Fannie's Funnies
By Fannie Gilbert

A man rushed into a hardware store and hurriedly told the clerk, "I need a mouse trap." The clerk replied, "I'll be with you in a minute." The customer replied, "Please hurry, I have to catch a bus." The clerk said, "I'm sorry but I don't have a trap that big."

Wife: "Why are you home so early dear?" Husband: "The boss fired me today on account of illness." Wife: "I don't get it." Husband: "He said he was sick of me."

"Guess what? My brother has a wooden leg!" "That's nothing. My sister has a cedar chest!"

A lady buying a piano asked the salesman "How come the keys are so yellow." The salesman replied, "The elephant was a heavy smoker."

Why is a room full of married people like an empty room.

Swanner seeks Democratic nomination

Joseph B. (Joe) Swanner, former regional director for the Economic Development Administration, has announced he will seek the Democratic nomination for the Texas House of Representatives, District 65.

Swanner, a resident of Brownwood, said in his announcement "This district (which includes Brown, Coleman, Eastland, McCullough, Comanche & Runnels Counties) badly needs full-time representation in Austin, and I am dedicated to that goal."

A former aid to Congressman O.C. Fisher, Swanner said he believes state government spending "can be cut, and we can do that without harming services now being rendered and without new taxes."

"I plan to spend all my time between now and election day going to the voters of this district and listening, so that I can become their voice in Austin."

"I am not a lawyer," Swanner said, "but with the experience I have in government I know how the system works, and I can 'hit the ground running.' I will always vote the way this district feels."

Swanner had been a management consultant since his retirement from the federal government. During his tenure as EDA administrator he was responsible for five states: Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

He holds a BBA degree from Howard Payne University, Brownwood, and also a B.S. degree from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, N.Y.

He has received numerous citations, including the U.S. Department of Commerce Special Achievement Award and Departmental Management Award and Bonus in 1983. He also served on the board of trustees at Howard Payne.

He resides at 1801 Slayden St., Brownwood.

Don't Let Your Children Burn!

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a five-part weekly series by Dr. Gary S. Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, designed to help parents teach their children and themselves how to survive a house fire.)

A child who has had the opportunity to practice what to do in a fire has a much better chance of surviving a real fire. Below are two of six drills offered in this series, designed to teach children how to survive a fire.

After the first try, these "fire drills" can be tested during the day or after children are in bed at night by using the signal "FIRE!" In the fifth part of this series, a final "rookie" examination will be presented to determine whether your children qualify as "firemen."

A drill called "Don the Gas Masks" teaches children about poisonous gases which are the true killers in fires.

Pretend the house is filling with smoke and that you must get out as quickly as possible. In all the drills stress immediate escape. Yell "Smoke!" and have the children wherever they are—in bedrooms, living room, kitchen—grab a pillow or several thicknesses of fluffy material such as a towel and place it over their mouths and noses. The cloth won't filter out poisonous gases in smoke but will relieve some of the irritating effects of inhaling smoke. Then have the children move as fast as they can, keeping close to the floor where the air is best. They should avoid deep breaths.

Emphasize the fact that smoke, not flames, is the Number One Killer in fire. It contains large quantities of carbon monoxide and a dozen or so other poisonous gases from burning materials. By far the majority of fire victims are asphyxiated by smoke gases long before flames ever touch them. Sometimes poisonous smoke can knock you unconscious after two or three breaths and can kill you in a few minutes. Smoke always rises, making upper floors where bedrooms are located the greatest fire traps. Be sure children know that wherever there is smoke there is potential death—so get to fresh air fast.

The next drill is called "Hot Door, Cold Door." As part of "basic training," firemen learn the dangers of opening a door in a fire. It's something your child must know too. Teach him never to fling open a bedroom door if he suspects fire. He should apply this test. Put his hand on the door panel and knob. If either is warm, he should not open the door, for heat and gases are on the other side ready to burst in. One lungful of superheated air can feel a person instantly. He must leave the door closed and make his escape another way.

If the door doesn't feel warm, he should brace himself against it, open it a crack and be ready to slam it should smoke or heat rush in. If all is clear, he can proceed through the door with caution.

Make sure young firemen practice this routine until they have it down pat. As a fire drill is being announced, slip a sign under the closed door reading "hot" or "cold" while youngsters react appropriately. Also, make it a ritual to close bedroom doors at night unless they would prevent a bedroom fire from setting off a fire detector located in a hallway. Tests have shown that behind a closed door your survival time is from 5 to 11 minutes. With the door open the survival time is only 1 minute. Ideally each bedroom should contain an audible fire detector.

Part 3 of this series provides training in two more drills designed to teach children how to survive a fire.

Words are inadequate to express what I feel in my heart for the marvelous outpouring of love you have shown Mac and me.

"Thank You" seems so small, but I do "Thank You," each and everyone who participated in the Chili Benefit for Mac. To those who came, businesses that donated and those who worked so hard to bring it all about.

You have been so wonderful, so caring.

A special "Thank You" to the Lions Club and Delta Omicron of ESA of Santa Anna for sponsoring the supper.

God Bless each of you!

WTU's Energy Saving Plan...

...Your Framework for Energy Savings.

The Energy Saving Plan

Start building your framework for energy savings by participating in WTU's Energy Saving Plan. Below are just a few of the ways you can save with E.S.P. For additional information about the Energy Saving Plan, call your local WTU office.

Save Money in Bills!

You can save up to twenty-six percent in home energy bills a year with an E.S.P. Home. An average 1800 square foot home will cost approximately $775 a year to heat and cool. The same size E.S.P. Home will only cost about $570 a year to heat and cool. That's an annual savings of over $200! (Energy savings may vary with the type of home, family size and individual energy usage habits.)

Get a Cash Bonus!

WTU will pay you $110 per ton when you install an electric heat pump in your home. WTU will also pay cash bonuses for heat pump window units, energy-efficient air conditioners, heat recovery units for electric water heaters, and solar-assisted electric water heaters in new or existing single-family homes. To qualify for the bonus program, your home must meet all of the E.S.P. requirements and be served by WTU.

Increase Your Resale Value

If you decide to sell your E.S.P. Home in the future, you can expect a higher resale value because your home IS E.S.P.-qualified. That means lower energy bills to any prospective home buyer.

Remember REDDY Supplies the energy-- but only YOU can use it wisely!
