Santa Anna Receives $3,253.18 Methodist Church History

The City of Santa Anna has received their local sales tax payment of $3,253.18 compared to $4,500.66 last year. Total payments to date have been $19,262.01 compared to $19,134.04 last year. State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday sent checks totaling $112.3 million in local tax payments to the 1,005 cities that levy the one-percent city tax.

Houston's check was the largest—$18.6 million—bringing total payments in 1985 to $104.8 million, up 5 percent over 1984. Dallas received $13.3 million for a total payment of $77 million this year, an increase of 15 percent.

San Antonio's payment of $7.1 million increased that city's 1985 payments to $38.1 million, up 14 percent over last year. Austin's check for $5.4 million pushed payments to $30.2 million, a 25 percent increase over 1984 payments.

Fort Worth received $4.2 million for a 1985 total of $22.9 million, up 12 percent. El Paso's payment of $2.5 million brought its total to $14.2 million, a 16 percent increase over payments last year.

Bullock also sent checks totaling $45.9 million to four Metropolitan Transit Authorities. Houston MTA's check for $21.7 million pushed 1985 payments to $121.1 million. Dallas' DART payment of $19.1 million brought its total to $105.4 million this year. VIA in San Antonio received $4 million for a total $21 million in 1985. Fort Worth's MTA payment was for $1 million, increasing payments this year to $5.4 million.

August checks represent taxes collected on sales made in June and the second quarter and reported to the Comptroller by July 20.

Methodist Church History

(Editor's note: Methodist will celebrate 100 years of ministry on September 8, 1985 in recognition of this important mile stone we dedicate this history of the First United Methodist Church in Santa Anna, to be done in three parts. Part I is "Early History".

The First United Methodist Church has chosen as their theme this year: "100 Years of the Life Worth Living."

It is not known when the first settler came to the area now known as Santa Anna, but this area was known as a look-out point for hostile Indians. In 1882, W. C. Brooks was appointed the first postmaster. In the application to Washington for a post office, the name Santana, chosen for a locally famous Indian chief, was submitted but some post office clerk in the department at Washington evidently felt the one who had requested the name authorization had misspelled it so he changed it to Santa Anna and returned it approved. By 1885 Santa Anna had three stores, a hotel, a blacksmith shop and a one room schoolhouse. The nearest railroad was Abilene and immense herds of cattle were driven through the gap to that city. There was a mail arrival twice a month.

It was in the spring of 1885 that one of history's immortal "Methodist

Boosters

In an organizational meeting of the Santa Anna Athletic Boosters last week, Robert Pritchard was elected president of the club in a meeting opened by retiring president, Derriell Warnock.

Elected as vice president of the club was Danny Kellar, and Margaret Pritchard was elected secretary-treasurer.

Projects were discussed and various plans made to support the athletic program of the local schools.

The Athletic Boosters will meet at 8:00 pm at the Vo-Ag building each Tuesday evening and all parents and others in the community are invited and encouraged to attend and support the local school athletes.

Circuit Riders" came to Santa Anna with his saddlebags stuffed with books and tracts and organized the Santa Anna Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with the following being entered on the records as charter members: John Moffatt, Mrs. Fannie Moffatt, Mrs. Annie Crosby, Miss Belle Allen, Miss Bertha Allen, Dr. J. P. Matthews, A. I. Kuykendall, Mrs. E. T. Kuykendall, Mrs. Mollie Pearson, C. W. Cook, Mrs. Annie Cook, P. T. Turner, Mrs. E. F. Turner, Mrs. Lula Turner, Mrs. Nannie Simpson, J. D. Simpson, R. M. Burk, George Brooks, Mrs. M. P. Brooks, Miss Nannie Brooks, Miss Belle Brooks, J. E. Martin, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Annie Martin, Mrs. Emma Cox, Mrs. M. E. Compton, Mrs. Hannah Ashley, Mrs. Sara Campbell, E. W. Oliver, Mrs. A. A. Oliver, Mrs. E. C. McGonagill, Mrs. M. M. Morrison, Mrs. S. P. Lewis, Miss Sammy Penny, E. D. Carter, Mrs. E. J. Carter, Miss Etta Carter, Miss Annie Carter, E. G. McGlathery, Mrs. N. A. Hardin, Will Hubert, Mrs. Mary E. Hubert, Miss Annie Hubert, Mrs. C. E. Penny, Miss Myrah Guyer, Walter Holmes, Mrs. Cora Burk, and Mrs. Armanda Guyer.

The first membership record book shows Seth Bradner to have been the first person to be baptized in the Methodist Church. The date is registered as July 15, 1888 during the ministry of Rev. W. E. Caperton. Mary Sue Phillips, who is registered as the seventh to be baptized was the first to be married in the present building. Quite unique is the fact that her mother was the first bride to be married in the first church building. The first death of a church member was recorded February 17, 1886 as Mrs. Nannie B. Simpson, a sister of the late J. Frank Turner.

In 1887, the name Santa Anna Circuit first appears, the charge having been known previous to that time as "Thrifth Mission." We find at this time, seven stations on the charge, "Clear Creek," Trickham, Mukewater, Thrifth, McDaniel, Fairview and Santa Anna. Salem and Mt. View were added in 1889 making nine appointments. Quite a circuit for one preacher to make on horseback.

In 1887 the church had its first quarterly conference. The pastor's report on the condition of the church read, "We found the work in a cold and scattered condition and the membership not well organized. We have been laboring as faithfully as we could under the circumstances. The outlook of present is more encouraging." The second report of the year said, "The spiritual condition of the church is tolerably good, but not yet what it ought to be." By the end of that year, the same pastor, Brother J. W. Bowden, wrote in this report, "We consider the work as a whole in a healthy condition...the membership is greatly revived." It would be wonderful if every pastor could say that his membership is greatly revived.

School to Start Soon

Thanks to House Bill 72, students in Central Texas will be able to enjoy summer vacation until the first September, but time is running very short for students and teachers alike as preparations begin for the 1985-86 school year.

Most students around the state will be returning on Tuesday, September 3 (the day after Labor Day), but area teachers will go back at least one week earlier to begin in-service training and workdays at their schools.

Santa Anna teachers had a curricular meeting this past Monday, and class registration began for high school junior and senior students Tuesday. High school freshmen and sophomores registered Wednesday. Anyone missing these registration days are asked to register on the first day of school. All elementary and Jr. High students will also register on the first day of classes.

The first scrimmage session will be held Friday, August 23, with the Loraine team. The scrimmage is to begin at 6:00 pm at Mountaineer stadium and everyone is encouraged to be there to support the local team.

Coach Privitt says the team deserves a pat on the back for all the hard work they have put out and they are very pleased with the number of supporters who have shown up to watch the workouts and is expecting a good crowd for the first scrimmage of the year.

The team will scrimmage the team from Early on August 30, and the regular schedule of games is to begin with the season opener against Bangs on September 6 at Mountaineer stadium.

County Tax Board Meeting

Routine business was on the agenda at the Monday, August 12, meeting of the directors of the Coleman County Tax Appraisal District held in the county Tax Office. Harold Pittard, chairman, presided at the meeting. Members present were Bill Sneed and Barbara Kingsbery. Jerry May and Harold Bragg were absent.

John Skelton, Chief Appraiser, reported on his contacts with firms who contract for mineral and utility appraisals, with all estimates well above that of the Thomas Y. Pickett Company that currently contracts with the Coleman County Tax District.

Questions have arisen regarding the increase in charges of the company for the 1986 appraisals and the service was being sought for a lower cost.

The 1986 budget was reviewed briefly, with changes and increases noted by the group. The new budget will be adopted in September.

Mr. Skelton announced that a change has been made in the employee retirement funding, with additional benefits also available under the new system.

Upon the recommendation of Russell Graham of Austin, delinquent tax attorney who serves the Coleman County District, the Board of Directors passed a resolution regarding taxes that have been on the delinquent list for a number of years. The taxes in this category, mainly personal and mineral, will be placed on an inactive list when repeated efforts have failed to locate the owner or operator. However upon payment of the delinquent tax, it will again be placed on the active list.

It was noted that the Appraisal Review Board has completed its work and the 1986 tax roll has been certified.

The next meeting of the Tax Appraisal District group will be on Monday, September 9.

Danger on the Streets

Have you ever seen the sad eyes of a pup who is lost, alone, and hurt? I certainly have seen far too many, and I've had to mercifully end the suffering of many who could have lived long happy lives bringing joy to their owners if only they had not been allowed to roam the streets where they were hit by a car or maimed by another stray animal or shot by a landowner whose anger at the damage done by numerous other stray dogs led him to try to solve his problem himself.

Many people feel their pet should be allowed as much freedom as they have themselves. They think confinement to a yard or house is like imprisonment. Actually, an animal whose needs for food, shelter, and love are being met will be just as happy at home as a small child is. Certainly there are times in an animal's reproductive cycle when instinct leads them to seek the company of others of their kind, but an animal does not think and reason like a human and will not miss the chance to reproduce. It's only hormones not love.

Do your dog a favor and see to it that his good times are had at home. Don't let him loose on the street where he can be hurt. If he must be tied outdoors, be sure the chain is of the sliding bolt type that he can't unhook. He is relying on you, his owner, for his well-being. Again, a dog does not have the same reasoning ability as a human even though they may seem to figure out problems to our amazement. They can learn patterns of behavior for survival, but often the lessons are painful.

Keep your pet safe and happy at home. If possible, be sure he is wearing a collar or harness with your name, address, and phone number on it; so that you can be located for him if he should accidentally get loose.

How thoughtful of mother nature! By the time we reach the sitting around stage of life, she endows us with a bigger cushion.

An archway entwined with flowers centered the altar at the sanctuary, with other decorations being ficus trees with white lights.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Richard Krassow, the bride was attired in a southern style formal gown with jeweled bodice and leg-o-mutton sleeves. The full, ruffled skirt extended to a lace-ruffled train. She carried a lace fan with a crescent-shaped bouquet of deep pink roses, baby's breath and greenery.

Debbie Beauchamp, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lynda Benton of Kingsville, sister-in-law of the groom; Kathy Jo Clar of China Spring, sister-in-law of the bride; Angela Hudson of Waco and Cathy Walters of Laramie, Wyoming. Alicia Clark, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Keith Hudson of Waco served the groom as best man. Groomsman were Jim Benton of Kingsville, brother of the groom; Steve Bolles of Austin, cousin of the groom; and Don Clark of China Spring, brother of the bride. Jeff Greer of Brownwood, cousin of the groom, served as junior groomsman.

Alex Parker of Waco seated guests, and Jana Kay Bolles of Austin was at the register.

Traci Tyson of Waco, a niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Andy Benton of Kingsville, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Wedding music was provided by Sam Hickman, organist, and Bill Brooks, pianist. Soloists were Debra Richardson and Charles Thornal, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Longer," "There is Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Kathy Bridger of Waco served the bride's cake and Jan Todd of Waco laded punch.

Jana Kay Bolles of Austin served coffee, and Jan Geary of Bellevue, Nebraska served the groom's cake.

Following a wedding trip to Dixie Dude Ranch at Bandera, the couple are at home in Waco, where the bride is employed with Naman, Howell, Smith and Lee, Attorneys at Law, and the groom is employed with Hercules, Inc. of McGregor.

They Came In Peace

CHAPTER 11
CABINS ON THE HOME CREEK

The fabulous valley of the big creek that flowed from northwest to southeast of the newly surveyed county of Coleman, the valley where the grass grew as high as a cow's back, where the big water-holes never went dry, where the soil was rich and deep, this valley drew many settlers with vision and courage.

To the valley came Modie J. and Samuel R. Coggin, brother from Mississippi, who reached Texas in 1857, settling or at least stopping in Bell County for a year, where they accumulated some cattle. Hearing of the free range to the west, they came to Brown in 1858, but when they learned that Coleman had been surveyed they drove their herd still farther west and acquired title to some of the fine land, probably by preemption.

Two nephews of the Coggins' were with them, and both worked on the Coleman County ranch; while the cattle ranged for miles, the pens were on the tract owned by the Coggins, on the big creek. They called this the home creek, and there they built log cabins to house the cowboys.

These nephews were Cal McAuley, who built a picket house for himself and around it a picket fence which he hoped would delay an Indian attack if it came, and John Walter Taber, who came to Texas with his mother after his father was killed in the Confederate army.

McAuley loved ranching, and took responsibility well. Taber was younger, and after a time on the ranch, his uncles put him to work in their new bank in Brownwood; but he had had a taste of the open spaces, and after three years in the bank he returned to ranching, later building up a large ranch for himself in Brown County.

Coming to Home Creek in the late '60's was Dan Sanderson with his intrepid wife. Farther down the creek were the Barton widow and her children, the McCord land, where McCord and Lindsey had their real estate business, the McCains, James Dofflemeyer, who had married the widow of John Daniel, and others.

In 1872 Bryan Swaim, then a young man, came to work for the Coggin ranch on Home Creek, and he stayed for eight years, saving his money and acquiring ever better and better horses for his own use and cattle in his own brand. Feeling he was ready to strike out on his own, he made a new trade with the Coggins, who by this time had a partner and they were known as Coggin and Parks. He agreed to stay on and board with the ranch foreman at $8 per month, riding the range but also running his own herd and branding his own calves. This continued for three years or more, during which time he was also named Brand Inspector for Coleman County, a position of trust and authority of which we have spoken before.

Swaim had to contend with the tens of thousands of South Texas cattle now going up the Western Trail to Kansas. These herds lost some cattle now and then, but they also picked up many more from the ranchmen and settlers on the way north, and all herds had to be stopped and inspected when ordered by the county inspector; any cattle not branded according to the road brands on their papers carried by the trail boss were cut out and the owners were notified.

An instance of this time is in the story of Mrs. Dan Sanderson's recovery of her milk calf, which she saw take off to follow a trail herd one day. Sanderson was away from home and there was not a minute to lose. Before the herd had gone a mile, here came Mrs. Sanderson at a wild gallop, riding sidesaddle, of course, with her pistol in her hand. A furious woman with a pistol will command respect from anyone, and she had grounds for her rage, as she knew the cowboys had seen the calf and had not tried to turn it back. She not only got the calf, but she ordered one of the cowboys to help her cut it from the herd and drive it partway back to her cowlot.

Swaim went the way of other ambitious and forward-looking young men in a time when anyone who tried to could succeed. He met John S. Chisum when Coggin and Parks made a delivery of cattle on the Concho, and was offered a chance to move with Chisum to New Mexico. Swaim liked the idea but when Chisum told him that all the horses in the remuda, or as they called it, the "caveyard," had to be owned by him, Swaim declined the offer, as he would not ride a horse owned by another man, and also he had prized horses which he would not sell.

The word, caveyard, was an attempt to pronounce the Spanish word, caballado, and will be discussed later in this series in the story of Overall Ranch.

Swaim traveled widely and then bought ranch lands in Menard and Concho Counties; Taber lived to an old age in Brown county, McAuley's later life is unknown to this writer, and of the other cowboys who rode the Coggin horses and hunted cattle on the coggin lands many preempts or brought a homestead and stayed on Home Creek or nearby. The Bartons moved up the creek, after the country settled up, as the saying is that after you drink of Home Creek water you will never want to leave it.

Coggin and Parks sold lands to McCord and Lindsey in 1885, to Moses Walters in 1883, and many, many entries in the old Coleman County land records show their purchases and sales of the wonderful valley of Home Creek.

CHAPTER 12
THE FIVEASH STORY

We have told of the family of Mukewater Bill Williams, who came to the Mukewater during the early 1860's; with them was the wagon of Elizabeth Williams' sister, Lucinda Fiveash, and her husband, Enoch, and they settled south of the Chisum store.

Fiveash had been found as a baby, in Tennessee in 1819, in a clump of five ash sprouts, and the family who took and reared him named him for the little trees; this story was told to this writer by two different branches of the family who had never known each other, one of them the granddaughter of Elizabeth Williams in Coryell County.

Lucinda was not as dynamic as Elizabeth, nor were they as prosperous as the Williams family. Their homes were about a mile apart, and all the children went to the one-room school near the Chisum store, the boys wearing their pistols and the teacher carrying a rifle. The plains Indians had turned from their first tolerance of the settlers, and their raids came oftener and were more deadly; the five graves which were dug in the prairie near the store were said to have been of men and a boy killed by Indians, and as the town was platted later, these graves were in a street and are there today.

Records were sketchy at that time, and the names of the Fiveash children known today are Lou, who married W. W. Hunter and lived at the stage stand on Mud Creek, John who married young, and Dick.

Early in January of 1876, some of the Trickham settlers wished to send a herd of horses to Kansas for sale, ahead of the cattle-drives which would come in the spring. A trusted and popular nephew of Lucinda Fiveash, Lot Ellington, was living with them, just past 21 years of age, and he was employed to drive the horses. It was a faster trip than with cattle along, and he and two employees made the drive, sold the horses in Kansas, and Lot returned by train, stopping in Erath County for a short visit with his parents. He reached the Mukewater, paid the men the money he had received for the herd, and went back to working for Fiveash. Also living at the Fiveash home, besides Enoch and Lucinda and their young son, Dick, was another hired man, Tomm Moss.

Within a few days Lot became ill, and the disease turned out to be that most dreaded of the time, smallpox, which he had caught somewhere on the trip north. Vaccination was a new discovery, but none of the settlers had had it; a doctor was called from Brownwood, but when he arrived he would not enter the cabin. He sent from Brownwood a young Dr. Page, who had been vaccinated, and who stayed faithfully with the sick. Lucinda soon came down with the disease, and then Enoch and Tom Moss. Neighbors left food and other needed things at the gate but would not come nearer. Lot was the first to die, on Leap Year Day, February 29, 1876; friends dug a grave, on Fiveash land, and then came the question of burial. Everybody was afraid to be near the dead or the living, and the young doctor wrapped the body in a quilt and somehow got it to the open grave, shoveling the clay back in place.

It was impossible to keep any secret of any one patient from another. Dr. Page fed and tended them, kept them as free from pain as he could, and held them in their paroxysms, but when each died, the others, if conscious, knew all about it. The day of the death of Tom Moss is uncertain, as he lies in an unmarked grave. Fiveash appeared to be recovering, but when his wife died, on March 16, he lost the will to live. Her grave was dug and she was wrapped and carried out the door, and he took to his bed again, dying on March 21.

Dick was very ill, and the succeeding deaths made the situation ever more serious. The neighbors digging the graves would not fill them, and each new burial was a distance from the others. As Enoch's grave was finished, someone voiced the thought that was troubling them all.

"It doesn't look like Dick can get well. What do you think about going ahead with his grave while we are here with the tools?"

"No, that's not right for us to do," said Charlie Shield, who was helping. "It's not right to dig a grave for a living boy."

As the days passed, Dick slowly began to get better, at least he was conscious, could sit up by the fire, the terrible lesions peeled. And then came the problem of sanitation; it was decided that the three loss cabins with all their contents would have to be burned. A nice sidesadle, almost new, was hanging in the smokehouse. Couldn't Lou have her mother's saddle, begged Dick, but the others were afraid, and the sidesaddle went up in smoke, along with the sides of bacon, the hams and the big cans of lard. The big logs burned for a long time, taking with them the treasured pictures, the beautiful hand-made quilts and coverlets, the keepsakes brought in the wagons from Mississippi.

The Fiveash cemetery is an interesting place to study the family story. Enoch is buried at a distance from his wife, Lucinda, others of their loved ones are here and there, and among the unmarked graves must be those of Mukewater Bill Williams and his wife, Elizabeth, who must be considered the most prominent of the Mukewater settlers. Visitors have tried to convince themselves that scratched on the sandstone of one is a W, and that here lies Mukewater Bill. We will never know for sure.

And so the life which began in mystery with the finding of the baby boy in the forests of Tennessee ended with the tragedy of the dreaded smallpox on the Mukewater.

Somewhere tucked away in the memories of each of us are special summers. It's hard to visualize a special summer when the blistering heat of an August afternoon removes all thoughts from our minds except those of staying cool in order to survive the heat.

Assuming, however, that something does trigger a memory or two, we open the pages of our recollections to a particular summer that remains alive forever in our hearts, and suddenly we begin to reminisce.

Perhaps we remember how, as a child, each new morning was sweet and new and ushered in a day of wondrous adventure. And we knew that the warm, lazy evenings would be filled with games of baseball, or watermelon feeds, or homemade ice cream.

Or, perhaps we remember a summer when we grew from a child to an adolescent, anticipating all the marvelous new adventures that we were about to encounter.

Summer can give to each of us a glimpse of the child we used to be. And suddenly, we almost ache with melancholy, and a particular sadness can creep over us, especially at summer's end. Summer will always hold a special place in our hearts.

Hints to savor:

- (1) You can use colorless nail polish for emergency glue.
- (2) You can remove stubborn rust stains from your sink or tub by rubbing them with a little kerosene.
- (3) You can make a changing picture gallery for a child's room by stretching a length of stout twine across a wall and affixing prints, magazine cutouts, or the child's own creative masterpieces with paper clips. It's a good way to encourage an early interest in art.

Scents from the kitchen: Summer isn't summer without homemade ice cream. Here's a recipe for an easy, yummy freezer full. And be sure to try, also, this recipe for a super topping.

Homemade Ice Cream

2 cans Eagle Brand milk 1 pt. whipping cream
2 tablespoons vanilla Milk

Pour Eagle Brand milk and whipping cream into freezer container. Add vanilla and milk to full line on container. Stir and freeze as usual.

Caramel Nut Topping

½ cup brown sugar ½ cup dark Karo
¼ teaspoon soda 6 tablespoons water
Dash salt 1 tablespoon butter
One-third cup evap. milk One-third cup nuts
Cook brown sugar, Karo, soda, water, salt and butter over medium heat until soft ball forms when dropped in water (232 degrees). Cool to luke warm. Then beat in milk gradually and blend 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in nuts. Makes one and one-third cups.

Green Thumb Gems: If you would like to grow a pineapple plant in your home, here are the proper directions to follow to do so—

Cut the top off of a fresh pineapple, one inch into the fruit itself. Scrape out the loose pulp and let the top air-dry for a few days. Then place the top in a dish of moist peat moss until tiny roots begin to form. When good roots do form, pot the plant in a mixture of one-half potting soil and one-half sand. Add broken clay pieces to the bottom for good drainage. Keep the plant in a temperature of about 65 degrees. Give it plenty of sunlight and spray a few times a week.

Beauty Buds: Items of apparel you can cheat on (buy cheap) and get away with it, and those you can't—

- What you can cheat on
1. Summer shoes
 2. Evening dresses
 3. Jewelry, if you choose carefully
 4. Handbags
 5. Hats
 6. Underwear
 7. Summer cottons or synthetics
 8. Cosmetics
- What you can't cheat on
1. Girdles and bras
 2. Shoes
 3. Belts
 4. Tailored suits, coats, dresses
 5. Anything made of alligator or lizard
 6. Perfume
 7. Furs

Fragrant Spices: When God shuts a door, He opens a window.

Postmasters Pointers

SHOULD I NOTIFY THE POST OFFICE WHEN I GO ON VACATION?

If you receive home delivery, rural delivery or star route delivery, you should always notify your Postmaster. He will need to know when you leave and the day you will be back so he can deliver your mail that day. By holding your mail during your vacation, we can guarantee the security of your letters and packages.

I WILL BE LEAVING TOWN FOR APPROXIMATELY ONE MONTH. I AM NOT SURE WHAT DAY I WILL BE BACK.

Just let the Post Office know what day you are leaving. On the day you return just give us a call before 8:00 a.m. and we can bring you your mail that morning.

I HAVE A POST OFFICE BOX. SHOULD I NOTIFY THE POST OFFICE THAT I WILL BE ON VACATION?

A Post Office box holder is not required to notify us. When your box is full, we will bundle your mail and leave a notice to pick up the overflow at the window. In the Santa Anna Post Office, we like to know when you will be away for a time so we know no problem exists when you don't pick up your mail.

—Gary Absher, Postmaster

P.S. Please feel free to address your questions about Postal procedures or operation to this newspaper or Postmaster, Santa Anna.

It is in the air. It's getting that time of year again. You hear it on the radio, you see it in the newspaper ads, you see it on TV, you see it in stores. Yes, it's Back To School time, and some of the parents of the youths in our community are getting their heads together to celebrate the occasion with our annual Back-to-School carnival. The carnival is scheduled for Saturday, September 14. Let's all join in and help these youths raise money for their respective groups by attending the carnival for a night of fun.

We had a little shower last Wednesday evening, received about 3-10 of an inch of rain. Thursday morning was a cool one, but soon the temperature had climbed over 90 degrees. Friday was another warm day with a good shower during the evening, about a half inch of rain. The weekend was dry and hot. Monday and Tuesday were hot days also, 100 degrees or more.

SEE YOUR DOCTOR

Allergy Relief

If you are one of the one-in-six Americans who suffer from seasonal allergic rhinitis—the runny nose, sneezing, tearing and itching eyes of short-term allergies such as hay fever—you may have more reason than ever to see your doctor.

Your doctor may have new ways to battle hay fever and other allergies.

Doctors can now prescribe a new antihistamine that is made to avoid the drowsiness, mental dulling or sleepiness associated with older antihistamines.

In tests, patients were about as likely to feel sleepy on a placebo as on the antihistamine. Called terfenadine, the new product is made by Merrell Dow and sells under the name Seldane. According to the Food and Drug Administration, other currently available antihistamines apparently cause sedation by affecting the central nervous system. The new drug, however, hardly seems to penetrate that system at all so the sleepy feeling is not produced.

IT'S A FACT!

People have been trying, with more or less success, to best that pest the mosquito since prehistoric times.

THEN: Egyptians used netting and smudgepots to fight off mosquitos over 3,000 years ago. Others from the distant and not-so-distant past coated themselves with mud. Early Americans tried smearing their bodies with fat from bears, sheep or cattle and eating huge amounts of garlic.

NOW: Modern insect repellents work by confusing the mosquito's sensors, so the mosquito can't tell if you're worth biting. Since 1961, one repellent has been considered an effective weapon against biting insects. Called Cutter, it's available in a variety of forms — cream concentrate, aerosol spray and a stick along with the new non-aerosol pump spray and single use packets.
