Such recertification does not constitute approval of any specific Federal aid. The Workable Program is a showing by the community of how it intends to use its own

Capital NEWS

Austin — First flurries of activity on the 1968 presidential campaign front remind that it is going to be a long, long political year.

Entry of Sen. Robert Kennedy into the contest for the Democratic nomination sets off more speculation than action.

Less than a week after Mr. Kennedy's announcement, however, a Beaumont college teacher announced he had accepted an invitation from the senator's office to head up his drive in Texas. Ron Platt, chairman of the small group known as Texas Liberal Democrats and a Lamar Tech assistant professor, said the Texas Committee for Kennedy office will open an Austin office.

Dissenting Democrats of Texas reaffirmed its support of Sen. Eugene McCarthy for president despite Kennedy's emergence. Co-chairman Don Allford said DDT welcomes efforts of the Kennedy backers and expects help from them in some areas in opposing President Johnson. DDT claims a force of about 3,000 working to organize precinct conventions for McCarthy.

On the opposite end of the political stage, supporters of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace held their state convention here and kicked off their drive for 14,259 signatures to petitions. Petitions are necessary to get Wallace's name on the November ballot as presidential candidate of the new American Party headed in Texas by former State Senator Weaver Moore of Houston. Signers must not participate in Democratic or Republican primaries or conventions.

State Democratic Committee, meanwhile, has emphasized its support of President Johnson. Gov. John Connally has announced he intends to head a Texas delegation to the national convention committed to the president's renomination.

To date, there is little evidence of any major effort to take the Texas Democratic conventions away from President Johnson.

Texas Republicans, already leaning toward Richard Nixon, were left one less choice when Gov. Nelson announced he would not campaign for the nomination.

The Court of Criminal Appeals upheld conviction and life sentence of San Antonio Jorge Maldonado for the murder of a used car salesman. The same court affirmed the 99-year sentence of a Houston area drug addict for possession of heroin.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SPEAKS
Atty Gen. Crawford Martin said State Liquor Control Board records and orders should not be made available for public inspection except as the result of legal proceedings. Apparently, he classes hearings before LCB administrator on violation allegations as legal proceedings.

In other opinions, Martin concluded that:
* Abolished "city" of La Grulla in Starr County can hold a new incorporation election in less than a year from the date its abolition was resolved in court, last Nov. 15.

* A school district that had issued no unlimited tax bonds can revert to limited tax status under a different statute and issue bonds subject to voter approval.

APPOINTMENTS
Former Atty. Gen. Will Wilson of Austin and Baylor University President Abner McCall were named co-chairman of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas. The Council has as its initial goal defeat of the May 4 referendum on pari-mutuel betting.

State bar headquarters announced R. G. Jarvis of McAllen and George H. Nelson of Lubbock have been nominated for president-elect of the State Junior Bar. George F. Christie of Fort Worth and James Greenwood of Houston are vice presidential nominees; and Jack Norwood, Tyler, and Robert R. Sanders of Amarillo are nominees for secretary treasurer.

DRAFT CALL UP
State draft boards must furnish 2,378 men in April and, for the first time in two years, part of the group will go into the U. S. Marine Corps.

The figure compares with the quota of 1,947 for the Army in March and is the largest monthly call for draft boards since October, 1966, when Texas' share was 2,845.

Local boards will send 8,500 men to the armed forces examining and entrance stations in April for pre-induction physical and mental examinations in preparation to fill future quotas. March total was 7,200.

April induction and pre-induction quotas were mailed to local boards by state Selective Service headquarters in mid-March. National quota for April is 48,000, of which the Army will get 44,000 and the Marines 4,000. Draftees are in 19-25 age bracket.

TRAFFIC DECREASE
Deaths decrease
Traffic deaths in Texas last year totaled 3,367, according to latest Department of Public Safety tabulations.

This was a decrease of 1.15 per cent (first in seven years) from 1966 when a record of 3,406 fatalities from auto accidents were recorded. DPS noted that there was a five per cent increase in vehicle miles traveled in the state last year, for a death ratio of 5.8 persons killed for each 100,000,000 miles of travel. This is a decrease in the death rate of 6.2 in 1966.

A total of 885,268 traffic accidents were reported in the state during 1967, with economic loss estimated at $793,000,000 and 205,000 injuries.

NURSES RECRUITED
The State Board of Nurse Examiners registered 1,741 more nurses in 1967 than in 1966 when 36,862 were registered, and most of the new ones came from out of the state.

Of all the new nurses, 1,494 moved to Texas from other states. Texas lost only 778 to other states. Also, 821 new RNs were registered after graduation from nursing school.

Recruitment programs by the Texas Hospital Association and the Health Careers Program were given much of the credit for the increased number of nurses. "And there's a lot of people just like to move to Texas," an official said.

MIXED DRINK DEBATE SHAPING UP
One of the great debates of the season seems to be over the method of legalizing sale of liquor-by-drink.

Former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, campaigning for governor, argues no constitutional bill can be written on the subject, and that an amendment to the state constitution's "open saloon" ban is necessary to legalize mixed drinks. Eugene Locke is campaigning heavily for local option mixed drinks bill, as has Governor Connally.

Atty. Gen. Martin, called on for advice by the House committee studying liquor laws, sidestepped the issue. He sent the committee the 29-year-old opinions "in obedience to command of the people." While acknowledging the legislature can change laws, Martin suggested that

Dolph Briscoe

Dolph Briscoe Asks For Governorship

Uvalde—Hard work and Dolph Briscoe go hand-in-hand.

Work is the name of the game so far as this prominent Texas businessman-rancher is concerned because he has built his fame and reputation on just that.

Briscoe, of Uvalde, who is a candidate for the Texas governorship, is famous in the Lone Star state's farming and ranching circles for taking on tough jobs for no pay and coming up with the tough jobs well done.

Briscoe, who would be the first to deny that he is a miracle man, has the happy faculty for "coming up with a miracle," fellow Uvalde citizens and friends are fond of saying.

"He can make it do everything but rain on command," says one, "and sometimes I'd be willing to swear he can do that, too, if he puts his mind to it."

Briscoe's formula is simple. "Progress" in his mind is the keynote and action is his byword.

The gubernatorial candidate qualifications and accomplishments are almost too numerous to mention.

He is a banker, businessman, civic leader and a former state legislator. He is married to the former Janey Slaughter of Austin, and has three children, Janie, 17, Chip 15 and Cele 11.

The tall, distinguished-looking Texan looks upon his campaign to eradicate the screwworm in Texas as one of the landmarks of his career.

Several years ago, when many people, including some scientists felt the screwworm pest would never be conquered in the Lone Star State, Briscoe never lost heart or faith.

He worked hard for the success of the program, and in the process, he was instrumental in saving Texas stockmen tens of millions of dollars.

Briscoe is at present completing his fourth term as president of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation, which directs the screwworm eradication program and has served as president of the Mohair Council of America.

This intense, hard-driving gubernatorial candidate has been a ranchman virtually since he was born in Uvalde, in 1923.

His father, Dolph Briscoe, Sr., was a prominent ranchman, businessman, wool and mohair dealer and agriculture leader before him.

It was from his father that Briscoe developed his love for the land, and his fellow-feeling for the men who work the land.

He is a graduate of the University of Texas and was first elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1948 where he served eight years.

He was never opposed for re-election.

During his tenure he authored the Farm-to-Market Road Act of 1949. Today more than 36,000 miles of paved rural roads are included in the Texas farm and ranch road system. He also sponsored the Rural Telephone Enabling Bill.

Briscoe was one of the major supporters of a bill to increase teachers' pay and helped launch an investigation of the Veterans' land scandal which erupted in the state in the years following World War II.

The scope of the scandal deeply disturbed the bluff, honest Briscoe since he himself, was a war veteran and had the interests of the veteran at heart.

He entered the Army during the war as a private and was discharged as a commissioned officer after serving in the China-Burma-India theater.

Briscoe is past president of the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, has served as a director of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, and has also served on the Texas Beef Council, the National Agriculture Research Advisory Committee of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. (Pol. Adv.—Paid for by Briscoe for Governor Committee, Judge Ross E. Doughty, chairman.)

TAX MAN SAM SEZ

According to some folks, it ought to be worth something to live in Texas. Well, it is. The Texas community property law gives taxpayers three extra income tax benefits. First, you may qualify for an additional $100 dividend exclusion. Second, you can claim an additional $1000 capital loss by filing separate returns, and third, you can qualify for an additional $228 in retirement income credit. There is also a new benefit available this year in a few rare cases—if you file separate returns you can claim an extra $150 medical insurance deduction.

LAKE BROWNWOOD PARK GETS FEDERAL GRANT

Austin — A $117,150 Federal matching grant has been approved for development of outdoor recreation facilities at Lake Brownwood State Recreation park, 18 miles north of Brownwood in Brown County, according to Will Odum, chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

These funds will be matched by appropriations made earlier by the State legislature in a $234,300 development project at the 538-acre park.

Facilities to be included in the project are trailer camping units, picnic units, tent camping units, restrooms, a service and storage building, roads and parking areas, utilities and landscaping. The project also includes design, layout and site preparation. The park was acquired in 1934 and is located adjacent to 10,000 surface-acre Lake Brownwood.

Odum said this project marks the 23rd approval of funds for State park development from the Federal Land and Water Conservation Act Funds. The Federal Land and Water Conservation Fund Program is administered on the federal level by the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, U. S. Department of the Interior. It's funds are derived from the sale of surplus government property, federal motorboat fuels tax, the sale of the $7 Golden Eagle Passport and other outdoor recreation fees.

Odum is State liaison officer for the fund and responsible for reviewing projects and proposals submitted for Federal assistance.

KENAF

It may be possible to grow a cheaper supply of pulp for making paper and paper products and give Texas farmers another cash crop, says Dr. Eli Whiteley of Texas A & M University's Department of Soil and Crop Sciences. Kenaf is the crop. It is an annual which grows as tall as 15 feet and will provide paper manufacturers with a high quality pulp. It is cheaper to produce and to harvest than pulpwood from cultivated forests, he says. It will grow just about anywhere that cotton is grown, either dryland or under irrigation. Transportation to paper mills is listed by the scientist as a major current problem.

Those born 8-01 through 9-03 can enroll early in 1969 if they miss out this time."

Outdoors In Texas

A hunter steals into the sullen woods as daylight is just becoming a promise. He finds a good spot to sit down and wait.

As light leaks through the canopy of treetops overhead, he suddenly hears a squirrel barking from a nearby tree. Slowly he eased a tiny thin rubber ball with a perforated diaphragm over a nipple in one hand, he taps on it with the forefinger of the other.

The short puffs of air pushed through the diaphragm make a sound that resembles a fresky squirrel greeting the new day. Almost immediately one of the arboreal animals answers. The hunter talks to it again. From the crown of the nearby tree it bounces into the open. The hunter raises his rifle.

To me this is one of the most fascinating ways of all to hunt the ubiquitous bushy tail, luring it into the open with the aid of a call. And it is one of the most productive, too.

Squirrel calls of different shapes and designs are available in most sporting goods stores. Anyone with a little practice can become proficient enough to fool one of the curious squirrels.

The best time to hunt is that magic hour from day-break until soon after sun-up. Best season is the fall when the bushytails are most loquacious and most susceptible to a call.

This is perfect sport for the 22 rifle, because a squirrel brought out by a call will be set up for a standing shot. Also, the mild report doesn't greatly alarm the critters and often the patient hunter can bag several by never moving from one position.

Calling squirrels is nothing new. Hunters have been using various sounds for fooling bushytails since almost the beginning of the sport of hunting squirrels.

Although the call is intended only to dupe the critter into exposing itself by answering, still it isn't rare for one to be lured to the barking sound. Frequently a bushytail will come scampering down from a tree and race merrily toward whatever is causing the barking sound.

Sometimes, while walking through the woods and hunting, you might see a squirrel in a tree, only to lose sight of it. The squirrel is a master of the disappearing act. One can hunker down on a limb and avoid detection. Try tapping on the call. Sometimes this sounds gets the best of the squirrel's curiosity and it will try to steal a peek. Often that look can be fatal.

There is no set rule on how the call should be manipulated. Sometimes a steady, incessant call works best; on others an occasional bark, followed by a period of silence, is more effective. The hunter who works his call every time a squirrel actually barks won't go wrong.

The wily bushytail is one of the trickiest small animals to hunt. But it has one weakness, a loud mouth. Exploit this weakness and you will put meat in the stew pot most every time.
