The Santa Anna Mountaineers played a brilliant style of football last Friday night as they romped the Baird Bears, 34 to 13. The Mountaineers proved that they could score from anywhere on the field and that they could field. They stopped the asked to come in support of Indian. Bears three times inside the 5 yard line. Perhaps, you have wonderasked when you are admitted as a vatient to the hospital. You find vourself having to remember your middle name which you haven't used for years. You have to sometimes "dig" to remember the actual day, month, and year of your birth, where you were born, the church you attend, and many other questions about yourself that may seem unnecessary to you.

Did you ever pick up the telephone directory of a large city and turn the pages to find how many people were listed with the same name as yours? You may realize from doing this that there are often four to six "Carl Smiths"—listed but only one "Carl Arnold Smith."

terested in only one "Carl A. McCarrell. Smith" and that is "Carl Arnold Smith."

The reason for all these questions is that this admission procedure is the initial start of the individual medical record of the hospital stay for 'Carl Arnold Smith'; no one else; and it is very important to the patient, doctor, nurse, and other hospital employees that this medical record be identified as "Mr. Carl Annold Smith's ' record and his alone.

The patient's medical record is made up of many reports from the doctor, nurses food service personnel, techinicians, and sometimes from experts behind the scenes.

The medical record will contain the patient's preliminary diagnosis (admitting diagnosis, symptoms of the present filness, the patient's medical hitory, including the family medical history, findings in the preliminary physical examination and in examinations made during the patient's stay; orders for tests and treatments in special departments of the hospital such as laboratory, EKG and x-ray, and reports of the results; orders for a record of administration of drugs and medications; the type of diet the patient needs; progress notes for each day and night the patient is hospitalized. reports of treatments carried out-from the simplest such as "sat up on side of bed" to the detailed record of a surgiral eneration—and finally. the patient's condition and final diagnosis at the time

With the expanding advances in medical science, and the increase in the number of services which make diagnosis and teatment more precise and more effective.

the medical record has be come increasingly important and increasingly complex. Each time your doctor see you in the hospital, he checks your medical record which brief illness. shows how and when his ored why so many questions are ders were carried out; the results of tests he ordered, your temperature chart, pulse rate chart and all the nursing care and progress.

The medical record legaliselongs to the hospital. The ospital is charged with its maintenance, storage and safety. It becomes a permanent record of the hospital and except when your doctor recalls the chart for review, may not be released to anyone without the patient's subpoena,
