In last week's column I mentioned the lost fireman's boot and the request for its return. Well, it was returned the morning that the paper was delivered.

But there is another problem. Still another fireman's boot was returned, so there is still a need for that one-legged fireman!

bk

Enrollment for the 1982 kindergarten class will be held tomorrow at school. Sue Newman, the teacher of the group, said last week that there will be about 40 youngsters in the class, perhaps more than the current group.

We've had some more rain in our area, making this one of the prettiest seasons in years. Most farmers are in the fields preparing for their crops, and the grain is heading as it nears harvest time.

Local Dairyman Attends AMPI Annual Meeting

Felton Martin of Santa Anna represented local dairymen at the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI) Annual Meeting in Minneapolis.

AMPI is the nation's largest dairy cooperative with 30,000 dairy farm families in 22 states. Owned and operated by the dairymen it serves, AMPI collects raw milk from the dairy farm and markets it to dairy processors. In 1980, AMPI members produced approximately 12 percent of all raw milk marketed in the United States.

The 1200 elected officials at the Minneapolis meeting are reviewing AMPI operations and establishing corporate policy for the year ahead. They represent members in their districts and cast ballots to assure that the one man/one vote principal governing farm cooperatives is maintained. This unique aspect of marketing products through a cooperative allows each member to determine his own destiny.

Key issues being voted upon in Minneapolis, April 9-11, included AMPI's position on: dairy price supports; casein imports; imitation labeling; reconstituted milk; use of dairy products in school foodservice programs; estate taxes; and other national issues which will affect dairymen.

Local dairymen are part of AMPI's Southern Region. The Southern Region, one of the three regions of the cooperative, is made up of 4,500 dairy farm families in Arkansas, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and parts of Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, Mississippi and Tennessee. In 1980, these farmers marketed 5 billion pounds of milk. Eighty percent was sold to Grade A bottling plants for producing fluid milk, ice cream, sour cream, yogurt, and other fresh dairy products found in local supermarkets and foodservice outlets. The remaining milk was used to manufacture butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk and was processed primarily by AMPI owned plants.

THE JAHNKE TRIPLETS of Plano, Texas, Craig, Cary and Chad, greet April, Prevent Blindness Month, with big smiles and big patches on their amblyopic left eyes. Early detection of the eye problem that the three boys share prevented them from losing sight in their weak "lazy" eyes.

Prevent Blindness Month

April is Prevent Blindness Month, an important month to the Jahnke Triplets of Plano. The boys, Craig, Cary and Chad, are six years old and they'll soon have, between them, six good eyes. But if the eye problem that they all share - one called amblyopia - had not been detected and treated early - then each boy might have been blind in his left eye by his seventh birthday.

"With amblyopia one eye functions so much better than the other that sight is gradually taken over by the strong eye while the weaker one becomes virtually useless," explains Elvin J. Schofield, President of the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. "The problem must be caught early, preferably in the preschool years, if sight is to be saved in the 'lazy eye'. If treatment isn't started before the age of six or seven, sight is irrevocably lost."

Such blindness was prevented in the Jahnke's boys because their mother Judy noticed about two years ago that Chad seemed to be holding everything uncomfortably close to his eyes. When she had him examined for this, amblyopia was diagnosed. Since the problem tends to be genetic, Craig and Cary were also checked. The result: three identical looking little boys (except for some missing teeth in front) each wearing a big smile and big eye glasses and, covering each good left eye, a surgical patch. The patch is forcing the right "lazy eye" to see and thus be strengthened. Having three ambliopsics in the family is not a norm, but, warns the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, one child in every 20 does have an eye problem that can be best treated if detected in the preschool years. The Society therefore urges all parents to make sure that their children have a vision test early in life, preferably by an eye professional.

If this is not possible, the Society encourages the parents to get the child to a vision screening. Prevent Blindness has trained 55 volunteer groups in Texas to do vision screening and will train other groups who wish to offer this service to their community. The Society also has a Home Eye Test for Preschoolers that is available without charge for parents who wish to screen their child's vision at home.

Prevent Blindness also urges parents to be alert, as was Mrs. Jahnke, for signs that can indicate eye problems.

Are the child's eyes crossed? If so, the child needs professional help because, contrary to some popular legends, a child will not outgrow this condition. Are the eyelids swollen? Do styes recur regularly? Does the child rub his eyes excessively or become irritable when doing close work?

Any of the above can indicate trouble, says the Society. Be aware of them, especially during Prevent Blindness Month.

Scholarships Available For Some 4-H Members

Present and former 4-H members may be eligible for $5,750 in college scholarship grants if they meet requirements set by the Cooperative Extension Service.

All but one of the grants are valued at $1,000 each, and primarily are for young people planning careers in agriculture, or such related fields as forestry, veterinary medicine or animal science, points out Rhondy Huckabee, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The other scholarship, valued at $750, has no limits placed on choice of study. These scholarships are provided by private sector donors and arranged by the National 4-H program.

The Warren Scholarship, established this year in memory of Gertrude L. Warren, a pioneer 4-H leader often described as the "Mother of 4-H," is a $750 grant awarded to one present or former 4-H member matriculating this fall at an accredited college, university, technical or trade school. The recipient can major in any recognized field of study and must have been influenced by 4-H in selecting a future career.

A $1,000 scholarship, donated by Educational Foundation of Alpha Gamma Rho, goes to a current 4-H member who will be enrolled as a college freshman this fall. The recipient must be planning to major in agriculture, forestry, veterinary medicine or a closely-related field.

Moab a Failure Because He Refused to Change

Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he hath settled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity; therefore his taste remained in him, and his scent is not changed. Jer. 48:11.

A man may refuse to hear the counsels and admonitions of God. He may Choose to take the regulating of his conduct into his own hands.... Like Moab, he refuses to be changed.... He refuses to correct his defective traits of character, although the Lord has plainly pointed out his work, his privileges, his opportunities, and the advancement to be made. It is too much trouble to break up his old ways, and transform his ideas and methods. "His taste remained in him." He clings to his defects.

There are many who are not satisfied with the work that God has given them. They are not satisfied to serve Him pleasantly in the place that He has marked out for them, or to do uncomplainingly the work that He has placed in their hands. It is right for us to be dissatisfied with the way in which we perform duty, but we are not to be dissatisfied with the duty itself, because.... in His providence God places before human beings service that will be as medicine for their diseased minds... Some He places where relaxed discipline and over-indulgence will not become their snare, where they are taught to appreciate the value of time, and to make best and wisest use of it.

There are some who desire to be a ruling power, and who need the sanctification of submission... They are being qualified to fill places where their disciplined ability will make them of the greatest service. Some God trains by bringing to them disappointment and apparent failure. It is His purpose that they shall learn to master difficulty...

More are ignorant of how to work for God, not because they need to be ignorant, but because they are not willing to submit to His training process. Moab is spoken of as a failure because, the Word declares, "he hath been at ease from his youth."

Heidelberg Convicted On Three Charges

Nathan Lumpkin Heidelberg was convicted in three cases in the 35th Judicial District Court in Brown County April 13. He had been charged following an incident that occurred near Santa Anna January 30 when Highway Department Trooper Jay Moses was assaulted after stopping Heidelberg near Santa Anna. The Austin man was convicted for possession of methamphetamine, aggravated assault on a peace officer and escape from the custody of a peace officer. He received a sentence of 12 years in the Texas Department of Corrections in the methamphetamine case, and was assessed the maximum prison term of 10 years in each of the other two cases.

In the incident just south of Santa Anna, Trooper Moses was knocked unconscious and Heidelberg fled the scene. He was arrested near Ovalo in Taylor County the following day after being found hiding in a barn. He abandoned his truck when he passed through a DPS roadblock and fled on foot.

The guilty pleas were taken following the summoning of a jury panel for the case, which was to have been tried in Brownwood on a change of venue from Coleman County.

Heidelberg, who is 24 years of age, was represented by Kirk Hawkins, a San Angelo attorney. The State of Texas was represented by District Attorney Steve Ellis, with Gordon Griffin the presiding judge.
