State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Maps, babies, gavels and bullets dominated state news last week.

■ The U.S. Supreme Court rocked the Texas Democratic Party by upholding court-drawn redistricting maps which apparently favor Republicans;

■ The High Court also ruled that state legislatures have the right to restrict abortions, thus bringing the abortion battle to Texas.

■ Gov. Ann Richards was named chairwoman of the Democratic National Convention opening next week in New York; and

■ The Texas Federation of Teachers proposed a tax on bullets — one cent per shell — to raise $300 million next year to pay for security and anti-violence measures in public schools.

Earlier, Attorney General Dan Morales, a Democrat, got the U.S. Justice Department to drop its objections to an 11th hour redistricting plan by the Texas Legislature.

Heartened, he asked the justices to install it and change the political boundary lines for the 1992 elections.

They didn't, and last week Morales admitted that his fight to maintain Democrat supremacy was over for awhile.

Richards: No Veep Slot

Gov. Richards, who vaulted to national party prominence with her convention keynote attack on George Bush in 1988, will now have even more air time before the American public.

And while the voters are checking her out, she has checked herself out of vice presidential contention.

She said her convention chairmanship should end speculation that she will be Gov. Bill Clinton's running mate.

State Claims Private Land

About 150 stunned families in Austin and Fort Bend counties are upset with Land Commissioner Garry Mauro for claiming a one-third state ownership in 5,000 acres of their farms and homelands.

Mauro's position is that one of the land's three original settlers forfeited his share to the state in 1830, and he cannot ignore that the state still owns it.

Three months ago, Mauro wrote landowners a letter telling them to "reduce ownership interest that you claim by one-third." Many families have owned their land, free and clear they thought, for more than 100 years.

A spokesman said Mauro was advised of the title glitch by an oil company which wanted to drill there.

Last week, Mauro told the landowners he will seek a constitutional amendment to remedy the title.

Did Mauro Lie?

Meanwhile, Mauro was criticized by the media for apparently lying when he said he did not know his state employees were using state phones and equipment to campaign for Clinton.

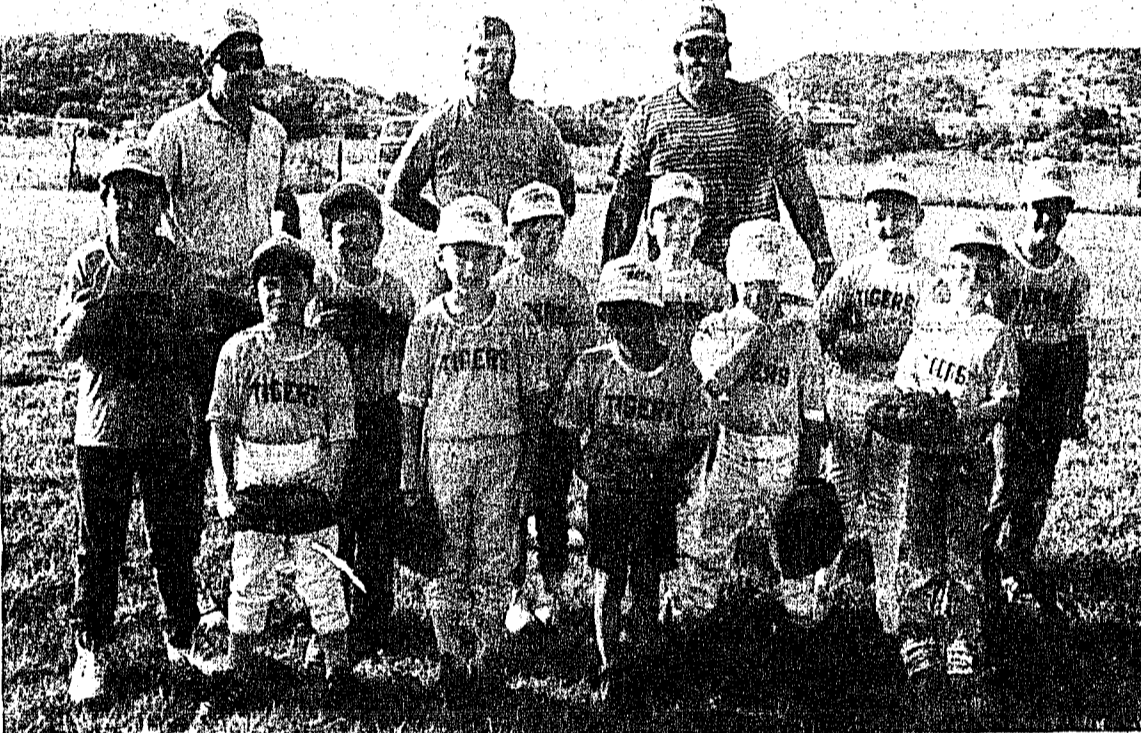

Mauro, who is Clinton's Texas campaign manager, may have misled his own audit team probing the alleged abuse, according to published reports in the Houston Chronicle.

Treasury Saves $5 Million

The Texas Treasury, using a new tax-exempt commercial paper program, will save the state an estimated $5 million by Aug. 31, said Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Although Texas has a balanced budget by law and will end the fiscal year on Aug. 31, 1992 with a cash balance in excess of $200 million, the general revenue fund routinely has temporary cash flow deficits throughout the year.

Local Youngster Participates In HPU Scholars Program

Young Scholar, Derek Little

Derek Little was one of forty eight students who recently attended a unique learning atmosphere as members of the Summer Scholars Program at Howard Payne University.

Summer Scholars is a program designed for students in grades four through six and was conducted by HPU's continuing education department. The two week program gave the children personalized teaching in Spanish, computers, music, science, geography and swimming.

According to Dr. Jean Law, director of continuing education at HPU the program is designed with the gifted/talented students in mind but any student may apply. Students attending must have their principal's recommendation before joining.

There were 16 children in each class which meant each child received a lot of personal attention.

Classes are more centered more on activities than sitting at a desk and having the teacher write on the chalkboard. The students actually participate in the learning process. The Journeys class produced videos and travel brochures to take home while in Science several projects were completed.

Santa Anna resident Susan Daniel, a teacher in the Brownwood Independent School District, was one of the teachers for the program. She taught Journeys.

Derek is the son of Dale and Carol Herring.

Mrs. Jean McClellan took Library Reading Club members on a visit to Okinawa. This is a very small island off the south end of Japan. Jean and her family lived there as missionaries.

The McClellan home sat high on a cliff and they could look out the windows to the Pacific Ocean on one side and the China Sea on the other. The family could swim most all year.

The three girls went to school in an international school but were required to read and write in Japanese. It is against the law to speak or write the Okinawan language. Schools last all year and pupils wear uniforms. One of the girls favorite snacks was chocolate bread. This comes from the time when Spain ruled the island.

All our boys and girls want to have a bed like Jean's. It folds and was put into a closet--no bedmaking. The house had only a few low tables and pillows and walls that could move. Everyone ate with chopsticks. Jean showed several household items, pictures and answered questions.

The local lizards called geckos lived in the roofs of houses. They served a purpose for they kept out insects. The girls made them pets and gave them names.

Thanks to Jean for the "Voyage of Discovery".

Betty Key, Donna Tomme, Marilyn Bryce and Patsy Starr told or read stories to the groups. Junior Leaders Kathy Walrus, Jamie Ellis and Patsy Starr helped the boys and girls make origami (folded paper) cats or dogs. Members can go to the library and try to make other pieces if they wish. Jamie Ellis has made the most of the different ones illustrated in the book. Go look at them and try your hand.

Aaron Guthrie took pictures of everything happening.

Sybil Eubank came to our library helpers when one of our library helpers was ill. We appreciated her last minute rescue. Cam Slagle and Charee Halmon helped 30 children and the junior leaders to check out 84 books.

Members brought their reading record and had read enough time to participate in the drawing. Local merchants contributed prizes.

Thoughts From Our Pastors

Waide Messer
First Baptist Church

'Ye have been called unto liberty'

God has called each of us to be Christian citizens involved in government, but some in different ways from others.

"Ye have been called unto liberty," the apostle Paul told the Galatians (5:13). He spoke of spiritual liberty: freedom to know God personally by faith in Christ, freedom to make biblical choices and to act of them.

But the "Call to Liberty" also reminds us of the political freedom we enjoy in our republic. The freedom of self-government is a blessing of God. The Call to Liberty is a call to Christian citizenship and responsibility.

Was Jesus involved in public issues and government? True, He never ran for public office, and he did say that His Kingdom was not of this world. But he never told His followers to be "so heavenly minded" as to be "no earthly good."

Jesus often talked about public issues with diverse groups such as the Herodians, Pharisees and Zealots. He talked about paying taxes (Matt. 22:21). He commented on the character of public figures (Luke 13:32). He boldly confronted Pilate with the moral issues of ultimate truth and government authority (John 18:28; 19:11). He charged His followers to be "salt and light" in society (Matt. 5:13-16).

Old Testament prophets regularly preached to kings and rulers about justice and morally righteous living (1 Kings 21). John the Baptist publicly exposed herod's sin (Matt. 14:4). The apostle Paul makes clear the government is God's idea and part of His plan for prompting good and restraining evil (Rom. 13). He said we should pray for our rulers (1 Tim. 2:2). He did not hesitate to assert his own rights of citizenship (Acts 22:25).

The First Amendment encourages Christian citizens to engage in public forum about Bible-based values. It guarantees our right to participate, along with people of other world views. Christians should be working to elect good public officials and also working for good laws through our local, state and national governments. We may disagree on politics and candidates. But each Christian should seek to base his or her views and votes upon the values revealed in the Word of God.

Involvement in public issues is no substitute for a personal relationship with Christ. Evangelism and discipleship are our primary goals. But mature discipleship will include good citizenship. We must be both salt and light. Light illuminates spiritual truth. Salt helps preserve His creation from decay.

Has God called you to be involved in government? Yes! Our Constitution permits it. Our Call to Liberty demands it.

Hospital District Board Officially Named

In session Monday morning members of Coleman County Commissioners Court canvassed the returns for the hospital tax district election and affirmed the totals of 1640 votes for and 1275 against.

The Court also appointed temporary directors as had been listed in the petition seeking the election. This group will serve until May, 1993 when all members will be elected to staggered terms. Judge Pete Skelton pointed out that the Court was required by law to appoint the temporary directors as listed on the petition. They are Janet Johnson, James Barr, Clyde Allen, Don Rhone, Virginia Jamison, Bruce Pittard and Danny Keller.

The board plans to meet some time this week in an organizational session. The Holiday Hill interim board is operating the hospital until the new board begins to function.

Correction

In last week's report on the hospital tax district election, the Santa Anna vote should have been 252 against and 46 for the tax. A typing error reflected the opposite. Local people knew the difference but those readers from other areas may not.

You Can Do Something About Summer Allergies

Hay fever is one of those odd names: It's not caused by hay and it doesn't cause a fever. But to the estimated 30-40 million Americans who sneeze through the summer, allergic rhinitis (to give it its proper name) is a real illness.

Most people who suffer from allergies are allergic to things that come from the outdoors. About 10 percent of allergy sufferers can blame the ragweed and ryegrass that pollinate in the late summer. July and August mark the peak of the allergy season. But there are several things you can do to reduce your suffering. Here are some tips from Research Products Corporation, maker of Space-Gard high efficiency air cleaners:

- Avoid outdoor activities first thing in the morning. Many plants release their pollen between 5 a.m. and 10 a.m., so pollen levels may be highest then.
- Do not hang sheets and bedding outdoors to dry. Even though sun-dried sheets smell and feel great, they may also collect a load of pollen and other allergens when hung outdoors.
- Keep your house closed up, especially during the morning hours when pollen may be more prevalent.
- Consider central air conditioning for your home. Air conditioners alone with conventional filters aren't very efficient at filtering air, but they do allow you to close up your house and still stay comfortable. If your air conditioner allows you to recirculate indoor air instead of bringing in pollen-laden outdoor air, use the recirculating feature.
- Add a high efficiency, non-electronic air cleaner to your heating and cooling system. A high efficiency air cleaner removes up to University are studying 600 pigs hoping to discover why they live happily with melanomas, a cancer that kills three out of four humans who develop it.

The Sinclair breed of pigs usually have this type of skin tumor when they are very young. For reasons unknown, however, only one of ten cases is fatal.

Melanoma is particularly dangerous for the 600,000 humans who are diagnosed with it each year because the tumors tend to metastasize, or spread throughout the body. The melanoma cells also metastasize in the pigs, but then stop growing. Some pigs covered with melanoma have survived eight years.

Turner Co-Sponsors 'Stalking' Bill

State Representative Bob Turner of Voss has agreed to co-sponsor legislation to protect Texas against potential attacks by "stalkers".

The legislation was unveiled June 4 by Representative Brian McCall, R-Plano, who will introduce it during the next regular legislative session in January.

The bill closes a loophole in Texas law by making stalking a criminal offense, thus allowing law enforcement officials to intervene when a potential victim, typically a woman, is followed, harassed or threatened by an estranged spouse, boyfriend or other individual.

"I am extremely pleased with the overwhelming bipartisan support being shown for this important legislation by Representative Turner and others," McCall said. "With their support, I am confident we can pass this legislation next year and give stalking victims potentially life-saving legal protection."

Under the bill persons who repeatedly follow or harass another and make threats that cause the victim to fear death or serious bodily injury could be charged with a Class A misdemeanor punishable by up to a $3,000 fine or up to one year in jail or both. The crime would be upgraded to a third degree felony if the person convicted had stalked the victim in violation of a court order prohibiting him or her from harassing the victim or if the defendant had been convicted of an offense against the same person within the past seven years. A third degree felony is punishable by up to 10 years in prison/or up to a $10,000 fine.

Law enforcements officials, prosecutors, victims organizations, Texas Medical Association and others are supporting the measure.

Twenty states already have anti-stalking laws and similar legislation is under debate in twelve others.

tegrity, and intelligence—all of which are lacking in the current leadership." During Foley's reign, there have been continuous scandals in the House of Representatives including allegations of illegal conduct in the House Bank and Post Office.

The latest scandal involves a luxury "bunker" under the prestigious Greenbrier Hotel in West Virginia. Not only did Foley try to hide its existence from most Members of Congress and the public, but soon after he became Speaker in 1989 negotiations began for expansion and renovations of the private congressional hideaway.

Founded in 1980 by renowned financial advisor and publisher Howard Ruff, Free The Eagle has successfully worked for a strong foreign policy and economic liberty. Free The Eagle urges citizens to join its campaign by calling (202) 546-2815 and requesting Free The Eagle's "Foley Pink-Slip Action Package."

Red and white "Stenholm for Speaker" buttons, distributed by Free The Eagle, have begun popping up on Capitol Hill and around Washington. According to U.S. News and World Report, members of Congress are now sporting the buttons on the inside of their lapels ("Washington Whispers", July 29, 1992) and support for the Stenholm bid is growing.

"Congressman Stenholm is the obvious replacement for Foley" said Free The Eagle Director Tammy J. Lyles. "He's shown leadership, in-

FOR WOMEN

Eight Steps To Salon-Style Pedicure At Home

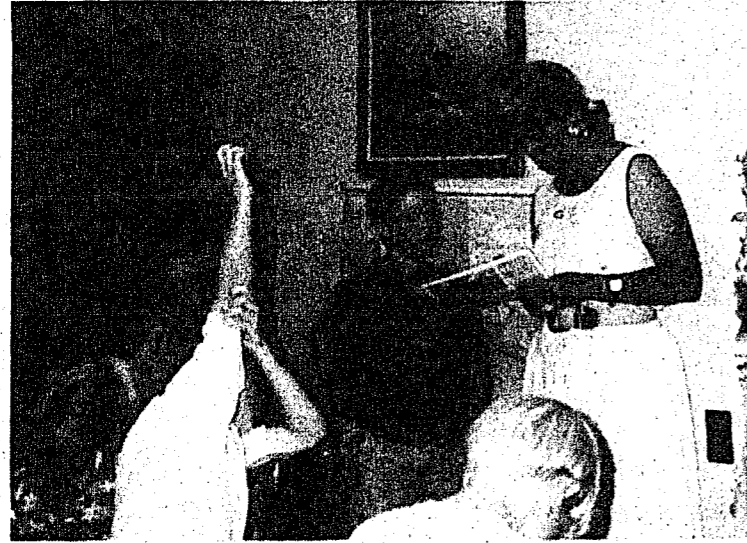

It's a fact that more and more women are on their feet in the work force. Add to that an abundance of stylishly uncomfortable high-heeled shoes, and an increased emphasis on exercise, and it's easy to see why so many women find pedicures a necessity to keep over-worked feet healthy.

Here's an easy, step-by-step home pedicure guide to keep your feet looking and feeling great.

- Begin pedicure with a relaxing foot bath. Soak feet for 15 minutes in foot bath.
- With a nail brush, gently massage around each nail and under toenails.
- Using a moistened pumice stone, massage hardened areas to remove rough skin.
- Cut toenails straight across to uniform length.
- Massage feet with lotion to soften.
- For the finishing touch, prepare feet for polishing. Wipe each toenail with nail polish remover.
- Apply nail polish, using foam toe separators to keep toes apart for smudge-free result.
- To keep feet pretty and healthy, give yourself a relaxing foot bath at least once a week.

Bottom Line
Texas A&M's new goal is not only to educate its graduates, but to teach them how to crash the job market.

This fall, the school will offer Reality 101—a seminar designed to make freshman and sophomore students aware that they need to start thinking about preparing for the job market while they're still learning.

It's a part of the program of Aggieland's new Career Center. Dr. Wayne Terrell, the acting director, says students will be taught the importance of achieving high grades, acquiring related work experience, and developing personal skills.

The new Center will operate three divisions to aid students—Career Education, Cooperative Education and Placement Services.

Great Outdoor Grilling

Summertime is best spent outdoors. It's a time when everything comes back to life including our zeal for delicious outdoor entertaining.

The best way to achieve the flavor of the great outdoors in our foods is to cook our meals on the backyard grill. However, simply grilling a chicken breast or steak over the coals isn't enough anymore. There are basting and grilling sauces that are so easy to create; they make all the difference in the world.

Baste Your Meats and Vegetables

The key to effortless basting is to begin with a flavorful base. Miracle Whip or Miracle Whip Light Dressing has everything you need for a great primary basting ingredient. Just add a few more ingredients such as herbs and spices and then brush or spoon the mixture right onto your items while grilling to allow the basting flavors to sizzle into your food.

Basting While You Grill Prevents Drying-out

Another important benefit to basting with Miracle Whip salad dressing is that it adds moisture to foods that can dry-out from the grilling process. Vegetables and lean meats such as chicken, fish and certain cuts of pork and beef need something to protect them against the drying effects of the hot grill.

Try the following quick and easy recipes for Herbed Chicken and Skewered Grilled Potatoes to see how delicious grilling with Miracle Whip salad dressing can be. Get cooking with Miracle Whip, it's not just for sandwiches anymore.
