The Board of Directors of the agency have reviewed applications and will accept other applications for the position this week. The group will meet Thursday (today) and possibly select a successor to Mrs. Jones.

Funding is set up for one person for administrative work, however the job was divided into two half-time positions most of the time.

Investigation Continues On Recent Fire

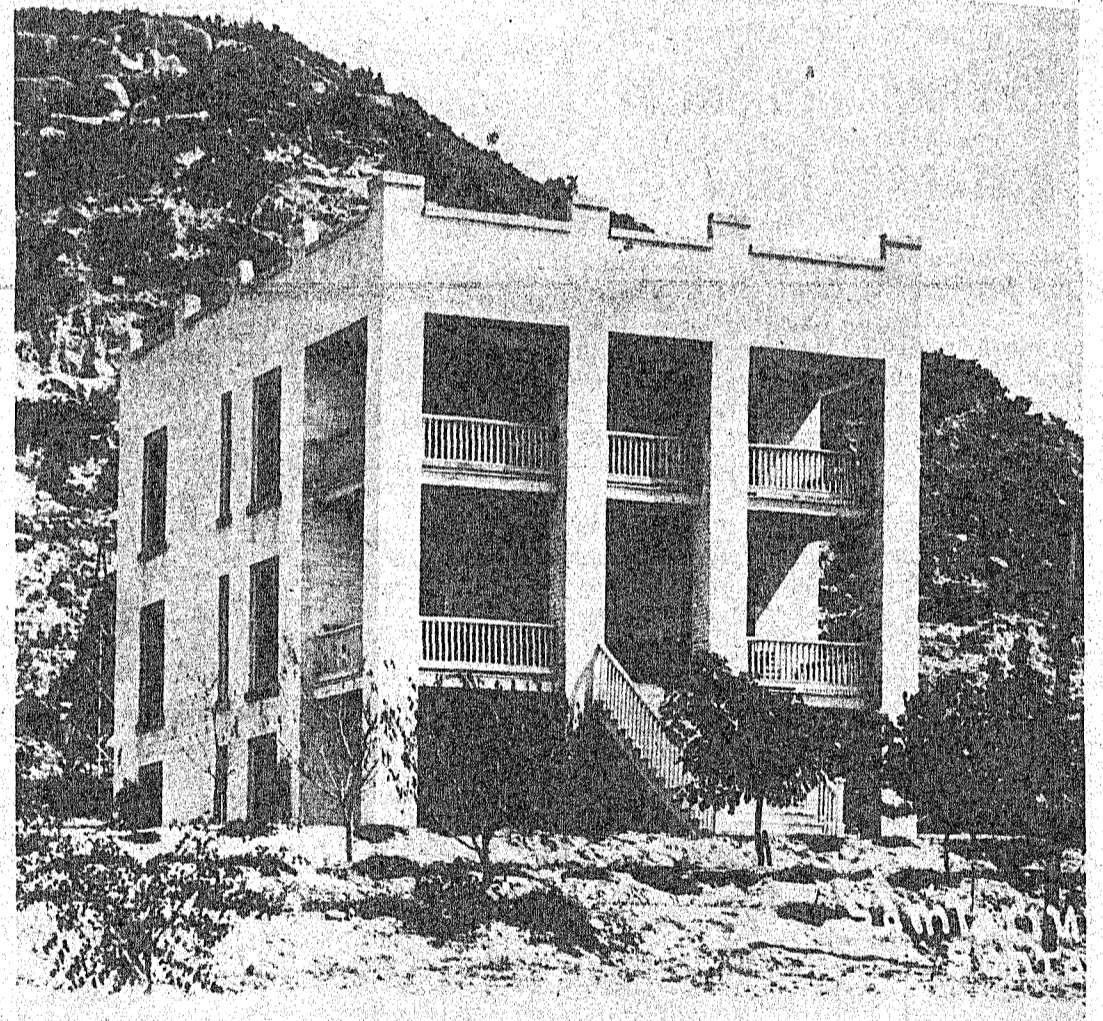

No charges have been filed after the fire last week at the old Sealy Hospital building. City Policeman Kevin Ballard has questioned witnesses and suspects in what is thought to be arson.

The old three-story building was severely damaged Tuesday, August 17, when fire gutted most of the third floor, and water and smoke damaged the lower floors.

According to Ballard, the building's owner, Dr. Fileman Cabansag, saw prowlers at the building not long before the fire was discovered. The prime suspect in the case is to voluntarily take a polygraph examination in Abilene today.

The local landmark had been vacated since 1971 when the present hospital building was constructed at Ranger Park. It has been used for storage since that time.

The Fire Marshall has not yet made a ruling on the blaze, awaiting the results of the police investigation.

ORIGINAL SEALY HOSPITAL BUILDING is shown here about 1920. An addition to the building more than doubled the size, and a two-story nurses home was built about 1930. The fire at the old hospital building last week brings back memories of the facility and its importance in the community. See story, other picture, Page 6.

Santa Annans Arrested, Charged For Drug Possession

Coleman County Sheriff's officers have made several arrests in recent weeks for possession of marijuana in a crackdown on drug dealers and users.

Two Santa Anna people, Minnie Young and Wallace Collins Jr., received probated sentences and fines in 35th District Court August 18 for felony possession of marijuana. The two had been arrested in July and indicted by the Coleman County Grand Jury in early August.

According to Sheriff H. F. Fenton, 325 marijuana plants were found in the garden at the home of Mrs. Young in the southwest part of Santa Anna, and more marijuana was found in the home. The two received the probated sentences as a result of plea bargaining, with Mrs. Young receiving a two-year probated sentence plus $250 fine, and Collins receiving a five-year probated sentence and a $500 fine.

Melvin Gray of San Angelo represented the two, with the case being heard by Assistant District Attorney Fred Franklin.

Another Santa Annan was recently arrested for possession of marijuana, with the case to be presented to the Grand Jury at the September session.

New System of School Holidays Implemented By ISD

A new and very different system of school holidays is being implemented at Santa Anna for the 1982-83 school year. The new system has been approved by the Texas Education Agency and may be innovative among small schools in the area or state.

In order to have classes and in addition offer students an opportunity to compete in University Interscholastic League and athletic events, the school administrators have compiled a calendar that will have four-day school weeks from March 11 through April 29, 1983. This is the time that high school and junior high students are involved in track and tennis meets and some UIL literary events.

At the local school, a great percentage of students are involved in athletics and other events, and when that number is away from class, the schedule is disrupted. The outside activities also include teachers and administrators in most cases.

The Friday holidays will account for eight days that would otherwise be scheduled at Easter or as a Spring vacation. Students and parents are expected to be pleased with the three-day weekends and approve of the new system.

Other holidays scheduled for the current school year include Monday, September 6, for Labor Day; Thursday and Friday, November 25 and 26, Thanksgiving; December 22-January 3, Christmas holidays; and April 1 and 4 for the Easter weekend.

The school calendar has 175 class days scheduled, as well as eight in-service and workdays for faculty and staff.

BACK TO SCHOOL— Dorothy Harris and Coyita Bowker, rear, are shown with a group of first grade students as they arrive for school. The first grade group is divided into two classes, with enrollment at the Elementary School well above the past year. High school enrollment is the lowest in many years, with only 83 students in the ninth through twelfth grades.

Practice Session Friday With Early Longhorns

The Santa Anna Mountaineer football team will have their second practice scrimmage of the season on Friday afternoon at 6 p.m. The local team will host the Early Longhorns for the session.

The Mountaineers hosted the big Baird Bears last Friday for a very profitable practice session, with the Bears outscoring the local boys by several touchdowns.

However Coach Jack Snipes has had praise for the team for their spirit and enthusiasm, and looks forward to improvement each week.

The first game on the Mountaineer schedule will be Friday, September 3, at Bangs at 8 p.m.

The 1982 team is young, with a large number of freshmen and sophomores on the roster. All local football fans are urged to attend the scrimmage Friday evening and support the team.

Day Care Center Planned By Santa Anna Woman

A day care center is being planned by Kay Cooper, and the child-care facility will be opened immediately if there is enough response.

Mrs. Cooper, who lives at 207 South Second Street, plans to open the center to accommodate four to six children at their rent house at 606 Avenue C, just behind their residence.

Mrs. Cooper has her license for child care and a registered home. The day care center will be for preschool children, with arrangements made to pick up primary children at school and supervise until parents are off work. She plans to be available for "drop-ins" who need only occasional day care.

Parents who wish to take advantage of the local center should contact Mrs. Cooper immediately so that the center can be opened. She can be contacted at 348-3772.

When the 20-day appraisal notices were mailed on August 5, all property owners were urged to contact the appraisal office immediately if they did not agree with the value placed on their property. An appraiser or member of the staff checked the appraisal file and in most cases resolved the differences. Those who did not agree are entitled to file a written protest and have an appointment with the Board of Review.

Adjustments made by the appraisal office staff are estimated to be approximately 100.

Demand is great for engineers in petroleum field COLLEGE STATION — At the time some college graduates are facing a tight job market, one department at Texas A&M University can't keep up with industry.

"Petroleum engineers are presently the most desired college graduates, judging by starting salaries, percentage hired and fierceness of competition among recruiting companies," said Dr. Douglas Von Gonten, head of the nation's largest petroleum engineering department in terms of students and faculty.

Enrollment is at an all-time high and growing at a 30-35 percent annual rate. However, there still are not enough petroleum engineers to meet the demand.

"There is an under-supply. The commodity is critical. The industry needs more petroleum engineers," Von Gonten said.

Recent graduates in the degree commanded $2,000 per month salaries, averaging $300 more than other engineering fields except chemical engineering which it surpassed by $200.

CHANGING ATTITUDES ABOUT DWI

Few things in this country have changed as much during the past few years as public attitudes on drunk drivers. It is a change we can all be thankful for.

Most of that change, in my opinion, can be attributed to the organization of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), and the attendant publicity and editorial support they have received from our newspapers. They have succeeded, where others have failed, in drawing attention to the tragedy that has claimed the lives of thousands of Texans.

It was not long ago, for instance, when some public officials who ought to lead by example were openly contemptuous of our laws against driving while drunk. Much of this problem started nine years ago when my opponent became Lt. Governor and helped pass the law reducing the legal drinking age from twenty-one to eighteen years of age. Now Mr.

Hobby, feeling the heat of irate parents and loved ones, and perhaps personal remorse, has said he favors tougher drunk driving laws—another switch from a previous position.

Political promises, however, are easily made. If a politician can't get excited about an issue of this magnitude in nine years, it seems unlikely that he would get excited and pursue corrective legislation in another four years.

So I hope the Mothers Against Drunk Drivers will stick to their guns, and I hope they continue getting support from the people of our state. Their efforts to put an end to this carnage on our highways has my support, and I hope it has yours.

Of one thing we can be reasonably sure: Starting next year we will have a new Lt. Governor, and that will make it easier. If you have thoughts on this subject, please write me at 1213 W. 34th, Austin, 78705.

McKinzie - Sheppard Wedding Held

The West Kentucky Baptist Church in Midland was the setting of the afternoon wedding Saturday, August 7, joining Bonnie Gaye McKenzie and Harold Wade Sheppard in marriage. The Rev. Porterfield officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Tommy McKenzie of Santa Anna. Grandparents are Janie Sheppard of Midland and Ola McKenzie of Ballinger. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lavender of San Angelo.

Greenery covered an archway accented by a single white bell at the center. Family pews were marked with wicker fans decorated with peach satin flowers. The flower arrangements for the wedding were created by the bride's sister, Leah.

Nuptial music was provided by Sharon Thweat.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore her sister's wedding gown. The bodice featured a shoulder wide neckline edged in lace and accented with seed pearls. Lace sleeves extended to points just below the wrist. The full pleated skirt fell to a train of matching lace. A halo of peach blossoms and baby's breath encircled the bride's hair, and her bouquet was of peach roses accented by baby's breath.

Dana McKenzie was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of peach and blue floral print. She had a peach ribbon entwined in her hair and carried a single peach rose.

Stephen Kithas was best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. McKenzie chose a street-length dress of cream color with matching lace jacket. The groom's mother wore a beige dress with matching accessories. They each wore a corsage of peach silk flowers.

Travis Cahoon, brother of the bride, and Jimmy Jobe were ushers.

After the ceremony, the couple were honored with a reception at the church. The bride's table was covered with white lace over peach. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with white sugar roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. A prayer was given by the father of the bride.

After a short wedding trip the couple are residing at Breaux Bridge, Louisiana where Mr. Sheppard is employed in construction.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bride's grandmother, Janie Sheppard, and great-grandmother, Mrs. Woodall, at their home in Midland.

Santa Anna Considered Central Texas Medical Center in Early Days

Sealy Hospital Remembered

The fire at the old Sealy (Santa Anna) Hospital building brought back memories of important occasions - of births and deaths, serious illnesses, nurses training and other events that have made history in our community during the past sixty years.

Although most residents have usually given the large old building no more than a passing glance, they now look with regret at the smoke-blackened facade that is partially hidden by the pecan and hackberry trees on the sloping lawn.

A story in the Santa Anna News in 1935 recorded the 10,000th patient at Sealy Hospital. On Wednesday, July 17, 1935 Mrs. J. E. Greathouse of Goldthwaite was admitted to the hospital as the ten thousandth patient since the facility opened on July 29, 1919.

Mrs. Joe H. Green was the first patient admitted to the hospital when it opened in 1919.

The newspaper account read as follows:

"Dr. Sealy, with his faithful staff and helpers, is still growing strong, and set ten thousand as his goal when he opened the Hospital, sixteen years ago this month. However, the doctor is over-taxed, and must find some solution to get more rest. He contemplates a vacation in the near future, and must, for his own sake, take it."

Dr. T. R. Sealy died June 15, 1939 - twenty years after establishing what was said to be the best equipped hospital in the central Texas area.

In conjunction with the Sealy Hospital, a School of Nursing was established by the late physician, with the first class enrolled in 1929. Ten or so registered nurses completed training each year at the local school during the ten years it was in operation.

In the book, "Historically Speaking: Coleman County, Texas" by Gladys N. Hunter, information on the nursing school included names of many of the graduates. Graduate nurses in November 1933 received $5.00 for 12-hour duty and $7.00 for 20-hour duty.

The hourly nursing fee was $2.00 for the first hour, and 50 cents for each additional hour up to three hours. If on duty longer, charge same as 12-hour duty. Major contagious cases received an additional $1.00 per duty.

To provide housing for the nursing students and later housing for staff members, a two-story nurses home was built near the hospital. After a fire in the mid-1940's damaged the building, it was re-built into a one-story structure, and later made into a residence where Dr. Filemon Cabansag and his family now reside. One young woman employed at the hospital died as a result of the fire.

Not only did nurses need housing, but relatives of the many patients often boarded in near-by homes or rented rooms from residents in the town to be nearby during the hospital stay.

During the next decade there were several doctors who practiced here - Drs. R. R. Lovelady, E. D. McDonald, Dr. Board, and others. The hospital was in operation through World War II and until about 1950, when it was closed for a time.

Dr. Charles Henner came to Santa Anna to open his practice, and after some renovation re-opened the facility in December 1962. The name was changed to Santa Anna Hospital at that time.

The hospital was owned by the Seventh-day Adventist Conference for about 15 years, with those practicing here being Drs. Kolwitz, Tryon, Murrell, Kegley, Burgess and Mascarinas. Dr. Filemon Cabansag bought the facility in 1970 and relocated at the present site the following year.

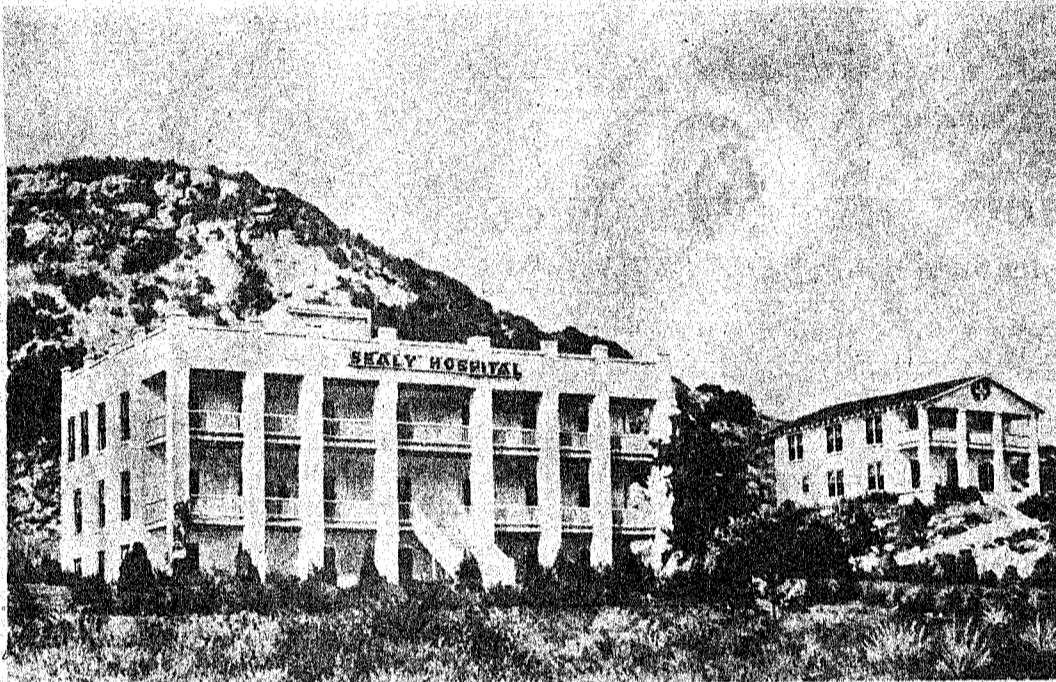

The building was enlarged by enclosing the front porches, and the narrow stairway from the service area and kitchen to the second floor was enclosed. More office space was added to the lower floor, and each of the doctors made changes to keep up with regulations and requirements for a certified medical facility.

For a brief time, one floor of the hospital was used for nursing home patients, with that portion of the facility moved to the Ranger Park location in 1964.

Despite the years of vacancy and the recent fire, the building is still a strong structure. Perhaps some use can come from the old building, but presently the future is uncertain.

In the meantime, the echo of thousands of patients, doctors and nurses and others are silenced in the long, smoke-blackened hallways of the vacant building.

SEALY HOSPITAL and nurses residence are shown on a picture postcard made about 1930. The hospital building was more than doubled in size since it opened in 1919, and patients came from far and wide for medical care.

CULT CURES
NEW YORK (AP) - A growing number of cancer victims are being lured from orthodox medical treatment towards so-called nature cures and others "reminiscent of religious purification rituals," according to a researcher at the University of Pennsylvania Cancer Center.

Dr. Barrie Cassileth, writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, says the unorthodox treatments often involve a variety of special diets, spiritual counseling and treatments administered by nonmedical practitioners. They are more widespread than medical practitioners believe, she said.

She said such therapies might be luring some cancer patients away from modern medical therapies which could prolong their lives.

HIP REPLACEMENTS
ATLANTA (AP) - More than 75,000 Americans have artificial hip joints implanted each year, reports the Arthritis Foundation. And the success rate of this surgery is 95 percent.

"Replacement surgery has become one of the most successful ways of treating joints severely damaged by arthritis," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie of the Foundation. "Most people can return to many of their normal activities, such as walking and driving, after they recover from surgery."

He cautions, however, that people with artificial hip joints should avoid strenuous activities such as jogging, jumping and racket sports.

Texans need computer literacy

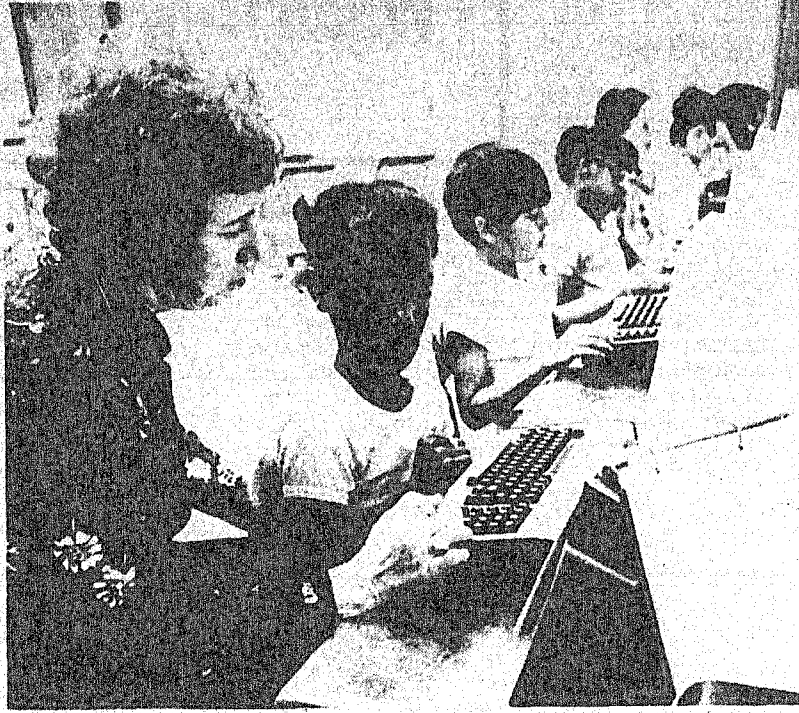

Texans may find themselves branded functionally illiterate in the near future, even though they can read and write if they do not understand and know how to interface with a computer, says a Position Paper on Computer Literacy from the Texas Association for Educational Data Systems (TAEDS).

TAEDS and the Texas Computer Education Association are professional organizations sponsoring a Joint Statewide Committee to Promote Computer Literacy in Texas.

Committee chairman, Dr. Philip Gehring, a computer scientist and Austin resident, says the proliferation of computers in every aspect of our lives highlights the need for computer literacy. "All students, regardless of academic ability and previous academic record should have the opportunity to become computer literate to decrease the gap between the have's and have-nots in our society," he said.

Computer literacy should be imbedded in elementary school subjects, Gehring noted. For example, in social studies, a student could examine how computers affect our society and some of the problems associated with them, such as individual privacy.

At the junior high level, a student might be required to study computer literacy as a subject learning computer applications, simple programming, and other computer related functions. In order to ensure equal opportunity for all students no prerequisites should be required for such a course, Gehring said.

Subsequently, each student entering high school who is interested in continuing computer study would have a multitude of options. These include Vocational Education (word processing, computer operations, etc.), business data processing, problem solving through additional programming in science and math, or possibly Computing Science itself in a magnet school—a school which offers special subjects.

With business growing need for computer knowledgeable employees, more opportunity for employment would be available for those who are computer literate. There is also a large computer industry in Texas, Gehring pointed out.

The committee's simple goal is to promote the integration of computer literacy into all levels of education. The joint committee is trying to encourage the State Board of Education to consider it as an essential element of the new curriculum which the last Legislature required them to develop.

However, teachers must first be computer literate and educated to teach computer literacy, Gehring said. "It is the responsibility of the State Board of Education and the professionals at the Texas Education Agency to define the details of how computer literacy will be taught in the schools and teacher colleges," he also emphasized.

The committee is made up of prominent and concerned educators from all levels of education. "We have an opportunity to change the course of the history of education in Texas," the enthusiastic chairman stated.

Copies of the position paper can be obtained from, TAEDS, P.O. Box 632, Austin, Texas 78767.

Landscaping an Energy Saver

COLLEGE STATION—Attempting to control environmental factors outside the home is not a feasible answer to energy conservation, but certain landscaping practices can significantly change the climate in and around the home.

"By placing trees, shrubs, vines and landscape structures properly, the homeowner can reduce the energy required to keep homes and surrounding areas comfortable during winter and summer," says Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

And if landscaping is well done, homeowners receive the added benefits of beauty and increased real estate values, he notes.

Welch suggests using trees, windbreaks and vines to save energy.

"Trees planted on the south and west sides of a house can reduce inside temperatures up to eight degrees by shading the roof from the afternoon sun," he says.

Deciduous trees provide shade during the summer and also allow light and sun to penetrate through their bare branches in the winter to warm the home.

Welch cautions against planting the fastest growing tree available for several reasons. Trees that grow at a moderate rate usually live longer, are less likely to break in the wind and ice storms and are often more resistant to insects and disease.

Besides using the trees to shade roof areas, plants can be utilized to protect walls from heat and cold.

"Vines, shrubs and certain trees can insulate the wall against and also be highly effective in reducing noise and dust pollution," Welch adds.

For masonry walls, Welch suggests Boston Ivy and Virginia Creeper because their leaves intercept and absorb the sun's rays while allowing convection currents to carry the warm air up and away from the wall.

"These deciduous vines are most effective on southern and western masonry walls with a great deal of direct sun," Welch says. "Evergreen species such as English Ivy are better on sunless walls where their foliage can deflect winter winds and their stems provide an insulating effect."

Climbing vines are not suggested for wooden walls, he notes, since their stems and tendrils hold moisture and cause deterioration.

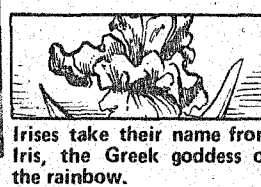

But the same cooling effect can be achieved on wooden walls by using twining vines, Welch says.

combines three compatibly colored shadows in actual application sequence so that a woman can create her own polished to perfection look at just a glance.

The top shade in each compact is the highlighter, the middle is for contour and the bottom is the lid color. There are five color combinations in both matte and frosted shades to complement all the newest fashion looks. And, all are now available at leading cosmetic counters.

Agriculture Today

by Ed Curran
U.S. Department of Agriculture

As you look back, ten years doesn't seem like such a long time ago. But insofar as farming goes, it was a different time. At least from the standpoint of what farmers had to pay for the things they need -- and what they were paid for what they produced.

Take the price of tractors, for example. A year ago, the 30-39 horsepower tractor went for $10,400. It's $11,000 now. Back in 1972, it went for $4,330.

The 50-59 horsepower tractor, at $14,900 a year ago and $16,100 today, was going for $6,260 ten years ago.

Mounted 7-foot mowers, now selling for $2,060, up from $1,850 last year, were $750 back in 1972. Self-propelled combines (medium capacity) at $54,200 last year and $58,500 today, were $11,500 back then. The large capacity combines, now at $81,400 and $75,900 only a year ago, were $15,400 in 1972.

The cost of other items has gone up as well. Galvanized steel roofing, at $41.80 per 100 square feet a year ago and $42.90 today, went for $16.10 in 1972. Concrete blocks at $82.60 per 100 last year and $85.30 per 100 today, were going for $34.30 per 100 back then.

Portland cement, at $5.48 per 94-pound bag last year and $5.65 today, was $2.11 a bag back in 1972. House paint, at $15.50 a gallon a year ago and $16.20 now, was $7.84 a gallon in 1972.

Of course, there is another side to the coin. Wheat averaged only $1.76 a bushel; corn only $1.57 in 1972. Oats went for 72½ cents, barley 96 cents a bushel. Soybeans went for $4.37 a bushel; cotton was 27 cents a pound; hay, $31.30 a ton. Hogs went for $25.10; beef cattle went for $33.50 a hundred-weight. Broilers went for 14 cents a pound; eggs for 31 cents a dozen, and milk sold for $6.07 a hundred-weight.

The parity ratio ranged from a low of 71 in April 1972 to a high of 79 in December and averaged 74 for the year.

Flag day was first celebrated on June 14, 1878 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the selection of the US flag.

Understanding Your Child

Share A Fun Learning Experience

Here's a fun game to play with your child. Find the nine Blue Birds in the bush.

One way to become a bigger part of your child's life is to share a special experience. Many parents are doing just that by volunteering their time and helping out at their child's youth organization.

One group that many parents and children are becoming a part of is the Blue Birds, an organization for the youngest members of the national Camp Fire program. Open to all boys and girls in the first, second or third grades, it can be a great way for children to have fun and learn about their communities at the same time. Camp Fire Blue Birds meet regularly under the guidance of a leader who has received special training. They work on projects such as building, drawing and cooking. They go on camping trips. Other times they might visit a farm, go to a museum, or tour a factory.

If you and your child would like to meet some new friends and share some special times, you can find out more from the Camp Fire Council in your area.

Teresa's Home From Tour

Santa Anna Coed Returns From Summer Band Tour to Europe

A dream come true and the opportunity of a lifetime are the descriptions given by Teresa Rolfe about her recent European tour. The vivacious Santa Anna teenager returned home August 6 from the concert and sightseeing trip with the Intercollegiate Tour Band.

The spring graduate of Santa Anna High School left Sunday, August 22, for Lubbock where she enrolled at Texas Tech University to study for a degree in music education.

Teresa, daughter of Roy and Betty Rolfe, has excelled in music since a small child, and with her trumpet has won many honors since entering the band as a seventh grader.

With ribbons and medals too numerous to name, she was selected for the elite tour group of 126 - the only Texan in the group.

Parents, friends and townspeople helped Teresa raise the necessary funds for the trip that started July 12. She flew from Dallas to New York where the group assembled at the Statler Hotel in Manhattan.

Col. Clifford Hunt, the director of the tour group, was an exceptional musician and person. The former head of musicians in the Army, Navy and Air Force became a good friend of Teresa as well as helping her benefit musically from the experience.

The first three days were spent in 14-hour-a-day rehearsals. Because the music was more difficult than Teresa had ever played, she spent several additional hours at the hotel practicing each night.

The group had a repertoire of 30 selections, with each concert composed of about 17 songs. Music for each of the seven countries to be visited was included in each concert. Each concert started with the traditional John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever." Most of the music was of classical nature, with each musician assigned music of all levels - from first to third chair.

All the band members - high school seniors and college freshmen - were of superior quality, and Teresa felt she was of equal ability. Tour costumes were simple black formal dresses for the girls and slacks, blazers and ties for the young men.

The first leg of the trip took the group to Brussels, Belgium where they spent some time sightseeing before boarding buses for the tour. Teresa was fortunate to be assigned to the best bus - a Mercedes - with Col. Hunt and his wife as sponsors.

The first concert was performed in France, in the garden amphitheatre at Versailles. Other concerts were in smaller towns, which kept the group away from the usual tourist rush. One day was spent on the bus to a small Italian town for a concert, then back to France.

Switzerland was the country Teresa liked most, despite arriving in one ski resort town where the temperature was 35 degrees and snow was falling. The group spent a day recovering from their hectic schedule when the concert was cancelled due to the extreme cold.

Three days were spent in Geneva, Switzerland, then to Lucerne, where the most memorable time was enjoyed. Teresa and her favorite friend, a college girl from Littleton, Colo., cycled, walked and took buses to all parts of the town to see everything possible. They found people to be friendliest in Switzerland.

In Holland, band members visited in homes in the small town of Oldeberkoop, the same size as Santa Anna and much like our town with one main street and one traffic light. Teresa was a guest in the home of the P. Brouwers and their daughter on their farm several miles from town. The Collegiate Band visits the town annually to

Former S-Annan Is Honored At Air Event

Two Coleman County residents, including a former Santa Annan, were among the aviation pioneers honored Saturday, August 21, at the National Aviation Day celebration held at Elmdale Airpark at Abilene.

O. B. (Blossom) Owen, formerly of Santa Anna and now of Coleman, and Felix C. Tanco, manager of the Coleman Municipal Airport, were recognized during the celebration.

Mr. Owen soloed July 2, 1944 in a Porterfield from Coleman Airport.

Mr. Tanco soloed June 3, 1926 in an OX5 Jenny Bi-Wing. He served in the F.A.F. American Eagle Squadron prior to his service in the United States Air Force.

Omar Burselson, retired Congressman from the 17th District, was guest speaker, followed by an air show of World War II aircraft and an acrobatic show by champion J. D. Gathright.

the seven hours on deck instead of in staterooms.

In London, the band stayed at Imperial College in dormitories, and played a concert at the college that is a branch of Oxford University. The band gave its best performance, according to Teresa, with 5,000 persons on hand to hear the program. The band also had a concert at Windsor Castle.

The group had been scheduled to play at Hyde Park, but a bombing the previous week had cancelled all performances there.

The group departed from Brussels, spending two days sightseeing and shopping and performing one concert.

Teresa considered the trip to be well organized and well supervised. The young people in the group were very well-mannered and cooperative, and everyone kept their good humor when things did not work out as they were supposed to.

The tour has sparked an interest in traveling for Teresa, and she wants to return to Europe in a few years. She hopes to take part in a tour with Texas Tech so that she can see more of the country and revisit some of the places.

Most of all, Teresa expressed appreciation to all the people who helped make her trip possible. The opportunity came at a time she could make the tour, and hundreds of people had a part in the memorable experience.

PREPARING FOR CONCERT at the Royal Palace garden in Munich, Germany are Teresa Rolfe, left center, and her special friend, Tandy Clinefelter of Colorado. The girls are wearing the black long dresses that were worn for each concert. There were 126 members of the band, with Teresa the only Texan in the group.

TOUR AND BAND LEADER was Col. Hunt, former band master for the U. S. Army and Navy bands. Col. Hunt, center, is shown here in Royal Palace Garden at Munich, Germany, before a concert by the group.

Coleman Graduate Wins Scholarship

A spring graduate of Coleman High School, Joe David Copeland, is one of three area high school seniors to receive scholarships awarded annually by West Texas Fair & Rodeo in Abilene.

Copeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clenton Copeland, received $500 Odell Johnson Science Scholarship. Other recipients were Lina Kay Garvin of Blackwell who received the Modern Living Mall Merit Award Scholarship, and Raymond R. Walston II of Winters who received the Livestock Merit Award Scholarship.

Copeland was a member of National Honor Society at Coleman High School where he also participated in UIL persuasive speaking and calculator as well as being active in band and track.

He plans to attend Texas A&M University to study electrical engineering and math.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of scholarship, high school participation and future objectives. The winners, chosen from a large number of applicants, were presented at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the West Texas Fair & Rodeo.

we talked with Elvia Ray Cozart, son of Etelle Cozart, Sunday afternoon, and he stated his father's condition was better this week than the previous weekend. But he is still a long way from being well. Mr. Cozart suffered a stroke two weeks ago Tuesday and is a patient in Brownwood Regional Hospital. We all wish for him a complete recovery. We all also know recovering from a stroke is a very slow procedure. We do trust to have better news weekly of his condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris attended the barbecue supper and junior rodeo at Richland Springs the past Saturday night. She reported a very good rodeo and the best barbecue supper ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Radle and boys of Cushing, Oklahoma spent several days the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bean Radle in Santa Anna. The family left for home early Saturday morning so could make preparations for the boys to enter school at Cushing this year instead of Moore, where the family previously lived.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris visited with Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Hudson of Leaday and their house-guest, Mr. Hudson's sister, Mrs. Dovie Morris of Mason, on Thursday.

Lloyd Rutherford and son Todd were with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rutherford, Sunday. Saturday night they visited Lloyd's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Rutherford, in Coleman, then they all went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Boatright and baby and watched the Dallas Cowboy football game.

Mrs. Floyd Morris received the message Sunday their granddaughter, Janet Morris of Clarksville, was in the hospital with a broken arm. When she talked to Mrs. Morris she did not know how it happened.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Fitzpatrick visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bowker in Santa Anna Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Perkins and Mrs. Elaine Easterland and daughter Barbara were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris Sunday.

Mrs. Lily Fox of Santa Anna received news Wednesday of the death of a brother-in-law, Floyd Miller, 78, in Utah on Tuesday night. Mr. Miller was the husband of the late Geneella (Shields) Miller, a sister of Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Hettye Turney.

FORMER S-ANNAN VISITS

Joe Haynes of Roanok was in Santa Anna last Thursday visiting with friends. He is a former resident of our community.

Seems a great need for the country now is a good rain. The pastures are really burning down from the extremely hot weather. Just hopefully by the time of our next visit with you, we will have a good rain which we are in such need of. Until next time, "Best Wishes."

United States losing high technology war

COLLEGE STATION — The United States is losing the economic equivalent of World War II and the battle over consumer electronics has been the Pearl Harbor of the conflict, an American industry executive said recently.

Steve Spence, a vice president with the Dallas-based division of Rockwell International, made the comparison during the 90th American Society for Engineering Education conference at Texas A&M University.

The enemies, said Spence, are Japan and West Germany, which are beginning to outstrip the United States in many key industrial areas.

"Japan can build a car and ship it to the U.S. for $1700 less than it can be manufactured in the United States," he said. "The enemy's focus is on high technology goods and their weapons are cooperation between labor, industry and government."

Successful Families No Accident

Attitudes, Activities are Important

COLLEGE STATION— Handling the ups and downs of everyday living seems to be easier for some families than others, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

What makes one family more capable or successful than others?

Taylor says that research studies in the past 10 years have identified several common traits among many successful families.

"Members are united; they are all working toward the same goals. They value their family ties and spend time working and playing together, getting to know each other better," Taylor says.

Additionally, she says, within strong and successful families, there is a respect for individual differences, autonomy, separateness and independence.

"Individuals are encouraged to develop personal competencies and skills through independent pursuits, rather than the family doing everything together and stifling creativity. In united families, there is a feeling of both togetherness and separateness," Taylor says.

CLEAR VALUES

Successful families also have definite, clear values that are known to their children. "These values become part of the family's way of life as they are examined, discussed, practiced and altered when necessary. A basic set of common values provides directions for day-to-day decisions confronting family members," Taylor says.

In successful families, parents assume the role of teacher and model and take their responsibilities seriously. Most of these parents have high self-esteem and tend to build self-respect and self-confidence in their children. These parents also trust their children and expect to be as important to their children as their children are to them, she adds.

FACING PROBLEMS

Facing problems realistically and openly is another trait of successful families. They exhibit optimism and are flexible in looking for and trying solutions to problems, the specialist says. They seem to be the most capable of adapting to crisis situations.

Taylor adds that families who rely on the power of one individual — rather than the family unit — can become strapped with decisions that may not be in the best interest of the total family.

"Strong, successful families also tend to have a commitment to the community and share their strengths with others. And most of all, successful families have fun and laugh together," she says.

The specialist cautions that successful family life does not come easy. "Strong families have been found to work constantly to strengthen their family ties. Their formula for success seems to be to work hard and play hard — together," Taylor says.

New Disease Diagnosed

Affects Animals, Humans

AUSTIN— A non-fatal virus disease affecting cattle, horses, and swine has been reported in New Mexico and three other states. The Texas Animal Health Commission officials are alerting livestock producers in this state to be on the alert for possible outbreaks.

"We have no reports of this disease in Texas, but it is possible it can occur," Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, said.

The name of the disease is Vesicular Stomatitis. It causes a temperature to rise and the formation of blisters in the mouth and soles of the feet of affected animals. Dehydration and weight losses are results of the disease also.

Human infections can occur in areas where the disease is prevalent and in laboratory workers.

"A veterinarian should be contacted immediately if a person has animals with symptoms of sores or blisters in the mouth or on the tongue. You can also contact your nearest area Texas Animal Health Commission office," Dr. Holcombe said.

A laboratory diagnosis is required to accurately diagnose the disease; its symptoms are similar to foot and mouth disease.

Vesicular Stomatitis was first reported to federal officials in June. Colorado reportedly has the majority of infection. Other states with the disease are Arizona and Utah.

Reports from New Mexico indicate that thousands of horses and hundreds of cattle have been affected. Canada has requested the U. S. Department of Agriculture not to certify cattle, horses, sheep, goats or pigs from states in which a diagnosis of the disease has been made.

Prospect Steer Shows Prep for Coming Season

Shawn Miller, a fifth grade student at Santa Anna Elementary School, exhibited the Grand Champion Red Angus steer at the Garretson Prospect Steer Show at Fredericksburg July 30 and 31. He was awarded a blue ribbon and a beautiful breed champion trophy. There were approximately 800 entries in the show.

The following weekend Shawn and his steer, "Rattler", also won the championship at the Hill County Show at Kerrville, receiving a belt buckle and a blue ribbon.

Wade and Jena Miller also exhibited steers in the shows, with Wade placing first in the class of light weight Simmentals at both shows, and Jena placing ninth at Fredericksburg and first at Kerrville with her medium heavy weight Chianina steer.

The Prospect Shows are judged with regard to the status of the steers as prospects for the show circuit and not as finished show steers.

Shawn, Wade and Jena are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miller who live south of Santa Anna. Wade is a freshman in high school and Jena is in the seventh grade. The three are veteran exhibitors, showing under the Santa Anna 4-H Club banner. They currently have 14 steers and a number of lambs on feed for the coming show season.

End of Season Sales Provide Good Values

COLLEGE STATION - Clothing sales provide an opportunity to save money on family wardrobes.

"Sales are used by retail stores to increase sales volume and reduce surplus inventory," says Nancy Brown, clothing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Some types of sales offer better prices than other, she says.

Clearance sales usually provide the greatest price reduction, ranging from 20 to 50 percent off regular price. "These sales are used by retailers to move discontinued merchandise or other fashion merchandise out of the store's inventory and make room for the next season's stock," Brown says.

Special purchase sales are pre-season or post-season sales of goods which the retail store has purchased at reduced prices. These sales may not offer as much price reduction as others, but they are more frequent and generally provide a full size selection that is more timely. Special purchase sales normally offer reductions of 15 to 20 percent, Brown says.

Annual sales—regular stock or department manager's sales—feature regular merchandise reduced 10 to 15 percent. These sales are of short duration and merchandise returns to the regular price when the sale ends, she adds.

Anniversary sales are storewide in scope. Every department marks down items and the sale may occur any time during the year, Brown says.

Seasonal sales are repeated regularly each year. Coat sales in August and January are examples.

Stimulative sales are designed to stimulate business during dull periods. These may be called "midnight sales," "back-to-school," or "two-for-the-price-of-one" sales.

Sales are an excellent time to buy staple clothing items such as underwear, and lingerie. Stores usually offer sales on these items at fixed times during the year.

"A family that anticipates clothing needs in advance can save from one-third to one-half by shopping during sales," Brown says.

"Don't forget to compare prices. Retailers sometimes mark up the initial price, making the reduction seem greater. Shop around to find the garment's true value so you will know how much you are really saving," she
