THE AMERICAN WAY

DEBTS, DEFICITS AND PROSPERITY

By Rosalie M. Gordon

(Editor's note: Rosalie M. Gordon is editor of All-American Books, All-American Book Digest and America's Future.)

With New Frontier spending growing always greater, and its deficits adding to an already fantastic government debt, even the New Frontiersmen have become disturbed — not at the spending and deficits, but at the worry displayed very wisely by the American people about what could happen to our economic system as the result of these reckless fiscal policies. Being New Frontiersmen, it does not occur to them that the soundest and simplest way to allay the people's fears about the future is to cut government spending to fit the taxes collected, to cut the taxes themselves if possible, and above all, end the deficits.

Instead, the New Frontiersmen and certain of their sycophants in the metropolitan press are trying to tell us on the idea that government deficits are a good thing, that it is actually bad for the government to have a surplus in order to reduce either taxes or part of our burdensome debt or both.

This brainwashing job about deficits got its send-off in a special story by a staff writer in the New York Times about six weeks ago. The gist of the story was that Western European countries have achieved their booming prosperity by "avoiding budget surpluses like the plague" and that Western European economists attribute their countries' prosperity to the fact that they avoid balancing their budgets and aim "aggressively at deficits when necessary."

The obvious purpose here was to leave the impression that we, too, could bring about rapid, prosperous growth not only by spending everything the government takes in, but more besides. But addily enough, this story did not name the economists in Europe who are supposed to be so taken with this deficit-building theory. And not a single Western European nation that is supposed to have achieved great prosperity by going into debt and not balancing its budgets was named either. Could this be because the nation that has reached the greatest rate of growth and prosperity in Western Europe is West Germany? West Germany, far from living beyond its governmental means during the years of its post-war recovery — attained through as free a capitalist economy as possible — has consistently and deliberately shown budget surpluses. Rather than "avoiding budget surpluses like the plague" the West German government has recognized that one of the worst plagues of a free, prosperous economy is continual government deficits and debt.

But the lofty minds of New Frontier planners cannot be bothered with facts like these. So a few weeks after this strangely contrived story appeared in the New York Times, President Kennedy let it be known at a press conference that his Council of Economic Advisors was studying economic policies in Europe with a view to finding a possible guide in improving our rate of growth and this would include so-called "budget policy differences." The question arises as to whether the President's Council of Economic Advisors is as capable of twisting the facts as the New York Times in order to convince us that deficits are a good thing. The chairman of the Council, be it remembered, is Professor Walter Heller who once tried to sell the West Germans on a socialist planned economy — which incidentally means endless deficits — and who appeared not long ago on a TV show where he implied that we should not worry too much about unbalanced budgets and government debt.

Perhaps the best way to protect yourself against this attempt to make you like these old and discredited theories of endless government debts and deficits is to apply them to yourself. Suppose you earn about $10,000 a year. But instead of living within that income and saving some of it, for a long time you have borrowed money for all sorts of extravagant and unnecessary purposes. You played the big shot and hung money around the neighborhood. You were an easy touch for any lazy bunb with his hand out. You are now head over heels in debt — your debts are nearly four times as great as your income. Now, out of your $10,000 income you not only can't save anything but

Our WASHINGTON Letter

AN ALL-OUT DRIVE by the Secretary of Labor to take over complete control of agricultural labor in this country is being pushed. By Executive order, interpretation of existing laws, and by legislation, the drive is on.

Already over in the Senate a half dozen bills have been quietly passed which restrict private control of workers on farms and give Labor Secretary Goldberg ever-increasing powers in that respect.

One Senate-approved bill restricts the right of youngsters under age 14 to do farm work; another forces registration of farm labor contractors; another would create a National Advisory Council on Migratory Labor. Other pending legislation would give more authority to the Secretary in fixing farm wages, working conditions, housing and a multitude of other things. All of these are being advocated by the Labor Secretary.

When Jerry Holleman was Assistant Secretary of Labor, he triggered the big drive to make the Mexican bracero program unworkable, and he had the backing of Secretary Goldberg. By controlling the United States Employment Service the Labor Department has been flexing its control (muscles) by spelling out the terms and conditions of employment on farms and ranches which must be met before the USES will lend a hand in recruiting employees. And, although never authorized by Congress, the Labor Department has on occasions decreed that if USES is used wages and working conditions for those employed through it must be on a par with braceros. And the same Department has made the conditions for contracting braceros next to impossible to meet.

IT IS ALL A PART OF A grab for power by Empire builders. About every month some new decree or announcement is made by the Labor Department regarding restrictions on agricultural labor. And the drive for more power by legislation is being quietly but relentlessly pushed by Administrative forces.

Dan A. Gallagher Retires From WTU

Dan A. Gallagher, controller and a director of West Texas Utilities Company will formally retire from active service July 1. Gallagher actually closed his 33-year career with WTU Friday, June 22, when he left his office to begin preparations for an extended tour of Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will sail from New York July 3 and plan to return to the States early in Sept.

Cal Young, WTU president, announced that Roff W. Hardy, vice president and assistant controller, will assume the duties of controller July 1, subject to the action of the Board of Directors.

Gallagher, who joined WTU in 1929 as secretary-treasurer of the company, was elected a member of the Board of Directors in 1934 and served in this capacity until March, 1943. In 1942, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the U. S. Navy, and following his training at Quonset Point, R. I., he was assigned to Corpus Christi Naval Air Station as personnel officer for a flying squadron.

Following his release to inactive duty in 1944, Gallagher returned to Abilene and rejoined WTU as manager of the Property Department. In December, 1947, he was named controller of accounting and was re-elected a director in March, 1948.

you cannot even use it all for living expenses because you must pay out a big chunk each year for interest on the great debt you have accumulated. If you can figure out how you can make your economic condition grow and prosper by going further into debt while you continue your old practices, you will have an inkling of what passes for economic thinking among the social planners in and out of the New Frontier.

MRS. CHESTER B. HOOPES

"Dive Lighted And Live!"

A simple little traffic reminder, one which attracted wide attention among Texas motorists and which has since been used nation-wide, will be used by Texas radio stations again on the Fourth of July to try to save more lives in holiday traffic.

"Dive Lighted And Live!" Those four little words were phrased by R. B. Roos, a Victoria businessman, three years ago, and were suggested to the Governor's Highway Safety Commission through its Victoria County member, James R. Garrison, a Victoria banker. The first campaign was organized in the Victoria area and produced a long week-end holiday without a single serious traffic crash.

Three months later, Corpus Christi traffic safety supporters took the same idea and not a single serious traffic collision was reported in several counties around that city.

The idea merely involved the suggestion that motorists drive, during holiday periods, with their headlights burning in the daytime to indicate they were driving safely and legally. Texas radio stations have adopted the idea officially through their Texas Association of Broadcasters and have promoted it for the past three years. Last year and again this year, the idea was adopted for the 750,000 trucks represented by the Texas Council of Safety Supervisors and the Texas trucking industry.

Governor Price Daniel said he believed the idea had "attracted much favorable attention to safe and legal holiday driving, a belief reflected in reduced holiday traffic crashes. I hope all Texas drivers will burn their headlights for safety on the Fourth of July."

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jones and son, Buddy, and Miss Helen Gregg of San Antonio, visited with Mrs. J. J. Gregg during the weekend. Buddy and Helen went on to Oklahoma to visit friends and relatives and Mr. and Mrs. Jones went to Waco to visit relatives, then return here Sunday. They will return home the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Bull of Waco were visitors in the home of Mrs. J. J. Gregg Sunday afternoon. They will leave Waco this week for Chicago, where Ronnie will become a member of the Chicago Bears professional football team. He is to play a halfback position on the offensive team for the Bears.

Rev. and Mrs. Raymond Gary and children are in Ruidoso Downs, N. M. this weekend, where he is the evangelist in a Youth Revival meeting.

Little Cynthia Vasquez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Vasquez, is at home now recuperating after having her tonsils removed in the Santa Anna Hospital Saturday night.

Jesse Goen of Austin and Martha Goen of Washington, D. C., visited last week with Mrs. J. F. Goen.

Eight Persons To Die On Texas Highways July 4th

Austin — The Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety reported today that past experience indicates eight persons will be killed in traffic accidents during the coming Fourth of July holiday in Texas.

Colonel Homer Garrison Jr., announced that "Operation Motorcade" will be in effect from 12:01 a. m. through 11:59 p. m. July 4, and that during this period the regular Highway Patrol force will be joined by units of the License and Weight and Motor Vehicle Inspection services in the general traffic supervision effort.

Garrison called for the "cooperation of all Texas drivers to help prove that the estimate of eight traffic deaths compiled by our Statistical Services Section is too high." He continued:

"The Fourth of July marks the mid-point of the summer vacation period, when Texans are really on the move. It is the time of the year when they go more places to see the wonders Texas offers its vacationers.

"With the tempo of travel picking up it is important to drive according to traffic laws and regulations — the rules set down for the protection of the driving public.

"Common sense says it is hard for a person to enjoy a trip if he is constantly squirming out of dangerous traffic situations caused by unlawful driving — his own or someone else's."

Garrison said the Fourth of July could be the turning point in the battle against death on the highways this year. During the first five months department records showed a six percent decrease in the number of fatalities as compared with the same period in 1961.

The public safety director cited the large number of bad wrecks which have occurred in recent weeks. The first few days in June five accidents killed 24 persons and, in each accident at least one traffic violation was a causative factor. As is usually the case, he said, the most common of these were excessive speed, driving while drinking, improper passing or driving with defective equipment.

"Operation Motorcade" is a program designed to focus public attention on the added dangers of travelling by motor vehicle during holiday periods, Garrison explained. During the 24-hour period of the Fourth of July, all fatalities resulting from traffic accidents over the state will be tabulated. Motorcade bulletins will be issued at 10 a. m., 3 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., with a summary bulletin to be issued the morning of July 5.

All the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dink Payne were in their parent's home for a visit during the weekend, the first time in 16 years they were all together. A son-in-law, Benny Woodard, was just back from 19 months in the Air Force in Italy. Others present were J. W. Payne of Phoenix, Ariz., Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Payne of San Antonio, Mrs. Tommy Priddy of Aztec, N. M., Roy Payne and Mrs. Benny Woodard of Santa Anna.

Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Simmons and son, David, of Riverside, Calif., visited in the home of her mother, Mrs. J. J. Gregg, from Wednesday to Saturday. Dr. and Mrs. Simmons went on to the east coast and will return this week. David remained with his grandmother.

TAKE A CARD, any card; a new information storage system has half a million in its "deck." It requires an average of only 20 seconds to bring any one of them to view from among 500,000 microfilmed pages. The system is about the size of a desk and costs from $15,000 to $300,000, depending on the amount of work it can do and how automatically it will do it.

Work Plan On Home Creek W'shed Approved

The Work Plan for upstream flood prevention on Home Creek was reviewed and approved Tuesday, June 26, in Coleman by local, State and Federal agencies, according to Thomas G. Rockenbaugh, local Work Unit Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service.

Home Creek Watershed, located within the Middle Colorado River Watershed, consists of approximately 177,280 acres. The largest tributaries are Camp, Dry, Sweetie, Horse, Loss, Red Bank and Wildcat Creeks. There are 22 proposed floodwater retaining structures on Home Creek, of which the average construction cost is approximately $70,000 each. The estimated average annual floodwater damage will be reduced by approximately 69 percent. The ratio of the average benefits to the average cost of the structure measures 1.2 to 1.

With the granting of all easements it would be possible for construction to begin within one year. All easements are granted from landowners to the Central Colorado Soil Conservation District. After the floodwater retaining structures are constructed and vegetation is established, they will be turned to the local sponsoring organizations for operation and maintenance, which are the Central Colorado Soil Conservation District and the Coleman County Commissioners Court.

Those attending the Work Plan review were: Zeno Hemphill and J. H. Martin, Supervisors of the Central Colorado Soil Conservation District; Hayden Mercer, District Representative; John M. Arthur, Texas Highway Department of Brownwood; Ray Sims, County Agent; Frank Lewis, County Judge; Lee Craig, County Clerk; W. W. Skelton, Commissioner, Precinct No. 3; Foster Miller, Mayor of Coleman; W. E. Lawson, Farmer's Home Administration of Temple; R. H. Weiss, Texas Health Department of Kerrville; S. R. Stanbery, Corp of Engineers of Fort Worth; E. J. Hughes, Melvin Daniel and Jim Voss, Soil Conservation Service of Brownwood; and T. G. Rockenbaugh, Soil Conservation Service of Coleman.

State Capitol NEWS

Austin — Texas has something to brag about: The best traffic safety record in Texas history. The National Safety Council "grades" all states on traffic safety. Of a possible 100 points, Texas got 84 for its efforts to solve traffic deaths and injury during 1961. A big share came from the second lowest traffic death toll since 1949 — "only" 2,314 killed on the highways in 1961.

California had the best score with 86. Michigan was second with 85. Texas tied with Illinois and Ohio for third place among the "big traffic" states.

Gov. Price Daniel said that holding the death rate despite steadily-increasing traffic made a real record — fewer deaths per 100,000 miles traveled than ever before.

NEW INDUSTRY

Every Texas city is looking for new industry. But they aren't alone. Every state has some sort of industry-attracting program.

In May, Texas tied with Illinois for fourth place in the number of new industries opened for business. Each had 30. New York's 49, California's 35 and Pennsylvania's 32 led Texas.

Some states allow public-supported bond issues to finance plant buildings. The Texas Industrial Commission thinks this should be done by private finance, but it backs the Texas Research League to make a study to see which approach is best.

Texas Industrial Commission is running ads this month in Business Week, Wall Street Journal, Dun's Review and American Banker magazines and newspaper.

ers, inviting industry to look at Texas for new plant sites.

CARLA'S COST

Hurricane Carla, which hit Texas last September, struck a delayed blow this week.

After insurance companies paid more than $110,000,000 in insurance claims, the State Board of Insurance ran up the statistics in setting new rates for extended coverage insurance — which includes windstorm damage.

The result — a 27 percent increase in dwelling rates in the "seacoast territory" and a 5.3 percent increase in the two inland territories.

"Seacoast territory" comprises all counties on the Gulf of Mexico, plus a tier of counties adjoining them.

In those counties, where $100 worth of extended coverage insurance cost 35 cents this year — it will cost 44 cents after July 1. This is just the dwelling rate. There are dozens of other variations in the complicated business of setting insurance rates.

But it's all based on statistics. When insurance companies have the biggest losses in history in 1961, it raises rates for a number of years to even things out.

From the way Texas Democratic nominees for the state Senate are thinking now — the new sales tax is here to stay.

There likely will be some modifications — but no chance of repeal, and little chance of making it one percent on everything instead of two percent on most things.

That is the result of a newspaper survey of Democratic nominees for the Senate.

A clear majority — 17 of the 31 — felt the sales tax would not be repealed. Only one among the 17 said he would vote to repeal it.

But several feel there should be some changes made. Major item suggested was to do something to ease the strain on small vendors.

Interpretations of the law are that the merchant can't collect the tax on sales of less than 25 cents, but must pay the tax to the state on those sales as a part of his gross sales.

Theory was that collecting more than two percent on sales of 25 cents and more would even things out. But it hasn't worked that way, particularly among people like restaurants where they sell a lot of coffee, vending machines, newsboys and other.

There may well be some changes made in this.

GIFT DECLINED

The State Parks Board had before it a bold offer — but with a half-million dollar string attached.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wheatley of San Antonio, offered the state their 4,778-acre ranch in Blanco County for a state park. But the condition was that the state spend $500,000 to make a sure enough park out of it.

Parks Board members divided. Harry Hornby, Uvalde publisher, said yes. He was joined by two members, but three opposed. So it was a 3-3 tie.

Ed Kilman, Houston editor who voted not to take it, hoped that the Legislature will see its way clear to provide the money in 1963, and that the offer by the Wheatleys will be renewed. The Wheatley ranch lies along the Pedernales River. It abounds in wild game and scenic country for 10 miles along that stream.

Parks Board, fighting a hard fight with a short stick on money, just couldn't see how it could promise to spend $500,000.

It has a fund of $700,000 to be used next year on parks improvement. Meanwhile, however, Texas Tech is to draft a master plan for park development, showing where the start should be made in improving the long-neglected park system.

MORE OIL SUITS

Eight more operators in the East Texas Field were enjoined from interfering with tests on their leases to see if their oil wells run straight up and down.

And the Railroad Commission extended to the Hawkins Field of Wood County its prohibition against plugging wells.

Atty. Gen. Will Wynn got word that some wells in that field may have been slanted over to someone else's property, so he asked that the no-plugging ban include the big Wood County field.

When the investigation opened, several operators immediately plugged their wells with cement, thus preventing check in the variation from the straight and narrow path.

Of 27 wells checked so far, only one has been found to be straight.

Lawsuits continue to pile up on the dockets of East Texas courts, as neighbors sue neighbors they think have drained oil from under their leases.

LONG SUIT

A West Texas judge may spend the winter — and part of the spring — in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert named District Judge J. H. Starley of Pecos to preside over the big water rights lawsuit in Hidalgo County, where the tangled skein of water rights will be unraveled.

Trial is scheduled to start in September on the main lawsuit. The big question, whether landowners have a right to use irrigation water from the Rio Grande without a state permit, already has been settled.

Texas Supreme Court said lands deriving from Spanish and Mexican grants do not have a riparian right to use water for irrigation.

With that big question answered, Judge Starley will go into a hundred other questions in the suit involving all users of the Rio Grande from Maverick County to the Gulf.

Visiting judge had to be sent in since District Judge Magus Smith was disqualified because he had been an attorney for some of the interested parties before he was elected judge.

ROAD MEN

Texans who work for better highways came to Austin for their annual convention.

They named Leslie Neal Sr. of San Antonio as president of the Texas Good Roads Association for the coming year.

They voted to increase speed limits to 70 miles an hour, and to let the State Highway Commission zone highways for speed up to that limit.

John Connally, Democratic nominee for governor, told delegates that Texas should not divert its highway tax money to other purposes. But he warned that the cities need help on their street construction problems, too.

BOOKS

Bookmobile library demonstrations are being set up in Caldwell, Hays, Fayette and Coryell Counties.

State Librarian Dorman H. Winfrey announced the extension of the rural book program, presently financed by federal, state and local units of government.

It's Time For... EYE CARE

Dr. Newton K. Wesley

We usually find that a person who is negligent about the health of the eyes is also careless as far as injuries to vision are concerned. This person may neglect the most fundamental safety measures during work or play to guard against such injuries.

According to the National Safety Council, eye accidents are estimated at a rate of two per minute — every thirty seconds — during the working day. This may be said to cost industry in the United States about $20 million every year. Most such accidents occur in the metal field, but they can happen in all types of industry and are usually caused by either flying particles, noxious fumes, or harmful light.

Experts say that 98 per cent of all these eye injuries could be avoided by observing elementary safety rules, including wearing safety goggles at all times. Carelessness, indifference, and thoughtlessness are the chief enemies of eye safety.

Serious eye accidents can happen at play, too... especially to children. Parents are urged to keep a constant watch over children at play with special emphasis on their toys. Sharp-cornered playthings should be avoided as well as toys that project pieces of metal or wood. Complete vision of an eye could be lost forever if the eye were penetrated by such articles.

Freak accidents are well known to all of us, but there are some close calls with happy endings. The National Eye Research Foundation reports a case where a child was hit in the eye with a dart. He happened to be wearing contact lenses and the dart pierced the tiny plastic lens, but did not touch the eye.

We would be better off to keep a sharp eye on children, however, and not depend upon a kind fate. Protect your child's vision at all times.

In this modern day and age we can't emphasize too much the importance of this word... CHECK! It's a reminder, of course, to pay all important obligations by CHECK, the modern business-like way to pay that gives you a complete record of income and outgo with cancelled CHECKS as signed receipts for payment.

It's a reminder, too, to CHECK up on your spending — spend LESS than you earn; CHECK up on your saving — save something every week; and always CHECK thoroughly any investment before investing.

Financially speaking this is a most important word, so remember it... CHECK!

The Krohn yard was transformed into a Japanese Garden with Japanese lanterns, patio lights, wind chimes, wrought iron furniture and flowers.

Mr. Krohn, Mr. Carter and Mrs. Carter greeted guests at the garden gate and directed them to a large round wrought iron table to register in the white guest book. Mrs. Murray Carter directed them to the refreshment table, where Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips, Mrs. Onita Ross and Luile Krohn served tea, party sandwiches, melon cubes, cookie mints and nuts from a table covered with a tiered ruffled blue cloth with Japanese fans for decorations. Small Japanese fans were used for plate favors.

Members from all of District 3, Section 5, were in attendance. ROCKWOOD WSCS PRESENTS GIFTS TO REV. BRUCE HORNELL When the Woman's Society of

Screwworm Eradication In The Southwest

The program to eradicate the screwworm from the Southwestern United States was started in mid-February, 1962, with the cooperative efforts of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation, Texas Animal Health Commission and United States Department of Agriculture. It's goal is the eradication of screwworms from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana within a three-year period, and the development and establishment of measures necessary to prevent re-infestation following eradication.

Eradication procedures are based on those used during 1957-59 in the successful Southeastern Screwworm Eradication campaign. Like the Southeastern program, the date for initial release of sterile screwworm flies in the Southwest was advanced with the hope of taking advantage of the destructive effect of extremely cold winter and the releasing of sterile flies from temporary facilities over the southern part of Texas, in an attempt to restrict the movement of the insect outward from overwintering areas. Efforts have been only partially successful. The pattern of screwworm spread has been approximately the same as last year; however, reports from many livestock growers indicate they are experiencing fewer screwworm cases.

Efforts during the months ahead will be directed toward further reducing the screwworm population in order to take full advantage of next winter's cold weather. To this end, the principal tools of the eradication program will be brought into fullest use.

These include:

1. Screwworm detection and reporting — use of systems designed to provide extensive daily information about the incidence and abundance of screwworms.
2. Sterile fly release.
3. Control of animal movements and related animal inspection and treatment to prevent introduction and spread of screwworms.
4. Encouragement of intensive use on the part of livestock owners of measures for prevention and treatment of screwworm cases; regular inspection of animals for screwworms, periodic preventive sprays and the use of approved smears for wound treatment.
5. Use of information — to keep livestock owners and others fully informed of the progress of the program and measures they can take to strengthen it.

Estimated cost of the three-year eradication program is $12 million. The Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation has raised $1,700,000 of its $3 million goal. Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico are now organized to raise funds. The Texas Animal Health Commission will request $3 million from the Texas Legislature. Half of this is expected to be an emergency appropriation with the remainder to be used to complete the program. The Federal Government, through the Animal Disease Eradication Division, Agriculture Research Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture is providing funds to share these expenses.

The program budget allows for an average production of 50 million flies per week. This can be increased for short periods to the 75 million capacity. The average production figure provides for release of sterile flies in those areas where overwintering populations must be eliminated, or where outlying outbreaks threaten to spill over into an area already free of screwworms, and to maintain the artificial barrier. Flies will not be used in areas where cold weather could be expected to eliminate in a short time any threat to a screwworm-free overwintering area.

In addition to continuous, systematic releases of sterile flies over large areas, it is expected that heavy releases of the flies will be used to control abnormal buildups of the insect and to treat areas where vegetation, terrain or other factors provide favorable conditions for native screwworms.

It is expected that fly releases will remain flexible because of unpredictable circumstances that may arise. For example, size of the screwworm overwintering area varies with the severity of the winters. Also, the possibility of screwworm outbreaks in the Southeast from shipped-in infested animals may require releasing flies east of the Mississippi River. Shipments of infested livestock could also cause premature spring outbreaks of screwworms in northern portions of the southwestern states and require concentrated release for quick control.

The first flies produced at Mission will be available during July. Production at the Kerrville unit will be gradually reduced over the next two months, and personnel and equipment transferred to Mission in a manner that will permit maximum increase in fly production at the new plant. The Mission plant will be producing around 50 million flies per week as rapidly as possible. Production will then be increased to meet increased needs for flies, to establish an artificial barrier zone, and for any other extension of fly release that may be necessary. Sterile flies will be released as tride the U.S.-Mexican border between Brownsville, Texas and the southwestern corner of New Mexico to form the barrier.

American Colonists Took Page From English History

American colonists were simply taking a page out of English history when they declared their independence on July 4, 1776. Many of the ideas contained in the Declaration of Independence had been used by the English to justify their own revolution of 1688, explains World Book Encyclopedia.

"The Glorious Revolution," as the English called it, sent James II fleeing to France and brought to the throne William and Mary.

It also resulted in a bill of rights that reads suspiciously like the forerunner of the American Declaration.

The "self-evident truths" and "unalienable rights" noted in the Declaration, for example, recall the "true, ancient, and indubitable rights" of the English document. Both complained about taxes, although for different reasons, and condemned the maintenance of a standing army.

While the Americans studied their history books, however, the British ignored the lesson—with the result that another glorious revolution rocked Great Britain and a new nation was born.

FAILURE FOR POLITICS
 President Kennedy's conduct of the nation's highest office has been characterized as "total politics." His misuse of power in his questionable "victory" over U. S. Steel attests the tremendous accumulation of federal power in the executive branch of the government. This great power, derived through politics, may not permit us to resist future temptations towards its unwise use, as I believe that it was unwise used in the recent steel crisis.

Here was a private company doing business in what it thought was a free economy under a system of enterprise, deciding that more money would have to come in for it to continue a sound business operation. The executive branch of the government, however, chose to apply its concept of "total politics"—that business matters are of such interest to it that it would resist with threats, name-calling, and even boycotting. One would expect this display of personal and public power only in a modern dictatorship, but here it was in America.

Power and Action
 Our present government leaders have come up through a period during which power has been sought and won (or taken) chiefly on the basis that action is required for the public weal. Once the idea was made current that presidents were responsible for economic depressions, the way was open to elect presidents who could promise new and higher levels of growth and progress. People have hardly yet begun to realize that important economic freedoms will have to be relinquished if we are to operate under a system that becomes "total" in terms of the wielding of power.

In 1959, when Secretary of Labor Goldberg was on another side of the table, a labor-management crisis in steel was settled with Mr. Nixon getting much of the credit. So politics goes on, with government-labor-industry making a three cornered game of it. What hurts is that public interest really is not served by these tactics. Short-range, the public will be worse off because of a weakened industry that is not enabled to modernize in order to compete with foreign production nor to meet its debts and dividend requirements. Even the jobs of employees are in jeopardy if industry is not in a strong economic position.

Erosion of Freedom
 The worst politics of all, however, show up in the long-range view. We see there the erosion that will continue to take place in our American free enterprise system, a system that has brought most to more people in terms of goods and services as well as freedoms than has any other system known to man. An alternative to this system would be the kind of state socialism espoused by some of the President's advisors, in which the decisions of industry are all made in Washington. The prospects are not pleasant.

Some seem to think that the President merely has been able to scold big business and get away with it. It is understandable that this may make him a hero to some. But if he has helped further establish the image that business is always taking advantage of the public, this may only seem to be profitable to the Democratic Party. Perhaps Mr. Kennedy has made a dozen votes for every one he lost by his political "victory" over steel. He may even continue to make use of such power, but these tactics could lead us into a political revolt in favor of conservatism.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER
 INDEPENDENCE DAY

RACES and nations have had, from remote antiquity, their sacred days. The reader of the Bible will think of the great Passover that commemorated the birth night of the Hebrew nation in the land of Egypt. For the angel of death passed throughout the land, smiting the firstborn from that of Pharaoh on his throne to that of the captive in his dungeon, but passed every abode where was found the blood of the Paschal Lamb on the lintel and side posts of the door.

JUST A THOUGHT
 Patriotism is a fine thing, especially in a nation that believes and trusts in God. "In God We Trust." This appears on our coins. We should be proud as a people of our heritage.

The statisticians will be approximately correct in their predictions of how many casualties will mark July 4th. But let us realize that the great loss of life is not necessary to show a sacrificial spirit to our Country. Surely that is putting it mildly. Be careful when you drive out on the street or highway July 4th. The important thing of course is to realize and show your love as a citizen to your great Country. And may your demeanor as the colors go by be that of a patriotism that has a lasting quality that will go through the days. Government in its origin is from God. Paul writes that "the Powers that be are ordained of God." Christian citizenship is Christian duty.

certainly undesirable. Do we want a nation in which labor or any group is in the saddle? Already the President seems so desirous of labor's vote that he is not expected to deny them anything. An America run by labor bosses would perhaps not be too far away from the state socialism envisioned and espoused by the President's advisor, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., who said that capitalism needs a master and would eventually have to turn to government to survive.

After some weeks of reflection and review, the only quarters that seem politically happy about the American experience in the steel crisis are the Communist nations, TASS, the Soviet news agency, reported to the Russian people that President Kennedy had truly shown the country it is being run by a little group of capitalists without regard for the nation's welfare. Wasn't that what Mr. Kennedy said? European observers were drawing contrasts with some of their socialized economies, saying that even governments of these countries would not dare attack their business interests so savagely.

Does Two Year Difference Make Girl Too Old?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: I have a problem and would like your opinion. Here it is: I like this boy who is 14, very smart in school, so he was put up a few grades. He is a Junior this year. I am a Sophomore, and am 16. We like each other very much and I'm afraid he will ask me to go steady with him before long. I would like to, but I'm afraid my parents will disagree with me, because I am the oldest. Do you think I

Our advice, if your parents permit it, is to accept dates with the boy if he asks you, but stay off the steady routine. Why is it that every teenager who finds someone he or she likes thinks that it is necessary to go steady?

Certainly, if this boy was moved up to the Junior grade by his fourteenth year, he is "older" than his chronological age—and you seem to indicate that he has more "on the ball" than mere "book sense."

This is all well and good. Let's accept the fact that he is not "too young" for you. Even if he were a senior, we would not recommend he go steady; any more than we would recommend going steady to a Sophomore boy or girl.

We say: be good friends, but stay away from the steady, arm-in-arm, always-together routine. You both have too much to lose.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

FLAME-CUTTING of metal parts has received a boost with a new automatic control system that guides multiple-torch machines electronically. The National Cylinder Gas system, called the X-Y coordinate drive, can translate a simple pencil drawing into as many finished parts as desired. The drawing can be used repeatedly since it is touched only by a beam of light from the control's photoelectric scanning system. Flame cutting is used when the metal plate is too heavy to be stamped or the number of parts to be made is too few to justify the
