ABILENE GIRL INDICTED FOR SHOOTING BOY

Indictment of Miss Moxley, 22-year-old Abilene girl, grew out of the shooting of Freddie Rutherford, 18, in an attorney's office here May 12.

Young Rutherford, bellboy at Hotel Wooten, where the girl was engaged as an elevator operator, made a statement to officers arresting her and Miss Moxley went to the office of T. A. Biesford for advice concerning marriage.

Young Rutherford, with a .38 caliber bullet in his side, was in several days in a critical condition at the West Texas Hospital sanitarium. Two weeks ago he was improved sufficiently to be removed to his home.

World Famous Aviatix Enjoys Short Rest Here Thursday

By BOBBY CAMPBELL
Wending her way from California to New York, Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, world famous aviatix, and her windmill of the clouds stopped in Big Spring for thirty minutes Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Putnam, accompanied by a mechanic, Eddie Vaughn, is completing an east to west, and west to east flight in a $15,000 Pitcairn Autogiro, the first of the type ever seen in Big Spring.

A large crowd gathered at the airport an hour and more before the arrival of the strange looking craft. The plane circled the field before it was brought to earth.

Queer Craft
The red autogiro has the appearance of a combined aircraft and windmill, with its small body, low slung wings, and revolving rotor blades along the lines of a propeller. The plane itself, isn't anything, but its accomplishments offset the appearance, the flier said.

The ship is powered by a 3000 horsepower Wright J-7 motor with a top speed of 110 miles an hour. Mrs. Putnam has been cruising 80 miles since she left New York for California and on the return trip. The spin, which has claimed so many crusaders of aviation, is impossible in the autogiro, Mrs. Putnam said.

The tour is financed by the Beechnut Packing Company, and the name of that organization is carried on the fuselage of the craft. The plane belongs to the flier.

She arrived here exactly two weeks after she left for the west.

HALLINGER, Texas, June 12 (UP)—Three road projects in Runnels county are making good progress and cash will be completed about the same time in the early fall.

On this same route eight concrete bridges are being built across creeks.

A large crew is working on Highway No. 4 from Ballinger to the Concho county line, laying the base for asphalt surfacing. Their work will be completed about September 1.

With these three jobs complete, there will remain two more contracts to be let in this county before the highway program is complete. A large concrete bridge will be constructed across Elm Creek at the east edge of the city on Highway 23 and a contract will be let for surfacing Highway 23 with asphalt. The bridge yet to be constructed will be 600 feet long and will take care of 30 feet of flood waters.

VARIOUS QUESTIONS REGARDING ELECTION ANSWERED AT PARLEY

Harmony Reigns As Angles of Proposed Construction Program Are Explained By Smitham, Others

The proposed $200,000 bond issue upon which citizens of Big Spring will vote June 16 to decide whether a new city hall, fire station, jail and auditorium will be constructed, was aired Thursday night at a mass meeting held at the Howard county courthouse.

Although a comparatively small crowd attended the session, there was a great amount of discussion and explanations made by City Manager V. R. Smitham, and E. A. Kelly, chairman.

Questions were asked by those in the meeting and answered by Smitham. There was no adverse argument at the meeting, and it was harmonious in every detail.

In taking up the financial side of the bond issue, Smitham, with the use of a blackboard upon which were placed figures for the audience to see, told the assembly that, everything being equal, the bond issue could be passed without raising either the tax rate or the property valuation. He added that in 1936 it would be possible to vote a $500,000 bond issue.

He figures showed that in 1932 the requirements for the present outstanding indebtedness would amount to $80,719.21. In 1933 the requirements for the present debt would be $73,133.40, which, combined with the requirements for the proposed $200,000 bond issue, would total $90,082.40.

Each year the figures on both the present indebtedness and the proposed bond indebtedness showed a marked decrease.

In 1936, according to the figures, the requirements for the present indebtedness would be only $50,490, which, combined with a requirement of $125 for the $200,000 bond issue, would total $52,065.

Surplus Exists
"This," explained Smitham, "would enable Big Spring to pass a $500,000 bond issue without increasing either the tax rate or the valuations."

A surplus of $27,206.43 would exist after the interest in sinking fund requirements are met, and the 1936 budget handled. The amount needed for interest and sinking fund would be $80,719.21, with the budget requirements amounting to $162,105.02.

The general fund cash on hand amounts to $18,889.76, which, combined with the estimated revenues of $251,040, would amount to $270,929.76, the total available funds. The total requirements amounted to $242,824.33, leaving a surplus of $27,206.43.

The estimates, according to Mr. Smitham, were based on 1930 valuations, amounting to $7,300,000, which does not include several large valuations.

"I do not mean to say that this bond issue won't cost anything," Mr. Smitham said, "I do say, however, that if we pass this bond issue of $200,000, and vote no more bonds it will not increase the tax rate or taxable values. It will cost something ultimately, if after two years or so additional bonds are voted. However, it will raise neither the valuation nor the tax rate unless additional bonds are approved by the voters."

Money Given To Flood Sufferers
FORT WORTH, June 12 (UP)—Aid for the flood-stricken sufferers of Briscoe and Hall counties was being received here today. The first money, received $11 was accompanied by a note saying the company was for its services in Briscoe and Hall counties—farmers.

Sufficient reports were expected to be on hand during the day to determine the extent of the suffering resulting from the ten-inch rains which fell Tuesday night in three hours in the vicinity of Turley and Quitque.

Reports so far received indicate 500 families are destitute, and that 66,000 acres of row crops were ruined. J. Claude, Wells, Memphis member of the Hill county Red Cross chapter, said several families lost everything—clothes, household goods, farm equipment, livestock and feed.

Younger Generation, Blamed For Almost Everything Since the War Is Being Rushed By Politicians

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 12. (UP)—The much berated younger generation, blamed for almost everything since the world war except prohibition, is being "rushed" in the collegiate sense, by the two big political parties.

Republicans took the lead with their national conference of young Republicans which opened here today. Democratic speakers and Republicans too, have made a number of appeals recently to young voters, the latest being Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee at Knoxville, Tenn., last night.

The reason for this solicitude over the young folks is that by November, 1932, about 8,000,000 will be eligible to cast their first votes for president. With a close race anticipated by managers in both parties, both Republicans and Democrats are out after the new voters.

About 300 delegates were signed up for the Republican conference to hear speeches by Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister and hostess of Vice-President Charles Curtis, Senator Simpson D. Pess, chairman of the Republican national committee, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and other party worthies.

These speakers were selected especially to pound in the old reliable party doctrines and to vaccinate the young Republicans against the infection of un-Republican tenets which are abroad in the land.

One son of a J. P. Morgan partner is echoing Senator Borah's complaint over the division of wealth in this country. A young oratory prize winner here, interviewed after an oration about Henry Clay's part in the Missouri compromise, broke the rules by blurted right out that he wasn't going into public life when he grew up "because politicians don't make enough money, and I don't care for rattle rousing anyway."

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, in arguing the necessity of activity among the younger generation, recently spoke of a tendency to stray from Republican principles, under the influence of higher education. "It is a matter of common information and deep concern that many of our universities and colleges are literally saturated with radicalism," he said. "Moreover, text books, class room lectures and private conversations of a great part of our teaching force are antagonistic to traditional policies of the Republican party."

Mrs. Ross appeared to support the diagnosis of Lucas but regarded it in a more hopeful light. "Among the young people, there is a manifestation of interest in liberal government that amounts almost to a movement—especially among young college people," this former Democratic governor of Wyoming said in her speech at Knoxville.

Lamont Declares In Speech No Solution For Over-Production

WASHINGTON, June 12 (UP)—Secretary of Commerce Lamont declared today there is no "easy solution" of present over-production, and that this problem must be met by industry itself.

"Any control of industrial conditions must come from industry itself," Lamont said in addressing the United States Timber Conservation Board. The board, appointed by President Hoover, is engaged in considering the manifold problems of the lumber, wood pulp and related industries.

Wilson Compton, secretary and manager of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, declared that conditions in the timber and lumber industry are "perilous, in fact ominous." He mentioned particularly the "potential threat" of Soviet Russia's "dumping policy."

Compton outlined a five point program to protect the American lumber investment: 1. Dependable control of lumber production by agreements, which he said might involve modification of the anti-trust laws; 2. Reduction of taxes on growing timber; 3. Research; 4. Diversification, and 5. Removal of unfair foreign competition such as caused by the Russian dumping policy.

DULL HEADACHE, BILIOUS FEELING

Dizzy and Nauseated in The Morning—Relieved After Taking Black-Draught.

"Two years ago, I began to suffer with a dull, sick headache," writes Mrs. John Dodd, of 719 Bream Street, Charleston, W. Va. "I was bilious and would get up in the morning feeling dizzy and nauseated."

"My color was pale and my complexion was bad. I felt that all my trouble was caused from constipation. "I told a friend how bad I felt, and she told me to try Theford's Black-Draught. I began taking it on her recommendation. I soon found it was helping me very much. I began to feel like I had more energy. It relieved constipation, and after that I had no more trouble. When I need a medicine for constipation, I take Black-Draught."

"I found that Black-Draught was good for biliousness and constipation," writes Mrs. E. F. Caughy, of 706 S. Elm Street, Sherman, Texas. "It is as good a home remedy as one can find. I prefer it because it is a vegetable medicine which helps to rid the system of poison and keep the body in good order."

The average production of 2-143 dairy cows on test in Tennessee Improvement associations in April was 544 pounds of milk.

More than $10,000,000 worth of livestock was handled through the stockyards at Montgomery, Ala., during 1930.

In parts of the Philippine Islands, cotton is grown as a second crop, being planted in the dry season after rice has been harvested.

Grape vines planted near San Diego, Cal., 34 years ago still are producing, although they are not irrigated.

A survey made by the University of Idaho indicated 77.8 per cent of the farms in the state used electricity for work.

KEEP REPAIR COSTS DOWN with 997's friction-fighting molecules

The best "buy" in motor oils is the oil that's most stable.—That's why, to insure stability, Humble uses only 2% of the crude to make 997 Motor Oil—the part that contains friction-fighting molecules only. Strong and elastic, these friction-fighting molecules give 997 long-life, lasting quality.

Then we refine, drill and realign those molecules until they attain a new high in boiling points—997° Fahrenheit. This guarantees a protection heretofore unattainable against heat and loss, and assures lower oil consumption.

So if you want to keep down repair costs, there's not the slightest doubt that 997 is your number. Its economy will be an eye-opener to you. See the nearest Humble dealer today.

Above all else you want one thing in a motor oil

Canada Retailers
THE since-celebrated Canadian reciprocitiy agreement has now become a retaliatory tariff fence, erected by Canada against many commodities from the United States
—200 in number.

Coal, steel, automobiles, oranges
and corn are among the items
which Canada imports from the United States and on which the Dominion has recently hiked tariff rates.

Hard coal has been hit with a tariff duty of 40 cents a ton. Canada last year imported $28,000,000 worth of anthracite from the United States. Oranges are subjected to a 25-cent tariff on each cubic foot of capacity of the container. Magazines are taxed fifteen cents per pound. All in all, Premier Bennett estimates the new increased duties will bring in an additional $78,175,000
in revenue.

This blow aimed at American products, raw and manufactured, is a natural development of the tariff policy as applied under the Hawley-Smoot bill. It is in the nature of a retaliation for prohibitive rates placed against the products of other countries by the United States government. Should other foreign countries follow the lead of Canada,
it would not be long until America's foreign market was completely closed to her.

What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Uncle Sam puts the screws on imports, and it is but natural that our export business should bear part of the brunt up to the present the American
consumer has borne the burden,
now the beneficiaries of the tariff will share some of that burden.

Control for the Oil Flood
Kansas City Times
A RECENT statement by Secretary Willbur, as chairman of the federal oil conservation board,
that there is "no relief in sight for the oil industry of the Midconti-ental region until the new East-Texas
field is brought under the normal
proration program now existing in the other fields of the country," apparently gives immediate and thorough consideration by all petroleum interests. Not only the producing lessees, but the land-owning lessors may find it to their mutual advantage to give heed to certain suggestions emanating from last week's meeting of the Petro-lum Institute at Dallas.

For several months the East Texas field has been looked upon as the unruly child of the oil industry. Proration rulings by the Texas railroad commission, which has regulatory powers similar to a states utilities board, to restrict drilling operations have met with strong protests. Injunctions and other lawsuits have made the restrictions ineffective and in consequence overproduction has been so great that oil prices generally are being depressed down past the danger point.

Bearing this in mind, both the oil producers and the lessors of the Southwest might do well to examine some such plan, as that urged last week by Robert R. Penn of Dallas, before the Petroleum Institute, for the formation of an independent corporation to take over all operations in the East Texas
field.

With a daily production already approaching 375,000 barrels, this vast field is growing steadily. Almost every twenty-four hours sees
the completion of several wells,
each increasing the production from 10,000 to 20,000 barrels. It is pointed out, moreover, that the field in the future may include 170,000 productive acres, with a maximum average production of 12,500 barrels to the acre. Mr. Penn believes final production totals even may aggregate from 1 billion to 2 billion barrels of oil from the East Texas field.

If these are staggering figures for the layman, what must they be for the oil men? With this particular field still less than eight months old, its production up to the present time has depressed crude oil prices 40 cents a barrel. And that, the Petroleum Institute was told,

now means a loss of $200,000 a day on the average production in the United States.

There seems to be little question
while the discovery of the vast oil pools in East Texas was a stroke
to that section, which was stricken
by the drought last year, all material advantages have been offset by losses to the oil industry in general. Even proration designed to prevent flooding of the market with newly produced oil, though it be rigorously carried out, has not ended extravagant methods and unnecessary drilling.

Co-operative measures set up by a new corporation of independent producers and landowners might bring this demoralizing situation under control. Sixty million dollars is one estimate of the amount that could be saved immediately in drilling costs.

Objections to such a plan as Mr.
Penn outlines obviously may come from owners of small tracts of land in the new field who are dependent upon royalties from producing wells. They continually protest against proration and argue that they are entitled to royalties
that would enable them to live thru an era that otherwise might bring to them extreme depression.

But, in the vernacular, the proposed plan is broader than it is long. If one oil well at fair prices will produce as much in royalties
as would two wells at poor prices, it would seem that the dictates of common sense would approve of any plan to eliminate unnecessary
drilling costs.

The problem in the larger sense
does not concern East Texas alone, but the whole oil industry, which is in distress.

Oil men generally seem to be baffled to find the proper way out of the slough of despond in which they are mired. The calling of a special meeting in Dallas Monday
of 200 independent Texas operators indicates an appreciation of the need for prompt action to meet the emergency.

HOW'S your HEALTH
Contact Glasses

In recent years the technology of creating and using lenses to correct defects of the eye has been carried to a remarkable degree of perfection.

Going still further, it is now proposed to use what are called contact glasses to correct certain types of visual defects.

Contact glasses are worn not as the common glass of today is worn on the bridge of the nose, and at some distance from the eye, but in contact with the eye ball, the rims
of the glasses being between the eye ball proper and the eyelids.

The suggestion for this form of eye glass appears to have been made as long ago as 1827.

Technical difficulties in the production of such glasses made it difficult to test out the practicability of this suggestion.

Now, however, technical problems have been overcome and contact glasses are a practical reality.

Contact glasses are shaped to conform in general with the shape of the outer portion of the eye ball.
There is a central or corneal portion which bulges forward in very slight degrees, dependent upon the type and degree of visual correction required.

The glass in itself does not come
in direct contact with the eye ball.
Between it and the eye ball there is placed a body of fluid similar in composition to tears.

It is only at the rim of the glass
that there is any direct contact with the eye ball.

It is argued that the advantages of contact glasses over present
glasses are their relative invisibility, their special effectiveness in restoring the full vision and the full range of movement to the nerve-sighted, and also their correction of irregular astigmatism, which can be helped only to a slight extent by ordinary glasses.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: When her cousin
Francis has to go to a distant sanatorium, Nora Lake rejects Dr. More's appeal that she remain with her Aunt Emily to help care for the household and Francis's two children, abandoned by their father. She is happy in her engagement to Jonathan Thayer, brother of her late husband, the artist, Nicholas, and
years for the Thayer mansion,
also the home of John's step-sister, Damon. Nora's father, Julian, arrives from Italy and borrows money from Jon to exhibit his paintings. Because she knows her father's worthlessness as an artist, she is dismayed upon visiting the art gallery to see, displayed as his, paintings far beyond his ability. Jon does not understand why she asks him to take her away.

Chapter 27
BY A DEAD HAND
THE train went on grinding over the tracks, filling Nora with its dull vibration.

If she could only think of something besides her father's pictures,
think that she and Jon were going to be married, going to go far away, forgetting the past, beginning anew, climbing the Alps,
she stopped, her lips between her teeth when she remembered that picture of the flowery meadows
and ice-green glacier water.

Julian had never painted like that.
But those were her father's pictures. That was his exhibition;
those people crowding around him
wanted to share the splendor of his recent achievement.

But who had painted those pictures? She sat up straight, clench-ing her hands together. Where had her father gotten those pictures that were signed so glibly with his name?

Terrible to think like this. Terrible if it were not true. But where had her father gotten those pictures? She snatched back and closed her eyes. In a moment she was some, sweet—an ideal Gayer
niece that should remove memories
of her misceating in "The Man Who Came Back."

Una Merkel is in it, and a comparatively new youngster, John Ar-ledge, who makes a hit as Janet's youthful sweetheart.

By the way, if you're not an observer of the new endings they're using on pictures nowadays you're missing some quiet fun. "Daddy Long Legs" offers a smile even after the final fade-out, if you're attentive, and "The Front Page," don't finish until that frame of film bearing "The End" is off the screen.

The sound track tells what happens to the train taking Hildy
Johnson and her sweetheart away from the newspaper game forever.

PERNICIOUS FUNNING
Credit for the week's worst goes to Earle Rodney, incurable pun-ster on the Bennett writing staff.

"We'll move the heroine to Denver," suggested someone in story conference. And Rodney couldn't help this:

"Now you're advancing to something!"

And someone said Marjorie Beebe to insist that her maid call her "Miss Beebe" instead of "Miss Marge."

"Don't," warned Eddie Cline, the director, "Bee-bees are small shots,
you know."

A Variety of Main Dishes For Every Day Dinners

By JOHNSON H. GIBSON

BUSY housewife is constantly on the look-out for suggestions regarding practical main dishes. Planning the remainder of the dinner is not a very serious problem, once you have decided upon the principal course. And in most homes this main dish usually is meat, or some nourishing meat substitute—such as beans, fish, eggs or cheese.

Today I am giving you recipes for soups, roasts, casseroles and braised dishes which are both practical and economical. These, however, should be chosen for serving on those days when one expects to remain at home, since they require long, slow cooking.

However, I also am including several recipes for excellent casseroles that are quickly prepared. And you will find all the suggestions listed below most helpful in planning seasonable dishes for the every-day dinner.

- Smothered Veal Chops: 1/2 lb. veal chops; 1 cup cream of tomato soup; 1/2 cup water; 1/2 cup cracker crumbs; 1 egg; 1 large onion; salt and pepper to taste. Fry chops in butter until browned. Add onion and fry until tender. Add soup and water. Simmer 1 hour. Add cracker crumbs and egg. Bake 30 minutes.
- Surprise Potato Balls: 1/2 lb. small round potatoes; 1/2 cup water; 1/2 cup cracker crumbs; 1 egg; 1 large onion; salt and pepper to taste. Fry potatoes until tender. Mash and add water, cracker crumbs and egg. Bake 30 minutes.
- Add Tomato Ketchup to the sauce and make into small thin cakes. Fry slowly until golden brown. Add the egg and flour to potatoes and blend thoroughly. Make into thin cakes slightly larger than the sausage cakes. Place a meat cake between two potato cakes and press firmly together. Fry until both sides are browned.
- Salmon and Pickle Loaf: 1-1/2 lb. salmon; 1 cup bread crumbs; 1/2 cup milk; 1 egg; 1 teaspoon butter; 1 teaspoon salt.

Two Local Women Recall Meeting Miss Earhart

Mrs. J. B. Young and Mrs. V. Van Gleason are probably the only women in Big Spring who have had a face-to-face talk with Amelia Earhart—and that didn't happen here. It happened in Toyah, back in September, 1928. The famous aviatrix had trouble with her plane and made a forced landing, beside the Ford Motor plant there. Toyah had no airport. The Ford mechanic was not willing to risk his knowledge of plane machinery to extent of repairing the plane, so Miss Earhart stayed in Toyah and in Pecos about three days. Finally the plane was rolled down to Pecos and mended there.

She was flying a plane that had belonged to Lady Heath. The most interesting thing about it was the number of metal plates, mostly silver, on the plane inscribed with the good wishes of friends. Many of these were addressed to Lady Heath and many to Miss Earhart. Among them was one addressed to Miss Earhart from Lady Heath.

All the women in Toyah liked Miss Earhart because she was so gracious and unaffected.

Niece of Mrs. Van Gleason Married To Pecos Doctor

Miss Elizabeth Brown, niece of Dr. and Mrs. Felix C. Miller, of El Paso, was united in marriage Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the lovely Miller home on Cumberland Circle, in El Paso, to Dr. Jim Hilliard Camp, of Pecos.

Dr. Miller is a brother of Mrs. V. Van Gleason, of Big Spring, and surgeon of the T. and P. railroad, and has many friends in Big Spring. His father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Jim Camp, of Pecos, were guests.

The bride had been the honor guest at many social affairs during the past weeks. A reception at the Miller home followed the ceremony. The young couple left immediately for a honeymoon trip to Rochester, Minn., Chicago and other points east. On their return they will make their home in Pecos where Dr. Camp is associated with his father.

Mrs. P. G. Stokes and her daughter, Mrs. Sargent, are now making their home in Abilene, on South Eleventh Street, according to report received by friends.

Complex Mystery of Slaying of Beautiful Starr Faithfull Has Scotland Yard Experts Worried

NEW YORK, June 12 (UP)—Aid of Scotland Yard, London's chief detective organization, was sought today in an effort to unravel one of the most complex mysteries this city has followed in years—the death of 25-year-old Starr Faithfull. Cultured, beautiful and with a host of friends among the best people of New York and Boston, this daughter of a well-to-do family living in an aristocratic corner of Greenwich Village has left in the wake of the tragedy a life record both fascinating and sordid, and one which presents a horde of theories confusing to investigators. A diary, kept since the young woman's school days, appeared likely to yield fresh clues in the strange case which has grown out of the discovery of Miss Faithfull's body on the shore of Long Beach.

Three days of investigation have virtually eliminated the theory that the attractive, party-loving foster daughter of Stanley Faithfull, wealthy chemical manufacturer, might have committed suicide. District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards has gathered enough evidence to convince him Starr was murdered and her body cast into the sea.

Tomorrow, when he will have his case ready for the grand jury, the Nassau county prosecutor expects to obtain murder indictments.

Most startling, perhaps, of developments within the last 24 hours was a telltale hospital record card, which portrayed Miss Faithfull as scarcely and demure and reserved home girl her stepfather described to the police. The record revealed that a little more than a year ago she was taken to Bellevue Hospital as an alcoholic patient after being found in a hotel room with a man who described himself to the ambulance surgeon as her husband. She was suffering from bruises and lacerations, but neither her parents, who took her home the next day, nor the police have been able to learn the name of her companion that night.

Given Liquor The young woman's stepfather admitted he had given Starr liquor frequently, hoping it would prevent her from drinking bootleg whiskey in speakeasies, he said. "My girls have taken drinks," he said, "but I myself being a chemist, have warned them against drinking bootleg liquor. Like most adults today, Starr took an occasional drink and I thought by filling her flask for her myself, she would not have to drink doubtful liquor."

In hope of locating recent drinking companions of the girl, authorities are seeking aid of Scotland Yard. On May 29 Miss Faithfull reportedly was taken from the liner Franconia, just after it had left its pier, in an intoxicated condition and escorted to shore in a tug. Francis Peabody Hamlin, cruise director for the Cunard line and scion of a prominent Boston family, was said by Edwards to have introduced her to a man

Higher Crude Prices Due On West Coast

HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

You've heard a lot; buy Texas-made products. And buy West Texas products.

You've heard a lot of people talk about how Big Spring people should patronize home industries. Yes. They complain of the swiftness with which money goes straight to Wall street, and that's what's the matter with the country.

But, when the average man buys something how often does he make sure he is buying a local product, or if that is not available, a West Texas or Texas product?

The basic appeal of any manufacturer to the consumer is the merit of his product. If the merit of a home product is at least equal to that of the same type made elsewhere, it deserves support of local people.

Big Spring's chief industries right now are oil and railroading. Move specifically and more directly, why does the city benefit from the refining branch of the oil industry.

Welfare of the railroad and the refineries here is closely interwoven. Simply because the refineries must ship its products.

Consider the local refineries. They employ men who live here and spend their money with Big Spring merchants. Families who live in the oil field south of town, many of them, would lose their present means of livelihood if the daily runs of crude to the local refineries were discontinued.

Approximately one-third of the daily allowed output of the Howard-Glascock county field is run to the local refineries.

It takes men to operate the wells and the pipelines.

If the refineries market for their products become broader the pay-roll grows. If the payrolls grow more money is turned into circulation in the city. If the market shrinks the payroll dwindles; men who continue to work make less, and others necessarily are dismissed.

If the output of the refineries dwindles the Texas & Pacific Railway company loses tonnage. The refining plants manufacture 1,200 to 1,500 cars of products monthly that are shipped from Big Spring over the T. & P.

Knock that rubbish off the monthly outgoing volume of freight and you make it necessary for the railway company to see less men in its shops on its trains, in its offices, etc.

Think it over.

Charged With Murder

Bodies of Two Mexican Boys Enroute Home

Officials Meet Train At San Antonio; Consul Makes Report

SAN ANTONIO, June 11 (AP)—A train bearing the bodies of Emilio Cortez Rubio, cousin of Mexico's president, and Manuel Garcia Gomez, both Mexican pupils in American colleges who were killed by Ardmore, Okla., officers Monday while enroute home, passed through here today enroute to the Mexican border.

Representatives of the Mexican government greeted the train.

In the meantime Mexican Consul Valdez reported to the Mexican embassy at Washington that the young men were shot "without warning" by an Oklahoma deputy sheriff "bearing for his life." Valdez sent a detailed copy of the report to Mexico City.

ARDMORE, Okla., June 10 (AP)—The crime situation in America, particularly in Oklahoma, was blamed today for the slaying of two Mexican students by deputy sheriffs in a funeral sermon by Father E. A. Monnett, pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Cathedral of Oklahoma City.

Father Monnett described the slaying of Emilio Cortez Rubio and Manuel Garcia Gomez, members of prominent Mexican families, but said there might have been extenuating circumstances that bars harsh judgment.

"A grave mistake has been made—a sad mistake with possible consequences."

"After all, these young men were not criminals. Their parents paid a great compliment to American schools when they sent their boys here for an education," Father Monnett said.

"The boys were on their way home as most American boys would like to travel on the highway."

"I am almost a native of Oklahoma, having lived here 37 years, and I say Oklahoma has a rotten reputation for its highways and hijackers."

"These boys in yonder caskets told their professors, 'we will be all right if we can only get through Oklahoma.'"

"They dreaded Oklahoma highways and the boys prepared to defend themselves. With so many officers being shot down, it was no wonder these officers should be in fear of those on the highway at night."

"We know that justice will be done for Governor Murray has said so. Regardless of what other things have been said of the governor we know that when he promises to do a thing, he will do it."

"But it fills our hearts with sorrow as we send those boys, sent by their mothers to our schools back home in caskets."

ARDMORE, Okla., June 11 (AP)—With testimony of eight witnesses on record, the state yesterday closed testimony in the hearing against two deputy sheriffs charged with murder in the slaying of two prominent Mexican students here.

The climax in the state's case in the preliminary hearing came shortly before 2:30 p. m. when the state rested.

Testimony of Theodore Corgerson, a paint dealer, called as a surprise witness, created a sensation when he pointed out Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crosby as the man who shot Manuel Garcia Gomez.

Previously Deputy Sheriff Guss had contended he was the one who fired the fatal shots into the bodies of both Gomez and Emilio Cortez Rubio.

"I got that old boy," Corgerson quoted Crosby as telling him when the paint and paper dealer, arrived at the place where the youths were shot.

Mother of Three Admits Killing Lynn County Farmer; Self-Defense Is Pleaded In Signed Confession

Amelia Earhart Putnam Lands Airship Here

TAHOKA, June 11 (AP)—Mrs. Ola Redman, 32, mother of three children, late yesterday confessed to slaying Fred Chase, 33, farmer of the Gordon community, who was found dead in his automobile on a lonely road a mile from his home Tuesday afternoon, County Attorney G. H. Nelson announced.

A formal charge of murder will be filed against her Thursday morning, Nelson said.

Arrested at Home

Arrested at the home of her mother, Mrs. Luis Lloyd, 13 miles southwest of Ford, Mrs. Redman stoutly denied any connection with the shooting of Chase until late Wednesday, the county attorney said. A signed confession was obtained at 5 p. m. after an all day grilling, according to Nelson.

The statement said she shot Chase in self defense after he had made an attempt to gain possession of one of two pistols in the automobile, according to the officer.

The slain man threatened her life on a number of previous occasions, she said in her confession.

Mrs. Redman was said to, have told Nelson that she and Chase had been going together for more than three years, although neither of them was divorced.

Life Was Threatened

Chase frequently threatened to kill her if she did not stop seeing her husband, Glen W. Redman, Pampa painting contractor, to whom she had been married for 13 years. Mrs. Redman reported to have said in her confession. She said she and her husband two months ago in Pampa, she said.

"Chase and I shared a great deal while we were together in my mother's home," Mrs. Redman told Nelson. "When we got within a short distance of the house he stopped the car and got out a gun and told me he was going to kill me if I got out of the car."

"I told him that I was going back to my husband if I could."

"Chase reached for the gun which was in a door pocket on my side of the car."

"I begged him not to kill me."

"During the scuffle I got hold of a .380 calibre pistol which was on the seat beside Chase."

"I shot him in the head," she said in her statement.

The woman said she and her husband had owned a residence in Lubbock at one time. The building was sold and she was given $1,000 from the sale, she told officers.

Bought Car with Money

The $200 was given to Chase and he used the money to buy the automobile in which he was slain, the confession related.

"I repeatedly asked Chase for the money, but he refused to give it to me."

Chase's body was found in the automobile Tuesday afternoon, 16 hours after he was killed by a farmer, who was plowing in a nearby field. The farmer said he noticed the automobile parked there when he went to work Tuesday but did not investigate until several hours later, thinking the machine belonged to some cotton choppers who were working in another field.

Mrs. Redman is being held in the Lynn county jail.

Death Held No Fear For Noted Anglo Rancher

SAN ANGELO, June 11.—Robert Masie did not fear to die. It was not an order to him. It was just something that had to happen, like drought that must be gone through with.

Just before a recent operation in Dallas he sat with his friends and relatives who were with him before he went on the operating table. The talk was light chatter and the laughs were hearty. He had seen droughts in the west changed to green pastures and he had watched hard times turned into booming prosperity. He was the eternal optimist.

A few hours after the operation, a nurse whom he had treated and who was in charge of the efforts to save his life whispered to him and said, "You are the dearest man in the world." His return was peculiar and was accompanied by a smile.

"Oh, Johnny."

Mr. Masie, famous rancher who amassed a fortune estimated at $1,000,000 as a leader in the wool industry, died Wednesday in Dallas.

Daughter Sues Mother After Motor Mishap

ABILENE, June 11.—Daughter sued mother here yesterday, for $50,000, alleging negligence.

The plaintiff is Miss Marion M. Leeper, New York City; the defendant, Mrs. Maud M. Leeper, Owensboro, Ky. Both are here visiting Mrs. Leeper's sister, Mrs. Agnes Turner, operating the Big Elm tourist camp on highway 1.

In her petition, filed in 104th court by C. L. Hailey, Miss Leeper recited that she was badly injured when a large car driven by her mother turned over on highway 77, near Denison. The accident occurred May 29 while the two women were en route here from Kentucky to visit Mrs. Turner. The petition recited that the car was in bad mechanical condition, including brakes, and became unmanageable in a rainstorm; and she contended it was made that Mrs. Leeper was negligent in that she knew of this condition.

Miss Leeper has been confined to bed since the accident. Her mother is owner of the Leeper Oil Company of Owensboro.

Farm Census Bill Praised

STATUTE PROVIDES FOR CONTINUOUS CENSUS OF ACREAGE

AUSTIN, June 11 (INS)—Approval by Governor Ross Sterling of the Farm Census Bill today was seen by J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, as a distinct forward step, not only for Texas agriculture but for Texas industry.

The commissioner, joined by officials of the federal department of agriculture, M. M. College and the bureau of business research of the University of Texas, had taken an active interest in the measure during the legislative session. The bill provided for an annual and continuing census of farm acreages, production and livestock, to be administered cooperatively by the state and federal departments of agriculture, and the census to be taken by the county tax assessors.

McDonald pointed out that industrial development of Texas communities often has been handicapped by lack of adequate agricultural statistics. Instances cited were when railroads wish to penetrate into a new territory, but desire to know how much business they may expect, and flour mills coming into a new community ask what the source of their raw material will be.

Farmers, he said, for the first time will have accurate statistics upon which to plan their coming year's crop. Hitherto only the federal farm census has been available and due to the fact that it is taken only once in every five years, it often is out-dated.

Carl H. Robinson, senior statistician for the federal department of agriculture's crop reporting service here, conferred today with McDonald regarding administration of the law. One of the benefits pointed out was the possibility of sending out agricultural education bulletins under a government frank, at a great savings in postage. The bill appropriated $5,000, which will supplement $40,000 appropriated for this work by the federal department of agriculture.

Eastern Turf Man Wants 2500 Turtles

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 11 (AP)—There is going to be a decided increase in interest over the United States this year in turtle racing.

This was indicated here when George Blanchard, animal dealer, received an order for 2,500 turtles from an eastern turf man.

Blanchard has a crew of a dozen men out in the brush gathering turtles, and he has a great pen full of them.

The turtles spend their day busily munching cactus in the pen.

Blanchard said he will lay out a race track, and run them soon just to pick out some of the best races.

Journal Says Legislation To Bring Hike

Austin meeting. AUSTIN, June 11 (AP)—Forty-five oil men held a downtown meeting here today and discussed possible ways of helping the oil situation.

The delegation then called on Governor Ross S. Sterling and asked him to call a special legislative session to enact remedial legislation. Today's action followed a meeting in Dallas several days ago by a group of operators, which voted to seek a special session.

The governor explained that a special session would be useless unless two-thirds of each house agreed to the bill planned, which is necessary to make any law immediately effective.

Immediately upon a straightening out of the East Texas middle, the Journal says, "Prices of refined products should be raised in proportion."

The statement follows:

The leaves of below-cost-of-production prices is working on East Texas producers and royalty owners and the chaotic situation now obtaining in that area, with resultant all effects on the oil industry everywhere, may be brought into some kind of order by the end of this month. Legislation designed to make production orders effective probably will be enacted at the special session of the Texas legislature and it is believed a two-thirds majority of the legislators will favor such a law, making it an emergency measure, effective immediately upon signature by the governor.

No compromise should be made in the figure of allowable production from East Texas. The present high production there resulted from willful violation of original production orders. Not only should this be considered in deciding upon an allowable under enforceable orders, but the quality of overproduction since the original order was issued should be deducted from quotas permitted under new regulations.

It is believed crude oil prices will be raised in California this week, following enactment there of adequate legislation bolstering conservation of the state's petroleum resources. It is reported the former policy of paying highest prices for highest gravities will take the place of the present schedule which provides the highest prices for the lowest gravities. A top figure of 85 cents a barrel is reported as contemplated new price. Such action on the part of California operators should give East Texas operators further food for thought.

Crude oil prices throughout the nation should be increased immediately upon a straightening out of the East Texas middle. Prices of refined products should be raised in proportion. No improvement can be had at present prices and the first step towards better conditions must of necessity be higher prices.

It takes a real optimist to see anything bright in the present situation, but there is a time when any change must be for the better. Such is the condition now and a slow but steady improvement can be expected from this time.

Estes Replies To Criticism Shafted At Him In Emergency Oil Meeting By Independents

DALLAS, June 10. (UP)—Carl Estes, Tyler editor and anti-protectionist leader, today replied to charges made Monday by Charles F. Moore and Ed A. Laneth, Fort Worth operators, that Estes was directly responsible for the present chaotic condition of the oil industry.

In Dallas enroute to Austin, Estes in a statement to United Press expressed amazement that he had not been blamed for the world wide depression and why Monday's mass meeting had not adopted resolutions condemning Dad Joiner for discovering the East Texas field.

"I hope those gentlemen who met here Monday to 'save the oil industry' and solve the problem of low price and overproduction of that commodity in emergency fashion went away satisfied with their meeting," said Estes. "I hope they went away with the feeling that something of constructive value had been accomplished.

Chides Them

"If directing shafts of personal abuse at the head of a country newspaper editor who has fought for the rights of the impoverished people of his section constitutes a solution of the oil problem in emergency style those who attacked me so savagely Monday should have truly made some real progress for I understand fully half of the oil salvation meeting was consumed in finding fault with Dan Moody, Tom Cranfill and the country editor.

"I wonder why they did not charge me with responsibility for the world wide depression, for the flood of foreign oil which is pouring into this country—yearly; why they did not take a rap at another nature for placing a veritable ocean of oil under those pine clad hills in East Texas; why a resolution to hang Dad Joiner for again discovering the East Texas oil field in the first place was not offered; why they did not place responsibility for the 'cracking of the Standard Oil Company's bull whip' in the form of penalty price cuts against Texas, at my door.

"There is always a reason for the action of people," Estes continued, "and in this case the naked truth underlying the verbal cyclone launched against me in Dallas Monday by these Fort Worth oil operators may be found in the files of most newspapers published in Texas during the past five months, which will show clearly that the program and oil production curtailment proposals which these gentlemen have sought to impose upon the people of East Texas have been defeated at every turn of the road, and the organization which I serve as secretary, the East Texas Lease, Royalty and Producers Association, has been responsible for these defeats.

Charges Bad Faith

Moore, Rosser and Landreth neglected to tell those attending the Dallas meeting that they accompanied me to the Travis county courthouse in Austin on April 23, stood up before Judge J. D. Moore and entered into a solemn agreement whereby we all agreed that hostilities in the proration war, which I had carried to the courts on behalf of the Association, would cease for a period of 60 days, during which time all participants would seek to bring about a stabilization program, and that I in turn would refrain from pressing the association's injunction suit against the railroad commission.

"These two gentlemen failed to tell the Dallas mass meeting and the people of Texas through the newspapers that within 72 hours the agreement was broken and that they were running around in Austin, molding legislative 'minnie balls' for their proration guns, while I was down in East Texas living up to my part of the agreement by writing editorials urging everyone to line up and give proration a fair trial during the truce period."

Demo Victory Seen By House

MANCHESTER, Mass., June 10. (AP)—Colonel Edward M. House at his home here today said "if the election were to be held next week the country would go overwhelmingly Democratic."

Keeping in close touch with political events this man who was President Wilson's trusted confidant, said indications point to a Democratic victory next year.

Mrs. M. R. Showalter, public health nurse, makes the following report concerning her work in the rural schools of Howard County:

Every parent in these schools has been notified about the child's physical condition. It then becomes his duty to see that his child is physically fit, but it is appalling to know just how many children go through life handicapped. Many times parents are despondent that their children's defects be corrected but are not financially situated to handle this responsibility; then again we have the indifferent parent, who knows that it should be done, but for no definite reason fails to have the needed correction taken care of.

This report is compiled from a report furnished each school inspector after the school inspection is made, and checked by the teachers and returned to the writer when school closes.

The schools reporting pupils with corrections this year are:

Vincent-Vollie Sorrels, tonsils removed; Maurine Tate, dental correction; Claude Hodnett, dental correction; Linnie Faye Tate, dental correction.

Highway-Gorman Wray, tonsils removed; Jaunita Wray, tonsils removed; J. B. Fryar, tonsils removed; Orby Lee News, dental correction; Benjamin Daugherty, dental correction; Ethel Mae McNew, eye-glasses.

McGinnis, dental correction; Dorothy McGinnis, dental correction; Estelle Harshill, was 25 pounds overweight, went on a diet and lost 23 pounds.

Fairview-James Sanderson, dental correction; Ermanag Wooten, eye-glasses.

Caulbe-Geneva Cahillan, dental correction; Arthur Vendall Franklin, dental correction.

Health reports were not returned from the following schools: Knott, South, Gayhill, Morgan and Kitch.

Incomplete reports came from Forkan and Centerpoint schools.

Reports from Vealmore, Hartwell, Morris, Moore, Elbow and Green Valley schools, as well as the schools listed that submitted full information, report many improved cases of weight, posture, cleaner teeth, etc. I apologize to any or all children, whose corrections are not given in this list and will appreciate hearing from any new corrections.

Report Of Health Corrections Made In Rural Schools

During the past three weeks I have tried to visit every one of you, finding a number of you working in the field. Your gardens are looking well, and show that you are making an effort to raise vegetables for your family use during the producing season, and to can for winter use.

Remember, you want sufficient vegetables to have one leafy, including all kinds of greens, cabbage, kraut, string beans, lettuce; one starchy vegetable, which must be potatoes, sweet potatoes, corn, or parsnips, and one succulent vegetable, in which class squash, okra, carrots, light green peas and beans, sweet pepper, and beets are placed.

Tomatoes are classed as a fruit, and should be served at least three times a week if citrus fruits are not available.

All garden girl who have water for irrigation have tomato plants. These plants will be pruned and staked, and the ground around the plants covered with straw or paper mulch to hold moisture.

Lancy Gregory, of the Elbow club has fruit on her vines. She has the most mature garden I have seen; she and her mother are working it together.

Ruth Lynn lives on the Charles Eberly farm at Lomax. She is raising a garden for the boys for Mrs. Eberly. This should be profitable, as there is also a family garden besides, leaving this one for Ruth to have her half to use for her canning and sell for profit. This is a good way to start a savings account to use while in college. Ruth won a scholarship for being the best all-around girl in Lomax school.

Thelma Holcombe and Bernice Whitelaw, of the Elbow Club are in Glascock county. They have irrigated gardens, which show they are getting good attention. Annie Lou Payne has some tomatoes near the house where they may be watered with waste water, but the remainder of her garden is in the field. Girls who have no means of irrigation are raising field peas, pinto beans, okra, squash and corn. They will raise a full garden of turnips, carrots, beets, radishes and lettuce.

Let me remind you again, girls, to keep an accurate record of the dates your gardens were planted, the hours spent working in them, and the amount of vegetables gathered.

Sincerely,
LOUCILE ALGWOOD

Some of you have misread out in the American Cheese recipe which ran in the Herald last week. It should be heated to 86 degrees.

Pilots Drop Paper At Ranch Enroute From San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, June 10.—It's a well-kept San Angelo Morning Times that reaches the George McIntyre place northwest of Sterling City each day.

It happens something like this. Charlie Reed, driver of the Brady truck line, reads his Morning Times while waiting for the other papers to be addressed and wrapped. Often this same copy is thrown off at the Municipal Airport where Aubrey Monsey, manager, is a subscriber.

When Mr. Monsey and his family complete reading the paper the pilot on the morning mail plane is the next to get it. E. C. Bove and Paul Vance are pilots on alternate days on the morning mail plane and when the weather is good the Times is read by the pilot between here and the McIntyre place on the Big Spring line northwest of Sterling City.

Mr. McIntyre has provided an emergency landing field on his place and when this field is crossed the ships zoom down slightly and the Times is dropped for Mr. McIntyre and his family.

H. Clay Read In Offer To Donate Site For City Hall

The Herald received the following article Wednesday from H. Clay Read, in which he offers to donate a site at Fourth and Douglas streets for a city hall and auditorium.

"I am for the 'bond issue' to build a city hall and an auditorium with a seating capacity of 2,000 here," said H. Clay Read, of Big Spring, Texas, "and a home for our 'city dads' exactly like the postoffice needs a splendid home for all of our citizens, neither of them placed out in the country where they would be classed as 'fural'.

But first our city dads should correct a few wrongs, as follows: over two years ago, the bond issue of equalization raised the value of some property from five to ten times the value accepted by the state and county; this wrong should be corrected.

To start 'the ball rolling' for an auditorium to seat 2,000 with a ball court space to seat another 1,000 I will 'donate' a space 100 by 130 ft. at the corner of Fourth and Douglas streets. This is near the Bankhead highway and would be a splendid location.

H. CLAY READ.

Class B Truckers Must Write At Once For Permit Blanks

ASTIN, June 10 (UP)—Mark Marshall, director of the motor division of the state railroad commission, today announced that Class B truck operators and contract carriers should at once write to the motor division for blanks upon which to make application for permits. Another 1,000 motor truck law signed last week by Governor Ross Sterling.

Holders of Class A permits have their certificates automatically extended and need not make application. Blanks are also being printed to be issued to those seeking special permits for hauling, wool, mohair and other things specially regulated by the act.

Upon making application Class B and contract carrier operators can continue operation until a hearing is held. Under the law Class B trucks will have their rates regulated. Contract carriers will have to observe a minimum rate not less than that of Class A trucks.

Revenue Car Loading Shows 7339 Increase

"Revenue freight car loading in the week ended May 23 amounted to 755,071 cars, an increase of 7,339 cars as compared with the preceding week, due to heavier loading of coal and ore," according to the current issue of The Railroad Age.

Club To Urge Change In Railway Plan To Transfer Employees To Ft. Worth; Kelley Talks For Bonds

The Business Men's Luncheon Club voted today to send a telegram to J. L. Lancaster, president of the Texas & Pacific Railway, informing him that Big Spring citizens "deeply regret" the proposed removal of a number of employees of the local offices to Fort Worth and East Texas.

Although the telegram will not be in form of a protest, it will convey the sentiment of the club and the club and citizenship is hopeful that the employees will be allowed to remain in Big Spring.

It was brought out at the club that approximately 31 families are affected by the change. It was declared that a number would be transferred, while the positions of the remainder would be abolished temporarily.

Dr. Wofford B. Hardy, president of the club, appointed Shene Phillips, Fox Stripling, and E. A. Kelley to word the telegram.

The approaching election, to be held June 16, when Big Spring citizens will decide whether bonds in the amount of $200,000 will be issued for the construction of a city hall, fire station, jail and auditorium, again was brought before the organization.

Mr. Kelley, in a forceful talk, urged the club to exert every effort possible to pass the bond issue.

In speaking, he drew a parallel between the business he is engaged in, and the city. As manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities Company, Mr. Kelley declared that the Texas & Pacific railway officials are able to go to the Imperial Valley and assure fruit raisers and shippers that their shipments of fruit over the line would be amply protected on account of the immense ice storage at Big Spring.

"Probably we can't have hauled the trains without storage facilities," Mr. Kelley declared, "but something might have happened to the line, and we would have had to go to the Imperial Valley and assure fruit raisers and shippers that their shipments of fruit over the line would be amply protected on account of the immense ice storage at Big Spring."

"If we are prepared for the things that are bound to come to Big Spring, we must start now. With the completion of this structure will come facilities for handling any large gathering.

"A city is nothing more than a business, and a successful business must always be looking to the future. The difference in the tax payments is negligible. If a man cannot pay his taxes now, he is more able to pay them next year, even though there is a few cents difference. As we build, we progress, collectively and individually."

"We must, however, set the basis in my private business it was brought to my attention, that to insure perfect service in the future, we must prepare for it. A city's welfare depends upon the same kind of procedure."

Two readings were given by Miss Emma Lou Freeman.

West Texas Only Unprorated Pools Suffer Price Cuts

Crude prices in the West deep high gravity, sweet oil field in Lovelock county, and in the Tobe-Tippett pool in Pecos county, suffered price cuts.

Loving county 40 gravity crude which slashed June 2 from a flat rate of $6 to 25¢ per barrel. Daily average production by 43 wells during the week ending May 27 was 2,546 barrels. The Paso-Tex is ranging all the oil to El Paso, where Rio Grande is taking 1,000 barrels a day, paying 15¢ per barrel for the movement. The oil flows by gravity to the Paso-Tex pump station in a basin, whence it is sent three miles north to a junction with the company's pipeline from the Hendrick field in Winkler county to El Paso. The Rio Grande has a 3-mile, 4-inch line to a loading rack at Arno on the Santa Fe railroad but has not been shipping oil in tank-cars to its El Paso refinery for some time.

Price reductions have followed the drilling of each of three producers by Eppenhauer Drilling Co. of San Angelo. It simply is a coincidence, of course, but A. R. Eppenhauer is wondering if such mistakes will continue, should he drill in another well. He is drilling two new wells in the California Co. but none of his own. Shortly after Eppenhauer No. 1 Allen came in during January, the price was cut from $1.08 to 75¢ barrel, the gravity basis being retained. Eppenhauer No. 1 Salisbury in mid-April extended the field three-quarters of a mile north and almost immediately the price was reduced to a flat 75¢. A week ago Eppenhauer No. 2 Allen was shut in production and the market quelled to 25¢. Winkler county crude was slashed to the same level. In fact no oil produced in West Texas is bringing over 25¢ a barrel now.

A half dozen producers in the Tobe-Tippett pool immediately northwest of the Yates field in Pecos county began receiving only 12¢ per barrel Saturday morning June 6. The price has been 22¢ since April 23 when it was reduced from 25¢. The oil brought 50¢ a barrel until March 10 when it was cut in half. $9.00 takes all the crude which ranges from 19 1/2 to 24-1/2 gravity. Daily average production from 54 wells averages from 1,500 to 1,800 barrels daily.

Only one test now is being drilled for the production which is obtained between 400 and 500 feet. It is No. 9-E Tippett by the Cardinal Oil Co. of San Angelo and was spudded Monday. Location is 331 feet west and 150 feet north of the center of section 40, block 194, GCM&SF Ry. Co. survey, 780 feet due west of Cardinal No. 2-R Tippett and about a quarter mile north of Cardinal producers on its "E" lease. There is one other test drilling in the area, Cuddy Production & Royalty Co.'s No. 2-Humble-Tippett, in section 40, but it is seeking deeper oil. Drilling early last week had passed 1,300 feet in anhydrite.

Less Meat Broadcast Brings Censorship By Treasury Secretary

WASHINGTON, June 10 (UP)—Secretary of Treasury Mellon has imposed a censorship on the public health service as an outgrowth of a recent radio broadcast in which it was suggested that less meat be eaten in the summer months.

The advice brought wholesale protests from livestock associations and meat packers.

Acting Secretary of Treasury Ogden L. Mills has instructed the public health service, which is under his office hereafter to be approved before being issued.

The controversy over the broadcast reached the censorship stage today after a veritable flood of protests to the White House, the agriculture department and the public health service.

Public health service officials are somewhat resentful over the whole affair, especially the order from Mills. They pointed out such advice has been issued for years by the health department.

It was explained at Mills' office that there is a regulation requiring all press releases by any treasury department agency must be submitted to the undersecretary and secretary of approval before being issued.

However, this regulation has not been enforced rigidly recently, and the public health service has not submitted its radio broadcasts or releases to the treasury department.

Firestone Earnings Show Large Growth

AKRON, Ohio, June 10.—Following a meeting of the board of directors of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Harvey S. Firestone, president, made the following announcement: "Net profit of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company and all subsidiaries, including Firestone Service Stores, for the six months ending April 30, 1931, after deducting depreciation, interest, federal taxes and Liberian development expenditures was $2,908,533.20. This compares with a profit of $1,541,034 for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1930.

With raw materials, finished products and commitments at market prices at the beginning of the fiscal year, and with subsequent purchases made at favorable prices no further inventory adjustments were considered necessary.

L. A. Kassel, of Ft. Worth, stopped over enroute to El Paso to visit his sister, Mrs. A. B. Gardner.

Tahoka Officers Expect Arrest In Farmer's Death

TAHOKA, June 10 (Sp)—The sheriff's department indicated here this afternoon that strong clues that were expected to lead to filing of charges late today in connection with the death of Fred Chase, 33-year-old farmer of the Gordon community, whose body was found yesterday in his automobile one mile from his home, with a bullet wound in his head.

Chase evidently had been dead since some time Monday night, J. K. Applewhite, Tahoka undertaker, who brought the body here, said. The bullet entered his head at the right ear and came out above and to the left of his left ear.

Officers were summoned by a farmer, named Gollehan, who had spent the day plowing in a field near the automobile. Gollehan said he noticed the automobile, a light sedan, parked near his fence early yesterday morning when he went to work. Thinking the machine belonged to some cotton chopper who was working in an adjacent field, he did not investigate until late yesterday afternoon when his curiosity was aroused because no person came near the automobile.

Chase was found lying on the floor of the machine, between the front seat and dash board, the farmer told officers.

The man probably was wounded while the automobile was moving, officers believed. An investigation revealed that the machine left the road about 50 yards above the fence post upon which the front bumper was resting.

A 38 caliber automatic was found on the floor beside Chase's body. Another gun, a .32 automatic, was found in one of the door pockets.

Powder burns were found on the right side of Chase's head, leading officers to believe that the shot was fired at close range.

Officers were working on the theory that Chase was the victim of foul play.

Funeral services for Chase were to be held at Southland Wednesday afternoon.

The main man was the son of A. N. Chase, prominent farmer of the Gordon community.

Use More Cotton
THE tireless statistician who remarked that if the men of Indianapolis were to wear only half an inch to the length of their trousers it would reduce the price
of cotton up several cents a pound was exaggerating, of course, but there was a kernel of truth in his extravagant figure of speech.

If every American family would spend an extra $5 for cotton garments or cotton clothes it would have an immediate effect on the price of cotton. Merchants would report an increased demand for cotton goods; jobbers and wholesalers would notify the mills of a run on cotton, and the mills would increase their shipments from the dealers in raw materials. It is true such a rise in price would not do the cotton farmer any immediate good, and might induce him to increase his acreage planted to cotton, but the idea serves to show just what could be done.

There is little market for whole-
bone any more because women quit wearing corsets and various substitutes for wholebone were created.
The cotton business has undoubtedly suffered because the world and his wife have been wearing silks
and synthetic goods of various kinds. The little silk worms and the machines which spin the silky filaments that are woven into imitation silks have been hurting the cotton farmer. But mostly the cotton farmer has been hurting himself.
He has been raising more cotton than the world would absorb, and he has been concentrating on cotton to the exclusion of practically everything else.

If all get back to the old familiar slogan, balanced agriculture.
Diversification has been worth thousands as a battle cry. But it still holds a world of meaning.
We need to diversify in the goods
we wear, as well as in the crops
we produce.

The Cop Speaks Up
THE Patrolmen's Benevolent association of New York City, has passed a resolution urging motion picture producers not to make cotton world films which glorify the lives of gangsters, gunmen and racketeers.

A great deal of protest against gangster movies is not very well founded. Here, however, is a kick with which one can sympathize. After all, it must be rather tough to be a policeman and to find that the gunman is frequently portrayed as a super-clever, brave and dashing chap who enlists the public sympathies even if he is a public enemy.
The patrolman gets less than his due in the fight on the underworld.
He risks his life, and not infrequently
he loses it. If he arrests a gangster he usually falls to get credit for it, and it often happens that cotton higher up enables the gangster to get out free, anyhow. Is it any wonder that the patrolman is tired of seeing the gangster glorified?

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Prophecies That Failed
Houston Post Dispatch
IT IS INTERESTING to take account at times of how prophecies that seem perfectly logical at the time they are uttered go unfulfilled.
Not so long ago, we were being told, you will remember, that prophecies of radio would greatly increase the demand for pianos and other musical instruments. Quite the contrary has occurred. The radio has stimulated interest in music and encouraged more young people to learn to play musical instruments.

It was also prophesied that the radio would lessen reading on the part of the public. But, as the Atlanta Journal says, "apparently people are not reading less, though listening more." Newspaper circulation is at the highest point in history. And reports on circulation of library books indicate a heavy gain. A recent survey by the Federal bureau of education discloses that 182,000,000 volumes in public and school libraries; that books issued for reading outside libraries average three persons for the country, and that borrowers

cards in force per capita increased 27 per cent from 1923 to 1929, while the number of books issued gained 45 per cent.
Clearly, those who forecast gloomy things as a result of the radio must be classed among the false prophets.

HOW'S your HEALTH

WOOD ALCOHOL DANGERS
Wood alcohol by any other name is still wood alcohol. And wood alcohol always is a fluid to be handled with great caution.
It must never be used for drinking purposes, nor in anything which might be applied to the skin.

Its fumes are also dangerous, for if one is exposed to them for any length of time they are absorbed
through the lungs and their effects are the same as if the fluid had been swallowed.
Taken internally wood alcohol
produces severe illness, sometimes ending in blindness.

Recently there has been developed a method for the synthetic production of wood alcohol.
This method has substantially reduced the manufacturing costs
of the product.

Naturally, there is a tendency to extend its use into many new fields, and it is there that possible dangers lie.
Wood alcohol may be used in many branches of industry. It can be utilized for fuel purposes, as a solvent, and in combination with other substances.

Its economic and other advantages should be exploited, but one must always bear in mind its hazard to health.
Since its synthetic production,
wood alcohol has been sold under different names.

Persons have used it without knowing that they were dealing with a poisonous substance.
A number of cases of poisoning have been reported as a result of this. Certainly the consequences are serious enough to warrant
the greatest care in handling it.

If you propose using denatured alcohol for fuel purposes, in varnishing, for the removing of paint or varnish, or for any other purposes, make sure that what you have is in fact denatured alcohol
and not wood alcohol.
Commercial alcohol sold to you under an unfamiliar name should arouse your suspicion.

HOLLYWOOD - The lowly
"short", the abbreviated feature
which fills out the movie program,
is taking on a new glory as producers turn to it not only as a means of eliminating the "doubtful feature evil," but as a definite box office asset.

Not since the early film days
when all movies were one or two reels long has there been such interest in these short features.
The Bobby Jones golf picture already is hitting money.
Johnny Weismuller's swimming tricks, Johnny Farrell's golf, Babe Ruth's baseball, Notre Dame's football, perhaps Helen Willis' tennis-
the last named seems to have gone
by the boards because of a disagreement over salary—are in store
for sports enthusiasts.

The talking serial, at first seemingly destined for failure, pulled through and has attained a following. Johnny Mack Brown, associated with western roles in "Billy the Kid" and "The Great Meadow," is being borrowed by Universal for a serial dramatizing Buffalo Bill.

TRAVEL AND NOVELTY
Travel shorts in color and sound are increasing in popularity. The Gene Terles, "Vagabond Adventures" are among the favorites in this category.
Mack Sennett is contributing such comedies as "Speed," a threereeler, presenting in color scenes viewed from a transcontinental airliner.

The animated cartoons, "Mickey Mouse," "Looney Tunes," "Gerald
the Rabbit," and contemporaries are box office winners.
"Humaniacs" human heads with
puppet bodies, are another novelty.
Producers hope that with such short layouts they can eliminate the obviously embarrassing—to them—"double-feature."

Mad Pursuit

Chapter 26
JULIAN'S TRIUMPH
JULIAN LAKE returned next day
as mysteriously as he had left them. But he was jubilant with hope.
He told them about the gallery
that Jon had rented.
"I was too modest at first," he explained, "but I am advised to rent
"Devon Lanes" for five thousand.
There are 43 canvases. Now picture to yourself what I shall make."
Nora did picture to herself. She remembered "Devon Lanes" with its murky colors and its weak draftsmanship. Poor Julian! He actually believed that someone would buy his atrocious daubs.
But when he told them just what he was going to do for them, Nora caught her breath almost like a sob. He was going to have a "trast fund for Aunt Em." As for Nora and himself, he stopped and cried:
"Nora doesn't believe in me. But wait. Wait!" He smiled at her.
It was just one more fantastical
scheme that would end as the others
had. Nora knew, in fallacy.
And Aunt Em and Hattie were beginning to believe in him. Perhaps it was because they had never seen his pictures, Nora thought ironically.
Jon, too, was an enthusiastic as her father. He told her that as soon as the show was launched they would be married.
"Nothing's going to stop us, Nora."
"Not if it's a horrible failure!"
"It couldn't be, darling," he assured her.
At the end of the week Jon drove her father to New York.
"Don't come to the old show, Nora. It will only bore you," her father said.
But Nora was depressed by the thought of the failure that awaited her father. No one but a fool or a genius could have believed so utterly in himself. And Julian, she admitted, was not a genius.
They had a letter from Fran to say that she felt better already.
She would be home in a few months. It seemed to Nora, these days in September, that she was surrounded by people who never touched reality.

On Sunday they saw in the paper a notice of her father's exhibition by a well-known art critic.
"The paintings of Julian Lake,
on display this week at the Welland Galleries, show a peculiarly rich individuality. They have a rude vigor and commanding draftsmanship. The luminous
character of his color arrests
and haunts the mind.
"His peasant studies have the animation of truth. This is an outstanding group of paintings
not only in its variety and its number, but in that he has reached out to new horizons.

"America may well be proud when she adds this talent. I would almost say genius, to a long line of splendid artists."
If he needed further proof,
came an enthusiastic telegram
from Jon saying her father's pictures were being sought by art dealers.
But it was of Jon that Nora thought with rapture. Nothing could ever separate her and Jon
now. She could not wait to see him. Why should she not go straight down to New York in the morning? What did it matter that she should be in the office? Things like this happened only once in a lifetime.
It was in the same excitement
that she dressed next day in the beige dress that was Jon's favorite, drew on the small beige hat. She had never, she knew, looked so lovely. Her eyes shone with happiness, for her heart sang over and over that at least they were all secure. Julian had saved them. Now
she and Jon could be married.

The dream was with her all the way to New York. At the Grand Central she took a taxi and gave the address of the Weland Gal-eries.

ed to lay bare the innermost
search of the heart?
This trembling sunlight, painted with a brilliance that overleaid a masterly technique. These tran-slucent colors. These brown-necked, stooping peasants with the patience of animals. . . . She tried to put them from her mind.
Her hands were wet. She wiped them with a ball of handkerchief.
Someone behind her was saying:
"The artist's little joke. See it over there."
She turned her head spasmodically to see what it was they were laughing at. There in the corner was one of the things she remembered well, the purple house that seemed to topple down the brown
hill into the red water below.
"Amazing that he should catch the modern spirit and caricature it
so precisely."
The voice moved off. She closed her eyes. Someone had come to sit beside her, she felt a hand over here. It was Jon.
"You couldn't stay away! Well, what do you think of it?" he leaned forward, his green eyes smiling, his face lighted with a charming gay-ety. "How queer you look, Nora.
What's the matter?"
"Nothing. Nothing. What could be the matter?" she tried to say between white lips.
"Didn't I tell you—there you must go and speak to him as soon as that old dowager is through gushing over him."
"Jon," she plucked at his sleeve,
"take me away!"
"It's been too much for you, has
it? This is the time when I thought you'd be wild with delight and you look as though—"

She tried to wring a smile from her lips but she knew it was only a grotesque twitch.
"Let's go, Jon. It's so hot here, isn't it?"
"But your hands the ice-cold.
There, he's free now!"
"No, Jon, no." She shrank back.
"I don't want to see him now."
At last they were on the train.
Jon began to tell her all that had happened in these last few days.
She listened without seeming to hear, closing her eyes now and then as though the lids were too
heavy.
"You're tired, Nora. I'll go and smoke a while. You're coming home with me. Damon will be there. We'll tell her, to-night. Then we can be married. At once. At once!"
"Oh, y-e-s, Jon, at once! And you'll take me away?"
She was a strange, mad creature,
he thought. Only last week she had stood out against him, saying over and over again she could not leave her aunt. And now she begged him to take her away. Well, that was Nora. All strange contradictions and sudden impulses,
variable as the wind.
Nora sat alone at last. Her head fell back against the chair. She could hear the train sliding over the tracks, feel the ceaseless vibration.
But this could not make her forget those pictures. She knew something about them—something that she dared not face. If she should bring it to the light—if she should drag up from the depths of her mind this truth, she could never meet Julian face to face again.

Television Soon To Be Available At Moderate Cost

CHICAGO, June 11 (UP)—Television has passed the novelty stage and soon will come into general use in the home—with receiving sets selling for $300 and less—engineers and technicians declared today at the Radio Manufacturers' Association convention.

Despite rapid improvements in the perfection of simultaneous broadcasting of sight and sound, several years' experimentation will be necessary, technicians said, before television approves the perfection of sound broadcasting or taking motion pictures.

Television—coupled with about $1,000,000 worth of radio exhibits—was on demonstration at the convention today. Its attendance was 25,000 dealers and manufacturers of radio and radio equipment.

"Within six months we plan to have available a console model television receiving set for home use at a price consistent with present radio costs," said Hollis Blair, chief engineer of the Short-Wave and Television Corporation of Boston and New York.

Other announcements and predictions made by Blair's company included:

- 1. Probably 100,000 television home receiving sets will be in operation in America next fall.
- 2. Preparations are being made by the Short-Wave and Television Corporation to broadcast part of big league baseball games from Fenway Park, Boston.
- 3. Television sending stations at present confined to New York, Boston and Chicago, will be opened within the next year in a dozen other cities.

The ordinary showing of televisions is confined to a type where the observer peers into an opening and sees the picture amplified optically through large lenses. Engineers predicted, however, that pictures two feet square and projected on a screen will be available soon.

A.P.I. Dallas Conference Ends With Texas Oil Men Agreeing Only That Quick Action Alone Will Save Them

By THOMAS A. FLEDGE. International News Service Staff Correspondent. DALLAS, Texas, June 3 (INE).—Agitated by friction between the American Petroleum Institute meeting here, the controversy over what's the matter with the oil industry had grown to new proportions today with Texas oil men agreeing to themselves on only one thing—that something must be done.

A half dozen independent operators were on record with statements today charging that speakers before the petroleum institute were looking at production problems generally from the standpoint of the major companies, and that the "remedies" they suggested for the situation would have little effect but to annihilate the small oil man.

In his address to the institute, Robert E. Penn of Dallas, vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, said that flush production in East Texas was responsible for the "disastrously low price" of oil and the resultant operations loss being suffered by many companies.

Earle Freeman, independent Dallas operator, in a statement following the meeting, took exception to the view of Penn and Terrell and charged that the "corporation plan" advocated by Penn would mean "absolute control of the East Texas field" by four or five major companies and "probably the annihilation of the independent producer."

The mother escaped. The father was at the neighboring town of Turkey on business.

Charles Vines Beaten By Bishop

Charles F. Vines, Fort Worth operator, mildly criticized the major oil companies in an address before the institute and charged some of them with "poor faith" and with "taking advantage of the situation to benefit financially."

Curtis Bishop advanced into the third round of the Sand Bell men's singles tournament by defeating Charles Vines, local youth, in a bitterly fought straight set match 10-8, 6-3 Monday afternoon. Vines, figured to be something of a setup, won the first three games with a barrage of brilliant drives and continued to fight his veteran opponent to a standstill throughout the first set, but weakened in the last frame to lose without offering considerable opposition.

Without some such plan, he predicted the new field would break the oil business and every independent operator who has to drill leases in the field. An economic loss since the field was discovered of 70 cents a barrel was estimated. Properly exploited, the East Texas field should amount to $1,000,000,000 in the capital of the southwest, Penn said. Instead, he declared, it promises to create billions in losses.

Waiting for More Opportune Time To Make Improvements Dangerous Declares Stripling

"Most of the citizens of other towns in Texas have more confidence in Big Spring than Big Spring citizens have," declares Fox Stripling, pioneer resident, in a statement issued Friday by him, in support of the $200,000 bond issue to be voted upon June 2 for construction of a city hall-fire station-auditorium building.

Mr. Stripling's statement follows: "I believe that Big Spring has reached the point where it needs a city hall, fire station and auditorium. I feel sure that in the near future, we will build something in keeping with this growing city. Now is the time to build, too, while we can get material at a big reduction, and can put local people to work, and help the unemployed situation."

The Dope Sheet Says It Looks As If It Will Be A Hard and Tepid Summer To Local Netters As Tourney Nears

An assortment of thirty odd players ranging from veteran "line" players in youthful high school and college graduates, will make up the respective bids for the annual titles offered by the Big Spring Tennis Club from June 7 to June 13. Three days still remained for the entries to register, but already the largest field, since 1922, has challenged the supremacy of local players.

The tournament, which has been held in Big Spring for several years, was won by Rayburn Brown, who defeated the local singles and paired with "Toby" Whitehouse to win the "Toby" Whitehouse tennis title and with H. J. Jordan, the doubles.

But does will this year favor the outsiders, and the return of the local players over this party?

It is said that McDaniel will have a change of fortune, as four have been needed in recent years. Former Big Spring High and Texas School of Mines star and captain of eight-year-old St. Stephens, McDaniel and Goodbye. At his former home, Luther Thomas of "Toby" Whitehouse, who has been in the city long to the eastward will be a strong challenger for the tennis singles championship, Russell Brown.

The hopes of the local club to give up the old tradition will be kept up by the showing of youngsters by George Danes, Curtis Bishop, Joe Davis, and Tom Hutto. All candidates for the championships in both junior and senior divisions. Danes is a newcomer to the Big Spring court but has compiled an enviable record on the net since he came here. Bishop has won the junior championship three times and it is possible will defend the title this year, while Hutto and Davis were the victors in the Big Spring High net team last year and have improved considerably during the spring months.

A few other local players that are considered at least a chance to register victories are Cecil Ellis, a veteran of the Fort Worth Municipal League, Cyran McCarry, Earl Harvey, Vines, and Beal. McCarry is a veteran of much argumentary play that is handicapped only because of lack of practice while Copart has a twisting left-handed service that is very baffling. Ellis is an easy player content to remain on the defensive with a powerful service.

Junior Team: The junior division of the tournament promises to bring forth the hottest competition in its history. Even should Bishop find himself able to enter he will be hard-puffed to turn back the threats of Hutto and Davis. Russell Soper of Colorado and Daney. The latter will enter the net as an outstanding favorite to win the youthful honors. Only one outstanding player of last year's field is missing, Harry Jordan, not having registered as yet.

In McCarry, Ferguson and McCarry of Midland, city champions, will lead the list of one-tournament favorites but the combination of Hutto and Daney should go far. Hutto and his partner will present a formidable threat as well the team of Ellis and McCarry. Soper and Harvey in Big Spring and Stubbs and Goodbye of Midland rank among the topnotchers also.

First round matches will be played Sunday in senior singles. The junior division will get under way Monday and will continue through Tuesday, when the first

Big Spring, Texas, June 4, 1931. To the Editor: In regard to Mr. John Jones' letter published in the Herald June 2 I would like to say that the Association of Mechanical Department Employees of the Texas & Pacific Railway company and the Missouri Pacific is an independent association composed of boilermakers, machinists, sheet metal workers, blacksmiths, car men, painters and electricians.

We have no connection with any other labor unions and do not wish any. So you need not worry about this association, as we have a membership of 2,000 of the best mechanics in the United States and have one of the best working agreements with the railroad company that has ever been signed. Two thousand well-satisfied mechanics and peace and harmony prevail.

We wish to make the matter clear to you, Mr. Jones, that we do not seek any affiliation with local or foreign labor unions, but would rather remain independent, transact our own business and let everybody else alone. I presume, Mr. Jones, that you are a new comer here, as the Herald has carried the A. of M. D. E. notice in its labor calendar for 15 months. You are just now proclaiming our standing. I would like to ask you one question: what labor union do you have membership with?

SAM HORTON, President A. of M. D. E., West Fifth Street, Big Spring, Texas.
