

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

Austin — A task force of federal officials, here for a conference on federal-state relations, got an earful from disgruntled state officials who complained of poor communication between Austin and Washington.

Gov. John Connally opened the conference by telling the men from D. C. that the federal grant system is characterized "by misunderstanding, disharmony and, in some instances, utter confusion."

Other state officials got down to specifics when the conference broke up into small groups to discuss inter-governmental coordination, health and welfare, education, water development, out-educational program by the State of Texas will be continued there as a permanent feature.

Institute is under the direction of H. Henderson Shuffler, former West Texas newspaperman who has been heading the UT Texana programs for the past five years. Exhibits will portray the colorful history of Texas in terms of the people who made that history.

COURTS SPEAK

Supreme Court will hear arguments July 19 on whether parents can collect damages for premature birth and subsequent death of a child due to injury of the mother in an accident.

In other questions the high court:

- Agreed to review the $200,000 judgement favoring a workman who was burned when his bulldozer burst an underground pipeline in Brazoria County.
- Upheld a trial court decision awarding damages to a woman who lost her hair from application of a lanolin bath on bleached hair (extending doctrine of strict liability to cases other than foodstuffs).
- Found parents of injured child who poured kerosene on smoldering stick are not barred from suit against an oil company which allegedly adulterated fuel with gasoline.

POLLUTION BOARD TO VISIT

President's Water Pollution Control Advisory Board will visit Texas June 26-29 to survey state pollution problems first hand and study solutions being undertaken.

Nine-member board will visit Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Galveston and Houston. Trip will be climaxed June 29 by a public meeting at the Rice Hotel in Houston.

PAYROLLS

Governor Connally is keeping state employees and legislators guessing as to whether he will veto a bill which would improve retirement benefits for both.

Connally has made known he is giving serious consideration to a veto because lawmakers tagged benefits for themselves onto a bill designed originally for state employees.

While retired workers would get a 10 percent hike in their pensions, credit for five years military time, disability provisions and benefits for widows and dependent children, legislators would receive a 50 percent hike in their retirement compensation under the tampered bill that passed late in the session.

Connally resented the manner in which the legislators' extra compensation was written into the bill in conference committee rather than by floor amendments. Bill would raise legislators' retirement from $100 to $150 a month for eight years' service. Also, it increases longevity add-ons from $10 to $15 a month for each year of service beyond the 10-year mark.

Speaker Barnes has urged the Governor to veto the bill if he does, he will probably submit the employee retirement benefits proposal at the special session next year.

JULY DRAFT QUOTA 971

Texas draft board will be called on to furnish the Army 974 men during July. Selective Service Director Col. Morris S. Schwartz has announced. National call will total 19,000.

Monthly calls from January through June ranged from a low of 674 to a high of 1,110.

In July 155 local draft boards will forward 5,916 men for draft pre-induction examination. It's an increase from 4,900 in June.

AIRBORNE BRIGADE PLANNED

National Guard reshuffle will bring Texas a new airborne unit and two other brigades.

Adjutant General Thomas S. Bishop said the all-volunteer airborne brigade assignment (originally slated to go to Alabama) still is subject to approval by U. S. National Guard Bureau.

Under reorganization, Texas' 49th armored and 36th infantry divisions will be replaced by a new mechanized infantry brigade and high-priority 36th infantry brigade. State also will get an army aviation group.

SHORT SNORTS

Highway Commission has approved new farm to market road program which calls for development of 940.3 miles of secondary roads in the state, including 228 projects in 166 counties, covering 623 miles at a cost of $24,600,000.

Parks and Wildlife Commission is weighing the merits of setting the deer hunting season as November 1 through January 15 and will announce its decision in July after public hearings have ended.

Highway Department tourist bureaus have extended their hours from 7:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. in preparation for an expected record number of out-of-state visitors.

SC OOL ADMINISTRATORS SALARIES

By increasing salaries for classroom teachers, the Legislature also raised the pay of administrators, principals and counselors whose base pay is what they would make if they were classroom teachers.

Depending on degrees earned and years of experience, a classroom teacher may, under the new law, be paid anything from $3,132 to $6,912 for nine months.

With the same conditions applying, administrative personnel get the same sums, but spread over 12 months for superintendents, 11 months for principals and 10 months for counselors.

On top of the base pay, each superintendent gets a 20 percent to 40 percent increment, depending on the size of his school system; each principal gets a 20 percent increment; and each counselor gets a $300 increment.

Under the new law, the lowest possible salary for a superintendent is $5,011.20 and the highest possible salary is $12,902.40. Principals can earn as little as $4,593.60 and as much as $10,137.60. Salary scale for counselors will run from $3,780 to $7,980.

Texas Attorney General Crawford C. Martin visits with the graduating class of Masonic Home High School in Fort Worth following his commencement address. The Attorney General pointed out that state expenditures for public schools have increased 150 per cent since 1950. He said that 46 cents of every tax dollar in Texas is spent on education. The Masonic Home and School cares for widows and needy children and grandchildren of Texas Masons.

Read Matthew 13:18-23.

My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. Proverbs 4:20.

Whatever progress I have made in my thinking has been due initially to someone calling my attention to something. A college teacher called my attention to the idealism of the poets Alfred Tennyson and Robert Browning, my father, to the joys of gardening. Henry Thoreau to the perennial wonders of nature and the commonplace minister friend to the infinite resources of worship.

The Bible calls attention to things that we dare not miss — God's dealing with men. In its pages we read of persons whose attention was called to something beyond themselves — Moses, by the burning bush; Nathaniel, by a word spoken by Jesus; two travelers, by the breaking of bread at Emmaus.

The New Testament directs us to Jesus and reveals the true source of authority and inspiration for daily living. Little wonder there is so much joy in the New Testament; there we find people who are attending to the highest and best.

PRAYER

Our Father, we would fix our attention on things that are above, not alone on things that pass away. Bless

Super Highway Crashes Soar

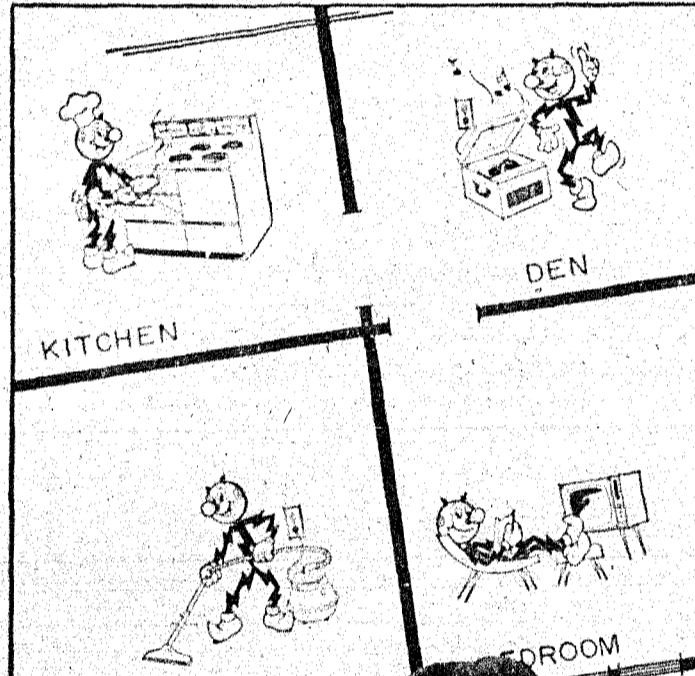

Dallas — A 39 per cent increase last year in traffic deaths on Texas interstate highways has prompted the Association of Texas Fire & Casualty Companies to urge state motorists to take special precautions when driving on these super highways.

"We do not say that the interstate highways are inherently dangerous," Russell H. Perry, President of the Association of Texas Fire & Casualty Companies said, "but the record conclusively demonstrates that certain accident-preventing techniques are necessary. The increase in traffic deaths was far greater on interstate highways last year than on any other type of road."

These rules for safe driving are recommended by the Association:

1. Use the accelerating lane to gain speed before pulling on to the main road. A slow-moving vehicle can be very dangerous.
2. Make sure that the way is clear before you pull on to the super highway. Don't force an on-coming driver to swerve into another lane of traffic.
3. Change lanes cautiously and always signal lane changes.
4. Don't weave in and out of traffic. Stay in your lane. Little if any time can be gained by this dangerous maneuver.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASS'N. Taking Medicine

Ever wake up, or at least about half awake, in the night with a splitting headache? Or a pain in the tummy? And stumble into the bathroom and reach for a bottle in the medicine cabinet. And gulp down a pill or two, or a spoonful of medicine?

Sure. All of us have. And we are risking serious trouble in taking medicine carelessly.

The medicine was prescribed by your physician, and he included specific orders for size and frequency of dose and how to take it. The American Medical Association reminds that there is a good sound reason for these orders, and they're meant to be followed.

A few simple rules for taking medicine can help to avoid an accident that may make your minor discomfort a lot worse.

Never take medicine in the dark. Be certain you can see the bottle or pill box, to make certain it's the right one.

Read the directions carefully before taking. Those directions are there because they are needed.

Don't increase the dosage or take more often than directed without checking with your doctor.

If the label says "Shake well before using," it means what it says. Shake it.

Don't take medicine prescribed for someone else. Just because it helped your husband's cough does not mean it's right for you.

Keep medicine out of the reach of children. The small child who is rushed to the hospital after eating a whole bottle of sugar-coated tablets is an all too common occurrence.

Put the cap back on the bottle. Some medicines will change strength if exposed to air too long.

Keep the medicine in its original box or bottle. Shifting sleeping pills into an aspirin bottle, for instance, could produce dire effects for someone else in the family.

Blame It On Weather And Growing Conditions

Discolored leaf conditions in young cotton, it's widespread in Texas, apparently are not due to disease or herbicide drift or air pollution. But, says Fred C. Elliott, Texas A & M University Extension cotton specialist, the cause is the unusually cool nights combined with higher daytime temperatures that have persisted over the past several weeks, and some of it is "sun scald" from the showers.

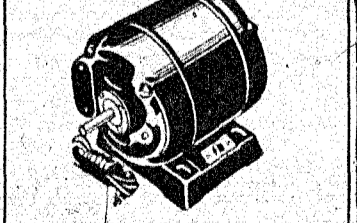

The condition, add Elliott, is extensive. It is found from Gulf Coast counties on through the central blacklands and as far north as Ellis County.

With the return of warm nights and normal growing weather in June, this condition should rapidly improve in two or three weeks, predicts Elliott.

Polyester New In Soft Floors

Polyester fibers are becoming the new giants of the soft floor covering field, says Joy Arrington, Extension home management specialist with Texas A&M University.

The fibers, which were introduced into the carpet industry as possibilities for pile just a year ago, may join nylon and acrylic as one of the "Big Three" fibers within the next four years.

What makes polyester fiber different and better? Is has the positive attributes of many carpet fibers, combining the benefits of both the natural and manmade fibers.

Ease in spot and stain removal is a great advantage for many busy housewives. Polyester retains its original, clean, sharp look after general or spot cleaning.

Plastic Packs To Be Used In Blood Banks

The traditional glass bottle familiar to Blood Services of San Angelo blood donors, will soon be a thing of the past. Blood Services announced this week that the blood program will switch to plastic packs beginning June 19.

Doctor John Alevser, Medical Director of Blood Services' nationwide system, said that the change-over is being made to keep pace with advanced medical knowledge in the use of blood and blood fractions. "Blood collection equipment developed during World War II is no longer adequate for the era of blood component therapy into which medicine has now entered."

Doctor Lloyd Hershberger, who is District Medical Director of Blood Services of San Angelo, went on to say, "Doctors can now prescribe the specific constituent of whole blood which the patient needs—and not an entire unit of whole blood that the patient doesn't require. They may now order an infusion of red cells to combat anemia, platelets to control bleeding of plasma to prevent shock. Each component is given the patient in the amount he needs and at the intervals required."

"Plastic containers permit removal of the parts of blood needed and storing of the balance for subsequent use," Dr. Hershberger said.

Funny Money

What if you discover that a dollar bill, recently acquired by you, is a counterfeit? Your quick reaction might be:

"This thing is a hot potato. I'd better unload it onto somebody else as fast as I can."

But if you do, you will be committing the serious crime of passing counterfeit money. True: you do have a hot potato on your hands. But it is folly to add to the minor mistake of accepting the money the major mistake of passing it along.

Your duty is plain. Notify the local police department or the United States Secret Service at once, giving as much information as you can about when, where, and from whom you received the bill.

No, you will not be reimbursed for the one dollar. But you will be helping to curb one of the most ancient and persistent of crimes—one that has been given a new lease on life by modern techniques of printing and engraving.

In the roster of criminals, the counterfeit is something of a maverick. He is seldom motivated by sudden passion or by grandstanding poverty or by personal inadequacies. He has time enough for planning, money enough for equipment, and talent enough for manufacturing. He is a cool customer who knows exactly what he is doing.

However, merely passing—unlike manufacturing—counterfeit money may occur in perfect innocence. It is part of the government's job in prosecuting to prove that the person who passed the counterfeit money knew (or at least thought) that it was counterfeit. Consider this case:

An intoxicated fellow, caught spending counterfeit money in a bar, denied that he knew it was bogus. At the trial, the government told the court:

"Shortly before this man's arrest, he burned a $5 bill to light his cigar. So he must have known the money was no good."

But the court was not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt, and dismissed the charge. The judge said it was quite possible for a drinking man to burn real money—just to show off.

In another case, though, there was evidence that the defendant, when he realized detectives were on his trail, flushed his counterfeit money down a toilet.

This time, the defendant was convicted. The court found no reasonable explanation for this behavior except a guilty conscience.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

Omar Burleson, M. C. 17th District, Texas

Washington, D. C.—A funny thing happened on the way to the forum—the subject of a Broadway theatrical a few years ago—based on certain facets of Roman political life.

A funny thing happened last week in the House of Representatives when legislation to again raise the National Debt Limit was defeated by 13 votes. The peculiar aspect was the fact that some of the most liberal and the most conservative voted together, but for different reasons.

During the last 13 years the debt limit has been raised 19 times, but this is the first time for defeat.

The more conservative of the Congress have usually voted against the increase in the Debt Limit by reason of the inner satisfaction that they were not responsible for the necessity of raising the Debt Ceiling. If expenditures had been kept within the bounds as voted for by those who felt we should live reasonably within our means, the Government would not have to continue to borrow huge sums for its operation.

The more liberal element has voted against the increase in the Debt Limit—not consistently but recently—because they say it enables our Government to borrow money to finance its national defense and the Viet Nam War.

From the standpoint of fiscal responsibility, both theories are somewhat short of being on solid ground. This is one issue on which some of us have been on both sides over the years, but for good and sufficient reasons.

As mentioned, when one feels he is not responsible for necessity of giving the Government greater borrowing power, there is personal satisfaction in opposing raising the ceiling on what the Government can borrow. William Randolph Hurst, II, wrote a number of years ago, "I always feel that it is not as important to be consistent as it is to be correct. A man who is completely consistent never learns anything. Conditions change and he does not."

We are at war, and not to have Governmental authority to finance what it may take to win could be calamitous. For the Government not to be able to manage its Public Debt could, on down the line, cause chaotic conditions at a time when it could ill afford to do so.

The Debt Ceiling is simply the limit to which the Treasury can borrow money to meet the Government's obligations. It comes down to the simple fact that when the Government's obligations reach a point where shortly they total more than the Debt Ceiling, Congress must give a latitude for the issuance of more Government securities.

On every occasion when the Congress has had this issue under debate, some very fine economy speeches are made by just about everyone. Those who support raising the Debt Limit talk about fiscal responsibility and, of course, they are correct. They usually urge that the authority be granted "this time" and it will not be necessary in the future. Usually, they say that we must watch our actions in authorizations and appropriations in order that future raises will not be necessary.

The place and time to practice economy and fiscal responsibility is when each appropriation bill is first considered. Once appropriations are made the obligation must be met and, of course, that is what causes the Debt—spending money beyond and above our income.

It is too late to practice economy when the necessity arises for raising the Debt Limit. In fact, raising the limit has nothing to do with economy at all.

Unless the Congress puts first things first, we will be going through this exercise time and time again.

Raising the limit on Government borrowing authority is something like the line in the Farmer's Almanac of 1797—"If you want the time to pass quickly, just give your note for 90 days."

The first seaplane, the Loew, was constructed by Glenn Curtiss in 1908.

Mexican Auto Insurance Needed By Motoring U. S. Tourists

Dallas — Thousands of vacationing Americans will be driving their cars into Mexico this summer. Many of them will be falsely confident that they have proper liability protection in case of an accident in that country, the Insurance Information Institute warns.

When planning to drive south of the border, U. S. residents should check with their insurance agent or broker about obtaining an official Mexican automobile liability policy.

Unless properly informed, vacations could turn into costly nightmares. Tourists should be warned: "Don't drive into Mexico without auto liability insurance from a Mexican company!"

Most Americans are unaware that only insurance companies located in Mexico are recognized under Mexican law. And contracts of insurance written by non-Mexican companies are not in force in that country.

A tourist involved in an accident in Mexico could be faced with a large cash outlay, informal detainer, or even jail, under the strict provisions of the Mexican law — even if he has the "Mexican auto endorsement" attached to his U. S. policy.

The "Mexican endorsement" on some U. S. policies is designed for a limited purpose and its application to vacation use should be thoroughly discussed with an insurance agent or broker before a person drives across the border.

Without proper Mexican coverage, the motorist has four alternatives if he is involved in an auto accident which results in even minor personal injury or property damage. They are:

1. Post a cash bond with the local officials.

2. Post a commercial bond from a Mexican bonding company (a possibility if the tourist speaks Spanish, knows someone locally and has enough money).

3. Contact a U. S. insurance agent, via telephone or telegram (but, under Mexican law, it is illegal for the agent to settle the claim in Mexico. He may, however, advance the cash necessary to post bond).

4. Face legal detention and impounding of the automobile.

As visitors to Mexico, Americans are bound by Mexican laws, just as Mexicans traveling in the U. S. are bound by its law. Compliance with those laws can make for a happier vacation in Mexico.

Here are some additional pointers for traveling south of the border.

Obtain a tourist card from the office of the Mexican Bureau of Tourism, the Mexican Consul or at the border.

If you have an auto accident in Mexico, look for help from one of the green Turismo jeeps that patrol the highways. The driver will assist insureds in contacting an adjuster for the Mexican company which issued you insurance.

If no patrol car arrives in a reasonable time, call the nearest police officer. Police should be shown to the chief of police, and no officer should be paid for his services. That is the responsibility of the Mexican insurance company.

DRIVER!
YOU MUST WATCH YOUR STEP, TOO!

Freedom and fun of vacation are on the minds of millions of Texas youngsters.

You can take steps to offset their missteps.

Drive alertly . . . with caution . . . Their safety is in your hands.

A Quiet Kind of Texas

So many journalists who go to the President's ranch describe the Hill Country (it is for the moment called L. B. J. Country, but the old name will return) as barren, brooding and stark. They take all the adjectives that would apply perhaps, in another writer's eye, to the landscape of Cape Cod, and use them to describe what many Texans consider the gentlest and most beautiful part of the state.

In the current issue of "Venture" Magazine, journalist R. C. Phelan examines "A Quiet Kind of Texas."

The spreading of platitudes about Texas is an industry. It gives employment not only to writers, but to manufacturers of souvenirs. There is a Texas size everything it seems. Anyone from outside the state, on hearing the word "Texan," will think "tall, rich, tough, loud and vulgar." Actually, there are not more than a few hundred Texans to whom all these adjectives apply. And there are millions, he emphasizes, to whom you could justly apply none of them. But you can't get outsiders to believe this.

The author says he suspects that what upsets most strangers about Texas is what seems to them emptiness. That huge sky makes them feel small and scared. That's why, he explains, you have to be born in Texas to know there is nothing to fear. The average man does not need arctic ice or the stratosphere to make him feel alone and helpless in nature. A slice of Texas will do.

It is not uncommon, he says, to find a whole family of tourists traveling through the state, in sheer terror.

They are afraid of rattlesnakes, tarantulas and the imagined merces of long roads through empty country. So afraid that they hardly dare step out of their vehicles. It is useless to tell them, as the Texas Rangers do, that the real menace these days is not the danger of snakebite, but of highway accidents. They will not feel safe until they get back where there are plenty of people.

Phelan's article is intended for these people. To inform them: to change their attitudes, to get them to re-examine Texas, to see the writer's "Quiet Kind of Texas," where you have to stop a while to know the special smell of smoking firewood, the elegance and assurance of wild animals, the qualities of cattle, sheep and goats, and the real stupendous spectacles of changing Texas weather. You also have to know the feeling that the people have about the earth and about what it does for them.

Texas is changeless and seasonless and it graciously holds open its arms to all visitors who venture there with open minds.

Woodrow Wilson issued the first Mother's Day proclamation.

Origins Of Geographical Names Needed

Residents of Coleman County were asked this week to help solve the mystery of the origins of several geographical names found on county maps.

The information is needed for a dictionary of Texas place names, including Coleman and the other 253 counties, to be published soon by the East Texas State University press. Before Dr. Fred Tarpley, professor of English at the university, submits his final manuscript, he is appealing to county residents for assistance in contributing information about several names with unexplained origins.

With the following exceptions, the reasons for the choice of approximately 200 names found on detailed maps of the county have already been determined:

Adams, Amzak-Morris Oil Field, Barba Oil Field, Bee Creek, Betty Logan Creek, Buffalo, Bull Creek, Burket Oil Field, Calvary, Centennial, Cleveland, Cleveland Moore Oil Field, Coker Oil Field, Dry Creek, Elm Creek, Eureka, Five Ashes, Gobbler Branch, Hardin, Harmony, Hay Creek, Home Creek, Hords Creek, Lake Cooper, Lake San Tama, Lake Sealy, Lake Scarborough, Loss Creek, Mercer Creek, Mozelle, Muke-water Creek, North Talpa Oil Field, Novice S. W. Oil Field, Ogden - Mobee Oil Field, Overall, Panther Creek, Parks Mountain, Pecan Bayou, Red Bank Creek, Robinson Peak, Round Mountain, Turtle Bayou, Warner Oil Field, Watts Creek, Webbville, White Chapel and Williams Oil Field. Information will be welcomed by Dr. Fred Tarpley, Department of English, East Texas State University, Commerce, Texas 75423.

Cleave means both to stick together and to part.

Dry Spell Hits Bobs In Westex
Persistent dry weather during the early months of 1967 has hindered quail production in much of West Texas, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Bobwhite quail that survive winter rigors gain nesting season strength by foraging on minute green plants emerging after early spring rains.

The Department noted in areas lacking moisture that bobwhite hens search for food instead of nesting.

Recent rainfall in some areas is expected to enable the dogged little game birds to launch into reproduction activity.

Meanwhile, mourning does have been nesting on schedule since they are capable of flying many miles daily to feed grounds where rainfall has occurred and rations are more abundant.

Mrs. Woody Ervin, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baker, left Saturday for Houston.
