Mountainside Viewpoint

by Polly Warnock

Because we have known Bob Turner for many years and believe him to be man of integrity who is truly interested in and knowledgeable about the problems that face Central Texans, Santa Anna News endorses the re-election of Bob Turner to the Texas House Of Representatives, 73rd District.

Since his election to the Texas House of Representatives in March of 1991, Bob Turner has worked hard and diligently to represent all of his district, and has truly listened and sought the opinion of the voters of Central and West Texas.

Bob Turner has worked hard for the Retired Teachers, to help them maintain their retirement system. He has played a major role in insuring that the fuel tax exemption be left intact for farmers and ranchers, and was a major player in insuring that the 4-H programs are still in place for all Texas youngsters. Bob Turner led the fight to insure that the small-rural school formulas were left in place for rural schools in Texas, without which they cannot survive. Recently, Turner testified before the Texas Department of Aging, fighting for fair formulas to insure that West Texas elderly get their share of funding for senior centers and meal programs. He worked long and hard in assisting both Brownwood and Ranger in their bids for state prison sites. Turner has stayed on top of such issues, and played a major role in preventing the consolidation of State Highway Engineering district offices into urban areas of Texas only, and worked long and hard to insure that the Texas Youth Commission statewide reception center be maintained in Brownwood, which eliminates the expense for individual counties of evaluation of the youth they place in TYC. Turner not only was a major player in helping Brownwood obtain a campus of TSTC, but has since continued to work with the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board to insure that the Brownwood campus remains open, which he feels is extremely important to Central and West Texas' economic development. Turner helped the fight for Product Liability reform in the Texas House, even though it was never acted on in the Senate.

Bob Turner was the only truly rural member of the Governor's Health Care Task Force, and worked to see that rural Texas health concerns were addressed in the recommended reform of current health systems. Turner is currently drafting legislation for the upcoming session which will protect agricultural producers from unfounded claims of unsafe food product, which have caused tremendous cost to Ag producers nationwide. He is also co-sponsoring legislation that will help combat the "stalking" problem that we have in Texas.

Much of the work of a state legislator appears in the form of representing the individuals and communities in the ongoing battles with state agencies, whether it be a city with a waste water problem, a county

Partners In Academic Excellence Kicks Off Sixth Year

Partners In Academic Excellence is now in its sixth year as a system of recognition of academic achievement for students in Santa Anna schools.

In previous years the program has involved recognition of students in high school only, but this year grades seven and eight will be included since those two classes have been made a part of the secondary campus.

A luncheon was held on Tuesday of last week with a large group of local business people, school personnel and other interested individuals in attendance. The luncheon kicks off the annual fund raising program to support the program which is not underwritten by school funds but from business and individual contributions.

High school principal Frank Gray who initiated the program says that students are as pleased with this academic honor system today as they were in 1987 when the program first began. Mr. Gray says, "The morning of their recognition and presentation of awards is a time of excitement."

"The involvement of our community in this program has been great for our student body. Recognition of academic excellence is something all communities are striving for, but remember that Santa Anna has been the leader in this area," Gray says.

The Santa Anna Partners in Academic Excellence was the first of its kind and since 1987 other communities have taken heed of its success and started similar programs to recognize their students.

Gary Absher is membership chairman for the group. He is presently in the process of contacting business people and individuals in the community who might become "partners" in the program. If you have not been contacted and would like to be a part of the program, please see Absher at the post office or call him evenings at his home. Business memberships are $20 and individual memberships are $10.

You may also contact Frank Gray at the high school.

All funds are used to help defray costs of the program which annually gives student awards ranging from recognition certificates to letter jackets, depending on the number of years the student has been eligible.

Band Receives Div. II Rating

The SAHS Mighty Mountaineer Band last Saturday participated in the UIL marching band competition held at Brady. The SAHS Band received a Division II rating as a result of their performance at the contest.

Others from this area participating were Coleman who received a Div. I; Bangs I; Menard I; Irion County I; and Eden II.

Bands are rated for musical selection, musical performance, uniformity and precision marching. Ratings are from I to V, with a I being the best and V being the worst.

Santa Anna, Peneteka Comanche Chief

(EDITOR'S NOTE: As readers were told in earlier issues of the NEWS, Linda Pelon is doing her master's thesis at the University of Texas, Arlington. She is concentrating on Chief Santa Anna and has agreed to submit articles concerning her findings to the Santa Anna News. We are very pleased to be able to share this information with our readers.)

Santa Anna was referred to by James Greer, the biographer of legendary Texas Ranger leader Colonel Jack Hays, as "perhaps the greatest Comanche war chief". He was also a diplomat, husband, father and loyal friend.

He was described by Roemer, a noted German geologist and naturalist who was present at treaty negotiations between the Germans and Comanches, as "a powerfully built man with a benevolent and lively countenance". Santa Anna was also noted in the personal journal of President Polk on July 1,

1846, the day of their meeting in Washington. Polk wrote, "Santa Anna, their principal chief, is a fine looking man of good size and middle age, and is evidently a man of many talents."

Accounts also exist which document activities of some of his wives. These accounts extraordinary. Accounts also exist of two sons. One son was captured by RIP Ford's rangers in 1850. His name was Carne Muerto. Ford described him as "full of live and vigor, he was about eighteen years of age and the reputed son of the celebrated Comanche war chief Santana." Another son was born in the home of a German storekeeper in the late 1840's. Santa Anna's family will be discussed in greater detail in future articles. Accounts also exist which indicate Santa Anna was a loyal and helpful friend. Some of these accounts will also be discussed in future articles.

FFA Officers

Janice Fellers Vote At Mountain City Frenzy Winner Community Center Nov. 3rd

Early Voting Ends Friday

An almost winner several times, Janice Fellers broke into the winners column for last week's Mountaineer Football Frenzy by picking 16 games correctly from a possible 19. Also coming up with 16 correct choices were Rob Cheaney and Jim See. Both were beat out by Janice. On the tie breaker, Santa Anna was defeated 12-8 by Eden. Janice picked Santa Anna to win 14-13. Rob Picked Santa Anna by a score of 18-14 and Jim Picked the Mountaineers to Local voters will cast their ballots at the Mountain City Community Center (highrise) during the General Election on Tuesday, November 3rd. Rockwood area people will vote at the community center there.

Rose Bass will be election judge at local polling place. Voting will take place between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

A sample ballot is provided in this issue of the NEWS.

This is a very important election as those who vote will help to shape the direction our country goes in the next four years. You are urged to consider your choices carefully and prayerfully, and then VOTE!

Early voting ends at 5:00 p.m. Friday. Early voting is taking place at the Miller Library building on the northwest corner of the courthouse square in Coleman.

The Giant Halloween Jack-O-Lantern

The girls' cousin Jessica, daughter of Mike and Lesa Ellerbe, also has a jack-o-lantern carved from one of her grandfather's pumpkins which is approximately the same size as the one pictured above.

Alice Anna Spillman

Workers last Saturday noticed and missed a visit from Mr. Dick Longbrake. He always pops in to watch the progress on the new library. We are so sorry to learn that Mr. Dick spent the day in the hospital. May his health improve quickly.

Several of you came by to see if the walls were going up. Sorry, we are disappointed too. Hopefully after next Saturday the building will meet all the new impaired rules. Monte Guthrie worked on the ramp and it can be finished quickly. Betty Key and I painted the back outside wall. The door still needs to be changed to be wide enough.

It has been interesting watching the old Masonic building come down as we worked to build. People who built then thought it was for a long time and it has been. What a shame that the limestone mortar used has deteriorated so badly. Those large handcut stones will last forever.

Mr. Troy Roe brought some new magazines by. The Yankee Magazine has an interesting article about four different restaurants that are decorated with books. Customers are invited to take a book home. This library recently gave some Condensed Readers Digest Books to be placed in a beauty shop. They too will give these away. We have more of these other books and magazines to give away. These have been in book sales and then stored in the new library.

This week is Halloween, so come by the library for a good mystery. Books range from classics like Sherlock Holmes and Edgar Allan Poe to the latest science fiction. There are spy, detective, intrigue, gothic romance and the new Harlequin mysteries. Books for younger readers of all ages are mysteries. Some of these will hold adult interest also.

Thank You
We would like to express our appreciation for every loving thought and deed, and for each expression of sympathy at the loss of our loved one.

Thoughts From Our Pastors

Waide Messer First Baptist Church

I recently read a story about a Grandpa who was well into his 80's before he decided to try a hearing aid. He was amazed at the fancy gadgets capabilities and stopped by to thank the audiologist who had assisted him. Grandpas told of his new ability to easily hear conversations, even in the next room. The hearing specialist was delighted. "Your relatives must be happy to know you can now hear so well." The wise elderly gentleman replied with a smile, "Oh, I ain't told 'em. I just been sittin' around the house listenin' to 'em. And you know what, I've changed my will twice already. Psalm 52:2 says, "Your tongue plots destruction; it is like a sharpened razor, you who practice deceit." Jesus said, "But I tell you that men will have to give account on the day of judgment for every careless word they have spoken. For by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned" (Matthew 12:36 NIV).

The words that come out of your mouth will be either destructive or constructive. You alone choose the words that you will use and you alone will answer to God for each and every word. I heard a wise gentleman once say, "If you can't say something good about someone else, don't say anything at all. If you have to say something about them, make sure it is something good." May we each one learn the art of using our words to offer encouragement, hope, love, understanding, peace, joy and most of all the love of God.

Around & About

Coleman County Medical Center Weekly Report

Ralph and Joan (McClellan) Brisbin of Pennsylvania were homecoming weekend guests with Novelle (McClellan) Boylston. Their sister, Carol McClellan of Abilene also visited. The ladies are all ex-students of SAHS. Novelle graduated with the class of 1947, Joan '54 and Carol '56.

On the weekend of October 17th - 18th Vera Wells and sister, Irene Smith of San Angelo, and sister-in-law, Sue Carpenter of Snyder, recently made a trip to Pioneer Valley to visit a brother-in-law, Cecil Grumbles and his son and family, Bobby and Yulanda Grumbles and John.

On that Saturday evening they attended the wedding of a great nephew in Dallas and returned to Pioneer Valley for visiting through Sunday. Returning to Santa Anna on Monday, they stopped for a visit in Breckenridge with Vera's son and family, James and Jan Wells and Erica.

The other ladies went on to their homes after dropping Vera off in Santa Anna. Vera reports they all had a very pleasant and joyous trip and were grateful everyone was well.

Santa Anna Cemetery Board Discusses By-law Change

The Santa Anna Cemetery Board of Directors met October 20, 1992 at the First Methodist Church. The caretakers was given permission to burn the dry grass from non-member lots with the aid of the fire department. The decision was made to spray these lots in early spring and charge all owners.

A recommended by-law change is that burial lots purchased after 1993 annual meeting must include perpetual care.

The Board will accept bids for caretaker to be presented at the January annual meeting.

First United Methodist Hosting After Game Fellowship Friday Evening

The First United Methodist Church will be hosting the After Game Fellowship at the Presbyterian Church. Junior High and High School students are invited to attend this adult supervised activity.

Even though Eden may have set a record for turnovers by a winning team, they were able to defeat the Mountaineers here last Friday, 12-8. The Bulldogs fumbled eight times and lost seven of them. They also threw one pass interception that gave Santa Anna its only touchdown of the game.

Paul Morris intercepted the ball and carried it 72 yards for the lone Mountaineer score. He also ran the two-point conversion to bring Santa Anna's total score to 8. Santa Anna lost two of three fumbles but had no passes intercepted. Although last week's loss may very well put them out of the playoff picture, barring upsets of district leaders Menard and Eden, the Mountaineers are looking ahead as they host Water Valley here this Friday with game time set at 7:30.

School Menu

North ...to Alaska

By Mrs. L. Brusenhan, Jr.
(Editors Note: Mrs. Brusenhan has been sharing with us Alaska as seen there her eyes. This is the final installment of the series.)

Sunday, 23rd, we sleep late, as we are not in too big of a hurry, eat breakfast, head for Seward, south-east of Anchorage. We drive along the Turnagain Arm, still no whales, stop at Potter Marsh and walk the wooden walkway. Teachers used to bring their students here to watch the wild birds and fish, then Congress decided to drain it and turn it into something else. The teachers and children got up a petition and thousands of people signed it, and changed Congress' mind, and it was turned into the Potter Wildbird Sanctuary. We saw salmon in the creek, and a few ducks, but was so rainy and cool, that was all we saw. We drive down the Kenai Peninsula, and it is a beautiful drive, when it isn't raining. We stopped at Summit Lake Lodge, between Anchorage and Seward for lunch, this one is not as pretty as the one of the Richardson Highway. After lunch, we drive on toward Seward, not as much ash down this way, and everything is greener. The mountains are beautiful and a lot of them have snow of them. A lot of wild flowers and shrubs. We keep seeing a shrub with deep red flowers on them, so we stop to take a picture of them. They turn out to be clusters of small red berries. Before we get to Seward, we see a sign for the exit Glacier at Kenai Fjords, so we turn off to see it. We find the road is not maintained and is full of ruts and potholes. It takes us one hour and fifteen minutes to drive 18 miles, and then we really had to make up some time. We finally got back on the road to Seward, and it was still rainy and cool. Judy, Jr. and I are going to ride the train back to Anchorage, but we can't put the car on this train, so Anita will drive her car back. We find the train station, and just barely have time to board the train, so didn't have time to see Seward. The train is not very long, and pretty crowded.

We left Seward about 6:05 p.m. The people were friendly and there was a lot of talking and laughing going on. Still rainy and cool. We see Trail Glacier, Bartlett Glacier, Deadman's Glacier, and Spencer Glacier, a lot of mountains and beautiful scenery. Judy saw a moose on the west side of the train and someone else saw one on the east side, I wasn't lucky enough to see either one of them. We arrived in Anchorage about 10:00 p.m., and Anita was waiting for us. Still rainy and cool. Headed for our rooms, a bath and bed.

Seward is a small community of about 2,500 people, but it has stores, shops, restaurants, library, theater, hotels, railroad, airstrip, docks, Alaska's largest prison, the largest mill for cutting and drying dimensional lumber and the largest coal handling facility for shipment from Healy to Korea via the Alaska Railroad. Seward is located at the head of Resurrection Bay, and the earliest Russian settlement was established in 1792, when Alexander Baranof arrived in the bay. Using timber from nearby forests, he built living quarters, storehouses and buildings during the winter of 1792-93. Baranof's goal was to build the first ship on the coast of North America. By August 1794, the work was done on the Phoenix, which glided into the waters of the Pacific. It began making regular runs between Siberia and the colonies, but sank in a storm about four years later. The first Americans to arrive at Resurrection Bay were Captain Frank Lowell and his family, in the 1890's. But it wasn't until 1903 that the founders and settlers of Seward arrived with the goal of building the Alaska Central Railway, the first railroad into the Interior. The first spike for the railroad was driven at the end of the Seward Dock on April 16, 1904. Stores, restaurants and hotels were built, and by July 4, the tracks extended 7 miles north of town; but by the time 50 miles of track were laid, the company had gone bankrupt. Fortunately, Seward's year-round, ice-free, deep-water port attracted the attention of the federal government. After completion of the railroad Seward became the "Gateway to Alaska" for passengers and freight arriving by steamship and for gold and coal being shipped to the United States. The earthquake of 1964 devastated Seward and killed 13 people. After the quake, there was talk of scrapping the railroad, but was thought better of, and Seward was rebuilt.

Monday, 24th, took our time went out to Diamond Center, the big mall, and looked around, and bought a few things, then headed north for the Matanuska Valley, about 40 miles from Anchorage, it is also called Mat-SuValley. This is farming country, and they grow huge cabbages weighing 40-9 lbs. Beautiful flowers, and the ash isn't too bad here. We stop in Palmer at the visitors center and buy a few things, then go to a cafe for lunch, then just drive around the countryside, saw trees changing colors, and more beautiful flowers. Still rainy and cool. Driving back to Anchorage, the rain stopped and the sun came out, wonder of wonders. On arriving in Anchorage, we drove downtown to the visitors center, and saw the big chunk of jade, weighing thousands of pounds. In the visitors center, we found a lady who told us what the bush was that had the pretty clusters of red berries. Found out that it wasn't a bush, but a tree called mountain ash, and they grow to be 30 or more feet tall, and still have the red berries on them. The birds love the berries. Before we left Anchorage, I saw several of the trees that were very tall, and still had the berries on them, and they make beautiful trees.

We walked around downtown for a while, and on the block where the visitor center is, you will find hanging baskets of lobelia flowers, a deep blue, and very pretty, hanging on the lamp posts. New door to the visitors center is the Old City Hall, which now houses Anchorage Historic Properties that conducts tours of historic buildings. The grounds are well kept and there are so many beautiful flowers of all colors. We do a little shopping, and the wind gets up and dries out the ash on the ground, and it starts to blow around. We have to cover our faces, as the ash is blowing up our nose and in our eyes, so head for the car and our rooms. By the time we reach them, it has clouded over and started misting again, which we didn't mind. Later on we go to supper, and it is raining harder and is colder. But by the time we leave the restaurant, it has stopped raining so hard, and turned into mist. Head back to our rooms, for baths, and to get things ready to leave tomorrow, and then bed.

Palmer, in the Matanuska Valley, is famous for the enormous vegetables that grow during long summer days. The valleys history includes centuries of Athabascan Indian culture, gold prospectors, trappers and farmers. The Matanuska Colony was created in 1935 to give a new start to farmers financially ruined by the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl. This federal relief program brought 203 families who cultivated 15,000 acres around Palmer. The valley is Alaska's agriculture industry center, and relies on recreation and tourism, as well. Many valley residents work in Anchorage, as well as the oil-fields on the North Slope. Fishing and hunting are also very good here. Two major highways serve this valley, the George Parks Hwy. and the Glenn Hwy., Palmer is the on the Glenn Hwy. The downtown district was recently placed on the National Register of Historic Places, for being the best remaining example of a series of 99 projects by the federal government to relocate farmers from depressed areas in the lower 48.

Well, here it is Tuesday, the 25th, and our last day in Alaska. After packing our bags, we go to a nice restaurant for breakfast, and really enjoy it, then we went to the Sears Mall for a little shopping, then was time to head for the airport. Anita drove us there, and we had a little wait, so insisted on her heading back for North Pole, as it is an eight hour drive, so, we watched her drive off with tears in our eyes, as we don't know when we will get to see her again, but hope it won't be too very long. We go in the airport, and get our bags checked, find our waiting area, and finally get on the plane for Seattle and take off on a 727 at 2:00 p.m. Forgot to mention that it is still raining, but soon stops for a while, and the sun comes out. Took one last picture of Alaska from the window after we were up quite a ways. Clouding up again and can just see the ground one in a while. Finally get above the clouds, and the sky is beautiful. Flying over Vancouver Islands, between the clouds, you can see small islands, large islands and medium islands. There are tiny boats of different kinds in the water and you can tell they are moving, as you can see their wake. The water is so pretty and blue, mountains in the distance with snow on them. Touched down in Seattle and got off plane at 6:00 p.m. Seattle. We have gained one of our lost hours back. We have about 30 minutes to wait for our flight to Denver, the sun is shining and about 83 degrees. Our flight to Denver on a 737 is delayed on the runway, waiting for other planes to take off and others to land, we finally get airborne 7:20 p.m. Roughest part of all the flights we were on, was coming into Denver over the Rockies. Judy said it was a very smooth flight compared to some she had been on. Walked off the plane at 9:40 p.m. and found Judy's husband, Stan waiting for us. He was a very welcome sight. After getting to their home, we visited for a while, then head for baths and beds. It was about 40 degrees in Denver that night and Stan said they had really had some hard rains a day or two before we got there.

Wednesday morning the 26th, slept late, then decided we would come on to Texas as was anxious to get home. After a good breakfast, we are on our way home. Guess what, it rains on us before we get out of Colorado, then don't see anymore rain til we get into Texas. Jr. had been saying he would be glad to get back to some good old Texas sunshine, but he didn't get to see any til Thursday, the 27th. Almost to Amarillo. We spent Wednesday night in Dalhart, Texas and had been raining like made for some time, finally found a motel for the night. Thursday the 27th was so foggy and rainy we could barely see how to drive. But finally found a place for breakfast, and then headed south. Drove in our driveway at 5:45 p.m., were we glad to be home. It rained ahead of us for quite a ways, but here at Rockwood, it was dry. It didn't take Jr. but three days to get his fill of this hot Texan sun. Ha! We had a wonderful trip, and had caught up with our lost hours; was so glad we got to make this trip, will always remember it. If you like mountains and forests, lakes and rivers, you would really enjoy Alaska. I would make this trip again anytime. Anita was such a good guide and driver, all we had to do was sit back and enjoy it, I nearly broke my neck trying to see everything I could. There is a lot I have left out, but this is the main part of it.

FFA Chapter Competes In Dist. Leadership Contest

The Santa Anna FFA Chapter competed in their District leadership contest on Saturday at Cisco Junior College.

The Big Country District that Santa Anna is a member of is composed of 19 FFA Chapters from schools varying in size from Class 1-A to Class 5-A.

Santa Anna FFA participated in three contests and all students represented Santa Anna well.

The contests included Farm Radio Team which placed 5th. Its members were Kyra Neff, Jill Weathers and Misty Bradley.

The Greenhand Quiz Team placed 7th with Brandi Martin as highest placing member followed closely by William Loyd, Lee Keeney and Bobby Malaer.

Also Lee Keeney recited the FFA Creed and placed 8th.

All those members involved are to be commended for a job well done.

Santa Anna 4-H Meets Marty Gibbs, Coleman County Agent

By: Aaron Guthrie
Santa Anna 4-H met on October 6, 1992 at 7:00 p.m. Officers elected were Michael Guthrie, president; Tom Guthrie, vice president; Anna Pearce, secretary; Aaron Guthrie, reporter; Chris Cheaney and James Balderas, council delegates.

Marty Gibbs, the new County Agent for Coleman County, spoke to the group.

A reminder to all 4-H lamb and pig show people. A lamb and pig validation is set for Saturday, November 7 at the Coleman Rodeo Grounds starting at 8:00 a.m. Cost is 75 cents per animal.

James Balderas, Chris Cheaney, Aaron Guthrie and Anna Pearce recently attended the officers meeting in Coleman. James and Chris were elected district council delegates.

The next meeting of the 4-H club will be November 2 at 6:30 p.m. at the Santa Anna Lions Club Building.

Setting It Straight

The class reunion reported last week as being that the Class of 1932 should have been the Class of 1934.

The second grade classes of Sharon Cheaney and Dena Fortune received a trip to Abilene to see a play and to the Tepee Village at McMurry. These youngsters won the contest sponsored by the fourth grade reading class of Janet Neff. They collected the most canned foods to be sent to victims of Hurricane Andrew in Florida.

Methodist Church Shows Appreciation To Retiring Organist

The congregation of First United Methodist Church showed their appreciation Sunday to Lonella Roesch who is retiring as organist after having served in that capacity for more than fifteen years, and before that as pianist for several years. Mrs. Roesch was honoree at a church dinner and was presented with a plaque of appreciation. Pastor of the congregation, Rev. Don Elrod, is shown here presenting the plaque to Mrs. Roesch.

School Board Has Routine Meeting

The Santa Anna School Board met recently to consider several pretty much routine items other than a visit from a parent.

Burl Lowry presented his report of the budget audit of financial operations of the school district. No discrepancies were found and, according to Superintendent Jim McPherson, the board heard a good audit report.

The board approved a textbook committee of teachers Betty Smith, Sharon Cheaney, Sharon Greenlee, Janet Neff, Susan Snipes, Joan Jones, Ray Findley, Becky Martin, Roland Nicholas, John Smith, Sandra Hosch, Debbie Jones and Barry Kimball with Superintendent McPherson as chairman.

The board set an early dismissal of classes for November 24th. School will be dismissed at 1:42 for the Thanksgiving Holiday.

The board heard from a parent with concerns about district policies concerning not driving busses on private property to pick up and deliver students. According to Mr. McPherson the school district has taken the recommendation of Texas Education Agency that school busses should not be driven off of county or state roads for reasons of liability.

The parent was also interested to find out the school policy on extra credit given to students for watching an "X rated" movie. The board suggested he consult with the teacher and with Principal Frank Gray about the matter.

Local Lady's Great-Grandson In Sunburst Baby Contest in Atlanta

Michael Ray McSwain, II, great-grandson of Mrs. J. H. Martin of Trickham recently participated in the International Finals of the Sunburst Baby Contest held in Atlanta, Georgia in August.

He qualified to compete at this level when he won runner-up to the "King" in the Alaska State Level Contest.

In Atlanta, he competed in Sportswear, Westernwear, Photogenic, Composite, Formalwear, and a close-up facial beauty interview.

In sportswear, he dressed as a dog-musher from Alaska. His western attire came from Texas and for formalwear, he wore a black tuxedo with tails and a black bow tie and cummerbund.

Michael placed first runner-up in sportswear, third runner-up in photogenic and second runner-up in composite. He placed in the top five in his category and was third runner-up overall.

Michael is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Don Turner of Mineral Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Ray McSwain of Hico.

ABORT CLINTON — VOTE BUSH

May God Bless America

OCT 29 1992

The "Slings and Arrows" of Presidential Slogans

President Harry Truman called it "our four-yearly spasm." That's right. It's presidential election time again. And as part of the ritual, we tune in night after night to see and hear the latest from candidates George Bush and Bill Clinton. Electronic media keep us connected to the candidates by giving us up-to-the-minute reports on where they stand on the issues, as well as the most intricate details of their lives.

It wasn't always so easy for Americans to get a feel for their presidential candidates. Before radio and television brought candidates into our homes, Americans formed their opinions in a more rudimentary fashion — often based on slogans or catch phrases. A candidate's entire campaign could rise or fall on a catchy saying emblazoned on a banner or button, or chanted by citizens who wanted to make their views known in a readily understandable form.

According to political columnist William Safire, "good slogans have rhyme, rhythm, or alliteration to make them memorable; great slogans may have none of these, but touch a chord of memory, release pent-up hatreds, or stir men's better natures." In his "Political Dictionary," Safire made note of many themes that recur in slogans, including ones that are promissory ($20 a Day and Roast Beef); warnings (Coolidge or Chaos); a call for change (Had Enough?); and challenging (Fifty-Four Forty or Fight).

While perhaps not the most memorable slogan, one of the earliest recorded campaign slogans appeared in the 1828 presidential campaign of Andrew Jackson. "The gallant & successful defender of New Orleans" referred to Jackson's heroism in the War of 1812, and it painted a reassuring picture of strength and courage for voters.

Slogans that touch on our greatest fears can be particularly powerful tools during an election. In 1916, the slogan "He kept us out of war" helped propel Woodrow Wilson to a second presidential term. While Americans anxious to avoid war took stock in Wilson's slogan, that faith did not keep us isolated from the conflict in Europe. Five months after the election, America entered World War I.

And Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1932 campaign slogan underscored America's economic insecurity by reminding voters that he was not at the helm when the Great Depression started in 1929 — "In Hoover we trusted, now we are busted."

What makes slogans so popular? According to Thomas A. Bailey, one of the foremost experts on campaign slogans and author of the book "Voices of America," slogans are "about the only medium through which large numbers of ordinary citizens can express their views personally and repeatedly for or against given candidates or propositions."

Others are not so charitable about the popularity of these often catchy phrases. "Voices of America" quotes several wits on the subject. One anonymous observer of slogans — and human nature — declared that slogans are "the good old American substitute for the facts." Wendell Willkie, the Republican challenger to FDR in the 1940 presidential campaign, remarked that "a good catchword can obscure analysis for fifty years." And British philosopher Bertrand Russell offered this explanation: "Most people would rather die than think. In fact, some do."

Whatever the reason, slogans are part of American culture and heritage. They help us remember historic events that have shaped our country's past. Although it's too early to tell if any of the slogans from the upcoming election will pass the test of time, we have put some of our favorites from past elections into an election year trivia quiz. How well do you remember? ■

Presidential Slogan Quiz

The following are slogans from 20th-century presidential campaigns. Match the slogan with the candidate who used it.

- |                                                         |                       |
|---------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------|
| 1. In your heart you know he's right.                   | A. Wendell Willkie    |
| 2. In your guts you know he's nuts.                     | B. Richard Nixon      |
| 3. It might have been worse.                            | C. Barry Goldwater    |
| 4. 60 million people working — why change?              | D. Lyndon Johnson     |
| 5. We don't want Eleanor either.                        | E. Gerald Ford        |
| 6. Three good terms deserve another.                    | F. Harry Truman       |
| 7. Vote like your whole life depended on it.            | G. Franklin Roosevelt |
| 8. He proved the pen mightier than the sword.           | H. Woodrow Wilson     |
| 9. Better a part-time president than a full-time phony. | I. Herbert Hoover     |
