Don's Diary

Graduation is an exciting time. It is exciting to read about someone receiving their degree. It is exciting to hear about someone receiving their hard earned degree. But when the graduate is someone you love the excitement is doubled in nature and scope.

Gloria graduated from Southwestern yesterday. She was so excited to graduate. The kids and I were as equally excited to get mom back to us as a mother and wife rather than mother, wife, and student.

Graduation is a sharing time. It is a time to share the good news with those who have not finished that there is indeed a stopping place in the seemingly never ending conquest to graduation. Graduation is a time to share the goodness of God to allow us to finish the course set before us.

Graduation is a remembering time. It is a time to remember the late night study times. It is a time to remember the early morning getting ready for test times. It is a time to remember the times you forgot your notebook and it was due at classtime.

Graduation is a time to remember the times that you thought the test was next Friday instead of today. Graduation is a time of remembering the times you thought you made a great grade on a test and come to find out that you barely passed the thing.

There are many things that graduation is, but equally there are some things that graduation are not. Graduation is not the end of education but really the commencement or the beginning. Robert Hutchens once said that the object of education is to prepare the young people to educate themselves throughout their lives.

If we stop learning the day we graduate then graduation has failed its main purpose that being showing us how to learn and whitting our appetited toward education.

Third graduation is not a time to hang it all up and say we know it all. In the Boston Globe not many years ago was a quote from an unknown source but a true one nevertheless. It went like this: "An educated man is one who has finally discovered that there are some questions to which no one has the answers." A graduated person is one who doesn't know it all, doesn't act like he knows it all but who is willing to ask questions and seek answers in order to know as much as he can.

There is a little poem that has the words high school days in it but I believe we could substitute any level of education there and the poem would still apply:

The History of Coleman County Electric Cooperative

Chamber of Commerce, Sam

The passing of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 sent a stimulating current of hope and ambition throughout the rural areas of Texas. As the news spread, "Lights on the farm" became one of the favorite topics of conversation at every crossroads meeting place.

Page

The Rural Electrification Act was made possible through the direction of President F. D. Roosevelt, Senator Norris, and Texas act created the Rural Electrification Adminstration, as a division of the United States Department of Agriculture. The purpose of this division of the United States Department of Agriculture was to loan money to private utilities and city owned municipalities to construct electric distribution lines into the rural areas. THese companies did not take advantage of this money and gave these reasons for refusing to do so (1) we are organized to return a profit to our stock-holders and this investment is not economically feasible, (2) the farmers are not financially able to have such a luxury as electricity and, (3) the farmers would not use enough electricity to yield a profit on the investment.

In the face of this refusal to make electricity available to farmers, the United States government encouraged farmers to organize their own companies, farmer owned rural electric cooperatives, and build their own electric lines.

As talk of rural electrification increased, farmers began trying to find out more about how they could get electricity under the new act. The first real step towards electrification of Coleman and Runnels Counties was under the direction of the rural board of the Coleman Cooper, Chamber of Commerce secretary, called a meeting of farmers and leaders to find out who might be interested in rural electrification. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce office on Saturday, January 16, 1937 at two o'clock. There was considerable interest shown at the meeting and it was decided to conduct a survey to find out how many would want electric service. Curtis Beck reported from Talpa that six miles of lines could be built. Jimmy Greenway who was then the vocational agriculture teacher at Novice, stated that 20 miles of lines could be built to serve the Novice and Silver Valley communities and farmers along that line. Gene Bell of Fisk reported the possibility of connecting a line that would serve Fisk, Shields, Gouldbusk and Voss. In addition to the ones mentioned A. W. Luckett, local electrician, Charles Pitts, and John McKinney made every effort to create more interest among the rural people for the rural electrification plan. C. H. Hufford who was at that time the Superintendent of Coleman High Schol, and Mr. Luckett organized several community meetings, and explained the program. It was reported that over 200 attended one to these meetings at the New Central School house. By April 15, 1936, more than 450 persons had indicated they would make application for electric service if the cooperative was successful. Persons who were interested and had not made application were to contact the following persons in their respective areas, Mr. Smith of Echo Store, Gene Bell of Fisk, L. H. Griffith of Gouldbusk, W. R. Curry at Buffalo, Frank Drake of Loss Creek, Mr. Powers of Shields, Henry Knox or F. K. Campbell of Talpa, Charles Pitts or Mrs. Raymond McElrath in the Coleman areas or Warren Gill of Whon.

R.E.A. Representative W. O. Coe said "after checking the survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Luckett, there is no reason why Coleman and Runnels counties should not have a Rural Electrification unit." The next step was to set up a temporary organization. Charles Pitts was elected president, and A. W. Luckett was elected manager. The name of the organization was called the Coleman County Electric Association. By now some 600 persons had made application, and some applications were taken from the northern part of Runnels County and part of the western part of Brown County.

The new organization made application for a Rural Electrification loan from the government and on November 22, 1937 R.E.A. approved $100,000 as a partial allotment for the construction of 101 miles of line in Coleman, Runnels, and Callahan Counties. The Wm. G. Morrison Engineering Co. of Waco, Texas assisted the local organization in contacting the R.E.A. officials in Washington.

The R.E.A. stipulated certain restrictions on the use of the money loaned (1) must be used to construct electric distribution lines, (2) must be built in rural areas to persons not currently receiving electricity, (3) must serve everyone if possible who desires electricity, (4) can not serve within the city limits of a town over the population of 1500.

Now that the loan had been approved, the organizational meeting of the present cooperative was held at 2:30 p.m., December 4, 1937 at the Court House in Coleman.

The first directors of the cooperative were chosen at that time and were as follows. Charles Pitts, Coleman dairyman; J. W. Taylor, Santa Anna; J. C. Dibrell, Echo; John L. Wilkinson, Indian Creek flour manufacturer; Will Mathews, Goldsboro rancher; Gene Bell, Fisk merchant; ; and M. K. Witt, Coleman automobile dealer and rancher. At the meeting Henry F. Stubbs of Waco, a representative of what has to be done before the people were to receive electricity. They were told that it would be necessary to have enough customers per mile of line to equal the expenses. Due to the low density of populatin the minimum charge of $3 per month would be charged for electricity. The next 20 kilowatts would cost five cents per Kilowatt, and all over 90 kilowatts would cost three cents per kilowatt.

The first meeting officially for the incorporators and the board of dierctor was held on January 11, 1938. It was cold January day when all the directors met at the cooperative office which was then located at 109 West Live Oak Street in Coleman. After election of officers, Charles Pitts was elected president, J. W. Taylor of Santa Anna was elected vice-president and Jim Dibrell became secretary-treasurer.

From the first meeting the group agreed on a policy to be observed by the cooperative. Entered into the bylaws of the cooperative, the co-ops purpose became clear; "The aim of Coleman County Electric Cooperative. Inc. is to make electricity available to its members at the lowest cost consistent with sound economy and good management."The official name of the organization was Coleman County Electric Cooperative, Inc. Other business of the board of directors was the setting of a $5 membership fee to be paid annually by each member. The board also reviewed a large stack of applications for service and discussed how right of way easements and new applications were to be obtained.

At the February meeting of the board of directors the first employees of the cooperative were hired. Mr. Samuel R. Hale was hired as manager at a salary of $100 a month, plus a monthly car allowance. Mr. Hale had been in the cotton gin business at Gouldbusk and had worked for the City of Coleman. Mary Kenney of Coleman was the first bookkeeper at a monthly salary of $50. The Wm. G. Morrison Engineering Co. of Waco was hired to secure the necessary easements, prepare maps, and order necessary materials. Judge E. M. Critz of Coleman was appointed the first attorney for the cooperative. Mr. Hale found interest high at Winters when he made a talk before the Winters Lions Club on July 26, 1938. A survey was made in the winters area in August and over 850 prosepective. members signed up. The survey included Crews, Drasco, Shep, Happy Valley, Pumphrey, Wingate, Wilmeth, Old Norton, Mann, and Dale. Carl Lohn of Coleman, former first bid on the meters at $2,979.75. When the bids were submitted to R.E.A. for approval, the P. W. Workman bid was not accepted because they had failed to keep the jobs moving on other R.E.A. financed projects. More bids were called for and the J. J. Hall & Co. of Manhattan, Kansas received the bid for $70,627.44. The local cooperative was notified that due to the increased interest in the rural electrification program and the large number of prospective customers signed up, the rates would be decreased from the original rate. On August 25, 1938, the rates of the cooperative were changed to: first 25 kilowatts, or less, per month $2.45 (this is the minimum charge); next 25 kilowatts per month at .06 cents per kwh; the next 50 KWH's per month at .04 cents per kwh; the next 100 kilowatts per month at 2.5 cents per kwh; all over 200 KWh per month at 1.75 cents per kwh. This was the rate of the cooperative until January, 1964 when it was decreased again.

August 17, 1938 the Wm. Morrison Engineering Co. had three crews in Coleman staking the first lines. One of the men working for the engineering company was C. L. Newton, who later became manager of the cooperative. September 14, 1938, the first hold was dug and rock ccaused them some trouble. The original line began at the substation at the south end of the city limits of Coleman on the Shields highway, and extended westward to the Bowen Community. The second line built from the substation was north Coleman to Cross Roads and Echo. Thr third line of approximately 60 miles went from the substation to Fisk, Mozelle, Gouldbusk, Rockwood, Shields and Whon. The first two lines, the ones to Bowen Community and Echo were energized on November 10, 1938. Meters were set the following week, and Charles Pitts was the first customer to receive electricity from the cooperative. He started using electricity on November 19, 1938. December 22, 1938 Mr. Hale collected the first electric bill from S. A. Carville. The total amount of the bill was $5.95 for 100 kilowatt hours. He read his own meter and brought the reading on into the office in Coleman and paid his bill.

Miss Nina Litter of Washington, D. C. Home Economist for R.E.A., worked with the county agent C.V. Robinson and Home Demonstration Agent Miss Crytene Trowbridge, with the purpose of getting wiring contracts from the members before the electric lines were completed. She explained the advantages of electricity in an effort to get the farmers to use more electricity.

In 1950 the cooperative bought and remodeled the present office at 200 W. Live Oak St.

For the purpose of convenience the first electric lines built in the Coleman area were identified as Section "A". This included the three lines built from the Coleman substation with the original R.E.A. loan of $100,00 Section "B" included the folowing territory: Indian Creek, Silver Valley, Novice, Goldsboro, Oplin, Denton Valley and Duley; also Talpa and Glen Cove. R.E.A. alloted $145,000 for the construction of the 161 miles of line. Section "C" in which most of the lines were built in Runnels County, had an original R.E.A. allotment of $317,000 for 343 miles of lines. THis section included areas around Ballinger, Rowena, Miles, Lowake, Bethel, Winters, Crews, Bradshaw, and Hatchel.

November 1, 1939 there were 495 customers billed by the cooperative, and they were charged a total of $1,376.35, average bill to the consumer was $2.78. Applications for service continued to come in from Coleman and Runnels Counties and at the end of 1939 there were 748 customers receiving electric service from the cooperative.

The city of Coleman offered to sell electricity to the cooperative at a cent and a half per kilowatt. This rate would fall to a cent and a quarter after the first year. But with the interest in Runnels County and surrounding counties, the cooperative signed a contract with West Texas Utilities Co. of Abilene to purchase the needed electricity for the cooperative. November 1, 1939 the Coleman area received its electricity from a substation south of Coleman city limits. The Runnels County area was getting electricity from substations at Winters and Rowena.

FDR lit my front porch door, And my daddy paid five dollars To buy that pole and the wires too, To give my family power.

It happened quietly. All across the countryside, small groups of people gathered informally to talk about building and owning electric distribution systems . . . rural electric cooperatives.

These men and women became the pioneers of rural electrification . . . a program which now serves more than 25 million rural people in 46 states.

And today, rural electric systems like ours still provide essential light and power to the countryside. We still greet newcomers. We still sign folks up like we did 50 years ago, and for the same reason . . . to give our families power.
