Home Town Talk by Betty

Only about one-fifth of the 1,000 Chinese Elm trees the joint committee of clubs and the Chamber of Commerce is seeking to have planted along Big Spring streets have been reserved.

No one doubts the value of beautifying a town with shade trees. That we are in need of more trees is obvious. Miles and miles of comparatively new streets have no trees, although the homes are pretty and new.

Of course, care must be taken in setting out the trees and more care taken to keep them growing.

Before writing these paragraphs Betty called City Manager Spence and he said that the city commission is going to do its very best to provide a special irrigation rate beginning about April 1 for the spring and summer months for the purpose of stimulating beautification of yards.

The rate would allow more water for a given sum per month than under the existing domestic water rate. The irrigation rate will depend largely upon the volume of tax payments made this winter, it was pointed out.

Big Spring has two important highways traversing it in four directions. Who can estimate the real value of having Third, Scurry and Gregg streets lined with trees?

The trees offered are 18 to 18 feet in height. Specimens are on exhibit at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

And they may be obtained at fifty cents apiece provided an order of at least 1,000 is placed.

Let Big Spring take the lead in this section of West Texas in the beautification program that is being sponsored throughout its territory by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Yesterday's congressional elections in various states brought the Democrats a majority of about two seats in the next congress, it was indicated this morning.

Democrats who had all but given up hope of gaining control of the government in this generation now have real reason to be encouraged.

However, it appears yet too early to predict accurately just what political faith the next president will have.

Almost everyone likes FRUIT CAKE... and somebody wants a DODGE COUPE... still others might want only a JERSEY COW...

and many women want Beauty Shop work as well as DRESSMAKING...

Officers and surgeons said that the body from which it came probably had been dead three or four months. Parts of the tendons were intact at the joints.

Advance Winter Fashions

Black, according to a Paris correspondent, Comtesse Tolstol, is still first in the heart of the Parisienne. Writing of that fashionable event, the Prix de l'Arce de Triomphe race at Longchamp, she says: "Black woaden dresses with silver fox scarfs and black woolen coats trimmed with silver fox or astrakhan or breitschwantz—these were worn by many women of fashion. Here and there some brown, some blue, green and wine but for the most part black."

"I noticed quite a number of ermine scarfs on black coats and suits," the letter continues. "One of these I had sketched for you because it seemed typical of the casual way ermine is used—just as though it were a fabric. This one is a soft scarf with one end tucked under a black suede belt and the other end pinned up with a diamond brooch. Flared ermine cuffs to match are attached to this black woolen suit. Another attractive ermine scarf was tied in a bow at the neck of a black woolen coat. "One entire jacket of white ermine was striking with a black woolen dress and a black suede belt. The hat which went with this costume was reversible felt and velvet, trimmed with little feather wings at back.

"Some of the black coats showed interesting ways of combining fur and fabric. One model, for example, consisted of alternating vertical bands of black astrakhan and cloth. The coat which I had sketched seemed particularly successful to me, for the cloth was used only to emphasize the slim lines of hip and waist, the rest was black astrakhan.

Red Geraniums

"One society woman who I know for her chic added an unusual touch to her black fur-trimmed coat. It was a bunch of red geraniums pinned on the left side of her small toque hat from Rebois was all red geraniums and the right side black astrakhan. She wore a simple black silk dress, a black patent leather shoe, beige stockings and beige gloves."

Beige gloves, by the way, have been mentioned before in Comtesse Tolstol's letters.

In describing the hats which make up the picture of fashion in Paris correspondents often refer to "coq de roche," a new color in Paris this season. This, as near as it can be described, is a soft orange and has quite a vogue in feather or ribbon trimmings on brown or black hats. Frequently this coored trimming on the hat repeats the tone of some other part of the costume.

Hat Trimmings

Molyneux is showing small black felt hats trimmed with colored velvet to match the silk dresses worn under black daytime coats. One of these costumes included a black hat trimmed with beige velvet, black coat with a natural lynx collar and a beige crepe de chine dress.

The beret kind of hat has been gaining favor in Paris lately. All kinds of draped tam o' shanter shapes and little pancakes plastered on the side of the head are included. Many of them have straight stick-up feathers at the side or back.

One thing in common with all the new hats, however varied the style, is the fact that they reveal a great deal of hair. Now the coiffure plays a more important part in the fashion picture than it has for some time. The other day a correspondent dropped in to see what Jean, the coiffeur, had to say about this.

New Coiffures

She found him full of practical ideas. The first is that since most of these new hats leave the left side of the head more or less exposed it is that side which should have the softest, thickest waves. Therefore he always parts the hair on the right side to achieve this effect.

In the days of wide-brimmed hats low waves covering the ears were attractive but now that hats are so much smaller and placed higher on the cheek—revealing the lobe of the ear.

In the last few months M. Jean says that he has sold many more hair nets than usual—the old-fashioned flat kind. These are now used on windy days to protect those soft waves not covered by the hat.

The group will study the fifth chapter of the Acts. Five brief talks will be given and these present may ask questions or make comments upon the lesson.

For these perky young hats which reveal the back of the head M. Jean finds that his clients favor two different arrangements. One is the long hair knot adopted by the very young girl. The other is the little rolled curl, all around the back of the head. The smart older woman, whose hat is not quite so perky, requires a long bob which is not curled at the end.

The three sketches show these coiffures all with the part on the right side of the head and soft waves not too low over the ears.

Prefers Babies To Parliament Says French Premier's Daughter

LE HAVRE, France, Nov. 4 (UP)—Mlle. Jose Laval, daughter of the French premier, landed from the S. B. de France today telling her closest friends that "America is a fairland" but informing aggressive French suffragettes that she preferred "a dozen babies to a seat in Parliament."

"America fulfilled every prediction I had heard," Mlle. Jose said. "Its women are beautiful; its character is best interpreted by its man-built wonders. I certainly hope to return."

The premier's daughter, however, failed to adopt the independence of American girls—at least, in public. It was disclosed that two enterprising French suffragettes lectured her for several days en route from New York. They were eager for her to attempt to influence her father to cease his opposition to feminist projects proposed in Parliament.

Mlle. Jose listened patiently until she had heard their requests and then said:

"I and most of my friends are sufficiently old-fashioned to believe women should raise a family, which is not possible if they sit in Parliament. Personally, I would prefer a dozen babies to a seat in Parliament."

Her future plans are uncertain, she said. It is possible, however, that she will accept an invitation to join an expedition across the Sahara desert in caterpillar automobiles.

Further Improvement In Oil Industry Is Expected

BY RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Nov. 4. — This week promises oil regulations by official action to set the production industry on its feet, and promises changes by market operation, to raise the value of the oil produced. The official order in prospect is one which Governor Sterling has asked to issue as military commander in chief of the East Texas field that is under martial law. It would, oil men told Governor Sterling, prevent the needless drilling of wells costing at least $80,000,000, wells whose drilling would not much increase the field's production without them, and which would decrease the value and output of each well already in operation.

Governor Sterling had the recommendation of the oil industry behind the proposal to limit the East Texas production to 50 barrels per acre tract as a basis, with a minimum of 51 barrels for a one-acre tract, and a maximum of 400 barrels from tracts of 100 acres and larger. That would make needless drilling of more than one well per 100 acres of undeveloped territory, he was told.

Governor Sterling said he "believes some such basis can and will be adopted." He promised careful study to the oil committee's recommendations. The order, shifting production to an acreage basis, regardless of the number of wells per tract, would not materially cut down the present production; but would curb drilling so that there would not be required the further cutting back of production as has been done repeatedly on the well basis.

Naturally there is an interrelation in the control of production and the range of prices. The flow is being controlled now in East Texas, but drilling isn't. The spectre of ten-cent oil stands only in that, with another batch of wells added to the 2000-odd producers there now, some count might conceivably take the lid off again.

As one able oil man remarked, 50 barrels of dollar oil is worth as much as 100 barrels of 50-cent oil. At the present price of 72 cents per barrel for oil, it appears that if these were saved, as suggested in the new proration plan, $60,000,000 of needless drilling, it would be saving the equivalent of 80,555,555 barrels of oil. And that is a great deal of oil.

That state has three distinct interests in the East Texas situation:

1. The production tax at two per cent has risen with the price of oil, and will bring in still more money to the state treasury as the price goes higher.
2. The streambed lands of the East Texas field, state-owned, will go on the market after January 1, and will provide a substantial bonus to the state.
3. Orderly, prosperous production of oil will keep the field in operation on a broad scale a long time, thus measurably providing work and livelihood to many hundreds of men. The welfare of the oil industry generally in Texas without question directly affects the economic life of a million people, or one-sixth of all those in the state.

A subsidiary interest the state has is the termination and successful winding up of the successful military administration in East Texas. The nucleus of military authority likely will have to be left in East Texas a considerable time yet; but someday the state will be ready to turn the control back to statutory agencies. The more successful and orderly and prosperous the industry grows, there where chaos was supreme so short a time ago, the sooner can the troops go home.

Pink Grapefruit 'Spoiled' In Opinion 'Foreign' Hotel Man

SAN BENITO, Texas, Nov. 3 (UP). — Fred H. Scheer of San Benito thought that he would enjoy some Lower Rio Grande Valley grapefruit while sojourning in Hot Springs, Arkansas, and ordered some sent him there. The manager of the hotel informed him regretfully, however, that the fruit was spoiled. Surprised, Scheer investigated and found that his Valley friends had sent him a box of pink grapefruit and that the hotel manager thought the color due to decay. Scheer explained that it was a choice variety of fruit.

400 Expected At Legion Meet In Sweetwater

SWEETWATER, Nov. 4. — Preparations to entertain an expected attendance of 400 at the 17th district American Legion convention in Sweetwater November 7th and 8th were being made this week by the Oscar McDonald Post.

The two-day session will bring to Sweetwater the first of several important conventions scheduled for this city during the next eight months.

Being the home town of V. Earl Earp, new State Commander, and of the all-time official band for the Texas department, Sweetwater will probably draw one of the biggest gatherings ever to attend a district session, officers of the local post believe.

There are thirty-two Legion Posts in this district. Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, and Senator Tom Connally of Marlin, have been invited to be principal speakers on the two-day program, while Hal Brennan, past State Commander, was promised to be here also.

Other features of the session will include a golf tournament at the Sweetwater Country Club on Saturday afternoon, the first day; free concert by the famous Tickville Band of Ranger, assisted by the Sweetwater Gipsy Girls at the Sweetwater city auditorium Saturday evening; a dance at the Blue Bonnet Hotel Saturday night; business session from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. at the auditorium when Dr. George Green will deliver the sermon; banquet at the high school cafeteria at noon Sunday; addresses by prominent speakers Sunday afternoon and program by the Sweetwater Music Study Club.

Charles E. Paxton is general chairman of the convention committee, with A. G. Lee, assistant. The Blue Bonnet Hotel will be convention headquarters.

State Would Stop Sale Of 3rd Grade Gasoline

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 4 (UP). — Complaints charging the sale of a poor grade of gasoline a violation of the state penal code were to be filed against employees of nine major oil companies here this afternoon.

The complaints were prepared by District Attorney Jesse Martin on the request of Willis E. Gresham, investigator for the state attorney general's office. Gresham turned over to Martin today the results of an investigation he made here. The investigation showed, Gresham said, that some of the poor grade gasoline sold here would require 25 per cent more petroleum to bring it up to state specifications.

"The complaints to be filed here are but the start of an attempt by the state to take the third grade gasoline off the market in Texas," Gresham declared.

An investigation in two other large Texas cities is to be made at once, he also said. He would not name the cities where the investigations are to be made.

SAM BY FREEMAN LINCOLN

SYNOPSIS After struggling to support her stepfather, Fourth Albee, and her half-brother, Nelson, Sam Sherrill becomes engaged to Peak Abbott. Learning that Peak has supplied money for the purchase of an invention of Fourth she runs away, breaking the engagement. Freda, Missman, a former ally, follows her to plead Peak's cause.

TWO SIDES OF A TRICK

"You've asked a question, and Freddy cheerfully, 'and now perhaps you'll answer it. Would you care for a discussion of woman's' you?"

HE CARRIED THE BOOKS

There was, for example, the time he went to the central postoffice in Washington to call for a parcel which he had been notified was there. Inquiry revealed that it was a large one—some books.

A SOLDIER

He is proud of his career as a soldier in the Union Army during the Civil war. At one time he served on the bench with Justice Burton a Confederate soldier.

WON'T YOU RECONSIDER? Won't you let me speak my piece, just as a favor? I haven't asked you for many favors that I can remember, and this one won't be hard to grant, I'll take only a few minutes, and I'm positive that you won't regret them in the end." He held out a pleading hand. "Won't you let me, Sam? I'd be very grateful."

"Great!" Freddy grinned his pleasure. "You won't be sorry." "Won't it?" "No! He was vigorous, now, and determined. He spoke swiftly. "To go back to where we began, I still can't see any reason why you won't marry Abbott. You love him, you know."

"I know there would be no sense in all this if you're wrong, Freddy. You're utterly wrong, I don't love Peak Abbott. I'll admit that I did love him for a time—more than I thought I'd love anybody. I was happy. Then—"

"That's just the apple cart completely. You felt that you'd been tricked, not to say deceived," he went on. "Well? Can you blame me?" "No, the exception was there, but that's the point. The point is, why was the deception made?" She laughed without mirth. "Must you ask?"

"I don't need to ask what you think. You think that in giving Fourth money, Peak was really trying to buy you?" "I don't think I know." There was a bitterness in her tone. "Clever trick, wasn't it? It almost worked."

PECOS, Texas, Nov. 4 (AP)—Cantaloupes produced in the Pecos Valley, which this year have brought a record all-time high price on New York wholesale produce markets, have three distinct advantages over melons grown in any other part of the country, according to Alex Strachna, representative of the United States

Fruit Distributors, Inc., a New York concern. Strachna made a talk on the cantaloupes at a recent meeting of the Pecos Chamber of Commerce. He said that the Pecos melons were of higher quality, both in taste and size; that they had the freight advantage over the Imperial Valley and Arizona melons; and that they had twice as long a growing season.

Higher Production Accompanies Raise In Crude Prices; Oil Men Already Predicting Second Hike

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 4 (UP).—An increase in crude petroleum production in the nation kept pace with the mounting degree of optimism in business today.

The Oil & Gas Journal reported that daily average crude oil production in the nation increased 42,244 barrels to 2,442,418 for the week ending October 31.

Production increased when virtually all mid-continent oil companies had posted an average 15 cent a barrel increase for crude oil, making the scales on a gravity basis range between 61 and 65 cents a barrel. With all but a half dozen companies yet to conform with the new price today, oil men were already predicting higher prices.

The mid-continent area, where the increase in price became effective yesterday, accounted for the production increase, the area's daily average production increasing 54,566 barrels to 1,508,223.

Oklahoma, which went under a new proration order today which endures for the remainder of the year, reported an increase of 46,500 barrels to 518,615 barrels. East Texas was up 17,641 barrel to 417,729.

These increases were offset somewhat by a drop in California's production of 13,500 barrels to 494,000. Production table. Oct. 31 Oct. 24

This And That By Mark

In case anyone would like to know just who will win the various games of the current week we refer one and all to W. B. Hardy. Doc has about the best record of anyone we know at the present time. Out of 21 colleges and 19 high school games of the past week-end Doc had two losses and three ties out of 40 games. Not so bad. Incidentally Doc picked the same teams to win that this column did, or we got our suggestions from him. Either way it makes no dif.

This week we find Breckenridge at Eastland, Oak Cliff playing Dallas Tech, North Dallas vs. Woodrow Wilson, Waco playing host to Waxahachie, Temple taking the number of Hillsboro, Bowie and Austin high of El Paso, Harlandale vs. Austin, Brackenridge vs. Del Rio, Main Avenue vs. Kerrville, John Reagan vs. San Jacinto, Jeff Davis vs. Bryan, Galveston vs. Goose Creek, Corpus Christi vs. Laredo.

The majority of the teams will be idle until the 11th when the lid will fly open in earnest. In case everyone is not acquainted with the fact, the real game of the coming week will be played in Sweetwater between the Ponies of Coach Hennig and the Bovines under the tutelage of Bristow and Brown. Personally we cast our vote for the latter team to cop the fray.

What promises to be the most colorful clash of the week will be staged in Aggie land when the Cadets play host to the prancing Mustangs from S. M. U.

Going into the game outwitted the Farmers will make every effort to win their first game from the Methodists since 1927. The wonderful fighting spirit of the Aggies will not be enough to stop the Pony march according to our way of thinking. The charges of Coach Morrison are due for a long, uninterrupted string of victories. They have a great club at SMU this year and we look for the boys to go through the conference season without defeat.

We see in the Dallas News under a Sweetwater date line the astounding fact that in addition to the natural interest being shown in the Pony-Steer battle there will be a personal grudge contest between Hicks of the Mustangs and Dennis of the Steers for district supremacy. Now that would be rather interesting if it were not such a childish remark. How can anyone begin to compare Hicks with Dennis? Hicks has been out of the last two games and the times he has played he has done nothing out of the ordinary. We can name several of the Mustangs just as good as the Roscoe Rambler. It will take some one with far more ability than Mike Hicks to be able to even think about competing with Tack Dennis. Mike is able to do one thing fairly well—carry the ball. Dennis can do everything with a pigskin except make it talk.

There is a wealth of backfield material in the district but it is not such a difficult proposition to pick the outstanding men. Just at a glance we see Harrison, and Delker at San Angelo, Sheridan, Daugh, Hicks, and Wood at Sweetwater, Midkiff and Burris at Midland, Schwarzenbach, Flowers, Heblsen, Coburn and Dennis of the Steers, Delker, rated by Blondy Cross as the outstanding fullback of the district is going to meet his match on November 26. Harrison has met his. He was almost completely stopped by the Midland Bulldogs, a fact which comes close to eliminating the young Bobcat as a serious contender for district honors.

Sam Baugh, at Sweetwater, according to all information should have a cinch on the quarterback position, but we are going to have to think twice and then pick "Schwartz" if the Steer field general continues to improve as he has in the past.

The forwards of the district are not so hot and plentiful. We can see only three outstanding men at their respective positions at the present time. Dyer is head and shoulders above the other centers of the district. Hopper of Big Spring and Barnett of McCamey seem to have run away with the tackle positions. Grimsley of the Mustangs is a nice tackle, but he was badly outplayed by Barnett last week and he is going to find two men better than he is when the Steers go east next week. In fact we say three—Roberts, Sanders and Hopper.

Mike will have to go places and do things in a big way in the two remaining games on the Mustangs' schedule if he is to be given any consideration as all-district material.

The backfield we have in mind has no place left vacant for him.

The Steers are going at their practice sessions with vim and vigor that indicates a stormy session within the confines of Newman Field next Wednesday—just one week from today.

There are plenty of reasons why the Republicans should lose the next presidential race, most of us will agree. But, there are usually many changes of value at the polls to the party in power in the few months preceding each presidential election.

If gasoline prices must rise when crude prices are hiked to provide a fair profit for refiners, it occurs to us the people of Big Spring should not worry much about paying one or two cents more per gallon right now.

What is good for one fellow oftentimes is bad for another. Such was the case when crude was raised here from 35 to 50 cents per barrel. It made things rougher for our refiners—unless they can get more for their gasoline.
