There is no split season this year, with the season open daily through October 30.

Assisting with the fire were members of the Bangs and Early fire departments.

Area people are urged to use caution as the dry weather makes range fires a hazard.

Car care protects investment

COLLEGE STATION — An automobile has become too valuable an investment to ignore its maintenance needs, says an automotive specialist at the Texas Transportation Institute.

Service station attendants who once spotted danger signs and recommended action are not seeing as many cars today and warning signs that repairs are needed often go unnoticed, says Rick Tonda of the transportation institute at Texas A&M University.

Tonda recommends that a car owner shop around and find an inspection station that does a thorough job.

The rest of the year, the owner who has no automotive skills should either seek expert checks and pay for them or learn to watch for extreme wear and possible failures, Tonda advises.

Deer Population High; Large Hunt Encouraged

Recent rains resulting from hurricane activity will have little affect on deer herds in Southwest Texas and the Rio Grande Plains, according to Dr. Dwight Guynn, area wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Some new plant growth will be generated from the moisture, received, but most of the damage has already been done by the extended drouth, he points out.

"It's a classic case of too little rain received too late to be a great deal of help," Guynn says. "Some deer on the brink of starvation will be saved, but the number won't be significant."

Guynn continues to emphasize that overpopulation of deer in certain areas has resulted in large starvation deaths, up to 60 percent in some parts of the Hill Country and South Texas. Even with such losses, Guynn says ample deer will be available in most areas of Texas for hunting this fall.

"There should be plenty around, but hunters will be confronted with more smaller, inferior deer which have survived the drouth but suffered its effects. Antlers may be somewhat smaller this year due to the lack of nutrition which occurred this summer when the bucks were developing them."

Guynn stresses that good antler development is directly associated with proper nutrition, a luxury that deer and other wildlife species have been virtually without most of the year.

This year Guynn is encouraging landowners and ranchers to harvest more does than in recent hunting seasons. These 'reproductive factories' of the deer herd, if left untouched, will continue to re-populate, continuing the cycle and resulting in more deer than ranges can support.

Guynn suggests that a significant doe harvest in most areas this fall is the only measure outside starvation that can keep deer numbers in balance with deer food sources.

The wildlife expert looks upon the approaching hunting season as a true test for many landowners and wild game hunting operators.

"They must decide if their deer should be harvested this fall through sport or be subjected to endure the winter, quite possibly without sufficient food. We encourage more doe harvesting where necessary so this critical deer-forage balance can be achieved," he says.

Those in question should check with the local county Extension agent for methods that can be used to help determine deer populations.

VISIT PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hancock and LeAnn of Dennison were in Santa Anna for the holiday weekend, visiting her mother, Mrs. B. A. Parker and other relatives, and attended to business.

Home prices are up, but sales are down

COLLEGE STATION — The number of previously owned homes sold in Texas during the first quarter of 1980 was down 5.2 percent from the same period in 1979, but prices were up 14.6 percent.

Dr. Arthur Wright, research economist with the Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University said the drop in sales was a result of the unavailability of mortgage funds, high interest rates and the general slowdown in the economy.

Wright said if housing sales continue to lag, home prices may stabilize or even drop.

"With mortgage rate declining, both sales volume and prices likely will increase during the next several months," he explained.

We Shall Not Be Covetous

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house; thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maldservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's. Ex. 20:17.

The last commandment condemns covetousness. Every selfish desire, every degree of discontent, every act of overreaching, every selfish gratification works to the strengthening and developing of a character which will destroy the Christlikeness of the human agent, and close the gates of the city of God against him.

When....angels come to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation, and witness the exhibition of selfishness, of covetousness, of overreaching, and benefiting self at others' disadvantage, they turn away in grief....In no way could the Lord be better glorified and the truth more highly honored, than for unbelievers to see that the truth has wrought a great and good work upon the lives of naturally covetous and penurious men. If it could be seen that the faith of such selfish, overreaching, money-loving men, to men who love to do good, who seek opportunities to use their means to bless those who need to be blessed, who visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction, and who keep themselves unspotted from the world, it would be an evidence that their religion was genuine.... Those who profess to be waiting and watching for the appearing of their Lord should not disgrace their profession by bantering in deal and standing for the last penny. Such fruit does not grow upon the Christian tree.

The tenth commandment strikes at the very root of all sins, prohibiting the selfish desire, from which springs the sinful act. He who in obedience to God's law refrains from indulging even a sinful desire for that which belongs to another, will not be guilty of an act of wrong toward his fellow-creatures.

Crimes increasing at parks, camp sites

The ballooning crime rate among campers is so striking that a Texas A&M University park expert warns campers from the city not to leave their street sense at home when venturing into the wilds.

"For some reason, people in a big park seem to think they are completely safe and secure," said Dr. Jim Fletcher, a professor in Texas A&M's Department of Recreation and Parks. "They don't put gear away. They don't lock their cars. It's just as essential to take the same precautions in the woods as they would when they're home in the city," he warned.

Thefts in the state and national park systems have ranged from expensive down sleeping bags to four-wheel drive pickup trucks.

Fletcher suggests campers always lock their cars and secure personal possessions like stoves, clothing and sleeping bags when away from the camping site.

Paris A City of Interest During European Holiday

By Barbara Kingsbery

Paris, France is a city best seen with a good guide, which we had as Jacqueline Woodward, a French native and former resident of that city, spent several days with us there.

We stayed at the apartment of the Jacques Thauvins, Jacqueline's cousins, who were vacationing in Corsica and graciously opened their home for us. (They are parents of Blaise Thauvins, a 12-year-old, who visited with us at Santa Anna last summer.)

Over five million people live in the Paris area, with miles and miles of centuries-old apartment buildings of four and five stories housing dozens of families. A one-family house on a separate plot of land is an oddity, and I can't remember seeing more than one or two in the entire city.

The buildings are mostly in perfect condition, with intricate carvings and facades, with the lower floors often housing shops and stores with apartments in the upper floors. Streets and sidewalks are kept clean and attractive, with trees growing along most streets in the city.

We drove down the famous Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe where traffic is six or seven unmarked lanes, with vehicles on the right having the right-of-way. Needless to say, it was a thrilling experience!

We also drove around the Eiffel Tower, an awesome structure that in the past years was listed as one of the 'Seven Wonders of the World'. We also walked along the noted 'Left Bank' of the Seine River where I purchased a pencil sketch from one of the many sidewalk artists.

The best way to get around Paris is to take the subway, and we were able to travel to almost any point from Saint Maur, the suburb where we were staying. Traffic and parking are problems, and sightseeing is best done by foot anyway.

Buildings and places of historic and architectural interest are too numerous to list, but our visits took us to the famous Cathedral of Notre Dame, dating to the 12th century, the Lourve and Latin Quarter and Twilerie Gardens, etc.

We had dinner one night at a quaint restaurant along the Marne River near Paris, then took a sightseeing boat on the Seine River through the old section of the city. The statues, buildings and landmarks are more beautiful at night, with one of interest being the Statue of Liberty, a smaller version of the one in New York Harbor that France gave to the United States.

We enjoyed shopping in the stores--or mostly just looking--to compare prices of goods and services with those at home. All of Europe is plagued with inflation, plus the American dollar is of depressed value, so prices seemed very high on everything. Gasoline is approximately $3.50 per gallon (if computing francs to dollars and liters to gallons was correct.)

The weather was delightful during our stay in Paris. The days were warm and the nights cool and clear. We sat in the sunshine for lunch in a typical sidewalk cafe one day, enjoying the warmth.

We visited Montmarte, a tall white church on a hill north of Paris surrounded by a region that is now an art colony with shops that attract tourists and sightseers. We also drove through the Pigalle section so well-known for the night clubs and entertainment.

One incongruous sight among the ornate buildings in Paris is the Beau Borg, a modern art center that resembles an oil refinery painted in bright colors. The building was quite controversial, but really makes a 'statement' to the world with its unusual architecture.

I was impressed with the preservation of the beautiful old buildings, and we noted the work being done to remove the black film and soot caused by years of pollution from coal smoke and vehicle pollution.

The original city of Paris was settled in the 3rd Century BC on a small island (La Cite) in the Seine River to be fortified from enemies. It was awesome to think of the centuries of history at that place in comparison with our country's relatively short span.

September Is License Time

AUSTIN...Hunters and fishermen are reminded that September 1 is renewal time for hunting and fishing licenses in Texas.

The 1980-81 hunting and fishing licenses are now available at stores where hunting and fishing equipment is sold, and at department stores across the state.

Resident hunting licenses cost $5.25 and are required for all Texas citizens who hunt outside the county of their residence or who hunt deer or turkey. Exceptions include persons under 17 or over 65 years of age; persons hunting on land where they reside or certain disabled veterans. However, persons in the above exempted categories still must purchase a $1.25 resident exempt hunting license to hunt deer or turkey.

Resident fishing licenses cost $4.50, and they are required of all Texas residents who fish in the state's waters except: persons under 17 or over 65 years of age; persons fishing on property they or members of their family own and reside on; those fishing in their county of residence with trotline, throw-line or ordinary pole and line having no reel or winding device attached; persons holding a valid Texas commercial fishing license or holder of a $1.25 exempt fishing license available to certain disabled veterans or the blind.

Persons who wish to both hunt and fish may save $1 by purchasing a resident combination hunting - fishing license for $8.75.

For full information concerning license requirements and other hunting and fishing laws, consult the 1980-81 Guide to Texas Hunting and Sport Fishing Regulations booklet, available at license outlets.

Busy Year Is Completed By Bluebird Girls Group

The Blue Bird Campfire Girls have completed a busy year and are looking forward to the start of another. Leaders of the group are Mrs. Earl Simmons and Mrs. Gary Fleeman.

Registration for the new year will be Monday, Sept. 8, at 7 p.m. at the Civic Center. Girls in the first, second and third grades are invited to join the Bluebirds.

The girls have had many learning experiences as well as entertaining ones. They have done community service projects such as distributing fruit and singing Christmas carols, making favors for Meal-on-Wheels trays, collecting material for quilts for the nursing home, and cleaning the Kate Mathews Memorial Park. They also collected donations for the Rehab Center in Abilene.

Trips have been fun and educational. They have visited the bank, post office and telephone company, also Martin's Dairy Farm at Trickham. Out of town trips have been to the Abilene Holiday on Ice show and the Rehab telethon, and to KTAB television station where they met Natalie Powers and saw the news people at work. They made their final trip to San Angelo where they enjoyed a drive along the Concho River, a tour of Fort Concho, the Del-Tex Candy Co., and fun at an amusement park.

Day Camp was a summer event, held at Santa Anna Lake. Nature crafts, hiking, a weiner roast and play time was enjoyed.

To complete the year, there will be a 'Fly-up' ceremony for girls moving up to the Adventure group. Patches will be awarded to those who have completed their projects.

Sheep and Goat Field Day Set In San Angelo

Coleman County Extension Agent, Roger Blackmon said yesterday a local group will go to San Angelo for a September field day.

Sept. 4 is the date of the annual Sheep and Goat Field Day at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center.

'Producers at the field day,' said Blackmon, 'will hear about progress in the search for a bluetongue vaccine.'

Registration for the morning program in the Center's auditorium will begin at 9 A.M.

After a Dutch-treat lunch, the Coleman County group will join others for an out-of-doors program.

Besides the serious sheep disease of bluetongue, other topics in the morning will be the Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory at College Station and Amarillo, how Texas mohair is measuring up, increasing the productivity of sheep and goats, and the activities of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Assn.

Blackmon said the afternoon program will deal with protected proteins for Angora goats, supplemental protein energy and phosphorus for Angora doe kids, new ideas in shearing, and low-energy as well as low-cost brush and weed control.

MOVED TO SANTA ANNA

Mrs. S. E. Benton has moved to Santa Anna and is living in an apartment on Avenue B. She has lived in Brownwood in recent years but is a former long-time resident of Santa Anna.

Texas homes are now more than twice the price

COLLEGE STATION — The average price of a previously owned home in a Texas metropolitan area more than doubled from 1973 to 1979, said Dr. Arthur Wright, research economist for the Texas

Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University.

"In 1973 the average price for a used home was $24,149. By 1979, the price had jumped to $52,879. This represents an increase of 119 percent in just six years," Wright said.

The increase was blamed on inflation combined with the continued strong demand for single family housing in Texas.

Campfire Group Has Visit With Nursing Home Residents

The Adventurer Group of Campfire Girls met Monday for adventure and fun. The leaders and girls took pot plants to several residents at the nursing home, meeting some nice ladies and seeking to bring pleasure to them.

Sandy Hosch greeted Rhonda Fleeman, Stephanie Hartman, Meredith Goodwin, and Marcie

Puckett at the meeting, and thank-you notes were written to several people who had helped them with their carnival events.

The group has expressed appreciation to everyone who helped in any way with the fund raising event Saturday night, helping make it a success.

Planting Season For State Flower

Now is the time to plant Bluebonnet seeds--if you can find them.

The crippling drought has reduced the Bluebonnet seed harvest to a fraction of the usual production.

Carroll Abbott of Kerrville--the state's only fulltime wild-flower seed and plant collector--usually sells tons of Bluebonnet seeds each season, but he is now limiting his customers to a maximum of 50 pounds each.

The short supply of seed, however, have an extremely high rate of germination.

"It seems like Mother Nature wanted every seed which was produced to grow," Abbott says. "Our germination rate was tested at the State Seed Laboratory and came out to an amazing 94 per cent."

Despite the shortage, Abbott's mail-order seed firm--Green Horizons--still sells the smaller packages at former prices. A thousand seed, for example, costs $2.35, including tax and postage. With each order, Abbott sends along cultural notes on how to grow Bluebonnets successfully and a list of nearly 60 other wild-flowers which should be planted now.

His address is 500 Thomson Drive, Kerrville, Tx., 78028.

Marital Status Often Affects Social Security

Marriages may be made in Heaven, but you may have to have proof of your marriage to get social security benefits. If you are already receiving benefits, marriage could reduce or eliminate them altogether.

Knowing how marriage can affect your social security protection can save you a great deal of time and trouble, and perhaps even money. Social security retirement, survivors, and disability benefits are payable to eligible spouses of retired or disabled workers receiving social security. In future financial planning, you should know how much to expect, how to get benefits and how marriage can affect benefits you are already getting.

A spouse is entitled to a benefit amounting to from 3 1/2 to 50 percent of a retired or disabled partner's full benefit, or from 7 1/2 to 100 percent of a deceased worker's benefit, depending on the age at which he or she applies.

Widow's or widower's benefits generally are payable beginning at age 60. A disabled widow or widower may get benefits at age 50 provided the disability begins within 7 years after the death of the worker, or within 7 years after mother's or father's benefits stopped.

You may get retirement benefits at age 62 if your spouse gets retirement benefits. A divorced woman may qualify for the same type of benefits on a retired, disabled, or deceased worker's if the marriage lasted at least 10 years.

In applying for social security benefits as a spouse, you have to prove the marital relationship you have to prove the marital relationship. Generally, this can be done by a marriage certificate or a certified copy of the marriage record.

If there has been no ceremonial marriage, social security follows State law in recognizing common-law marriages. If the State in which you reside recognizes your relationship as legally binding, we can accept the relationship for social security benefit purposes. Your social security office will tell you what proofs are required.

Ordinarily, the benefits of a person receiving checks as a dependent or survivor will stop or be reduced if he or she marries or remarries. These include benefits of widows widowers, as well as children.

Under a relatively new rule, however, benefits to a widow or widower who remarries at age 60 or older can continue without any reduction in the amount.

Also, if a widow or widower remarries a person who is also receiving benefits as a widower or widow, parent, or adult disabled in childhood, the benefits of both parties may continue.

If a higher social security check is possible on the work record of a new spouse, the person may elect to take a social security benefits as a wife or husband.

Degree program trains students for public work

COLLEGE STATION — A new degree program has been developed at Texas A&M University to provide public agencies with the kind of employees they need.

Graduates of the new public administration program will be qualified to hold positions as municipal administrators, members of research teams for city staffs or city councils, personnel management assistants and many more, says Dr. Sam Kilpatrick, head of the Department of Political Science.

Most of the positions will be beginning to mid-level management jobs for local, state and federal governments, he said.

If you have any questions about how a contemplated marriage will affect your social security protection, please give us a call. We can generally answer your question over the phone.

A representative of the Brownwood office visits Santa

Anna once a month on the second Wednesday. The representative can be found at the Mountain City Center, from 9:30 a.m. until noon. Many matters can be handled by phone, even filing an application. You can now call our toll free number which is 800-392-1603.

Book of Job To Be Studied By Adventists

The Adventist Church is studying the life of Job as recorded in the book of Job in the Bible. According to the studies, Job was afflicted unnecessarily, but through it all Job never became impatient nor did he sin.

God permits sickness and suffering to come that minds may be brought back to the blessings He gives, according to Mrs. C. P. Wenzel, Sabbath School superintendent.

Wenzel says, "If we were delivered miraculously from all sickness, how could we sympathize with the sufferer. Only when we have felt the scourge of pain can we fully understand that another person is going through the same experiences. The person who looks death in the face may learn something about life that he can learn in no other way."

As in the case of Joseph, he did not deserve the treatment that he got, but the experience helped him in his later duties, in saving the lives of hundreds of people. He became in a comparatively short time from a petted child to a thoughtful, courageous and self possessed man.

Every Saturday morning at 9:30 the Adventist Church conducts a definite study of some phrase from the Bible. Anyone who may wish is welcomed to attend these studies.

Whon News

By Mrs. Tom Rutherford

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Rex Turney of Santa Anna for their nice donation to the Whon Cemetery Fund.

As for our weather this week, it is still very hot and dry. On Thursday afternoon we did have loud thunder and strong lightning near by, but no rain fell in our community. The clouds were to our east and south. Our Coleman County people don't have to read in the papers to know it is hot and dry, but our county papers go to several other states who may be interested in those of us here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Berry of Abilene were dinner guests with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Vinson, and Mrs. Berry was with them again Labor Day.

Mrs. Jean Morris of Clarksville came for her daughters, Judy and Janet, on Thursday. The girls have spent most of the summer with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris, and their dad, Jamie Lee Morris here. They all had a nice visit.

Mrs. Bob Smith of Abilene spent Thursday night with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rutherford, returning home last Friday afternoon.

Allen Turner of Dallas spent the past week with Bennie Luera. Mr. and Mrs. Rex Turney visited them Tuesday afternoon. Congratulations to the Turneys who are driving a new pickup.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Fitzpatrick and Josylin of Blackwell came Friday and visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Fitzpatrick. Mrs. Neil Fitzpatrick and Josylin weren't here all the weekend, they visited with her mother, Mrs. Yeatman in Coleman.

Floyd Morris attended the goat cook-off and activities in Brady Saturday.

Jim Vinson and sons David and Dale of Hurst were weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Vinson, returning home Monday night.

Norman Floyd Morris and son Ronnie of Brownwood visited Saturday and again Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris, doing some dove hunting Monday.

Etoile Cozart of Brownwood was on the farm during the past week and stopped and said Hi to the Tom Rutherfords. Mr. Cozart reports his wife seems to be muchly improving.

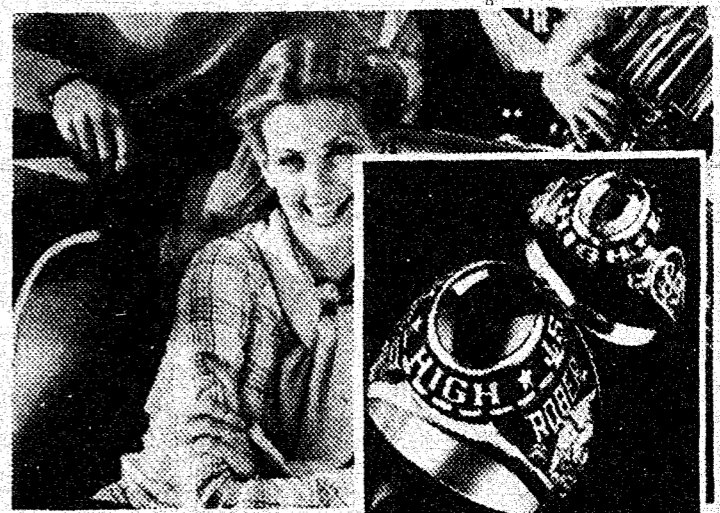

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris attended the Underwood reunion at Brady Park Sunday and reported a nice day and large crowd. Mr. and Mrs. John David Morris of Santa Anna were guests of his parents, the Floyd Morrises, Labor Day, and Leon Carter visited them Saturday afternoon.

TO VISIT HERE

Dr. and Mrs. John Woodward and family of Dallas will be weekend visitors in the Tom Kingsbery home. Carol Kingsbery of Austin will join the group Saturday for dove hunting and visiting.

True Texans are a vanishing breed

COLLEGE STATION — There was a time when to be correctly called a Texan one had to be born in the state.

Those guidelines don't work anymore, says an urban sociologist and state demographer at Texas A&M University.

More than 50 percent of the 2.5 million people added to the state's population during the last decade were "outsiders" who moved to Texas, says Dr. Robert Skrabanek. The remainder of the new residents were born here.

But many old timers wouldn't even consider the newborns true Texans, Skrabanek says, because there is a good chance their parents weren't born in Texas, and that still makes them "newcomers."

Skrabanek estimates that only about 70 percent of Texas' population today could be considered native in the traditional sense.
