VISIT TO PAPER MAKING MILL

Your editor was a guest of Carpenter Paper Company of Fort Worth and the Champion Papers Inc., of Pasadena, Texas, on Friday and Saturday of last week, and had the pleasure of a conducted tour through a paper making plant. It was a very enjoyable trip and a very appreciated trip and tour. We have been handling paper furnished through Carpenter Paper Company most of our life, and this was our first real opportunity to see paper made from the beginning to the completed product.

During the two days we rode a bus about 900 miles and walked not quite that far.

Thirty-two west Texas newspapermen, printers and office supply owners departed Brownwood early Friday and arrived at the Pasadena Mill at 2:30 p. m. First we were shown the logs consisting of pine, sweet gum and cotton wood, from which the paper was being made. We saw how the bark was removed from the logs, then how they were chopped into very small pieces and fed into large cooking vats where the wood is cooked for about 2 1/2 hours until it is a pulp stage. We watched the pulp go through five stages of washing, then five stages of bleaching to a point where it was completely white. The pulp then goes into storage vats where it is transferred into the machines that actually make the paper. When it goes into the paper making machines the necessary chemicals and other products are added to it quicker than the eye can see. Then the combination of pulp and chemicals is fed into large rolling machines that carry the paper through several hundred feet and during this process many changes take place before it comes out as the finished product.

We saw one machine that runs 24 hours a day and makes only one kind of paper, which is the paper Life Magazine is printed on. This one machine makes more than 250,000 tons a year and this is about one-fifth of the paper used by the magazine in a year. We also saw a machine making the cardboard for milk cartons and another machine making the same type paper the white pages of your telephone directory is printed on.

The paper comes off the machines in one long sheet and is 36 feet wide. It is rolled up on huge steel rollers, then is sent to other areas in the plant where it is cut up into the various sizes to send to the distributors.

All the paper is machine inspected before being wrapped. If there is a question as to whether the machine inspection is complete, the paper is then inspected by hand, sheet by sheet being sent to the distributors.

In this particular plant, it takes about 24 hours from the time the logs are started through the mill until they come out as the finished product.

THE CLEAN HOUSE SELDOM BURNS

With the onset of cold weather, the enclosed porch had become a catch-all for every kind of clutter. So there was plenty of fuel for the midnight fire to feed on. By the time, the sound of breaking glass aroused the parents, flames had broken through to the kitchen, and deadly smoke and heat were pouring upstairs into bedrooms. Three small children didn't make it to safety.

The basement was no place for the four-year-old twins to be playing, and certainly matches shouldn't have been their playthings. But nothing happened until they pulled open the door of a storage closet, overflowing with old boxes, cleaning rags and other odds and ends. When the fire was out, the two boys were found in the blackened rubble of the closet.

The young wife shouldn't have been smoking as she rummaged for something stored in the attic, but everything seemed all right when she left. Hours later a smoldering stack of newspapers and magazines burst into flame. The wife was smart this time. Smelling smoke, she picked up her baby and ran. No lives were lost, but the house was a sorry mess and most of the not-yet-paid-for furniture was hauled to the dump.

Thousands of records like these in the files of the National Fire Protection Association make one fact crystal clear:

Rubbish and clutter is a breeding place for fire. Five times an hour, 128 times a day, an American home is destroyed or damaged by fire starting in rubbish.

Get the clean-up urge now.

Names of candidates were drawn and the ballot prepared at two meetings, on March 19 and 26, as prescribed by law. Both meetings were in the home of Robert L. Jones of Coleman, chairman of Precinct 1.

The precinct conventions will be held at the same places as the elections. Coleman West Ward will be in the office of Mrs. J. A. B. Miller, Coleman East Ward in the W. D. Allen building, and Santa Anna in the Santa Anna City Library. The Santa Anna precinct convention will be at 2:00 p. m., the Coleman East Ward at 3:00 p. m. and Coleman West Ward at 4:00 p. m., all on May 5th.

The county convention will be in the office of Mrs. J. A. B. Miller at 3:00 p. m. on May 12th.

The ballot committee includes Jones, James Hargett, chairman of Precinct 4, Mrs. Helen Goodloe, Precinct 2 chairman, Mrs. Eldon Knox, vice-chairman, and Mrs. C. D. Bruce, Coleman County Chairman.

The voters in any voting box other than the three named who may wish to have a primary election on May 5 should get in touch with a member of the committee, who will arrange for such election to be held.

Farm Bureau Candidate Rally Held March 22

A "Measure The Candidate" rally was held in the Recreation Building at the Coleman Rodeo Grounds Thursday night of last week, giving county residents the opportunity to meet and hear each candidate for the Legislature express their views on various subjects.

Candidates present were Mrs. David Kothmann, Ben Barnes, Dorsey B. Hardeman and Edwin S. Mayer Jr.

The meeting opened with the singing of one verse of "America." B. J. Gist of Abilene, District Director of District Seven, Texas Farm Bureau, was moderator for the program. He was assisted by Ed Cumble of Bronte, area fieldman for District Seven.

Governed by a strict set of rules, each candidate was given five minutes to outline their personal qualifications. The moderator then directed questions to each candidate. At the close of the meeting each candidate was given two minutes for a closing statement. Questions concerned the positions of each candidate on issues of interest in agriculture.

Enzy Brown, president of the Coleman County Farm Bureau, said, "The Farm Bureau does not endorse any candidate for any public office. We hope that as a result of the meeting our members as well as other voters will now be in a better position to cast their ballots intelligently in the coming elections."

The meeting closed with the group singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

National FHA Week - April 1-7

By Earla Buse
Public Relations Officer

Future Homemakers of America is a national organization of pupils who study homemaking in junior and senior high schools. We work together for better and happier home life for everyone. We think that helping to make happy homes, now and in the future, is the most important thing that youth can do for a democracy.

The program in Texas is sponsored by the Home and Family Life Education Division, Vocational Education, of the State Department of Education. Home-making teachers in the high schools serve as sponsors of local FHA chapters.

The motto is, "Toward New Horizons." This motto is a challenge. It reminds members that their contributions to home life today will influence the kinds of homes they have tomorrow; that the family life of members will influence the community and the world.

The eight-sided emblem symbolizes the significant purpose of the organization.

The name of the organization and the motto appears around the border. In the center is a house which represents a home where there is truth, love, security and faith. This home is supported by two hands, suggesting that the future homes of America are in the hands of its youth. The hand on the right represents the husband, father or brother in the home; the left hand represents the wife, mother or sister. Both hands work together to foster and support strong homes today and provide a firm foundation for homes tomorrow.

The flower is the red rose. The rose, due to its beauty, has always been a favorite flower. It is found in almost every country of the northern hemisphere. It represents the search of Future Homemakers of America for beauty in everyday living.

The colors are red and white. Red, an intense color, suggests strength. White is recognized as the symbol of sincerity. These colors inspire Future Homemakers of America with the courage and determination to succeed.

The Santa Anna Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, along with many other chapters across the nation, will be observing National FHA Week April 1-7.

On Sunday, each girl is urged to attend the church of their choice. Monday will be the publicity and meeting day of the chapter. At our regular meeting, the freshmen will present their annual style show. Tuesday will be Color Day. All girls will wear red and white, the chapter's colors. Wednesday will be Teacher Appreciation Day. Each teacher will receive a red rose and coffee will be served to them throughout the day. Thursday, on Slave Day, the girls will be auctioned, off to the boys and they will carry the boys books all day and perform other jobs. Friday, the girls will clean up the school grounds and their lockers. Saturday ends FHA Week with Mother Appreciation Day. Each girl will help her mother as much as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Davis of Abilene spent the weekend with his father and sister, Mark Davis and Patricia.

Straight Talk

by Tom Anderson

One of the favorite tricks of the leftists is to accuse Conservatives of being reactionary, of being against all change. I am FOR change. I believe there is a better way to do everything and that we should constantly try to find the better way. But I do not believe in change for change's sake. Like the fellow who decided, just for a change, that he would start parting his hair crossways, from ear to ear.

"Well, how do you like your new hair part?" one of his few remaining friends inquired. "It's all right, except for one thing: People keep whispering into my nose!"

Now is the time for a change in our foreign trade policy.

Within five years Europe will probably have a single mass "Common Market," consisting of 10 countries and almost 250 million people. A combined economic weight exceeding that of the Soviet Union and rivaling that of the United States. This getting-together of Europe can be one of the most historic get-togethers since Adam and Eve.

Nations wishing to join the Common Market have been informed that conformity to the organization's political philosophy is "absolutely necessary." Thus the Common Market is seen by some as not merely a union for trade but a political union, too. Possibly the first step of a United States of Europe. "Atlantic Unionist" proponents in this country like Stevenson, Fulbright and Herter would have us join the Common Market as a first step to political union—a common citizenship, common money, common army, common everything that we have more of and they have less of—with the "Atlantic Community."

Karl Marx was also a "free trader," for those nations he wanted to enslave. And Lenin said, "A single world economic system is essential for the final triumph of Socialism."

The answer to Common Market is not to join, but to enjoin our own government from discriminatory government regulations, to enjoin unions from monopolistic, illegal, racketeering practices. Our goal should be not to join the Common Market but to compete with it. The only way we can compete agriculturally and industrially is through lower production costs. U. S. tariffs are already lower than tariffs of major countries with which we trade.

We have been priced out of world markets by our own government through confiscatory taxation, by government-sponsored union racketeering and more and more pay for less and less work; by government exportation of the capital, know-how, equipment, machinery and finished products to friend and enemy competitors, world without end; by deliberate inflation of currency, wages, budgets, debts and of the heads of union leaders.

The seven million tons of steel we are importing into this country yearly costs American steel workers 56,000 jobs a year. That's for raw steel. Figured in terms of finished products, we are displacing millions of American jobs.

In the past 10 years, more American textile plants (325,000 jobs) have been put out of business—largely by our own government. In the past five years, more than 3,000 industries with 10,000 installations moved out of the United States. Five million American jobs have thus been exported. We have been shipping to our customers abroad production from one of every 6 acres harvested in the United States. But one-half of this was under P. L. 480, and other assorted subsidy and give-away government programs.

Are we really talking about increased trade or increased dumping? Our foreign dumping programs have been a self-defeating treadmill for continuing over-production, bringing formal complaints from many nations.

Increasing government subsidies and modern methods are turning Western Europe into a producer of farm surpluses. The Common Market countries will be self-sufficient in practically every farm commodity except beef within three years, it's predicted. So why should they lower their tariffs and allow us to dump more of our surpluses? They'll buy less, not more; become exporters, not importers.

President Kennedy's so-called trade plan would:

1. Wipe out our tariffs on many manufactured goods.
2. Slash all other duties up to 50 percent.
3. Provide federal subsidies instead of tariff protection for American farmers, businesses and workers hurt by imports. Presumably, these businesses and workers could be Republicans as well as Democrats, as long as their "history," allotments, and sign-up conformed to committee requirements. So now we'll have land in soil banks and park banks, business in ghost-town banks, and excess workers in welfare banks. Every damaged U. S. business and every displaced U. S. worker, it is proposed, will get government relief. From what government? Will WE

No Quarantined Premises In 'Worm Eradication Program

Austin — Individual premises on which screwworms are found will not be quarantined, advises Dr. R. G. Garrett, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission in Austin.

State and federal animal health authorities must have reports on all suspected screwworm infestations to conduct the eradication program properly. Livestock owners who make such reports will get the earlier and most thorough relief, Dr. Garrett said.

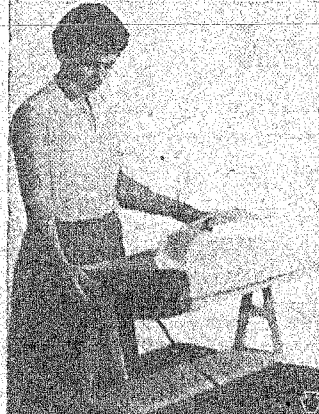

A screwworm transport patrol line has been established by the Commission across Texas from Del Rio generally east to Columbus and south through El Campo and Bay City of the Gulf of Mexico. This action was taken to contain known infestations in the southern part of the State, where their presence has been confirmed, and to prevent their transportation by truck or rail to the free area north and east of the patrol line.

Dr. Garrett requests that all animal handlers be especially watchful for animal wounds. He suggests that, where possible, such wounds be treated immediately with screwworm remedies and fly repellents so they will not become infested.

If worms are found in animal wounds, their identity should be established as quickly as possible, Dr. Garrett said. Free mailing kits may be obtained from county agricultural agents, livestock inspectors and others. Samples of the worms found will go to Screwworm Identification, ADE-USDA, Box 969, Mission, Texas. Identity of the worms will be made known to the owner immediately.

About Your Health

Austin — The teeth of Americans contain at least one billion cavities, each a potential source of toothache, dental authorities now estimate. They say tooth decay is so widespread that it involves 95 of every 100 persons and is still increasing.

A virtually incurable chronic disease which must be prevented if it is to be conquered at all, tooth decay is a particular nemesis of elementary school-age youngsters although all ages are vulnerable to its ravaging pain.

Children are said to develop cavities at about the same ratio as do adults — approximately one per child per year. But scholarly surveys show that whereas one-third of the adult need for filling is being met, only one-fifth of the cavities in children's teeth are being repaired.

The reason, Texas Health Department dental officials speculate, is that so many parents still cling to the totally false notion that so-called "baby teeth" are unimportant because they are temporary. The frequent result is that good dental health for children is still a relatively scarce commodity.

In an attempt to reverse the trend toward almost universally poor dental health among youngsters — particularly in underprivileged homes — the dental division of the Texas State Department of Health gives financial and educational support to dental clinics in selected local health departments around the State.

The addition of fluoride in carefully controlled amounts of public water supplies is known by dental researchers to be an efficient deterrent to dental decay. The State Board of Health at a recent meeting reaffirmed its belief that fluoridation is safe and effective and recommended that local communities consider the practice wherever applicable and practicable.

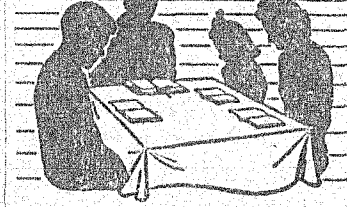

There is one positive step all parents can take to avoid the fate of toothlessness among their children, dental scientists agree. It's a simple step, requiring only that youngsters be taken to a dentist for tooth and gum inspection before being enrolled in school each fall.

Before the visit is over, the dentist will have tutored the youngster in good dental hygiene at home, hoping the habits will take hold and last into adulthood.

When enough children have received such instruction, and make it a part of their daily lives, the blight of tooth decay may slowly fade from the American scene. (A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

Read Luke 22:39-46.

Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done. (Luke 22:42.)

During my sister's illness, I learned the importance of obedience. When she was in bed, she obeyed the doctor's orders completely. She did not refuse the shots. She ate only the food the doctor recommended, though she did not care for it.

Almighty God is a spiritual doctor for us. He created us and knows everything about us, what is wrong with us, and what we are capable of doing if we yield our lives to Him. Sometimes the things He asks of us seem almost impossible, yet we must obey God even if it puts us in very hard circumstances. Jesus Himself was willing to suffer death that the world might be saved.

When we surrender our wills to God and obey His commands we find He uses us in helping many others. At the same time He will put right whatever may be wrong in our own lives.

PRAYER
O Father, we thank Thee that Christ was willing to give Himself on the cross for our sins, that we might be reconciled to Thee. Help us this day to say, "Not my will, but thine," and to obey Thy commands as they are revealed to us. We ask this in the name of Christ our Lord. Amen.

Stricter discipline may be the lot of American children in the immediate future, according to a study of women's magazines made at Stanford University. Advocacy of discipline runs in cycles, the scientists says, and is reflected in the magazine articles on child rearing. Rigid control of offspring was extremely popular (with parents) in 1892, the study shows, even more so in 1910, a little less in 1925, much less in 1935 and least of all in 1950. If the magazines are an accurate barometer, the rod may be in fashion again.

It's Time For ... EYE CARE

Dr. Newton K. Wesley

Eye Care for Children:

One of the most common misconceptions about eye care is that which recommends that a child should wait until school age before having an eye examination. Nothing could be further from the truth.

A child's eyes should be examined as soon as possible after birth. It is not necessary to talk to a patient when examining their eyes. A qualified eye doctor can detect eye deficiencies through the use of instruments. Such early examinations might disclose serious defects which could be corrected long before the child starts school.

This, of course, is the parent's responsibility. A child does not know how well he should see. If he is born with poor vision, he may not complain. He just does not know better. He thinks he's seeing as well as anyone. It never occurs to him that he is not—or that he could see better.

A child's eyes grow as he grows. He may have normal vision one year and need glasses the next. That is why the National Eye Research Foundation recommends that children should have their eyes examined at least once every six months, starting at an early age.

Here are a few things to watch for in your children's viewing habits. Each is a sign of eye trouble: Attempts to brush away blur; blinks more than usual; frequent rubbing of the eyes; excessive squinting; overly sensitive to light; and excessive frowning when reading.

THE AMERICAN WAY

How To Kill A Free Press

By Raymond C. Baker

(Editor's note: Guest columnist Raymond C. Baker is a former newspaperman who knows what skyrocketing costs are doing to America's free press.)

The United States postal service, largest single revenue-producing enterprise in the world, is only slightly more modern than the extinct buggy whip factory and far behind the old model-T Ford in research and development.

As strange as this may seem in a nation that leads all others in technological development, the postal system is hardly as modern as the average mom'n pop grocery store, to say nothing of the up-to-date super market.

During the past 12 years, the post office has spent about 33 cents—repeat, 33 cents—out of every $100 of appropriation for research, development and mechanization. This compares with an average for all industry of $3 out of every $100 of budget for research and development, exclusive of mechanization, which is considered capital investment. Some industries, such as chemicals and electronics, spend much more for research.

Postmaster General Day is back this year asking Congress for a $4.5 billion budget. But he is ear-marking only $11.6 million of this fantastic sum for research and development and another $27 million for mechanization, a pittance obviously much too leisurely to achieve savings and reduce expenditures and postal rates.

Instead of a large scale modernization program, the Postmaster General is back before Congress with the hardy perennial—increased rates to make up an $850 million gap between receipts and expenditures. He seeks a one-cent increase on first class mail which, in his own words, is still a bargain at five cents. Since business accounts for about 75 percent of all first class mail, this increase would cost the average family only about one-half cent a day.

But where increases strike hardest are against weekly and daily newspapers and magazines. Publishers already have had to take an 89 percent increase in postage rates since 1951, and this would add another 54 percent rise on present rates. First class mail has risen only 3 1/2 percent in the same period.

Many weeklies, dailies and magazines could not take such an onerous hike. It would mean extinction for them, even though they have been studious in improving operations to cut costs at every corner. A postal increase, however, is nothing publishers can control.

In spite of the fact that many publications are just about breaking even, the post office insists that they can take a sizeable increase in postal rates without being hurt.

Senator Olin Johnson of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, and members of his committee, are conducting a broad inquiry on postal rates and have made it clear that his committee would adjust rates on a basis that is "equitable, sound and defensible."

Committee members have made it apparent that they hold a high regard for the nation's press. But from testimony before the committee, it is questionable whether the postal establishment has the same regard for the many important services the press renders the reading public and the government. One official argued that second class rates should be increased because publishers are constantly reaching out for greater circulation to increase advertising revenues and, consequently, are placing a greater burden on the postal establishment.

Why the post office would even think of curtailing circulation must have been something of a mystery to the Senators on the committee. Each knows, just as government economists and tax experts know, that newspaper and magazine advertising not only contributes measurably to a better way of life, but helps assure a healthy economic climate for the nation.

Everyone, including you, the reader, has a stake in the postal bill, H. R. 7927, because it can mean the end of at least part of America's free press.

Your senators are interested in your opinion. So let them know how you feel about your favorite publications.

F.H.A. - A Golden Opportunity

By Sandra Davis

I have been a member of the Future Homemakers of America for the past two years. During those years, F.H.A. has helped me a great deal more than I could ever repay.

When I first joined F.H.A., my main reason was "everybody else is." But after a short time of active participation, I realized I couldn't quit even if I wanted to. I was having too much fun!

F.H.A. offers priceless opportunities for personal development. A girl cannot remain very shy for long when she is with another girl who is having a good time. And certainly at F.H.A. meetings, girls always have a good time.

But the chapter is certainly not something to be taken lightly. There are certain requirements to be passed before joining, and after joining, there is always something stirring. Various committees, representing the chapter at Area and State meetings, or being an officer—any of these are guaranteed to keep a girl busy.

Last but not least is the privilege of working toward a degree.

There are three degrees — The Junior Degree, the Chapter Degree, and the State Degree. The first two are awarded by the chapter and the latter is conferred by a State Board. I hold the Junior Degree and have turned in my Chapter Degree. I plan to begin work on my State Degree soon.

These Degrees that I have worked on have made me realize that anything worth doing is going to be hard, but that it can be done. And a lot of fun goes with it.

I believe every high school girl should belong to an F.H.A. chapter. The opportunities offered by such an organization should not be wasted. And what girls learn in F.H.A. are used the rest of their lives. And after all, where else can you learn how to live a good life and have fun, too?

Medical Self-Help To Be Taught In 8 Texas Communities

Eight Texas communities — Austin, Dallas, Post-Garza County, San Angelo, Edinburg, Jefferson County, Nacogdoches, and Gonzales County — have been chosen to participate as pilot areas in a national study of the Medical Self-Help Training program, the Division of Defense and Disaster Relief of the Governor's Office announced recently.

The Medical Self-Help Training Program, sponsored by the Office of Civil Defense of the Department of Defense and the U. S. Public Health Service in cooperation with this Division and the State Health Department, is designed to provide the knowledge and to teach the skills whereby families will be able to take care of their own health needs, if necessary, in a national emergency.

The program is divided into 12 lessons to be taught in a 16-hour period. To make the conduct of a medical self-help training course as simple and as standardized as possible, a training kit has been produced which contains everything an instructor needs to teach a course — lesson booklets, color filmstrips, student handbooks, projector and screen. Lesson contents and materials were prepared and approved by the Council on National Security and Committee on Disaster Medical Care of the American Medical Association.

While the course will include the standard techniques of first aid; it will be predicated on the assumption that no doctor is or will be available for an indefinite period of time in a national emergency.

Local physicians, as well as members of allied medical and professional groups, will serve as instructors for the course. The training kit is designed so that it can be used to good advantage, however, by anyone with a high school education.

Lynwood M. Rhodes, Public Information Officer of this Division, and Phillip Gauss, Staff Assistant of the State Health Department, will visit each of the eight areas in Texas shortly to describe the program in detail to civil defense directors and community leaders.

Texas cities were chosen for the program by the State Medical Self-Help Planning Committee headed by James H. Garner, state coordinator of defense and of the Committee include officials of the State Health Department, Extension Service, Texas Education Agency, Texas Medical Association and the American National Red Cross.

Later this year, after an evaluation has been made nationally of the program on the basis of these pilot studies, it is anticipated that the program will be available for everyone.

In making the announcement, Garner pointed out that "in time of national disaster, American families must be prepared to be

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN.

Visiting Sick Friend

All of us occasionally pay a sick friend a visit. Next time you have occasion to visit a sick room — either in a home or in the hospital — keep in mind a few simple thoughts that will help to make your visit a welcome one.

Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, offers some pointers on visiting the sick:

Don't sweep into the sick room like a cyclone. Come in quietly, unobtrusively.

Don't be gloomy. Try to be cheerful, but don't be silly.

Don't be morbidly curious. If the patient wants to tell you about his operation, or to show you the stitches, let him offer to do so.

Don't be overly sympathetic. Real sympathy will show through, and words won't necessarily convey it.

Don't make the patient dissatisfied with the care he is receiving. If you disagree, keep it to yourself. You'll help most by making him feel satisfied with his care.

Don't offer your medical advice or opinion. The chances are your opinion is worth next to nothing. Leave medical advice to your friend's physician.

Don't make promises you can't keep. If you say you plan another visit, keep your promise.

Don't lie. Don't tell a sick man he looks marvelous, or that he'll be out in a few days. He knows better. And this doesn't mean you should tell a seriously ill person that he looks half dead. Be honest, but be discreet.

The best test for proper sick room conduct is to think back to your own experiences with visitors the last time you were ill. The sick persons gets lonesome and visits often are welcome, particularly during the period of convalescence. Visits are welcome, that is, if the visitors exercises a little common sense.

on their own for a period ranging from hours to weeks. If they are to survive, he said, "it will be mandatory for them to be self-sufficient, particularly in matters where life and health are involved. They may be totally deprived of a physician's services, due to isolation within their own homes or shelter, or to a patient demand so overwhelming that physicians will be unable to care for all the sick and injured."

"I believe the Medical Self-Help Training Program, carrying the endorsement that it does, fills a real need for our citizens, not only in a national emergency but equally as well in a peacetime disaster situation," he added.

County Bond Sales Reach $27,593 in Feb.

Savings Bonds sales in Coleman County totaled $27,593 during the month of February, according to Mr. Robert I. Bowen, Chairman of the Coleman County Savings Bonds Committee. "Total sales in the county for the first two months of 1962 were $53,474."

"In Texas, bond sales were $13,560,394 in February, and sales for the first two months of the year were $28,871,026. This figure represents 17.5% of the state's sales goal for 1962."

"At a recent meeting in Washington, Secretary of Treasury, Douglas Dillon, pointed out... Our ability to meet aggression in the world... will depend to a large extent upon the power of our economy. Buying bonds is a way in which every American can contribute directly to his nation's economic strength. For those who ask what they can do to help their country, here is a beginning step — an important step... The person who buys a bond is both thrifty and patriotic."

"These words spoken by the Secretary of Treasury re-emphasized the need for the purchase of Savings Bonds by all Americans", Mr. Bowen pointed out.

WORKING STUDENTS

Working students got word today on how to fulfill their tax obligations to Uncle Sam from Virgil W. Newman, Administrative Officer, Internal Revenue Service, Brownwood.

1. Students earning $600 or more during 1961 must file an income tax return, even if the student is claimed as a dependent by his parents.

2. Students with incomes of less than $600 during '61, and who have had income tax withheld, should file a return to get these taxes refunded. Usually, a Form 1040A will do the trick.

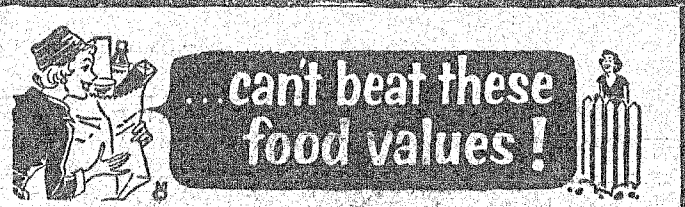

3. Single students filing a return should claim one exemption for himself, even if he is also claimed as a dependent by his parents.

4. In a community property state, such as Texas, the total combined income of husband and wife is considered one-half attributable to each. Thus, married persons, including students, may elect to file a joint return by combining their total incomes; or separate returns with each reporting exactly one-half of the combined income.

5. Married students filing joint returns and who are furnished their chief support by their parents CANNOT be claimed as dependents by their parents.

Usually, a telephone call to IRS will get answers to taxpayers' questions.

ROBERT PRITCHARD AT AMARILLO AIR BASE

Robert Pritchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pritchard of Post, formerly of Santa Anna, recently completed his basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base and is now stationed at Amarillo Air Force Base. He is taking training on the range bombers of the Strategic Air Command.

In one Yoakum, Texas, school room, the teacher is in one county while the pupils are in another.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that if private business should be operated like the government operates its business, private enterprise would be a total flop.

A good example of government stupidity in this respect is found in the money it is now spending on training people in Mississippi how to drive farm tractors, costing the taxpayers $482,000, while prohibiting competent Mexican bracero tractor drivers from driving tractors when working on farms under contract, in areas where there is an acute shortage of domestics who are able and willing to drive tractors.

The Mississippi boondoggle was authorized in the $400 million Depressed Areas bill that was pushed through Congress early last year. It became the first major welfare measure under the New Frontier.

If private business wasted money on such a scale it would be busted in a week.

AFL-CIO managed to get the bracero law amended last year to curb use of braceros who are capable of operating machines. And the Labor Department promptly ruled that simple tractor driving, under its interpretation, was prohibited.

The Labor Department also ruled that ranch work, such as lambing, shearing, etc., is not seasonal, and therefore no bracero can be contracted for longer than three months, if at all. This was an arbitrary and completely unjustified ruling.

The bracero law prohibits the contracting of Mexican workers in any county where domestic labor is available to do the work. It also requires that if Mexicans are contracted they must be paid the prevailing wage in that area. This is basic law which is considered sound and necessary.

But the Labor Department is not satisfied to abide by those provisions, and permit a workable program to function. We are reminded that Arthur Goldberg, Secretary of Labor, and Jerry Holliman, Assistant Secretary in charge of the bracero program, were formerly high officials in the AFL-CIO. And the CIO has always opposed any kind of a bracero program, regardless of need or justification.

Is it any wonder, then, that the present Labor Department is hostile toward farmers and ranchers in respect to the solution of their labor shortage problems?

WILBURN BIBLE TAKES PART IN GERMAN EXERCISES

Coppingen, Germany (AHTNC) — Army Sergeant First Class Wilburn L. Bible, whose wife, Mary Ellen, lives in Los Angeles, Calif., recently participated in a combined arms phase of the five-week 4th Armored Division field training exercises in the Grafenwohr-Hohenfels area of Germany.

The exercises stressed the ability of infantry, artillery, armor and logistical support units to work together under combat conditions. Training of this nature is designed to maintain a constant state of combat readiness essential to a modern Army deployed to maintain the defenses of the free world.

Bible, a mess sergeant in Battery C of the division's 14th Artillery in Furth, entered the Army in October 1942 and arrived overseas on this tour of duty last October.

The sergeant is a 1937 graduate of Rockwood High School. His father, Roy Bible, lives in Santa Anna.

March 31 Final
Date For Feed
Grain Signing

College Station — Corn and grain sorghum producers must decide soon whether or not they will participate in the 1962 Feed Grain program, reminds C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist. March 31 is the deadline date for declaring intent to comply and notice must be given in writing to the County ASCS before that date.

Bates points out that non-cooperators may plant all the corn or grain sorghum acreage they wish and the grain produced may be either fed or marketed. If it is sold it will bring only the market price since no government support price can be obtained. They can get support prices for oats, however, if this grain is placed under loan.

Space Capsules To Tour Nation In Savings Bonds Drive

Washington, D. C. — Three Project Mercury manned spacecraft — replicas of the famous "Freedom 7," "Liberty Bell," and "Friendship 7" which carried America's first astronauts into space — will tour the country for U. S. Savings Bonds during the Treasury's Freedom Bond Drive in May and June. The public will be invited to examine at close range the entire spacecraft, including the interior of the capsule.

The tour, which is made possible by the cooperation of McDonnell Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis and the Chevrolet Motor Division of General Motors Corporation, Detroit — two of the nation's best promoters of the Treasury's Payroll Savings Plan — was announced by William H. Neal, National Director, U. S. Savings Bonds Division.

The McDonnell Corporation, which designed and built the Mercury capsules for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is now making the three full-size replicas for the Freedom Bond Drive. The spacecraft will be lent to the Treasury Department for the bond drive period, and returned to the company after touring the nation.

Chevrolet will provide as a public service three trucks and trailers on which the spacecraft will be mounted, as well as drivers, display signs and public address systems.

The mounted space capsules will tour 150 major cities during the drive and serve as a nucleus around which community Freedom Bond promotions will take place. In addition to these cities where the capsules will have formal showings they will pass through hundreds of other cities and towns enroute — so that millions of citizens will be enabled to see them.

"It is appropriate that these spacecraft be exhibited in connection with the Freedom Savings Bonds Drive," Mr. Neal stated. "Our explorations in space over the years will require substantial sums of money. The extent and success of this program ultimately rests upon a strong and growing economy. The continued sale of Savings Bonds — and extra sales during this drive — is an essential ingredient of a healthy economy."

"Millions of Americans will be able to see and examine spacecraft similar to the ones that were manned by Alan Shepard, Gus Grissom and John Glenn in their pioneer flights — and which will be used by the other astronauts in future trials. At the same time, they will be receiving a timely reminder that, as our Drive slogan puts it, they can help keep freedom in their future through the regular purchase of Savings Bonds."

Expenses For The Care of Certain Dependents

Taxpayers paying for the care of their children or certain other dependents may be able to deduct a part or all of such cost on their federal income tax returns for 1961, Virgil W. Newman, Administrative Officer, Internal Revenue Service, Brownwood, said today.

He explained: "The dependent (or dependents) cared for must be a child under 12 years of age or a person who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself, regardless of age."

"A deduction is allowed for expenses paid for the care of one or more dependents of such care is to enable the taxpayer to be gainfully employed or actively seek gainful employment."

"This deduction may be claimed by men only if they are a widower, divorced, or legally separated under a court decree."

"Other requirements in claiming this deduction are: (1) Deductions must be itemized on Page 2 of the return, (2) This deduction may not exceed $600; (3) Married women must file a joint return with their husbands and reduce the maximum $600 deduction by the amount that their combined adjusted income exceeds $4,500. (This rule does not apply, however, if the husband is incapable of self-support due to mental or physical cause); (4) You may not deduct payments made to anyone you are entitled to claim as a dependent on your return; (5) If the person receiving the payments performs duties other than caring for your dependent, the total amount paid must be apportioned and only the part paid for such care may be considered for the deduction."

The IRS representative added that taxpayers claiming this deduction should attach a statement to their return, showing the amount paid and the person to whom it was paid. Form 2441 can be obtained from his office for this purpose.

Many questions about federal income tax returns can be answered by telephoning the local IRS office.

Fertilizer on Pasture And Meadows Paying Proposition

College Station — Each dollar spent for the proper kinds and amounts of fertilizer for use on pastures and meadows will return from 2-10 depending on the crop, moisture and management, says E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist.

A soil test is the best guide, he points out, for determining how much and what kind of fertilizer to use. He lists three major reasons for using fertilizers: to maintain and increase production; improve forage quality and make efficient use of water.

Trew explained that poor soils produce low quality forage but that the use of the proper fertilizers will increase the protein and mineral content of forage. Weed numbers are also reduced in lush growing pastures.

On irrigated Coastal Bermuda at College Station, Trew said 17.5 inches of water was required to produce a ton or forage when no nitrogen was applied. An application of 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre increased the yield from 2.5 to 4.5 tons an acre and only 10.5 inches of water per ton was required. When 400 pounds of nitrogen was used, the production climbed to 8.5 tons an acre with only 5.5 inches of water required to produce a ton of forage.

He suggests that fertilizers be applied to temporary pastures—summer or winter—at planting time followed by topdressings with nitrogen after the pastures are grazed down if more growth is desired and moisture is available.

For permanent grass pastures, he says to fertilize with nitrogen and phosphorus plus whatever else is needed in the spring about the time grass begins to grow. Nitrogen topdressings are recommended throughout the growing season — after each time the grass is grazed down, if more growth is needed and moisture is available. If the pasture contains a legume and the grower would like to favor it, Trew advises the use of phosphorus and other needed minerals in the fall before the legume starts growth and nitrogen during the summer as a topdressing.

On temporary pastures he suggests putting the fertilizer in bands 2 to 3 inches below the seed and the same distance to the side if possible at or before planting time. Nitrogen is applied as a topdressing. On permanent pastures with a good stand, the mixed fertilizer can be applied to the surface and the nitrogen topdressed.

Trew suggests a visit with the local county agent for more information and a copy of B-955, "Fertilizing Texas Pastures."

SHORTAGE OF NURSES

Nurse shortage in America is serious now and could become critical in the next five years, according to Chemetron Corporation, which conducted a survey among a thousand U. S. hospitals. At least 300 full-time professional nurses for each 100,000 population is the accepted standard; the survey shows the country to be about 100,000 nurses shy of this quota.

ALLEN AND SONS NAMED TO HERFORD MEMBERSHIP
Kansas City, Mo. — Orville S. Allen & Sons, Santa Anna, were recently named to membership in the American Hereford Association, the world's largest purebred registry organization, with headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri.

Eighty-nine Hereford breeders were placed on the Association's official roster during February. The Association maintains active accounts for more than 30,000 breeders of registered Herefords over the nation.

The Hereford Association during the last fiscal year recorded 475,846 purebred calves. The year's total recordings were the eighth highest on record and almost twice the combined registrations of other major beef breeds.

Walter Holt attended the County Judges and Commissioners Association convention, held in San Angelo last Monday.
