Mountain Echoes

By Barbara Kingsbery

An interesting "find" in the old Woodmen of the World building, above Moore Mecantile, was a packet of letters and applications for positions in the Santa Anna School for the 1913 term. The late J. T. Overby was president of the school board at that time, and letters were from prospective teachers from several Texas towns.

Of special interest were recommendation blanks with questions no longer asked about prospective teachers. Some of the questions on the printed form are as follows:

- Is applicant related to you by blood or marriage?
- How long have you known her?
- In what relations have you been connected?
- Is she well educated?
- Is she accurate in little things?
- Is she clear-headed?
- Is she self-possessed?
- What appearance does she make?
- Is she a good disciplinarian?
- Upon what general principle does she depend to maintain discipline?
- Is she punctual?
- Is her life exemplary?
- Does she attempt to carry on a social campaign either outside or inside school hours?
- Is she prudent in speech and manners?
- Is she popular?
- Does she dance?
- Play cards?

Our local school will begin the fall term in just five weeks. The summer months are spent getting buildings and grounds ready for the coming year, and much work has been done on the local campus this past month. Probably everyone has noticed the new paint job on the gymnasium, which looks especially nice. We should all be proud of the attractive school campus.

Flag-flying at the News office during "Honor America" week came to an abrupt halt Friday evening about dark. An irate young man from Colorado City, evidently unknowing that flags could lawfully remain on display day and night during the week, hauled our flag off the pole and was making off with it when apprehended by the nightwatchman Jim Lovelady and Sy Burden. The young man was noticed by Mrs. Burden, and also seen by other passers-by. It is supposed that the other flags in town—and there were several flying—would have also been taken down by the uninformed youth.

We noticed that our flag was gone, and are happy to have it back.

The local National Guard unit will return home this weekend from the two-week camp at North Fort Hood. A number of Santa Anna men are in the Coleman County unit which is a part of the Brownwood group. The unit left for camp on June 28.

SMITHS MOVE FROM S-ANNA

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Smith, Vicki, Dick and Lori, moved from Santa Anna Saturday to make their home at Taylor where he will be teacher and coach in the school. He served as high school principal during the past year.

The Smiths returned to Santa Anna Monday, enroute to California for a visit with her family.

Santa Anna Population Shows Decrease in '70

Preliminary census figures released recently showed Santa Anna among the number of area towns showing a decrease in population from 1960. The decennial headcount this spring showed Santa Anna to have a population of 1260. The figure is 60 below the 1960 total of 1320.

Largest gain for small cities in the area was at Clyde, where a 43 per cent increase was recorded. From 1,116 in 1960, the Clyde population jumped to 1,593.

It was pointed out that college students were counted at the cities in which their schools are located and this is believed to have cost two or three percentage points to small towns which have no institutions of higher learning.

Coleman County population showed a loss of 2,508 during past ten year period, dropping from 12,458 in 1960, to 9,950 in 1970 census.

Preliminary census counts for area towns:

In Our Opinion

By W. T. HAYS

BALANCING THE BUDGET seems to be a thing of the past, if it ever was balanced. It has never been balanced since this writer can remember. Every year the federal government manages to spend more than it takes in some way.

Just barely in time, to save a lot of trouble, the Senate passed a measure temporarily raising the national debt limit to $377 billion. It had to be done by July 1 in order to prevent numerous financial problems.

Before the passage, however, Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska submitted an amendment which had considerable public appeal, but virtually no chance to pass. It would have suspended Congressional pay raises until the budget was balanced. It failed by a vote of 56 to 29.

In debate on the amendment, Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana said if Congress wanted to accomplish something along this line they could do it by cutting the salary of the President if he didn't balance the budget.

Of course both the President and Congress are responsible in different ways for balancing the budget. They are also responsive to public demands, consequently, when we get right down to it, the one who is really responsible for balancing the budget is the people.

As long as we demand the continuation of our pet projects the budget will continue to soar.

Most of us are willing to have the projects of some one else cut in order to balance the budget, but we don't want Congress or the President to cut expenses by paring down the financial support of the things we support.

When, and if, the public wants the budget balanced it will be. But we must expect to sacrifice some government services that we now have in order for that to happen.

Naturally, we can see that much money is going down the drain for bureaus that have apparently no function or else overlap something that another bureau is also doing, but other than those, any service that will affect us in any way, we tend to want continued, balanced budget or not.

We can't help but wonder how long any business would stay in operation run the way we run the government. We know it wouldn't last long, yet we are unwilling to insist that business principles be used in federal spending.

When it comes down to Congress blaming the President and vice-versa, that is the pot calling the kettle black. They are both responsible.

But, let him without sin cast the first stone.

SENATOR FULBRIGHT accused Vice President Agnew of stirring up radicals in his speeches when he appeared on Face the Nation television program Sunday.

It would be amusing if it wasn't so tragic that the Senator would make such a statement after all the radical repercussions he has caused in statements he has made.

We believe that the Vice President is expressing the sentiments of the majority of the people of this nation when he insists on law and order and expresses his generally conservative point of view.

Probably no spokesman of this decade has caused more violence and lawlessness than has Senator Fulbright, McGovern, Kennedy, and a few others. Their statements have caused the young to riot, and have given aid and comfort to the enemy, where they have refused to negotiate for a peaceful solution to the Vietnam conflict.

There may be a lot wrong with this country, but we don't believe Vice President Agnew is one of them.

"You might wonder," notes the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, "as we enter the decade of the trillion-dollar economy, what $1 trillion could buy. According to Columnist Sylvia Porter, with $1 trillion you could buy every American family a home costing close to $20,000, give every American individual a round-the-world trip, or pay for a four-year college education for 100 million students, at $2,500 a year."

STATE Capital NEWS
By VERN SANFORD

Austin—A blue-ribbon insurance study committee has recommended exploring Texas' compulsory auto liability coverage and a careful look at allegations that garages charge more for policy-covered repairs.

Report went to Gov. Preston Smith prior to the State Insurance Board hearing July 14-15 on inclusion of insurance company investment income in the auto rate-making formula.

Smith indicated that the Board may not be ready this soon to evaluate the full effect of the formula change which also is backed by the study committee he named last summer after an auto policy rate hike was recommended.

Most observers think motorists are in for another increase in their premiums after the main August 17 rate hearing, regardless of whether the board determines that investments should be figured in the base.

Study committee, headed by former Gov. Price Daniel, noted that North Carolina rates appear to be consistently low, although it also has mandatory liability coverage. Massachusetts and New York, other mandatory auto liability insurance states, have higher rates.

Committee recommended that the Legislature look into ways to stop "excessive charges being made on repairs of insured automobiles" which, in turn, lead to escalating rates year after year.

Insurance industry is expected to ask new increases as high as 15 to 20 per cent at August hearing.

Smith may ask Daniel's committee to examine the Board's final recommendation, as they did in 1969 (when rate adjustment was 9.9 per cent upward instead of 11.4 as originally recommended by the Board). However, the majority of the committee is cool toward going into more extended hearings like those required by their study last year.

CAPITOL ADDITION ASKED—An important part of state government may be going underground if a building Commission proposal is approved.

Commission, in new budget request, laid out plan for a 45,000-square-foot, $2.5 million underground addition to the capitol building, providing office space for legislators. Enlargement would be in a natural depression to the west of the present historic structure.

Commission also proposed these new projects:

- $1.26 million revamping of the north approaches to the capitol.
- $3 million parking facility for 320 cars.
- $2,700,000 renovation of the old Highway building for use by the Parks and Wildlife Department when Highway Department's new headquarters is completed.
- $200,000 face-lifting of old Parks and Wildlife offices in the virtually new John Reagan State Office Building—for use by the Welfare Department when P & W moves.
- $25,000 in repairs to the Governor's mansion.

COURTS SPEAK—Court of Criminal Appeals upheld a Fort Worth trial court order blocking further civil suits under the Sunday closing law until 13 cases are finally adjudicated.

State officials have taken to the 10th U. S. Court of Appeals their fight to stop spraying of land in northeast New Mexico with pesticide Toxaphene (to control tent caterpillars). State claims Toxaphene would jeopardize the purity of Lake Meredith and thereby endanger water supplies of 11 Texas cities in the Panhandle and Great Plains.

Houston Court of Civil Appeals here held J. Weingarten Inc. of Houston is entitled to recover $19,274 in chain store tax payments.

Houston Court of Civil Appeals upheld constitutionality of the Texas Clean Air Act. Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin brought suit in Galveston Co-nty District Court to prevent 145 developers from encroaching on public beaches.

APPOINTMENTS—George P. Taylor, formerly of Shamrock and McAllen, is now director of the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity.

He succeeds Bob G. Allen, native of Hamilton, who moved to a new position in the state-local relations division of the governor's office.

Governor Smith announced that C. R. Hutcheson of Lubbock will serve as executive assistant to State Democratic Executive Committee Elmer C. Baum of Austin.

Smith named Winston W. Lorenz, Stockdale mayor, to the Board of Directors of San Antonio River Authority, succeeding C. W. Millikin Jr. of Floresville, who resigned.

Robert E. Stewart took oath of office as State Banking Commissioner on July 1.

AG OPINIONS—Person who faces drivers license suspension as a result of refusing to submit to chemical breath analysis is entitled to have his hearing in the county of his residence, Attorney General Martin says. Martin held that county attorneys can, but don't have to, represent the state in such proceedings.

In other new opinions Martin ruled that:

- Special option purchase agreement between the State

Department of Agriculture and International Business Machines Corporation on data-processing equipment is constitutional, since there is no obligation to spend money beyond revenues available at the time the debt is due.

• Legislature left to Commissioners Court determination as to whether office space should be furnished by the county for its home demonstration agent and county farm agent. In the absence of contractual obligation, says the AG, the Court isn't required to provide offices but has authorization to do so.

GAS RATE HIKE—State Railroad Commission granted Pioneer Natural Gas Company, serving 61 West Texas communities, a new rate of 32 cents per 1,000 cubic feet on its gas.

That amounts to four cents of the 643 cent increase the company requested.

Rate is still subject to approval by individual city governing bodies before it finally goes into effect.

CHARTERS FORFEITED—Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. announced that his office is forfeiting charters of 10,907 corporations for failure to pay state franchise taxes.

Figure, said Dies, is almost double last year's and indicates to him "this is a barometer reflecting general economic decline throughout the nation." GRANTS APPROVED—A large range of new federal grants were approved for Texas agencies and programs. They include:

$531,286 for child development (Head Start) in Cameron County; $709,415 for emergency food and medical services; $150,605 for family planning programs; $50,135 for police tactical squad experiment; $42,000 for youth opportunity development program; and $30,000 to establish uniform procedures for recording and reporting criminal justice information.

SHORT SNORTS

MISS GOODWIN, MR. HORTON WED IN BROWNWOOD CHURCH RITES.

Miss Sandra Kaye Goodwin and Dee Wayne Horton were united in marriage Friday, July 3, at 8:00 p. m. in the Calvary Baptist Church in Brownwood, with Rev. Kenneth Leverett officiating for the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goodwin of Brownwood, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goodwin of Santa Anna. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Billie Horton of Brownwood.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire A-line gown with a detachable chapel-length train. The dress of peau de soie had appliques of pearl-embroidered Belgium lace. Her veil of illusion was attached to a peau bow. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies and blue carnations atop a white Bible, a gift of the WYA organization at the church.

Miss Peggy Goodwin, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her formal A-line gown was of pastel blue peau de soie, accented by a darker blue sash at the empire waist. Linda Goodwin, sister of the bride, and Ladena Jones were bridesmaids. Their dresses were fashioned after that of the maid of honor.

Billy Wayne Echols of Fort Worth served his brother-in-law as best man. Randall James and Dennis Morris were groomsmen and ushers.

Jeffrey Goodwin, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. Tim Goodwin, brother of the bride, and Darrell Jones, served as candlelighters.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was laid with a white lace cloth over blue satin. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature wedding bells.

For going away, the bride chose an A-line dress of ice pink double knit with white accessories. Following the wedding trip the couple will reside in Fort Worth where the groom is employed at Safeway. The couple are spring graduates of Brownwood High School and the bride has been employed at Dr. H. B. Allen's office in Brownwood.

ASC News . . .

by Joe K. Taylor

Wheat checks were mailed July 1 covering 169 farms in Coleman County. These checks totaled $80,553.63. On the same day checks were mailed on 88 cotton farms totaling $73,066.73.

Thanks to the fine cooperation of participating farmers, we are well on the way to completing payments in the feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs. The U. S. Department of Agriculture this year made a commitment to make farm payments earlier than ever before, and we are keeping that commitment.

Budget restraints this year made it impossible to make any advance payments and any final payments before July 1. This is the beginning of the Government's fiscal year.

Due to near disastrous conditions which prevailed in the county in the spring planting season, many producers were unable to get their crops in and certified at an early date.

Farmers should now certify their crops at their earliest convenience in order that they may receive their payments. If the farmers can all certify within the first two weeks of this month, most of the payments can be expected in July.

The final date for certification is August 1.

Producers participating in the farm programs have earned payments by giving up the use of productive cropland that would otherwise have been put into cash crops or income-producing uses. Instead, they maintain the land in conserving uses which help prevent soil erosion and air and water pollution. The farm programs in which they participate help achieve a balance between commodity supply and demand. They also help producers work together to curb excess production and strengthen markets.

The success of the early-payment plan has hinged on close cooperation by farmers, and results have been gratifying. Virtually all Coleman County participants accurately certified their compliance with farm program requirements as soon as they could. Spot checks made by ASCS personnel on individual farms throughout county have revealed a very low degree of error in reporting of planted and diverted acres and conserving-use acres by producers in the feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs.

Annie V. Ranne Buried Sunday

Funeral services were held in Kerrville Sunday for Mrs. Annie Velma Ranne, 57, of Mountain Home, a sister of Mrs. Oneta James of Santa Anna. Mrs. Ranne died early Friday in a Kerrville hospital. Born in Spur on June 13, 1913, she had lived in Kerr County the past 20 years. Survivors are the husband; one son Dean Ranne of Mountain Home; a brother, Frank Wells of Trickham, two sisters, Mrs. Oneta James of Santa Anna, and Mrs. Ermine Brien of Munday.

DANGER LURKS IN SPRAY CANS

In Victorian novels, danger always lurked in a mist. But there is a far more deadly mist in every household today. From morning to night we use aerosol cans—shaving cream, insecticides, paint, disinfectant, breath fresheners, perfume hair spray—and their increasing use is becoming a serious health hazard.

Many gases used in aerosols are poisonous. Breathing their fumes can cause a wide range of reactions from mild discomfort to grave illness—and even death.

Carbon tetrachloride—an ingredient of many household cleaners—when inhaled in a poorly ventilated room can cause nausea and vomiting, liver damage, convulsions, and may kill. Add nervousness, coma, muscular weakness, skin rash—the possible after effects of many poisonous aerosol products—and you have a deadly threat stocked in the home.

At least 36 deaths in less than two years has been caused by youngsters sniffing the gas to get "high." Inhaling the gas can be quickly fatal by disrupting the normal pumping of the heart.

The simple operation of an aerosol spray makes people careless. Used correctly, they are safe. If abused, they can be harmful.

Read the directions on a can carefully. Use them only in well-ventilated areas. Do not puncture cans. Do not expose them to heat. Keep them out of children's reach. For more information on breathing hazards, contact your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

The editor, accompanied by A. D. Pettit, vocational agriculture teacher, paid a visit to the Todd Dairy last Thursday afternoon during the milking hour. Mr. Todd recently installed a new milking machine and has been busy several days training cows to be processed the modern way. One machine is a one unit and the other is a two unit milker. After a cow becomes accustomed to the machine, it is much better and more sanitary than the old hand way of extracting milk from the cow.

An 18-month-old baby was lost Friday night at a political rally in Oklahoma, after the mother of the child, who had been sleepy placed her in the rumble seat of a car she thought belonged to a neighbor. The owner, who was not the neighbor, was called from his bed during the night after neighbors heard the child crying. The mother had failed to see the car leave the rally.

Electric Co-op To Give Refunds To 1960 Users

Members of the Coleman County Electric Cooperative who received electric service from the CCEC in 1960 will be receiving more than $189,044 in patronage refunds this year.

The amount each member will receive represents about 26 per cent of each dollar spent for electricity by that member during 1960.

Because of a heavy work load in the office this year, the patronage refund checks, normally sent out in July, will be about two months late this year.

Patronage refunds that are returned to the Cooperative members represent money taken in over the actual cost of delivering power to the members for that given year.

This is the eleventh consecutive year for the Coleman County Electric Cooperative members to receive refund checks.

Samantha Taylor

by Leona Bruce

Sometimes it is hard to realize that the lives of many of us were touched by survivors of Indian raids, so long ago they seem.

In an earlier article we mentioned Mrs. Samantha Taylor, who was born about 1849 in Gillespie County and came to live in Coleman County in 1922. Of her age she was never sure; "Ma's book (Bible) got tore up, so from then on she figured out our ages the best she could."

Samantha's childhood was spent on the small rivers in Gillespie County, where they had a bounty of what they could raise, but little money to buy other needs. She was married soon after the Civil War, in which her husband, James, fought in a frontier battalion; two of her sisters also married Taylors, brothers of James, all sons of Matthew Taylor whose cabin was on the site of the present town of Harper, and they all lived nearby.

By 1870 the raids of the Comanches and sometimes the Kiowas were a commonplace, during the "light of the moon." The settlers had almost no protection against these raids, most of them being too poor to own an extra gun or to keep hired hands for guards. The Indians came riding into the settlements or to the lonely cabins, killing, looting and burning, and frequently kidnapping children to raise as their own.

Matthew Taylor's cabin was struck one afternoon by a band of Indians. He was away from home, but his wife, her mother, two young daughters-in-law and five small children were there. One of the young women, Gil Taylor, was caught near a spring where she had gone for a bucket of water, and she was lanced and scalped, still screaming. The old grandmother slipped into the cowlot and hid among the gentle cows; the Indians broke down the door of the cabin and grabbed Mrs. Taylor, beating and scalping her, while the terrified Caroline and the small children huddled helplessly against the wall.

After ransacking the cabin and taking what they wanted, the Indians caught the Taylor horses and forced the young women and all five children to mount and ride off with them. Surviving the long rides, the constant hunger and beatings and other mistreatments, all six of the Taylor captives reached the reservations in the Indian Territory, where they were seen by the Indian Agents and were soon bought back and sent to their homes.

The widower of the murdered girl, Gil, soon chose her young sister, Samantha as his new wife, and they were married in Frederickeburg by a justice of the peace, Speck Ratliff, when she was 13 or 14 years old. As the children came along they got very little schooling because of the dread of Indians. Some older relatives would teach them to write their names, and perhaps a few words of spelling, but there was never any money for any newspaper, and to own a book was unthought of.

Samantha became a "doctor-woman." Learning all she could of home remedies, she learned to look along the creeks and rivers for saffron, "balmoney," fox-glove and other herbs which were known to have medicinal elements. Camomile was a prized plant, the settlers keeping some of it growing in an old bucket or gourd so that wherever they moved they would not be without it. She tried many kinds of poultices and made "tea" of various wild or domesticated herbs.

Some of the Taylor children, when grown, came to Coleman County to farm or to work as laborers, and after the death of her husband, in 1921, she came here to be with them. Late in life, she moved into Santa Anna, where she maintained a home until her death in 1953. Her last years were made easier by her receiving a government pension for her husband's service in the Confederate army, the only ready money she ever had. "It was not the German war," she would say, "it was the old war, the first war they ever had."

In her neat little home, she would look around her and feel very thankful for many things. And among them, she would say, was that she did not have to live her old age in dread of Indians.

Proof Of Age Necessary For Social Security

Concerned about proving your age when you file for social security benefits? Don Austin social security field representative for Coleman County says this is a problem for many people. "Of course, with a birth or baptismal certificate recorded at or within 5 years of your birth, you have no problem as that's all you'll need," he added.

In the absence of a birth or baptismal certificate, other evidence must be used. Some good documents are an early school record, family Bible, or school or Federal census record.

Austin said if you do not have any of those documents, you can submit a combination of several proofs. These include your delayed birth certificate, one or more insurance policies, a child's birth certificate which shows your age at the time of the child's birth, driver's license, military record, or voting registration or an old poll tax receipt.

According to Austin, you should obtain proofs in advance of retirement to avoid a delay in your first social security check.

The Social Security Administration recognizes the occasional difficulty in obtaining adequate proof of age, and will help you as necessary.

Check the social security travel schedule at the post office and see Austin if you need such help.

Accent On Health

It's often been called the near perfect food, and rightly so, because milk contains more life-giving properties than almost any other food. But this very fact makes the control of the sanitation and quality of milk and dairy products a constant concern of the Texas State Department of Health.

In Texas, the Legislature has given the Commissioner of Health Dr. J. E. Peavy, the authority to set up specifications and requirements for the control of sanitation of milk and milk products. In passing the Texas Milk Law, they also gave city health departments the authority to adopt regulations in conformance with those released by the Commissioner.

"Proper handling" as interpreted by these health departments means the production of clean milk from cows which are tested and proven to be in good health. As a continuing safeguard, the milk must handled under rigidly enforced sanitary conditions to prevent its being contaminated from the time of its production until it reaches the processing plant. It is likewise maintained at temperatures which inhibit bacterial growth. After the milk arrives at the plant, its sanitation continues to be rigidly maintained through proper pasteurization and final packaging in sanitary containers. With all of the safeguards which are routinely and continuously applied, the possibility of milk becoming a carrier of pathogenic diseases is virtually eliminated.

The Milk and Dairy Products Division of the State Health Department is responsible for public health protection by regulating milk and dairy products, including butter, ice cream, cheese, and the like, produced, processed, and consumed in Texas. The division also has the responsibility of inspecting Grade A producer dairies, milk processing plants, receiving stations, and other by-products plants that ship milk and dairy products into the state of Texas. Approximately 3,887 inspections in seven states other than Texas have been made by Health Department personnel during the first five months of this year. Permits have been issued to about 200 over-the-road tankers.

Here in Texas, local health departments join with the state agency in maintaining frequent inspections of the 4,178 producer dairies, 77 processing plants, 13 receiving stations, 79 transfer stations, 68 manufacturing plants, 10 single service plants, and 197 trucks and vans in operation within the state. Frequent samples are taken and checked at several regional health laboratories, as well as the state lab, for sanitation, bacterial count, and butterfat content.

ELIZABETH HALE

by Leona Bruce

This is the story of a pioneer teacher, and of education along the frontier in the 1890s.

Elizabeth Dollahite Hale was a widow. She had come to the Concho Peak community with her husband, Thomas J. Hale, and their small children, arriving from Lockhart on November 9, 1892. He had bought a farm here, and they built a one-room house of new lumber to live in. She had taught school at Lockhart, and in 1893 her two sisters, Anna and Emma Dollahite, followed the Hales to Concho Peak, got a contract to teach the small school there, and they also bought a farm where they could live.

By 1894 Hale was a sick man, and the next year he died of cancer. There were six children; Charles was about 15 years old, and Sammie, Claude, Gussie, Floyd and Velma were younger. The farm was partly paid for, but the hard work of raising crops had to go on. Hale had had a long and painful illness, requiring Elizabeth's constant care. Now, in her grief and exhaustion, she must go into the fields and try to get some crop ready to sell to buy the necessities for the home.

If only she could get a school to teach! This was what she knew and liked best, and she soon saw that the labor of the farm and uncertainties of weather would be too much for her, with six people to share the money if there was any. Anna and Emma lived not far away and taught the school in their district; she would have to teach somewhere else, if she could get a teacher's certificate, as her own had expired.

While the plowing, planting and hoeing went on, Elizabeth's determination grew. She would teach! She still had her books, and Charles's books also covered the subjects on which she must pass examinations to get a certificate; requirements were lax, she had always loved to read and study, and to teach in a rural school one had only to know the subjects taught up through the seventh grade. While she rested at the end of the cotton row, she drilled herself in parts of speech, the presidents of the United States, dates of Texas battles, square root.

There would be a summer normal school at Coleman, a three weeks course ended by two days of examinations; the children could stay with Anna and Emma, she would raise the money somehow to pay room rent, she could eat foods taken from home, she would come home on weekends. Most of the other students were young girls, not so intent and serious as Elizabeth, and as she took test after test she knew that most of her papers were perfect.

Riding home on the Leaday mail hack she read again and again the valued four-year certificate. Now she and the children had a future, now she could have security. The next hurdle was to secure a school, and before she had left Coleman she had consulted with the County Superintendent which schools had already made contracts, which were near enough for her to drive each day. Concho Peak was out of the question, as Anna and Emma would teach there. Only one possibility was left, a one-room school six miles from the farm, but it was one of the best in the county, paying $40 a month, and a six month term as well.

Elizabeth had known tragedy and disaster all her life. Born during the Civil War, her babyhood had been shadowed by the danger of Indian attacks and the absence of her father, a Confederate soldier. She was only about ten when her father, Charles Wesley Dollahite, and her only brother, about seven, were killed and scalped by Indians near Johnson City and buried at Round Mountain. Life was hard indeed for her mother and the four little girls. Mrs. Dollahite had taught a small school for a small wage, and what they could not raise or make they did not have. When Elizabeth was 16, she got her certificate and taught school near Llano, marrying Thomas while still very young.

Now she must have that school! The farm work must wait. She and Claude took the wagon down to the creek and washed it; the wheels looked so shabby that she bought a quart of black paint to cover the worn wood. Her best white shirtwaist and Claude's white shirt were carefully laundered, their old shoes polished, their rough nails scrubbed and trimmed. On the night before they were to go, there was a heavy rain, but there was no time to lose, as some other teacher might be accepted before her. They looked fine as they drove off. The team was behaving, the children waved as far as they could see them.

Near the home of the first trustee and his family a creek was running bank-full from rain. No vehicle had crossed, and the trustees and has family came out to watch. I'm not going to give up now, she thought, and into the swift water she drove and crossed safely, the water not quite up to the wagon bed. The trustee was impressed with her steady courage and with her serious and mature manner. She told him of her new certificate, that she had already had two years' experience, and that she knew she was capable of conducting a successful school term. He told her he would approve her contract, and showed her the way to the two other trustees' homes.

They had brought a lunch, but Elizabeth was too nervous and tense to feel hungry. At one house they were invited in for dinner and she drank some cold buttermilk while she again asked for a contract to teach that winter. Her husband's death was known to the adjoining community, but she explained that she did not want the position because of pity; she was returning to the schoolroom from choice, and she knew she was a good teacher.

Driving homeward, Elizabeth could not keep back the tears of relief. All three of the trustees had promised her their endorsement and would send her a contract without delay. Now she must get clothes made for all of them! She must find a good enough buggy with strong wheels to make the 12 mile trip each day; their crop must be gathered and sold, they must get wood cut for the winter. There were plum and watermelon preserves to make, comforters to cover. It seemed unreal to have all that money coming in, money enough for everything. All the children would go to the school her sisters taught except little Velma, who would go with her in the buggy each day.

The winter while she lived on the farm and taught were hard. She had to be on the road by daylight in the cold, and was not at home until after dark. Curtis Collins remembers when she taught at Liveoak, a school 12 or 14 miles from home, and the high-headed gray mare, Pinfeather, who took the no-top buggy tearing along the country roads, eating up the miles; this was about 1897.

Every Saturday had to be washday, good weather or bad; and on Saturday nights she took the piles of black stockings near the kerosene lamp to mend, as it was unthinkable that her children could wear ragged hose to school. Watching the clock, she stopped at midnight, careful not to take a stitch that would desecrate the Sabbath. Elizabeth Hale knew tragedy all her life, with two children dying of typhoid early in the new century, with other illnesses and problems.

Elizabeth Hale was a gifted teacher, far ahead of her day. Before 1900 she moved to San-

S. A. Head Start Includes Fun, Games, Learning

Santa Anna Head Start pupils are having a busy, fun-filled session this summer, with classes to continue on through August 7. Enrollment is 29, and attendance has been very good, with perfect attendance on several days.

Highlights of the pre-school session have been field trips to area businesses and places of interest. At two places, children in the class were given treats during their visit. The Coca Cola Bottling Co., in Coleman served cold drinks to the children after their tour of the plant, and at the Santa Anna Tile Co., each child was given a ceramic tile as a memento of their tour.

Even the less pleasant activities have been made happier with thoughtful gestures of local merchants and organizations. The children were each given ice cream cones by Phillips Drug Store after receiving their first inoculations. The Coleman Fire Auxiliary gave candy suckers to the children after blood tests were made at the Coleman hospital lab two weeks ago.

Another donation for the children's activities was seed and fertilizer from Metts' Garden Center in Coleman, used for the Head Start garden project.

Mrs. Loeta Pope, part time supervisor for the program, is coordinator for the activities and plans the trips and tours for the group. A trip to the Abilene Zoo this week was climaxed with a picnic lunch at Lytle Creek Park in Abilene.

The Head Start class includes children from the Santa Anna and Mozelle school districts, and is taught by Miss Tommie Tate and Mrs. Ora-beth McIver. Members of the class will be beginning school in the first grade this fall.

ta Anna and taught there for years. She realized that little children can memorize anything, and taught her first-graders the names of every bone in the body, drilling them every day; she taught them all the multiplication tables, even the twelves, all four verses of America, pages of poetry. A stickler for correct spelling she finished the list of first grade words and led them on to second, third and fourth. She told them of the wonders of nature and made them proudly patriotic with her stories of history.

At that time, some grades were taught in two old wooden school houses, not better than barns, with big wood stoves to try to keep them warm. The good rock two-story school, called the college, was enlarged to hold the swarms of children in the growing town, and "Mrs. Hale" and her adoring little disciples could move into a new room. They would grow and progress, for years having the thing she had taught them at the tip of their tongues. Teachers such as Elizabeth Hale are born. No education courses would ever produce them. She challenged, she inspired her pupils to learn, she opened with joy the doors to knowledge and showed them that the way to contentment is by achievement.

Routine Agenda For C-Council July Meeting

Mrs. Ethel Judd, Mayor pro-tem, presided at the Thursday night meeting of the City Council. Mayor Thomas Wristen was absent.

The ballots from the recent city election were canvassed and Mrs. Gayle Allen sworn in as new council member.

Monthly bills and accounts were studied and approved for payment. The City Tax Equalization board gave a report to the city leaders.

The group discussed the hauling of crushed rock, used for surfacing city streets and as a base for paving. Over 1,000 loads of the crushed rock have been purchased by the city at $1.00 per load.

Norman Walters, head of the Community Improvement Club, met with the council with recommendations for additional traffic lights in the downtown area. The city will present the recommendations to the highway department.

Also suggested by the CIC is the removal of shrubbery and trees at several intersections throughout town. Property owners will be contacted and asked for permission to remove the growth causing the traffic hazards.

The next meeting of the Council will be held Thursday, August 6.

WILDLIFE COMM. MEETING TODAY

When Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners meet Thursday in Austin, they will take up matters dear to the hearts of sportsmen all over the state.

This is the session in which the Commission decides the seasons, bag limits and special regulations for hunting in all regulatory counties.

The proposed regulations are the results of biologists' research and public hearings held earlier this year.

The Commission will also act on 10 proposed standard changes in Texas statutes.

The proposals are:

1. To tighten the prohibition against hunting on public roads and highways and rights-of-way along such roads and highways by insertion of new words in the present regulation.

2. To require that when a hunter wounds a game bird or animal while hunting and reduces it to possession, he would be required to kill it and include it in his daily bag.

3. To prohibit the use of any .22 rimfire ammunition or the use of a .22 caliber jet gun in taking deer, elk, antelope, aoudad sheep or desert bighorn sheep.

4. To open a special archery season on buck deer Oct. 1 through Oct. 31 in all regulatory counties. In the past, archery seasons were granted to regulatory counties only when requested at the county public hearing. The same proposed special archery season would apply to turkey gobblers and bearded hens.

5. To make illegal the shooting at or taking any furbearing animal from a boat on public waters.

6. To broaden the description of non-metallic trotlines to include rubberband lines or sail lines. This change was necessitated by use of these new fishing devices and a resulting need for clarification.

7. To prohibit the use of trotlines in bodies of water of 500 acres or less- which are totally within the boundaries of a state park or that portion of any stream bordering a state park.

8. To include the no season and no bag limit to cover species such as bullfrogs, crayfish and other wildlife forms now regulated by law but for which there appears to be no need to regulate taking at this time.

9. To close the season on porpoises, dolphins, and on whales and to open the season with no restrictions on forms not protected.

10. To begin the deer season in most regulatory districts, not including the Panhandle, Trans - Pecos and Northeast Texas, on the Saturday nearest Nov. 15 and to end the season the first Sunday in January.
