The following boys are the lucky ones:

Adolphus Ashmore, Willard Wilson, Oran Henderson, Thom- as Blanton, Sealy Ferguson, Bernice Calloway, Burton Gregg, Harold Howard, C. C. Blatley, Leon Copeland, Lewis Evans, Darlin Brewer, Floyd Battles, Eugene Ferguson, and George Huss.

These boys have all handed in their applications and are full standing F. F. A. members now. Each boy was voted on separately, and the vote was passed by a majority every time. These boys are all regu- larly enrolled in the Vocational Agriculture classes and have a satisfactory Supervised Pro- gram of farming. In unison, all of them recited the Future Farmer Creed from memory. Each boy is to earn or pro- ductively invest $25.00 from his projects.

The F. F. A. Chapter wel- comes all these new members. They are now fully qualified to go anywhere the Chapter goes and attend everything that is sponsored by the local chapter.

The Chapter is planning to have a Father and Son Banquet in the near future. All these new members are expected to have a large part in this.

HUMOR AND INTELLIGENCE

The statement has been ad- vanced that one's reaction to jokes fairly accurately reveals the measure of one's intelli- gence. In support of this in- teresting contention, a rather impressive argument is built up, based on the assumption that at the bottom of almost every joke there is a species of cruel- ty—that the smile of amuse- ment is but the animal snarl of satisfaction in another's mis- fortune.

The fact is pointed out that the child laughs when an adult fails; that the jokes that amuse us most concern ignorance, mis- fortune or embarrassment; that a group of girls of young adult age, given a test in this field, laughed at jokes based on someboby's misfortune.

The humor of comic draw- ings, movie dialogue and van- derbilt skits is a broad and simple humor, designed to amuse everyone. It serves the purpose but it may bore bright minds.

A joke that amuses the read- er of headlines is lost on the one who reads editorial pages. The teacher of psychology who gave the joke test at a leading girls' college discovered that the girls least amused were the brightest.

This does not indicate that the sense of humor decreases as intelligence increases, but merely that common jokes, bas- ically designed to amuse the un- keen-eyed, will necessarily win the appreciation of bright minds.

To be appreciated a joke must contain some thing unexpected. But the quality of the joke de- pends wholly on the listener, so that the same jest delights the simple because his point surprised them, dismisses the bright because his intent was obvious to them, and puzzles the stupid because the meaning is obscure.

Your reaction to the joke gives the measure of your wit. If you are stupid, you fail to laugh because you can't see the point. If you are bright, you get the point and chuckle. If you see the point and remain unamused, you are too bright to enjoy a commonplace world.

DEMONSTRATOR STORIES

Mrs. Carl Ashmore, yard demonstrator of the Santa Anna Home Demonstration Club, has taken up all of the roses from the beds around her house and placed them in her rose garden. She realized that roses need an entirely different type of cultivation from other shrubs and should have a separate bed all to themselves.

good care Mrs. Ashmore is giving her roses she should have beautiful roses this spring. "The rock walks that have been laid in my yard are both attractive and very satisfactory," remarked Mrs. L. E. Abernathy, yard demonstrator of the Rockwood Home Demonstration Club. She had a flagstone walk from the front steps to the gate and stepping stone walks from the back door to both the back and side gates.

Therefore, it is possible for every home to have attractive walks for a little work and no outlay of money.

LIKE A BEACON

Even in this day of enlightenment, some folks spend their money blindly. They buy with their eyes closed. They grope in the dark as truly as if their eyes were covered with bandages.

And all the time a powerful light is being thrown on the very things they need and want. Advertising is a beacon to guide you in buying. It shows you what to buy—where to buy—and when to buy. At the same time it protects you against fraud and inferiority.

Merchants who advertise deliberately focus thousands of eyes upon their merchandise. Their values must be honest and their prices right, or they will not advertise successfully.

Don't play blind man's buff with the elusive dollar. Spend a few minutes running through every issue of this paper. Then buy the things that have proved up in the light of advertising.

AVIATIONS FUTURE

Is the aircraft manufacturing industry going to become one of the giants of our business world, comparable to the auto industry—or will it remain relatively small, all paying good dividends but attaining no great size?

A good many people—investors, bankers, promoters and others—would like to know the answer. If the manufacturer of airplanes is going to develop as the manufacturers of automobiles did, some men are going to make tremendous fortunes.

Many surveys have been made in an effort to determine the answer to this question. The gist of them all seems to be that the future of the aircraft manufacturing industry depends largely on the growth of private flying.

Commercial airlines will continue to grow. But when these get once established, their annual demand for planes will not be very large. Even today, with all the extensive network of air mail express and passenger lines in operation, transport companies own less than 10 per cent of the total number of airplanes in the country.

Military demands, except in time of war, or other unusual situations, cannot be expected to boom the industry to any appreciable higher point than it now occupies.

There remains, then, the question of private planes, owned as automobiles are now owned, by individuals who look for pleasure and recreation.

If this branch of aviation once takes hold, then the aircraft manufacturer will begin designing new factories and hiring more workers and such stocks will rise accordingly.

OUTSIDE BOOSTING

Talking with one another in our own community about what a fine place this is to live does some good but mostly is a waste of time. It is like looking at ourselves in the mirror.

Instead of boosting within, what more of us need to do is to boost without; tell others about our community and its good attributes.

It is a natural conclusion that everyone living here believes the future of this community else they would change residence. On this premise there is wasted breath to endeavor to convince anyone that this is the best place on earth to live and make a living if that person already lives here.

The wisest course for the true booster is to tell others about the good qualities of his home, not boastfully, but intelligently and interestingly.

Some well meaning people are shy about mentioning the home town when away. The residents of some communities, and in some instances, states, have a reputation for never failing to say a good word for home. And countless instances might be cited where they have been rewarded for their persistence.

In the Malay Islands the period of the year when Venus is observed closest to the moon is regarded as the most opportune time for marriage proposals.

Nearly 20 per cent of all roads in Ohio are surfaced for all-weather use, while the average for the nation is less than 10 per cent.
