

Daylight Robber Of Grocery Store Gets $50 Robb And Rowley Reacquire Theatres In Big Spring

Has anybody lost a beautiful brown-and-white mallese cat? If so, call The Herald office.

A lot of us are wondering when the red tape required before you get a government building under construction is going to come to an end.

Between the i.e.o. red tape and the public building bureau's red tape Big Spring is getting a pretty handsome squeezing, but not a loving caress, as it were.

A guy asks us which waitress we alluded to yesterday, about wearing her clothes so gracefully, 'becomingly' as they say. In case any of the girls themselves ask us our reply is 'all of 'em.'

But, that's already built. What we're interested in is that hand-somely built postoffice building for which Big Spring got a $165,000 appropriation a long time ago. And, also, why not let architects out in this part of the country have a chance at least to bid on the contract for plans and specifications.

Our special observer in Washington, D. C. has this to say about public buildings:

IT WILL HELP—BUT WHEN? Contract awards for public and semi-public works last week totaled $28,250,530 for 318 projects in 40 states and the District of Columbia, according to a statement of the president's unemployment relief committee. The addition of this amount brought the total of contract awards reported since Dec. 1, 1930 to $2,854,131,245.

The 318 projects recently contracted include federal, state, county and municipal construction, bridges, roads, streets, sewers, water supply, hospitals and other types of public and semi-public works.

Such an amount of expenditures is certain to help alleviate the unemployment situation and assist many families, but the main factor is the speed with which the jobs are launched. Awarding of a contract doesn't help feed a jobless workman.

There is scarcely a county in this section of the state which has not one or more projects of the nature mentioned pending now. Official delays prevent the projects from being of much assistance, though.

It isn't enough for governing bodies to let contracts and then brag about assisting the unemployed. Quick action must be taken to see that actual construction is started.

40 Houses In Sixteen Cities Change Hands

Operators For Several Months Return Control To R & R Company

Fred Polacek, manager of the Ritz and Queen theatres, returned from Dallas by plane Thursday morning and brought with him announcement from officials of the concern that the Robb and Rowley interests had taken over their properties in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, which for the past several months have been operated by Hughes-Franklin Theatres, and that henceforth the legal theatre will be operated as R & R theatres, as they were previous to Hughes-Franklin's entry into this section of the country.

Mr. Polacek attended a meeting of Robb and Rowley Theatres, Inc., in Dallas, after having been there for several weeks for treatment of a sinus trouble. While away he was relieved by Harry Hargrave of Dallas.

Forty theatres in sixteen cities of the Texas-Oklahoma division of Hughes-Franklin Theatre, Inc., have been reacquired by Robb and Rowley, which last spring sold the circuit to the newly organized chain.

Eight Months
The R & R circuit was in possession of Hughes-Franklin for eight months, during which time the number of theatres in the Texas-Oklahoma division was increased to fifty-five. Only the original R & R houses are to pass back into the Robb & Rowley control.

Ed Rowley announced in Dallas, that at the time of the purchase by Hughes-Franklin last spring the consideration was announced as $3,500,000.

Associated with Harold Robb and Ed Rowley in the R & R circuit is J. Yuell Robb of Big Spring, where the circuit was founded by the late J. J. Robb, father of Harold and Yuell. The local theatres were incorporated in the Big Spring Amusement company headed the sale of last spring. J. Y. Robb headed that company.

Four theatres in Dallas, and one or more in Big Spring, Corpus Christi, Durant, Del Rio, Laredo, Muskogee, McAlester, Paffestown, San Angelo, Sweetwater, San Benito, Sherman, McKinney, Waxahatchie and Hillboro are affected.

The majority of the houses, outside of Dallas, are first-run theatres.

There will be no changes in management under the new transfer. The former Robb & Rowley organization has remained virtually intact during the period of Hughes-Franklin control.

The Hughes-Franklin organization, now disbanding in this territory, was incorporated for $5,000,000 with Howard Hughes, young Houston millionaire, who has now transferred his activities to Hollywood and the production of such pictures as "Hell's Angels" and "The Front Page," as chairman of the board and Harold B. Franklin, former Public president, as president. Franklin resigned as president early in September, leaving Hughes in full control.

Hi-Jacker In Cool 'Attack' On Register

Catches All Employees At Work, With Eyes Off Cash Drawer

A casual caller who entered the front door of Linck's Food Store No. 2 at West Third and Gregg streets about 9 o'clock Thursday morning caught employees off guard and, stepping over a counter "rung up" 18 cents on the cash register to open the drawer, took $60 in one dollar bills and a couple of $5 bills and walked out.

The "chucker," who receives money for all purchases, had stepped to the back of the store to wait on a customer.

The man in charge of the meat department had gone into the vault for some meat to place on display.

Ralph Linck, proprietor, at his desk on a balcony, was busy and had his back to the front of the store.

When the checker returned to the register to ring up the next sale he found all the supply of currency placed in the drawer for the day had disappeared very suddenly.

Beyond noticing without paying any special attention, that a person had come into the store, those present were not aware that the robbery had been committed until it was all over and the robber had disappeared.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Elaborated by Dr. Iago Goldson, Atchafalaya of Medicine

Pneumonia
Sir William Osler, who died of pneumonia in 1920, wrote of this disease in his famous text book on medicine to the effect that it may be called "the friend of the aged."

The "taken off by it" is an acute, sharp, not often painful illness the old escape those cold gradations of decay. At the make the last stage of all so distressing.

In a less cheerful vein he goes on to describe the condition as "one of the most widespread and fatal of all acute diseases."

Pneumonia has of late become the captain of the men of death, displacing tuberculosis.

Pneumonia, however, is not a disease confined to the aged. It is, in fact, a very serious menace to the young.

Predisposition to pneumonia up to the sixth year of age is marked. It is less common from 6 to 15 but its prevalence increases with each decade thereafter.

Pneumonia has for a long time challenged medical science, and monumental work has been done and is being done in hospitals and research laboratories throughout the world in the effort to master this head-headed monster.

The term pneumonia in itself indicates nothing more than an inflammation of the lungs.

The inflammation, however, may be caused by a wide variety of agents including many different kinds of germs.

The most common among these are the pneumococci discovered in 1886 by Fraenkel and Weichselbaum.

These germs, though belonging to one large class and having certain common characteristics, differ in variety.

Pneumonia germs are classified into four different groups; the first three groups each have fairly definite characteristics while the fourth group contains a large, and as yet incompletely classified, collection of pneumonia germs.

Tomorrow—Oxygen for Pneumonia

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON — Political observers in the capital professed to see a "sign of the times" in the fact that the Hill was so deserted during the 12-day holiday recess this year.

House members at a r.f.e.d. leaving Washington a day or two before actual adjournment was taken. Senators confronted with the moratorium were held until the last minute.

Actually, one leader expressed the belief that two days before congress adjourned, four-fifths of the house membership had already gone home.

Whether more senators and congressmen left Washington during the holiday season this year than in previous years would be difficult to say.

But that some of them were more anxious to get home this year than before can hardly be denied.

And in that fact, opines the wise ones, lies the "sign of the times."

GOOD TIMES FOR POLITICS
A politician can do a lot in 12 days—especially if those 12 days fall around the Christmas season. Disgruntled constituents with grievances, be they real or fancied, are more likely to soften a bit during this season of the year.

Senator Borah's wisecrack, during debate on the proposal to shorten the Christmas recess, that "We have been at home for nine months and our wives and children are tired of us," may be all right for a man who has little difficulty in holding his job where votes are concerned. However, for the congressman in a doubtful district, who must "face the music" in this coming uncertain year of 1932, it is a different matter.

That gentleman is anxious to get in every lick that he can and Christmas is an ideal time for the business of mending political fences.

Hence the deserted atmosphere of the capitol and senate and house office buildings.

SEE WAY WIND BLOWS
There are many not at all sure which way the political winds are blowing. And back home is an infinitely better place for observation than here in Washington.

They are in a better position now to talk to their constituents than they were when they left them to come to Washington for the convention of the 72nd.

True, the time was brief, but it was enough to make a member of congress at least able to talk intelligently about what may be expected in the future.

They have a much better idea as to what kind of a program the leaders have in mind for the rest of the session. They have had a chance to talk things over. A great many of them have had opportunity to air their grievances publicly on the floor of the house.

And those who left disgruntled constituents the first of December were anxious to get back and pass the word along that something

SUNSET PASS by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: A trail strewn with rumors leads towards Sunset Pass, where Trueman Rock hopes to find work with "Gage Preston's outfit. There is some mystery about Preston; certain indications point to a connection with cattle rustling. But Rock cannot trace the rumors down, and he is intent upon locating at Sunset Pass, because he has fallen in love with Thiry, Preston's daughter. He is told that he probably will find work, because no one stays with Preston long. One cause for this is the savagery of Ash Preston, a son, who has been known to cripple cowboys who looked overlong at Thiry. Ash has a bad reputation. It is believed that he killed the sheriff. If so, this was an unwitting aid to Rock, who has returned to Wagon Tongue after six years, expecting to find trouble with the sheriff over an old gun fight. A doctor, overtaken Rock en route to Sunset Pass.

Chapter 10
ADVICE—OR WARNING
"I knowed you was a stranger round Wagon Tongue," said the other, grinning.
"Sure I am lately. But I was here years ago," Rock said.
"Before my time, shore. 'Cause I'd remembered you. What's your handle?"
"Trueman Rock, late of Texas."
"Pears to me I've heard that name, somewheres. Wal, I'm glad to meet you. I'm Hal Roberts. An' if you don't tie up with Preston, come back an' try Spangler."

Rock thanked him and asked questions about the range. Soon afterward the cowboy bade him goodbye and turned off. As Rock passed on he drew away from the dry-farming levels and the wastes of cutover land, to get out into the desert proper.

In due time he reached the top of a slope and there halted the horses to spend a few moments in the well-remembered country.

A thirty-mile gulf yawned wide and shallow, a yellow-green sea of desert grass and sage, which sloped into ridge on ridge of cedar and white grass. The length of the valley both east and west extended beyond the limit of vision, and here began the town of Wagon Tongue possible. Rock's trained eye saw cattle everywhere, though not in large herds. The rough country commenced some fifteen miles or more farther on. Sunset Pass and its environs were not in view, nor even the mountain range that were visible from the town.

An hour's ride down the slow incline brought Rock into a verdant swale of fifty acres, fresh with its varied shades of green, surrounding a pretty ranch house. Here Adam Pringle lived.

Then a man at work under an open shed. Rock halted. "Where on earth the farmer started out securely, then quickened his steps. It was Adam — stalwart, middle-aged, weatherbeaten settler.

"True Rock, or I'm a born sinner," shouted Pringle, before he was even near Rock.

"Howdy, Adam! How's the old-timer?" returned Rock.

"I knowed that hoss. An' I shore knowed you jest from the way you straddled him. How air you? This is a plumb surprise. Get down an' come in."

"Haven't time, Adam. I'm rustlin' along to make camp below. Adams, you're lookin' good. I see you've made this homestead good."

"Never seen you look any better. That's a hoss an' saddle you're ridin'. You always was hell on them. What you been?"

"Texas."

"Reckon you heerd about Cas Seward bein' hopped off, an' you ride back to the old stamper grounds?"

"Adam, I didn't know Cas was dead till I got to Wagon Tongue. Guess I was homesick."

"What you goin'?"

"Sunset Pass."

"Cowboy, if you want work, pile right off heah."

"Thanks, Adam, but I've got a hanker' for 'wider country. I'll try Preston. Think he'll take me on?"

"Shore. But don't ask him."

"Why not?"

"I'm advisin' you—not talkin'." returned the rancher, with a sharp gleam in his eye. "You know me, True."

"Used to, pretty well, Adam. And, I'm sort of flustered at your advisin' me that way," replied Rock, keenly searching the other's face.

"Stay away from Sunset Pass."

"Adam, I just never could take advice," drawled Rock. "Much yes, something, to make things better has been assured.

"I've just come from Washington, I know!"

considerable risk. Rock could not prevent his growing curiosity and interest, but he succeeded in inhibiting any suspicion. He wanted to believe that Thiry's people, including the redoubtable Ash, were the very salt of the earth.

Toward sundown he reached the south slope of the valley and entered the zone of the cedars. Rock halted for camp near a rugged little creek, where clear water ran trickling over the stones.

He unsaddled the white, and hobbled both horses and watched them thump out in search of grass. He unrolled his tarp under a low-branching cedar, and opened his pack, conscious of pleasurable sensations. It had been years since he had done this sort of thing. In a comfortable house, and back again, sooner or later, as he liked. But this was the real life for a rider.

Twilight stole from some invisible source, and night followed. Rock lingered beside his dying red cedar fire, listening, feeling, realizing that the years had brought him much until now never divine, and that something as mystical in the future called to his being. Not by chance merely, nor because of a longing to return to this range, nor impelled by the restless wanderlust of a cowboy, had he journeyed hither. Around every thought, almost seemed to hover the intangible shadow of Thiry Preston. But he would not make of her a deliberate object of conjecture, and understood himself.

The night darkened, the air cooled, the camp fire flickered out. Rock crawled into his blankets under the widespread cedar. The soft feel of wool, the hard ground, the smell of cedar, the twinkle of a star through the branches, the moon of rising night wind, the lonesome coyote bark, and the silence—how good they were and

$100 Per Pupil For 26,365,608 Spent In Nation During Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (UP)—The office of education of the department of the interior has been putting down and adding up figures—one of the functions of numerous government departments—about schools. It has found that in 1931 there was spent in the United States $3,200,000,000 for education. A total of 29,365,608 persons were enrolled during the year in the nation's schools, public and private, which means that there was an expenditure of a little over $100 for each pupil. It required 1,929,000 teachers to instruct all these pupils or approximately one teacher for each 29 pupils.

The statisticians predict that first grade enrollments are going to decrease in the next ten years for the very solid reason that there are fewer children right now than there were ten years ago. The government figures show that there were 128,840 less children under five years of age in the United States in 1930, for instance, than in 1920.

Another government department has figured that the country's farms are mortgaged for a total of $9,241,000,000, which is three times

Sheriffs Held To $4 Fee For Arrests On Justice Warrants

AUSTIN, Jan. 7. (UP)—Forty-eight opinions were handed down here today by the state supreme court. Among them was a ruling that sheriffs are limited to $4 fee for arrests made on warrants issued by justice courts. They are entitled to mileage and fees for transporting the prisoner when an arrest is made after indictment.

The decision was made in refusing a mandamus by which Lee Cook of Terrell county sought to enforce payment of $143.

The court ruling coincides with the attorney general's ruling under which claims for arrests before indictment have been limited to $4. Former Governor Dan Moody vetoed an act which proposed to allow greater payment.

Why Roosevelt?

ENTHUSIASM FOR FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT for the democratic nomination for the presidency is said to be waning, but this belly-ache campaign in his behalf continues. Unless democrats everywhere take steps to make their wishes known he will likely slide under the wire on an early ballot at the convention.

Now Roosevelt is a capable man, with a good record and he would undoubtedly make a better president than the present occupant of the White House but with better men available, why nominate him? With almost any man from the Middle West, West or Northwest, the democrats are in excellent position to win the next election. With an easterly and particularly a New Yorker, the chances are not so bright. Why risk it? What has Roosevelt ever done to merit any particular honor or consideration by the democratic party?

Eastern newspapers last week carried a jibe to the effect that the possible excursion of Major Jimmy Walker to Cuba might be prompted by the fact that he has aspirations to be secretary of state if Roosevelt is named president. There might be more truth than humor in the quip. After all, Walker is an influential member of Roosevelt's party in his home state.

Needless to say, Walker doesn't fit the average democrat's conception of what a secretary of state should be. You can't blame Roosevelt for the personnel intimate Tammany leaders, but, after all, a man is judged by the company he keeps and Roosevelt's attacks on Tammany have been luke-warm, to say the least.

The democratic party suffered an ignoble defeat four years ago simply because the leaders succeeded in putting across a man who was not acceptable to most voters in the party. This is no time to run the risk of repeating the experiment. The father away from New York the democrats go to name a candidate the better will be their chances of success in November. United action on the part of democratic voters will check the Roosevelt boom.

"NOW we can advertise it"

Products are nearly always put on the market before they are advertised. Quite frequently, changes have to be made in an article before the public generally will accept it. Color, design, flavor—those are some of the things the public has to be consulted about. Sometimes a product won't sell at all and simply has to be discontinued. As soon as people show that they welcome an article and as soon as all refinements and improvements have been added, then you could hear the manufacturer say, if you could be in his office, "Now we can advertise."

When you buy advertised goods, you may know they have gone through the experimental stages. You may be sure that the manufacturer knows they are right and that he is willing to stake his reputation on them. You may be confident that you are buying goods that have sold and that would continue to sell without any advertising at all. For advertising merely lets all of the people know—now—what considerable numbers would find out by word of mouth ten years from now.

Of course, advertising goes a step farther. Word of mouth hardly ever tells all the uses of a product. It often doesn't give the real reasons for its superiority. Advertising tells people all about a product and the numerous ways in which they can use it.

Whatever you buy, therefore, let the advertisements be your guide. When the manufacturer says, "Now we can advertise it," you know that you can safely say, "Now we can buy it."

New Pontiac On Display At Webb Motor Co

New Model Car Makes Appearance At Showrooms Over Country

Two new Pontiac cars—a 65-horsepower low-priced six and an 85-horsepower V-eight—will be introduced the country over Thursday by the Oakland Motor Car company of Pontiac, Mich. J. L. Webb Motor company of this city, dealers, have on display in their windows, 210 East Third, a brand new Pontiac sedan. A full carload shipment is expected to arrive soon. The public is invited to inspect this new car.

Both series offer synchro-mesh transmission with quiet second gear, built-in free wheeling, ride control, rubber cushioning at forty-seven points in the chassis, full-pressure motor lubrication and ultra-smart Fisher bodies.

Six body models are offered on the six cylinder chassis and six on the V-eight chassis of the V-eight.

All are newly styled, chrome-trimmed and carefully stream-lined with sharply slanted windshields for minimum air resistance. The outside visor has been eliminated and is replaced by an inside sun visor adjustable to a position above the driver's eyes or to protect him from side sun glare. Leg room is ample and seats are exceptionally wide, the rear seats in the Pontiac six providing comfortable space for three people. The driving seat position may be changed by lifting a convenient latch. All closed bodies are carefully insulated against extremes of weather and are equipped with cowl ventilators. Windshields may be raised to provide additional ventilation. Instruments, both directly and indirectly lighted, are of the new "dial-type" with easily read pointer indicators. All doors may be locked from the inside.

Gear shifting worries are said to be eliminated by the unique manner in which Pontiac has combined the advantages of synchro-mesh with those of free wheeling. Once the car is in motion it is possible to shift up or down to any forward gear without clashing and without fouling the clutch pedal. If desired, free wheeling may be locked out.

Through ride control, the hydraulic shock absorbers are adjusted to restrain varying spring rebound under changing conditions of road or passenger load. This comfort feature becomes still more effective through the extensive rubber cushioning which insulates the motor, frame, springs, axles, and body absorbing minor shocks and lessening noise. Springs, especially selected in strength to carry the exact weight of each body model, are enclosed and permanently lubricated.

Smooth, even power provides fast pick-up and sustained top speed in both six and eight. And economy is guaranteed by three-jet carburetors, by Pontiac's "fuel economizer" and by automatic control of fuel temperature. An exhaust manifold valve actuated by the accelerator rod, diverts most of the exhaust heat for application to the fuel mixture at low or idling engine speeds. As the accelerator is depressed, and engine speed and engine heat increase, the exhaust valve closes and reduces the amount of heat reaching the mixture. Compression is high, having been established through careful research at a point just below that at which special fuels would be required. "Fast-flash" AC spark plugs, especially resistant to fouling, also improve engine performance.

In addition to the ease of shifting, the cars offer many other features of safety and convenience. Faster cranking starters and special attention to the "low end" of the carburetors assure quick response, even in extremely cold weather. Self-energizing, weather-proofed Bendix brakes with powerful leverage add to the security provided by heavy-six-cross-member frames, solid steel bumpers, and running boards of the "side bumper" metal type. Headlamp are controlled by a toe button and indicator lamps on the fenders serve as a warning side light to cross traffic and indicate the full width of the cars to approaching drivers.

The inside of the "fight racket," the Caliente races, actually filmed at the Mexican track, the great gambling halls of the "American Monte Carlo" and other striking intimate details give unique interest to the picture, most of this having never before been shown on the screen.

Among the dramatic highlights are the race, the sensational prize fight in which Beery essays his "comeback," the dramatic sacrifice for the sake of the boy, and the battle with the Mexican police.

A notable cast appears, including Irene Rich, Rosco Ales, Edward Brophy, Hale Hamilton, Jesse Scott and Marcia Mae Jones.

JACKIE COOPER and WALLACE BEERY in "THE CHAMP"

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper as a team! Such is the unique combination heading the cast of "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of life on the Mexican border, which will open Friday at the Ritz Theatre.

Beery plays a broken-down fight champion, and the hero of "Skippy" is seen as his son in a poignant heart-interest tale in which much comedy and a few thrills are intermingled. King Vidor directed the production, from an original story by Frances Marion.

Garner Says No Presidential Bee Buzzes Near Him

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 7 (UP)—While San Antonio supporters of Speaker John Garner for president planned a statewide rally in his behalf, a Dallas friend of the democratic speaker was in receipt of a letter saying "There are no presidential bees buzzing in my office."

"My duties as speaker of the House have kept me so busy that I have given the matter no consideration," said Garner in a letter to Pat O'Keefe, 84-year-old democratic leader. "I can state frankly that I expect to be kept equally as busy until the House adjourns."

Feb. 22 has been set as the date of the rally to be held in San Antonio. Mayor C. M. Chambers is arranging the meeting.

Letter to Parents

In our school inspection we noted that several children had a throat condition that requires attention. The following are the most frequent complications following diseased tonsils:

1. Heart conditions such as lesion or enlargement of the heart.
2. Kidney diseases such as pyelitis or Bright's disease.
3. Rheumatism which may involve one or more joints of the body.
4. Enlargement of the glands, which are more commonly in the neck, but may be over the entire body.
5. Sinus infections which cause severe headaches.
6. Defective hearing.
7. Defective vision.
8. Nervousness.
9. Secondary Anemia.
10. Trench mouth.
11. Contagious diseases, t. e. Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, etc.

In many cases parents are not aware that a serious throat condition exists, and as a rule it is very much more difficult for a child so affected to make desirable grades in his or her school work.

Trusting that we have your support and co-operation in this work, and that you will notify the county health nurse, when you consult your family physician and have correction made, we beg to remain

U. S. Trip 'One Big Souvenir,' Says Josee, Back At Studies

PARIS (AP)—Josee Laval again is treading in her father's footsteps. Back in Paris after her trip to Washington, she is following the example of the French premier by plunging into her work.

Josee has turned her back on parties and similar frivolities and returned to the study of law in which she hopes to gain a degree as her father did in his youth.

"I may never practice law," she says. "But I want to have some profession, some interest in life. I love sports but I can't play tennis or ping-pong all the time as I did on the Ile de France on the way to and from New York."

Dressed in a sober black frock, a black seal jacket and black chapeau, Josee may be seen these days coming and going in the courtyard before the office where the French premier wrestles with the problems of banditry in Corsica and balancing the budget in France.

Often she carries her own law books as she hurries off to classes at the University of Paris.

Between classes she manages to find time for sports, of which she is an ardent devotee. Golf and tennis are always included in her weekly schedule.

Her visit to the United States Josee characterizes as "one large and beautiful souvenir."

Among her most cherished mementos of that trip are a blotter given her by President Hoover and inscribed by him, the moving picture film of the Princeton-Navy football game which she was unable to see and the letter inviting her to give the signal illuminating the

JOSEE LAVAL, Statue of Liberty. "Wonderful!" is her favorite word for describing her visit to New York. "Next time I am going to make a long stay," she says. "I want to go west and south—especially to see Chicago and California."

A Violin Gets Sick Christian Thaulow Who Is To Give Concert Here Tells How His 'Strad' Was Sent To The Hospital

Even violins must sometimes go to the hospital. They cannot serve year after, concert after concert without sometime needing repair. In fact, most violins of modern make after being in use for a few decades are thrown in the junk heap. But the Stradivarius, an instrument made by that immortal more than two hundred years ago—well one could hardly think of throwing such an instrument into discard. Fortunately it is not necessary—they can be repaired.

That is what has been done to the Strad owned by Christian Thaulow, the Norwegian violinist who is to play a concert at the high school auditorium tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. And according to the ones who are in charge of the restoration, it will be ready for another 150 years of hard service and will sound better than before.

Made In 1697

Duncan Stewart, who has charge of the restoration, is a representative of Louis Rosenfield of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Stewart spent a week with Mr. Thaulow, and while there explained in detail how rare old instruments are brought back after they have begun to "play-out," and while he was at it, explained several other things which were interesting, in regard to the much talked of creations of Antonio Stradivarius.

"We found Mr. Thaulow's instrument a very interesting one," he said. "Its exact date is 1697. It was made in Cremona, Italy, by Antonio Stradivarius."

"For the past 10 years this violin has had a tremendous amount of playing. Under this strain, it has begun to show signs of decay. The tone was losing its sonority and evenness. One hundred years ago it would have been relegated to a museum. But in the last 25 years the art of restoration has made this unnecessary."

Synchronization

"It was taken apart, cleaned, put in a plaster cast, and doctored in a number of ways known only to the restorer. One of the most important steps in restoration is that of perfect synchronization. This is produced by a little piece of wood, inside the top, glued with pressure, which makes the tone there exactly as that of the back. The average violin is rarely synchronized, but the ordinary listener is not conscious of it."

"This strip is called the bass bar. The other important step is the adjustment of the sound post. This is the micrometer adjustment of tone in any violin."

Mr. Rosenfield has toured Europe for thirty years in search of rare violins for his collections. While there he has made a study of the art of restoration and is recognized internationally as an authority on that subject.

About Stradivarius

"What were the secrets of Antonio Stradivarius and other early violin makers?"

"Why are their instruments superior to those of today?"

"Could violins be made today that would be equal to the Stradivarius?"

"What about the secret of the Stradivarius varnish?"

"These are many questions which many people have asked without receiving satisfactory answers. Mr. Stewart answered them all readily, drawing from knowledge gained from two years experience from Mr. Rosenfield, with whom he toured the United States with $100,000 worth of rare old violins.

"The old violin makers had no secrets. And why were their violins superior? They were simply artists. Why does a piece of music sound different when played by Fritz Kreisler, although a novice may play the same notes and use the same basic interpretations? There is only one answer. Kreisler is an artist. Stradivarius was also an artist—the greatest violin maker of all time."

Wood Aged 200 Years

"Of course one factor must be considered. The early Italians used only wood that had aged 200 years. Modern mass production cannot wait for that. Even while Stradivarius still lived, he was beginning to run out of this aged wood."

To the next question, Mr. Stewart answered:

"Violins could not be made today that would equal them. Mass production methods would not permit the same care, and there are no artists like Stradivarius."

And about the much-talked-of varnish.

"There was no secret about the varnish, but it was simply lost through disuse. As the sons of the early makers began to take up the work of their fathers, and the demand for their violins increased they began to search for a varnish which would dry more quickly. This lucidous oil varnish used by Stradivarius and others, required six weeks and more in drying. The young began to use a varnish with a spirit base, which would dry in a few days. Later they reduced it to a few hours. They did not know that it would soon crack. They were simply trying to rush up production. But, lo, in a few years they saw that the varnish did crack up. Then they began to hunt for that formula which their fathers had used, but no one knew it! It had been lost through disuse."

They're Not Cheap

Commenting further on this Mr. Stewart said, "This wonderful varnish has never cracked. It will wear and wear without a hint of a crack and then when it's all gone, it leaves a yellow base which seems to be a part of the wood and which will never come off."

It's all a myth about a genuine Strad being found by accident or at a cheap price, Mr. Stewart revealed. The sale of every one has been handled through the centuries with as much care as the sale of a pre-

As to some details of the championship match, Meen may serve "The fight" soon blossomed into fierce exchanges of punches. Meen was not disposed to lead but he found the Londoner's stomach with some short-armed blows and crouching in aggressive style, certainly looking menacing.

"Meen was twice cautioned for lying on his opponent and stung by the reprimand he landed a fine right.

"Meen knocked Smith down with a magnificent punch in the sixth round and had him badly disturbed both physically and mentally. The situation yelled for the workmanlike finish of a beaten man but Meen simply stood off and allowed Smith to recover."

"Some people," adds Dartnell, "say that it is only Meen's tender heart that makes him stand off when he has got his man in bad straits. Well, that may rebound to his credit as a man and as a sportsman, but it is sheer folly in a fighter.

"The man who goes into the ring should have the same point of view as that once expressed to me by Jack Dempsey. 'My feeling always is,' said the old champion, 'that if I don't do it to the other fellow he will do it to me,' and while this may seem a complete lack of altruism it is eminently practical. The practical fighter will always beat the sentimentalist of the ring."

Steers Leave For Colorado

Locals Favorites Over Field; Abilene May Withdraw

The Big Spring High Steers were ranked as favorites over the field as twenty-nine West Texas high school bids prepared to make their bids for the championship of the Colorado Invitational basketball tournament, which got underway this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Sharing the pedestal in a lesser degree with George Brown's cagers, however, were the Sweetwater Mustangs, who are expected to make a strong bid for the District 4 championship. The Abilene Eagles, the other pre-tournament favorite, are not expected to attend.

The Bovines will meet Nolan in the opening round and will then meet the winner of the Abilene-Iatan clash. The complete pairings: Thursday 1 p. m.—Roby vs. Rogers.

Thursday 2 p. m.—Sterling City vs. Abilene.

Thursday 3 p. m.—Bronte vs. Dowell.

Thursday 4 p. m.—Anson vs. Iatan.

Thursday 5 p. m.—Nolan vs. Big Spring.

Thursday 6:15 p. m.—Rescoe vs. Maryneal.

Thursday 8:15 p. m.—Trent vs. Colorado.

Coach George Brown was expected to take his entire squad to the Colorado meet, with practically all of them due to see service. A host of local supporters are planning to be on hand Saturday for the semi-final and final games if the local efforts are rewarded with victory in the opening rounds, with the high school pep squad to attend in a body.

These making the trip are Reid, Flowers, Forester, Morgan, Lafey, Dean, Hopper, Hildreth, Dyer, Dennis, Stampfl, Martin, Harris, J. Forester, Franklin, and student manager Thompson.

SOMERS CALLS HIS SHOT

Before the season is closed for anecdotes about Munn, Manders & Company of Minnesota, the A.P.'s Mr. Roy Hendrickson of Minneapolis contributes this anecdote of the Gopher:

"Mr. Peter Somers, Minnesota quarterback, was calling signals in the Gopher-Ohio State game and Minnesota which had been driving along pretty well on third down in its own territory, found that it needed five yards.

"Somers called Clarence Munn, the All-America guard back, which looked like a fake punt. After the huddle and Minnesota lined up, Somers called out: 'Professor Munn will now take the ball through right tackle for 15 yards.' 'Which is exactly what Munn did, with Ohio State prepared for a play around the other side. The peculiar part of it is that it was 15 yards to the inch.

"Mr. Somers, notable for his veracity, is prepared to take an oath in support of this, but further deponent sayeth not."

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Even as the reader is poring longingly over these lines and drinking impatiently of the fountain of wisdom therein the Big Spring High cagers will take the floor against the Nolan quintet in the opening round of the Colorado Invitational tournament, which began at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Needless to say, the Bovines and their supporters will be disappointed indeed if the Nolan cagers should come out with the big end of the score, in fact nothing less than an advent into the semi-finals will satisfy the demands of the Big Spring populace.

Once within the charmed circle of the last four, however, the Steers stand among dangerous company. The Eagles, who will be remembered as the squad of heavyweights that marched to the state grid championship not so long ago, defeated the Ranger quintet the other night 47 to 18, which, we must say, is some defeating. Now Ranger strikes a chord of terror in the hearts of Big Spring fans, who remember the enthusiasm with which the Steers entered Class A circles and the nonchalance with which Ranger took their 59 to 0 victory in the season's opener. Two newcomers, Coppinger and Street, were high for the Abilene team with fourteen and eighteen points respectively.

Sweetwater is classed as another threat, and the Mustangs will probably meet the winner of the Abilene-Big Spring clash in the finals. The two Baugh brothers are cited by Ben Daniels as being basketball playing demons. Sam, we remember, was known in football as a forward passing fool, yet we believe we are safe in saying that the Mustangs didn't complete over three passes in both of their big games of the year, the Armistice Day clash with Big Spring and their bid district game with the Abilene Eagles.

Jinx Tucker of Waco, if Bobby Campbell's column in the Breckenridge American tells it correctly, placed Big Spring as the fifteenth best team in the state football race last year, ahead of Cisco, Ranger, and Forrest High, but behind Breckenridge, Highland Park, Oak Cliff, Central High of Fort Worth and others. Tucker's rating was modest to say the least, but even at that it is a tribute to Coach Oblo Bristow and the band of cheerleaders that played under his tutelage. San Angelo, the team that Blundy Cross said no later than this week outplayed Big Spring in the Thanksgiving Day game and who in reality managed to stagger through with a scoreless tie, is not mentioned on the list. But enough of Jinx's failure to include the Bobcats on his list. Blundy himself will probably say enough about it without us butting in.

Campbell, in writing of the list of twenty, declares that Cisco should have been ranked above Big Spring, saying that the Big Dam Bobcats could have beaten the locals by three or four touchdowns. "In fact," Bobby goes on to say, "there was not a team in District Four that could not have been stopped by either Ranger, Cisco, Abilene, or Breckenridge."

He makes up in a way for the slighting remark, however, by declaring in referring to the locals' chances of winning another district basketball title, "that it looks like a repeater out yonder where men are men but are not bragging about it."

Odds and ends: Coach Harry Taylor has "jocularly" promised not to grease his gym's floor any more this season—we wish he'd make such an assurance seriously.—The Abilene Eagles may not attend the Colorado invitational tournament according to Coach Johnny Gregg—who doesn't know himself how ma-

1931 Grain Prices Sag to Low Points; '32 Looks Brighter

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)
CHICAGO (UP)—Ending the most sensational year in this country's grain history, Chicago board of trade members are looking hopefully forward to improved conditions in 1932.

By far the outstanding event of the exchange's 1931 annals was a fall of wheat values to the lowest level in three centuries and much under the cost of production.

Simultaneously, the amount of board of trade business was cut for the time being down to less than a quarter of normal.

In prospect, the curtailment of board of trade dealings at this stage was double the severity of the slash in values, for prices at worst were roughly about cut in half as judged by the year's top and bottom, whereas total transactions at their minimum were reduced to less than 25 per cent of the usual average.

Wheat At 45 Cents
Bottom prices of 1931 future deliveries of wheat in Chicago were reached at 48 3/4 cents a bushel for May contracts and at 45 cents for cash wheat—that is, immediate spot delivery.

These records compare with 14 1/4 cents, the year's high for May wheat, and with 84 1/2, the 1931 top for cash wheat.

Grain Transactions Slump
Total daily grain transactions at their 1931 lows: on the exchange were about 16,000,000 bushels, against a normal daily aggregate of about 85,000,000 bushels.

Chicago grain trade experts generally blame two causes for the big collapse of prices. The first is mammoth enlargement of wheat acreage as a result of the world war. The second is government hindrance to freedom of supply and demand operations.

ENDICOTT, N. Y.—Endicott Johnson Corp. reported net profits for the first 11 months of 1931 amounted to $2,580,585, against $785,287 in the entire year ended Dec. 31, 1930.
