12-Year-Old Kin of Santa Annans Youngest To Become Eagle Scout

David S. Karthaus of Arlington, great grandson of Mrs. J. L. McCaughan of Santa Anna, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCaughan, former Santa Annans, received an Eagle Scout Badge recently at the age of 12. He is the youngest Scout ever to gain his Eagle badge in Arlington. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Karthaus.
The youngster also received the coveted God and Country Award in ceremonies at First Presbyterian Church in Arlington, January 15. That award is gained by following a prescribed course of training in the Scout's church for over a one-year period, the church leaders working with the Boy Scout program to outline the exact requirements.
David became a Boy Scout on his birthday, February 5, 1965, when he was 11. He reached Second Class rank in March of 1965, advanced to First Class in May of that year, and reached Star Scout in September, 1965. In May of 1966 he attained the rank of Life Scout and only recently completed work on merit badge number 21, needed to gain the Eagle badge. He says he liked working on nature and citizenship badges most.
Before becoming a Boy Scout, David was in Cub Pack 391 from 1963. He is still a member of that group as well, serving as den chief. He went through all the ranks of Cub Scouting including Webelos.
"I wanted to see just how well I could do in the least amount of time as possible," David says in explaining his achievement.
And, he doesn't intend to stop there. He's going right on to earn more merit badges and get some Eagle palms to go with his new badge.
"There are more than 100 merit badges offered," David explains.

3 Council Jobs To Be Voted On

Three jobs on the City Council will be voted on in the Santa Anna city election on April 4, instead of two as stated in last week's edition of The Santa Anna News. A mayor will also be chosen.
The terms of Councilmen Lewis M. Guthrie, Sye Burden and Jerry Clark, and of Mayor W. Ford Barnes expire this year. Ordinarily the mayor and two councilmen would have been elected in April but three council posts will be voted on this year because Jerry Clark was appointed to fill the unexpired term of C. F. Campbell and a vacated seat filled by appointment must be voted on at the next regular election.
The Council is comprised of five councilmen and a mayor. Two councilmen and a mayor are ordinarily elected one year and three councilmen the next, all for two year terms.
Ben W. Yarborough and O. A. Etheridge are hold-over members of the council, having been elected last year along with C. F. Campbell who later resigned.
No candidates have filed for any of the three council places or that of mayor. Two councilmen will be elected to two-year terms and one to a one-year term.

Receipts Gain At Postoffice

Santa Anna postal receipts for 1966 reflect a continuing gain, acting Postmaster John C. Gregg said this week in releasing comparative figures for the past three years.
"The gain in 1966 over 1965 was very modest, indeed," said the postmaster, "but the year 1965 was an almost record year and any increase is significant."
Here are the totals for the three years:
1964 ----- $19,184.74
1965 ----- 19,753.42
1966 ----- 19,827.16

Miss Phillips 1967 Homemaker Of Santa Anna

Carmen E. Phillips, by finishing first in a written homemaking knowledge and attitude examination for senior girls, December 6, became Santa Anna High School's 1967 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow. Carmen is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis B. Phillips of the Lohm Community. Carmen is a transfer student into the Santa Anna Independent School District.

A state Homemaker of Tomorrow and runner-up will be selected from the winners of all schools in the state, with the former receiving a $1,500 college scholarship; her school will be given a complete set of Encyclopaedia Britannica by Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. The runner-up will be awarded a $500 educational grant.
The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow from this state together with those from all other states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by her school advisor, will join in an expense paid educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D. C., next spring.
The national winner—the 1967 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow—will be announced at a dinner in Williamsburg. Second, third, and fourth ranking national winners will have their original scholarship grants increased to $4,000, $3,000, and $2,000, respectively.
This is the 13th year of the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, initiated in 1954-55 by General Mills to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. Free Vote Only If Registered

The attention of Santa Annans is called again that all persons between ages 21 and 60 must register to be eligible to vote in any election this year.
For the convenience of these people and of property owners wishing to pay 1966 taxes without penalty, John Skelton, Coleman county tax assessor-collector, will be at the Santa Anna National Bank on Friday, January 27.
No poll tax is required this year but every one between ages 21 and 60 who wants to vote in city and school elections as well as any special elections which may be called, must obtain a registration receipt. Persons over 60 years of age are not required to register.
January 31 is the last day to pay property taxes without penalty.

Mother's March Continues Here

Because of a shortage of workers, the "Mothers March" in the annual March of Dimes solicitation scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 24, will be continued the remainder of the week or until completed.
Mrs. Bill Guthrie, chairman, said Wednesday morning.
Volunteers are needed to complete the solicitation, and any ladies wishing to contribute an hour or more of their spare time should contact Mrs. Guthrie.
Only three "marchers" showed up Tuesday morning. They reported better results than anticipated, Mrs. Guthrie said.
"Both business and residential districts will be canvassed during the next few days and the public is requested to be as generous as possible, bearing in mind the lady who solicits your contribution is contributing her time to this worthwhile effort."

Tax Deadline Is January 31

If you have neglected paying your city, school or county-state taxes for 1966, you have only a few days left if you want to avoid a penalty.
All property taxes become delinquent unless paid by Tuesday, Jan. 31.
John Skelton, county tax assessor-collector, will be at The Santa Anna National Bank Friday, Jan. 27 for the convenience of taxpayers in the Santa Anna area. He will also register persons between the ages of 21 and 60 who plan to vote in forthcoming city, school and special elections.
Mrs. Pauline Garrett, city secretary, will be at the City Hall to receive 1966 city taxes.

State Capitol NEWS

AUSTIN, Tex. — Following views by Sam Wood, Capital Correspondent for the Austin American-Statesman and other publications of the Fen-tress group of Newspapers, Inc., present a very comprehensive picture of the rule change adopted by the Texas House of Representatives.

Here's what Mr. Wood, a longtime student of state government operations, has to say:

Speaker Ben Barnes, whose House lieutenants say he can have an unprecedented third term as speaker if he wants it, will leave his stamp on the Legislature for years to come even if he decides to seek greener pastures in the 1968 election year.

Under the rules change adopted by the House Wednesday, Barnes will name the 25 membership of permanent House committees at the close of the current session. Thereafter, except for the rules and House Administration committees, future speakers will be limited to filling vacancies.

Normal attrition would take the Legislature through at least six and possibly eight regular sessions before the committee majorities appointed by Barnes would be disrupted.

The extensive rules changes sponsored by Speaker Barnes are one of a series of steps moving the Legislature toward a permanent status similar to that of Congress. Following will be proposed amendments to the Constitution authorizing annual sessions, higher annual salaries for members of the House and Senate, and substantial annual salaries for the speaker and lieutenant governor.

It can be expected that as the Legislature becomes more permanent in nature, after seniority on committees has been well established, and the annual salaries of lawmakers climb to higher brackets, the rate of turnover in the Texas House, now about one-third every two years, will be sharply reduced.

One of the reasons given by sponsors of the Texas House seniority system and permanent committees is to strengthen the prestige of legislators and help them in their campaigns for re-election. As a starter the "seniority system" is one of no actual benefit, but it establishes a trend toward the seniority system in Congress.

The rules change recommended by the speaker and unanimously adopted by the House after coaching from the senior interim committee which wrote them, kills off one theory that the best protection the citizenship has is the constant turnover in the Texas legislative halls. In the past there has been enough infusion of "new blood" — both conservative and liberal — to keep the floor and committee makeup free of perpetual domination by any one group or clique.

It may never happen — as argued by Speaker Barnes and Rep. DeWitt Hale, chairman of the rules change committee — but the committee offers the possibility that any one permanent committee with a permanent nucleus, perhaps majority, eventually can be controlled permanently by one philosophy or to be blunt, by one lobby. This possibility, made almost impossible as a permanent thing by the shakeup of committees every two years, is now there, even though it may never happen.

The Legislature through its general investigation committees—although they have never proved themselves to be effective — has the right to extensive probing when a majority considers it necessary. The new committee system is armed with witch hunting powers if future speakers and future legislators decide to make the most of their possibilities.

Again, the argument is

Mother of March of Dimes Patient Teaches Child Braille as Precaution

"When the doctors told me my daughter was probably going blind, I determined to learn Braille and be her teacher. I wanted to cushion the shock of knowing she might lose her sight, and to try to share the experience with her."

Speaking is Mrs. Mary A. Fennell of Archer, Fla., mother of five-year-old Lucille, who has congenital glaucoma (hardening of the eyeballs). The attractive blonde and blue-eyed child is also the victim of another birth defect which consists of malformations of the lymph vessels throughout her body.

"I've been warned," Lucille's mother explains, "that if I make a mistake in her diet—such as using the wrong kind of flour in my pies—Lucille won't be with us very long."

Mrs. Fennell told of her efforts to learn Braille, and why, at the Birth Defects Center at the University of Florida School of Medicine at Gainesville. The Center is one of 77 supported by the March of Dimes across the nation.

At the suggestion of the Florida State Council for the Blind, Mrs. Fennell wrote to the Library of Congress for a book of Braille and teaching instructions. (Available at no cost for anyone declared legally blind.)

"I thought that was all there was to it," Mrs. Fennell says. "I figured I'd just do a little studying and soon I'd be teaching Lucille how to spell by 'feeling' the raised dots. How mistaken I was!"

A person who has normal sight encounters far more difficulty learning Braille than the non-sighted. The reason is that the sighted individual relies on the faculty of sight rather than that of touch.

Lucille will not wrestle with that it will never happen. But the House rule changes make it possible.

When the Legislature is not in session the speaker has the authority to determine the times and places standing committees may meet, or he can delegate this authority to the committee. The speaker can assign the subject.

Section 36 of the new rule says: "Each standing committee shall have the power to issue process to witnesses at any place in the State of Texas, to compel their attendance, and to compel the production of all books, records and instruments, and to issue attachments where necessary to obtain compliance with subpoenas or other process, all of which may be addressed to and served by either a sergeant-at-arms appointed by such committee, or by any peace officer of the State of Texas; and to cite for contempt, and cause to be prosecuted for contempt, anyone disobeying the subpoenas or other process lawfully issued by it, in the manner provided by law."

This section is not talking about a House investigation committee charged by resolution for a specific inquiry. It refers to future permanent committees of the House — 23 committees that can do what Section 36 says they can do — and although anywhere near as much of a Braille problem as does her mother. The child's print vision is limited to letters one inch high, so that she will never read book and newspaper type and be confused by memories and associations of the printed letter or word.

Mrs. Fennell is helping Lucille memorize the "feel" of a few letters of the alphabet in raised-dot language, and to recognize how the "feel" sounds when spoken. Mother and child make a game of it. School authorities were so impressed with the child's progress that they permitted Lucille to enter regular kindergarten.

When she enters first grade and moves into a textbook-oriented world, such classic readers as "Dick and Jane" will be unintelligible to her in conventional type. But her mother will translate such books onto sheets of "raised pinpricks," using a special Braille typewriter.

At the March of Dimes-supported Birth Defects Center, to which Lucille is taken for check-ups every few months, the specialists avoid an unqualified prediction. But if pressure against her optic nerves increases, total blindness is almost certain to result.

Understandably, this is the kind of tragedy that many fathers and mothers find intolerable to face. But Mary Fennell is facing it, the doctors say, courageously and with intelligent compassion. They wish more parents, in similar unhappy circumstances, could summon the same fortitude and sense of realism.

AIR POLLUTION

The need to fight against air and water pollution was emphasized by M. A. Wright, board chairman of Humble Oil and Refining Company, when he said, "Either we voluntarily implement effective pollution abatement programs at all levels of business and industry or in the near future our actions in this area will be spelled out by Congressional legislation. Today, we still have the freedom to make a reasoned and resolute response to the problem. Tomorrow our actions may be tightly controlled by the government's regulations."

Highway Taxes Being Used On Non-Road Projects

State and federal governments channeled an estimated $22 billion of the special taxes paid by highway users into non-road programs during the years 1957 through 1966, Oil facts reports.

Over the 10-year period, federal highway user taxes withheld from road-building totaled more than 17 billion. The figure for fiscal 1966 alone was 1.8 billion.

During the same decade, certain states diverted a total of more than $4 billion away from their highway programs. The annual diversion figure grew from $305 million in 1957 to a record $656 million in 1965, according to figures published by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

State highway user tax figures for 1966 are not yet available, but Oil Facts says no reduction in the amount of money diverted is anticipated.

Seedlings Should Be Put In Ground Before March 15

Windbreak seedlings to be planted this year must be ordered by February 11. Mason Cloud, Texas Forest Service, College Station, says.

Seedlings should be in the ground well before the buds begin to swell. Maximum survival in Texas can be expected if the trees are planted before March 15.

A guide sheet for the planting, maintenance and care of windbreaks is included with each seedling order or may be requested in advance from the Texas Forest Service.

Windbreak species this year include black locust, catalpa, Chinese elm, cottonwood, mulberry, osage orange, red cedar, sycamore, euonymus, buffaloberry, rose multiflora, and Austrian loblolly, ponderosa, shortleaf and slash pine. Stratified black walnut seed is also available.

Orders must be for 100 or more trees in multiples of 50. Cost of seedlings and seed is $1.50 per hundred plus state sales tax. All orders will be shipped prepaid between January 15 and the first week of March, 1967. Seedlings may not be resold or used for ornamental purposes. Orders will be accepted on a first-come-first-served basis. Mr. Cloud said.

Applications for ordering windbreak seedlings can be obtained from your local County Agricultural Agent or Soil Conservation District or from the Texas Forest Service at College Station.

Read Romans 13:7-14
Let us cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day. (Romans 13:12-13)

The story Lassie, the ideal collie dog, has thrilled many of us. The novel revolves about a poor English family. Hard times had knocked at their door. The father reluctantly decided to sell the dog in order to provide food for the family. Lassie was taken to her new home and housed in a spotless kennel. She paced the cage, and finally scaled the fence and returned to her master, little Joe.

After the happy reunion of the boy and his dog, the boy had to learn a hard lesson in honesty. Lassie had to be returned, for she had been sold. The father said, "Sometimes, when a chap don't have much, Joe, he clings to being honest harder than ever. . . . And there's a funny thing about honesty; there's no two ways about it. . . . Honest is honest. D'ye see?"

Oftimes we need such a reminder. In a world that prefaces the use of the term honesty with "old-fashioned," it is well to hear again the ringing exhortation, "Let us walk honestly, as in the day."

PRAYER:
Dear God, Thou dost see us as we are; we cannot hide anything from Thee. Help us to order our lives aright and walk honestly that we may feel clean within. In Jesus' name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Honesty may not be easy, but it is essential to a better world.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Writing in a recent issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Director J. Edgar Hoover reminds us, "The role of the policeman in our society goes far beyond the sworn duties of enforcing the law and arresting law-breakers. Modern-day computers would be taxed to process the thousands of special services performed for the public by law enforcement officers every day."

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

Omar Burleson, M. C.
17th District, Texas

Washington, D. C.—Every-one knows what Sherman said about war. It is, of course,

War is a dirty and unfortunate business wherever it is and whoever is doing it. Those who are loudest in their protests of our bombing in North Viet Nam are using the story of civilians being killed for their most recent emotional appeal.

Recently, four women representing the "United States Peace Movement" were permitted to visit North Viet Nam. On their way back to this country they stopped off in Moscow. A news dispatch quoted one of the women, a Mrs. Grace Newman, as saying, "I feel dirty. I am ashamed of my government."

At about this same time another news story came out of New Orleans. It had to do with 88 American citizens who had just been airlifted from Cuba. They were the first group of those repatriated to come home after long and tedious negotiations with the Castro government. "I am the luckiest girl alive," said a young housewife as she came down the plane's ramp. "Freedom, Freedom!" cried a mother, holding two children in her arms. Another woman was helped off the plane into a wheelchair. "It will be wonderful to start a new life," she said.

The contrast in these people is striking. One woman who had never known anything but freedom in her own country was permitted to go to Hanoi. She feels dirty and ashamed of us. These citizens from Cuba, having lived under Castro's Communism, are profoundly grateful for the opportunity of returning to the United States.

Perhaps the good lady, Mrs. Newman, should be given the opportunity to spend a few years in Cuba under a sort of government which North Viet Nam would impose on the Southern part of that country.

Another news reporter for the New York Times, Harrison Salisbury, was permitted to go to Hanoi and sent back stories which are now admittedly the propaganda line of the North Viet Nam government. The emphasis, of course, is on the fact that some civilians have been killed by our bombing. The fact remains, however, that fewer civilians are being killed or injured in this war, even on a percentage basis, than any other in ancient or modern history. This is not to justify a war. It does show, however, that these people use this propaganda to support their advocacy of peace at any price.

It would seem that these people should also lament and decry the fact that Viet Cong terrorists have killed thousands on multiplied thousands of South Vietnamese. There is no accurate estimate of just how many. At about the same time of the publicity of civilians in North Viet Nam being killed by our bombing, the Viet Cong smuggled a Claymore mine into a bus and killed Vietnamese women and children.

Similarly, the Viet Cong descended on a village that was showing signs of being friendly to the South Vietnamese, and brutally killed a number of women and children and destroyed their huts.

These acts have been going on for years, committed by both the Viet Cong and North Viet Nam regulars in their guerrilla warfare. There is no doubt that the terrorists in South Viet Nam, under the direction of the Hanoi government, have by grenade, mine, rifle, mortar, knife and other hand weapons killed more civilians many times over than have the bombings in North Viet Nam. They are killed, not because they happen to be near a strategic target, but as an example to others.

Not to bomb oil centers, rail yards, supply lines or any other installation which gives the enemy more ability to kill Americans, Vietnamese, Australians and New Zealand soldiers, and others from 15 nations, is to betray them.

Horace said, "When your neighbor's house is afire, your own property is at stake."

Official Guide Historical Spots Now Available

The new 1967 Guide to Official Texas Historical Markers compiled by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee is now available for distribution. TSHSC President Charles Woodburn of Amarillo said today.

The guide was published by Humble Oil & Refining Company of Houston. Individuals or organizations may write Humble Touring Service (P. O. Box 2130, Houston 77001) to request copies.

Reflecting the recent emphasis of the official marking of Texas heritage, the third edition of the guide lists 3,946 Official Texas Historical Markers. The guide it replaced listed 2,200 markers.

Five types of historical markers are listed in the guide: 1936 Centennial markers and Texas War for Independence grave markers; Confederate information and grave markers; historical building medallions and aluminum officials markers; and private state-approved markers.

"The Official Texas Historical Marker program is Texas' way of bringing to tourists and Texans the rich heritage of the Lone Star State," said Woodburn.

"Throughout the marker guide are the names and locations of these short history lessons told in granite and aluminum.

"Historical markers not only help preserve the state's heritage; they also contribute to the state's tourist industry," he said.

"In a joint survey conducted by the Texas Highway Department and the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, it was determined that each marker earns an average of $17.55 a day, $526 a month; and $6,405 a year, in increased tourist revenue to the state.

"History and tourism are inseparable," said Woodburn. "Historic sites and landmarks are the third choice of things to see of these polled in an out-of-state survey, and the first choice of Texans."

The new marker guide is readily available to tourists, as copies are distributed by the Texas Highway Department at its eight Tourist Information Centers located at key highway entrances to Texas.

The booklets also are distributed by chambers of commerce, museums, and other tourist and history oriented organizations.

BIRDS TUNE IN P&WD STAFFERS

Waco — Headquarters help at the regional Texas Parks and Wildlife Department "command post" may thank the birds for pertinent sound effects.

Rain water collected on a sagging roof creates a ciliated "pot hole" effect.

And during warm, sunny days swarms of birds splash and twitter just like on location naturewise.

It's perfectly okay with the workers that they're mostly common varieties such as the homely grackle, redwing blackbirds, cowbirds, sparrows and starlings.

Lone Star To Expand Plant

A 1967 initial construction budget of $32,932,000 has been announced by the Lone Star Gas Company and its subsidiary companies—Lone Star Producing Company, Lone Star Gathering Company and Nipak, Inc.

L. T. Potter, Lone Star president, said the new budget will include $11,825,000 for the transmission system; $9,937,000 for the distribution system; $9,513,000 for the exploration and production system and $1,657,000 for Nipak, Inc., a chemical fertilizer subsidiary of the Lone Star Producing Company.

Transmission system will apply its funds toward constructing and replacing the transmission and gathering pipelines, improving and enlarging underground natural gas storage facilities, introducing additional sources of supply into the Lone Star system and other construction necessary to maintain a dependable supply of natural gas.

Distribution system expenditures will be used for all types of customer service facilities and include funds allocated for an anticipated increase of approximately 16,000 customers in the more than 530 cities, towns and communities in Texas and Southern Oklahoma served by Lone Star.

More than one-half of exploration and production division expenditures will be used in the drilling and deepening of oil and gas wells. Also, included are funds for exploration, acquisition of new leases, seismographic services and other production activities.

Included in the construction budget is $579,000 final payment on a $4,789,000 eight-story general office building an addition to Lone Star's home office complex in downtown Dallas. Also, budgeted are funds for minor alterations in existing Lone Star office buildings throughout the company's service area.

Nipak, Inc., will use its portion of the budget for improvements at its plant near Kerens, Texas, and two Oklahoma plants in Pryor and Tulsa.

PRODUCERS TO VOTE

A mail referendum among mohair producers of the nation will be held Feb. 6-17, to determine whether or not they approve a proposed agreement between the Secretary of Agriculture and the Mohair Council of America, Inc. Funds derived are to be used to finance advertising and promotion programs for mohair and mohair products. The proposed agreement is similar to those under which wool and lamb production programs have been conducted since 1955.

Highway Patrol Offering Jobs

Immediate employment is now available with the uniformed services of the Texas Department of Public Safety. Col. Hemer Garrison, DPS Director, announced today, Garrison reported that employment practices have been drastically changed to allow qualified applicants to begin work immediately, in contrast to previous policy of not hiring until time for a patrol-training school to begin.

"We realize," Garrison said "that a person looking for career employment often has to begin work as soon as possible to support himself and his family. We have made the changes necessary in our procedure to provide immediate career placement for such a person."

Under the new procedure an interested person may make application for employment at any of the regional, district or sub-district DPS offices over the state, where the written examination will be given. Each applicant will be told immediately if he has qualified for further consideration. Successful applicants will be given an agility test, and arrangements will be made for a physical check-up. Those persons who are accepted for employment may be placed on the payroll within 10 days, and will be assigned temporary duty until a recruit-training school begins.

Periodic patrol training schools will be held at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin. This training is designed to equip the cadet to handle any of the various situations he may encounter as a patrolman, and will start him off on the right foot toward a rewarding career in law enforcement.

Garrison encouraged all interested high school graduates from the ages of 20 thru 35 to contact their nearest Department of Public Safety patrolman for complete details on becoming a commissioned officer with the Department of Public Safety.

COMMERCIAL FISH FARMING HINTS

What may be the first commercial fish farming conference in the nation will be held at Texas A&M University, Feb. 1-2. Purpose is to provide detailed and current information on commercial freshwater fish production, catfish in particular. Wallace Klusman, Extension wildlife specialist, says interest in fish farming is increasing at a rapid rate.

Jackie Cooper Asks Public to Join Him In March of Dimes War on Birth Defects

By JACKIE COOPER

TV and Movie Star California State Chairman, March of Dimes

Some folks won't believe it's in character for a movie and television actor to concern himself with birth defects and the March of Dimes.

There's still a lot of feeling that a film actor never thinks about anything except his best profile and his scrapbook of flattering press notices. In real life, that's nowhere near the truth. Many actors are involved today in quite a few occupations other than show business.

As you know, some of us in Hollywood are even in politics. For another example of an actor who has outside interests, I could humbly cite myself. As vice president of Screen Gems, Inc. I am a businessman. I've even been known to carry a brief case home nights.

Helps March of Dimes

In another non-Hollywood capacity, I am very much interested in the March of Dimes, of which I am now California state chairman for the second year.

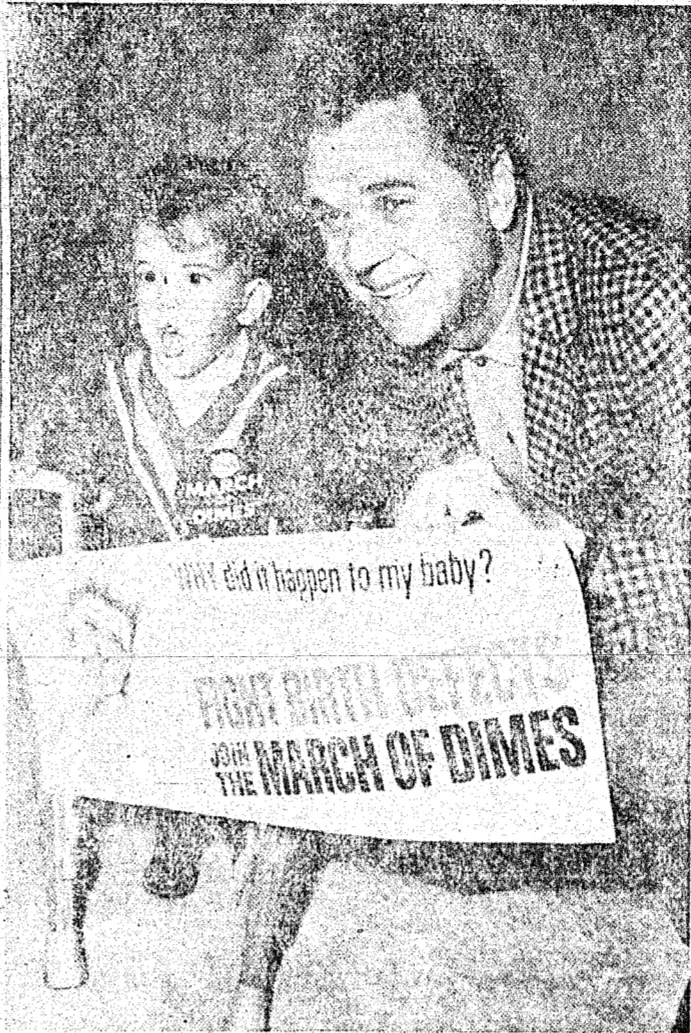

You might ask how did I, an actor, director and TV producer, become interested in a subject that would seem a long way from my profession. Well, the fact is I was asked by a friend on the Columbia Pictures lot whether I would volunteer in the March of Dimes fight against birth defects. I told my friend to get me some material on what the March of Dimes was doing, and to let me think it over.

When my wife and I first read the figures about these tragic disorders, I have to admit we were somewhat ashamed of our lack of knowledge. A quarter of a million infants are born each year with defects. Also each year, we lose a half-million unborn babies as well as 60,000 infants, children and adults, all due to birth defects.

Figures Are Shock

I have a hunch that these shocking figures were unknown to the general public for years, not because they weren't available, but because nobody really wanted to hear about them—particularly young parents. In spite of this apathy, the March of Dimes decided to tackle this problem. Just because a subject is depressing, doesn't mean we're justified in ducking it.

It didn't take me long to realize that birth defects certainly are not far removed from my interests (or from anyone's). I have four of the best reasons in the world for being interested. I have four children. Looking ahead, I am also concerned because some day I hope they'll have their own children—healthy, normal ones. As matters now stand, there's no way of predicting with certainty whose infants are going to be born defective.

FATHER OF FOUR children, Jackie Cooper, noted television and screen actor who is California chairman of the March of Dimes, explains in this article why parents particularly should concern themselves with the fight against birth defects. Here he visits with a young victim of birth defects at a March of Dimes Birth Defects Center in Los Angeles.

Just as someone asked me to join him in helping the March of Dimes fight this battle, now it's my turn to ask the same of you. I very much hope you will join me. Aside from making monetary contributions, there's a lot of worthwhile things that March of Dimes volunteers can do. Perhaps everyone can't pilot his plane around his state, as I do when I'm asked to appear in various California cities. But there are other assignments—many of them involving vital and rewarding tasks in the fields of medical care and in education.

As a parent, I'm convinced that all of us had better become a great deal more knowledgeable and concerned about birth defects for the sake of our children and our children's children. We all have the opportunity and the privilege of supporting a health organization which is leading the fight against birth defects through research and treatment, just as it led the victorious battle against polio. The March of Dimes deserves your support, and there aren't any "bats" about it.

SCREWORM CASES UP

The 1,203 confirmed screwworm cases in 37 Texas counties in 1966 was more than triple the number detected in 1965. Most of the cases, 1,036, were reported in the period from September 11 to December 31. Now that the situation is again under control, eradication program officials say their efforts are being directed toward the Mexican side of the barrier hoping to push screwworms as far south as possible in order to decrease the pressure that migration will bring next spring.

Schools To Get Food Donations

for school lunches are on the way to Texas as a result of recently stepped-up purchases by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, according to John J. Slaughter, Southwest Director, Consumer Food Programs, Consumer and Food.

The food will be distributed to schools participating in the National School Lunch Program through the State Department of Public Welfare.

USDA increased its food donations to help schools their expenses during the second half of the school year and to help them continue to provide adequate meals at a reasonable cost to the students, he explained.

Texas' share of recent purchases, which USDA expects to deliver in January and February, will include 1,600,000 pounds of dry beans, 1,069,200 pounds of frozen beef, 1,038,390 pounds of butter, 436,800 pounds of cheese and substantial amounts of other commodities.

USDA has also announced intention to buy a large quantity of frozen orange juice, probably starting next month, and supplies should reach many schools about March. The department is also buying fresh pears.

Other items supplied thru USDA donations this school year have included raisins, nonfat dry milk, rice, shortening or lard, flour, corn meal, peanut butter, rolled wheat and, recently oats.

In supporting the state agencies in the administration of the National School Lunch Act, USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service donates some foods plus some cash to buy food locally. On a national average, the food and cash contribute about 23 per cent of the total program cost. State and local sources, including children's payments, cover the remaining cost of the lunches.

1 Out of 9 Get Checks On Security

Approximately 22 million men, women and children, or one out of every nine Americans, are receiving monthly Social Security checks.

This estimate was made by Social Security Commissioner Rober M. Ball, who told a news conference that benefit payments next year would rise by $6 billion to a total of $25 billion.

By comparison, an estimated total of 220,000 persons were on the rolls at the end of 1940, the first year of operations. Benefit payments were at the rate of a little over $4 billion a month.

Ball said he was all for President Johnson's plan to seek further expansion of Social Security coverage and an average increase of at least 10 per cent.

In the first six months of the new medicare program, Ball said, more than 2.5 million elderly persons received hospital care costing close to $1 billion. In addition, he said, more than $100 million has been paid to physicians for treating about 3.5 million persons under medicare.

Ball said there were some complaints about the slowness of government payments at the start of the program, but he said things were smoothing out, and he predicted the time lag in payments to doctors and hospitals would be cut to a satisfactory level in a short time.

He said there was a slight increase in hospital occupancy under the medicare program and the number of hospitalized people was up 20 per cent. But he said this was in line with predictions and no significant overcrowding has been reported.

Ball announced a total of 1,644 facilities had qualified to participate in the new extended area program, under which patients will receive additional care after leaving hospitals.

He said the total of approved facilities was expected to reach 2,500 within a few days. This will be adequate in most areas to take care of the 50,000 to 60,000 patients who will need additional care in the near future, he said.

There will be significant shortages in some states, he said, particularly in the District of Columbia, Rhode Island and some other New England states.

Americans Rely Heavily On Use Of Automobile

The total mileage driven in the United States during 1966 was the equivalent of nearly 2 million round trips to the moon, according to Oil Facts.

During the year, some 103 million licensed drivers traveled an estimated 922 billion miles. They operated 94 million motor vehicles, including 78 million automobiles, 16 million trucks and buses.

Oil facts, an American Petroleum Institute publication, cited additional figures to show how heavily Americans rely on automobiles for their business and recreational travel.

- 78 per cent of U. S. families own autos; nearly one-fourth own more than one car.
- 89 per cent of all inter-city travel is by automobile.
- 82 per cent of commuting workers get to their jobs by car.
- 82 per cent of all vacationers drive their own cars.
- Highway transportation accounts for one out of every six businesses and one out of every seven jobs in the nation.

Game Probe Aids Depth of Harvest

To prove that hunter success isn't always a matter of luck, Project Leader Bob Alexander points out some of the work of the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department in the Northeast Texas Wildlife Management Area.

Alexander's routine initiated 14 years ago, includes populations, range conditions, annual game harvest and recommendation of tentative game regulations.

The wildlife staff also conducts surveys of browse utilization by game, and mast production studies. Currently they are investigating new methods of taking a game census.

He said this type of departmental endeavor will aid the biologists in recommending open and closed seasons, means and methods of taking game, and bag limits, consistent with the wise use of wildlife natural resources.

50 Fellowships Offered By ACC

Fifty graduate fellowships are available to teachers for the 1967 American Studies Program at Abilene Christian College.

Fellowships will be available for each summer term, June 5 - July 11 and July 12 to August 18. The fellowship pays all expenses for one summer session including room, board, tuition and fees.

This program was begun in 1957 for the purpose of providing summer refresher courses in American Studies for teachers. Kirk, coordinator of the program.

Teachers may attend either of the two summer sessions, enrolling in any two of the courses offered as a part of the American Studies Program. Courses will be available in the fields of business administration, education, Bible, English, history and speech.

Any teacher under 60 years of age or any graduating college senior who will qualify for certification as a teacher is eligible to apply for a grant. Completed application forms must be returned not later than April 15 for the applicant to be eligible. Successful applicants will be notified by April 30, 1967.

Cordless Gadgets, Offering Safety, Gain Popularity

The list of new cordless appliances and gadgets is growing, says Miss Joy Arrington, Extension home management specialist at Texas A. & M. University.

Here are some points to consider when buying them. Portability is their major asset. Cordless cleaning devices, for example, allow you to maneuver in areas otherwise awkward to reach. And, of course, anything cordless can be used out of doors, miles away from the nearest electrical outlet.

Cordless appliances use a power stored in batteries rather than power drawn via a line cord from an electrical outlet. Some run on primary-cell batteries that are replaced when they run down; others use rechargeable batteries that can be recharged at minimal cost.

Safety is a major factor when you consider cordless versus plug-in appliances. The cordless ones are safe for two reasons. They require lower voltage, and virtually eliminate an electric-shock hazard. This means that the appliances are safe to use in traditionally damp areas—even if you are standing in water.

Disadvantages of cordless appliances vary from one item to the next. Generally speaking, the rechargeable batteries have limited power; the appliances they run can be operated only for limited periods. The added weight of the batteries makes a few units uncomfortable to work with. And, not surprisingly, cordless appliances usually cost more than their plug-in equivalents, though the rechargeable ones may actually save you money in the long run because they cost less to operate.

When shopping for a cordless appliance, exercise the same care you would with plug-in types, to be certain it is as safe as it can and must be. If the appliance utilizes a built-in or separate recharger, check it for U. L. listing which signifies that the recharger meets their standards to guard against electrical short hazards and fires.

State Teachers Group Booming In Memberships

Membership in Texas State Teachers Association for 1967 has boomed past a mighty 116,000, TSTA Executive Secretary Charles H. Tennyson announced.

Last Year's TSTA rolls numbered 102,500. Tennyson said final totals this year might reach 117,000 before the counting is over.

Tennyson said the big membership jump shows Texas educators are united in their desire to build the state's educational offerings into "the very best."

Tennyson said: "This new membership record shows Texas teachers want a strong professional organization. The states with strong and active professional associations are the states which make progress in their school and colleges."

"It is not coincidence that California, whose schools are rated at the top, is the state with the largest professional education association," he said.

"Among the 50 state professional education associations in the U.S.," said Tennyson, "TSTA ranks second."

Tennyson said that 1942 has been the only year in TSTA's existence when membership records were not surpassed.

"Today, even when Texas is in the midst of the worst teacher shortage since 1942," he declared, "the teachers of this state are continuing to band together in the cause of better education."

AVERAGE PAY
Newsweek magazine recently stated: "Judging solely by his paycheck, the typical U.S. production worker with three dependents seemed to be better off financially last month than he was a year earlier. His wages had climbed from $88.04 a week last fall to $100.65. But if he was making more, he was enjoying it less, because his real earnings—or the after-tax purchasing power of his paycheck—had actually dwindled from $88.80 to $87.90."

Cancer Patients May Benefit From Experiment In Houston

An experimental unit that accepts blood from donors and separates certain components needed for treating cancer patients is now being used at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston.

According to Dr. Lee Clark, Director and Surgeon-in-Chief at the institution, the automatic blood cell separator developed jointly by the National Cancer Institute and International Business Machines Corporation offers several possibilities for cancer research and treatment.

"This new unit," he said, "should prove extremely useful in bringing the benefits of the newest innovations in cancer research to the patient's bedside."

The physician working with the unit at M. D. Anderson is Dr. Emil J. Freireich, internist; chief, section of research hematology; assistant head, department of developmental therapeutics; and professor of medicine. The blood cell separator was developed initially at NCI by Dr. Freireich and George T. Judson, an engineer and IBM Fellow.

Dr. Freireich is the first physician to use the unit in vivo—receiving blood directly from a donor, separating out certain elements and returning the remaining blood to the donor.

The blood cell separator used by Dr. Freireich for his earlier in vivo studies was a prototype of the present model which has been streamlined by a number of innovations. Dr. Freireich points out that, "the present unit is still an experimental model. It is our intent to continue development of the separator until it operates even more smoothly in doing the job we have set out for it."

Dr. Freireich will use the present blood cell separator to obtain components from whole blood needed for the treating of patients with different types of cancer, and for research on the causes and cure of the disease. For example, patients with leukemia (cancer of the blood) are frequently treated with drugs to rid their bodies of diseased blood elements. But these drugs also destroy healthy parts, including the blood platelets which are used by the body to arrest bleeding.

To replace this loss, platelets must be taken from a healthy donor and transfused into the patient. Since transfused platelets survive only one to three days in a patient, platelet transfusions are needed as often as two or three times a week.

Because platelets cannot be stored, a fresh supply must be obtained each time a leukemia patient receives a transfusion. However, since a healthy person manufactures platelets fairly rapidly and can replace his own within one to three days, a donor can give platelets as often as twice a week.

Although a method has been available for some years to remove platelets from the blood while allowing the remaining parts of the blood to be returned to the donor, the method is time-consuming and thus discouraging to donors.

The blood cell separator, which fractionates blood continuously through a spinning centrifuge, can separate the platelets from the remainder of the blood in one-sixth of the time taken by the old method. Further, using this separation technique, the amount of platelets gathered for transfusion is increased.

Another application of the blood-separating unit will be the gathering of white blood cells. Following drug treatment, leukemia patients have little or no resistance to infection. Usually such a resistance is built up and maintained by white blood cells. When these cells are diseased or destroyed, the body's defense mechanism against infection does not function. Transfusions of white blood cells enable a patient to stiffen his resistance until his own body begins to produce white cells again.

In the past, the major problem preventing regular transfusion of white blood cells has been the difficulty in acquiring the cells. In normal persons, the white blood cells make up only about one per cent of the body's circulating blood. And most of the white blood cells are in the bone marrow or lymph nodes, and therefore, are not readily available for exchange. By using the new separator, a person's entire blood volume can be run through the machine, thus allowing a greater opportunity for removing available white cells. There is no danger to the donor, since the blood cells are replaced from the bone marrow reserve almost as soon as they are removed.

At M. D. Anderson Hospital, the blood cell separator will be used for in vitro as well as in vivo studies. In vitro studies involve the separation of blood already drawn from donors, for example, to separate blood stored in blood banks.

The experimental in vivo blood cell separator is the third instrument of its kind
