Mukewater Watershed Project Reviewed Friday

Watershed work on Mukewater Creek was reviewed in Coleman Friday. J. W. Vance, Supervisor of the Central Colorado Soil Conservation District, Anson Oden of the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District, Elmer Cupps and Tom Kingsbery, landowners in the watershed, developed plans for continuation of their efforts to develop the project.

New criteria for local people to meet in getting ready for construction of flood water retarding dams was studied. There is much left to be done in the watershed before it is ready for construction the group learned. Easements need to be given to the Central Colorado or Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District, permitting construction of three of the ten planned dams. Vance and Oden were told. The clearing of the three sites will require about ten signatures from landowners, according to Elmer Cupps, Chairman of the Watershed committee.

In addition to the securing of easements and rights of way for construction, there must be a good Conservation Program on the land to assure safe functioning of the detention dams according to District Supervisors, J. W. Vance and Anson Oden. There must be at least 1/2 of the land above each dam under basic plan with the district and progress in this respect looks good Vance and Oden pointed out. In addition to the above listed items, the Soil Conservation District must now show financial ability to assume full responsibility for operation and maintenance of works of improvement Vance related. The manner in which the District provides financial ability must be decided by the people living in the watershed, and we will be meeting with them in the near future to get their ideas as to how this should be done Vance explained.

Thanks For Old Newspapers

The Cub Scouts want to express their appreciation to all the folks in this area who have been so kind as to bring their old newspapers to The news office in the past several months. Hundreds of pounds of them have been collected.

Right now the Cubs and their parents are in the process of unfolding the old newspapers and rolling them in rolls to sell. When this job is completed the group may undertake another similar project. However, for the present they have all they can handle and are not asking for anymore.

Thanks to all the fine folks who have helped the Cub Scouts out.

Farmers Have Three Ways Of Figuring Social Security Income

Self-employed farmers may use an alternate method of figuring their earnings from their farm for social security purposes, according to R. R. Tuley, Jr., district manager of the Abilene office of the Social Security Administration and A. E. Fogle, head of the Abilene Internal Revenue Service office.

Fogle pointed out that self-employed farmers and ranchers may figure their earnings for social security purposes in several ways:

(1) If your gross income from agricultural self-employment is not more than $1800, you may count as your net farm earnings either your actual net or 2 1/2 of your farm gross income;

(2) If your gross farm income is more than $1800, and your net farm or ranch earnings are less than $1200, you may use either your actual net or $1200; and

(3) If your gross farm income is more than $1800 and your true net farm earnings are $1200 or more, then you must use the actual amount of your net earnings.

Fogle added that use of the option will enable farmers with a gross income of as low as $600 to obtain social security coverage and protection for themselves in their old age and for their survivors in case of death. However, he emphasized that regardless of the way in which you figure your net earnings, you must have net earnings of at least $400 (from farming alone, or in combination with other SE earnings) in order to get social security credit for the year.

In addition to the revised optional method, the 1958 amendments extended social security coverage to some farm owners who receive cash or crop shares from tenant farmers. If the farm landlord, under his agreement with his tenant, materially participates in the production or management of the production of the farm crops raised on his land, this income — formerly excluded as rental income — may be reported for social security purposes.

Requests for information regarding taxes due and tax return forms should be directed to the Abilene office of the Internal Revenue Service. Questions concerning the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program will be answered by your Abilene Social Security office, or you may wish to meet a representative of that office when he is in your neighborhood. All postmasters in the Abilene district have been furnished a copy of the travel schedule for representatives of the Abilene social security office.

Travis Harris of Dyess AFB, Abilene, was here at the weekend visiting his mother, Mrs. E. A. Harris.

Rev. Smith is a graduate of Howard Payne College and has a degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth. While at Howard Payne he preached for the Buffalo and Whon churches.

He and wife and their two small sons will arrive early next week to begin his work here.

Ray Owen's Car Stolen Thursday Night From Home

Ray Owen's 1950 Chevrolet was stolen from in front of his home Thursday night, sometime after midnight. Thursday no report has been received on the whereabouts of the car.

Another car that was stolen Wednesday, was found about 1 1/2 miles west of Santa Anna the next morning.

It is not known whether there is any connection between the two cars.

In other weekend traffic reports, Robert Earl Lancaster's car was damaged while parked in front of the house where he lives. A Coleman boy ran into the car while traveling on the wrong side of the street.

The radar trap was set up again Friday night in the Santa Anna area and some 17 traffic tickets were issued, mostly for speeding.

Friday is Deadline To Pay Poll Tax

1800 poll taxes had been paid in the county early in the month. Apparently the month will end with about 1600 qualified voters than is required for an election year.

In election years there are about 3,000 paid polls.

Those going to participate in the government of the city, school, county, state and nation must pay their poll tax before closing time on Friday, January 31. That is the deadline and there can be no extension.

Mrs. John Hensley, president of the local Parent-Teacher Association, has urged everyone to pay their poll tax and participate in the coming elections.

Mrs. Hensley said the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, representing the united effort of all local organizations, has made a great contribution to the welfare of the state as shown by the large number of measures inaugurated or produced by the legislative process of the Texas Congress.

However, it is necessary that they pay their poll taxes and participate in elections before measures such as sponsored by the organization can be put into effect, Mrs. Hensley said.

Many other organizations over the state are working to get more poll taxes paid. It seems the areas where the population is the heaviest is the areas where the most poll taxes are being paid. Rural areas and small towns are the areas where few poll taxes are being paid. If the little man is to be represented in government, the little man must pay the poll tax and vote.

Lanita Bengé came from Abilene Monday to stay until Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bengé.

president of the Sorority. To date less than $900 has been received in the March of Dimes fund this year. Hopes are that we can raise at least $1000 locally for the drive.

There has been no new cases of polio in the county since the discovery of the Silk Vaccine. However, there is six old cases in the county that continue to need treatment. Two of the cases are local. At the present rate of $2000 per patient, it will take over $2000 to care for these patient next year.

Santa Anna has long been known to take care of their own. If we are to do this this year, we must all dig deep and contribute every dime possible. All contributions to the March of Dimes is deductible from your income tax.

The coin containers in the local stores will remain there for another week or two. We would like for them to get as much change as possible. Remember, when you make purchases in the stores, drop your change in these March of Dimes coin containers.

Additional Farm Credit Available In Coleman County

Additional farm credit, in the form of initial emergency loans is now available to Coleman County farmers. Walter T. McKay, State Director, today advised John H. Curry local County Farmers Home Administration Supervisor.

The designation to authorize the making of initial emergency loans in Coleman County was made by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson as a result of damage and losses sustained by local farmers from excessive rains, freeze and other adverse weather. Loans to finance 1958 operations are available to farmers who suffered actual production losses, who have a good record of past operations, and who are unable to obtain the credit they need from private or cooperative credit sources. Loans may be made for normal farm and home operating expenses, the interest rate is 3 per cent and loans are repayable annually.

John H. Curry advised. This credit assistance is in addition to credit services already available from Farmers Home Administration. John H. Curry further stated, "Other credit services include subsequent emergency loans to farmers who suffered losses due to drought, and all loans authorized under the agency's regular lending activities."

Eligibility for all types of loan assistance is determined by the local County Committee and applications are now being accepted at the local Farmers Home Administration office. Everett E. Evans, Taipa, Texas; Ollie E. Shelton, Shields, Texas; and John T. Saunders, Coleman, Texas, are now serving on the Coleman County FHA Committee.

P.T.A.'s to Celebrate Founders Day

11-Million Members Mark Organization's 61st Year

On February 17 the world's largest voluntary service organization will celebrate its 61st birthday.

This is the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, whose nearly eleven million members are active today in P.T.A.'s throughout the 48 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii. They will mark the organization's Founders Day with a variety of activities aimed at strengthening and expanding parent-teacher work in their own communities.

Mrs. Rollin Brown, of Los Angeles, president of the National Congress, points out that these 43,000 P.T.A.'s have set the pattern for parent-teacher associations in areas where U.S. armed forces have established American communities overseas. And parents of school children in other nations have sought help from the National Congress in learning similar group activities.

Founders Day activities, scheduled for February 17 and 18, will feature a variety of programs and concern for children plans of the year for this self-governing organization.

It was in 1892 that Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst conceived the idea of a National Congress of Mothers to promote the health and welfare of children by helping their parents learn more about how to build a child's physical and mental needs.

They worked hard to interest other women in their aims and reached the date they had set for the organization's first meeting of seeing a hundred mothers arrive at Washington's Arlington Hotel. But only twenty-five are there, admitted Mrs. Birney. "I shall be glad to have more than two thousand men and women turned out!"

Their enthusiastic reception of the aims, as outlined by the founders, and of the lectures, discussions, and conferences that made up the first meeting set the pace for a great national movement. Soon state congresses were founded, and before long the original "mothers' congress" was broadened to include the concept of parents working with teachers.

Since that founding meeting, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers has won an impressive record of achievement. It includes these activities in behalf of children:

Has eliminated the evils of child labor in schools and in shops by training together the teachers' profession.

Initiated a program for the periodic health appraisal of school children from birth through high school—an extension of the Summer Round-Up campaigns under which nearly three million pre-school children have received physical examinations.

Promoted, successfully, thousands of school building projects, including preliminary surveys, educational campaigns, and school bond issues.

Alerted the public to violations of child labor statutes, stressed the need for improved juvenile detention facilities, and supported sound education laws.

Helped establish child-care centers for children of working mothers, and worked to raise the standards of all child-care establishments.

Established and supported public kindergartens until public support could be secured.

Pioneered in establishing and maintaining the basis of the school lunch program. Pioneered before the public in general became aware of their importance.

Delivered to keep the schools open during the years of war and depression—an achievement for which it received a special citation from the National Education Association.

Standing: Mrs. Henry J. Finley, chairman of the Press Committee; Mrs. James H. McGill, chairman of the Entertainment Committee; Mrs. A. A. Birney, chairman of the Committee on Arrangements; Mrs. H. W. Fuller, chairman of the Transportation Committee; Miss Mary Louisa Butler, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Harriet A. McLellan, chairman of the Literature Committee.

Headquarters of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers stands today at 700 North Rush Street, in Chicago. The building, dedicated in 1953, won an award from the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry for excellence in architecture.

Mrs. Rollin Brown, president, uses giant thermometer to illustrate how membership in the National Congress has more than doubled since 1947.

CANNED AND FROZEN PEAS FEATURED AS FEBRUARY PLENTIFUL FOOD

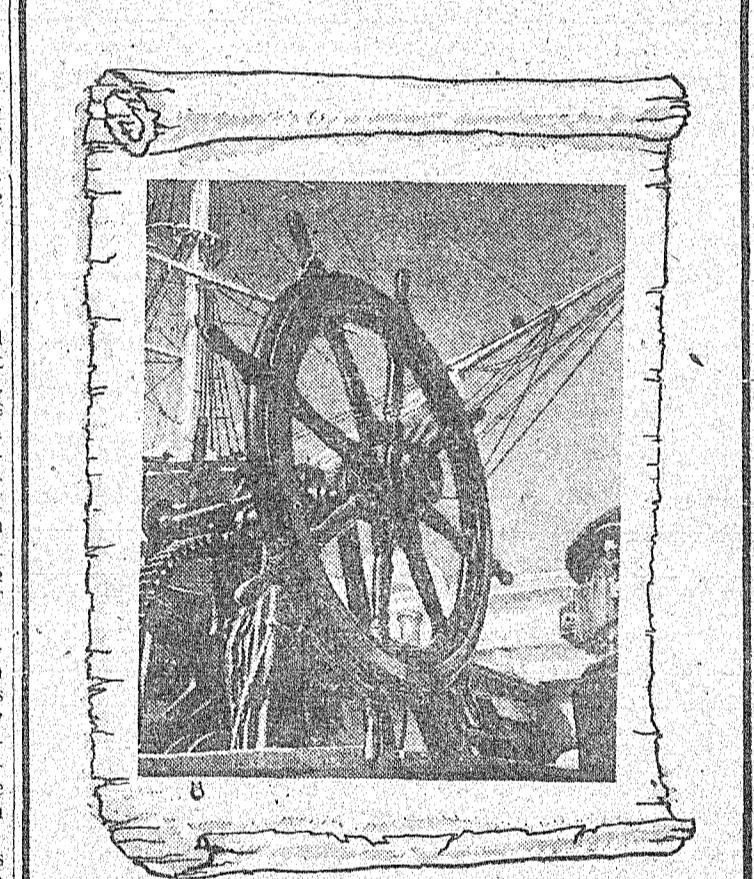

College Station—Canned and frozen peas take the spotlight as the featured food on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for this area.

Here's why. The latest inventory of the Agricultural Marketing Service shows that stocks of canned green peas are 7-million cases larger than a year ago. Stocks of frozen peas run 16½ million pounds more than a year ago.

Other vegetables on the plentiful list are canned and frozen corn and potatoes. Grower's prices of potatoes are below those of last year in most western producing areas, while canned and frozen corn stocks are heavy enough to rate a spot on the list.

Since February usually marks the time when the fall pig crop starts to market, pork takes the featured spot at meat counters. The fall pig crop is 2% larger than last year.

Milk continues in heavy supply as production stands at record levels, increasing seasonal-

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mollie Malvern La Mar, Elmo, Missouri: I was born March 16, 1869 and I wonder how many can remember the yoke—a piece of timber hollowed to fit two draught oxen together. I can remember the yoke that hung on the side of the first house my parents lived in when they came to Green township in 1860.

After they sold or traded the oxen, the yoke still hung on the side of the log house. Later they built a bigger house. When I grew older, I loved to hear my parents tell of the hardships they had endured in bringing all their belongings in that one covered wagon. And, I remember my father riding up to the house and calling to mother to come and see what he had brought. Of course, we all went, discovering he had a young deer across the saddle of his horse.

I remember when my older brothers went to school and our maternal grandfather was their teacher. He lived to be 82 years old and taught for 50 years. He also taught music, both vocal and instrumental, and how we loved for him to come and see us. I was the 6th child and only girl in a family of eight children and am the only one living now.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Barking At the Moon

ONE night a little black dog went out and began barking at the moon. And the moon kept shining on and shining on.

It is interesting to see how men are going out to search for the lesser moons that are whirling about the earth. And, while these lines are being written, wise men are predicting the break-up of at least one sputnik and its flaming demise in friction with the earth's atmosphere. And the moon that shines 240,000 miles away keeps shining on and shining on.

And now a rocket is to be sent up to reach and encircle the moon. What will be found on the other side of the moon, and how the rocket will get back to earth intact, nobody knows. And the moon will keep shining and shining on.

And before a rocket encircles the moon, the present generation will all be dead, and the moon will keep shining and shining on.

"Be still," said the lord, "and know that I am God." If we would like to climb some tower of Babel that from its top we may look into heaven and see how the wheels go round, we may come, as in days of old, to the confusion of tongues. Perhaps we have already reached that state.

WISH GRANTED . . . When Andrew Smith, 5, of Rochdale, England, asked Santa for fire engine his grandfather bought old engine from local fire department.

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM

BY JOHN and JANE STRICKLAND

TODAY'S PROBLEM:
Learning to sell

NED WILLIAMS, Garden City, Kansas, was a salesman who made no sales records. But he was making a good living, could have anything he really wanted.

Then he got married. His wife had a good job, they had part time help who had dinner ready for them when they came home in the evening, and they were free to relax or enjoy the company of their friends.

After a couple of years they learned there would soon be three of them. Welcome news. They would just put on full time help and go on as they were. The baby came and all went well—for a few months. Then their Helper moved to another town to be near her own children. They tried in vain for a replacement. So his wife had to give up her job and stay at home. This meant that three must live on the earnings of one. Pretty soon there was another baby. Now four must live on the earnings of one. Quite a different life from the days when two lived on the earnings of two. They could no longer keep up with the Old Crowd. Life wasn't so pleasant.

"It took all of this," says Ned, "to make me realize that it was up to me. I looked ahead to the college days of those kids. The picture wasn't too pleasant." How did other men manage it? For the first time he began studying business methods. What constituted successful salesmanship. How was it achieved? He talked with others, read many books on the subject. Almost at once he came up with the idea that he must set a goal for himself. If he sold $100 worth of goods in a certain period, he must sell $125 the next time, and $150 the next. And it worked! He only had to apply himself more diligently. Wonderful what having a goal could mean. Next he practiced a few little "boosters." He tried smiling at people; they smiled back; he made new friends. He lent a helping hand whenever he saw a chance. (Once he wouldn't have noticed a chance.) He found that this caused others to lend a helping hand to him.

Today seven years later, his earnings amount to more than he and his wife once earned together. He still keeps his goal before him; it still works.

RE-TRAINING DELINQUENTS
(A distinguished Texas judge offers pointers on combating our rapidly increasing juvenile delinquency problem.)
By JUDGE SARAH T. HUGHES

Texas has three training schools—one for boys at Gatesville, one for white girls at Gainesville, and the third for colored girls at Crockett.

Several years ago a bold new policy was inaugurated looking toward restoring youthful offenders to a useful life in society.

First of all, the institutions now look different—the grounds are unfenced, the windows (except in the security units) without bars.

Improvement Results
The youngsters look different, too. Formerly they wore uniforms—today there is a wide variety of clothes. They used to march from building to building. Now there are no restrictions as they move around.

Vocational training is provided. For recreation there are movies, TV, radio. Discipline is enforced largely by taking away privileges and furloughs.

Escapes Decrease
Despite the freedom from the old restrictions, the number of escapes has decreased. There is greater satisfaction with the program, and since 1952 there have been no gang fights or hunger strikes, which formerly were pretty frequent.

The program at all three schools is designed not merely to punish boys and girls, but mainly to rehabilitate them—to make them worthwhile citizens.

My article next week will tell how much too small our correction facilities are—so that delinquents get out too soon.

Mrs. Beatrice Hall and daughter, Mrs. Boots Morris, came Saturday morning and brought the new baby to see Mrs. Barney Lewellen.

State Capitol NEWS

Our WASHINGTON Letter

Austin, Tex. — From the Panhandle to the Valley, a good sample for a rousing speech right now is — "The Tidelands — They Are All Ours!"

Texans haven't been stirred up in this issue since 1853. That was the year Congress passed the Submerged Lands Act which recognized the coastal states' ownership of off-shore lands to their "historic boundaries."

Texas won title to land three leagues (10 1/2 miles) from shore in its independence treaty with Mexico. Texans, at least, were convinced, this was the "historic boundary." Hence, the state began operating in the three-league territory, leasing tracts to oil, gas and sulphur companies to gain money for public school fund.

Now the fat's in the fire again. Last year outgoing U. S. Attorney General Herbert Brownell filed suit in the U. S. Supreme Court contesting Texas' claim to more than three miles of tidelands. Other 7 1/2 miles, he said, belong to the federal government.

Of this claim, Texas officials have this to say: "It was Louisiana who knocked over the coffee pot."

Things were going along fine after the passage of the 1853 law, explained Wilson, until Louisiana's limited to three miles of tidelands decided that if Texans could have three leagues, so should they. Louisiana filed suit for the extra land. Federal government replied that "no state" owned more than three miles out.

This, observed, Wilson, "struck Texas in a tender spot." But neither Louisiana nor other coastal states have the same sort of case, as Texas, he emphasized. At the time Louisiana entered the Union, the commonly accepted boundary of a country was the distance a cannon could fire from shore — or three miles.

Texas, however, said Wilson, won right to three leagues in 1836 War for Independence and U. S. officials recognized this when the state entered the Union.

Today the value of the contested lands is estimated at $500,000,000. Ruefully, Wilson noted he's been allotted only one hour before the court to argue for it.

Land Commr. Earl Rudder: "If U. S. court knocks down Texas' claim to the 10 1/2-mile shoreline, then 'Russia, Mexico or anybody else can claim it.'"

Rudder took note of reported discussion among Mexican attorneys. Their view: If Texas did not get title to the territory from Mexico in 1836, then Mexico still owns it.

Urging that the title not be clouded, Rudder pointed out that the land is not only valuable for its minerals, but vital to defense.

Gov. Price Daniel: "This lawsuit is another step in the process of chipping away the authority of the states. It seeks not only to repudiate solemn treaties by which Texas entered the Union, but to destroy the legislative intent of Congress."

"The President has by every public act acknowledged this boundary. Yet his own attorney general has sued..."

Governor Daniel has expressed the belief that Brownell, who filed the Texas suit on his last day as attorney general, acted out of pure spite.

TAX-MAN SAM SEZ:

Some of us know that the groundhog can't predict the weather. But there are other folks who figure that the TV weatherman makes more mistakes than the groundhog does. When it comes to filing income tax returns lots of folks see their shadow and run for cover. Somehow or other taxpayers fail to add and subtract right on their tax returns. Uncle Sam says more people add in favor of themselves than in favor of the government. However, a lot of people cost themselves instead of the government by failing to add or subtract right. The government has lots of adding machines and they check the tax return carefully and try to correct the errors. It pays to check your addition on your tax return instead of completing a correspondence course with the income tax folks.

Rural children, as a group, have a school term about 6 per cent shorter than city children; their teachers are paid about one-third less and current expenditures per pupil are 16 per cent lower.

The California woodpecker carefully stores acorns in holes that it drills in trees and telephone poles. One pole was studded with 1,500 acorns.

Ancient Mesopotamians not only wrote on clay, but made clay envelopes to protect valuable documents.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Starnes of Odessa, visited recently with the home folks, Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Garrett.

Mrs. Lela Hays is a patient in the Santa Anna Hospital and is reported to be getting along very well.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Rice and children of Fredonia, Kansas, are visiting here with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Day and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rutherford. En route here they visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Grant in Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cornelius and Mrs. M. T. Cornelius came Monday and brought Hays Miller home from a two weeks stay with them in Abilene. While there Hays was fitted for glasses. He is getting along quite well.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Price visited over the weekend with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Hull at Dawson, in East Texas. The Halls formerly lived at Rockwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stephenson visited Thursday night of last week with their son, C. W. Stephenson and family in Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Stockard of Abilene, came by and got his mother, Mrs. Roy Stockard, and they went to Fort Worth and visited at the weekend, with her sister, Mrs. George Hayworth.

Mrs. Sudie Wester and Mrs. Ruby Wester of Brownwood, were visitors in the W. E. Vanderford home Wednesday of last week.

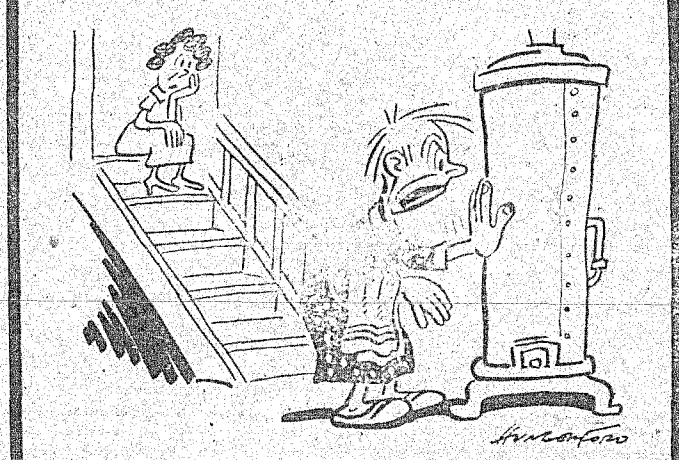

THE PUBLIC DEBT LIMIT

was increased from $275 billion to $280 billion by House action last week, effective until June 30, 1959, when the ceiling will revert back to the $275 billion level. Some increases is imperative in view of the stepped up defense expenditures during the coming months. An amendment to hold the increase to only $3 billion, which I supported, was voted down.

The debt limit actually means very little, unless after setting a limit the Congress will hold down appropriations so they will not exceed or exceed the limit. It's like a man saying: "I set my spending at a $200 limit this month", and then going out and charging $250 worth of merchandise to himself. The ceiling means little unless he cuts the garment to fit the pattern.

And the time for Congress to have avoided the present crisis in the debt limit was last spring when appropriations were being voted, which included some spending that was obviously non-essential.

THE RED CROSS has reported on the amount of emergency spending in Texas last year to alleviate suffering from various storms and floods. General A. M. Gruenther, Red Cross President, has just notified me that aid went to 59 Texas Counties, providing long-term assistance to 2,476 families. Total aid to Texas was $975,525, including $110,413 raised in Texas by special Red Cross fund campaigns, and the balance by the National Disaster Fund.

TODAY'S Meditation

Read John 11:47-54.

He (Calaphas) prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation; and not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad. (John 11:51,52.)

"God has grandchildren" is a startling statement. By writing it, an editorial writer won my open-mouthed attention, just as he knew he would. He went on to show that God has only children.

We are not foster children, or in-laws, or grandsons or granddaughters. We are not mere descendants of the heavenly Father; we are His children.

Sons and daughters carry certain privileges. The children of the household share in all the Father possesses — His insights, into the meaning of life. His concerns about His other children.

As children of God we carry certain responsibilities, too. We strive for the mind of Christ, our brother; we have part in His sufferings. We find that there are exacting requirements for the spiritual gifts we receive. As children of God, we enter into a partnership for God's purposes.

PRAYER

My Father, and the Father of all men everywhere, teach me the meaning of sonship. Save me from self-conceit. Keep me from despair, for I fall short of a son's stature. In the name of Him who came to show me the dimensions of Thy fatherhood. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

In the family of God a divine radiance surrounds all who are bound together in Christ.

Other members present were: Mrs. Arthur Talley, Mrs. Roy Stockard, Mrs. Clifford Stephenson, Mrs. J. F. Goen, Mrs. Sam Ruthert, Mrs. Charles Beuge and Mrs. A. L. Oder.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health.
HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner

Austin — If the people of the United States were informed that a vaccine had been found that was effective against traffic accidents and that clinical tests and records had demonstrated this accident prevention vaccine was successful, only a fool would fail to protect himself with a vaccination.

Further, if you were told that last year, all traffic accidents had been reduced almost 80 percent over two years ago, because of this vaccine with its resultant reduction in deaths and crippling effects, you would undoubtedly hail it as the greatest boon to life since milk pasteurization.

Why then is there so much apathy among adults in obtaining the protective benefits of the Salk anti-polio vaccine?

The success of the vaccine is proven beyond any shadow of doubt. The incidence of paralytic polio is reduced in the whole United States.

There were 816 cases of paralytic polio in Texas in 1955; last year there were only 365, a large proportion of which were adults and children below age 5.

Many parents have taken for granted the fact that their school children will probably receive their polio shots at school, but fail to protect themselves or their pre-school-age children.

This attitude could cost the life of your small children, or even your own.

Anti-polio vaccine is available for everyone now, and the Texas State Department of Health strongly recommends that everyone be vaccinated, especially pre-school-age children and young adults.

The continued marked reduction in the incidence of paralytic polio is dependent on the immunization of the entire population.

Remember, it takes eight months to complete your series of three polio shots, but if you start now, you will at least have partial protection by the onset of the polio season in Texas this spring.

We don't have a vaccine against automobile accidents yet, but you can guard against the crippling effects of paralytic polio, if you act soon.

BACK TO THE FARM—AND OFF THE UNEMPLOYMENT LIST

The old and uneasy sign of business and production let-ups—unemployment—has reared its unwelcome head once more, and once again our government planners begin to wonder how to get around this problem.

Operating on so tight a production and employment schedule as has American business in recent years, the least sign of downward adjustment invariably throws thousands of workers out of jobs and causes us to wonder just what is wrong with our economic system, employment-wise.

The most feasible resolution of many of our unemployment problems is to reclaim many of the jobless back to the valuable post they left during trying times—agriculture.

There appears to be a close connection between rural population declines and recent increases in unemployment. Those farmers who left the land in times of stress, such as our recent crippling drought, found unskilled jobs in the labor market at a time when production, business and government spending levels were high and when the slack appears between labor needed and labor available, it is the ex-farmers who are usually the first to be laid off.

In the past seven years, our farm population dropped from twenty-five million persons to twenty-two and a quarter million. This means a loss of nearly three million rural citizens in less than ten years — one of the most rapid declines in history.

If we could re-absorb into agriculture all these people, it would take a tremendous cut out of our unemployment roles.

In Texas, the ratio between farmers lost and unemployed persons is even higher. In the closing weeks of 1957 we had 140,000 unemployed persons on the rolls. Since 1950, we have lost 231,000 persons off Texas farms. For that terrific loss, of course, we have the drought largely to blame.

But the prevailing attitude in higher governmental circles of "get rid of the small farmers" hasn't helped the situation any. If agriculture is to help relieve the unemployment situation — and it can — Washington has got to do an about-face and begin encouraging a return to the farm.

Frances McClellan and Mrs. Ralph Brislin and little son, David, of Austin, came for the weekend and visited with the parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McClellan. Neva and Bobbie Rehm, students at the University of Texas at Austin, came with them and visited with the Tony Rehms at Rockwood. Neva is scheduled to finish at the U of T this semester. Carol McClellan was here with her parents between semesters at McMurry.

Mr. and Mrs. Oran Henderson and Orabeth Snyder, visited here over the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Blue and in Brownwood with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Barnes left Friday afternoon to spend the weekend in San Antonio with their son, Dr. J. Q. Barnes.

Mrs. M. C. Snodgrass left Sunday for Midland, for a visit of several weeks with her son, John W. Snodgrass and family.

Mrs. Annie Stovall returned home Saturday from a week visit with her daughter, Mrs. Paul Jennings and family in Abilene.

Bobbie Fuller left Sunday for Dallas, where she will take a week's course in advanced hair styling.

WITH Sputniks and more Sputniks and rumors of human-manned space machines and gadgets, an interesting event in Washington was almost overlooked by the Nation's news networks.

On December 17, a bronze statue of Brigadier General "Billy" Mitchell, renown pioneer and prophet of the air age, was unveiled in the Aeronautical Hall of the Arts and Industries Building at the Smithsonian Institution. The ceremony was one of several events held to mark the anniversary of man's first flight—accomplished only 54 years ago by the Wright Brothers—and also the climax of the year in which the Air Force celebrated its Golden Anniversary.

Was it only 54 years ago that the Wright Brothers captured the imagination of the world? This has been a half-century of tremendous progress. The constant quest for more and more speed in the air caused airplanes to be outmoded on drawing boards. By the time that the latest model was tested, it often seemed that someone else had come up with a bigger, faster and better model.

Where do we go from here? What happens in the next half a century? Will outer space become our weekend byways? Other planets our vacation-lands?

It's all speculation, but 50 years of the rapid-type progress we have known should bring us some fantastic surprises.

With the greatly increased military budget anticipated, Washington observers believe that Congress will take a long, hard look at the basic procurement policies of the Defense Department, with an eye to money-saving revisions in Pentagon contracting procedures.

Among the things Congress is considering is a proposal by Armed Services Committeeman F. Edward Hebert to require the Pentagon to negotiate with more than one supplier on all procurement actions. Hebert's proposal would require that the services negotiate with every supplier who responds to a bid . . . the idea being that competition would guarantee the lowest possible price.

Some observers say the committee investigation is an effort to make a political issue of the price paid for defense items.

The Federal Housing Administration is expected to release next Spring a new nationwide standard list of minimum housing requirements. Two years in the making, the new system will hold over-all FHA requirements to a minimum, allowing experienced regional directors, familiar with the climates and building codes in their areas, more discretion in approving construction, materials and methods.

Many political leaders in Washington concede privately that Richard Nixon will be the Republican nominee in 1960. Despite the President's speedy comeback from illness, the Vice President has taken on a more apparent air of the strong man in Government and Congressional circles.

END OF THE GAME

By P. G. Cox

JERRY BIXLER wasn't like himself at all that morning.

He was usually spilling over with wily pep when he opened his grocery store at 6:30 a.m. Grabbing a fresh sugar sack apron, he'd start hopping around, dead-bent on getting his full share of the grocery trade in Oakdale that day.

Pretty soon, with a daring gleam in his eyes, he'd begin figuring out some new bargain specials to flaunt on the windows in front of Doug Harbaugh.

But on this particular morning the zip was missing. Millie Blevins, faithful clerk for many a year, noticed the change as soon as she came in.

Millie watched him as she loaded herself for the day's work. "What's eating on you, Jerry?" she finally asked. "You feeling puny?"

"N-no," Jerry made a quick show of being busy. "I'm feeling dandy."

After Millie had waited on two or three customers, she caught Jerry staring after Harbaugh again.

"Jerry," she said out, "it's the first time I ever saw you acting mopey. And I sure wasn't expecting it of you today."

Millie broke off to take care of another customer. Jerry muddled around, deep in recollections of the struggle he'd had with Doug.

The struggle had started when Jerry came to Oakdale and bought the grocery store.

The first encounter with Doug came while Jerry was arranging the dingy stock for an opening under new management.

Doug shook the door open and stomped in. "Hear you've bought this dump," he boomed.

Jerry stiffened. By then he'd heard plenty about Doug. "Yeah, I bought it. And I aim to make it the best grocery store in Oakdale."

Doug snorted. "Pity you didn't wise up before jumpin' in here."

"What you mean by that?" "Anybody could've told you this store's a dead duck—that I got the grocery business in this town."

Jerry craned his thin neck. "Oh, that! I'd sort of noticed it."

Doug purpled up. "I'm a carload buyer, and I've never seen a store that can meet my prices."

"You're seein' one now that will," Jerry fired back.

The talk went on until Doug said, "I'm givin' you a chance to quit before you're hurt any worse."

"It ain't for sale," Jerry declared. "I wouldn't sell now for twice what I paid."

From then on it was Harbaugh vs. Bixler in a battle for the grocery trade. Jerry took many a hard jolt from Doug's price cutting, but it only brightened the determined glint in his eyes.

She even had to urge him into making up the day's specials to paint on the windows. Always before he could hardly wait to put out this daily challenge.

But this morning, sign brush finally in hand, he got only as far as the door. He stopped there to stare dejectedly at Harbaugh's market.

"Jerry, have you taken a lickings that I don't know about?" Millie asked anxiously.

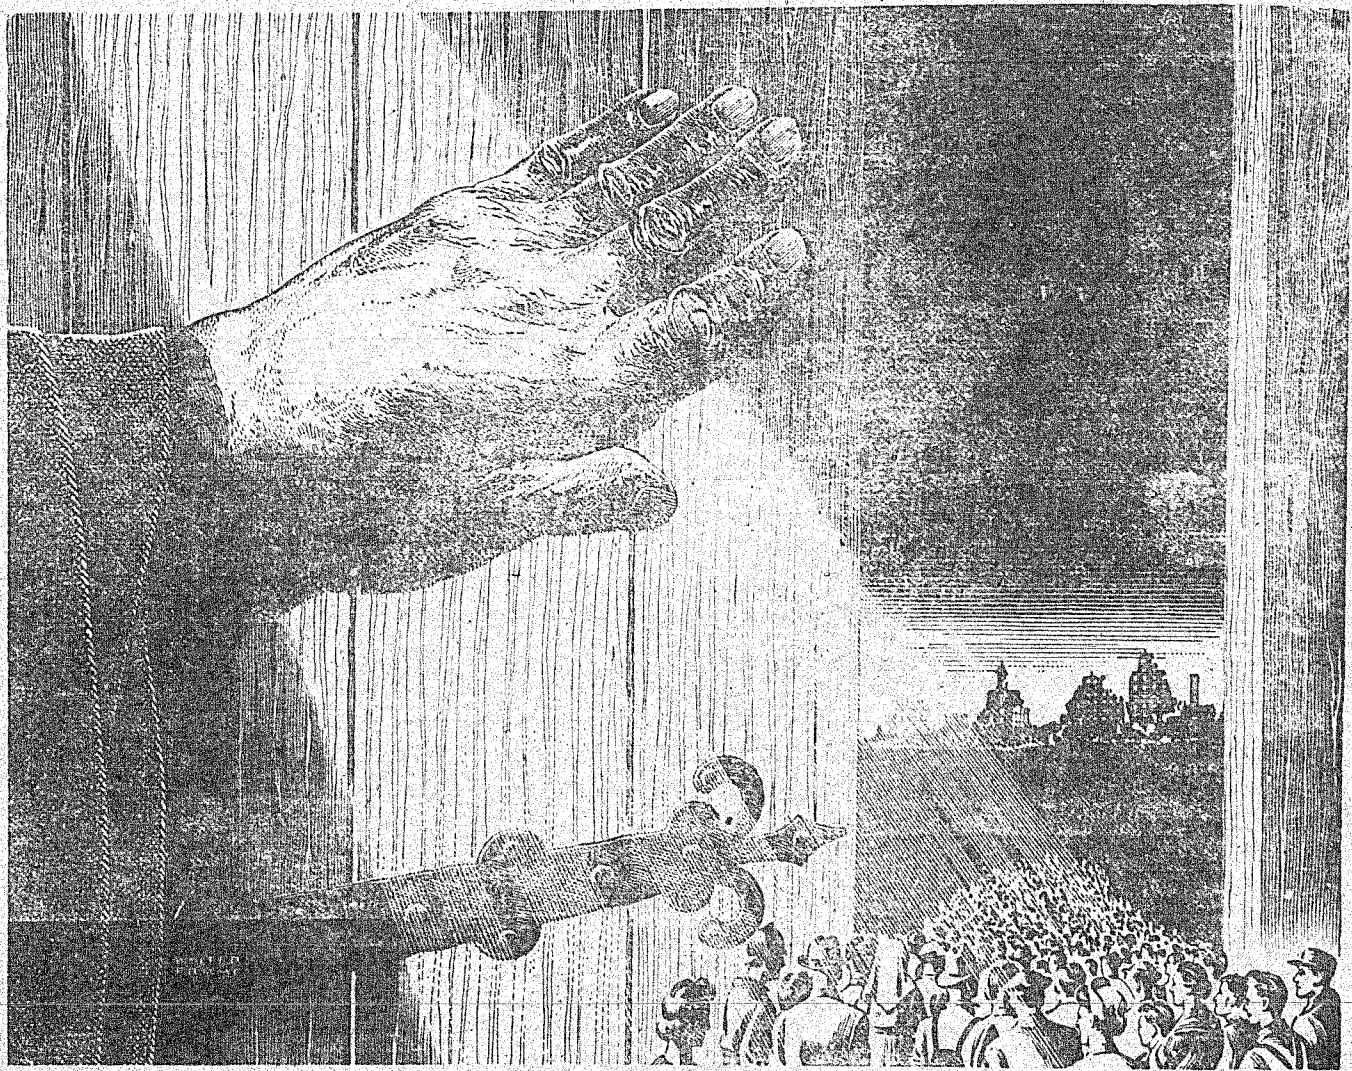

"Jerry didn't answer. "Such foolishness!" Millie went on. "You and Doug. You've got a good store now—because people like you. But you'd be a lot better off if you hadn't tried to cut prices with Doug. I'll never know why he didn't put you to the wall."

Jerry wheeled around. "Because I'm as smart as he was. That's why."

Millie seemed to get it. "Jerry," she said, "is it because you liked it—is that why you're acting so flat today?"

"Maybe it is," Jerry admitted. "What he's up and pulled on me now—seems like nothing's left to keep me on my toes."

Doug had died suddenly from a heart attack the previous afternoon.

Light Leads Our People

Each day a new door opens. What it reveals on the other side, for the people who must pass over its threshold, depends upon the conditions under which they lived their yesterdays.

Those in some countries look through the door upon a new day shadowed with oppressions, where there are few freedoms, tyrannies abound and living is hard and cold.

Those of us in America are more fortunate. Opening the door each day, we are met by the light of freedom which has led our destiny for many years. Protecting that freedom has been — and always will be — a Press that will not succumb to dictation or overpowering despotism.

For the light that leads to all freedoms is Freedom of the Press: Education . . . information of all kinds . . . news of all that transpires . . . and the open discussion of opinions and ideas that sharpens understanding.

Complete freedom of speech and of the press is the light that builds understanding, helping all mankind to advance onward and upward through the opening door of each tomorrow.
