Events Stated from Sunday to Wednesday

Methodist to Note Their 100th Year

The First United Methodist Church in Santa Anna will have special activities this weekend in observance of the 100th anniversary year of the church. In order to celebrate the historical aspects of the Methodist church in Santa Anna they will be celebrating their history for the four day celebration.

On Sunday, September 8, there will be a parade of horses and riders beginning at the Santa Anna City Park and concluding at the Methodist Church. One hundred years ago this was the accepted means of transportation. Bishop John Russell, Bishop of the Central and North Texas Conferences, will be leading the parade while riding in an old fashioned buckboard. Many United Methodists will join the parade while riding horses just as they would have done 100 years ago.

This will be a day of old fashioned dress so look for some unusual dress. The parade will begin at 10:35 a.m. and every church is invited to view the parade. The KTAB News team will be filming the procession.

If you are not a part of the Methodist church and you would like to be a part of the procession please call the Rev. Stephen Ramsdell. Community participation would add a great deal to this exciting day.

Bishop John Russell will be preaching during the 11:00 a.m. morning worship service. There will be special music honoring the day, solos, children's choir, and the adult choir will add a beautiful dimension to the day. There will be old fashioned singing to point the church to their foundations. Everyone is invited to attend while being encouraged to dress old fashioned.

After the worship service there will be a dinner on the grounds. Derri and Polly Warnock have provided

Aftergame Fellowship

FOOTNOTE TO METHODIST CENTENNIAL

A. W. Blue, father-in-law of Mrs. Mae Blue, came to Santa Anna in 1890 and started serving on the Administrative Board of the Church at that time. His son, the late Harry Blue, Mae's husband, served on the board until his death in 1960. Mrs. Blue has served for many years, and her granddaughter, Orabeth McIver and great-grandson, Reece McIver presently serve on the board. Thus, there has been a member of the Blue family on the board since 1890.

Pep Rally Friday 4:00

Mountaineers take Early

The scrimmage last Friday against Early went very well for the Santa Anna Mountaineers. The Mountaineers had 14 first downs against Early's 3; with 330 offensive yards while Early only had 44 offensive yards. Ramon Vasquez had 107 yards on 12 carries, while Craig Duquette had 78 yards on 9 carries. The Mountaineers had 2 scores while Early received none. Those scoring were Ramon Vasquez and Reece McIver. Shelby Tuttle was the Mountaineer defensive standout with 12 tackles with 3 assists. The Mountaineer defensive was secondary, but the team as a whole looked good!

This Friday night the Mountaineers will take on the Bangs Dragons at the Mountaineer Stadium. Coach

Privett stated the Bangs has a VERY good football team. "They throw well--look for them to pass." This game will involve a lot of tradition and the Mountaineers expect a very tough football game.

The Mountaineers NEED everyone in the community to support them this week and every week! Anyone attending the game should see a good football game played between the two teams.

The Mountaineers will have a pep rally Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. They would like to invite the whole community to join the efforts of the cheerleaders, the band, the student body and the booster club in this effort to get the team completely ready for Bangs!

The Wills Daniel Circle of the First United Methodist Church met at the Methodist Annex Monday, August 26, at 7 p.m. for a 30th anniversary program.

The business women of the Woman's Missionary Society (now called the Martha Group), decided in July 1956 to organize and meet in evening. The new circle was named to honor Wills Daniel.

Mrs. Margaret Crowe, chairman, welcomed the group and Mildred Galloway voiced the opening prayer. Dorothy Watson, hostess, and Mrs. Upchurch visited all to the laden refreshment table, covered with an ever-lace cloth, centered with the anniversary cake, topped with numerals, "30", a platter of smoked turkey delimits was surrounded by a variety of salads, chips and dips, melon balls and punch.

Mrs. Crowe conducted a Devotional on Communication. Mrs. Pat DeWitt was at the piano for group song, "Open Mine Eyes, That I May See." Cornelia Daugh read the minutes, which were approved.

Dorothy Watson visited a memorial for our deceased members. Mrs. Vera Newman, Evelyn Benge, Opal Little and Lillian Herndon; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crowe are the only ones having celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

CHAPTER 15

Many old-time cowmen started with nothing and went on to success. But Daniel Webster Wallace started with less than nothing; born a Negro slave, he had no education or financial backing, no assets at all but his fine mother's training and his good health.

His mother had been sold by Johnathan Miles to the parents of Mrs. Mary O'Daniels of Victoria shortly before he was born in 1860; after the emancipation, she and her little boy stayed on with Mrs. O'Daniels, and he learned farm and cattle work at an early age, attending the little neighborhood school for only a few months during his childhood.

He was about 16 when he left the fields forever. A herd of cattle was to leave the area for the headwaters of the Pecan Bayou, and the little boy slipped to the cow-camp and was hired for $15 a month and board. When the herd was turned on the open range in Coleman County, he had fifteen silver dollars, the most money he had ever had. Free to go back to Victoria, he rode instead to the ranch of Sam Gholson, on the Jim Ned, and worked there that summer. After a year on the NUN ranch on the Clear Fork of the Brazos, Wallace came back to the Jim Ned and rode for Clay Mann. As we have told earlier, the Mann headquarters was on a high point in the fork of Indian and Jim Ned creeks.

Clay Mann was a treasure of an employer. His criterions were ability and character, in which Wallace had fully qualified, and he became an expert roper, he knew how to train and to treat a horse, and he could out-think and out-manuever cow-brutes. He was never idle or lazy, and he was dependable. As winter passed, Wallace gathered up loose rocks from the hillsides and began building stout and high rock fences for the corrals.

For some years he rode the Mann range, learning to estimate the number of cattle in a herd, and helping to burn Mann's 80 brand on the side of thousands of cattle. Cowboys came and went, but Wallace became a fixture; for some reason, he was nicknamed John and on drives or in ranch work, he did his tasks exactly as Mann had taught him to do. He drew very little of his wages, and often this was to lend to one or another of the white cowboys who were broke.

80 John's judgement of herds became a legend. Mann once had an argument with another cowman as to the number of cattle in a herd passing by, a bet was offered, which Mann would accept, provided that John could make his estimate. The other man bet there were 5000, but John said no, only 4700; Mann took the bet, and when the herd was counted, there were 4730.

At another time, Mann had $30,000 in gold money which he owed to the Crosstie Ranch at Midland, and he asked John to ride there and pay it.

Gold money is a beautiful sight. Once when this writer was in Yucatan, the idea came to buy a piece of Mexican gold money for a souvenir, and in a big bank in the city of Merida a tray of the pieces was brought for a selection. The dark velvet tray seemed alive with white and yellow fire, glittering and gleaming, a sight that few people will ever see.

80 John rode alone and camped alone, laying the bags of gold money casually near his bedroll at night, until he delivered the fortune at the Crosstie.

Back at the ranch, the fine rock fences were extended to include more corrals and then a half-section horse pasture. In 1884, Mann sold the ranch to young J.P. Moris, and moved the cattle with the 80 brand to open range in Howard County.

80 John went along, his devotion to his employer by now proverbial. "You have been working for Clay for so long," said one of the cowboys, "I'll bet you have the 80 brand on your hide."

"I 'spect I have," said the good natured John. One day Mann said to him, "John, you'll never be anything but a rancher; you have lots of money saved up, so why don't you buy some of this land while it is cheap?"

John accepted this suggestion, paying cash for his first two sections. However he was realizing by now his need for more learning, and when someone told him about a good school in Navarro County, he decided to go there entering the second grade at the age of 25. Determined to learn, he spent two winters in this school, studying hard at spelling and arithmetic, mastering grade after grade. At the end of the second term he had completed all that the school could give him, and also had persuaded a fine young girl graduate of the school that instead of becoming a teacher she should go with him to his ranch as his wife. The good qualities of character of this girl, Laura Owens, and his prudence and success as a ranchman made them an example to everyone. As money accumulated, Wallace bought more and more land, always paying cash; he gave land and money for schools and other community projects, and all three of their daughters became teachers. The only son died on May 3, 1946.

The Wallace ranch was a show place, with good cattle, well-built houses and barns and a beautiful home. The discovery of oil on the ranch made the family even richer and Wallace more generous in helping with civic projects.

At his death in 1939, he left many hundreds of fine cattle, 1200 acres in cotton, and much other cropland and pasture. A daughter, Hetty Wallace Branch, has written a biography of her father. "The story of 80 John," now out of print and quite valuable. Unfortunately, she never knew of the years he spent on the Jim Ned or of the beautiful rock fences, some of which remain to this day, at the headquarters of the Rafter 3 Ranch where J.P. Miller, grandson and namesake of J.P. Moris, makes his home.

In the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, "80 John" Wallace, who started with less than nothing is given a prominent place.

Mountaineer Black Magic. . . Get Involved!

The Santa Anna Athletic Booster Club has begun its annual membership drive. As the club name implies, the membership is for anyone who enjoys sports and wishes to support the athletic programs of the Santa Anna Schools in an active and productive manner.

The club emphasizes that it is in existence to support all phases of the athletic program and is active throughout the school year.

The Booster Club is certainly an organization for those who wish to be involved. They are always busy with activities and fundraising projects to help provide the extras for the athletic program that can not always be provided from the school budget.

For many years, the Booster Club has provided drinks at the half-time of the Jr. High and High School football games for the team members. They also pay for the printing of the game programs that are sold at all the home games. The Jr. High Cheerleaders sell the programs and receive the proceeds for their activities.

Other annual projects have been the selling of such items as jackets, caps, t-shirts, stadium cushions, etc., all in effort to boost Mountaineer spirit and to raise funds to benefit the programs.

For several years, the club sponsored the Ex's football game in conjunction with the Bangs Booster club and held each year on the Saturday following Thanksgiving.

Evidence of Booster club projects are found thru-out the school facilities. Several years ago they purchased the Universal Gym equipment found in the weight room of Perry Gymnasium. For many years they furnished the film and paid for the developing of the game film, which was a big help to the coaches and teams. This proved to be a very costly project and two years ago the club purchased a video camera and VHS-VCR system for the filming purposes. The system has also been used by other groups such as the band for filming marching contests and the like.

The Booster club was instrumental in developing an interest in the construction of the all weather track that surrounds the football field. Members provided many man hours of labor during the construction and some individual members furnished heavy equipment at no charge to help with the project.

The newer tennis courts built at the same time as the track. This past year, the club made a sizable contribution toward the cost of the new scoreboard for the football field.

Also last year, several ladies from the club gave the bleachers and goalposts at the field a facelift with a new paint job.

The biggest money making project for the club is always the Jr. High and High School track meet held early each spring which the Booster Club sponsors. It is at that time when the club solicits much help from parents and others as it is quite a large undertaking and everyone is need to make it a success. When you are called on to help, remember that all proceeds are used to benefit all of the schools sporting events.

Highlight of the Booster Club year is the all-sports banquet given in honor of all the athletes and their coaches each spring. The meal is provided free of charge to the coaches and athletes and meal tickets sold to others attending occasionally allow the club to break even on the affair.

Robert Pritchard is the president of the Athletic Booster Club and Danny Keller is the vice-president. Secretary-treasurer for the group is Margaret Pritchard. A newly formed spirit committee of Roberta Tomlinson, Mary Ann Hartman, and Orabeth McIver will be working toward developing ideas and activities for fostering Mountaineer spirit.

Mary Ann and Roberta have been responsible for the painting of new signs at the Football field and at the entrance to the school parking lot. These signs project the theme of the Mountaineer Black Magic. The ladies have also made an 8 foot by 4 foot black and gold, Santa Anna Mountaineer banner which will be on display at all sporting events of the school and at band marching contests.

The spirit committee is urging other organizations and businesses to display similar banners in support of the mountaineers.

The Booster Club feels that athletics play a vital part in the education process thru the discipline learned, the winning attitude gained and the enthusiasm developed and parents and others can play an important part by supporting the athletes thru the club and by attending the games.

The club will be meeting each Tuesday night at 7:00pm at the Telephone Coop meeting room on North 2nd street. You are invited and encouraged to attend and help to make this a great year for the Mountaineers.

What about BLACK MAGIC? Ask any team Mountaineer or member of the Booster Club! SEE YOU AT THE GAME FRIDAY NIGHT!!

It is still dry and hot

The first day of school is a memorable one for all of us. Some of us carry happy memories of that significant day; others don't remember it quite so fondly.

A brand new box of crayons, a bright, yellow pencil, freshly sharpened, a new red tassel with wide spaces between the lines, all packed neatly in a new school satchel or back-pack (depending on how recent that first day was). These are treasured items we each carried into our very first classroom.

But without a doubt, the single most vital element, the determining factor in our liking or not liking school, was waiting for us in that classroom - our teacher. The pivotal person who would greet us each school day for the next nine months. The person who, without a doubt, would determine, possibly for the rest of our lives, our whole attitude toward school.

Not enough can be said about the impact that a 'first teacher' can have on a small child. Normally, a child's first day at school is one of emotional stress and strain, in spite of ample preparation on the part of the parents. So often, the anticipation of the 'unknown' which lies before them can be overwhelming.

The excitement of going someplace they've heard about all their young lives, the eagerness associated with the whole learning process, day after day, the time the fear of leaving home to spend a good part of their day where mommy isn't, all can add up to one gigantic emotional experience for a rather small, insecure human person.

So, the teacher that greets this young, impressionable child has a heavy burden of responsibility to reckon with.

Ideally, he or she will be 'called' into the profession, so to speak. For the all-important task of molding a human life is theirs. Surely the awesomeness of the job ahead demands devoted, dedicated, and above all, loving teachers. God grant us such!

Household Hints:

- (1) Keep your spices in alphabetical order on the shelf, and always put them back again in the same place.
- (2) When you've started out the door and you notice that your hem is coming undone, you can fix it temporarily with cellophane tape.
- (3) If your shoes are slick on the bottom and could cause you to take a tumble, it's a good idea to put strips of adhesive tape on the shoes' bottoms. It saves bruises and even broken bones.

Scents from the kitchen: With the start of school, we all look for quick and easy meals that appeal to everyone. Here's a 'fun' recipe that is a sure winner with all the family.

Corny Dogs

- 1/2 cup cornmeal
 - 1/2 cup flour
 - 1 T. sugar
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1 pkg. frankfurters
 - 1/2 t. salt
 - 3/4 t. baking powder
 - 1 T. melted shortening
 - 1 egg
 - Hot cooking oil
- Mix all ingredients together, except frankfurters, about 30 minutes before ready to serve. Cube frankfurters, spear, coat with batter, and cook in hot oil until lightly brown. You can serve these with —

Mustard Sauce

- One-third t. dry mustard
- 1 egg
- 2 T. water
- Two-thirds cup mayonnaise
- One-third cup vinegar
- One-third cup sugar
- Dash salt

Place dry mustard in small mixing bowl. Slowly stir in vinegar and blend thoroughly. Let stand covered for a few hours. Beat egg in top of double boiler; add sugar, salt, mustard mixture and water. Place over hot (not boiling) water (water should not touch the bottom of pan) and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool thoroughly. At serving time, combine with mayonnaise, using a rotary beater or wire whisk. Makes about one and one-third cups.

Green Thumb Gems: Now that summer is beginning to fade, it's time to plan your gardening for next year. Decide on the bulbs to plant soon; get the evergreens; clean up the flower borders; order new roses. Many things can be planted as well in the fall as in the spring. Try to make these calm, beautiful days of fall count.

Beauty Buds: When you are choosing a new color of lipstick, it's good to keep in mind the color of your teeth. The right shade of lipstick can make them look whiter. Teeth differ in their pigments. If yours tend toward the yellow-orange stripe of the spectrum, an orange-red lipstick will make them look more so. You might ask your dentist what color family your teeth belong to.

Fragrant Spices: Folks who never do any more than they get paid for, never get paid for any more than they do.
