Among other duties

Sheriff recovers stolen phone

A 26 year old Santa Anna man was arrested by Chief of Police Russ Ellis following a traffic accident in the 800 block of Wallis Ave. January 18 at 8 p.m.

Chief Ellis said that shortly before the accident, he had observed a vehicle driving in an erratic manner past his residence at 8th and Ave. A. Mr. Ellis got into his patrol car to attempt to stop the car. Mr. Ellis said the car struck a power pole by Rod's Auto Parts before he could catch up with it. The man was transported to the Coleman County jail where he was booked on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The 1973 Oldsmobile he had just purchased a few days previously was extensively damaged in the accident, according to Mr. Ellis. The Volunteer Fire Department responded to the scene, because a thick steam coming from the engine was first thought to be smoke, Mr. Ellis said. He was assisted by nightwatchman C. R.

Owen, and Deputy Mike Bowers. A window was broken at a residence at 204 Weaver sometime late Friday evening. Chief Ellis said he was contacted at 1 a.m. Saturday morning by Richard Cupps, who said he had discovered the damage which apparently occurred while he was gone for the evening. Mr. Cupps said the glass had just been replaced recently. Damage was estimated at $35.

A pay telephone stolen from the Dairy Queen restaurant in Santa Anna on November 16, 1983 was recovered Monday, January 23. Chief Ellis said the phone had been ripped open and the coin box removed. Mr. Ellis said the investigation is continuing in this and other burglaries in Santa Anna.

An unattended car rolled out of Allsup's parking lot early Tuesday morning. Chief Ellis said that the car, left with the engine running and in neutral, rolled across Wallis Ave.

and struck the front bumper of a Precision Co. truck parked on the company's property at 5th and Wallis. The '73 Chevy received considerable damage to the right front. The oil company truck was not damaged. Mr. Ellis said that 19 year old Mike Surtees of Amarillo told him he stopped at the store and left the engine running because the car was difficult to start.

Cemetery Assoc to hold meeting

A reminder to those who are interested in the Santa Anna Cemetery Association: a meeting will be held at the Director's Room of the Coleman County Telephone Cooperative Friday, January 27.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect three directors to fill expiring terms.

Judge Griffin announces candidacy

Gordon Griffin, presiding 35th Judicial District Judge, has authorized The Santa Anna News to announce his candidacy for re-election to the post.

Area men to attend Farm Bureau meeting

Four area farmers and ranchers will attend the annual Farm Bureau Convention in Waco, January 29-31, where they will join some 500 county leaders in kicking off the Texas Farm Bureau's 1984 activities.

Felton Martin and John Vance of Santa Anna, as well as Bob Turner of Voss and Harold Jewell of Valera will represent this area at the convention, which will deal with topics of importance to farmers and ranchers.

Interest at the convention is expected to center on national farm programs, workers' compensation, regulation of farm chemicals, water policies, farm exports, farm production costs, farm credit, and Farm Bureau goals and objectives.

Speakers for the event will include U. S. Rep. Eligio de la Garza, Mission, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, TFB President S. M. True, Jr., as well as representatives from the state and national governments, commodity leaders, agricultural educators and research officials, and staff members from the state and national Farm Bureaus.

Fire Department has slow week

The Santa Anna Fire Department answered only one call in the past few days, making for a pleasantly slow week, according to Freddie Dodson, Department officer.

The call was for a fire two miles west of town on Highway 67, at the Raymond Harrell farm, where burning prickly pear were left unattended.

Resulting damage was to approximately ten acres of the farm.

One truck and two firemen answered the call, which was extinguished without much incident.

Off the cuff

by Jan Naron Henderson

About Denny, the robot who (or should I say "which"?) was featured in an Abilene Reporter News article Thursday as a potential prison security guard who will warn "stray" prisoners, "You have been detected," and who will be built to transmit images as long as it survives during abuse, and will have a sense of being abused: poor Denny.

Denny, the report said, will move at 3 mph on three wheels, and will stand at 4 feet, 400 pounds. An accompanying photo showed the little unsuspecting silver guy, and he seemed less than ferocious to me, and I'm no convict. I daresay his manufacturers may need to toughen him up a bit - maybe add a few scars, some bushy eyebrows and whiskers, and perhaps a lighted cigarette hanging around somewhere. They are, the article said, going to try to make him look more suitable for the type of work he will be doing, and they are going to change his name. Denny, the article said, is too friendly a name for a prison guard.

I sort of feel sorry for Denny, being as he probably has no idea at this time what fate lies in store for him. All I can say is, I hope his purchasers are good to him before they send him off to prison. At least he probably won't have to eat in the prison cafeteria.

And about the judge in the Genene Jones trial in Georgetown who told a cameraman he thought was spying on him from a window across the way from the courthouse, "Don't mess up my trial": I am inclined to agree with the judge.

The judge said he had a lot more important things to do than "worry about the press," and one must certainly admit this is true. Sometimes it seems newsmen take too much for granted the idea that the public has a right to know. Of course, the murder trial is important to all both in terms of curiosity and in terms of protecting ourselves from those who may endanger our own lifestyles.

However, we have no right, in my humble opinion, to interfere with the course of justice, and the danger does exist of the courtroom becoming a circus if too many over-zealous reporters and cameramen are allowed to roam around trying to get a shot of a tearful defendant or an angry prosecutor. This is not to say all newsmen fit this category, but there are certainly those who seem to care more about their product than they care about justice or human beings in general.

And about the "16" water line that burst in Salt Lake City, because, according to officials, too many people flushed at the same time during Superbowl half-time activities: I'll bet the entertainment was really thrilled to hear that news.

It's bad enough to have to get out there in the cold weather and entertain a bunch of football fans who are running to the concession stand and other places. It must be worse knowing the entire population of Salt Lake City flushed during their performance. What a blow to the ego!

And about our governor, Mark White, who thinks we should send our children to school for nine hours a day to provide quality education: what garbage!

We already send them for an approximate seven hours a day, and that is surely enough. Take it from someone who has been there as both a student and a teacher.

What students need is not more hours of reading, writing, and arithmetic, but more quality teaching and, pardon my stepping on toes here, a higher degree of parental interaction in the learning process of children.

When a student comes to class without the vocabulary words he was assigned to define as homework, how is he going to understand the reading assignment that is to follow? And, what is the teacher to do? Should she stop the rest of the class and allow that student to complete his homework as everyone else waits? Or should that student already be instilled with the knowledge that his teachers AND his parents expect him to get there with his work, and if he doesn't, he is going to suffer the consequences?

Two more hours of school are not going to teach that student a higher degree of responsibility and preparation to learn. If seven hours won't do it, then neither will nine hours.

And, what about the student who always does his work, who listens to every word that is said in class, and who takes a real pride in his achievements? (Nine times out of ten, incidentally, this is the child of parents who know what is going at school and make it very plain they think school is important.) This student spends seven hours a day with his head in a book, or taking notes from a teacher's lecture, or answering questions about assignments. Will two more hours of school benefit this student more than seven hours?

He will spend two more hours doing the same thing, because he is dedicated to learning, but he will be more tired when he gets home, and surely his enthusiasm will suffer fatigue.

And, speaking of fatigue, what about the poor teachers? They need two more hours of teaching like they need holes in their heads. No one until he has taught, fully realizes the emotional strain a teacher suffers every single day. A teacher, every day, deals with as many different personalities as he has students in his classroom. That teacher has to meet each student on his own level of learning, ability to learn, and willingness to learn. Seven hours is enough.

I am on a soapbox, I know, but it really riles me that people have all these ideas about how to achieve quality education, and most of the ones who are yelling the loudest haven't sat an hour in a public school classroom since they were in twelfth grade.

AUSTIN—Consumers have found buying tires to be one of the more difficult tasks they can undertake because it is so hard to know which tire will last longest.

In 1980, the U.S. Government finally approved a comparative grading system for all tires sold in this country. Under the federal regulation, tire makers had to test their products and grade them in three areas: traction, heat resistance and tread life.

At the urging of President Reagan's administration, the tire grading system was modified. The important standard of tread life was dropped from the regulations. So consumers are once again left to chance in finding out which tire will wear best.

According to Consumer Reports, traction and heat resistance are also important safety concerns. However, almost all tires are satisfactory in these areas.

On the other hand, tread life varies greatly from one tire to another and is not only a safety concern but an economic factor. A tire that will not wear out for three years should be worth more than a tire that will wear out in two years.

Tires are graded for tread life by points, at one point per 300 miles of life. So, a tire graded at 75 will carry you about 22,500 miles before it wears out, at least under test-tract conditions.

Companies which fought against the grading argued that the standards would "confuse consumers," and possibly lead to a "grading war" among tire companies. But some tire companies were responding positively to the standards by upgrading their tires and advertising their long life.

Some tire companies are still rating their tires, even though they are not required to do so by the federal government. If you are in the market for tires, ask the salesperson if the tires are rated. Some will readily give out this information.

One company rates its radial tires 180 BC, and its non-radial tires 80 BC. In the case of the radials, that means the tread life is 54,000 miles. The letter stands for traction and heat-resistance. These factors are all graded A, B, or C.

Consumer Reports indicates that the majority of tires are rated A or B for traction. On heat-resistance, even a C grade is considered O.K. because all tires must pass a heat-resistance safety test.

This week was a time of renewing old friendships. We were attending the Evanglism Conference in Ft. Worth.

As I thought about and looked forward to seeing some old friends again, I began to ponder: what is friendship?

The dictionary defines friendship as the state of being friends. A friend is defined as a person who knows and likes another.

Isn't that interesting! A friend knows a person and still likes him. A true friend is one to whom you can bare your soul and not be embarrassed in front of the whole world. A good friend is one to whom we can be honest and sincere with our innermost thoughts.

Friendship is a marvelous capacity for the human heart. To have a friend and to be a friend to go hand in hand. Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

The Bible states whatsoever we sow in life, we also reap. This is especially true in friendships.

Friendships are similar to flower gardens. Like flowers, friendships need tender love and care. As in flower gardens, the work done this year will have its harvest in the coming seasons.

Helen Steiner Rice is one of my favorite authors. Her poem, "The Gift of Friendship" says so much.

Friendship is a priceless gift
That cannot be bought or sold,
But its value is far greater
Than a mountain made of gold—
For gold is cold and lifeless,
It can neither see nor hear,
And in the time of trouble
It is powerless to cheer—
It has no ears to listen,
No heart to understand,
It cannot bring you comfort
Or reach our a helping hand—
So when you ask God for a Gift,
Be thankful if He sends
Not diamonds, pearls or riches,
But the love of real true friends.

Property taxes due this month

Local citizens who are property owners should be aware of an approaching deadline that will affect them.

Local property taxes assessed for 1983 are due by the end of January, and taxes not paid before February 1, according to Ron Patterson, executive director of the State Property Tax Board, are delinquent and begin to accrue penalty and interest.

Most Coleman County property owners have received tax bills. However, according to Mr. Skelton of the Coleman County tax office, it is the responsibility of the property owner to keep the office informed of new addresses and to pay the taxes even if no bill is received.

Delinquent 1983 taxes will incur a six percent penalty and one percent interest charge on February 1. Charges continue to add up at the combined rate of two percent per month or portion of a month that the taxes remain unpaid, until they reach a total of 18 percent on July 1.

After that, interest accrues at one percent a month. Taxes delinquent for a year would incur penalty and interest charges of 24 percent of the original tax.

Under Texas law, according to Patterson, taxes are owed on property whether or not the owner receives a tax bill, and there are only three exceptions to the February 1 delinquency date: When the option of split payment is offered by a local government; when tax bills are mailed after January 10, or when a tax-rate rollback election succeeds in lowering a tax rate after tax bills are mailed initially.

Not all taxing units offer the split-payment option. When it is available, half of the 1983 tax must have been paid before December 1, 1983. The second half is due before July 1 this year. Penalty on a delinquent second half-payment is 12 percent of the tax due, and interest will be added at one percent a month from July 1 on.

In some taxing units, tax bills may have been mailed after January 10, or a successful tax-rate rollback election may have necessitated mailing corrected tax bills by a unit other than a school district. In both cases, the delinquency date is postponed and the new date must appear on the most recent tax statement, but penalty and interest will be added if taxes aren't paid before the new date.

Further penalty can be incurred by a tax delinquent on July 1. If a private attorney - rather than the city, county or other public staff attorney - is contracted to collect delinquencies after July 1, up to 15 percent of the total tax, penalty and interest may be added to defray the cost of those collections.

Patterson notes that the Property Tax Code does provide some relief for taxpayers who are unable to pay delinquent taxes, penalty and interest all at one time.

A property owner aged 65 or over may file a sworn affidavit with the appraisal district to defer paying any or all delinquency amounts on his homestead. However, the amounts are still owed on the property and continue to increase until paid or until the property changes hands.

Another option, but one which must be in a written agreement between the tax collector and property owner, is to pay delinquent tax, penalty and interest in installments over a period of not more than 36 months. With this option, too, the tax is still considered due until paid, and penalty and interest accrue on any unpaid balance.

Under certain conditions, a tax collector may choose to follow steps allowed by law to seize personal property, which is then sold to satisfy delinquent taxes.

Property owners should contact their appraisal districts or local tax offices with any questions about delinquent taxes or payment and to find out if collection for taxing units in the appraisal district may have been consolidated in the appraisal office or in a particular tax office.

Oil news

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace has announced that Texas oil and gas wells produced 477,359,527 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas in October 1983, down 0.82 percent from field runs a year earlier.

That brings total production for the year through October to 4,629,290,854 Mcf of gas. Through October of 1982, Texas had produced 5,057,823,696 Mcf of gas.

Marketed gas production in October totaled 380,714,302 Mcf and reflected a 3.37 percent decrease from the October 1982 volume. Marketed production is the gas left over after liquid hydrocarbons have been separated on the lease from the "wet" gas that is usually produced at the wellhead. It also does not include gas that is used to fuel production-related equipment on the lease site, or gas that is otherwise not marketed.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in October totaled 139,366,801 Mcf, and reflected a 14.08 percent decrease from the year-earlier month.

Texas gas production in October came from 237,530 oil and gas wells.

In September 1983, Texas wells produced 471,960,379 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in September totaled 381,485,365 Mcf.

Varsity teams make showing

Santa Anna High School's varsity basketball teams wrapped up victories in their most recent district games, with no losses reported for the week.

The Mountaineers played Mozelle here Friday night, and came out ahead 63-50, in what Coach Summers called "a big district game for us."

High point scorer in that game was Doug Warnock, with 29 points, followed by Kyle Summers with 12.

In a make-up game with Novice here Saturday, the local team squashed their opponents 75-40 with Warnock again high scorer to the tune of 24 points, followed by John Morris with 21 and Paulie Vasquez with 10.

The Mountaineers came out second in their first round of district play, led only by undefeated Lohn.

The undefeated in district Lady Mountaineers were scheduled to play Novice, but the game was forfeited by the opposing team because of illness, but they ripped the Mozelle team 61-25 Friday night. High scorer was Connie Culpepper, 22 points, followed by Yolanda Kirven, 20; Deveda Bible, 6; Leshia Eubank, 4; Dilcy Kirven, 4; Tammy Guthrie, 3; and Patricia Bible, 2.

The girls' team stands at 5-0 in district play.

Co-ed pageant planned

Parents who believe their little girls might be possible candidates for Miss American Co-Ed should begin now assembling information and registering for the pageant to be held July 6-8 in Houston.

Girls between the ages of 13 and 18 who are active in their schools and communities and have good grade averages are eligible to go directly to the state pageant without having to qualify in a local or preliminary pageant.

Contestants are judged on poise, personality, stage appearance, and personal interview. The winner will be crowned Miss Texas American Co-ed, receive a crown, banner, and trophy, and will win an all-expense paid vacation to Hawaii in August, where she will compete for the national title of Miss American Co-ed for 1985.

Hightower calls on farmers to help selves

Jim Hightower, opening the Texas Farmers Union 80th Annual convention in Lubbock Thursday, January 12th, called on family farmers and ranchers to organize "and help ourselves."

Following Texas state president Mike Moeller's welcome to the membership, Hightower pleaded for organization, saying "...the point is, it's up to us if we're going to make any difference, nobody else is going to help. Not the bankers, not the economists, not the traders, not the bureaucrats; they're not going to do it for us. Our family farmers and ranchers themselves are going to have to get organized."

Remembering Huey Long, who advised "if you want some ham, you better go into the smokehouse," Hightower urged farmers and ranchers to "get in the smokehouse of national politics in 1984... to take the political opportunity that is ours to write a new farm policy; a farm policy that will work for you, and once that farm policy is written, that we take that policy to the people."

farm program, in Hightower's view, is one that puts the emphasis on the farmer as the producer, "a farm program that starts with the farmer's price, that doesn't put that last, but puts that first. A program that says we're going to set a minimum price that is at least at the cost of production." At that point, drawing applause from the 500 members, Commissioner Hightower continued, "We need a farm program that is going to control production on a mandatory basis to meet the known demand; both domestic and international; a farm program that puts conservation of soil and water back into the mechanics of the bill, so that we're not asked to strain our non-renewable sources of topsoil and water; a farm program

NEWS 1,000 Computers Go To

"Today's black children are more than a hope. They're a seed crop for what could be the most successful generation of blacks ever, because they are part of the electronic age—an age of unprecedented opportunity for people with the right training." That's the philosophy of David T. Kearns, a corporate leader who's helping to widen the opportunities for America's black children. Thanks to his company, 1,000 computers will be going to our nation's inner-city high schools, increasing future employment prospects for minority group youngsters.

In a recent speech to the National Urban League, Kearns, president and chief executive officer of Xerox, and the League's newly elected chairman, suggested that New Jersey Senator Frank Lautenberg was quite right when he told the Senate, "In an age that demands computer literacy, a school without a computer is like a school without a library."

Kearns added, "It's very important to keep in mind what the machine can do and what it can't do. It's how the machines are used, not the machines themselves, that makes the difference. A computer is a tool, not a substitute for basic skills. We need teachers who can teach those skills and we need parents who will insist that those skills be taught."

"A computer can only help to draw up a balance sheet if the machine's user knows what a balance sheet is. It can only help to compose a letter if one knows how to write. It can only help make better decisions based on better facts if the person operating the computer understands the facts." Kearns went on to say,

Change to Nursing Home can be made easier

Moving an elderly relative into a nursing home can produce a family crisis, but the transition to a new environment can be eased by the family, according to Judith Warren, a family life education-aging specialist.

"Families need to maintain close ties at this time in spite of feeling angry, hurt, afraid of rejection and deeply sorrowful. The entire family may actually be grieving for the passing of an era," says Warren, "and adult children may be confronting their own mortality for the first time."

In this difficult situation, many adult children may have the impulse to retreat, notes Warren.

Yet research indicates that the best thing families can do is to stay close during the first few weeks after the move while the older person adjusts to the new surroundings.

At least one family member should spend the entire first day at the home and daily visits by as many family members as possible should be made for the first two weeks, suggests the specialist.

While the adjustment period is critical, it's also important that family members continue contact with visits, phone calls and notes, she adds.

"This contact demonstrates the adult children's commitment and reduces their parent's fears of abandonment," says Warren.

Prior to admitting an older person to a nursing home, Warren suggests that families carefully select an institution that encourages the maintenance of family ties.

Nursing homes that have open visiting hours, provide facilities like coffee shops and lounges where families can spend time together, encourage families to bring special food treats and reduce obstacles for visits to relatives' homes encourage family closeness, says the specialist.

Tax returns can be speeded up

Taxpayers can help speed up the processing of tax returns by using the pre-addressed, peel-off labels and by double checking their arithmetic before mailing the returns. As simple as the items appear, they are the cause for thousands of errors every year, the IRS says.

The label comes with the tax package in the mail and lists the taxpayer's name, address, social security number, and other bits of information which help the IRS in processing the return quickly.

If any of the information on the label is incorrect,

FBC dinner slated

The Fifth Sunday Dinner at First Baptist Church will be held this Sunday. The dinner will be in the new dining room with the men's quartet bringing special music during this time. Everyone is invited to attend and fellowship together.

the correction can be made directly on the label. Taxpayers should also use the coded envelope included in the tax package. It's pre-addressed and helps the IRS sort returns.

Errors such as checking the wrong filing status, failing to sign the return, math mistakes, and the omission of necessary documents are common mistakes which can delay taxpayers' refunds. The IRS must correct the errors or obtain the documents before processing the return.

Most errors can be avoided if the return is double checked for accuracy and the label is used.
