

THREE LOCATIONS MADE IN SECTOR DURING THE WEEK

Ambassador No. 4 Read Abandoned; Moore Bros. No. 2 McDowell In Glasscock County Sited To Be Acidized

Three locations and one failure were included in oil developments in this area during the past week. Ambassador No. 4 Read, section 48-30-1n, T&P, was abandoned and plugged after drilling to 2,350 feet with only one show. The show occurred below 2,704 feet in a 17-foot strata of hard lime. Operators drilled in hard lime until the test was abandoned. Location was a mile and a quarter north and a half a mile west of nearest production. Location was sited by Royal Oil and Gas for an offset test to the acidizing. Location is in section 21-Magnolia No. 2 Roberts in section 136-29, W&NW. Location is 600 feet from the south and 250 feet from the west lines of the southeast quarter of the section.

Continental added to another of its Glasscock shallow sand tests with a location for No. 20-S Settles, fields, and is in the center of three previous abandoned tests, all of which had shows.

Fleetborn No. 1 Black Arrow, one mile west and slightly north of Dodson-Duffy No. 1 J. G. Carter, a north central Glasscock discovery, was being acidized at 2,713 feet after a 50-quart shot failed to increase its three-barrel-a-day showing. It is in the northeast corner of section 13-43-2s-T&P.

In Garza county a heavy air flow in the S. Caprio No. 1 Post estate, section 12-30, K. Aycock survey was shut off at 2,190 feet and deepened to 2,450 feet. Operators anticipated the top of the pay at 2,545 feet. It is running high in comparison to surrounding tests.

Westbrook and Graham No. 1 and Great West, air well four miles east of Big Spring, underwent no marked changes during the week. Salt water is still leaking from behind 10-inch casing at about 900 feet and is being blown out of the well, gradually covering surrounding country with a thin coat of white. Depth is 1,460 feet.

Cecil B. Rains No. 1 Chalk, section 140-29, W&NW, in the eastern part of the Howard-Glasscock area, was fishing for tools at the bottom of liner at 2,130 feet. Total depth is 3,227 feet.

Showings In Three Tests In Jones Co.

Possibilities Seen In Location East Of The Guitar Pool

ABILENE, Mar. 27 — Showings obtained in three Jones county wildcats attracted interest this week, although only one was to be tested for possible production.

Chief interest centered on the S. C. Herring No. 1 Eleanor Haynes, about three miles east of the Guitar pool, which found oil and water in the Bluff Creek sand horizon. A projected Lower Hope and Swallowika test, the wildcat was thought to hold much better possibilities, since the nearest test had logged no showing at all in the Bluff Creek.

Operators were underreaming eight-inch casing to a total depth of 1,912 feet, after encountering a 5 to 10 barrel show at 1,906-10 feet, and filling 800 feet with water in six hours in deepening to 1,912 feet.

It is a quarter-mile north of the Brown Eagle-Kleiner No. 1 Birt Fields which had two good showings of oil at deeper zones, but was abandoned. Location is in Samuel

New Pools In Pecos County Are Indicated

Two Wildcats Get Showing; Activity Picks Up In Loving County

SAN ANGELO, Mar. 27—The showing of oil by two Pecos county wildcats, offered possibilities of the opening of new pools three miles northwest of Fort Stockton and 5 1/2 miles southeast of Girvin, featured West Texas development this week. The staking of one location, by Finley & Cherry, and provision for four more in leases taken by Woodley Petroleum Co. of Shreveport insure extensive drilling around Mason Oil Co.'s No. 2 Minnie, Kyle in northwestern Loving county, which in January opened the second Delaware lime pool in West Texas.

Preparations by Ross Oil Co. of Coahoma, Tex., to clean out and acidize two wildcats that showed oil, the scheduled spudding nearby of Plymouth No. 1 Mary Hanna and depositing of cash and leases in a Brown bank for a test four miles north of that town placed Coke county in the limelight.

Fishing for Tools

E. R. Minshall and others No. 1 Banker in Pecos county, three miles northwest of Fort Stockton, was fishing for tools that were blown up the hole by gas when cleaning out had reached 2,840 feet following a 50-quart shot from 2,914 feet. There was 2,850 feet of fluid in the hole and gas was estimated at one-half million cubic feet. Oil and gas shows were logged at intervals between 2,843 and 2,926 feet, sulphur water was struck at 3,505 and the hole was plugged back to 2,974. One hour after the shot No. 1 Banker headed, blowing out an oil load.

Location is 1,950 feet from the north line and 610 feet from the west line of section 25-14-2&3-T&L. Two wells drilled in 1929 by Phillips on the Pryor-Courtney land eight miles to the northwest pumped a total of 18,000 barrels but were abandoned by Cardinal in April, 1934. The production nearest the Minshall wildcat is in the South Pecos Valley pool about 18 miles north and slightly east of Fort Stockton.

Balls One Barrel

A wildcat drilled by A. H. Flaherty & Son of Midland on the ranch of J. C. (Con) Cunningham of San Angelo 5 1/2 miles southeast of Girvin bailed one barrel of 36.7 gravity oil from 2,242 to 2,249 feet, the total depth, on a three-hour test. Tubing was to be run to pump sufficient oil for an acid load and a packer was to be set before treatment of the lime.

No. 1 Cunningham is 2,310 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the west line of section 25-11-2&3-T&L, eight miles north and slightly west of the Taylor-Link pool. It is only 2 1/2 miles northwest of Rowan & Tong's No. 1 J. A. McDonald, a short-lived producer that blew in August, 1922, at 1,895 feet at a rate estimated at 100 barrels hourly, flowed for two weeks, then died. An estimated two to three million dollars were spent for leases that brought no returns when a score of dry holes were drilled within a radius of five miles.

Floyd Dodson's No. 1-A Texas American Syndicate, exploring the Lockwood in northeastern Ector county in section 65-1C-GH&A, showed a trace of oil from 3,919-64 feet and was re-running 3 5/8-inch casing to test.

To Be Cleaned Out

Northeastern Coke county wildcats to be cleaned out and acidized by the Ross Oil Co. of Coahoma were drilled by Mid-Kansas several years ago. No. 1 W. E. Lackey, in section 272-1A-H&TC, showed 2,300 feet of oil from 3,755-82 feet and No. 1 C. J. Henry, in section 271, three-quarters of a mile farther west, showed less oil from 3,945-47 feet. Neither produced but was not set or acidized. Land owners in the area donated leases on approximately 3,000 acres for work over the old tests.

A short distance east, Plymouth No. 1 Hanna, in the southeast quarter of section 252-1A-H&TC, was scheduled to spud late in the week. G. A. Simons of Murkogue deposited $18,000 and H. E. Ogden, formerly of Wichita, Kan., placed in escrow leases on 2,400 acres to acquire the drilling of a scheduled 3,000-foot wildcat in Coke county four miles north of Bronte, in the southwest corner of section 391-1A-H&TC.

HOME CAFE'S '30 DAYS' HAS STRETCHED INTO FIVE YEARS AND FIRM STILL IS GOING STRONG

Proprietor Observes Business Anniversary

W. A. Sheets, owner of the Home Cafe, looks back today on five years of growing business in his present location with a peculiar satisfaction.

He was given 30 days to last when he opened the doors of the cafe in March of 1932. At that time the depression was at its lowest point and businesses were failing everywhere.

At the end of his "30 days" Sheets was still very much in business. Since that time his faith has been justified continually by improved conditions and a growing trade.

The cafe which he now operates is by no means his first such venture in Big Spring. Sheets has been a resident of this city for nine years, operating cafes.

For 21 years he followed the oil business in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wyoming, California and Texas. During the boom period of the Ranger area in 1920 he was operating two strings of tools, but a subsequent injury forced him to the conclusion that the oil business was not the one for him.

He turned to the cafe field. After operating cafes in Pampa and Morabana, he went to California for six years, then returned to Texas and went in business here.

After opening the Home cafe on a modest scale, he gradually added more equipment until today his table space is doubled and his staff almost doubled.

His watchword is good food and service. While not berating fancy equipment, he says he concentrates more on quality of food and service for people "don't eat fine furniture."

Tree Planting In Dust Bowl Found To Pay Shelter Strips Total 1,277 Miles, Says Forest Service Report

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27 (UP)—Planting of hundreds of millions of trees is urged by department of agriculturists as a check on dust storms that roll each spring across the vast, unbroken expanse of the midwestern dust bowl.

Dust storms already have stripped 50,000,000 acres of top soil in the rich breadbasket of the nation and have damaged 100,000,000 other acres. Recent droughts have made the top soil loose and have added to the destructiveness of dust storms.

Foreseeing the danger of a great American desert in the middle west if the dust storms were not checked, the federal government began the planting three years ago of a "shelter belt" of trees from Texas to the Canadian border.

This scheme was ridiculed by some and made difficult by two unprecedented severe droughts. But the government stuck doggedly to its task, planting millions of trees. Today there are 1,277 miles of shelter strips.

High Number Survive
Government workers planted an average of 1660 trees per acre. An average of 350 trees survived and now range from 20 to 30 feet in height. Government silviculturists declare the shelterbelt is a proven success.

"Experience gained thus far in shelterbelt and windbreak planting demonstrates the value of this type of work in the Great Plains region where an urgent necessity exists for an extensive tree planting program," a forest service bulletin says.

An effective windbreak reduces wind velocity 10 to 250 per cent for a distance 30 times the height of the trees, according to Carlos G. Bates, silviculturist of the Lake States forest experiment station.

Trees 65 feet high reduce the ground wind 10 per cent for more than a third of a mile, Bates said. The higher the wind velocity, the greater the percentage of reduction by a good windbreak and the farther will the effect be felt, he said.

An ideal windbreak, according to Bates, is the shape of an earth dam with tall trees such as cottonwoods in the center and shorter trees like elms on either side. Outside the elms, cedars and low bushes should be planted, he said.

Native Trees Best
Trees which have given the best results in the Great Plains are the native cottonwood, Chinese and American elms and red cedar. Ponderosa pines have been found satisfactory in all prairie states except Oklahoma and Texas.

Windbreaks in windy regions also decrease the difficulty and cost of artificially heating homes, Bates said. With common building materials, heat loss through the walls of a house is about three times as great with a 20-mile an hour wind as with calm air, Bates said.

A substantial windbreak on two or three sides may save a third or more of the fuel bill, according to Bates. Some of the most striking benefits of windbreaks in prairie plains states are found when trees are used to protect gardens, he said.

"Numerous conditions determine the extent of windbreak and shelter planting," Bates said. "Even toward the western edge of the corn belt, direct crop benefits from windbreaks justify belts of a width fully equal to the ultimate height of the trees.

"If the tree belts are planted 20 heights apart, approximately five per cent of the field areas can be used for trees without actually reducing the farm yields. Ten per cent of farms in trees may not be too high in the middle west," Bates said.

Admits Shooting Of 27 Years Ago 69-Year-Old Man Tells Officers He Is Ready To Return To Kentucky For Trial

Houston, Mar. 27 (AP)—A grizzled war man, a penniless wanderer for years, told officers today he shot a man in Kentucky 27 years ago and was ready to go back and face trial.

The 69-year-old white-bearded man, who gave his name as Frank Gray, signed a statement saying he shot a farmer named Harper near Russellville, Ky., told his family of the act and "left that part of the country."

He made the statement to homicide Capt. George Peyton after making a verbal report to Capt. George Mitchell of the city prison farm, where the aged man was held on a vagrancy charge.

The prisoner waived extradition and said he was ready to return to Kentucky with Sheriff J. Will Stewart of Russellville who will arrive here tomorrow.

In talking with officers and newsmen, the prisoner said the shooting resulted from a three-day quarrel and claimed he shot in self defense. He indicated, however, that he had not known whether Harper had died. He said he immediately left his family, a wife, and two sons and a daughter.

"People all around saw the whole thing," he said. "I told my family what I'd done and left that part of the country. I haven't seen my family or heard from any of them since. I don't know whether they're living. I cut ties at Newport, Ark., awhile, then I moved around from place to place."

Police records here showed the prisoner escaped from a city farm at Omaha, Neb., several years ago after he was arrested on a minor charge.

System Of Citrus Control Changed
WASHINGTON, Mar. 27 (AP)—Secretary Wallace suspended today the prorate system for controlling Florida citrus shipments, explaining a conflict of federal court decisions had created "an impossible situation."

District Judge Alexander Akerman of Tampa held last Thursday the federal marketing agreement, by which Florida growers and shippers regulated the flow of citrus fruits to northern markets, was invalid. A month earlier, District Judge John W. Holland of Miami had upheld the program.

Wallace telegraphed L. P. Kirkland, chairman of the Florida citrus control committee, the contradictory decisions forced him to reject the committee's prorate recommendations for the week beginning tomorrow.

J. W. Tepp, assistant agricultural adjustment administrator, said the secretary's order did not mean a revocation of the entire program, but only suspended the fixing of weekly prorates until the court controversy is settled.

REP. FOCHT DIES IN CAPITAL HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27 (AP)—Representative Benjamin K. Focht of Lewisburg, Pa., died at Emergency hospital here tonight.

Hospital attendants said Focht was brought to the hospital in a taxicab and was dead upon arrival.

With him was his secretary, Miss Lottie Stetter, with whom he had been dining at a hotel. Attendants said Miss Stetter noticed the representative appeared to be ill when they were leaving the hotel. She accompanied him to the hospital.

Dr. George W. Calver, capital physician, said Focht had been suffering from heart disease and had been under a doctor's care for some time.

Focht, a republican from the 18th Pennsylvania district, began his service in 1907 as a member of the 60th congress. The present was his tenth term but he had not served consecutively. He was 77 years of age and was the son of a Lutheran minister.

His widow, a son and a daughter survive.

WOMAN'S TRIAL IS DELAYED UNTIL JUNE

AUSTIN, Mar. 27 (AP)—District Attorney Edwin G. Moorhead said today the trial of Mrs. Ethel Johnson, accused of slaying her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bernice Blankenship, in Coryell county Aug. 10, 1934, had been postponed indefinitely.

Inability of the prosecution to secure needed evidence for the trial, set for March 29, caused the continuance, Moorhead said.

He said it was likely the case would be tried early in June. The trial was transferred to Travis county on a change of venue.

Carol Lombard, Fred M'urray Starred In Comedy Romance Booked At The Ritz

Musical Background In 'Swing High, Swing Low'

Popular success of two earlier comedy romances has resulted in the teaming again, for film entertainment, of Carol Lombard and Fred MacMurray, who appear in a new gay opus set to music, "Swing High, Swing Low," at the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday.

Previous Lombard-MacMurray pictures were "Hands Across the Table" and "The Princess Comes Aboard." Both were refreshing comedies, and "Swing High, Swing Low," is said to reach a similar level of entertainment.

Night club life of torrid Panama and glamorous New York is the background for the picture. Miss Lombard appears as a cabaret entertainer in an isthmus city, MacMurray as a lazy soldier finishing his term of service at the same place. He's a guy who would rather sleep than eat, but he's also an accomplished musician, one who can get all manner of tunes out of a trumpet. Romance between the two blossoms at the cabaret, and with the help of the girl, MacMurray begins to acquire some reputation as a trumpet player.

Their upward course takes them to New York, where the ex-soldier finds too much gay life and too much attention from other girls is more than he can take. He begins to sulk, and his one-time partner sees him attracted to another girl who doesn't deserve him. Things take a turn for the better, however, in the picture's climax; and one will be pleased to know that at the conclusion Carol and Fred are on the heights again, "swinging high."

There are several new musical numbers introduced in the picture, and for the first time Miss Lombard does vocal work. She appears in several singing and dancing sequences. MacMurray who was an orchestra man before he entered the movies, is able to enact the role of trumpet player with authenticity.

The supporting cast is headed by Charles Butterworth, the able comedian who appears as an orchestra leader; Dorothy Lamour, a new "glamour girl" of Hollywood who appears as the menace to the Lombard-MacMurray love affair; and who sings and dances in no mean manner; Harvey Stephens and Jean Dixon.

New Series Of Organ Programs On KBST Thrice Weekly; B. T. Cardwell To Be Featured In Program Today

A new series of programs featuring Jimmie Willson at the console of the First Presbyterian church organ has been inaugurated over KBST. The programs are presented each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at 7:45. The Saturday evening broadcast will present C. A. Bulot in baritone solos. The remaining two programs will bring to the microphone at the church various KBST vocalists.

B. T. Cardwell, well known baritone, will be presented in a quarter-hour broadcast of old familiar melodies over KBST Sunday evening at 7:30. For many years Cardwell has been a member of the choir of the First Baptist church, and has appeared as a soloist at many of Big Spring's musical recitals.

Thursday evening at 7:15, the West Texans made their debut over KBST. The trio composed of Mrs. R. E. Blount, Miss Ruby Bell and Weldon Stamps, presented a varied program of western and popular ballad songs. This trio is to be presented in a weekly broadcast, the exact period to be announced at a later date.

COLLECTIONS BY FEDERAL AGENCIES REACH 54 PERCENT

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27 (AP)—The government has collected about 54 cents of every dollar loaned through emergency agencies to reinforce the nation's depression-weakened credit structure. The back-flow of money from private business set in more than a year ago, and credit agencies report that now many borrowers who once drew billions from the government are supplying their needs from normal financial sources. Composite figures of the treasury and lending organizations fix loans by a dozen agencies at about $11,600,000,000 and repayments at $6,274,000,000.

Laurel-Hardy Comedy Opens Here Today Wm. Powell, Kay Francis At The Lyric

Funsters Take Dual Roles To Add To Laughs In "Our Relations" Are Seen In Revival Showing Of Dramatic "One Way Passage"

A plot differing slightly from the other comedies Laurel and Hardy have made, is set in their latest M-G-M production, "Our Relations," when the pair unknowingly let their sailor twin brothers come ashore to their quiet seaport home. The new Hal Roach comedy appears at the Queen theatre Sunday and Monday.

Laurel and Hardy take dual roles for the first time in the feature. Stan and Oliver are shown enjoying a sedate existence with their wives, played by Daphne Pollard and Betty Healy, as the story opens.

The two brother sailors are bad lads. They ran away from home when young, went to sea and were reported hanged for mutiny as when they walk in on their relations Stan's and Oliver's surprise is great.

The pair try to hold the information from their wives but the brothers get out of hand. In coming ashore they meet two girls and the fun is on. Mistaken identity is made the basis for many of the laughs when Stan and Oliver are mistaken for their joy-hunting kinsmen.

The two tars are entrusted with a pearl ring by their sea captain and when gangsters attempt to steal the ring, it is Laurel and Hardy who are chosen as the victims instead of the sailors.

In support, Laurel and Hardy have Sydney Toler, James Finlayson, Alan Hale, Arthur Housman, Ralf Harolde and Noel Madison. The picture was directed by Harry Lachman.

City's Fiscal Record Given Warm Praise

P. O. Official, In Luncheon Address, Lauds Efficient Management

High praise to the city administration of Big Spring for a remarkably sound financial record during the years of depression and recovery was sounded Saturday by Karl A. Crowley, of Washington, D. C., in an address at a luncheon session in his honor. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department, here for the dedication of the city's new postoffice building was guest speaker at an affair attended by approximately 100. The crowd included members of the four local service clubs and other civic leaders of the city, as well as postoffice officials from other West Texas towns here for the dedication ceremony.

Crowley spoke briefly, dwelling upon this city's fiscal record. He had handed a statement of municipal finances for the past six years and declared he was amazed by the city's good record. Citing the fact that during the depression years the city reduced its bonded debt 25 per cent while reducing its tax rate 20 per cent and trimming valuations, Crowley declared the record indicated an "efficiency of management seldom seen in this country." Big Spring has made a remarkable showing, he said, while most states, counties and cities were going deeper in debt, raising taxes, and "refinancing their obligations."

New Plane Stop? Crowley, who had made a tour of inspection of the city earlier in the day, drew applause when he lauded the potentialities of the city's airport, declaring there was a possibility of including Big Spring on a proposed new air schedule. He cited the city's strategic location on the important southern transcontinental airway and said that there are indications that the route soon will have another schedule. He said Big Spring's port can be developed into one of the major fields of the Southwest.

Other speakers on the luncheon program, for which Postmaster Nat Shick served as master of ceremony, were Alva Sole, director of airmail service for this area; Avin Page, postal inspector, and Victor Gilbert of Cisco, an interstate commerce commission representative.

Shick introduced visiting postoffice workers, including those from Amarillo, Snyder, Lamesa, Midland, Coahoma, Sweetwater and Abilene. Entertainment during the luncheon program included songs by a girls' trio composed of Wanda McQuinn, Jane Lee Hannah and Clarinda Mary Sanders; a vocal selection by Mrs. Joe Leonard of Midland, and songs by Ira Chesley Powell.

Crowley and other officials were honor guests at a breakfast Saturday. In a brief talk at that affair, the postal official expressed the hope that spending by governmental units could be curtailed. "If the present rate cities, counties, states are spending and that national government is compelled to spend continually," he said, "pretty soon there won't be any left to spend."

Sole alluded to the magnitude of the airmail system and to the mounting poundage. That an airmail letter travels almost as fast for six cents as a night letter ought to be impressed upon the average citizen, he declared. Page said he rejoiced with Big Spring in the dedication of the new building for "there have been times when I have felt just as keery as you the need for a government building in Big Spring." Crowley for retaining an airmail stop for Big Spring with W. T. Strange, Jr. Shick also presided at the breakfast.

lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, March 28.

The Golden Text is: "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations" (Psalms 90:1).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13, 14).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

Reading + AND Writing
By John Selby

Perhaps J. E. Priestley's "Midnight on the Desert" seemed sad to me because I read most of it very late at night. Perhaps it really is a little sad.

Perhaps the idea behind it is the cause of it all. For we are asked to watch a writer in the full flood of his creative activity muse over himself, a trifle unsteady, for the space of a full-length book. Ostensibly Mr. Priestley is writing about his winter in the American southwest. But actually Mr. Priestley is writing about Mr. Priestley.

He sets the key at the beginning, with a lengthy explanation of his attitude toward America. On at least two occasions Mr. Priestley has been quoted as saying some pretty sarcastic things about the United States. He slides over the first of these incidents in "Midnight on the Desert." The second began when his ship called one day in Boston, and Priestley was interviewed by a Boston newspaper man. The author disliked what this man wrote.

Next day the boat docked in New York, and I was detailed to talk with the ruffled Mr. Priestley at the Baltimore. Here is a curious fact which explains Mr. Priestley and his latest book; although he was disavowing any thought of "taking digs" at this country, or anything else, he said things which were quite as dangerous as anything he had been quoted as saying in Boston. In other words, Mr. Priestley has a strange little knack for sharp talk, and it gets away with him quite often.

It doesn't get away with him too often in the new book, although it goes rather against the grain to find him blaming the New York dramatic reviewers in the public because they didn't like his play
"Eden End." It is Mr. Priestley's favorite among his stage works;
he speaks of the offending reviewers as "fantastically incomprehensible," and neatly varies the pearls-before-swine saw by saying that he felt as if he "had quietly arranged a show of etchings in a home for the blind."

Which may sound as if a "100 per cent American," if there be any such left, could not read the book without squirming. This is not true —much of what he says about California and the movies, the southwest, D. H. Lawrence, and J. B.
Priestley himself is scintillant, and nearly all is amusing. Particularly, Mr. Priestley's reasons for saying that if he were poor he would get

"To divest thought of false trusts and material evidences in order that the spiritual facts of being may appear, this is the great attainment by means of which we shall sweep away the false and give place to the true" (page 428).

Stand-Ins Aid
In Rehearsals
Of Coronation

"Props" Include Cardboard
Crown And Large
Wooden Swords

LONDON, Mar. 27 (UP)—With venerable Westminster Abbey as the theater, the cast of the Coronation "show" is busy rehearsing the "lines" and "business" of the most elaborate production ever staged in the British Empire.

The parallel between the Coronation and production of a Broadway show, or Hollywood movie, may be carried even further. The "stars," King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, have stand-ins to relieve them of arduous hours of posing, and stage "props" take the place of the real regalia.

Swords Solemnly Carried
A cardboard crown substitutes for the priceless King Edward's crown and the blazon of jewels that is the imperial Crown of State.
Wooden swords with cardboard hilts are solemnly carried in the place of the three-foot, two-handed sword of state and the smaller ceremonial swords.

St. George's golden spurs, with sharp points instead of rowels, are of cardboard, as are the king's orb, scepter and other regalia.
Each is labeled with its title.

The queen's stand-in is Lady Rachel Howard, sister of the earl marsh, the Duke of Norfolk, "director" of the Coronation. Like movie stand-ins, Lady Rachel is similar in appearance and figure to the queen.

She is plump and not very tall, her coloring is medium brown, she wears her hair in a longish bob curled up and parted. She has a fine skin and wears scarcely any makeup.

Lords Stand In for King
The king's stand-in may vary from time to time. He has not designated one person to deputize for him, but makes the selection from his lords in waiting. They are seven: Baron Wigram, Viscount Gage, the Earl of Munster, the Marquess of Dufferin and Ava, the Earl of Erme, the Earl of Eldon and Viscount Alленdale.

The rehearsals first were scheduled in sections, with the entire cast going through the ceremony later. One final full dress reharseal will be held a few days before May 12, Coronation day.

Although they will not actually rehearse the Coronation, the king and queen will make a special visit to the Abbey, when full details of the ceremony will be explained to them.

Mr and Mrs. Todd Crain of San Angelo are at the bedside of Mrs.
Crain's father, J. B. Nail, who is very sick.

Members next Wednesday.

E. B. Prescott of Kermit was seriously injured Thursday by explosion of a gasoline engine on which he was working, friends here have been advised. Prescott formerly lived at Foran, having been transferred to Kermit by the Magnolia Petroleum company.

Spain proves stance for Hitler and Mussolini.
Military prestige lost in set-back by loyalists.
European war seen delayed for a year or two.
Franco's position held to be threatening.

Crises Makers
WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—Military staffs around the world are beginning to suspect that Mussolini and Hitler talk a much better war game than they play. Together, they have not even been able to out the communists in Spain.

Failure
German soldiers, and particularly German military planes, have fallen down too often in Spain for their deficiencies to be concealed from practiced military eyes. The planes have proved to be slower than anticipated in actual war conditions. They are not only heavy but lack sufficient maneuverability.

Friction
The excuse for German and Italian non-combatants who have checked the situation closely believe that neither the Italians nor the Germans at the Spanish front have much heart for their business. Friction has developed. General Franco's Moslems despise native Spaniards, the Italians do not like the Spaniards and seem to be only casually friendly with the Germans.

Danger
All this does not necessarily mean France is doomed to failure, but his present position is threatening. The defeats he suffered around Madrid are not particularly important. This lost ground may be recovered. But behind him are 120 sizeable towns and cities which he is holding with only a nominal garrison.

Poses
The most recent flare-up between Mussolini and Britain grew out of a slightly different phase of this background. Mussolini stated it in his recent avowal through Italy's Mohammedan holdings, by posing as the great white power of Islam.

Planning
The state department seems nervous. Officials are saying nothing publicly, and all they will say privately is that the subject is involved in too delicate a debate between the house and senate for them to protrude their noses.

Legislators and Financing
Disposition to get Texas on a cash basis seems to be lacking in the legislature, which finds little trouble enacting bills that call for expenditure of money, while hesitating over those designed to get the money, and absolute refusal to do anything toward reducing expenditures.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Wobbling a jittery course around town again after the recent flu siege... and thanking the Misses Bette Davis and Helen Broderick, the Messrs. Bill Ullman, Humphrey Bogart, Bob Montgomery and Tyrone Power for coming to the rescue so nobly.

That was quite a lot of talent (about $15,000-a-week's worth in the aggregate) that did my work for me. Too bad I got well... Now, now, hissing isn't polite.

Well, here's Dixie Dunbar, announcing she has decided to learn acting... and after two years under contract... Dixie, now 18, thinks the drastic step is necessary to save her career... She danced on the stage and danced her way into pictures, and has kept on dancing... She figures she could be playing a lot of parts now going to others if she had put in some time with a drama coach, and that's what she is doing...

Chapter 44
KARSKANOFF KLOPES

Mrs. Phelps returned carrying a small red cabinet decorated in gold. She seated herself again and drew the letters out. They looked as though they might have been written the day before. Bigelow reached for the little packet and examined it.

"But these are dated recently," he said.

"Recently?" repeated his aunt, staring. She leaned over to look. "How strange! The date looks exactly like the writing, too. But someone must have altered them. Tony Burgett has been dead nearly 20 years."

"The chances are they weren't dated at all," said Bigelow, "and he managed to match the ink somehow, and filled those dates in."

Anne nodded. "That seems to have been a favorite trick of his," she murmured bitterly.

"This? Whose? Mrs. Phelps, looking from one to another. "The gentleman was all known as Vronski," explained Bigelow. "He was blackmailing Anne over these—threatening a scandal-involving you."

"Good God?" gasped Mrs. Phelps. She stared at Anne. Anne flushed.

"I know your writing, you see," she said, "and I couldn't come and ask you about them. And you'd always been so good to me—"

Tears filled her eyes. Mrs. Phelps threw loving arms around her and drew her close. "And you thought I was really involved in some foolish affair—at my age?" she asked wonderingly.

"I didn't know what to think! I'd never heard of any Tony, and the letters looked so recent—and they were dated! And he said he'd have to go to you if I didn't give him the money he wanted—"

Mrs. Phelps patted Anne's shoulder, still a little bewildered. "My dear child!" she murmured. "But how in God's name did he get the letters in the first place?"

"Deris!" said Bigelow grimly.

"Deris?" Mrs. Phelps looked at him.

"She must have got them and sold them to him," said Bigelow. "She had access to them, hadn't she?"

"She is the only one in the house who had," agreed the old lady, "and Walters frequently warned me she wasn't to be trusted, but she was so useful!"

"Was?" repeated Bigelow.

"Yes. She's on holiday. I let her go several days ago."

"Well, that disposes of her, at any rate," said Bigelow. "I hardly think she will come back."

"Making a Bolt For It?"

Anne looked up at Bigelow anxiously. "Don't you think we might telephone Karskanoff, now?" she asked.

"Yes," said Bigelow. "Why not? If she is still sleeping, Marushka will tell you."

Anne left the room just as Walters came in with the first dish of waffles.

"Don't wait," advised the old lady. "I know Anne won't mind." She began to serve Bigelow from the silver platters Walters and the second man were placing before her. "Be careful of those plates, my dear. They are very hot... I simply cannot imagine how Anne could have believed for a moment—"

But of course, there was my writing and the dates. And women do foolish things—even women of my age! But I should not have believed that anyone who knew me as well as Anne... She shook her head helplessly as she gave Walters the plate.

As Walters set it before Bigelow, Anne came back.

"She's left the hotel!" cried Anne.

"What?" Bigelow looked up in astonishment.

"Went off in the early hours of the morning and didn't leave a forwarding address."

Bigelow whistled softly. "Do you suppose she's making a bolt for it?"

"Looks like it," said Anne. She sat down in her place.

"But why should Madame Karskanoff run away?" asked Mrs. Phelps.

Bigelow began to tell her. In the midst of this the bell rang and Walters ushered in Austritz.

"I've come to breakfast. I hope there is enough," he said. "I telephoned our young friend, here, and when I couldn't reach him, I guessed that he'd be here."

"Come more breakfast for Dr. Austritz," beamed Mrs. Phelps, dividing her smile between the doctor and Walters. Walters slipped away as the doctor sat down.

"I've had a letter from Karskanoff," said Austritz. "That's evidently what she meant last night when she said I would hear from her today. She says she's eloping to Canada with Woody Taylor by plane and that they plan to sail from there for France."

"Good Lord!" gasped Bigelow. "Won't the police stop them?" asked Anne.

"They may not trace them. Woody Taylor has his own plane. And if they sail as Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Taylor, the police may not realize that Mrs. Woodward Taylor is Karskanoff. And once she gets in France, they may not be able to extradite her on the evidence they have."

"After this great success, last night, this will cause some excitement," said Mrs. Phelps.

"Yes, I suppose the papers will simply discover that she has disappeared," said Anne.

"Was that all she said in the letter?" asked Bigelow.

"No. She said she had destroyed the photographs and the rest of the letters. And she enclosed a statement admitting her guilt in the Vronski case, but she placed it on my honor not to turn it over to the police unless Dr. Austritz found utility of the matter."

EASTER SERVICES

Again We Learn
That Faith Is Life
Itself

RESONANTLY, the chords ring out. Reverently we bow our heads and utter the prayer that rushes to our lips. Another Easter . . . to commemorate the miraculous fulfillment of a prophecy He made in the name of Faith. "And lo -- He was risen." Man has traveled far since that first Easter . . . in time; in learning; in achievement; in experience; in prowess. Yet still there is no more radiant joy than that given by our religion. And still the Faith He taught our forefathers is the most sublime state of spirit and mind to which we of this day and age may aspire. It can carry us through all emotional strife. It can bolster us through the privations of economic want. It can give us the courage to bear mental trials which may seem beyond human endurance. It can lift us over all that is mortal, for in Faith there is Hope, and where there is Hope there is Life.

Let us find our true faith in our Church, where we may worship all that means Love, and Peace, and Fellowship of man. And in all our hearts will surge the joyousness of BELIEVING when we, too, hear on Easter Sunday -- "And He was risen."

You Will Be WELCOME

Every Sunday!
