing it every time you fail to vote and we'll venture to say that many of the complainers on how the government spends its money will be among those that didn't voice an opinion at election time.

However, if you voters are willing to let the minority rule, that's your business, but that way you don't have any comeback if the government isn't run to suit you.

Church History of Santa Anna Described by Early Worker

(By Miss Luella Chambers)

Fifty years ago there was not a church building in town and the school house was the place for every gathering either religious or political.

The Methodist, Baptist, and Cumberland Presbyterian had organizations and each denomination preached one Sunday in the month. We now have eight church buildings, three of brick and five of wood. The Young People have B. Y. P. U., Epworth League and Christian Endeavor Societies.

The Methodist ladies set out to raise money for a building by giving ice cream suppers and big dinners. I went with Miss Sam Perry to get up these things until one lady thought I was a Methodist. I said, "No, sister, I am a Baptist and a Democrat from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet but I try to help wherever needed."

Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Compton and Miss Sam Perry were the leaders in these affairs. It so impressed Ed Hammon that he said he dreamed one night he died and went to Heaven and the first person he saw was Mrs. Morrison walking around with a little basket of chicken salad on her arm.

The Baptist and Christian and Christian Churches were next and we all worked hard. It took a lot of money to build and seat even a plain church. We have three of the Methodist church chairs.

Next the two Presbyterian, Catholic, Church of Christ, Primitive Baptist and Pentecostal churches were erected. When the camp meeting at Bangs or Mud Creek and the quarterly meeting at Trickham was announced, the young men made their dates and all of the bugles and hacks in the Brannon stable were engaged and we all carried lots of good dinners so we could divide with others. Fifty from Santa Anna went one Sunday to Bangs.

Our bunch went to a house to inquire about watermelons. Brother Byars, a Methodist, gave us some and the young men hid them in a tree. When we came back there was not even a seed on the ground. Some person swiped them. Brother Byars liked our bunch and would stay with us there and with us when he would come to Santa Anna. He was a fine old man.

One day a nice looking young man rode up and asked if "that was where Mr. Chambers live. My name is Byars. My father told me to come here and eat dinner." Preachers often sent other preachers passing through to stop with Brother Chambers for dinner.

We have had fine evangelists preach here—Whitehurst, Burnett and Mulkey, Sid Williams and others. Brother Richard Lewis was a fine preacher. Grandma Brooks and Grandma Turner were two of our best Christians. I often think of their good prayers and still later I remember Grandma Magby and Grandma Harvey.

We have had and still have some consecrated men and women in all of our churches who never cease to work and pray for the salvation of souls and are training our young people who in a short time will be at the head of affairs.

"The Child in the Corner..." NEEDS GOOD LIGHT, TOO!

IT IS unfortunate that so many West Texas school rooms were built without consideration for "the child in the corner". Too often he or she is surrounded by blackboards that give off no light. Crowded conditions make it impossible to seat every child where ample light is obtained from outside.

It is safe to predict that school rooms of the future will be constructed so as to assure students the maximum light provided by nature. But, meanwhile, it is impractical to re-build the present facilities. Hence, it is highly important that artificial light be used to give EVERY child an opportunity to develop under normal circumstances.

Nor can the most scientifically constructed school room, depending upon nature alone, provide sufficient light on gloomy days during the winter school months. Children are required to read on cloudy days when light is reduced to less than 10 foot-candles.

This company has developed a school lighting system that is economical. It is designed primarily for "the child in the corner". At the same time, it throws no major burden on school trustees—responsible for school finances. Inquire at our local office for free estimate.

Home lighting problems have been solved by the student lamp. Installed today, the I. E. S. student lamp is a guarantee of ample light conducive to sight conservation when your boy or girl begins the forthcoming school term.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adored daughter Rachel...

CHAPTER II—Rachel goes fishing with Bob Eddis, a local boy who runs a library and does wood carving. She refuses his plea to stay in Rockboro and marry him instead of going to New York for the winter...

CHAPTER III—Reviewing the situation between Rachel and herself, Anne is confirmed in her belief that it is time for Rachel to learn more self-dependence. Rachel makes arrangements to stay in New York for the winter with "Pink," a keen, vivacious girl absorbed in her job...

CHAPTER IV—Rachel learns the Caynes are not yet in town. Pink takes Rachel to dinner at Tom and Rhoda Steele's where she meets Oliver Land, a shabby genteel young man out of work who suggests that she apply for a job as a photographer's model for advertising illustrations...

CHAPTER V—Thinking of Anne, Rachel is piqued, fretfully believing her own mother would not have left her alone. She is not entirely happy with Pink Matthews, her desire to see Elinor Cayne increases. Through Oliver Land she meets Vinco, is hired as a photographer's model and succeeds on her first assignment posing for furniture advertising...

CHAPTER VI—On an assignment, Rachel meets Curt Elton, a young friend of Vinco's. At lunch she learns that he is a country newspaper man spending a year in New York. For experience he takes a number of different jobs, planning to return home later to edit the paper his father left. That evening she receives flowers from him. She phones Mrs. Cayne's home but is rebuffed because she will not give her name. Later Curt reveals that Vinco had received an inquiry from a private detective for a girl to go into a rich family and act as lady's maid to check up on some jewelry thefts...

CHAPTER VII—Terriss explains that Elinor Cayne is twenty years younger than her husband and that the son is seventeen. He agrees to have Rachel meet Mr. Cayne. She impresses him favorably and gets the job.

CHAPTER VIII—Terriss believes the thief is an inside job, but does not reveal whom he suspects. Rachel is troubled over the prospect of meeting Elinor. She receives letters from Anne which change her unprejudiced attitude. Wearing shabby clothes, she enters the Cayne home, meeting Bert Towers, the butler, and his wife, Elinor Cayne receives her rudely, calling her gawky and overgrown. Holbrook, the son (her half-brother), an effeminate youth, laughs at her disfigurement. She notices how vain Elinor is. Rachel makes friends with the servants.

CHAPTER IX

"Where'll we go?" asked Curt. "This being the maid's only day out per week, I want to give her a time. How about the Plaza and a spot of tea-dancing? Look at me, I have a new suit and necktie, I'll almost do you credit!"

"I'm afraid I'll run into my madame and her darling child," said Rachel. "We'd better go somewhere not so grand, though it is a pity to waste all your style! You had your hair cut, too, I notice."

"And the barber flung smelly violet perfume on me before I could stop him. I've aired myself violently since, but I know I'm still a bit whiffy."

"Oh, perfume! Mrs. Cayne is a gale of gardenia, it almost makes me sick sometimes."

"Rachel, I'm glad to see you!" "It's like returning to sanity to see you. That's a strange household, Curt. Or maybe I'm strange."

"You're not strange, my dear—but I think—perhaps, in spite of your looking so smart and sophisticated, you've not had a—shall I say—a great variety of experience. We'll go in here for tea; this is quiet. And you tell me why your Cayne family is cuckoo."

"They're not cuckoo, they're only badly adjusted."

"Badly adjusted to one another? You mean they're unhappy?" "I don't believe they think they're unhappy."

"If they don't know it, then it doesn't matter. There's no reason why you should care whether they're happy or not."

Rachel backed quickly away from her indiscretion. "No, of course not, but I don't like it."

"Rachel, are you developing a social conscience?" "Don't make fun of me when I'm enjoying my day out and the lovely look that is my own but and stuffing my face with my favorite...

"Your boy-friend thanks you for that word." "I should have said one of my boy-friends, though I gather that in the best servants' circles it is considered bad form to have more than one."

"But what about the burglaries? Nothing happened?" "Nothing so far. And I don't believe the Towers did them. Mr. Terriss thought maybe they'd been speculating, or had bought some property and were stuck for taxes, or were sending money to old parents on the other side, but none of that's true. They've got a great big solid savings account and some government bonds. And the chauffeur and his wife are the same, all four of them are terribly snooty about these little suburban lots some of their friends have bought. They say it's a sucker's game—isn't it funny?"

"Are you sure they're not kidding you?" "Yes, I am. They like me, Curt, and they think I'm one of them. Besides, I've seen the bank books, Lena showed them to me and urged me to begin to save, too. They're really sweet, Curt, they're all concerned over my poverty and thriftlessness. We get along awfully well. And you ought to see me in my uniforms—gray poplin in the morning and a nifty gray taffeta in the afternoon, with a little tricky dotted swiss apron and collars and cuffs. If I had a long-handled duster I could go on the stage and sing in musical comedy. And my manner is marvelous. Yes, madame, no, madame, of course you're right, madame. When I leave I'm going to get my picture taken in my afternoon outfit; Vinco could sell it to somebody who makes maids' uniforms for a bunch of money."

"I notice that neither your appearance nor your ego has suffered. Apparently you're the belle of the servants' hall. So why all that wait about returning to sanity and a strange household?" Rachel arched herself with caution. "Maybe you're right about my never having had much experience. And then maybe it's because I'm looking at the Cayne family from within and beneath. But—they're all wrong. The son wants to be an artist and his father won't hear of it. The mother sides with the son and what I've noticed is that they don't sit down and drag all their thoughts and feeling to the surface the way my—mother—and I always did; they hide them and fight subterraneanly, scoring infinitesimal points, or else they have raging arguments—and—oh well, it seems so petty and so unnecessary. And it gets them nowhere."

"It's a very usual situation, I should say. You're taking it too seriously. You're there to find out who stole the cigarette box and Mrs. Cayne's ring and not to practice amateur psychiatry. Why bother about the family quarrels?" She turned the matter away lightly. "I don't really take it very seriously, Curt, but I'm there under their roof and Towers and his wife talk about them all the time—and it does seem a pity."

"Lots of things are a pity. It's a great pity you won't have dinner and go to a show with me—there's something I could weep about."

"Go ahead and weep. I am sorry, but Pink and I are having dinner together and afterwards Terriss is coming so that I can report to him fully."

Curt chuckled. "You sound so important and Sherlockish! A full report oughtn't to take so long. How about it if I call up a little after nine? We could take in a late movie and split a herring at a night club. Don't you realize how much I've missed you?"

"How you flatter, mister! I'd love to gad around a bit, but there again—suppose I run into my esteemed employers and they see I'm leading a double life? Not so good."

"I'll call up anyway. You haven't any other date?"

"No." She knew he was thinking of the man she had talked of wanting to evade. She had not seen Oliver Land nor heard from him since the night he had staged his trick to get money from her and she wondered what Curt would say if she told him about that.

He began to talk about other things and kept it up all the way down to the apartment. "Remember, I'll call you up about nine-thirty," he said as he left her, "and I'll find some place not infested with Caynes for us to go."

Pink had just come in, she was on the crest of the wave, her immediate superior in her department was about to be transferred and Pink was heading for his place through a dire mesh of office politics and intrigue. She was far too absorbed in her own affairs to want to know about Rachel's and Rachel was glad enough of this, for Pink's curiosity once aroused was as far-reaching and thorough as her enthusiasms and her opinions.

Rachel sat still and seemed to listen while Pink sparkled and gesticulated, but she was busy with her own thoughts. The apartment's studied bareness and simple old furniture had never looked so good to her. "I had to learn that by contrast," she thought, "I took it for granted before. Like simple food and Pink's table manners and no heavy perfume about and Pink, even when she's raging, isn't thoughtless of other people's feelings. It all belongs together. Curt belongs, too. But most of all Anne. Curt was right, I've had no variety of experience. Well, I'm getting it now."

Terriss was in time, dry and blank as before. Pink gave him one look and came to instant decision. "I'm going over to the Steeles," she said. "Back about half past ten. What time do you have to check in at your job, Rachel?"

"Before twelve. But Curt Elton—"

"Oh—a date with Curt! Well, phone me at the Steeles and say good-by."

A gleam in interest showed in Terriss' eyes as Pink departed. "That young lady is very full of pep," he commented; then recalling himself to business: "Go ahead, Miss Vincent, give me a general outline and I'll take up special points as they come along. Don't tell me what you think, but what you've actually seen and heard. You said over the phone the other day that the butler and cook both have bank accounts. How do you know?"

"Lena showed me their books. They're in the Bowery Savings bank. He has eight thousand and she has over six thousand. They've each got five thousand dollars' worth of government bonds; I saw those, too. They save practically all their wages. They each carry a life insurance of worth of straight life insurance to have real nice funerals, Lena said. I wrote down the numbers of the bank books after I'd seen them."

"Have they talked about the thefts?"

"Towers not at all, Lena very little and when she does it's in hints about the disgrace of being wrongly suspected and how, if it wasn't for Mr. Cayne, they'd find another place. They simply worship Mr. Cayne. That I'm sure of."

"But they don't care so much for the missis, hey?"

"No—I don't believe they do."

"She's sharp with them, makes them stand around?"

Rachel chose her words. "She requires a great deal of service and she doesn't realize how much work a few extra orders can make."

Terriss frowned. "Mr. Cayne may be easy for his help to work for, but he makes it hard enough for me. He wouldn't let me crack down on the servants, and he's never let me say a word to Mrs. Cayne nor the young man. Either of them ever speak of the thefts before you?"

"No, not a word. Mrs. Cayne is very careless with her jewelry, she has a great deal of it and leaves it about where anyone could pick up a piece or two. The little safe where it's supposed to be kept isn't locked half the time. Mr. Cayne showed it to me one day when she was out. It's a joke, you could open it with a bent pin."

"Do you think Mrs. Cayne even knows about the thefts? I asked Mr. Cayne, but he made me an answer that was neither yes or no, and showed that he didn't like the question. So I was stopped there."

"Why, I don't know, Mr. Terriss. I never thought but that Mrs. Cayne knew about them, but it's true—she might not. You know how the apartment is simply jammed with expensive things, and she has so many rings and bracelets and brooches, and as for the table silver, it would take a day to count it."

"Has the son any intimate friends, any young fellow he pals around with who's at the house very often? Or has Mrs. Cayne got any of these female hangers-on that most rich women have, in and out, familiar, getting presents of her old dresses and the like?"

"Not that I've seen. The son's had young people in twice for cocktails, in the afternoon before his father got home. Mrs. Cayne goes out a good bit, but it's usually to some big beauty establishment, she's—she's awfully interested in keeping fit."

Terriss looked at Rachel with curiosity. "Does she and Mr. Cayne get along pretty good?" he asked.

"They don't agree about the son, but I only get this second hand, Mr. Terriss, from what Towers and Lena say."

"I'll consider. The son don't go to school?"

"That's the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Cayne. Mr. Cayne wants him to go to college or at least to a business school and he wants to go to an art school and his mother sides with him, so this winter he's gone nowhere. He's awfully spoiled."

"A rich brat, hey? Terriss considered again. "If I could only talk plain man-to-man stuff with Mr. Cayne! But he won't stand for it. You're doing all right, Miss Vincent, you're not half as dumb as I'd expected. Now you fly at it for another week and concentrate on the family's friends, specially the boy's. Get their names and addresses if you can, the names anywhere; don't let up on the servants either; they may be slicker than I think, and their having bankbooks don't prove anything. Ask 'em about pawnshops, tell 'em you've got something you want to hock, show 'em an old piece of jewelry or something to back it up. If they give you any names slip right out and phone me what they say. Ask the chauffeur and the laundress too. The whole four may be in cahoots. See if they've got any private phone numbers written down anywhere and copy 'em for me."

Then Rachel said something she had not meant to say, but which she knew, now, had underlain all her answers to his questions. "I don't like doing this, Mr. Terriss. I wish I needn't go back."

"That's what I've been expecting," said Terriss, slowly and gloomily. "I guessed all along it was just a kind of a whim. Young people nowadays got no guts, they don't want to do a job thorough. Any little fancy they take it's a reason for quitting and letting you down. I've been leery of you all along, Miss Vincent, I didn't believe you could stand the gaff. But I did think you'd last longer than three weeks."

"I'm sorry—" she began, but he waved his hand and went on talking.

"When I was young a job of work you undertook had to be finished, whether it was fun or not. Fun! I'm sick of the word. You thought all this would be a great big lot of fun and now you see there's some actual labor and thinking involved and that scares you. Okay, you can quit right now, in fact you'd better quit if you're that way."

"I didn't mean that," said Rachel, "I only meant—I wasn't looking for fun, and well—I've tried honestly to do what you want, but I don't think I'm any good at it, it seems so hopeless—"

He was tremendously disturbed, his careful mask gone. "It's not hopeless at all. You're doing fine, didn't I tell you so? I didn't intend to speak so severe, Miss Vincent, but I was taken aback, and disappointed! I sized you up to have character! Yeah, character and class! I realize you're not a trained operative, but you got sense! You got a good memory! You know how to get at people. Look at what you've done with that butler and cook in this little time! Don't say you're quitting on me when you're doing so well."

"If you really feel I'm all right, I'll go back, of course." She was glad of the interruption of the telephone bell. Mr. Terriss grabbed his hat. "I'm going along," he said. "You keep right on doing like you've been doing and you'll turn up something before long that'll give us the right steer. I'm certain of it. Let me hear from you as often as you can."

Curt had a suggestion. "We'll go see a news reel and then stop in at a nice little club I know about and have a sandwich and listen to the music, there's a wench there who sings 'Stormy Weather' like nobody's business. I'll be down for you presently."

"The Rest of the Record" BY JAMES V. ALLRED Governor of Texas

This week demonstrated again the wisdom of taking the unrestrained power of pardon out of the hands of the Governor and placing it in the hands of a non-political board. Upon my return from Mexico I found four men condemned to die in the electric chair. Under the old system the Governor, with all his other cares and responsibilities, would have had to pass on these cases. It simply wasn't fair to compel him to submit to the tearful appeals of wives, mothers, relatives and friends. Although he might have a Legislature on his hands, although he might have sickness in his home or several other trying ordeals, he was placed in the position of weighing the life of a man and almost standing outside the death chamber watching the condemned man pace back and forth waiting for the deadly hour of twelve o'clock and the last walk to the little green chamber. I don't think I ever slept a wink on the night any man was compelled to pay the penalty.

Now it's different. Before the Governor can commute a death penalty, or grant any other kind of clemency, it has to be recommended by the Board of Pardons. The Governor can refuse to follow the Board if it recommends clemency, but cannot grant any whatever unless the Board recommends it.

There are three members of the Board. One only is appointed by the Governor, and the others by the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals. The members of the Board have several investigators and, of course, no other responsibilities than looking into clemency cases. In this manner both the convict and the public get a better deal than under the old system where the Governor was charged with all the responsibility in addition to his other duties.

I am proud of this great reform. We are not having any complaints about wholesale abuses of the pardon power. It is all based now on merit, and unquestionably everyone is much better satisfied.

Naturally I have been quite busy catching up with my correspondence after a two weeks vacation. However, on Friday of last week I flew down to Palacios on the Gulf Coast to review the 36th Division of the Texas National Guard in camp there. Texans generally probably do not realize what a wonderful organization of fine young men this is. Unquestionably we have one of the best National Guard units in the nation. Nearly 8,000 men train intensively at Palacios each summer for two weeks. This is in addition to their regular drills and parades back home. They are well equipped, well officered, and as fine soldiers as any I saw during the World War.

The total cost for military defense in Texas which is borne by the Federal government approximates more than a million dollars annually. The National Guard has in its possession more than four and a half million dollars of Federal property, guns, uniforms and equipments. Its payroll, including both men and officers from the highest to the lowest military grade while large in the aggregate, averages only $33.50 per capita per year. Their time is given free as a patriotic duty.

In addition to the 36th Division, we have what is known as the 56th Cavalry Brigade, about 1100 in number who train for two weeks each year at Mineral Wells. As Commander-in-Chief of the Texas militia I always visit these two camps. It was a great joy to me upon my recent visit to Mineral Wells to hear one of the Federal army officers praise the cavalry brigade. He said that we had as good, if not the best, in the nation.

Of course, we don't want war, and I pray God we may always be spared what is going on in Europe. It has been the policy of the State, however, to maintain a regular militia from the beginning. The wisdom of this was demonstrated in the World War when our National Guard was the first nucleus around which our defense was built.

It is heartening to know that

who stole the cigarette box and Mrs. Cayne's ring and not to practice amateur psychiatry. Why bother about the family quarrels?"

She turned the matter away lightly. "I don't really take it very seriously, Curt, but I'm there under their roof and Towers and his wife talk about them all the time—and it does seem a pity."

"Lots of things are a pity. It's a great pity you won't have dinner and go to a show with me—there's something I could weep about."

"Go ahead and weep. I am sorry, but Pink and I are having dinner together and afterwards Terriss is coming so that I can report to him fully."

Curt chuckled. "You sound so important and Sherlockish! A full report oughtn't to take so long. How about it if I call up a little after nine? We could take in a late movie and split a herring at a night club. Don't you realize how much I've missed you?"

"How you flatter, mister! I'd love to gad around a bit, but there again—suppose I run into my esteemed employers and they see I'm leading a double life? Not so good."

"I'll call up anyway. You haven't any other date?"

"No." She knew he was thinking of the man she had talked of wanting to evade. She had not seen Oliver Land nor heard from him since the night he had staged his trick to get money from her and she wondered what Curt would say if she told him about that.

He began to talk about other things and kept it up all the way down to the apartment. "Remember, I'll call you up about nine-thirty," he said as he left her, "and I'll find some place not infested with Caynes for us to go."

Pink had just come in, she was on the crest of the wave, her immediate superior in her department was about to be transferred and Pink was heading for his place through a dire mesh of office politics and intrigue. She was far too absorbed in her own affairs to want to know about Rachel's and Rachel was glad enough of this, for Pink's curiosity once aroused was as far-reaching and thorough as her enthusiasms and her opinions.

Rachel sat still and seemed to listen while Pink sparkled and gesticulated, but she was busy with her own thoughts. The apartment's studied bareness and simple old furniture had never looked so good to her. "I had to learn that by contrast," she thought, "I took it for granted before. Like simple food and Pink's table manners and no heavy perfume about and Pink, even when she's raging, isn't thoughtless of other people's feelings. It all belongs together. Curt belongs, too. But most of all Anne. Curt was right, I've had no variety of experience. Well, I'm getting it now."

Terriss was in time, dry and blank as before. Pink gave him one look and came to instant decision. "I'm going over to the Steeles," she said. "Back about half past ten. What time do you have to check in at your job, Rachel?"

WEST TEXAS WOMEN PLAN PLEASURE FROM YARDS

County home demonstration agents in the West Texas section report that members of home demonstration clubs there are making plans to get the greatest possible amount of pleasure from their yards.

"Getting my yard started was no easy job," Mrs. C. D. Harris of the South Ballinger club in Rannels county recently told members of her club. To begin with, 50 loads of rock were dug up and hauled away and 60 loads of new soil added. The lawn was seeded early in the spring and grass has covered the front of the yard. Among Mrs. Harris' plantings are amur river privet, pecan trees, rose bushes, and pfitzer juniper. Vines on three trellises shade the windows of her home.

The use of a four inch layer of cotton gin waste around the shrubs and rose beds in the yard of Mrs. Will Smith of the White Chapel club in Coleman county enables her to keep her yard looking well with the use of a minimum of water. The waste holds the moisture, keeps down weeds, and keeps the soil from cracking.

The home demonstration agent of Coleman county recently gave a series of 10 demonstrations on outdoor games and equipment. The meetings were attended by a total of 119 women, who found that many items of equipment can be made at home or bought for a very small outlay of cash.

A series of similar meetings in Brown county attracted the American Boy Introduces A New Football Game

In the early fall issues of THE AMERICAN BOY there'll be presented the story of a new game—six-man football—fast as professional football, wide open as basketball, thrilling as hockey!

The game came to life through the need of small schools for some substitute for 11-man football, which was too expensive. Stephen Epler, a Nebraska graduate student in athletics, developed the game of six-man football to meet this need. In six-man football anybody can score, the possibility of injury from mass plays is minimized, and the game is open enough for spectators to follow every exciting development.

The new game is a hit. New schools are taking it up every day. In coming issues THE AMERICAN BOY tells the world about this practical new game. In addition, it presents THE American Boy Official Handbook, which can be obtained from the magazine at 20 cents a copy, or 15 cents when bought in bulk.

NOTE: Subscription prices of THE AMERICAN BOY will be raised in the near future. Send your subscription order at once to take advantage of the bargain rates now in effect one year at $1.00 or three years at $2.00. Foreign subscriptions 50c a year extra. Send your name, address and remittance to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. On newsstands the price is 15c a copy.

Post Office Dept. Warns Public on Fake Eye Doctors

Some months ago Postmaster General James A. Farley made public a statement which contained an expose of the fake eye specialist racket, which had been in operation in this country for approximately twenty years. During that period its operators had filched from the public, particularly aged farm people, several million dollars.

Since the publication of this exposure, the Post Office Department has been asked many times the question: "How did the victims fall prey to these racketeers?" An answer to this question is found in the official files of the Department bearing on the operations of this most inhumane racket.

In the first place, these swindlers seek out elderly people living alone and in remote places. They know that elderly people have defects in their sight; that many of them have great fear of going blind; and that they will do everything possible to retain their vision. Then their scheme is cleverly devised, and the parts played by each practiced until perfection is attained. They are so adept at the game that they actually compel confidence.

First there are eye glass peddlers who go about the country posing as optometrists, pretending to examine the eyes free of charge, and selling glasses of a cheap type and often of no benefit to the purchaser. They are usually with license to operate, and are not competent to examine the eyes or to fit glasses. Their main profit comes from furnishing the names and addresses of their victims to others more advanced in the racket, who pay them twenty-five per cent of any additional funds filched from them.

These eye glass salesmen are followed by two others. One of the latter enters the victim's premises first and represents himself to be connected with some optical company, informing the victim that he had recently purchased glasses from one of their agents; that the glasses were guaranteed; and that he had come to check up on them free of charge.

This man pretends to examine the victim's eyes and glasses, and falsely claims that there is a condition of the victim's eyes which he does not understand. He tells the victim that he has with him in his car on the outside a doctor from some renowned institution who is one of the greatest experts on the eye, whom he is sure would make an examination free of charge. The man is called in from the car, and he too pretends to examine the eyes of the victim and falsely represents that he finds a cataract or a cancerous growth on one of the eyes. Finally the victim is led to believe that this man is a great doctor and expert in the examination and treatment of the eye, and he submits to the pretended operation, which it is alleged can be done painlessly with radium, and that the only expense will be the cost of the radium used.

New Acts Featured at Pan American Exposition Casino

The Pan American Casino at the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition in Dallas has this week brought in several new top notch acts from Broadway. These include: (1) The Diamond Brothers with a slap dash comic aerobic act; (2) Sibyl Bowman, mimic and impersonator of nationally known characters; (3) Florence and Alvarez, internationally known dance team. Gil Lamb and Tommie Sanchez and the Casino with their dancing and harmonica art. Art Jarrett and the Singing Gauchos and the spectacular precision line of girls remain. Phil Harris and his orchestra provide music for dancing.

The alleged expert produces a small vial containing an ordinary eye wash, but alleged to be radium water, and this liquid is placed in the victim's eyes, a few drops at a time, the alleged expert examining the vial after each application and announcing the value of the radium used. One of these alleged experts gave as the reason for announcing the value of the radium used after each application of the eye wash was to ascertain what the victim could pay.

In cases where the swindlers believe additional funds can be obtained two additional members of the racket are sent to call on the victim, and these in turn pay those who preceded them twenty-five per cent of what they get. These make the victim believe that the great doctor who performed the operation had been killed and before his death asked that they call and find out if the operation was a success, and if not to refund the money which had been paid. One of these is alleged to be a lawyer, Judge _____, claimed to be the administrator of the estate of the great doctor who performed the operation, and the other a doctor from some renowned institution and a close friend of the first great doctor. These cause the victim to believe that the operation was not a success, and obtain deposits in large sums from the victim for an alleged radium belt which, it is represented, will cure the condition of the blood by giving off radium rays.

Since the inspectors started the investigation of the "Fake Eye Specialist Racket" there have been forty arrests and thirty-five convictions. Sentences imposed total one hundred and seventy-seven years and nine months, and fines $9,975.00.

One, an eye glass peddler, committed suicide in jail, hanging himself with his belt. One of the most active of the fake eye specialists attempted suicide in the jail by leaping from the third floor stair landing. He was severely injured, it having been necessary to amputate one of his legs.

One of the most inhuman cases brought to attention was perpetrated in the State of Massachusetts on an invalid girl, a living skeleton, who was born blind. Two of the racketeers made her father believe that her vision was obstructed with malignant growths over the iris, and that by removing the growths, which they claimed to be able to do with liquid radium, she would be able to see within several days. They pretended to perform the operation, and demanded two thousand, five hundred dollars of the father, but he had only five hundred dollars, and they took that.

The two swindlers who victimized the aged father of the girl are in custody. One of them was loaned by the Government to a State, where he received a sentence of five years. He is yet to be tried on a Federal charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with a fake eye specialist swindle. The other swindler was he who attempted suicide shortly after his arrest, and he is now a miserable invalid, biding his time in jail awaiting trial.

Five people were involved in the first case which came to the attention of the inspectors, four fake eye specialists and a fence who collected for them through the mails a two thousand, five hundred dollar check which was obtained from the victim. All of these have been arrested. Four have received substantial sentences, and one is in jail awaiting trial.

The investigations by inspectors disclosed two cases which were even more horrible than that involving the blind invalid girl. In those cases the aged victims paid the swindlers in cash at their homes, and the swindlers subsequently returned at night with sawed off shot guns and other weapons; tied the victims' hand and feet with wire on the floor, and ransacked the premises. In one of these cases, where they failed to find a large amount of money, they threatened to burn the house if the location of the money be not disclosed, and in that way forced the victim to disclose the location of a large number of Liberty Bonds, which were stolen, one of the bonds in the sum of five hundred dollars not having been registered.

Amongst those arrested were a husband and wife, the former having operated as an optometrist, and the wife as his nurse. The husband had been in the racket about fourteen and one-half years and had served one sentence of three years. The wife was in the racket with him about eight and one-half years. They are now in jail awaiting trial in the Federal Court.

These fake eye specialists, prior to the post office inspectors' campaign against them, lived luxuriously, patronizing the best hotels.

A number of them had their families at a popular resort on the Atlantic Coast the summer of 1935. It was a sort of convention. One, with his wife and three children, drove to the resort in a new high priced automobile and occupied an expensive apartment. His wife afterwards told another woman in the racket that her elder son said they were doubtless the richest family at the resort as they were making the biggest show. It so happened that the wife, who knew all about the racket her husband was in, was with him in a hotel room when he was taken into custody, and her tears were copious, though she had no feeling for his poor aged victims.

It is difficult to picture the plight of many of the victims. Usually they have toiled hard and long to amass something and it was a terrible shock to them when they realized that all had been taken from them for naught. In one case an aged victim lost her mind, and it became necessary for the State to place her in an insane asylum.

But today the picture of the fake eye specialists and their families is far different from what it was a year or two ago. Their racket has been practically wiped out, and many of them are in jails or penitentiaries. They did not expect such to happen and they were not prepared. What little money they put away was spent in unsuccessful efforts to ward off the punishment which they so thoroughly deserved, and their wives and children, who formerly had everything they desired, are in want.

What are these men going to do when released from prison? When arrested practically all have said they were glad they had reached the end; that they despised the racket, but could not find anything else to do. However, none have willingly surrendered, and all have made every effort they could to evade apprehension.

Doubtless some of them will go back in the eye specialist or some other racket. They have had no training in honest labor, and their incomes have been that of men of the higher positions of life with scientific training and ability, while the fake eye specialists are usually ignorant and they have only developed a certain quality of shrewdness and cunning of value in the practice of deception. But they can rest assured that the path of the fake eye specialist which existed a short time back now leads but to the jail, for the public has been warned against them by the press of the United States.
