Be Sure To Take Time To Vote Saturday

Karen Morris

John Pearce

The Santa Anna News has invited the four City Council Candidates on the ballot for Saturday's election to make a statement regarding his or her candidacy. Following are those statements. In all of the excitement of Funtier Days, don't forget to take time to perform your duty as a citizen and your privilege to vote. The City election will take place at Mountain City Community Center and the School Board election at the school administration office. Polls will be open from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

The Santa Anna News featured the School Board Candidates last week.

Karen Morris

Since being elected to the City Council two years ago, I have become more familiar with the inner workings of the city and its limitations, as well as the complexities involved. Like everyone else, I would like to see many improvements for Santa Anna, but the one improvement I would most like to see is community involvement and cooperation. I would like to see more communication between the council and the citizens to open new avenues for growth. With the limited financial resources available to our town and the regulations we must abide by, we must look to the only natural and outside sources, we need to look for fresh new ideas and forget the phrase "It Won't Work."

In my capacity as Executive Director of the Bangs Housing Authority, I am accustomed to working with various governmental entities as well as day to day administrative functions such as budgeting, employee and community relations, and policy development and implementation.

I am a graduate of Joshua High School, Joshua, Texas and married

Special Section This Week

We have included a special section in the Santa Anna News this week and sincerely hope you will enjoy it. In the rush of trying to get it together we somehow omitted a credit to Mrs. Leona Bruce that we had prepared. Some excerpts from her book, "Santa Anna's Peak" were used in our introductory on the cover page.

Hospital Has Third Name Change

After three name changes and the threat of another closure, the hospital in Coleman is still in business but with another name.

The hospital, which for years was known as the Overall-Morris Hospital until the mid-1991 when it was closed, then became Coleman County Community Hospital until last Friday night at midnight. "Trustees of the property, the former Overall-Morris Memorial Hospital board, terminated the lease of Life-Med, Inc. of Round Rock and issued a new lease to Holiday Hill, Inc. at that time," State Rep. Bob Turner of Voss, executive director of the Coleman County Development Corp., said Saturday.

Turner explained that Holiday Hill, which operates a nursing home in Coleman, does not intend to become permanently involved in the hospital business, but stepped in to keep the hospital open on an interim basis.

Life-Med operated the hospital since July 22, 1991 but experienced problems with Medicare certification due to the facility's closure on July 9 of last year.

Holiday Hill, Inc. anticipates being the management company for the near future, but it is not intended to be a permanent situation.

Last Thursday a meeting was held in the board room of the Coleman Chamber of Commerce. Several health management persons from out-of-town attended. These included Maurice Shaw, director of Texas Department of Health, Hospital Licensing Division, and Marvin Cole, who heads up the Small Hospital Division of Texas Hospital Association, both of Austin; and Paul Adams and Lawrence Leonard of Shannon Memorial Hospital in San Angelo.

Others at the joint meeting were members of the board of directors of Holiday Hills, Inc.; the Overall-Morris Memorial Hospital board, which serve as the trustees for the facility; Coleman Development Corp. board of directors; and several of the hospital's administrative staff.

It was at this meeting that the decision was made to allow Holiday Hills to assume the management role for the local hospital.

Turner said he believes that the long-range future for the Coleman hospital looks better than it has in recent years for a number of reasons including an agreement of Shannon Memorial Hospital in San Angelo and Texas Hospital Association to assist the new ownership in organizing a new accounting and administrative system for the hospital; the employment of John Martin, an interim administrator, who began work on Monday; the agreement by Shannon Memorial Hospital to send physicians to be located in the old Dr. Pope-Clinic building in south Coleman in support of the Coleman hospital; and an awareness on the part of the Coleman County citizens of how close they came to losing the health care facility and that the need for its survival is real.

Around & About

A family get-together took place at Lucile Wylie's home here Saturday, April 25. Visiting and enjoying reminiscing were Lucile, now of Grapevine, her daughter and husband, Nancy and David Pinkerton, also of Grapevine; her son and family, Bud and Linda Wylie, Chris and Alisha of Arlington; and her sister, Madora Gilmore of Santa Anna.

Also present were Pat and Doretha Gilmore of Mobile, Alabama, Kirk and Gene Newman of Houston, Helen and Armand Proulx of Sun City, Ariz., Elizabeth Tillman of Dripping Springs and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baxter of Ponca City, Okl. who were also marking their 50th wedding anniversary on the 25th.

Visiting here this week from Carlsbad, N.M. are Tennyson and Patsy Grand. The couple is visiting Lora Russell, Patsy's aunt.

We are told that the Indian Paintbrush on the James Spillman property on South Lee is especially beautiful and abundant this year. Other yards are also abundant with wildflower blooms and well as cultured plants. The late Thelma Lowry's yard was lovely as usual with Bluebonnets as was the Eisenhower and Barnetzy yards in the northwest part of the town. Of course there are others, but those mentioned always provide a touch of loveliness to our town and are called to our attention year after year.

A History Of The Trickham Cemetery

By Myra Cole

The Trickham Cemetery is among the oldest in the area. The oldest marker found in the Trickham cemetery is that of Nancy Newman in 1879. There are several in 1880.

In 1983 Mrs. M. M. Sanders of Clay County Mississippi came to Coleman County to claim the land her late husband had purchased. She found a number of graves near an old oak tree, on her land. She had a plot of 5-1/2 acres surveyed, fenced and deeded to the community of Trickham for a burial place.

The Trickham Cemetery Association was formed February 28, 1948 and 5 directors appointed. They were Oscar Boenicke, W. T. Martin, Lige Lancaster, Will Haynes and Lou Featherston. Lige Lancaster served on the board of directors 21 years. Oscar Boenicke resigned as President of the board after serving 29 years.

In the 1949 meeting a constitution was written, enabling donations to be used as a permanent fund to draw interest to provide funds for the upkeep of the cemetery.

The first Memorial Meeting was held in 1950. Directors were selected from the North, South, East and West with Lige Lancaster completing the 5 directors. Rev. J. B. Weathers was the first speaker, his grandson, Rev. Bobby Weathers was speaker in 1982.

Grady McIver, after serving 16 years as director became the 2nd President in 1977 of the Trickham Cemetery Association. A new chainlink fence was installed in 1974 and financed with donations. During the 1970's the graves began to be lowered so a mower could be used. The school house was looking more like a community center. Grady served as president until his death in 1984.

Russie James served as president during 1985 and 1986. She had been a director and in the office of Vice President for a long time she worked untiringly for the Cemetery Association, always available and talented in doing things correctly. She helped compile the first list of graves that the cemetery had. She always helped with the meals served and stayed until the cleanup was over.

Rankin McIver served as the 4th President during 1987. He requested a different job. He has served as director for a long time, he is always nearby and willing to use his tractor or anything for any work needed.

George Haynes served from 1988-1990 as the 6th president of the Cemetery Association. A great amount was accomplished during his time in office. He put up rock markers at Unknown Graves. The west end of the cemetery was cleared and is kept mowed. He drew maps or charts of all the graves in the cemetery and labeled them, making it easy to locate any grave. He worked from the map made by Ed Featherston. There were improvements at the community center.

The Rev. James Ford has been President of the Trickham Cemetery Association; during 1991 and 1992. Because of the weather, this has been a hard year for Cemetery work. Also Charlie Fleming who has been the responsible caretaker for so long, had major surgery. Reliable workmen are continuing the necessary mowing and grave repair. James is a talented mechanic or machinist, the entrance gate to the cemetery is a gift of his handiwork and artistry, presented as a memorial to his father, Marion Ford.

During the past 44 years the Trickham Cemetery Association has had only 3 secretaries, the first being Lou Featherston who was selected at the initial meeting in 1948 and helped to direct the formation of the association. She is the only living member of that group.

Minnie Wilson became the second secretary of the Trickham Cemetery Association. She served well and faithfully for a number of years until failing eyesight and other responsibilities required that she give up her duties at the Cemetery Association.

Lou Vaughn became the 3rd secretary of the Cemetery Association. She has kept all the records for the past 29 years. Additionally, she takes care of many details connected with the cemetery affairs and community center.

June 25, 1969, block 10 of the township of Trickham was deeded to the Trickham Cemetery Association by the Santa Anna Independent School District. Members of the board of trustees were Robert T. Smith, Jesse Williams, Richard Horner, Joe Wise I, A. R. Neff, John McDaniel and board secretary Barbara Kingsbery signed a quit claim deed, deeding the interest of the Santa Anna school board of block 10 of Trickham township to the Trickham Cemetery Association. Cullen Perry was Superintendent of the Santa Anna Schools at that time. The result was that the Trickham schoolhouse then belonged to the Trickham Cemetery Association.

Projects, such as garage sales and donations have provided funds for upkeep and improvements to the building. Bathrooms, folding tables and chairs, heaters and ceiling fans and miniblinds for the south windows add to the usefulness of the building.

The 5.1 acre plot of ground, located directly east of the existing cemetery, was purchased from the University of California, recorded in 1985, and donated to the Trickham Cemetery Association by Eugenia McIver as a Memorial to her late husband Grady McIver.

Range Tour To Be Held May 5

By: Kerry Shropshire, CEA-AG

Producers and landowners depend on native and improved pastures to produce their products. This is the case whether they run a cow-calf operation, a stocker operation, or sell hay. The most important part of those pastures is the quality and quantity of the grass that is produced.

Another factor that influences the productivity of the land is the amount of competition from weeds and brush species. All of these topics will be addressed during a range tour sponsored by the Coleman County Extension Office and the Soil Conservation Service.

The tour will be held on the Allen Ranch located 10 miles east of Coleman off of Farm to Market Road 568. The tour is scheduled for Tuesday, May 5 beginning at 11:00 a.m. There will be a $3.00 registration fee which will cover the cost of the meal. The meeting will also be worth 2 C.E.U. credits for anyone with a Private Applicator License/Certificate.

This should be an excellent tour for anyone involved in farming and ranching whether they produce hay or graze livestock on their pastures.

Again, the tour is Tuesday, May 5, beginning at 11:00 a.m. on the Allen Ranch located 10 miles East of Coleman off FM 568.

We do ask that if you have any questions or if you plan on attending to call Kerry Shropshire at the County Extension Office at 625-4519 to reserve your spot.

The two plots were combined by removing the separating fence and enclosing the 5.1 acre plot with a chainlink fence provided by donations. The memorial gate was moved to the roadway to provide an entrance to the enlarged cemetery. The lettering above the gate appropriately reads Trickham Cemetery.

There are 860 graves in the cemetery.

ing hours to his credit. He held Junior and Senior Executive positions while in the Navy and served in Naval Intelligence for 12 years. He attended Arlington State College, University of Texas, University of Houston, University of Georgia and Georgia Tech. Hays is engaged in farming and ranching.

He formerly served two years on the council in the late 1970's and as mayor of Santa Anna in the early 1980's.

Tom is completing his present term on the council and is seeking election to another two year term to help complete work the council has begun.

Emmitt Simmons

City Councilman Emmitt Simmons is a 23-year employee of the 3M Co. in Brownwood. He and wife, Margaret are the parents of Shane, a S.A.H.S. graduate and Chanda, a student of S.A.H.S. They are also the proud grandparents of a grandson Tyler.

Emmitt is a high school graduate and a Vietnam veteran. He and his family are members of the First United Methodist Church. He is also involved in the youth group at the church.

Emmitt feels that during the past two years the city has come out of the red into the black. Progress is being made. He hopes that most of the needs have been made at the Sewer Farm, Dumpground, Police Department and Trash Pickup. Maybe when everything that really is important such as the above are smoothed out we can start smoothing out streets. He says that since he is not a good liar he won't make false promises. Emmitt also thinks that he is not finished with the job he set out to do.

He will appreciate your vote on May 2 for City Council.

John Pearce

This is a statement concerning my candidacy for city council of the city of Santa Anna. The city of Santa Anna will face many problems over the next few years. We are facing mandated programs both from the state and federal government, as well as continuing to provide daily services that we must provide because we are a city while at the same time keeping the city on the positive side of the balance sheet.

I realize I've not been in town much over the past few years. Two years ago I spent the spring helping to reestablish a civilian government in Panama. Training the new police force, working with the Red Cross in feeding over 3000 displaced persons, coordinating the air evacuation of an injured civilian child when the red tape got in the way and at the same time putting together the five year military operations plan for Panama. Last year I helped in a 16000 person POW camp in Saudi Arabia as a medic dealing with diseases I didn't even know existed eight weeks prior to that. This year I've been in Honduras doing medical and veterinary surveys, giving advice in the area of public health and building public schools. Finally, this year I've been working on a drug interdiction program for Joint Taskforce Six out of El Paso, Texas. We do complete community surveys and also find out the communities needs in the area of drug interdiction and try to see how these needs can be met outside of regular police channels. As you see I've been in many situations over the past few years and have several commendations to show for the varied work I've done.

I have no personal agenda and I have no axe to grind when it comes to the office I am seeking. We are going to have to put the city of Santa Anna first and foremost in all that we do and say on the city, county and State level. The county and the State need to know that Santa Anna exist but at the same time know that we are willing to cooperate in solving our mutual problems and meeting Santa Anna's needs as a community. I will always be willing to listen to both sides of an issue and try to make a decision that is in the best interest of the city of Santa Anna as a whole. I

Ranger Park Inn

By Dorothy York

There has been a lot of talk this past week by our residents, about Easter week and the various people of the community remembering them in special ways. This was again brought to mind this week when H & H Grocery here in Santa Anna donated cookies for our residents. I take great pride in writing articles where we can express our thanks to our community for remembering our residents who have been a part of this community for many years.

Also, we can never acknowledge our volunteers enough—people who come in daily, weekly and monthly to share their time and talents with our residents. On behalf of our residents, our administrator, Mrs. Jeanice Reece and staff we all thank you for thinking of our residents. Listening to them talk about what each of you do for them, and who they enjoyed visiting with brings a good deal of pleasure to all of us.

Alberto Stamper was visited by Corina Guana and Ida Perry. Preston Davis was visited by Alma Webster, Wanda McDorman, Mary Davis and Tom Davis. Robert Anderson was visited by Jewel Anderson, Stanley Anderson, Ed Anderson, Juakana and Mykia and Norman Anderson.

A View From Santa Anna's Peak

About Santa Anna And Its People

Santa Anna News

April 30, 1992

We thank Sylvia Herring for the loan of her lovely painting which shows a view of the Santa Anna Mountain from the roadside park west of town.

Santa Anna's Peak! The name first appeared on maps of the wide unknown land between the Brazos and Colorado Rivers of Texas soon after Mexican independence from Spain in 1821. Some map-maker, using information from Scouts and Explorers were told there was a high point of land at that place.

Between the Pecan River and Colorado there is a mountain you can see for miles; Santa Anna, the chief of the Comanches lives there with his band, it was said. The cartographer drew a small circle and called it Santa Anna's Peak.

The two low hills are mere flat-topped mesas, some three hundred feet high. If it were not that they are the only eminence above the miles of slopes that lift them up to sight for long distances they would have been unnoted. But there they were, to guide the explorers, the armies, the Texas Rangers, the surveyors. Once they were visible, the location of the streams, the trails and places were certain, whether to go north of them, or east or west. They were the focus, the axis, of further travel.

Comanche Indians lived in this area, including Santa Anna and his band who camped at the springs near the foot of the mountains and used the elevated peaks as lookout and signal points. Chief Santa Anna died about 1849 of cholera but the town which bears his name lives on at the foot of those hills where he and his people once roamed.

The original town of Santa Anna was located at the gap of the mountain but later moved to the site of the present township with the coming of the Santa Fe Railroad.

The rock buildings which house a number of Santa Anna businesses were built at the turn of the century using stone brought from the mountains. The town was incorporated in 1906 and a water system established in 1910. Natural gas was piped in from Trickham in 1914.

Today the City of Santa Anna is governed by the mayor-council form of government with five councilmen. Mrs. Gale Allen-Brock is current mayor of the City. Council members are Karen Morris, Jim Spillman, Emmitt Simmons, Danny Kellar and Tom Hays. There is one full-time policeman, Carlos Torres, and a municipal judge, Bruce Kingsbery.

Water is supplied by two city-owned lakes and from Lake Brownwood.

The Legend Of Lovers Leap

Among the stories local people love to relate concerning our mountain is the story of Lover's Leap. This version is the one written by Austin Callan in the early 1900's.

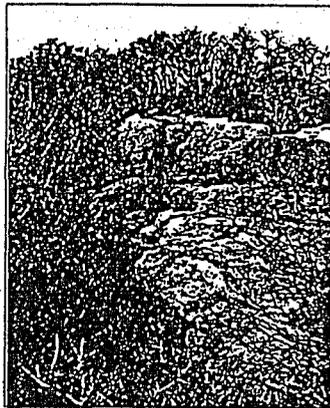

Tradition tells us that in the long ago, a quaint little Indian village nestled at the foot of "Santana peaks" called Las Mesas. It was before the white man's ambition for new territory led him into the wild haunts of the savage; before Anglo-Saxon enterprise transformed the dreamy West, from a wilderness of romance to a vulgar land of farms and ranches. Herds of buffalo and deer roamed the prairies, wild turkeys, geese and game birds were as plentiful as the leaves on the trees, and the people were happy, prosperous and indolent.

Among the inhabitants was Fox-Deer, who had taken unto himself a pale-face for a wife; he had an only daughter, called Lentalopa, Laughing-Eye, and he loved her poor, heart-broken mother, whose soul he gave to the Great Spirit in the forest, and whose body was laid to rest among the flowers on the "Little Table".

One evil day a band of white men, with a great train of wagons and an Indian guide, passed through the gap of Las Mesas and were soon in view of the little village. Immediately the war-whoop rent the air and before the soldiers and teamsters hardly had time to corral their wagons and prepare for battle, the fierce red devils were circling round and round them, leaning low on their horses and gradually drawing in. The lieutenant gave orders not to fire until the enemy came near enough to the wagons to make every shot count a dead savage.

Each man stood in place, sighting down his musket, waiting breathlessly for the order. Fox-Deer, clad in a buckskin suit, ornamented with silver, turned his pretty steed towards the wagon corral, gave a signal which was understood, and in an instant every warrior was charging the temporary barracks, howling as an imaginary pack of fiends in hell. Then, from behind the wagons, there came a hundred puffs of smoke, and a hundred Indians fell lifeless on the sward.

Fox-Deer led his red-skins back to the base of Las Mesas; the soldiers reloaded their muskets and made ready for a second attack. In the meantime several of the men reported to the Lieutenant that the savages had a beautiful white wife in captivity, and one fellow said that he had his musket aimed at her heart and was ready to fire, when he made the discovery. The gallant Lieutenant, a jolly old Irish bachelor, said: "By th' hoily Soint Paterick, it's glod I am that those yelpin' devils air too dead to kick, but I'd rather they war all aloif an' around us, than to haf harimned one hair on thot girl's head." He immediately sent a couple of men, under a flag of truce, to the Indians, with the information that he would withdraw and leave them alone, if they would only surrender the white prisoner into his hands.

The answer came back, as quick as a flash of lightning, from the ashy lips of Wounded Hawk. He said that Laughing-Eye belonged not to the pale-faces, that he had won her heart for bravery in fighting the battles of Fox-Deer. "We love each other," he said in tones of pathos to the Indian guide, who acted as interpreter; "we have asked the beautiful moon to melt our hearts into one, and its spirit came down and danced for joy on the bosom of the silvery stream, because we are happy. Go away and leave us alone, leave Laughing-Eye among the flowers and the birds, close to her mother's grave."

The men returned and reported the effort to compromise with the Indians, unsuccessful. Wounded Hawk's story was put down as one of those slick lies characteristic of his race, and it was decided to at once attack the village and finish the job of whipping the devils, who were rendered inferior by their first charge. As the soldiers drew up near the wigwams, the golden sun was hanging over the western point of the mountain, a beautiful valley swept off for miles to the north, and in the green grass droves of snow-white antelope and fleet-footed dun deer were playing. Around the wigwams a number of squaws were seated upon buffalo robes and among them was Laughing-Eye, downcast and frightened.

Fox-Deer asked permission to send his child to a cliff on the mountain where she would be out of danger, to watch the battle. "If the Great Spirit decides against the poor Indian," he said, "the white man can take her, but if He answers her prayer, she will remain in the forest with Wounded Hawk and be happy."

Laughing-Eye gave the signal for battle by waving a branch of cedar, from the brow of Las Mesas, and there went up a savage yell, as fierce as mortal ever heard. Fox-Deer led his warriors forth, playing for two of the highest earthly stakes--the happiness of his daughter and his own life. In an instant the whites were surrounded and the Indians riding at full speed and lying low on the off side of their ponies, poured volley after volley of deadly arrows into their dismayed ranks. The Lieutenant fell mortally wounded; a dozen others were dead upon the ground. Closer and closer the savages came and more hideous grew their war-whoops. Laughing-Eye knelt upon the cliff to pray; no doubt she had learned to lisp the name of God at her mother's knee, and I fancy she asked Him to restore safe to her bosom the young chief she loved. But the tide of battle turned; turned at a moment when Wounded Hawk felt the flush of victory and was almost ready to wave his love back to the joy of the wigwam.

The surviving soldiers formed a little square, dropped to their knees and prepared to receive the last desperate charge of the savages. Fox-Deer led his men up this time in silence. Pointing to the girl on the brow of the peak and giving a signal which they all understood, a mad rush was made. A deadly stream of fire poured forth from the little group of determined whites, and then they sprang to their feet with bayonets fixed. For a moment the fate of Wounded Hawk hung in the balance; the struggle was as fierce as opposing forces were waged; Indian and Caucasian fell together, locked in each other's arms, with the cold steel in each other's breasts, and their mingled blood crimsoned the grass-spears and the daisies. There was a hush; a little flag bearing the Stars and Stripes shot up above the field of carnage just in time to catch the farewell kiss of the setting sun. From the overhanging cliff a scream of agony rent the air. Laughing-Eye understood and leaped upon the rocks below, into the arms of death.

Pride Of Santa Anna—Volunteer Fire Department

Pictured here are some members of the Ladies Aux. to the Fire Department as well as volunteer fire fighters. They are: standing, Jannet Strickland, Rita Day and granddaughter, Terry Taylor, Donald Carter, Donald Strickland, Freddie Dodson, Waide Messer, Scott Patterson, Lynn Loyd. Front: Syble and Lee Ray Huggins, Edith Dodson, Ross Bradley, Dickie Horner, Clint Day and David Huggins. All members were not present for the picture. A list of members is found in the accompanying article.

Melton, M. J. Norrell, E. E. Polk, and S. M. Polk. Records also indicated that in January of 1920 the group was discussing the matter of securing a more modern fire truck. Major Childers was present to assure the group that the City Council would support their drive to solicit funds from the community. "The Council gave the first $50.00 toward the purchase of a LaFrance or some standard truck."

Currently the Santa Anna Volunteer Fire Department is again checking into getting a truck which will be pumper truck to replace the one now in use. The Fire Department has stated that they would be willing to donate $4,000 toward purchasing the truck and the Ladies Auxiliary will donate $1,000 of any profits from Funtier Days. A used pumper truck would probably cost anywhere from $30,000-$40,000. The Fire Department is also presently in the midst of its annual associate membership drive which gains them financial support for their year to year operations.

Officers of the Fire Department are Fire Chief, Donald Strickland; Asst. Chief, Lee Ray Huggins; President, Clint Day; Vice President, Scott Patterson; Sec. Treas., Freddie Dodson; Captains, David Huggins and Marty Donham; Asst. Captains, Roddy Dean and Danny Cook; Reporter, Freddie

Dodson; and Chaplain, Jasper McClellan.

Ladies Auxiliary

The ladies Aux. to the Santa Anna Volunteer Fire Dept. is composed of the wives of the firemen.

Officers are Rita Day, president; Syble Huggins, vice president; Edith Dodson, secretary/treasurer and Janette Strickland, reporter. The ladies perform many supportive tasks for the Fire Dept.

One of the groups that the citizens of Santa Anna are most proud of is the Santa Anna Volunteer Fire Department. These are the people who from time to time risk their well-being to protect our property. Including the property of our neighbors in rural areas surrounding our town. We have not been able to come up with a definite date when the organization was formed but were provided with records that dated back to January 1, 1917 which listed members at that time at G. E. Rock House on the C. D. Bruce Ranch, on highway east edge of Santa Anna.

"The Old Rock House"

In 1873, Mr. Brestow, a stone mason by trade, came West to let the dry air ease his chronic cough. He settled on the west side of Santa Anna Mountain, near a spring, which flowed from some unknown river under the mountain. There, he built his home, which stands today, testimony to his skill at his trade!

From the top of Santa Anna Mountain he took rock and processed it in a lime kiln he had built into the mountain side. The original construction was a one-room home 18x22 feet of solid rock with plaster inside.

A few years later, Mr. Brestow enlarged his home by adding a room of lumber. In the 1880's some unknown occupant built on three more rooms, using cut lumber and square nails.

The Rock House sits on the C. D. Bruce Ranch, just off Highway 84, west of Santa Anna. The Bruces had a sincere interest in restoring the old home, which has been awarded the Historical Building Medallion by the Coleman County Historical Committee. At their own expense they renovated the rock house; the wooden additions have been dismantled, every board and square nail was preserved for reconstruction.

Sometime in the house's history a fire destroyed part of a wooden mantle. The mantle was rebuilt with what was left of the original wood and enough new material to restore its form.

They had an old fashioned eating table and bench made from some of the scrap lumber. Mrs. Bruce made

Texas Ranger Club House

The lobby and managerial quarters of the Texas Ranger Motel is the old Club House of the Texas Ranger Memorial Park. It is in the beautiful setting at the East end of the famous Santa Anna Mountain, backed by the mountain and facing the most breath-taking view in the world; the oak tree lined avenue leads from the Highway to the motel.

The formal dedication of the building was in 1939, when C. M. Grady, an Ex Ranger was recognized. The annual meetings of the group were held in Santa Anna for several years.

There were six companies of Rangers on the Frontier and they traveled from one company to another, being about 100 miles apart and Maltoy's Company E seemed to be in this area, with supplies coming from Camp Colorado.

You Are Always Welcome

You Are Always Welcome in Santa Anna's houses of worship. With a variety of programs offered one of our churches will be able to help fill your spiritual needs. One of the highlights for worshipers in Santa Anna is the Easter Sunrise Service held at the old bandstand near the lighted cross on the east mountain. Breakfast is served at one of the churches following the service. On Thursday and Friday before Easter, churches join together for services. Again at Thanksgiving time joint services are held. Santa Anna also has a strong Ministerial Alliance working in areas of ecumenical affairs.

Our Schools & Those Who Serve

Santa Anna is proud of its school system. We feel we have among the best in facilities for a school district our size and we have a dedicated group of teachers, administrators and other staff members who are greatly appreciated. Like all other small schools in the state there are programs we are especially proud of and others we sometimes wish we were able to provide. But all in all, Santa Anna schools produce well rounded citizens who are quite capable of making their way in this world.

The board of trustees has recently hired a new superintendent of schools. Jim McPherson, a native of West Virginia, who came to Santa Anna from Murchison, Texas took over the job the first of April upon the retirement of Gerald Brister, who had been superintendent for seven years after serving here as high school principal for five years.

By taking over at this time Mr. McPherson will be able to get fully acquainted with the local school district operations before the hectic fall school term.

Mission Statement:

Each school district in the state is required to develop a mission statement. "The mission of the Santa Anna Independent School district is to provide an environment which promotes learning by all students to a high degree of mastery. This will be accomplished by a faculty modeling high expectations and demonstration professional behavior in collaboration with community and students. The faculty will create and maintain a learning environment which supports the total development of all students."

Santa Anna High School Principal Frank Gray is most appreciative of an organization by the name of Partners In Academic Excellence which has been operation for the past four years. It was organized with the encouragement of Mr. Gray. The group is made up of Santa Anna business people and individuals, who by their financial and moral support, recognize the academic achievement of high school students. However, they do not reserve the acclaim for only those with exceptional academic ability but also award the average student who strives to achieve to his maximum ability. Mr. Gray says this program enables the school to have our small businesses in Santa Anna as academic partners.

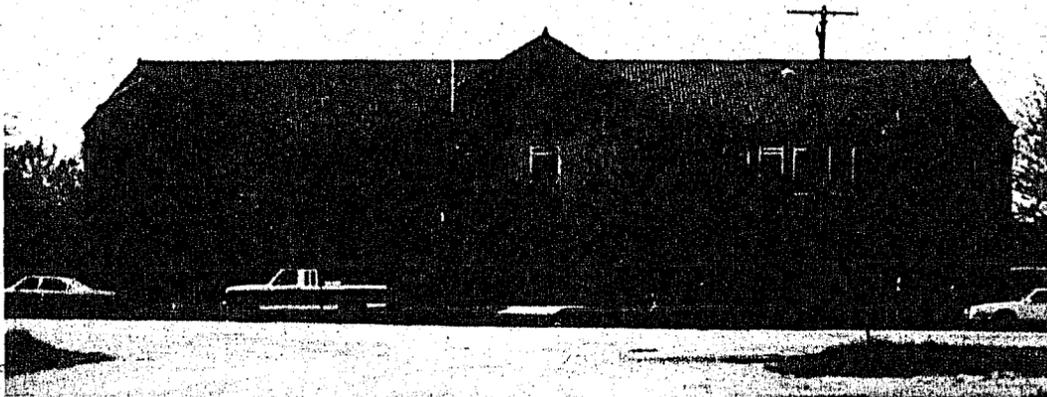

"This community support is proof to our students that their academic success is important to all the members of our community." Mr. Gray comments that this spring is busy as always with activities in UIL Literary, Band, FFA, FHA, Track and Tennis and it is hard to stress academics when all this is taking place. "In an effort to keep in mind that scholastic achievement is the purpose of our school, we have established a system where classes as a group who achieve at a high level during this hectic time are allowed to have the exemptions from final exams. This system has been in place for three years and helps with attendance and achievement during April and May." Mr. Gray says the school is now working on a state mandated plan of sight based management in which a plan developed by parents, community members, (non-parents) teachers, administrators and school board members will work together for policy development and management discussions. This plan will be developed in June by a committee which is already in place. "We feel that this will help for better understanding through communication and allow community and staff input in the management of our schools," he says.

And what else could the school mascot be than a proud, strong, rugged Mountaineer!

Santa Anna school administrative staff and school board members are shown here. Standing are board members, Gary Absher, Roddy Dean, Barbara Simmons, Roy Joe Harvey, Sharon Guthrie, Ruth Ann Wise (president) and Marty Donham. Seated are Superintendent Jim McPherson, High School Principal Frank Gray, Elementary/Jr. High Principal Dean Bass, Business Manager Judy Hartman, and Administrative Secretary Carole Voss.

The impressive Santa Anna High School building, built in the late 1920's, is one of the town's landmarks.

He goes on to say that "We continue to strive to have the best programs possible academically as well as extracurricular and we value every student. Every call and every concern is important to us."

Dean Bass who is in his first year as principal of Santa Anna Elementary/Junior High, sincerely appreciates his faculty and acclaims them as a very understanding and professional group. He says this year has been a very good school year and the students have responded well. The faculty has strived in every way to work together well for the education of the students.

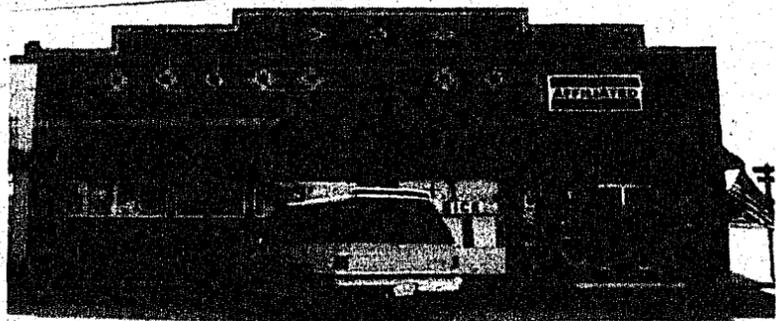

Elementary and Junior High Mission Statement:

"The mission of the Santa Anna Elementary/junior high school is to provide an environment which promotes learning of basic minimal skills both vertically and horizontally. This will be accomplished by the faculty modeling high expectations demonstration professional behavior and creating a learning environment which places emphasis on the skills of reading, writing and computation. The Santa Anna Elementary/Junior High will collaborate with community and students to create and maintain a learning environment which is positive and supports the holistic development of all students."

Within the past year the City of Santa Anna has seen the closure of an old landfill, according to state closure standards, and the opening of a new one, also according to all current regulations.

After several years of negotiations with state agencies and landowners and many long hours of negotiations with General Electric Credit Corp., construction is now underway on a new wastewater treatment plant. The plant will utilize the two ponds already in use, but will also consist of two additional 1.7 acre ponds, one a facultative pond and the other an oxidation pond. The plant will include about 50 acres of bench level terrace system, triflex lift station, concrete work, piping and valves. Gravity flow will do away with approx. $1300 a month electric bill for irrigation.

D & D Construction of San Angelo and Rowena is contractor for the project which will allow the City to stay in compliance even with a 10% growth per year until 2020.

The City crew has performed several pre-construction tasks such as building a fence around the property. They are also the ones who often go unthanked for the hours spent taking care of emergencies during the wee hours of the morning and on holidays when others are spending time with their families.

Santa Anna Lakes

Located no more than five miles northwest of town are Santa Anna's two lakes, Lake Santana and Lake Sealy. Although small in comparison to some area lakes they are a source of pride for the town and at this time of year are especially beautiful. No swimming is allowed in the lakes but anglers will tell you that fishing is good there, particularly for bass and crappie. Built to hold the city's water supply, the lakes are completely full at the present time, due to the over abundance of rain within the past year. The City of Santa Anna, when time permits, is doing some cleanup work around the lake area to make it even more enjoyable for outings.

Shown here, fishing at Lake Sealy, are some employees of the Kohler Co. of Brownwood who held a fishing tournament at the Santa Anna lakes this past weekend.

Other recreational areas near Santa Anna include Lake Brownwood, Lake Coleman and Hord's Creek Lake

Short Distance To O.H. Ivie Reservoir

MAP SHOWING areas of development. CRMWD's Recreational Park Areas shown as (1) Padgett Park, (2) Concho Park and (3) Kennedy Park. Recreational sites include: Concrete boat ramps, picnic tables and restrooms. Outside perimeter of the reservoir is at 1550 elevation and darkened area within the reservoir is from 1500 to river channel or the deepest waters.

Approximately 30-35 miles drive from Santa Anna can be found the new O. H. Ivie Reservoir which has become a fisherman's haven. The new reservoir southeast of Ballinger was supposed to take at a minimum of three years to fill but recently topped out in little more than a year. Stocked with Florida Bass in 1989, it was expected to be a decent bass lake. Anglers are now commonly catching largemouth bass up to four pounds in a half day of fishing. There weren't suppose to be any big bass in the lake for several years but a new lake record 9.5 pound bass caught a few weeks ago. Those who are seriously fishing for crappie and catfish are catching limits in a few hours. Facilities on the lake are still being built. But there are now three parks open and operated by the Water Authority plus a well-equipped fishing camp offering almost anything anglers might want.

Kennedy Park is at the north end of the dam off new FM 1929. The 409 acre park includes a 4-lane boat ramp and picnic facilities. Roads to all parks are still being built. All of FM 1929 is still dirt road, with crews working feverishly to get it completed. The road is due to be paved sometime this summer. In the meantime, plan on a dusty bumpy ride.

Kennedy Park includes Elm Creek Village, which is the only concession at the lake now offering overnight facilities.

Further north on the lake is Padgett Park, a 312-acre park off FM 2134, off FM 503 from Voss. And 448-acre Concho Park is on the south side of the lake in Concho County. Take FM 1929 off 2134 or Hwy 83 to reach this park.

Elm Creek has RV parking, cabins, a good boat ramp and a well-stocked grocery store and grill.

Recreation permits, applicable to all three CRMWD reservoirs, are now available at 17 places near full Lake O. H. Ivie.

These are $2 daily individual, $20 annual individual, $50 annual guests (10 or less) and apply to picnicking, boating, fishing, camping, etc.

In Coleman permits may be purchased at J. E. Stevens Co., Geo. D. Rhone Co., Hord's Creek Grocery, Buddy's Convenience Store, Super S Foods, and Shoppin' Basket Foods all in Coleman. Permits may also be purchased in Ballinger, Eden, Paint Rock and San Angelo. Around the lake permits are available at Hoelscher Bait Shop, Rock Ridge Grocery and Elm Creek Village.

There are camping areas at Concho, Padgett and Kennedy Parks, with restrooms, picnic units and boat ramps.
