"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

SMOKE

FROM THE MOUNTAIN

We supposed Coleman Golfers thought they were tops but when they refuse to play off the tie between that club and Santa Anna Club, we think it just proves they are afraid they'll take a licking. Our local club has tried to arrange a play off and been refused. Well, Santa Anna isn't a piker. We like to win, but if we are beaten, we can take it.

If any Sunday School can beat the attendance at the Eureka Baptist Church, let's hear about it. Last Sunday 122 out of 125 enrolled were present and that is excellent in anyone's language. That community should be mighty proud of that fine record.

We are taking a hint from another weekly paper we get and are publishing the following remark: We are not held responsible for the opinions of our correspondents and writers of the reader's column. We may or may not agree. As long as the articles written are from readers, have the name signed, are written in sincerity, and are not libel, and since this is a paper for the readers and subscribers, we usually print the opinions of the public. If you do not agree with that column, do not blame us. Write a reply and let the folks know the other side of the question.

Poor Dr. Lovelady. He's six years behind. Tuesday he dated a paper July 20, 1931. We knew this was a fast old world, but we really didn't think it was so speedy Dr. Lovelady would fall that much behind times.

Was John Franklin strutting his stuff Monday night? He was all dolled up and headed for Brownwood. But we couldn't find out who she was.

The young lad who said he kinda hated to work in the News office because there were too many skirts, was seen Tuesday night making quite an impression on some local girls on one of the street corners. Apparently his dislike for the women is not confined to "after working hours."

Jack Mobley may miss his pal, Buck Davis, but it seems that he has a new interest now which seems to be taking his mind completely off his troubles. Last minute flash—"And now she's gone!"

Who is the young man who passes Reid's Variety so often and makes Mary Lee's heart go pitter-patter?

Mr. Tommie Godfrey's ability to hold notes so long had one member of the congregation so worried that she asked him to cut them a little short. We don't know whether Mrs. Reid was worried about her own welfare or trying to save some of the singer's breath.

Rev. Johnson also pulled a fast one. He said that a friend of his remarked to another one, whom he had not seen in 25 years, that he was looking very young and spry for his age. "Well," the other replied, "I made it a rule when I married about 25 years ago to leave the house and go outside when my wife started an argument or a fuss. I don't believe in arguing." "What has that got to do with it," asked the friend. "Twenty-five years in the out-of-doors would make any man healthy and young," was the reply.

MISS PERKINS IS NEW OPERATOR FOR MRS. G. A. SHOCKLEY

Miss Arlee Perkins of Brownwood has taken over the Beauty Shop of Mrs. G. A. Shockley this week and is inviting all former patrons of the shop to continue in their patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Byrne have returned from Dobbin where they have been on a vacation for the first part of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Allen of Brownwood are visiting this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mary Blue.

Golf Honors Go to Santa Anna, Coleman in Tie

Santa Anna and Coleman Golf Clubs tied for honors in the Heart O' Texas Golf Association tournaments, with Santa Anna defeating the Philpeco club on the latter's home course in the final match recently.

Each of the tied teams has won three games, lost two and tied one. Philpeco is third, with Brady occupying the cellar position.

Santa Anna has tried to arrange for a playoff with Coleman, but as yet have not been successful in arranging for one with Coleman.

City Attorney Makes Statement to Tax Payers

John T. Williamson, employed by the city commission to collect delinquent taxes for the city of Santa Anna, said yesterday "that some people seem to have a wrong conception of the program that has been inaugurated. They do not seem to realize that the city commission, as well as myself, are working for them, trying to convince them that it is one debt that must be paid."

"The city," Mr. Williamson said, "can continue to function regardless of the delinquent taxes, but the tax lien is a superior lien on property and if allowed to accumulate will gradually but surely destroy the value of the property against which they are assessed."

Mr. Williamson cited several cases where taxes have already destroyed the value of the property. He also cited another instance, where a lot sold in Santa Anna for $500. The purchaser had the abstract of title examined and city, independent school and state and county taxes had not been paid for a number of years. The purchaser, he said, happened to get the property from a good man and the good man is paying the back taxes. As a consequence the man who sold the property will have very little of the $500 left.

Mr. Williamson cited another instance in a nearby town where a transfer would have been made had it not been for delinquent taxes. If the man had sold at the price he offered

Goal of 500 Set for Last Service of Revival Sun.

Night Meeting Will Conclude with Baptism; Flashlight Picture to be Made of Crowd

"Crowds are increasing daily in the evangelistic revival and men, women and children are heeding the call and coming to Christ," stated Rev. A. F. Johnson, who is conducting the two weeks revival closing Sunday at the Baptist Church. "A goal of 500 present at the final service Sunday night has been set and a flashlight picture of this large group will be taken at the close of the services." Tommie Godfrey, tenor, is assisting in the revivals with his solos and song leadership.

Rev. Johnson commented upon the great cooperation of the other churches with the revival and invites all pastors to take their place on the platform reserved for the ministers.

The revival will conclude Sunday night following the preaching service, beginning at 8 p. m. with a baptism of those who have joined the church during the revival.

A series of sermons on Christ in the Mosaic Books is being delivered by Rev. Johnson each morning at 10 o'clock. All denominations are invited.

Much praise has been given by Rev. Johnson and his congregation on the song leadership and beautiful solos by Mr. Godfrey, who assists in each service, both morning and evening.

The pastor, Rev. R. Elmer Dunham, stated, "Indications are that this revival will far surpass in results the great revival of last year."

A hearty invitation has been extended to all churches and all people to attend the remaining services.

Bond Election for Courthouse to Be Set Soon

Qualified voters of Coleman County may have the opportunity to vote on a $150,000 bond issue on August 23—the same date on which they will vote on six constitutional amendments.

The bond issue—should it be favored by the voters—would be used in the construction of a new court house and jail in Coleman. It would be spread over a period of 40 years and would draw interest of not more than five per cent.

A petition, signed by approximately 500 Coleman Countians, was presented to the Commissioners' Court recently. It asked that an election be called for the purpose of voting the bonds. It was the second such petition that has been presented the court within the past three months, although the first one had only about half as many names.

The Court has taken no action on the petition as yet, but members of that body now indicate the election will be called when the Court meets Saturday morning.

On presentation of the first petition no action was taken because the commissioners believed it was not representative of the entire county.

The election would be called for August 23 for two reasons, to save election costs and because more interest will be taken in both elections if they are held at the same time—thus a representative vote of the bond election is expected.

Members of the Court have not expressed themselves on the court house and jail proposition, but have said in the past they wanted to be sure that the proper number of voters want an election before spending the money on one.

CONCHO PEAK PLANS ICE CREAM SUPPER

The Concho Peak Club ladies will give away the club quilt Friday night, July 23 at the Concho Peak school house, where an ice cream supper will be served.

Entertainment throughout the evening will consist of tables of forty-two. Everyone is invited.

Grade Vacancies Filled by Board; J. R. Lock Resigns

Byrne Asked to Fill Principals; Mrs. Turner, Miss Wallace Elected

At a meeting of the Board of Education last Friday, Mrs. J. Frank Turner and Miss Cody Wallace were elected to fill the positions in the primary department of the elementary school here vacated recently by the resignations of Mrs. W. O. Leach and Miss Eulalia Grady. The resignation of J. R. Lock, for many years connected with the local schools as grade principal and more recently as high school principal, was accepted. Mr. Lock has accepted a position as Dean of Boys and teacher in the Baptist Academy at San Marcos where he has taught this summer. The position vacated was tendered D. D. Byrne, elementary principal, but he has not replied yet as to his decision.

Miss Grady has accepted a position in the Blanket school. Both Mrs. Turner and Miss Wallace have had excellent training and long experience in primary work and both have taught in this department in Santa Anna before. Miss Wallace has taught in the primary department of San Angelo for the past eight years and Mrs. Turner has taught several years in the Liberty school. Both hold B. A. degrees from Howard Payne College and have done graduate work in other colleges.

The Board elected C. B. Verner assessor and collector of taxes for the Santa Anna Independent School district for the ensuing year. A tax of $1.00 was levied for 1937 to be divided evenly between the Interest and Sinking Fund, and Local Maintenance.

The delinquent tax bureau of Austin, which has been employed some time ago to collect delinquent taxes was given full authority to collect these taxes even to the extent of forced collection if necessary.

Two Arrests Made on Theft Charge

Local and County Officers Arrest Brown and Yancy for Theft of Oats from Hill Farm

Arrest of two men, B. G. Brown and Dee Yancy, in connection with the theft of oats from the grainary of Arthur Hill, local farmer, Tuesday night, July 13 were made this week by local and county officers.

Entry was made into the grainary a week ago while Mr. Hill and his family were visiting in Midland. It was estimated that over 875 pounds of oats have been sold and it is thought that more than that amount was taken from the barn. Discovery of the theft was made by Oscar Hill, brother of Arthur Hill, who came out to the farm the following morning to tend the stock. The grain was sold to a local buyer the morning of July 14.

Brown was arrested here Saturday afternoon and was released on $500 bond. Yancy was arrested Monday in Yuma, Arizona and will be brought back here immediately.

WOOD BROTHERS TAKE OVER MANAGEMENT OF SINCLAIR STATION

Claud Woods and E. L. Woods, of Mirando City have taken over the management of the Sinclair Station on the corner of the Brady-Coleman road and are inviting customers to visit them.

The brothers have also brought their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Woods of Mirando City, here to make their home.

BAND TO PLAY AT M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. J. Virgil Davis, pastor of the Methodist Church, is in Bryson conducting a revival. He will be absent from the local pulpit Sunday, but a layman will speak and the Santa Anna Band will play during the morning hour.

Night services will discontinue because of the Baptist Revival.

Lions Support Museum Plans for Rangers

Mrs. Gay Talks to Club, Securing Financial Aid

The Lions Club promised the support of its members in the building of the Museum for relics and the community house to be built as a memorial to the ex-Rangers of Texas on the Santa Anna park grounds, at the meeting Tuesday.

Mrs. R. O. Gay, daughter of an ex-Ranger, and author of the history of Coleman County, "Into the Setting Sun," spoke to the Club in behalf of those interested in building the museum. Plans have been practically completed for the building here, the home of the Ex-Rangers, who experienced their first pioneer duties in this vicinity.

The structure will be built through donations of the Club, help of the Ex-Ranger Auxiliary, private donations and through the aid of WPA labor. It will furnish, not only a permanent place for Ex-Ranger relics, but will supply the community with a meeting place for civic gatherings and programs.

Visitors present at the meeting were F. M. McKinney, past president of the Coleman Club, Alex Clark, president of the Coleman Club, and Uncle Ben Huff of Coleman.

Members present were D. L. Pieratt, acting president; C. A. Walker, J. T. Garrett, John F. Turner, F. C. Woodward, Rex Golston, W. H. Ragsdale, Loyd Burris, J. C. Scarborough, W. R. Mulroy, Sam Collier, C. F. Campbell, William Bell, R. L. Hunter, O. A. Etheredge, Jim Bob Gregg, Hardy Blue, W. B. Griffin, R. R. Lovelady.

Tractor House Making Plans to Locate Here Soon

Plans for a new tractor house, to be operated by Roy Freeman are continuing and will be completed within the next few weeks, according to a statement made by the prospective manager this week.

The firm will handle Allis Chalmers Tractors and all parts for farm implements. Location for the store will be in one of the Shield buildings.

Mr. Freeman is now in partnership with his brother in a tractor house in Coleman.

PETTIT SENDS GREETINGS

Greetings from A. D. Pettit, on a 3,000 mile trip with the F. F. A. boys of this district, state that the trip has been most enjoyable and that all the boys are having a grand time. The card written Monday in Laguna, N. M., said that the group had visited the Carlsbad Cavern Sunday and camped that night near the Bottomless Lakes.

They planned to reach the Grand Canyon late Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Vanderford and family and Bill Fritchard went to Brownwood Sunday to spend the day at the lake.

Picture Magazine Will Send Staff to Ex-Ranger Meet

"Life" Plans to Send Photographers to Ex-Ranger Reunion

Communications from "Life," a pictorial magazine dealing with historic, social, and other interesting present day activities written to Mrs. R. C. Gay state that representatives of that magazine are planning to be present at the Ex-Rangers Reunion to be held here August 3, 4 and 5. Pictures obtained will be used in the publication.

The letter, written from the New York office, says that the staff members are "more than favorably disposed to come to the Party." The schedules have been made up several weeks ahead but the staff is trying to rearrange the program so that they can be present at the reunion in Santa Anna.

"It sounds too good to miss, and we are arranging the schedules in the hope that we can come," stated Miss Anna Goldsborough, editorial secretary.

Mrs. Thate in Dallas Clinic after Accident

Reports from Mrs. W. H. Thate, who is in Dallas under the care of a bone specialist, following an accident several days ago in which she injured her hip, state that she is progressing as well as can be expected and according to the X-Ray reports, it is thought she will not have to undergo an operation.

Mrs. Thate was taken to Dallas Friday in the Hoshch Ambulance and was accompanied by her husband. Dr. T. Richard Sealy went to Dallas Saturday to be present at the examination.

The accident occurred on the sidewalk of her home when she stepped out after a rain and her foot slipped. Mr. Thate has been with her this week.

DEMONSTRATION AGENT TRANSFERS TO HUNT COUNTY

Miss Alice Glenn Young, county home demonstration agent, has been transferred to Hunt County and will move to her new location about August 5, according to word received late Wednesday afternoon.

Her headquarters will be at Greenville, the county seat.

A successor for her position in this county has not been announced.

Miss Young has spent about three years here as county home demonstration agent and will be greatly missed by the clubs and women with whom she has worked.

Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Womack and son, Ernest Lee, are en route to Eaton, Colo. for a vacation. Cards from Rev. Womack state that they spent Tuesday night at Stratford, Texas and that it was pouring down rain at the time.

A Museum and Community House Promised

The Ex-Rangers can talk with assurance about their Museum for relics when they come to Santa Anna within two weeks for their annual reunion.

Not without opposition will this building be built and should for that reason be more appreciated. The Rangers long ago said that Santa Anna was home to them because it was the scene of early duties, and many citizens, including Mrs. R. C. Gay and Mrs. J. R. Banister, daughter and widow respectively of Ex-Rangers, have spent many months of talking, planning and laboring for the building.

We are happy for these Ex-Rangers and for those so interested in them that these plans are materializing. It is a proof to these men who gave so much to this section of their services and youthful years that we appreciate their endeavors and honor the historic relics which they and their descendants prize so highly.

A Minute Sermon

By Evangelist A. F. Johnson
Fort Worth, Texas

"A cooperative Christian spirit is not a compromising attitude. All Christianity centers in one person, Jesus Christ. Church loyalty is never injured by Christian fellowship in the common task of soul winning."

"Some Church members are more loyal to a creed, than to Christ. They act as if they thought Christianity were an incident of no major importance."

"Christ was not narrow. He was universal in His work. Following Christ's example lengthens one's arm of Christian influence in this world."

Dear Sir:

Just happened to see this clipping in a Journal, which is self-explanatory.

Noticing in the News that you have "hoppers" there, it may prove of interest to some.

I want to heartily endorse the movement for a Ranger building and community house for Santa Anna. Hope that you will be able to get this worth while civic improvement.

Epsom Salt Effective as a Grasshopper Poison
Epsom salt may find large-scale use this summer if the expected outbreak of grasshoppers reaches its predicted magnitude. For this chemical, a bitter medicine to reluctant human palates, is even worse for grasshoppers—it kills them.

Discovery of the usefulness of Epsom salt as a grasshopper poison is reported (Science, April 30th) by Hubert W. Frings and Mable S. Frings of the University of Oklahoma. They have compared the standard arsenic-poisoned bran bait with a bran bait prepared with Epsom salt, and find the latter to be quite as effective, cheaper to make, and safer to prepare and use.

Their formula is: bran, 60-65 per cent, molasses 15 per cent, magnesium sulphate (Epsom salt) 20-25 per cent, and enough water to moisten.

Spread on the ground where the young grasshoppers are crawling—and watch them turn up their toes.—Science News-Letter.

Home Demonstration Notes

Mrs. Elmer Key, bedroom demonstrator of the Comal Home Demonstration Club and third prize winner in the bedroom contest, made her small room attractive, comfortable, and convenient without giving it a crowded jumbled appearance. The room is on the southeast and has four windows and two doors giving sufficient ventilation, sunshine, and light.

Mrs. Key chose green, peach, and ivory for the color scheme of her room and the effect is both restful and charming. The wall paper is a diagonal plaid in light peach and green on a cream background, which helps to give the room a more spacious appearance. At the windows are thin green curtains that lend color and coolness to the room.

A dressing table was made from two orange boxes and placed on a stand to give more height. This table was draped in a figured material with green, peach and ivory the predominating colors. A combination bedside table, writing table, magazine rack, and a book shelf was made from scrap lumber and stained and varnished to go with the other furniture. A tufted bedspread made with natural colored thread on unbleached domestic was used on the bed.

A closet was built into the room that contains a rod, shelves for hats and folded garments, and a shoe rack. The inside is papered in light paper to make finding things easy.

All of these and other improvements were made by Mrs. Key on her room for only $14.36. The result is a thoroughly charming, comfortable and inviting bedroom that comes up to all Extension standards for demonstration room.

THE STORY OF MY WARDROBE WORK IN 1937

By Doris Jean McKee
Brown Ranch 4-H

The 4-H club at Brown Ranch was organized by Miss Alice Glenn Young, County Home Demonstration Agent, in January, 1937. As I was much interested in sewing I wanted to be a member and nineteen of us enrolled in the club. I very much wanted to be a wardrobe demonstrator so I would have a good chance to learn to sew nicely and to select suitable materials and patterns for myself. I like to design my own clothes so mother cuts most of my patterns for me. In this way, my dresses do not look just like those of all the other girls.

I have done all the work outlined for a wardrobe demonstrator this year, and I have found the work very absorbing, as I like to look my very best. I have been very interested in the correct care of my hair, teeth, complexion. Good grooming is as essential as the correct kind of clothes. I have check D-105, Good Looks For Girls, regularly since the first of the year and find that it has helped improve my appearance and made me feel better.

I started my club work by first getting my sewing box equipped with a good pair of scissors, tape measure, thimble, spool of white thread, pins, needles, and a pin cushion. I chose a paste board box, 6 inches by 10 inches, and two inches deep, so that it would be about the size of my school book and easy to carry to and from school. Equipping the sewing box cost $1.10. Having sewing things all my own makes sewing so much fun.

In doing clothing work I found out that the first thing to be done was to take a complete inventory of all the clothing on hand. It is a good way to find out first what you have and in what condition the articles are in. I found out to my surprise that most of my summer things I had last year were too small for me. I hadn't realized how much I had grown during the year.

After checking up on the clothing I had on hand, I made a clothing plan of all the articles that I thought I would need to add to my wardrobe during 1937. The plan was made out in five parts—outer clothing, inner clothing, and sleeping garments, headwear, footwear, and accessories, and cosmetics. Of course my plan has not worked out just as I had planned it but it has been helpful in many ways. First, it has helped me to look forward to give time and thought of planning each dress I would need. Knowing first about how many things I would need has helped me to spend my clothing money wisely and to a much better advantage than usual. I have a few more things this year that are attractive, and of better material as a result of making the clothing plan in January.

The first garment that we made in club work this year was a simple kitchen apron of red and white checked cotton print. I hemmed the apron on my fingers using a whipping stitch. This gave me practice using my needle and thimble and taught me how to make a neat turned hem. The strap for the neck and the strings were whipped down securely so they wouldn't come off when the garment was washed. The total cost of my apron was 12c and I have enjoyed wearing it when I worked in the kitchen.

The next article I made was a kimono of peach colored seersucker. The kimono was made with short butterfly sleeves and turned back lapels and a belt. I found that sewing on such a crinkled material was quite hard. I learned how to make French seams on this garment. When the kimono was finished it was quite attractive and it is so nice and cool to wear in the summer. I learned how to put in hems and facings with a blind stitch and this made it nicer looking as the stitches didn't show on the right side. My robe cost me 70c.

The last garment I made in the club was a simple sport dress of navy blue and white print. The dress was trimmed in tiny red and white rickrack braid on the collar, cuffs, and pockets and small round white buttons. In making my dress I learned how to finish up inside seams so as to keep the material from raveling and to give the dress a better finished appearance. To wear with my dress I made a braided headband of the same material I had left after making the dress. The dress and band cost 75c finished.

After all garments were finished Miss Young, our County Home Demonstration Agent, checked and o-ke'd them. She pointed out to us the things that should be changed or worked over, so that everything would be finished up as nicely as possible.

As wardrobe demonstrator I needed a slip to wear with my dress in the County Wide Style Contest Show at the Rally Day June 19th. I made my slip from pink rayon and cotton mixed material and finished it with French seams. The cost of the slip was 40c.

Since the first of the year I have been keeping a clothing expense account and I have spent $14.23 thru the middle of June. I feel sure that next year I can make a better clothing plan because I will have a complete record of everything bought this year and the exact amount of money spent.

After I started my work I realized that I needed a closet in which to keep my clothes. Mother and I decided that we could fix over an old wardrobe that we had at home that used to belong to my grandmother. We took all the old varnish off of the outside and stained it light oak and revarnished it. The inside we painted white to make it light and attractive, and we added crystal knobs to the door and drawer. Into the wardrobe was built a shelf for hats, one for underwear, two shelves for small articles, a rod for my dresses, and a shoe rack. There is also a long drawer at the bottom for folded garments. The total cost of remodeling the wardrobe was 85c.

One of our goals in clothing this year called for the addition of 12 hangers and a shoe rack to our closets. I added the hangers, and made the shoe rack from a box and a mop handle and varnished it.

On June 19 we had our Rally Day at the City Park in Coleman, and it was attended by 56 girls from 10 clubs. Each of us wore her sport dress for the judges and brought aprons, gowns and kimonos and put them on display for the visitors to see. Besides my apron, kimono, slip and dress I had my inventory, wardrobe plan, clothing expense account, story of work, and pictures of my closet before and after improvement. Much to my surprise and joy I received first prize in the Demdemonstrator group over seven other girls. I received a completely equipped sewing box of which I am very proud. I enjoyed the Rally Day very much. I am looking forward to the next year.

I feel that this year of club work has been quite valuable to me in many ways. I have learned to keep records and expense account, to make 3 different kinds of seams, some new stitches, to use a pattern, and sew neatly. I like to sew and enjoy selecting patterns and colors that are most becoming to me. I am planning to continue club work as long as I am in the Brown Ranch school as it is much fun. Then when I go to high school I plan to take home economics.

Many Entries for Lake Regatta Are Received for Race

Brownwood, Texas, July 21.—The largest field of entries ever assembled for Speed Boat races in Texas is expected for the third Annual Regatta at Lake Brownwood Sunday afternoon, July 25. Regatta officials point out that 47 entries already have been received, far in advance of the event, and additional entries are being received daily.

Ten of the drivers who won prizes at the Mineral Wells regatta last Sunday have already filed their entry blanks for the Brownwood Regatta July 25, and others have indicated they will be on hand, assuring a fast field and keen competition.

Frank Boggeman, who acted as referee at Mineral Wells, will be the radio announcer for the Brownwood Regatta. Mr. Boggeman knows all of the racers, has followed motor boat racing for years, and has had a great deal of experience in radio broadcasting. His announcements will keep the spectators not only informed, but interested in what is happening throughout the program.

Anthony F. Hopp, secretary of the Dallas Boat Club, will be referee of the Brownwood races. Other officials will be drawn largely from Dallas and Fort Worth experts.

Blue Steele and his orchestra, featuring Jane Walton as singer, have been secured for the annual Regatta Dance, which will be held Saturday night, July 24, at Hotel Brownwood Roof Garden. Steele is a nationally known radio broadcaster, popular with dancers.

Civil Service Examinations Announced

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the following positions:

Senior educational analyst (tests and measurements), $4,600 a year, and educational analyst (tests and measurements), $3,800 a year, Extension Service, Office of Cooperative Extension Work, Department of Agriculture.

Warden, and associate warden, $3,800 to $6,500 a year, U. S. Bureau of Prisons, Department of Justice.

Principal safety promotion adviser, $5,600 a year, Division of Labor Standards, Department of Labor.

Field representative, $3,500 a year, Division of Savings Bonds, Treasury Department.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse, in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

The racers will compete for $650 in cash prizes. In addition to the official National Outboard Association races, there will be a free-for-all added race for runabouts, all classes, inboard and outboard motors. The added race is expected to draw a large field.

Entries already received include: Class A hydroplane, 6; Class B, 10; Class C, 12; Class F, 4; Class C runabout, 10; Class F and X runabout, 5.

Races will start promptly at 2:10 o'clock. Admission to the races and lake events is 25 and 15 cents; to the dance, $2.50, tax included.

TRICKHAM H. D. C. MEETS

In a discussion on soil conservation, Mrs. Bud Laughlin said that crop rotation and terracing were the best methods to conserve the soil, at a meeting of the Trickham Home Demonstration Club Thursday, July 15 at the club house.

Mrs. Carl Sheffield told of the value of terracing and contouring to keep the land from washing during heavy rains. Mrs. Albert Dean showed pictures of eroded and conserved soil.

Plans were discussed for the encampment August 5 and 6.

The following members and visitors were present: Mrs. Albert Dean, Mrs. Jess York, Mrs. Harry Wilson, Mrs. Marion Ford, Mrs. Carl Sheffield, Mrs. Bud Laughlin, Mrs. Howell Martin, Mrs. Joe Stacy, Mrs. Gordon Starnes, Mrs. John Pentecost, Misses Modene Clack and Ina V. Rogers.

The next meeting of the club will be Thursday, July 29 at the clubroom. The program will be on "Games and Recreation."

BURGLARY CHARGE

Dimery Knox of Santa Anna is in the Brown county jail on a burglary charge. He was arrested in Santa Anna Sunday by Sheriff Jack Hallmark and charged in connection with burglary of Game Warden Lawrence Hallmark's cabin at Lake Brownwood.

A rifle, clothing and a watch were taken in the burglary. Only articles of clothing were recovered, Sheriff Hallmark stated.

Rev. Alan Lynch, pastor of the Christian Church, is attending summer school at T. C. U. in Fort Worth for the second term. He will return each week-end to fill the pulpit at his church.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-uncle, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adopted daughter Rachel, twenty and pretty, that she tell her about her real mother. Anne, an unselfish, understanding soul, finds the task difficult, since she feels Rachel is putting a barrier between them. Rachel learns that her mother was a beautiful eighteen-year-old Elinor Malloy, deserted by her young husband, before Rachel's birth. He was killed in the World War, in desperate financial straits. Elinor had agreed to Rachel's adoption at birth by Anne, whose own baby had died. Elinor subsequently had married Peter Cayne, a wealthy New York business man, and had a son. To Rachel the story of Rachel, Anne omits telling her that her mother had been callous and selfish.

CHAPTER II—Rachel goes fishing with Bob Eddis, a local boy who runs a library and does wood carving. She refuses his plea to stay in Rockboro and accompany him instead of going to New York for the winter. At dinner Rachel announces she is going to do something of her very own in New York. Departing the next morning they leave the keys with Mr. Kreef, a neighbor.

CHAPTER III—Reviewing the situation between Rachel and herself, Anne is confirmed in her belief that it is time for Rachel to learn more self-dependence. Rachel makes arrangements to stay in New York for the winter with "Pink," a keen, vivacious girl absorbed in her job. Anne leaves provision for Rachel's finances in case of need and leaves for Europe. After Anne sails, Rachel, bent on seeing her real mother, looks up Elinor Cayne's number.

CHAPTER IV—Rachel learns the Caynes are not yet in town. Pink takes Rachel to dinner at Tom and Rhoda Steele's where she meets Oliver Land, a shabby genteel young man out of work who surges that she apply for a job as a photographer's model for advertising illustrations. He agrees to introduce her to the head of an agency.

CHAPTER V—Thinking of Anne, Rachel is piqued, fretfully believing her own mother would not have left her alone. She is not entirely happy with Pink Matthews. Her desire to see Elinor Cayne increases. Through Oliver Land she meets Louis Vinco, is hired as a photographer's model and succeeds on her first assignment posing for furniture advertising. Oliver makes her feel her indebtedness to him.

"But what do you want to get on for? What does it get you?" asked Rachel. "You'll only be promoted into another job where you'll have to work harder still. It doesn't make sense."

"Look here, Rachel," Pink replied, "it may not make sense to you, but it does to me. I may be funny that way, but I've got something in me that wants to go ahead. I like to use my brains and see if they aren't a little better than the brains of the people around me. You can call it ambition or vanity, or greed or rank individualism, if you want, but this lopping along like a tame rabbit with a lot of other tame rabbits is nothing to me. I want to be the rabbit that's a yard or so ahead and setting the pace. It's my way of enjoying life."

"You weren't like that at school."

"I'm like that now. This work's my form of self-expression, much as I hate that misused word. I like it and I can do it well and I get better at it all the time, and that's a mighty agreeable feeling. And another thing about it, it's stable. It's solid. Your friends may desert you, your new dress may turn out to be a bust, your best beau may find another gal, but a day's work is a day's work like a good old block of granite, safe and sound."

"I don't feel so enthusiastic about it," said Rachel.

"Pink was sympathetic. 'I know that photographic model stuff must be simple, but it's only till you land something you really want to do.' Rachel had turned silent there. The only thing she really wanted to do was to meet and know Elinor Cayne. She hadn't told Pink she should tell anyone. But there it was, the longing urgency to discover the real mother, for in so doing Rachel assumed she would discover herself, her real self. This dissatisfaction lay at the root of all the others.

For the moment she felt nothing but those innumerable dissatisfactions. The first day when she had gone to the agency for models she had felt excited. Oliver Land had called for her, looking just as he had looked the night before, shabbily smart, but quite sure of himself. He had taken a couple of cigarettes from the box on the table. "I'm down to carfare and couldn't buy any," he explained, as if it were the most natural thing in the world. "I'll save one of these for later in the day."

Rachel had been embarrassed, sorry for him. "Take them all," she offered, "we have heaps more." "I'll fill my case, then, if you don't mind."

Then when they were outside, he said: "Shan't we walk? It's a grand day."

It was a grand day, but the distance was over 30 blocks. Rachel wondered whether she might offer to pay bus fare. She had never met anyone so frankly penniless, and she remembered that Rhoda had whispered in her ear about not lending money to Oliver. They had walked along and she was uncomfortably silent, but Oliver was quite at ease. He had talked amusingly about shows and parties and night clubs, apparently he went everywhere, did everything. Finally he had glanced round at her quizzically. "I believe you're worried about this job. But you mustn't be, you'll land like a house afire, you'll panic the whole outfit. You're very beautiful, you know, keep on thinking about that and don't be nervous."

"I'm not nervous," said Rachel, "but I was wondering if you oughtn't to be looking for a job for yourself instead of taking so much time out for me."

"Oh, that! I'll run across something sometime. One of my friends is arranging a radio audition for me and I've got a couple of other plans. And there are so many nice people in the world. Rhoda gave me so much dinner last night that I didn't want my breakfast, and you've given me cigarettes and I've an invitation to lunch—you see?"

"But haven't you any home, or any people?"

"Oh, I've parents and a couple of brothers, but they live over in Jersey. I can't depend on them—I mean, I can't—live on them."

"My dear girl, I believe you're worrying about me! That's flattery, you mustn't. I'm one of the many bright lads about this town who've discovered how to live very well indeed without any money."

As they neared their destination he told her a little about the agency. "Vinco, the head of it, is American, though his name sounds foreign; the fact is he uses it because he made enough money betting on a horse named Vinco to set himself up in business. He's superstitious. I hope to goodness this is one of his lucky days, he's sour as an ape if you strike him when he's seen a bad sign. But he's a right guy when he's seen the moon over his left shoulder or whatever it is."

"But he sounds terrific!"

"You should be terrified, with those eyes! Hold your head up and be nonchalant. Not bored or indifferent, Vinco wouldn't like that. Don't seem to be asking for anything—you'll get a lot more that way."

The Vinco agency was big and bare with a long counter dotted with telephones across one side. There were some chairs and one man and one girl waiting; the man looked attentively at Rachel, but the girl turned her head away. Louis Vinco and his two assistants stood behind the counter busy with telephones and behind them on the wall were engagement pads to which they constantly turned. As Oliver and Rachel came in Vinco put down his phone.

"I've found you a new model," said Oliver, shaking hands, "Miss Rachel Vincent."

The short baldish little man beamed with pleasure. "Vinco, Vincent! Why, that's lucky!" Then he turned suspicious. "Is Vincent your real name? Oliver here didn't suggest it to you to get me going?"

The thought of her adoption came vividly to Rachel's mind, but she could not speak of it to these two; besides, Vincent was her name, the only name rightfully her own. So she assured Vinco that Vincent was her real name and his smile came back.

"And you want to be a photographer's model? Any experience? No, of course not. You're over tall, but you're not fat, your head's right in proportion, your features—but the camera'll tell the tale. You must have a test. I'll send you to a studio where they make all my tests. It's a commercial, not a portrait studio—what is it, Miss Dean?" This last over his shoulder to a hovering assistant.

he chuckled—"but that's the first time I ever did such a thing. And the last. Hey, Miss Dean, give Miss Vincent an appointment card for this assignment. It she makes good she's to go into our book."

It cost $25 to be registered in the Vinco book, Rachel discovered later, and the pay for her work was made by the hour, five to fifteen dollars usually, the higher rate for special jobs. But she knew none of this when she went on that first assignment, where she wore a delicious blue-flowered negligee and lay on a peach-colored chaise longue while Selma, as her supposed friend, in delicate primrose chiffons sat before the peach-draped dressing table with her arm raised to her perfect coiffure. A canvas and paint representation of a Louis Quinze boiserie enclosed this scene and in front of it two shirt-sleeved, disheveled men pushed cameras and directed lights while a man and woman from the furniture factory busied about discussing the girls and their effect as frankly as if they were deaf.

The whole crazy business took three hours and at the end of it Rachel was sagging and tired. The furniture people had been delighted with the photographs and their satisfaction had passed on to Vinco. With a flourish he informed Rachel that she was in his book and he would send her such appointments as seemed suitable for her and collect her pay therefore, retaining 10 per cent for himself. From Miss Dean Rachel learned that Vinco was a fiend for punctuality and any excuse short of a broken neck was nothing to him. From the other models she met she learned more about him, that he played fair with all his people, had no favorites, was scrupulously honest about money, but wouldn't let anyone draw ahead or cash a check, and was intensely proud of the quality of Vinco service.

Her first assignment had been followed by others more interesting. Rachel had posed in winter sports clothes for a fashion magazine, coming up over a fake snow hillside, skis in hand, and had won a small acclaim because "you're the first girl we've tried that Schiaparelli outfit on who didn't look insane," the assistant editor told her. "We've had three others." A further, too, had liked Rachel for the pictures in his catalogue. "It takes a tall girl for furs," he said. "She wears them with an air and then all the little fatties think they can do it too."

Somehow Oliver Land had made her feel that she was in debt to him for her place with Vinco. And he never let her forget it, it costs ten cents whenever I call you and that's my morning coffee." And, "I had to borrow a shirt today, the sleeves are short, I hope I don't look funny to go out with you." One day he had come to see her and said, laughing, "It's ridiculous, but I'm absolutely broke today and I'm hungry as the devil. Have you got any bread and butter round the place, or any milk?" But when she hurried to bring him food he didn't eat very much. "I don't want to get the habit of eating," he said, "I can't afford it." He lived, she knew, with another young man out of work, in a room which someone had loaned them. The two pooled their resources, shared their suits and cuff links and cigarettes and invitations.

Pink didn't like them, either of them, especially Oliver, but she was tolerant. "Just a couple of gigney-ayant-chante-tout-Pete, if you ask me," she said. "Almost in the gigo class but not quite. Don't tell me they can't get work. They don't want it unless it's on their own terms, which is what doesn't exist these days. Why don't they go in the CCC and climb trees instead of kidding themselves they're going to land in a show?"

"But Oliver got memy job, Pink," said Rachel. "They try to do things for people, both of them." "Then pay Oliver a commission. Probably that's what he's hanging around for."

Rachel knew better. Oliver hung around because she liked him and he liked her, very much; yet it was not as simple as that, Oliver was not a simple person. He might like her—very much—but he might also be willing to take that commission, though he never admitted it outright. Rachel didn't feel that she could offer money to him; if she did and he took it, it would change everything. Men shouldn't take money from women like that. Then Rachel would wonder what difference it made, it was all right to help a friend in trouble; what difference did it make whether the friend was a man or a girl? But something always balked her when she tried to speak to Oliver about money, she didn't quite trust his want, it seemed, though she hated herself for suspecting it, a bit too histrionic.

"Everything seems to be going nowhere, nothing happens that makes sense," she thought unhappily. "I might as well have stayed in Rockboro with Bob Eddis. I've done nothing at all about the one thing I wanted most, nothing." She looked at the clock. She must go to an appointment made for her by Vinco, photographs for an automobile company, she would sit, smiling gaily, in a long red roadster with a young man model beside her at the wheel, also smiling gaily because (supposedly) with the least amount of gasoline and the greatest amount of ease they were passing the biggest grander higher-priced cars on the road. It bored Rachel to think of it.

CHAPTER VI

It turned out not to be a bore at all. The man model who sat beside her in the car was quite different from the usual Vinco brand. Rachel thought she had never seen him before but he told her she was mistaken. "I was there the first day you came," he said, "I've been hoping to see you again, but I'm not around very often. My name's Curt Elton. I know yours, you're Miss Vincent."

It reminded her a little of Bob Eddis, he was so offhand, yet personal in his look at her. He didn't seem like a model, he wasn't slick, he wasn't collegiate, he wasn't handsome and self-conscious. He was plain and rather gangling, with a square face and humorous intelligent eyes.

"This doesn't seem your game exactly," said Rachel, as he opened the door of the car for her.

"It isn't. But Louis Vinco comes from my home town in Ohio and used to go to school with my brother, and when anything comes along where I might possibly be used, he sends for me. He's a good scout, Louis."

They sat for awhile after this, following directions. Rachel tilted her profile and smiled her smiles. Curt Elton kept his hands on the wheel and gazed ahead intently yet confidently, like a good driver accustomed to spending.

When the long ordeal was over Curt Elton waited while Rachel took off the sport outfit sent for the picture and put on her street clothes. "Will you go somewhere and have a cup of tea with me?—or a cocktail, if you'd rather. I'm hungry and you ought to be. Or are you one of the ladies who never eat for fear of spoiling the perfect figure?"

"I don't know if I'm a lady, I haven't heard the word for so long. But I certainly do eat and I'd love some tea, for I'm dead."

Curt caught her arm as they passed an old-fashioned hotel. "Let's stop in here, then. This place has got muffins and nice deep-cushioned chairs and they have real India tea, which should always be drunk, Miss Vincent, without any fixings—no sugar, cream, lemon or whatnot."

"Oh, I must have a tiny pinch of whatnot!" said Rachel; and then, "I don't know what makes me so silly. It must be because I'm tired."

It was early, there were few people in the tearoom. The tea and muffins were delicious and at first Curt and Rachel ate in the pleasant greedy silence of hunger. But at his second muffin Curt paused and spoke. "I'm awfully glad you came out with me. It was kind. I was afraid to ask you, really, for fear you'd turn me down."

"Well," said Rachel, reflectively, "it's the first time I've been out with one of Vinco's young men."

Curt stopped her with a shout. "Hey, lay off, I'm not one of Vinco's young men, God forbid. I'm just a country newspaper boy taking a sabbatical year to learn about the big city. And Louis Vinco, the good-hearted guy, throws a piece of easy money in my way as often as he can, because he worries about my finances. I'm not really less than a plush suite and a private bath with valet attached is squalor. Needless to say, Louis didn't get those ideas in our native village."

"If you don't like being a model and don't need the money, why do you do it?" asked Rachel.

"But I just told you I'm a newspaper man and a comparative stranger in town. I want to know people, all kinds of people, and I want to do all kinds of things. This is my year off. When it's over I'm going back home and edit the paper my father edited." His face clouded for an instant, but he went on: "I'll have a lot of experience and a lot of pictures in my mind to keep forever. Like you, sitting there looking like, yes, you do—like Marlene Dietrich in 'Blue Angel.'"

"All legs and wispy ostrich feathers! Thanks! I can only hope you mean it kindly."

"Most girls would have screamed with joy." "Then you've tried it before, that line?"

"It's my test. I say to a girl, 'You look like Marlene Dietrich in 'Blue Angel' and watch how she reacts. Then I rate her, the count ranging from one-half of one per cent to ten."

"And what does the rating prove, Mr. Einstein?" "It doesn't prove anything. The trouble is, I try to do this modern young man patter and it never works out, the girl doesn't give the right answers."

"Now that's all settled," said Rachel, "suppose we skip it and talk sense. How long have you been here?"

"Since the first of June. I have a room in the Caledonia where O. Henry used to live. I get a new job every two weeks or so and between times I work for Vinco. It's all against his principles to take me on in this odd way, but he's intent on improving me and, do you know, sometimes I fear he's succeeding. I bought one of those deep blue shirts the other day from a swell haberdasher. I'm slipping."

but there's a stiff union. I may do some amateur window washing, or janitor work, and I want awfully to be an usher at Madison Square Garden."

"But what's it all about? Why do you try all this? Don't tell me you're writing a book."

"I might at that, a Worm's-Eye View of New York, maybe."

"It sounds grubby enough for a worm."

"Listen, my haughty beauty, in spite of the popular adage soap has very little to do with morals and none at all with interest of character, I know stacks of people who don't wash and don't shave much, but they're swell, nevertheless."

"But What's It All About?"

"Cleanliness combines very well with other attractions, though," Rachel maintained. "I must go on home," she continued, rising. "I'm going to get dinner tonight. Thanks ever so much for the tea. It's been fun."

She was surprised that she was speaking the truth, the half hour with Curt Elton had reduced her discontent and pushed her difficulties into an easier perspective.

She stopped on the way home and bought mushrooms and a bacon, limes and avocados, and as Pink was late she had dinner almost ready when the other came in. "Oh good!" exclaimed Pink. "I'm so glad we're going to have something here instead of going out. I'm so tired. I'm sunk. What elegant food!"

Just as they sat down to table there was a ring at their bell and a florist's box came for Rachel. She opened it to find snapdragons and African daisies, all pale rose and orange and yellow, with a card saying "You look like these, not like Marlene," but no name was signed.

So she had to tell Pink about Curt Elton and Pink said he seemed a good scout. "And a lot better than that so-and-so Oliver Land, if you ask me," she added.

"There's nothing the matter with Oliver except that he can't get a job," said Rachel, annoyed by Pink's cocksureness. "Since when have you got a down on people because of that?"

"This Elton lad seems to have no difficulty in finding jobs," replied Pink, calmly.

"That's different, he's quite an other type. Everyone's not so smart and up and coming as you are, Pink. We're not all made alike."

"And thank heaven for that. But I do like a man to earn his own living and not edge it."

Rachel had a grievance she had not aired. It would now make a reprisal.

LIBERTY H. D. C. MEETS

"Terracing and contouring the land must be done if the top soil is to last and be of any value to the farmer," Mrs. Walter Holt told the Liberty Home Demonstration Club Thursday, July 8, when it met in the home of Mrs. J. Frank Turner.

The program on "Soil Conservation" was discussed and pictures of eroded and conserved land were shown.

A report of the last council meeting was given by LaRue Curry, stating the plans for the annual encampment to be held at Edmondson Park August 4 and 5 and that Mrs. Alvie Williams from the Liberty Club is to be one of the eight ladies from the county to attend the A and M Short Course in August.

A refreshment plate was served by the hostess to nine members.

The next meeting will be with Miss Aline Harper, Friday, July 23 when the county agent, Miss Alice Glenn Young will give a demonstration on "Outdoor Games and Equipment."

Eudaly Announces Program For General Assembly Meetings of Short Course

College Station, July 14.—The program of the general assembly meetings of the Farmers' Short Course, which will be held at Texas A. and M. College on August 16-19, will feature several nationally known personages, according to E. R. Eudaly, extension dairyman and chairman of the joint program division.

The general assembly meetings for men and women, which will be held at Guion Hall each day between 10:50 and 11:50, will again be interspersed with group singing led by Walter Jenkins, song leader of Rotary International.

The principal speakers of the four sessions will be Dr. T. O. Walton, President of Texas A. and M. College, Monday; Hon. Hatton W. Sumners, Member of Congress, Tuesday; C. A. Cobb, Director, Southern Division, AAA, Wednesday; and Miss Barbara Van Heulen, Associate Extension Specialist of the Farm Credit Administration, on Thursday.

The chairmanship of the general assembly meetings will be held by H. H. Williamson, Director of the Extension Service, on Monday; by Dr. T. O. Walton, Tuesday; Miss Mildred Horton, State Agent and Vice Director of the Extension Service, Wednesday; and Jack Shelton, State Agent and Vice Director of the Extension Service, on Thursday.

Preliminary estimates place the number of men and women who will attend each of the general assembly meetings at between 2,000 and 2,500 Eudaly said.

Civil Service Examinations Announced

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the following positions:

Senior motion picture director, $3,800 a year; motion picture specialist, $3,200 a year; and junior motion picture specialist, $2,600 a year; Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, and Social Security Board. Assistant clerk-stenographer, $1,620 a year (for the blind, experienced in the use of Braille and Braille machines), Office of Education, Department of the Interior.

All States except Iowa, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Virginia and Washington, and the District of Columbia, have received less than their quota of appointments in the apportioned departmental service at Washington, D. C.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

CAMPAIGN BEGINS FOR FALL FAIR TO BE IN SEPTEMBER

The advertising committee for the Annual Fall Fair and Rodeo distributed stickers and placards this week beginning on their campaign for the celebration to be staged September 21, 22 and 23.

Good will tours will be sponsored by other committees of the Trades Day Association in about ten days and will continue through August.

WEST TEXAS 4-H CLUB ENROLLMENT INCREASES

County agricultural agents of the West Texas section are reporting an increase in enrollment in 4-H boys' clubs, as well as in the volume and quality of the demonstrations undertaken by the boys.

Three Schleicher county 4-H club boys plan to feed a total of 160 lambs for the spring livestock shows. The lambs, with the ewes, will have access to a sudan pasture.

In Brown county, 40 4-H club beef calves are on feed and are doing well; 52 club boys have entered the state cotton contest; and other boys are carrying on work in crops such as corn and grain sorghums. Livestock demonstrations with dairy heifers, sheep, and swine are also popular.

A 4-H club has been organized in Real county, which only recently employed a county agricultural agent. The club, the first in the county, is composed of 15 boys from the vicinity of Leaky, Mohar goat demonstrations will be the main line of work.

In Sutton county, 12 4-H club members will carry sheep breeding demonstrations, and 7 of the boys have already selected 214 yearling ewes for use in connection with the work. The ewes came from their fathers' flocks.

A permanent demonstration has been undertaken by Jimmie Rieck, Kimble county 4-H club boy, who has started a registered Hereford breeding herd. His foundation consists of the bred cow Myrtle Domino, with bull calf at side, and the bred heifer May Mischief.

Hollywood has no competition in one respect. It's still the town of permanent waves and temporary wives.

Guard Your Securities Investment

This is the second of a series of articles prepared by D. Leon Harp, Securities Commissioner of Texas, President of the National Association of Securities Commissioners and Director in the National Association for the Prevention of Fraud in the Sale of Securities. These articles will appear in the Santa Anna News from time to time as they are received from the office of the Commissioner at Austin.

In the previous article on financing through the issuance and sale of securities, the Securities Commissioner pointed out how such financing influences various articles of trade and how it affects the employment of millions of people. It was pointed out that about eighteen million Americans are owners and holders of securities. These eighteen million people are direct owners. As to how many of us are indirect owners of securities, no one can safely say. There are thirty-nine million owners of savings accounts in the banks of this country. Every bank that carries savings accounts invests a part of the money in these accounts in securities. You may not possess any form of paper classified as a security, but if you have a savings account in a bank, you are an indirect investor in securities. There are sixty-three million owners of life insurance policies in this country. All insurance companies that write such policies have invested a part of their funds in securities. If you add the eighteen million direct owners of securities, the thirty-nine million owners of savings accounts and the sixty-three million owners of insurance policies, you will have a total of one hundred and twenty million direct and indirect owners of stocks, bonds and other classes of securities. We have not accounted for the millions who have invested funds with building and loan associations, who also may be classed as indirect owners of securities. We do not claim that there are actually that many direct and indirect owners, as one and the same person may own stocks or bonds bought direct and at the same time have a savings account or an insurance policy or both. Anyone can readily see how our daily lives are shaped by an economic system thus involved. Securities trading affects us all whether we can claim as our own anything more than the clothes we wear, the food we eat and the air we breathe. As I pointed out recently in an address by your Commissioner before the American Investment Bankers Association, the value of securities affects the corner grocer, the railroad executive, the coal miner and the sheep herder. The price of groceries, transportation, coal and wool are affected by major securities adjustments. If you are one of those who observed lines of depositors standing all day and far into the night before banks in many large American cities after the stock market crash in 1929 or saw hundreds of your fellow humans standing ragged and hungry in the bread and soup lines, you know that a debacle in the market price of securities affects the whole of the people.

I have been asked more than once about the total value of outstanding securities owned by the people of this country. This question I am unable to answer. On January 1, 1936, the actual market value of stock issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange alone was about forty-seven billion dollars. The value on the same date of bonds traded in on the New York Exchange was about forty billion dollars, a total of eighty-seven billion dollars. You should remember that this is the value of securities listed or traded in on one stock exchange. Because our economic life is so greatly involved by this plan of financing, it is surprising that state and national governments waited so long to pass laws to control the issuance and sale of securities. Recently, securities acts have been passed by nearly all of the states and by the Federal Government for the protection of the investing public and the fair and honest dealers in securities. Much of this legislation is in an experimental stage, yet much is being done to correct the evils that have existed throughout many years. We are on our way to a higher ground of understanding, and it is the hope of all Securities Commissioners that sensible and practical uniform state laws will be the outgrowth of past experience.

It is unlawful in Texas for unlicensed dealers and salesmen to sell stocks, bonds, oil and gas leases and other classes of securities. The investor should help the State of Texas protect him against fraud by refusing to deal with unlicensed salesmen and dealers. Each licensed salesman and dealer carries with him an identification card with the Seal of the State of Texas and the signature of the Securities Commissioner thereon.

Lewis Guthrie and Three Buffalo Students Get Certificates of Merit for Area IV

A. J. Spangler, director of the department of agriculture at John Tarleton College, announced Wednesday that certificates of merit for agricultural achievements have been awarded from Texas Area IV headquarters to four boys from near Santa Anna. Lewis Miles Guthrie of Santa Anna received an award for pork production. J. D. Cooper, Leon Earles, and Horace Roberts of Buffalo received certificates for rope work. Since last June, almost 2000 certificates of merit have been issued from Area IV headquarters at John Tarleton College to Future Farmers of America in the area, according to Director Spangler, who is supervisor of Area IV.

"The certificates of merit are degree requirements in F. F. A.," Mr. Spangler explains. "In order to be a Future Farmer, a boy must earn one certificate, and before he can be a Lone Star Farmer, he has to earn two more."

The degrees are awarded for excellence in 43 types of projects through which F. F. A. trains boys for agricultural leadership.

MRS. JEANETTE HENSLEY PRESIDES AT CONVENTION

Mrs. Jeanette Hensley of Santa Anna, State organizer of the Pythian Sunshine Girls, will preside at the convention to be held Friday, the benefit of the councils at Dallas, Fort Worth, Tyler, Houston and El Paso. The program for the day will be high lighted by a luncheon in the Oak Cliff Auditorium of the Dallas Power & Light Company for which occasion the grand officers of the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters will be present. General chairman of the convention is Mrs. H. E. Rockett, of Dallas.

AUGUST 1 DEADLINE FOR SCHOOL TRANSFERS

All school transfers for the 1937-38 term should be made before August 1, according to an announcement made by the county school superintendent, J. L. Beard. The month of July is set aside for making all transfers according to state law. Last year there were more than 700 students to transfer from one school district to another in this county or into another county. This year, so far, few transfers have been made.

RETHA DOUGLAS PRACTICE TEACHES IN DENTON SCHOOL

Denton, July 22.—Miss Retha Douglas of Santa Anna recently completed a summer term as a teacher in the Denton Public School system. Practical teaching under a supervisor was a part of her course in Vocational Home Economics at Texas State College for Women.

Miss Douglas, who is planning to obtain a state teaching certificate, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kit C. Douglas. She is now a member of the senior class.

491 IN COLEMAN COUNTY GRANTED PENSIONS IN JUNE

Old age pension checks for June representing funds from both the state and federal governments, were received in Coleman county by 491 men and women past 65. The total amount distributed among those eligible for pensions was $7,012, according to a report which has been received by Mrs. Ora West, county clerk. Amounts of individual checks ranged from $5 to $20. July checks were mailed out from Austin last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McGlothling and son Leslie Hal, and Mrs. E. E. Pittard spent last week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pittard of Big Spring.

Mrs. I. R. Heckard and children of Canton, Kansas visited last week with her sisters, Mrs. Sherman Gehrett and Mrs. Minnie B. Pinney. Upon her return home, she was accompanied by Mrs. Pinney who will visit her father and then go on to Kansas City for a visit. Mrs. Pinney will meet Mrs. Gehrett in Dallas about August 3 to attend the fall market.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Emmett Smith Honored at Shower

Mrs. E. W. Gober, assisted by Mrs. Lovel Richardson, entertained Thursday afternoon, July 15 with a miscellaneous shower at the Gober home honoring Mrs. Emmett Smith, who before her recent marriage, was Miss Vada Horner.

The color scheme of green and yellow was carried out in the house decorations of cut flowers and pot plants and in the decorations of the bride's chair.

On arrival, the guests registered in a beautiful hand-made book, which was tied with green tulle.

Contests entitled "Flower Romance" and "Household Articles" were enjoyed and the prizes, which were a vase and a bouquet of flowers were presented to the bride by the winners.

Mrs. Dennis Smith gave a reading, "A Newspaper Article on the Horner-Smith Wedding," and Miss Valma Stricklan read "How to Preserve a Husband."

Little James Gale Smith, nephew of the bride, entered the room dressed as a M-S Petroleum truck driver, pulling a miniature M-S Petroleum truck loaded with gifts. After having made an appropriate bow, he presented his cap and the gifts to the honoree.

After the many attractive gifts had been opened and admired, Mrs. Smith expressed her thanks.

Refreshments, which consisted of pineapple and orange punch and green and yellow heart shaped cakes were served. Plate favors were green and yellow mints tied in green ribbon.

Miss Lena Boyd Guest Speaker at Brownwood Courtesy

Miss Lena Boyd, missionary to India from the local Presbyterian church, was guest of honor last Tuesday, July 13 at a breakfast in Brownwood at the home of Mrs. L. M. Wood. The affair was sponsored by the Lena Boyd Auxiliary of the Austin Avenue Presbyterian Church, which was named several years ago for the honoree.

Thirty six women, members and guests of the auxiliary, were present to enjoy the breakfast which was served in the garden of Mrs. Wood's home.

The menu including fruit cocktail, creamed chicken on toast, hot rolls, butter, jelly and coffee was served at nine tables arranged around the garden.

Immediately following the breakfast Mrs. G. C. Skinner, a former classmate of Miss Boyd, introduced the missionary as the guest speaker. Miss Boyd spoke in an unusually interesting manner concerning her work in general in India. She has been a missionary from the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church for a period of twenty-five years and was able to tell of many things which included not only her work as a missionary but the lives of the people of India.

Those who attended this lovely mid-summer affair were Messdames E. E. Kirkpatrick, Ben H. Moore, J. Arthur Bryant, Mamie Wagner, Ben A. Wyatt, T. A. Hart, Nora Eddings, Jim McCulley, S. P. Tittle, E. O. Kerr, G. W. Adams, Kenneth Adams, G. C. Skinner, W. E. Becker, Bill Snyder, Clifton Minyard, S. C. Looney, B. A. Fowler, Tom Fowler of Llano, Don Ferris, G. W. Hardy, Virgie Williamson, Henry Milholland, Bart Milholland, John McCulley, L. W. Whitfield, John Plexco, Mrs. Binnion of Sweetwater, Hugh Davis, Jas. L. White, Hugh Orton and Misses Grace Perkins, Nannie Marie Pearson and Miss Lena Boyd, honoree.

At 8 o'clock Monday evening the Business and Professional Women's group held its regular business meeting with Miss Nannie Marie Pearson.

A large representation was present and Miss Boyd spoke again concerning the women of India and their home rights. During the social hour which followed, Miss Pearson, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Whitfield, served a delicious refreshment course.

Games and singing were enjoyed throughout the evening. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to approximately 125 guests.

Leroy Payne and J. H. Stephens of Pecos visited relatives in the News office Tuesday while passing through Santa Anna on the homeward trip from Fort Worth. Mr. Payne is a nephew of Mrs. J. J. Gregg.

the property it would not have cleared the taxes and of course the purchaser would not consider the deal until back taxes were paid. But taxes are still accumulating faster than the property is, or can enhance in value.

"Taxes," Mr. Williamson said, "are not like a grocery bill. The grocery bill may or may not be secured. But there is a constitutional lien on property for taxes and any taxing unit at any time can foreclose the lien."

"Some heirs to property in Santa Anna," Mr. Williamson said, "will inherit it so encumbered by taxes that they will have no equity whatever in the property. The people ought to get together, think over and consider the matter thoroughly, and act."

"The main thing I want the people to realize," Mr. Williamson said, "is that it is the problem of the people and not the problem of the city commission and those trying to collect the delinquent taxes. The city is well protected now and hereafter. There is no way for the city, or any other taxing unit to lose. If loss there is it will be the owner, of the property who will suffer."

Assistants Named By Rev. Lightfoot for Plainview Meeting

Talmadge Turner, pianist, and Miss Rosalie Niell, song leader, have been named by Rev. Augustus Lightfoot as his assistants in the revival to be conducted at the Plainview community beginning August 8. The evangelistic revival will be the first to be held by Rev. Lightfoot since he obtained his license to preach from the local Baptist Church. He has preached in practically every Baptist church in this community, however, and has had conversions in almost every church. At the Calvary Church recently he had 15 reconsecrations and one conversion.

Masked Serenade Entertains Young People of Eighties

(By Miss Luella Chambers)
CHAPTER V
Masked Serenade

We did not have a telephone system in our town and when we wanted to go out on a lark we struck out and gathered our bunch.

One night I heard people talking in my front yard and discovered a crowd of masked people and they said, "Get on your false face and come on."

Just as we were ready to start two strange young men called papa and told him for us not to go by the depot as some boys had doctored the bridge over the mud hole so we would fall in and spoil our Sunday dresses. These two young men followed us a long time to see that we had no trouble. They were cowboys from the river.

Each lady had an escort, little second grade boys, Raymond Hubert was one and several of his size but no grown men. We went from house to house singing "Old Folks At Home" and other songs.

Golden Slippers!
Oh, my golden slippers am laid away,
Kase I don't expect to wear 'em till my weddin' day,
And my long-tailed coat dat I loved so well,

I will wear up in de charlot in de morn;
And my long white robe dat I bought last June,
I'm gwine to git changed, kase it fits too soon,

And de old gray horse dat I used to drive,
I will hitch him to de charlot in de morn.

Chorus
The boat goes sailing round the bend,
Good bye my lover, good bye
The old red rooster jumped over the fence
Good bye my lover good bye.

The boys would introduce the ladies as "Jane Step and fetch it," Margery Daw, Sally of our Alley, etc. We wore our masks all the way.
