Havana Strike Is Spreading

Transportation Employees Join Anti-Government Movement

HAVANA (UP)—A strike against President Carlos Mendieta's government spread Friday to employees in most of Havana's transportation facilities.

Street car employees left their jobs, almost paralyzing the city's primary transportation system.

Fourteen bombs exploded in the city and suburbs during the night and seven at interior points, damaging the Havana courthouse, police station and several other buildings.

Auto Licenses Selling Slowly

Automobile licenses are selling slowly at the county tax collector's office said Friday.

At noon Friday only 185 passenger car licenses for 1935 had been sold. Twenty-six truck licenses had been sold.

Persons registering cars are asked to bring their last year's papers if the car was not registered in this county.

Tax payers have until March 15 to pay taxes delinquent before January 31 without interest and penalty. After that date, penalty and interest go back.

Spring Is Here, Prairie Dogs Out

Spring, according to the airport's collection of pet prairie dogs, is here.

For the first time since November, they ventured out of their holes Friday. Jack Cummings, weather bureau manager, said they showed the effects of a poor summer and a hard winter.

One of the first trees in the city to put out leaves was one on the Southwestern Bell property on East Fourth street. It was fast turning green as buds opened.

Battle In Struma Valley, 12 Planes In Bombing Attack, Is Begun

ATHENS (UP)—General George Kondylis Friday began an offensive against rebel forces in the Struma valley with twelve planes in a bombing attack after Premier Tsaldaris received a report from the minister of war that Thursday's aerial efforts "were in vain."

During previous efforts two planes were forced to return on account of fog and one fell in a raid. Residents of Athens, alarmed at prospect of rebels to bombard the city, Friday fled to comparatively safe in outlying hills.

CHEVREHILLI, Yugoslavia (UP)—A desperate battle between Greek loyal troops and fanatically zealous rebels got under way in the deep snows of Eastern Macedonia Thursday night to the accompaniment of chattering machine guns and deep-throated artillery.

As the rebel sea forces apparently menaced Athens itself, General George Kondylis sent his loyal troops smashing ahead through heavy drifts of snow at the rebels, entrenched in the lines held by the British during the World War.

Artillery and aerial bombardments, almost incessant during the last two days, had prepared the way for them. Kondylis, his last ultimatum flung down to the insurgents, seemed determined to carry out his threat to crush the revolt.

Fleet Takes Three Islands Earlier the rebel fleet forced three Greek islands—Samos, Chios and Mytilene—to strike their colors. Reports reaching this frontier town said Admiral Demostichos wrestled the Greek cabinet threatening to bombard Piraeus, Port of Athens, unless the government surrenders.

So hard-pressed was Premier P. Tsaldaris and the government at Athens, another said, that they contemplated calling King King George back to his vacant throne.

First reports from the battle front said the cold, frost-bitten legions, spurred by Kondylis, advanced slightly in the face of desperate resistance.

'as advertised'

How many times you see those two words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale—as advertised."
And those two words are as welcome as they are his guarantee to you of worth and value.
Here is an article that has been described in your newspaper. Its merits have been told; possibly, too, its price. You know exactly what you will get when you buy it. You know its quality, its utility; you know how it fits into your needs. And when you buy it, you know you are getting not some unproved substitute but the specified article—as represented.
It is easy to understand why that phrase, "as advertised," creates a feeling of confidence. You have learned to depend upon consistently advertised products. You know that the maker has confidence in them, else he would not spend money calling your attention to them day after day, and month after month. You know that they have been approved by the most critical of investigators—the buying public. And above all you know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

Uncle Sam Considers 'Social Security'

3. Huge Problem Seen In Proposed Legislation's Financing, Tax Collection

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
The greatest tax collection effort in American history will be necessitated by the Roosevelt security program, assuming enactment of its essential principles.

It will be something like the now familiar job of bringing in the income tax, but on an unprecedented scale and presenting new and complex problems.

Payroll taxes, applicable both in the compulsory contributory old age insurance plan and the unemployment insurance scheme directly would levy upon millions, even with probable modifications designed not to assess small employers of casual agricultural and similar labor. Estimates as to the number of pay envelopes upon which the government would have to keep tab vary sharply—from 25,000,000 up.

Government Financing Too
Along with this problem will be that of government financing. Quite aside from the money to be collected from the reservoirs of the payroll specifically tapped will be federal subsidies of $98,000,000 for the first year of operations and $218,000,000 a year thereafter until 1935, expenditures which must come for the most part from general revenues.

But the real fiscal hurdle will be met in 1936 when the government must put up an estimated $1,400,000,000 a year for old age pensions, exclusive of the tax on salaries.

For the immediate future, officials plan on some help—$50,000,000 a year under present estimates and more in future years when the payroll taxes are increased—through the government's retention of 10 per cent of the payroll tax collected for unemployment insurance, estimated for the present to total $50,000,000 a year and much more in future.

Source Not Yet Known
Due to the fact the administration is holding up the general tax

Should the administration's social security program go through as outlined, Uncle Sam will embark on a tax collection program the like of which never before has been undertaken. Estimates on the number of payrolls which will have to be scanned and checked for taxation under the old age and unemployment insurance measures run upward from 25,000,000.

bill until other matters are out of annual government "take" from unemployment taxes—is lacking. At all events, the treasury's bill for the next few years will not be vast, relatively speaking, but this in both cases for the $50,000,000 ey, officials believe, will begin to be more acute in 1935. In that year, the government will start making contributions to the old age insurance program. Up until that time, under the present theory, income from payroll taxes will balance out. But from 1935 on to 1960, Uncle Sam must make huge payments, supplementing payroll tax collections, because of the relatively heavy percentage of those who will retire after making contributions for only a few years—payments estimated to reach a peak of 1,400,000,000 in 1950.

After that time, sponsors say, the curve will be downward and the situation gradually will liquidate itself, the percentage of those who have been paying into the fund only a few years at time of retirement dropping sharply until finally the system may be self-supporting again.

Collection Systems
The problem of collecting the two types of payroll taxes proposed—those involving compulsory old age insurance and those for unemployment insurance—will be the most immense the government ever faced because of the vast numbers of taxpayers involved.

Two related systems may be adopted. One, applying to the larger businesses, industrial firms and other corporations, would be parallel to the income tax. The employer would pay annually the required tax on his payroll, submitting that payroll as evidence if required.

Under the other, probably to be used for the smaller businesses and individual employers having only a few workers, a stamp system would be used. The employer would buy stamps representing the aggregate of the payroll tax for a given period and these stamps would be pasted in small books held by the employes. The fact that there will be two parties to the tax will aid in double-checking returns.

BETTING COMMISSIONER HAS TIP ON HORSES
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—If you would bet on horse races and hope to beat them, string along with the consistent winners.

This bit of advice comes from Tom Kearney, veteran St. Louis bet commissioner. He pointed out that Cavalcade and Chance Sun were leading money winners during 1934 but that Abode Post, just an everyday horse, won more races (17) than Chance Sun and Cavalcade together. "Horses run to form pretty regularly," Kearney believes. "For instance, Moana Keala won 17 races in 32 starts in 1933 and she came back with nine triumphs in 40 starts last year. Abode Post was on the shelf in 1933."

Judge Caldwell, Midland Attorney For 35 Years, Dies; Funeral Friday

MIDLAND—Judge J. M. Caldwell, 67, attorney who had practiced civil law at Midland since 1900, died at a hospital here at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday night after a stomach trouble attack from which he had suffered for six days. He had been in ill health for four years.

Funeral services were held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Caldwell residence, 223 South H street, with interment at Fairview cemetery.

Born in Talbot county, Ga., April 13, 1868, Judge Caldwell gained his education in schools of that section, taking up the teaching profession in his early manhood, studying law at the same time. He taught school at Macon and West Point, Ga.

He was married June 23, 1893, to Miss Annie Laurie Snelson, in Upson county, Ga. He was admitted to the bar and came with his wife to Midland in 1900, beginning at once the practice of law. Mrs. Caldwell died here June 11, 1907. He maintained his practice continuously for 35 years, confining his work to the civil courts and private practice. He has represented out of state corporations and large interests having properties in West Texas.

Although he never ran for an elective office as judge, he served as special judge in the eighth court of civil appeals at El Paso in 1932 by special appointment of Governor Ross Sterling, in certain important cases.

In the early days of Midland's incorporation as a city, Judge Caldwell served several times as mayor, without compensation and handled all of the legal work attendant to changing the city's form of government without pay.

He has served as Baptist deacon, was active in Masonic circles, attaining the honorary rank of K. C. C. H., and held high Masonic offices both locally and in state bodies. Legal affairs of the cemetery association and other civic organizations had been entrusted to him since the early days of the city.

Clarence Scharbauer, banker and cattleman, said Thursday that Judge Caldwell had been attorney for the Scharbauer Cattle company for more than 30 years.

On July 27, 1910, Judge Caldwell was married to Miss Harriett Hannah here. She survives him, as do two sons, Joe M. Caldwell, Jr., of El Paso and Robert Caldwell of Austin; two daughters, Mrs. A. W. Marshall of Deming, N. M., and Mrs. W. W. Woodland of Freeport; seven grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Mary O'Neal of Woodland, Ga., and Mrs. Nan Mayfield of Seville, Fla.

Joe Caldwell had been here for three days. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall arrived from Deming a few minutes before the attorney's death. Robert Caldwell and Mr. and Mrs. Woodland arrived by train Thursday morning.

Judge Chas. L. Klapproth—adjourned district court here Thursday morning until Saturday, the local bar association expressing resolutions of respect and sympathy to the family of Judge Caldwell.

Far Frontier Topic Of Week Of Prayer Church Program

The Thursday topic for the Week of Prayer service at the East Fourth Street Baptist church was "Reverend Pines on the Far Frontier."

After a hymn, Mrs. Coffey gave the scripture reading and Mrs. Garnett spoke on "Religious Statistics as the Frontier Evangelism on the Far Frontier."

Mrs. Wright talked on "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." Mrs. Hart Phillips on "Favorite Scriptures Among Indians," Mrs. V. Phillips on "For the Indians and Frontier" and Mrs. Morrison on "Thoughts for Meditation."

The meeting was closed with sentence prayers for the work on the frontier.

Present were: Meses. V. Phillips, Hart Phillips, S. H. Morrison, W. S. Garnett, F. L. Turpin, Joe B. Wright, Ben Carpenter and L. A. Coffey.

The canning spinach crop of California for 1934 was estimated to have a value of $415,000.

I'm your best friend I am your Lucky Strike

I give you the mildest smoke, the best-tasting smoke. You wonder what makes me different. I'll tell you. It's center leaves. I spurn the little, sticky, top leaves . . . so bitter to the taste. I scorn the coarse bottom leaves, so harsh and unappetizing. I am careful of your friendship, for I am made only of the mild, fragrant, expensive center leaves.

Menus Of The Day

Do you relish your food in both meanings of the word? That is, to explain this weak attempt at word-play, do you eat with gusto or "relish" and also serve yourself some of those appetizing tidbits known as "relishes"? If you have abandoned the custom, seek in your china-closet, resurrect that relish dish and "compote" and begin all over again!

Relishes are numerous as grasshoppers in the bush and much more exciting. More than one sketchy and uninteresting meal has been transformed into what the roadside stands call a "tasty bite" by the addition of a bright and piquant relish (remember those spiced peaches, those pickled peppers?). Tart and spicy relishes are usually most popular, but the sweet ones are delicious with meat and fowl. The only rule is that the relish be in direct contrast to the food it accompanies, in flavor, color and texture.

Lucky is the homemaker who has a shelffull of homemade picallilli, chow chow and preserve—but luckier yet is she who will take a minute to mix up some of the freshly made variety, such as these given below.

Relish Suggestions
Celery curls are among the more usual relishes, or celery stuffed with a mixture of cream cheese, Roquefort cheese and a little onion.
Pickled beets (try adding hard-boiled eggs to the beet pickles) are another favorite. Crisp cucumber slices or strips, pickled in French dressing are old-timers and olives, radishes, pickled onions, tomatoes and pickles are on everybody's list. Crystallized ginger (ever try it in tea?), salted nuts and stuffed dates are dessert relishes and sauce of cranberries or apples are relish and dessert in one. But try these!

Old-Fashioned Cole-Slaw
(For the fish dinner)
1 green pepper (chopped)

1 tablesp. salt
2 tablesp. vinegar
Dash of pepper
Few drops onion juice
4 cups cabbage
1 tablesp. sugar

Shred cabbage finely add chopped pepper, and onion juice. Sprinkle with salt, sugar and pepper and moisten with cooked dressing according to taste. Mix well and serve cold in individual dishes. To make dressing: Mix 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1 egg, 3/4 cup of milk and 2 1/2 tablespoons vinegar. Cook ingredients, which have been mixed in order given over hot water, stirring constantly, until thick. Add 1 tablespoon maceola and blend thoroughly. Cool.

A Sweet Relish for Fowl
1 cup dried apricots
1 pkg. pasteurized dates
4 cups cold water
1 cup sugar
Juice of one lemon
1-2 cup chopped walnuts
Wash the apricots, cover with two cups of cold water, let soak overnight. Add the pitted dates and two cups of water. Cook until the fruit is very soft. Add sugar and lemon juice and simmer over low heat to the consistency of jam. Add chopped nuts and cook for 5 minutes. Store in sterilized jelly glasses. Cover with hot paraffin when cold. Put in 2 half pint jars.

Filled Garnish of Rice
(Excellent With Cold Meat Pie)
2 cups cold, cooked rice
1 tablespoon gelatin
1-2 cup cold water
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon green pepper
1-2 cup ripe olives
1-2 cup cucumber pickles.
1-2 cup celery
1-2 cup cottage cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup cucumber

Soak the gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in the boiling water. Cool. Be sure pickles, olives and cucumber are finely chopped. When this begins to set, fold in the other ingredients. Pour into a mold. Chill, until set. Serve on lettuce with tart salad dressing as cold meat accompaniment. 7 servings.

Vegetable Relish
(Relish and Salad Combined)
Cut celery, which has been washed and crisped, into thin match-like strips; cut raw carrots into similar strips; and marinate both in Roquefort Cheese dressing and serve cold in individual relish dishes to accompany either fish or meat dish. To make Dressing: Blend 1-3 cup maceola, 1-2 tablespoon vinegar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika and 1-2 teaspoon sugar. Place in a stoppered bottle, and chill thoroughly. Before serving shake vigorously until oil and vinegar blend to form thick emulsion. When ready to pour over celery and carrots, add 1 ounce mashed or crumbled Roquefort cheese to the mixture.

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?
If you know the market rates for essential elements, figure up your own "true worth." The body of the average human contains about 75 pounds of oxygen, 80 pounds carbon, 4 pounds phosphorus, 2 pounds of chlorine, 2 pounds nitrogen, 5 ounces sulphur and . . . but do you care?

The famous writer of "pigeons on the grass, alas, alas" stayed at the Algonquin hotel while she was in New York. She may—or did she, Miss Tolkin—have eaten Algonquin Salad, which is salad, salad, ah lad, salad, that is salad, salad, salad (and how!). Make it this way:
3/8 pasteurized dates
2 pks. cream cheese or 1-2 lb cottage cheese
1-2 lbs. cream or fruit juice
30 pecan meats
1-2 cup French dressing
Stuff the dates with the cheese which has been moistened to a cream with cream or French dressing. Press a halved pecan meat on each date. Arrange the dates in a circle on a bed of lettuce leaves, placing the dressing in the center.

Meals which are economical are of interest to most housewives these days when food costs have increased more rapidly than incomes, so suggestions for ways to reduce expenditures are in order.

"Careful buying often results in a substantial saving," says Inez S. Willson, home economist. "Take advantage of market conditions. Choose vegetables which are in season, and watch the week-end specials at the meat market. These may mean a saving of money for you."

Just because the week-end special happens to be a larger cut of meat than needed for one meal is no reason it should be rejected. There are dozens of ways that the leftover may be used to good advantage for another meal. In fact, there is a saving of fuel in cooking a larger cut than needed, because it requires very little time or fuel to prepare it for the second meal.

Use of Meat Left-Overs
It may be perplexing to know just how to use the left-over pot-roast or the end of the ham, so here are suggestions for ways which will be welcome always:
Meat pie.

Scalloped meat with potatoes. Meat in cream sauce.
Meat hash.
Meat loaf.
Meat patties.
Meat slices in tomato sauce.
Stuffed tomatoes, onions, or green peppers.
Baked with noodles, macaroni, or spaghetti.
Meat and rice casserole.
Meat rolls and dressing.
Meat croquettes.
Meat stew with vegetables.
Casserole of meat with vegetables.
Meat salad.

It is well to remember in preparing left-overs that they have already been cooked, so all that is necessary is that they be re-heated. This, of course, takes only a short time. If they are being combined with foods which require long cooking, cook those foods first, adding the meat only long enough before serving so that it will become thoroughly heated.

Woodrow Wilson and William Bryan are the names of students at the University of Chicago.

Was Weak, Easily Worried
"I felt weak, tired and very nervous," writes Mrs. Clifford Wabunt, of Smyrna, Ga. "It seemed like everything worried me. Children got on my nerves with their noise at play. My mother had given me Cardui when I was just a girl for rundown condition, and I was better from taking it, so I decided when so nervous and weak that this was the time to take Cardui again. It surely did help me. I am stronger and my nerves are better."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. —adv.

Very smart indeed is the new custom of passing a silver tray full of cheese-stuffed fruits for the last course of a formal dinner. Pasteurized dates stuffed with a mixture of roquefort and cream cheese are the popular choice; sprinkle them with pistachio nuts for an extra touch.

More apple pie is consumed than any other variety, according to figures compiled by a leading grocery trade magazine.

The kind of boiled rice you like is never sticky, but is whole, distinct grains, and it gets that way from steaming it over water or from a stay in a slow oven.

Candied yams are strictly Southern, but sweet potatoes candied with dark karo are a very delicious substitute.

"GOOD OLE 'LUMPY DICK"
Harriet Cooke of the Buffalo News and other parts, imparts the interesting information that "Lumpy Dick" is Minute Pudding. She further declares that some say it is Curds and Whey, and some describe it as a sort of custard. To many it will remain a special kind of pudding known in college circles as "Fish-Eyes." But here is a delicious one, made this way, and not a lump in a bowl!

TENNESSEE WOMEN ASK TO SERVE ON JURY DUTY
 KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Tennessee women desire the right to serve on juries and they have taken up the banner for their cause. The League of Women Voters, the East Tennessee Women's Association and the Business and Professional Women's clubs are petitioning legislators.

"Women of higher intelligence have time for jury duty and they would be less likely to shirk their duty," said Mrs. Amelia Cockland.

How To Prepare Small Cold Frame For Early Flowers

Miniature cold frames for early seed sowing are one of the most profitable garden investments even if they are not put in place until April. Each may be purchased half the size of the standard cold frame or hothed slab which is 3 by 6 feet. A miniature frame, 3 by 3 feet will grow a lot of seedlings with very little work.

But you may not need to buy glass. Miniature frames are easily made at home to fit any glass that may be handy. By their use all of the tender flowers, such as pansies and sinningias may be given an early start with much less trouble than is involved in using the more cumbersome and heavier standard and heavier standard cold frame.

Miniature frames should be made on the same lines as the standard frame, with the back 1 foot in height and the front 6 inches. The hinged glass lid may be thrown back on favorable days and closed on chilly days or when there are rains. Such a frame will produce twice as many plants from the same seed as can be grown in the open ground. They are also useful for fall sowing of slow germinating seeds which need the weathering and freezing of winter to start them into life. Under the protection of one of these small frames they are protected from the wash of thaws and winter rains and sleet. The frame can be filled with snow from time to time to give the seeds the chill they seem to demand in order to germinate.

Miss Essie Long And Cleve Baker Married

Miss Essie Long and Cleve Baker were married Saturday at the home of the Rev. W. S. Garrett.

Mrs. Baker is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Long. She was born and reared in Big Spring and is a very charming girl. For the past few months she has been employed at the Hotel Scharbauer in Midland.

Mr. Baker is the son of Mrs. McCall of Midland and is employed by the Midland Auto Supply Co. Attending the young couple were Mrs. Jack Miller, sister of the bride and Mrs. Cecil Long, her sister-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker will reside in Midland.

Chalk Girls Scouts Meet
 The Chalk Girl Scouts met Wednesday evening with Melba Dean Holt, Beacie Marie and Geneva Gault, Estell Moody, Shirley Caudle, Molly Smith, Adelaide Hargrove and Miss Ala B. Collins present. They opened their meeting with Girl Scout songs. The girls voted to meet at Mrs. Green's Thursday night to make candy for a candy sale Friday.

Miss Collins talked to the girls about the carrying out of the general Girl Scout program, and how they could do so by reading the different things that are being done over the United States. She explained to them that what is worth doing is worth doing well, and urged them to enter the work whole heartedly, and not by halves. The girls decided that there were many good deeds they could do for their community.

Savory Pot-Roast Always In Favor

When the husband longs for "mother's cooking," ten chances to one it is the savory pot-roast and the delicious brown gravy that he recalls.

Of course, mothers have no monopoly on pot-roasts. It is only that they have prepared a pot-roast so many, many times that they have learned what cuts to buy and how to prepare them. Anyone, by using a little care, can make a delicious pot-roast, says Inez S. Willson, home economist, and here's how:

Pot-Roast
 First, dredge the pot-roast with flour, season with salt and pepper and brown in hot lard. Add a small amount of moisture, either water, meat stock, tomato juice, or dilute vinegar, cover, and let simmer slowly, until done, about three hours.

It is very important that the meat be well browned, and that only a small amount of liquid be added at a time. As this cooks out more may be added, but again, it should be added in small quantities. As the liquid cooks down each time, the meat becomes a richer brown and the gravy ever so much better.

All meat is best when cooked at a low temperature, and a pot-roast is no exception. After browning, a good pot-roast must be cooked very slowly at a simmering, not boiling, temperature.

Cuts to Use for Pot-Roast
 The cuts usually used for pot-roasts are the chuck, rump or heel of the round. These may be boned and rolled if desired. If their fat covering is thin, they may be wrapped with either cod or back fat and tied in shape.

Mt. Bethel Colored Baptist Church To Conduct Revival

Mr. Bethel Colored Baptist church invites all its white friends to attend a revival meeting to be conducted here with Rev. F. R. Handley of Spillar Springs, Texas, in charge. Rev. Handley is considered one of the best negro preachers in Texas, and the local congregation is fortunate in securing his service at this time.

The proceeds of the ten-day revival will be applied on the church building fund. Special seats have been provided for the accommodation of white visitors, and everybody has a cordial invitation to attend all the services.

The revival will be conducted like old time jubilee revivals with song and prayer and sermon. Friday evening Rev. Handley will preach a candle-light sermon, while on Sunday night, he will preach a sermon "Chemistry."

Deacon Sam Leach will call on every business firm in Big Spring for contributions to aid in carrying on the revival services, and the cooperation of everyone will be appreciated by the colored church.

NO CHOIR PRACTICE

There will be no choir practice at St. Mary's Episcopal church to-night, announced the director, C. A. Bulot.

Cuts to Use for Pot-Roast

The cuts usually used for pot-roasts are the chuck, rump or heel of the round. These may be boned and rolled if desired. If their fat covering is thin, they may be wrapped with either cod or back fat and tied in shape.

Have you found the SUNNY PACKAGE on your grocer's shelf?

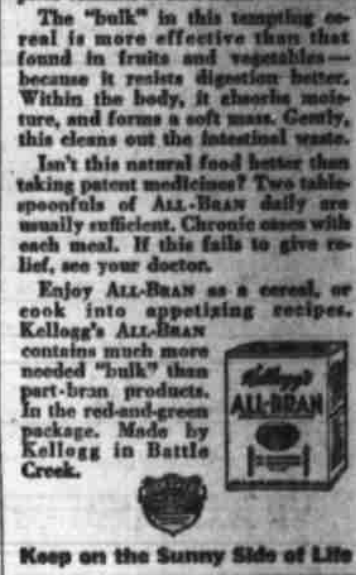

It's a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. Millions of Americans have found Kellogg's All-Bran a safe, effective means of correcting common constipation—the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the mass.

Laboratory measurements show that All-Bran provides "bulk" to aid elimination. All-Bran also supplies vitamins B and iron.

The "bulk" in this tempting cereal is more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables—because it resists digestion better. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this cleans out the intestinal waste.

Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoons of All-Bran daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If this fails to give relief, see your doctor.

Enjoy All-Bran as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Kellogg's All-Bran contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Keep on the Sunny Side of Life

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

Chapter 35
SNARED
 "Well, will Juan-Silva believe you both?" asked Rosita. "Will he make guards of you? And even if he does, will that give you a chance to set Rubric free? How can I tell? There is one chance in ten thousand — and that's a good chance for Montana to take!"
 Brother Pascual said: "Friend, how has this happened?"
 "Two mad dogs. They took each other by the throat. The rest of what Rosita says — well, it's true enough. You see our ghost of a chance, Pascual?"
 "To walk in — freely to give ourselves into the hands of Juan-Silva?" muttered the friar.
 "Well," said Montana, "I don't know a better way. And somehow, I'd rather take the first chance and die with it than to wait there in the hills, looking down into hell from the brink. The longer a fellow looks at the jump, the harder it is to take."
 He could not help adding: "But why should two men go in, Pascual? Let me go alone. Whatever I can do, I'll try. And you wait out here — with Rosita — wait as many days as you have any hope — and then take her back to her people."
 "I have no people," said the girl. "I have you. When you are gone, I have nothing. But you, Pascual, stay out here with me. If we can't talk, we can pray. I've always wanted to be taught how!"
 Pascual put his heavy arm over the shoulders of Montana.
 "Brother," he said, "let us go in."
 "Rosita," said Montana, "there's no use talking to you — or to me — telling you that there's danger from Juan-Silva's wild devils of Indians. I know that. You'll wait out there for us with the horses. God bless you Rosita."
 "He knows nothing about me," said the girl.
 "Child! Child!" reproved the friar.
 "Hush and turn your head, Pascual," answered the girl. "I have to say good-by to El Keed."
 They walked in together. Running water must have cut the twisting channel through the rock, but the river of the Valley of the Dead no longer flowed through the old outlet. It had found an exit underground at the base of the eastern cliff, what small part of the water was not used to irrigate the fields.
 Not a hundred yards through that winding pass they came out upon a view of the valley floor. It was flat as leveling could make it, and from the fields, black with new water, arose a great steam into the morning sun. That was part of the mist which from a distance obscured the floor of the valley.
 They could see the caravan of the condemned going slowly up the road into the valley, and mounted men rode before them and behind. But it was strange that even the Valley of the Dead should be unguarded at the entrance.

 Unguarded? As the two stepped into the road, a half-dozen mounted men sprang their horses out from among crannies in the rocks. They came at the friar and Montana with frightful yells, ropes whirling over their heads.
 Such faces, grinning with such diabolic joy, the Kid had never seen, except for Felipe and Francisco, who now lay dead at the entrance to the valley. And a thunderclap of conviction struck him as he saw the friar with raised hands calmly await the onrush.
 He had come into the valley with a fanatic, not a quick-witted helper. And probably they were lost together. At least, to resist would be perfect folly. So Montana stood fast with the friar and three nooses whistled. He was caught about the arms at the elbows; about the body at the hips; about the neck by a rope and burned his throat as it was drawn taut.
 The friar was snared in the same fashion. And the leader of the party reined his Indian pony in front of the captives. He and his men were dressed exactly as Francisco and Felipe had been. The endless heat of the Valley of the Dead made more clothes folly. And always, in spite of the huge width of the sombrero, the bodies of the men were sun-blackened almost beyond belief.
 This fellow was an elder whom time had withered. His hair was gray. His skin was powdered over in places with gray, also. And on a skeleton neck a skeleton head was placed, the hollow eyes glaring down at the Kid.
 "How much fool are you, stranger?" he asked. "Or do you know what place this is?"
 "Ask Francisco and Felipe how much fool I am," said the Kid.
 "Francisco? Felipe? What do you know about them? And who's this man in the friar's gown?"
 "Francisco and Felipe have just finished each other off with their knives. They're lying in the sand outside the mouth of the valley. And that makes room for two more good men in the valley, doesn't it? You see, friend, that we've come to take the vacant places."
 "A good face but a hollow brain," said one of the guards.
 "Go look for Francisco and Felipe, Emilio," said the commander of the guard. "The rest of you, bring the pair of them along. And mind you two — if one of you moves a single side-step, he'll be dragged the rest of the way by the neck. He may get to the house of Juan-Silva with a bit of breath in his lungs, but he'll be missing some skin off his body. You there, friar, do you know what place you've entered?"
 "The Valley of the Dead, I suppose it to be," said good Pascual.
 "Well, why are you here?"
 "He's going to raise them," suggested a guard. "He's going to raise the dead!"
 They all laughed. They laughed heartily, rolling a little in their saddles.
 "He'd better try to raise himself," said another. "What will Juan-Silva say?"

center of the valley, with tobacco fields on both sides of them, and Montana looked through the frightful sun-glare and the rising steam at the heights that receded step by step into the distance.
 It was like a vast theater, with benches hewn out on which prodigious monsters could seat themselves. And from all sides the reflected heat poured into the cup of the valley and was held there. To breathe was difficult. In this short time the clothes of Montana had become soaking wet, and the huge friar was visibly soaking.
 But Brother Pascual kept his head high and retained, always, that faint smile which went with him through life, as though he found something worthy of both pity and amusement in all that passed beneath his gaze. Never had Montana admired him as he admired him now. Only as Pascual saw the gangs of laborers in the fields did his smile go out and a great breath swell his chest.
 For they were scattered here and there, long lines of miserable creatures, almost naked. For the women an abbreviated skirt afforded some decency. For the men there was a loin cloth.
 And for the men and women, both, there were the huge sun-hats which gave shelter from the killing strength of the sun. The swaying of the broad-bladed, short-handled hoes made irregular lines of light across the fields.
 Labor in such a temperature as that? That, alone, was enough to justify the significant name of the Valley of the Dead. And here and there, behind the workers, went the overseers — each with a whip in his hand. More than once Montana saw a long lash curl back behind the shoulders of an overseer as he drove a laggard to swifter progress.

 He could see more details as they drew closer.

ing it should revert to the Federal Trade Commission. Donald Richberg, chief coordinator for the New Deal, is rated as sharing this view. The original Industrial Recovery Act gave the Trade Commission broad powers but to date it has stood aside and let NRA "crack down" if any.

NRA officials know of the sentiment to reaffirm this authority for the Trade Commission but they ask whether NRA divided up among permanent agencies would function any faster or more effectively.

Strikeless

The American Federation legislative lobby is fighting the present NRA setup vehemently, largely because of Clay Williams' presence as board chairman and the President's insistence on continuing the Auto Labor Board.

A man deeply grounded in organized labor politics says the strike vote now being taken in the auto industry is a mere gesture in connection with the legislative drive here in Washington.

President William Green and his lieutenants claim the NRA Auto Labor Board's poll, which showed the unions to have an infinitesimal representation in the motor factories, was unfair because their men were afraid to show their true affiliations in it.

Doubtful

Labor wants the Wagner bill as a substitute for Section 7-A. This is the measure which Francis Biddle, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, helped frame. It would make long strides toward forcing the closed shop and would set Biddle's board up with broad powers to arbitrate disputes between employers and employes.

Last year the White House was apathetic to a roughly similar measure introduced by the New York Senator and it died. The administration attitude is reported as again lethargic this session—largely because of a doubt of the bill's constitutionality insofar as it imposes arbitrary government regulation of capital-labor relationships.

Informed sources say, however, that the White House is willing to let the bill go through Congress on its own merits—if it can—and then be tested in the courts. Labor veterans privately fear that only pressure from President Roosevelt himself will get the bill through.

Defining

A large cross-section of political Washington is skeptical about Donald Richberg's promise that there will be no inflation as long as President Roosevelt is in the White House.

Economists who claim to know their onions—and not a few of them are identified with the New Deal in one way or another—insist a further expansion of our currency or credit structure is inevitable. They point out, however, that the word "inflation" can be defined in many ways, which might give Richberg an out should he still be Director of the National Emergency Council at a time inflation of some sort occurred.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has always insisted to date that our monetary policy was a day-to-day proposition. Two forms of inflation—greenback bonus payment and farm refinancing—are about to get a test vote in the House.

Postponed

Social insurance legislation is in a fair way to take it on the chin for at least a partial count so far as this session of Congress is concerned.

An easy compromise for this year will be a division of the bill and Congressional action only on old age pensions wherein the government puts up $15 a month if the state does likewise. That would let the delicate problem of unemployment insurance go over another year.

The general log-jam on Capitol Hill is doing no good to a measure which should have been rushed through a la the good old days of 1893-34 to have any effect in the near future. Southern members of the record aren't so keen for it anyway because of a racial problem. As you all know, most of your state legislators will be adjourning before long—and the White House bill contemplates supporting action

NEW YORK

Bankers admit that the Treasury has them right where it wants them. No more conclusive evidence could be asked than the terms of the latest conversion offer, 3 7/8% for 20 to 25-year bonds and 1 5/8% for 5-year notes make the financial fraternity cuss under their breath but they'll lap them both up like good little kittens. There were no preliminary arguments as to terms either. The Treasury wasn't asking the bankers—it was telling them. They did hope they would be allowed the privilege of exchanging the 4th Liberties for the 5-year notes—but even this advice was denied them.

The informed say Secretary Morgenthau is perfectly safe in offering to pay cash to bondholders who don't wish to convert. Sharps predict the new bonds will go to a 2-point premium as soon as issued. In that situation it would pay anyone who wants cash to convert for that would get more money by selling his new bonds than a simple remittance at par for his Liberties. So there won't be much of a drain on Treasury reserves.

The conversion offering makes the bonds look good. Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public get a larger return—2.9%—than the financial titans with their amassed Liberties—and with a much shorter maturity. That would seem to make the big fellows all the breaks.

The next important maturity is $417,000,000 of notes in June. Insiders expect the $336,000,000 of 1st Liberty 4-1/2s to be called this month for redemption at the same time. They look for still lower interest rates for them. Unclear is the tidy sum of $18,437,000 a year on the 4th 4-1/2s alone if the entire issue is converted.

The projected experiment with consolidated bonds having no specified maturity is indefinitely postponed. "Why worry about maturities when you can raise money for 25 years without batting an eye?"

There is a decided damper on Wall Street inflation talk since the Treasury announcement. Monkeying with the currency might jeopardize the operation. Financial men can see no point to that with borrowing so easy and so cheap.

Rough

New York insiders offer a new slant on the depreciation of sterling. They get word from England that one of the main ideas is to bolster commodity prices in a hurry—helping to offset the market collapse which have already taken place in London and forestalling others that might be still more dangerous.

Our British friends evidently figured that we wouldn't want to undertake any reprisals which might unsettle the financial markets. Now that the slump didn't begin until after the Supreme Court's gold decisions. Presumably the Court's implied rebuke was expected to cramp our style in maneuvering with the dollar.

Inner financial circles call the timing neat from this angle—but believe that London has taken too much for granted. Untying the dollar from gold wouldn't necessarily connote domestic inflation—especially if the need for such a defensive measure were skillfully explained. The dollar will not be reduced to 50 cents in gold—but other things may happen in a hurry if the British continue to indicate that they want to play rough.

Open

The proposed international loan to China—with England and the United States as leading participants—is just a pretty dream. Informed New Yorkers point out that China couldn't afford to accept such a loan against Japan's wishes. Soldiers would be needed as well as money in such a case—and it's a cinch we aren't sending any of those.

Also the Chinese government and banks aren't very fond of us at present. They blame our refusal to modify our silver policy for most of their troubles.

Insiders rate British initiative in proposing the loan its most significant aspect. For years we've been pulling her Far Eastern chestnuts out of the fire. Her Chinese investments are far larger than ours but Uncle Sam has done the fronting or credit structure is inevitable. They point out, however, that the word "inflation" can be defined in many ways, which might give Richberg an out should he still be Director of the National Emergency Council at a time inflation of some sort occurred.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has always insisted to date that our monetary policy was a day-to-day proposition. Two forms of inflation—greenback bonus payment and farm refinancing—are about to get a test vote in the House.

Sore

New York political observers figure that FDR can't undoubtedly force a reversal of his prevailing wage defeat with the threat of withdrawing public works and relief funds—if he cares to use those tactics. But they also prophesy that pressure of this sort would blaze a trail or soreness which would leave the Senate much harder to handle than before.

Boost

The move to name an outsider who commands public confidence as salaried head of the Stock Exchange—sponsored by E. A. Pierce and others—is getting nowhere fast. Brokers generally are skeptical of all this public relations stuff. They figure a steady rise in the market would give the more of a boost with the customers than a dozen Judge Landis' of their own.

New York scouts report that Father Coughlin's diatribe against the New Deal last Sunday over-

Howard County Game And Fish Protective Association To Hold Important Meeting Tonight At 8

Howard county chapter of the Game and Fish Protective Association of Texas will hold an important session 8 p. m. today from the Douglas hotel.

Reports on the live raven shoot here will be heard and the chapter will rule on disposition of traps used to catch the black pests. In the shoot held here Saturday and Sunday, 750 ravens were killed. Plagues hitting the fowls after their capture cut the original number in half.

Friday Lester Dutton of Ponca City, Oklahoma inquired of the chapter's methods in trapping ravens. Sportsmen in that section, he said, are interested in a similar affair.

Several counties have written for information on construction of raven or crow traps.

Next activity of the local chapter toward nest extermination will be exploding of dynamite bombs in raven roosts, it was indicated by members.

BEHOLD the stranger

A STRANGER moves to your neighborhood. You observe him tolerantly, but with no immediate display of interest. You are an established resident, getting along very nicely before he came.

But you do not avoid him. For reasons not entirely unselfish you wait for him to reveal himself. Possibly he may add something to your social and business life. Probably he will take a highly respected place in the community. He may even become one of your intimates. It is up to him.

So you note his manners, talk with him, and form an opinion. If he comes up to your requirements, you accept him, and often he proves a welcome addition to your group of friends.

It is with exactly the same attitude that the intelligent newspaper reader regards the advertisements of products new to him. These strangers may add something to his civilized enjoyment. They may contribute to his comfort, safety—even his success. In many ways they may prove valuable. Certainly it is wise to give them careful consideration.

Read the advertisements in this newspaper. They may be the means of introducing you to products that will take important places in your life. And every day they will give you information that enables you to buy intelligently and make your money go farther.

R&R Theatres To Erect New S'water House

SWEETWATER—A deal was consummated this week wherein the R&R theatre interests purchased the Archer building on the south side of the square and work will be started within the next 60 days toward making it one of the best theatres in West Texas, according to Henry M. Rogers, local manager of the concern. The price was not announced. The Dallas Architectural Company is now at work drawing up plans for the show house, according to Mr. Rogers and work will begin as soon as possible. The building is 50 feet by 150 feet, and will have a seating capacity of 1,000. It will be equipped with the latest and most up-to-date sound and projection equipment. As soon as the work is completed the Palace theatre, located in the Masonic building, will be closed, according to Mr. Rogers. The Ritz, however, will continue to operate.

A first class theatre for Sweetwater has long been a dream of Robb and Rowley, according to Mr. Rogers, since Sweetwater is one of the first towns in which they owned interests, which now include more than 50 show houses in West Texas and Oklahoma. Mr. Rogers is the oldest manager in point of service in the group.

God's Promises Great, Sensible, Reasonable, Says Dr. Rayburn

Dr. James Rayburn speaks in the union revival tonight on "Christ as an Aggressor." The message is based on the only substantiated accusation made against Christ in his trial before Pilate. A fine increase in attendance at Bible study is reported by Dr. Rayburn. For the past two lessons he has taken up the Priesthood of Christ. Thursday evening he spoke on the "Promises of God." His message in part follows: Scripture—Various promises from the Old and New Testaments. Solo—"Jesus Took My Burden"—B. F. Hutts. Text: If Peter 1:4—"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." "Peter calls these promises 'exceeding great and precious' for many reasons. Let us consider a few of them. First, these promises are great because of that which makes any promise great: The Promisor back of the promise. These are the promises of the God that brought all things into being and guided all things as they are. "Now God's promises are always sensible and reasonable. He does not scatter them about broadcast for anyone who might pick them up and use them with no regard for the laws of God. He does not make promises without conditions. But they are all made through Jesus Christ, a condition which does not hinder, because Jesus Christ is within the reach of every man, woman and child. God never demands the impossible of us. The thief on the cross could not come down, but he could cry out, 'Lord, remember me.' The jailer could ask, 'What must I do to be saved?' Yes, the promises of God are all in Jesus Christ, who is within the reach of every soul in Big Spring. And herein is the second reason that they are 'exceeding great and precious.' It is possible for them to be claimed by all. "Then they are 'exceeding great and precious' because of their absolute completeness. Unbelievers have said that the Christians were just another worldly class, interested only in saving their own souls and in getting to heaven. Have you ever seen a thorough-going Christian who was giving any concern to the matter of going to heaven when he dies? That is all settled, for he has become an heir of all the eternal promises of God. But the Christian is interested in all life. Jesus said, 'I am come that you might have life and have it more abundantly.' The Christian is interested in everything that ennobles and enriches and develops life in this world and in the world to come. (Am. 42:10). 'Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.' That is a literal promise, not just Hebrew poetry. Do you feel that you need help and strength? God means exactly what he says when he offers us help and strength. He also promises to (turn the wicked upside-down) and he promises deliverance from temptation. And for the next life, he promises rest. Nowhere in all the Bible does God promise the Christian reward in this life. He promises blessings, yes, far more than we are worthy to receive; but he says, 'great is your reward in heaven.' In heaven we may make investments for ourselves. God is a magnificent paymaster. Never does he ask us to do anything for nothing. "The fourth reason that these promises are 'exceeding great and precious' is that they never, never can default. Joshua said, 'There failed not ought of any good thing which the Lord has spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.' Four hundred years later Solomon said 'There hath not failed one word of all his good promises, which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant.' Abraham believed God's promise to the extent that he was willing to offer his son as a sacrifice. He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God. (Rom. 4:20). Again, listen to Numbers 23:19: 'God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent; hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good? People have said that my preaching is dogmatic. I hope so. If there is anything about which a man wants to be certain, it is his religion. God did not offer us a gambling scheme. He offered us a plan of salvation to be accepted or rejected, but ye shall be hungry; behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty; behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed; behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall howl for weeping of spirit.' And God is 'not slack concerning his promises.' I like the message of John's epistle—'We know.' I know I am saved because God said so. Salvation depends not on feeling but on faith.

"How are you going to treat these promises of God? 'Cast us away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.' When will God give us the desire of our life? When is it best for us? 'Have patience.' I like that statement.

"Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." (II Cor. 7:1)
