"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

Strato Balloonists Reach 74,187 Feet To Set New Record

WHITE LAKE, S. D., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Secrets of the stratosphere opening up a hitherto scarcely explored field of science were believed locked today in instruments carried to the greatest height ever attained by man.

The instruments were carried 14 miles above the earth yesterday in the world's largest balloon by Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Orvil Anderson of the U. S. Army. The unofficial peak of their climb was 74,187 feet. The official world record is 61,237 feet.

Stevens and Anderson, none the worse for their adventure into a violent purple sky, to heights where the earth appears as little more than a plaid blanket, planned to return today to their strato-camp near Rapid City, S. D., where their adventure began yesterday morning. They landed on the prairie 12 miles from here late yesterday, eight hours and 12 minutes after the take-off. The horizontal distance they traveled was approximately 150 miles.

Their instruments first will be taken to the strato-camp and then shipped to Washington to be checked by the bureau of standards and studied by scientists of the National Geographical Society, sponsors, with the army, of the ascension.

Stevens and Anderson lingered at the "ceiling" more than an hour. They hovered in empty, soundless, bitterly cold space. They were above the earth's envelope of atmosphere, which makes the sky appear blue from the surface. Their element was dark, almost black. "On a horizon was black, over-head was darkest purple and the other horizon was dark blue," Stevens said. "We were high enough to see the earth's radiance, its reflection of the sun's rays."

If all the great array of instruments carried in the air-tight, oxygen-fed metal gondola functioned perfectly, Stevens and Anderson may have contributed the following knowledge to science:

How far outward the earth's atmosphere extends.

Whether cosmic rays in the stratosphere under proper conditions can transmute matter.

At what height living spores (infinitesimal living particles) cease to live.

Whether radio waves can be transmitted through the stratosphere.

Whether super-motors will function in the stratosphere, where, due to lowered resistance, they could carry strato-planes at speeds impossible in the earth's atmosphere.

The pilots manipulated ballast and gas pressure so expertly that the great balloon (capacity 3,700,000 cubic feet, 192 feet in diameter, its top 316 feet above the ground at the take-off) drifted down to the prairie with scarcely a jolt.

MRS. PAUL HADLEY LOSES ARM; CONDITION CRITICAL

Mrs. Paul Hadley is still in a critical condition after the amputation of her right arm at the Sealy Hospital in Santa Anna. She was taken there Thursday of last week after blood poisoning had developed from a cut she received October 19 when she broke a fruit jar. The infection could not be stopped, and it became necessary to remove her arm.

Mrs. Hadley returned last night from Santa Anna with the report that her wife's condition is serious. —Dublin Progress.

County Meeting At Court House Tues., Nov. 26

The County Court House has been selected as the meeting place for the public in a co-operative meeting between the Extension Department of A & M College, the Resettlement Administration, the Farm Credit Administration of Houston, and the Farm Debt Adjustment committee of the State of Texas, which is to be held on November 26th, to start at 10 a. m. This meeting is for the purpose of familiarizing the public with the functions of the different agencies of the Government in regard to farming interests and the refinancing of farm debts. The meeting will be open to the public and anyone interested in the workings of any one of these agencies will be cordially invited to attend. A number of good speakers have been secured for the day and the program will continue throughout the day.

MOTHER OF LOCAL TEACHER BURIED IN ANSON

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dean have the sympathy of friends during their grief over the loss of Mr. Dean's mother, who was buried in Anson Thursday morning.

The Abilene Morning News carried the following story Thursday morning.

"Funeral services for Mrs. A. J. Dean, who died at 4 a. m. Tuesday in a Stamford hospital where she underwent an operation Sunday, will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Anson First Methodist church. Rev. H. C. Gordon will officiate and interment will be made under direction of the Barrow-Lawrence funeral home.

"Ollie Aurora Huston was born May 25, 1876, in Bell county. She was married to A. J. Dean on October 20, 1897, and the couple came to Anson 35 years ago. Mr. Dean is a farmer. The home is three miles west of Anson.

"Survivors are her husband and five children, Mrs. J. R. Witt of Post, Oran and Ivy Dean of Anson, Bert Dean of Lubbock, and Clyde Dean of Santa Anna. Other survivors are four sisters, Mrs. H. D. Dear of Austin, Mrs. George Cloud of Burnet, Mrs. Alice Brannon of Houston, Mrs. E. J. Dunan of Bell county, and a brother, M. J. Huston of Matador."

Mr. Ross Prescott, J. T. Oakes, Jim Jones and Misses Elizabeth Morris and Beulah Tisdell, all of Santa Anna High School, attended the funeral.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all who assisted us in any way during our trials in the loss of our companion and mother, Mrs. H. H. H. Words cannot be found that will express our heartfelt gratitude.

"Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart,
Tis hard, so hard to speak the words,
We must forever part.

"A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

"God in His wisdom has recalled,
The boon His love had given;
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

"Dearest loved one, we have laid thee,
In the peaceful grave's embrace,
But thy memory will be cherished,
Till we see thy heavenly face."
J. C. Holman and family, and other Loved Ones.

AGED PIONEER DIES THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Just before going to press we are advised of the death of Mrs. B. F. Richardson, who passed away at her home on Mountain Street Thursday afternoon.

At this time we have not been apprised of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Campbell are at home in the Van Dalsen apartments. Mrs. Campbell, daughter of Mrs. J. B. Jones of the Liberty Community, was Miss Ruth McCreaney before her recent marriage.

Smith Resigns As President Of McMurry

Rev. Clusor Q. Smith, former pastor of First Methodist church in Brownwood, has resigned the presidency of McMurry College at Abilene, to become vice-president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, it was announced Saturday night. He will be succeeded December first by Rev. T. W. Brabham, who has resigned the presidency of Texas Wesleyan College at Fort Worth to take the post at McMurry. The board of directors of T. W. C. has now selected Dr. Brabham's successor.

Dr. Smith has been president of McMurry since the death of Rev. J. W. Hunt, first president of the institution. During this time he has made great advances in the financing of the college, and its student body has been almost doubled. Dr. Brabham, new president of McMurry, is a West Texan, and has made a splendid record as an educator.

The new position to which Dr. Smith goes will broaden the scope of his work and will place upon him much of the burden of directing the S. M. U. financial program involving something like five million dollars.

Queen Lenora of House of Golston Rules Over P.T.A. Halloween Carnival

"In the name of every black cat that ever bowed his back against a mellow moon —

"In the name of every phosphorous ghost that ever cracked his bones and gave an effervescent sigh to a mournful breeze,
"In the name of every ruffled owl that ever hooted at a bat before a purple dawn —

"In the name of every bedraggled witch that ever rode a broom across the milky way —
I crown thee, Queen Lenora of the house of Golston, queen of this festival carnival, queen of witches, bats, owls, ghosts, and cats, queen of every reveler that ever tooted a horn on Halloween —
Thus William Early, King of the carnival, brought to a climax events leading to P. T. A. Halloween celebration at the high school building.

The Queen and her attendants were announced by Miss Helen Oakes and Miss Claudia Cain.

Attendants
Train Bearer: Alice Anna Guthrie and Joyce Hill.
Crown Bearer: Will Rogers Berry.

Miss Jeanne Werner, duchess and Mr. Todd Oakes, lord of the senior class; Miss Anita Kirkpatrick, duchess, and Quinton Rudder, lord of the junior class; Miss Elizabeth Morris, duchess, and Mr. J. W. Davis, lord of the sophomore class; Miss June Kirkpatrick, duchess, and Mr. Lee Schattel, lord of the freshman class.

Court Jester and Announcer: Phil Mitchell, assisted by his dog, Bozo.

Program
Reading —Joyce Hill.
Tap Dance —Annie Nickens.
Reading —Era Hill.
Trio —Evelyn Kirkpatrick, Pheba Boardman, Mary Dellinger.

The Magic Pill —An Act by Mr. Smith and Buddy Lovelady.
After the program approximately 200 students and visitors attended the carnival. Many students were in costume. It was a motley crowd of gypsy maidens, gay troubadours, plourettes and clowns in bizarre Orange and Black.

After the Coronation, all went to the corridors where airy visitants of all Hallow's Eve presided over booths and side shows.

Coleman County Young People

The Coleman County Young People's Union will meet at the First Methodist Church in Coleman next Monday evening, November 18 at 7:45.

All the young people of the County have a cordial invitation to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kirkpatrick and Misses Maurice and Evelyn Kirkpatrick spent Sunday and Monday on the S. D. Harper ranch at Eldorado.

Mrs. T. J. Lancaster returned home Monday from Sonora where she has been visiting in the home of her son, Joe Lancaster and family.

Six Contestants Actively Working

With the enrollment of Mrs. Dick West, who entered the campaign last Saturday, we now have six contestants actively working in our Big Circulation Drive for new and renewal subscriptions.

These six splendid young women are scouring the country and rolling up a large circulation for the Santa Anna News. May we urge again, these contestants will appreciate the encouragement of friends, and gratefully appreciate your patronage.

Following is the standing of contestants up to Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Ruth Bowden, 231,600 votes; Mrs. William Sheffield, 181,800 votes; Miss Ruby Williams, 84,100 votes; Mrs. Lola Lightfoot, 60,000 votes; Mrs. Ethel Davis, 36,000 votes; Mrs. Dick West, 15,700 votes.

The last two mentioned are new in the game, but are doing some fine work. The Santa Anna News is proud to have them in our contest, and hope they find much pleasure and meet with the desired encouragement of friends during the campaign.

This campaign means a great deal to Santa Anna, and we appreciate the interest of the business people who are helping us to roll up a larger circulation for an advertising medium in this town.

LATER: Just before going to press Mrs. Preston Parish called and made it known that she had at last made up her mind to enter this contest, and fully intends to work faithfully from now until the close on Christmas Eve Day.

Mrs. Parish is another splendid young woman, and has many friends in Coleman county. We are glad to have her enter this contest, and trust her many friends will help her in her endeavor to win one of the valuable prizes being offered.

MCCULLOCH ROAD WORK STARTS SOON

Brady, Nov. 12.—Work orders on the paving of highway No. 9 from Brady to the San Saba river have been received by Charles T. Trickey, local resident engineer, and actual work on the project is expected to get under way November 16.

The McCulloch project, awarded to Morgan Construction company recently by the state highway commission, for their low bid of $73,572, calls for 8.1 miles of caliche base and triple asphalt surface. This construction company is not familiar with this county, having subcontracted from Uvalde Construction company some of the work of paving highway No. 16 from Brady to the Colorado river at the Coleman county line.

COX-HAWKINS

Friends will be glad to learn of the wedding Friday evening at 6:30 of D. O. Hawkins, Jr., and Miss Evelyn Cox daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Cox, pastor of the Pentecostal Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. L. Womack, Presbyterian minister, in his home. The couple will be at home in Santa Anna.

CARD OF THANKS

By Mrs. A. B. Hamilton
I want to thank my home town friends of Santa Anna for their most welcome floral tributes and kindness, and I also want to thank Rockwood, my daughter's home town, where she lived most all her life. May dear God's rich blessings be with each one of you. May God be with my dear friends at Buffalo who were with me in my trials. May God bless the dear Rosch brothers all through life. May dear God be with every one in this old sinful world.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hamilton and Dear children,
Pray for us in our trouble.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. W. C. Moffatt of San Antonio will fill the pulpit at both the morning and evening preaching hours Sunday at the Baptist Church.

All are invited to attend all the services of the Church.

Mrs. J. F. Williams and Armadillos spent the holidays with relatives in Sweetwater.

Roosevelt Sounds World Peace Note For Thanksgiving

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Peaceful relations of the United States and a "closer fellowship" among individuals were cited by President Roosevelt today in proclaiming November 23 the annual day of Thanksgiving.

But noting that "war and strife still live in the world," the president said America "by example and in practice" must help bind the wounds of others, against disorder and aggression, encourage the lessening of distress among peoples and advance peaceful trade and friendship.

Alfred Endorses Patman Plan To Pay Ex-Soldiers

Groesbeck, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Governor James V. Alfred, speaking at an Armistice day celebration here, gave ringing endorsement to the Patman soldiers' bonus plan, advocated a permanent neutrality act, and declared he favored "billions for defense of this country but not one dime for any war abroad."

Ernest Goens of Tyler, state legion commander, detailed the legion's program for rehabilitation and child welfare and appealed to all veterans to support it. Congressman Luther A. Johnson of Corsicana was another speaker.

Governor Alfred went from Groesbeck to Mexico where he was honored at a luncheon. More than 100 political leaders from a score of towns in Limestone and Freestone counties were present.

B. H. Broiles, Mexico newspaper editor, presided.

MRS ALFA GILLETTE

Funeral services were held from the Church of Christ Monday afternoon for Mrs. J. L. Gillette, 31, who passed away Sunday at her home in San Antonio. A former resident of Santa Anna, she will be remembered as Miss Alfa Ryan, daughter of Walter Ryan. She was born November 14, 1904.

Services were in charge of Elder J. F. Lilly of Graham, with Hosch Funeral Directors making the arrangements here. Interment was in the Santa Anna cemetery.

RED CROSS DRIVE NEXT WEEK

Mrs. C. A. Walker will be the general director of the Annual Red Cross drive in Santa Anna this season, and she plans to make the main drive next week. The town will be divided into several sections and Mrs. Walker plans to enlist the aid of several helpers and make a drive over the City in a very brief time.

BILLY SUNDAY DEAD

Rev. William Ashley Sunday, famous evangelist who was known for his spectacular service and baseball vernacular, died at the home of a relative in Chicago Wednesday night of last week.

His picturesque baseball terminology and acrobatic gestures characterized his preaching of the gospel. Success of his revivals led his friends to term him "the man who saved a million souls."

While many people questioned his methods, few ever doubted his sincerity.

Pool Surplus Certificates

The Cotton Section at Washington advises that all certificates placed in the National Pool have been sold. Producers who have more certificates than they need are urged to turn them in at the County Agent's office so that they may be sold.

Santa Anna News

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1935

J. J. Gregg, Editor & Publisher.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice, Santa Anna, Texas.

The regular meeting of the Santa Anna Chapter of Future Farmers will be held at the high school building next Monday evening.

Many honorary members of the organization will be enlisted at the session, and every member will want his father to be included in the group.

The Brownwood District F.F.A. meeting held in Brownwood Tuesday evening was called to order by the newly elected president, Bill Mitchell of Santa Anna.

During the business session, objective reports from each chapter were completed. Plans were made to present a small award to the winner of this year's Public Speaking contest.

J. Milton Binion, who last Saturday was appointed Centennial Chairman of this region at a meeting in Stephenville, discussed the part the F. F. A. of Texas will have in the Centennial Celebration with headquarters in Dallas next year.

It was announced that each Chapter is expected to send representatives to a tanning school to be held in Stephenville Saturday, November 23.

Members of the local chapter who attended the meeting were Bill Mitchell, H. W. Kingsbery, and John Gregg, and the Advisor, W. G. Godwin.

Mrs. H. L. Stewart and Miss Maude Kelley of Comanche spent Sunday with Mrs. J. M. Childers.

THE WORLD FOR GOD

"Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seem to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise."—First Corinthians, 3-18.

Salvation takes the bad out of a fellow without subtracting any of the "pep" from his make-up. Thousands of spiritual firebrands whose effective fighting is due in large measure to the "Will-To-Do" with which they were born, give ample testimony to this fact.

The will to do evil has been changed in the twinkling of an eye, by the grace of God, into the will to do good. They retained all of the fire, all of the vehemence of speech, all of the vigor of action, that was theirs when evil had a strangle-hold upon them.

Herein lies a great difference between an individual who has been "reformed" and one who has been "Saved."

The reformed fellow is quiet, he is educated out of his wild, impetuous habits, he acts with decorum and his ways are the ways of peace and quiet.

The saved individual who becomes "respectable," that is, observant of all the niceties and conventions of social usage, is not a whole lot of good to the work of extending the Kingdom of God.

The people and things in God's world have always been "foolish" to the worldly wise. But where are the worldly wise? God's world still goes onward.

Let us make this a World For God.

What Secretary Wallace Is Trying To Do About Agriculture

He is the most active and interesting Secretary of Agriculture the United States has ever had. He says that democracy is abused greatly and that the New Deal is to be a great help.

Under a democracy the nation gives fair prices for all products brought to town, and makes it possible for the farmer to make a fair living—and some spending money.

It too has helped the town man for he gets better prices for the things he sells.

Editor, H. W. Norris. SCHOOL NEWS

The seventh, eighth and ninth grades have been working in their shop every Thursday for four weeks.

We met for chapel Monday morning, Nov. 4. We had a "Will Rogers Program." Every one did well on his speech.

Last Friday night, Nov. 1, 1935 we had a Halloween party. We played games and had lots of fun. We sold cake, pie, and candy.

We have had a Halloween party for the last seven years and have always had a good time at our parties.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Very few people were at Sunday school but we had a good class.

Miss Ruth McGahey and Mr. W. L. Campbell were married Friday, Nov. 1, 1935.

The following poem was written by Faye Smith for our Will Rogers Memorial Program which will be included in the Community News.

Will Rogers By Faye Smith I was so happy and gay, When I last saw Will Rogers play.

Oh! His eyes so bright, How they gladdened human sight.

The stars go on their way But Will Rogers never more shall play.

We love old Will's name, And his kindness we want to claim.

If only like Will we would try to be, Make everyone feel happy and free!

When in God's story no above, We'll be with Will Rogers and his love.

And with his love for the human race, Will Rogers won God's abiding grace.

And he has gone up above, To rest in God's sweet, understanding love.

He would make us laugh and sing, If in our presence he could remain.

But the world is sad and blue For the movie star so true.

Oh! his program days have passed, And his name makes our hearts beat fast.

Put I'm sure he didn't know, That so many hated to see him go.

His programs touched my heart, And with their memory I won't depart.

And I hope you'll understand, That his programs were grand.

And then his plane—it crashed, And from this world he passed.

Christian Church

Bible School 9:50. Morning Worship 11:00. "I Am the Vine, and Ye Are the Branches" will be the subject at this hour.

Evening Service 7:30. Theme, "Bleeting, Sheep and Lowing Oxen." This theme was given out for last Sunday night, but another subject was used.

Go to church Sunday. You are welcome at the First Christian Church.

Methodist Church

Rev. Homer Vanderpool, who has been pastor of the Methodist Church here for several months, was returned for another year, by the Central Conference which met in Brownwood last week.

The local Church, under the leadership of Rev. Vanderpool was able to make the best report of any Church in the District.

Rev. Vanderpool will speak at both the morning and evening preaching hours next Sunday.

Presbyrian Church

We were pleased to have the National Guards last Sunday. They will always find a welcome. Would be pleased to have them often.

We urge very earnestly that all members of the church come next Sunday morning. What do you think of your church? Don't let your part drag. Keep up your corner.

So much that needs to be done. How helpful when all the people have a mind to work. What is your sincerity and vitality with relation to your church vows? Be a living active church member.

The subject for the sermon next Sunday will be "The Grain in the Corners of Thy Fields." M. L. Womack, Minister.

In Memory of Mrs. Ovella Smith

Weep not for me, my beloved dear, I am not dead, but sleeping here.

I was not yours, but Christ's alone; He loved me best and took me home.

OTHER PRIZES

A very Beautiful Diamond Ring, purchased from Emmett Day, Jeweler, where the ring is on display.

A large and beautiful Zenith Radio, the latest thing in the Radio Science. A 1936 unit, purchased from Geo. M. Johnson, and is now on display at his Radio Electric Shop.

Six contestants are now actively at work, soliciting subscriptions to the Santa Anna News, and one of them is going to be the happiest woman in Coleman county at the close of this contest Christmas Eve Day. A Big New Chevrolet Automobile, just for a few weeks work soliciting subscriptions for the Santa Anna News, the oldest, and should be the most appreciated industrial plant in the town of Santa Anna. Such an opportunity only comes once in a life time.

Following is the standing of the contestants according to their reports Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Davis entered late last week, and Mrs. West entered only Saturday. Necessarily, it requires a few days for the new ones to get the knack of selling subscriptions, but those who have been in the contest since its beginning have but little on the new entrants. A very few dollars would bring the new ones up to the equal of the first ones to enter. The field is yet white unto the harvest, and many people will gladly subscribe for the Santa Anna News if properly approached. Go after the business and do not lose any time for there is only a few weeks left in which to work.

Mrs. Ruth Bowden	231,600
Mrs. William Sheffield	181,800
Miss Ruby Williams	84,100
Mrs. Lola Lightfoot	60,000
Mrs. Ethel Davis	36,000
Mrs. Dick West	15,700

All six contestants are splendid young women, worthy and fully deserving, and will appreciate the help of their friends. Give them a boost, a word of friendly encouragement, and a few dollars to apply on your subscription and you will never regret it. The Santa Anna News is worth the money and we are trying to make it still more valuable each year.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

The campaign is open and will continue in force until Tuesday, December 24, Christmas Eve Day, at 6 o'clock in the evening. Any white person over fifteen years of age of good character, living in Coleman county or any point on the eastern border of the county in the Santa Anna trade territory, is eligible to enter this campaign. Younger children can enter only with the consent of their parents or guardians.

No salaried employe of the News or members of their families will be allowed to enter or give out any information concerning the contest to contestants, or their friends, but the standing of contestants will be published from time to time for their benefit and information.

Candidates nominated who do not wish to remain in the contest can withdraw at any time, but there will be no trading or transferring of votes.

Votes are issued on both new and renewal subscriptions, but no votes will be issued until the cash has been received at this office.

All contestants who remain actively engaged throughout the campaign, making weekly cash reports, who fail to win one of the prizes offered, will be paid in cash, ten per cent of the amount they collect during the contest, but failure to comply with this restriction, he or she, will, at the discretion of the management, become disqualified and thereby forfeit all right to a prize or a commission.

The subscription price of the Santa Anna News in Coleman county is $1.00 a year, and no subscriptions will be accepted at this price outside of Coleman county except at Bangs post office just over the line in Brown county, where several people receive their mail who trade in Santa Anna. Votes will be given on foreign subscriptions when received at the regular price of $1.50 a year.

We reserve the privilege of amending or changing these rules any time during the campaign if we deem it advisable and prudent for the benefit of the News and the contestants, but no material changes will be made.

The main object of this campaign is to increase our circulation and we expect to use our every effort to do so.

This contest will be conducted honorably in every respect, each contestant receiving the same fairness of all others, for we personally will see to it that no unfair means will be used. We want you to enter this contest feeling you are going to get a square deal and after it is over we expect you to feel the same way about it.

Any erroneous statements made without foundation by any contestant to the detriment of other contestants will be sufficient grounds for the management to declare such contestant disqualified and have them withdrawn from the contest.

Special inducements will be offered for long term subscriptions and the contestants will do well to bear this in mind, as one long term subscription will mean many more votes per dollar than will the short term subscriptions. No subscription will be accepted for a shorter term than one year or a longer term than ten years, but one ten year subscription will equal forty one year subscriptions, so it will be well for contestants to begin planning early to get a few of their close friends to consider long term subscriptions. Extra copies of the paper will be furnished free and contestants should keep themselves well supplied with copies of the paper.

SCHEDULE OF VOTES

1 year $1.00	1000 votes
2 years $2.00	3000 votes
3 years $3.00	6000 votes
4 years $4.00	10000 votes
5 years $5.00	15000 votes
10 years $10.00	40000 votes

For subscriptions outside of territory add 50 per cent to above in cash and the same number of votes will apply.

Ten Commandments Of Success

1. Work hard. Hard work is the best investment a man can make.
2. Study hard. Knowledge enables a man to work more intelligently and effectively.
3. Be initiative. Ruts often deepen into graves.
4. Love your work. You will find pleasure in mastering it.
5. Be exact. Slipshod methods bring slipshod results.
6. Have the spirit of conquest. It enables you to successfully battle and overcome difficulties.
7. Cultivate personality. Personality is to the man as perfume is to the flower.
8. Help and share with others. The real test of business greatness lies in giving opportunity to others.
9. Be democratic. Unless you feel right toward your fellowmen, you can never be a successful leader of men.
10. In all things do your best. The man who has done his best has done everything. The man who has done less than his best has done nothing. —Sweet Sue.

NEW SCRIBBLERS INITIATED

On Monday of last week the Scribblers met at the home of Miss McCreary for the purpose of initiating the new members.

Fifteen new members were initiated, and there were ten or twelve old members present. The new members wore their dresses backward and the wrong side out. They were also forced to wear their shoes on the wrong feet and walk backward wherever they went.

Games and contests were the entertainment for the evening. At a later hour sandwiches, tea and cakes were served to the following: Emma John Blake, Mary Lee Ford, Marilyn Baxter, Anita Kirkpatrick, Era Hill, Gale Collier, Margaret Jones, Annie and Eva Nickens, Ruth Irick, Gwendolyn Oakes, June Kirkpatrick, Mary Louise Curry, Rosalie Niell, Ima Niell, Dalphine Richardson, Carlene Ashmore, Ruby Lee Price, Doris Spencer, Emma Sue McCain, Doris Rollins, Dorothy Sumner, Loraine Parsons, Arabelle Ragsdale, and the hostess.

Senior Scraps

The seniors are sorry that one of their members, Carrie Dillingham, is in the hospital. They hope she will be able to be back in school soon.

The seniors are still walking in "the ranks of the book agents." Their campaign for subscriptions for the Holland's Magazine ends November 21.

Stray Stories

Mary Lee Ford wants someone to scratch her back.

The show wasn't so interesting to Gale Collier one night after she found out who was sitting behind her.

Gwendolyn Oakes likes to go to Coleman to see a certain boy. This was found out after a quiz. She first liked to go because there was a Woolworth there.

Anita Kirkpatrick receives love letters from Austin.

Miss McCreary likes to be kissed. She was kissed by someone wearing lipstick.

Marilyn was seen with Jack Price but she and Creighton are still getting along fine.

Ruby Lee Price has a boy friend.

Willard Wilson cuts his speeches short in English I.

Views Of Knowledge

"People who know a lot are hoodlums," Said a discouraged student one day.

"What is the use to study and study—"

Until your hair turns grey. Why not indulge in pleasure While you are young and gay; And then if you have to know things

Learn then in your aged days."

"How nice it is to keep climbing," Said an ambitious student one day.

"Each day I learn many new things, That sends me farther on my way.

And if my lamp of knowledge shines brightly

At the end of my long journey— It will not matter to me

Whether I am young or old, If in the end of my climbing I reach my long desired goal."

Tom Doesn't Detour

Tom Brown says that he is tired of bumping into detour signs every time he starts out in his car. It looks like ALL the road crews are working on the roads this year. Tom went down and ordered a telephone. He says he NEVER has to detour when he calls and his telephone saves his time, his temper and many unnecessary trips.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER IV.—Through a misunderstanding, at a stopping place last night Hal is directed to Barry's room, instead of the one he is to share with Kerrigan. Proximity seems to soften Barry's apparent unfriendliness, and they exchange kisses.

"Darling," she said softly, just to say it under his watching. Then, more strongly: "Darling, I can't love you, I mustn't. That's true, true—even if I'd give my eyes not to have it. I'll tell you why—truly, and you'll see. But I have to wait till I know how to tell you. I promise, my dearest, I shall know. But I mustn't love you."

"But I Mustn't Love You. You Mustn't Love Me."

You mustn't love me! She looked at him as if she had known him very well and he were now suddenly going to leave her.

Then quickly her eyes left his and she turned around, drawing at Doc's leash. "We must go back, Hal," she said hurriedly. "Please, we've got to."

They were on the heat-shimmered road again by three, a hundred miles from the Mississippi crossing. There was a current of gaiety which carried off even the standard post-luncheon torpor, as if the atmosphere of the car were infected by the profligate, exulting buoyancy under Hal's own heart.

For Hal could dismiss the conviction of grief in Barry's eyes for his joy in the small marvels of their passage in the street; the quick touching of her shoulder to his arm; the pressure of her living side against the back of his caught hand; the near-busky enchantment of her calling him darling. What could she have behind her blue eyes to stand against his invincibility? Some fragile shadow of an obstacle—the fact that he was Frederick Ireland's son, or the beckoning of Hollywood, trifles which he could shatter when he had his time to speak, out of the strength which she herself had unleashed to surge up under the single necessity left in the world.

The time was coming—today, as swiftly as the hard road under Rasputin's wheels. Excitement filled him, pushed newly in each moment to escape his chest; and there was room for no more than a flash of shame at the niggardliness of his spirit that had quibbled with his being most valiantly in love, for the first—good God, yes, the first real time in his life.

"Hey, my friend," said Kerrigan, bending gravely toward him, "where did you go in Peoria?"

"Why, Colonel?" said Hal, grinning.

"You look as though you'd slipped on a million dollars' worth of eternal vertiges and found your initials stamped on all of 'em."

"Little place around the corner I found on my way from the Klondike," said Hal. "Run by an ex-afide-de-camp to the czar whose life I saved at Port Arthur. Napoleon brandy from original casks at a nickel a goblet. I've no secrets from you, Munchausen."

Kerrigan's eyes danced merrily under their half-mustaches. "You're sure the toque hasn't taken charge?" he said. "Wouldn't like to stop off for a cold shower somewhere down the line?"

"Stop for nothing, sub," said Hal. "I want the Mississippi, what Ring Lardner jokingly called the Father of Waters. It is out here somewhere, isn't it?"

"Was last time I came through," said Kerrigan, the sparkle of his look laughing with and at Hal's. Hal had a glimpse of Barry's face: her eyes, unpreoccupied, gave him brief, intimate approval, and his heart sang higher.

As each vista gave way to another level run over closely farmed country, Hal grew impatient for that coming to the rim of a long plateau which he conceived would reveal the Mississippi, flat and blue and broad, lying infinitely off toward the veils of the horizon on either hand. Then, after they had settled down to what seemed another whole country of unwatered farmland, Kerrigan took the dead cigarette end from his lips and leaned forward. "The old fella," he said quietly; and he added, as if he meant it to be all very casual, "Here, let me treat you to your first Mississippi crossing." He reached into his trousers pocket, jangling change.

They went out on the narrow track slowly, each slanted girder flicking a gentle echo at them, and neither Hal nor Kerrigan spoke. Halfway across Mrs. Pulsipher's voice bustled suddenly into the car: "Why, this is the Mississippi river."

"It is," said John, as if she'd waked him out of guilty reverie. "Is it, Mr. Kerrigan?"

"The original, mam."

Hal said to Kerrigan, "Remember Huck Finn and that nigger on the raft; the loaves of bread with peryury in 'em floating down and a cannon booming over the water from the ferry boat, to raise their bodies."

"God, sir, wasn't I just thinking of that?" said Kerrigan—half startled, half pleased, as if it were a joint experience which he thought Hal might have forgotten. "I never cross the old rogue without thinking of it. I swear—just that minute—I was nowhere else but there."

"Then there's more than one mind-reader along," said Hal drily, a faint check upon his full pleasure.

"Meaning?" said Kerrigan. Hal gave a brief shake of his head, aware of Crack sitting behind him, retrospectively aware that he had been there all afternoon. Hal had the curious impulse to recall what he'd thought and said in that time, as you might try to remember what you'd done in a room where you find you've been watched. Then he caught himself and shook off the quick discomfort. Crack might sit there as knowingly, as pleased with private, drowsy thoughts as he liked; he had nothing to do with Hal or the Mississippi or this moment.

Then Kerrigan tossed up a thick finger to indicate the Burlington shore where their bridge ran over the railway. "That belongs," he said. Four white ex-pullman cars stood on a siding, a patiently suffered creature to their wooden spines, and roofs smoothed down over open-end-platforms, window-arches gay with marbled glass. Along their white sides, gold letters were painted: "Davenport Bros. Great World's Fair Shows."

"Gosh," Barry called from the back, "wouldn't it be fun to see their show?"

"It would," said Kerrigan. "I'd be fun to see it, and stow away in those cars afterward."

"It'd be fun," said Hal. "To do almost anything." And in saying that, there was a somnate sharing of this moment with both Barry and Kerrigan, a thankful comfort that could put away the uneasiness of a minute ago—almost put it quite away. The night was near now, and his coming to Barry, to the roof of fear from her bravery, and to his hope of Fortune in the world.

Iowa rolled in tireless undulations, the road tapered over them like the flat-healed scar of a careful cut, the coming loops visible from each rise. They crossed the Skunk river, and rolled on over the dips and rises toward the sinking sun. Ottumwa was close beyond, and they found clean tourist cabins in a grove of trees beside the Des Moines river.

The proprietor said that, given time, his old lady would throw together as good a feed, and better, and cheaper, than any they could get in them places uptown. Hal took Rasputin to a garage and supervised his priming for tomorrow. And when he got back, the others were halfway through a meal that had even such intrepid appetites as the Pulsipher's working uphill. The full buoyancy that Hal had carried through the afternoon still refused to take account of hunger. He did the swift best he could, so that the proprietor's old lady shouldn't be hurt; but when Barry pushed her chair back from the long table and squeaked her lips at Doc, he abandoned the business abruptly and followed her outdoors.

Fresh eagerness excited in his blood, tried to lift his body with a hundred different excitements, urged him to leap and shout out his joy for these hints of immortality. He stopped her walking with his hand, turned her to him and held her while he said, "Barry, we've got to go somewhere—quickly."

Hal, as if he had been urging her for a long time. "I couldn't—couldn't tell you what I have to. I'm too tired to be strong. I shouldn't tell you it's hoping, wishing, praying about you that's made me so tired, but I want to tell you. Because—I—Hal, we can't go; I've got to go in."

She moved a little, as if she were going to let her head go against his shoulder. But she stopped herself, and her low, lovely voice murmured, "My darling."

"You don't have to tell me anything," said Hal, shocked by the quiet decision that was trying to rob him of this time he had so surely looked to: "all you have to do is listen to me, to the things I must tell you. You can rest, listening to them—just up there, a little way, by the river. We'll sit against a tree, and when you want me to stop, I'll stop and you can sleep on my shoulder. I promise, if you tell me to, I won't speak again—not a word, not even what keeps on running and trembling in all my nerves, muscles, heart, tongue, everything: I love you. I love you so that—"

"Hal, don't, oh, don't, please. Hal, darling." Her free hand gripped his arm hard, and he couldn't tell whether it shook to enforce what she said or whether the desperation that shivered under her voice was in her body, too.

"Barry," said Hal in severe quiet. "You've got to listen. Why do you frighten yourself? Why do you try to frighten me—before you've let me say, before—"

Her exclamation was a whimper of fear, and she turned her frantic head toward the cabin. "Sister Anastasia!"

The door opened on the neat, lighted room of raw boards, with the nun's silhouette in the oblong. "Yes, sweet?" she said, her modest voice tranquil and soothing as the sound of a little wind among sleeping trees.

"Sister, I just wanted to know you were there. I'm coming now. Please wait for me." She bowed her head as if to see more clearly the joining of their hands in the dimness. "Good night, my darling," she said hurriedly. "I'm a coward—a coward, and I'm so sorry."

She had her hand away from him, and quickly she was at the nun's side in the lighted doorway.

"I'll bet you," said Kerrigan, and the smoking cigarette end in the corner of his mouth looked short enough to burn him. "I'll bet you if we went in to town we could find a something would knock us out from under our hats."

"I'll bet you we couldn't," said Hal listlessly, the echo of Rasputin's long droning in his ears again. "I'll bet you two somethings we couldn't."

"Sir, a wager," said Kerrigan. "Do we ride or walk?"

"Walk," said Hal. "It's not far. In spite of the fact that he had no use for it, he felt the soft, impalpable refreshment under the stars. It was to him as if, out of a world murmurous with simple expectancy and unattended pleasure in the lushed resting of the night, he were singled out for traffic with deviousness and complication. Put into plain order of words, it was all so straightforward; he loved Barry; he indicated by every look, every gesture, every shading of her low voice that she was, at the least, ready to love him. So there they were—or should be. If she wasn't so sure of herself, she could tell him so; if there was a more definite barrier against her coming to him, it could be spoken, faced, and—if not demolished—then circumvented. That was so simple. Barry was candid of nature, as honorable as her golden head, her little body, were lovely; yet she ran from him, left him to a darkened, indefinable complexity in which he felt the restive nearness of fear and remembered the presence of something impending, something that seemed to prowl in stealth out of the future, vanish into it again when he looked warily to see its shape.

Thank heaven for Kerrigan—good Kerrigan. Hal had started out with him for the purpose of getting a stiff, resentful drink and venting his beleaguered gloom on whatever his companion chose to talk about. But just in walking beside him, Kerrigan's air of unacquisitive well-being, of confidence in the propriety to his soul of anything that might happen, brought Hal's hopes a little away from the dominion of bafflement and left his uneasy brooding to wait.

They went up the street. Down a half-respectable alley with a wrecking car and some stacks of old tires in it, they came to a door that had "Office," printed on the dark glass; and Kerrigan knocked briskly. A crack opened, revealing bright light on unfiltered layers of tobacco smoke beyond a screen, and a dim strip of face that held one steady eye.

"Pete here?" said Kerrigan. "No." "Like to see where he works," said Kerrigan. "He don't work nights." "Frisby sent us. I've got his penny."

The strip of face vanished and the door swung wider. They sat down at a table, and a dark, contented young man waited without speaking. Kerrigan turned to him pleasantly. "What's the bourbon situation?" he said. There was no particular in which you could have said the young man's expression yielded to Kerrigan's friendly ease, yet it did change; and he said, "We got some stuff here in Kentucky bottles, but you wouldn't call it bourbon."

Kerrigan looked at Hal. "Rye, then?" he said. "Fine," said Hal.

Kerrigan looked up and said, "Rye." The young man stood there watching Kerrigan steadily; he said, "Want some bourbon?"

"Bourbon?" said Kerrigan, with just the right mixture of interest and incredulity. "Half a minute," the young man said crisply and disappeared through a door beside the bar.

"Now there you are," said Hal sincerely. "If I lived to be a hundred, I'd never have the gift. Here it is fifteen minutes after you decide you want a drink in a strange town, and you not only get it, but get something special, almost without asking for it. I need lessons."

The Mountaineer

Junior Chitter Chatter

The Halloween Carnival was in full swing last Thursday night. And the Mystery Queen? None other than a junior—charming Lenora Golston, who gracefully advanced down the aisle of the auditorium and took her place on the throne next to that of King Bill Early, another junior. Duke Quinton Hudler and Duchess Anita Kirkpatrick were two other outstanding juniors in this gala affair.

The junior class appreciated the P. T. A.'s offer to unite with them in this gay entertainment. The juniors are truly grateful for the willingness and eagerness that was shown by the sponsors and classes of SAHS, and helped to make the carnival a "whooping" success!

Again the juniors have triumphed in an election! After William Mitchell's resignation from the position of pep leader was accepted, Bill Early was elected. He filled his place as a professional pep leader last Friday at the game with San Saba.

Centennial Club Elects Officers

Thursday at club period the Centennial Club met and elected the club officers. They are as follows: Rubye Lee Price, president; Carlene Ashmore, vice-president; Charlotte Moseley, secretary and treasurer; Ruth Conley, reporter.

In addition to electing the club officers, several of the members gave very interesting reports on important characters of history.

SAHS—Freshman News

The freshmen are buying two dictionaries for the grammar school library. The money was given to the class last year by the P. T. A.

The President of That Union Would Probably Be the Guy Who Accidently Drops a Hammer on His Wife's Head and Then Shouts at Her for Putting the Tool Box on a High Shelf.

MATRIMONIAL UNION, LOCAL 13

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

A LOT of people are under the impression that the big controversy of the day is between Hitler and Europe, or Father Coughlin and General Johnson, or even between the New Deal and the Republicans; but they are wrong. The big controversy which is occupying most of the human race, is the one between the husbands and the wives, to decide who's boss.

The minute the letter H precedes the word Alter, the trouble begins and for hundreds of years past the difficulties of this particular type of union were settled by the men, who used a club for the purpose. Each man had his own private club, and when he joined up with it and then brought sufficient pressure to bear, the lady hollered a lot about going home to Momme's cave but generally didn't get any farther than hollering because as there were no police radio cars, none of the neighbors telephoned in about it and the lady stayed licked and liked it.

This undoubtedly is the origin of the male club as an institution. And in more modern times the mere mention of the fact that a man was going to his club was enough to start a panic in his home. His wife would promise practically anything if he'd go only once a week, hence the expression "holding a club over her head."

Then in quite recent years women got resigned to the club idea because it gave them something to reproach their husbands about. And next they got up some clubs of their own. Then some pants of their own and some yokes of their own and the battle over who was boss got less cute and more acute.

The trouble with the women is, they want the man to be the boss, but they want him to prove it. And when a competent wife asks that she's really asking too much.

And the trouble with the men is, they want the woman to be boss but to pretend she isn't.

The Matrimonial Union ought to adopt some modern methods of operating if it wants to get anywhere. Look where organization got the A. P. of L. I. No. you look, I can't quite bring myself to. But what I mean is, that clubs are out of date but strikes are not. And this eternal man-woman question is ever to be settled satisfactorily, it should be done through protective associations which will see to it that the interests of both parties are stimulated, I beg pardon, I mean looked out for.

Of course strike methods would be no novelty in most homes where she has been striking with a rolling pin for years, and he has been taught that no gentleman ever raises his hand to a woman with the one exception of the school teacher when he is very young and wants to leave the room.

But modern strikes are not conducted that way. Nowadays when strikers walk out they also walk up and down. They crawl in between two slices of a sign-board, make a human sandwich out of themselves, and if they also wore an onion and a little mustard you could bite into them for a hamburger and never know the difference. This is called picketing but does not mean you are on the picket fence. It just means you are picketing on somebody.

The way I figure the Matrimonial Union could work it would be something like this: say Mr. Jones has refused to buy his wife a new hat. Mrs. Jones immediately reports the outrage to her local and the women start walking up and down in front of the Joneses' house wearing sandwiches which proclaim "Mr. Jones is unjust to the millinery trade." Then underneath "Married Women's Protective Union, Local No. 13."

The same methods would of course apply to husbands. If Mr. Smith went on a strike about the hired girl's night out and his local was to parade in signs which announced that "Mrs. Smith Cooks With a Can Opener" something might come of it—maybe a trip to Reno, I dunno.

Of course not everybody would be eligible for admission into these Unions. Only skilled workers would be taken in. The women would have to be skilled at working their husbands, and the men at working alibis.

In order to join the Married Women's Union ladies would have to prove they were able to rule the roost and the rooster, and the test would be made by a committee of ladies who would watch while the wife-candidate stuck her head in her husband's poker game and called his first name violently. If he drops a straight flush and comes home immediately, the candidate is elected.

The qualifications for joining the Husband's Protective Association should be the husband-applicant hit, insult, or abuse his wife, and get away with it. The president of that Union would probably be the guy who accidentally drops a hammer on his wife's head and then shouts at her for putting the tool box on a high shelf like that where nobody could get it down without spilling it—and has her apologize for putting it there. If she doesn't apologize he'll probably only be a walking delegate, walking as fast as possible if not actually running.

By no means should husbands of wives so famous that they have been forced to become known to the world by those wives' names be eligible to the Matrimonial Union, Local 13, or any other Local.

In Russia the Husband's Protective Society idea is going strong, and I see by the paper that they have recently passed a law over there whereby a woman can be thrown in the jug for failure to pay her divorced husband his alimony. This makes the women see Red.

All of which goes to prove that United We Stand for A Lot; Divided, You Get the House if You're Lucky!

But with the husbands and the wives both well organized we might get to a point where we could do a little arbitration. The wives demand the abolition of the twenty-four hour day, and a minimum dress allowance. While the husbands could demand the removal of the time limit on home coming, and the right to walk upstairs in their shoes after 11 p. m. The old principle of give and take is the best after all—he gives and she takes. But no amount of arbitration can ever settle who's boss. That can be done only in one way, and the Husband's Protective Association which takes up this set of rules will work wonders.

1. Never forget to kiss your wife good-by—and kiss her unexpectedly even if you're staying home.

2. Notice her clothes and tell her she looks pretty. Four times a year is sufficient for this.

3. Bring her a flower or two occasionally when your conscience is perfectly, obviously clear.

4. Never trust her around the corner and never stand for any nonsense from her when you and she both know it's nonsense.

And if your association will adhere strictly to these simple rules, there is no question about who will be boss—we women are that kind of fools!

Historic Gonzales Sunday closed a six-day celebration that was opened November 5 with a salute from a replica of the brass cannon which on October 2, 1835, roared forth the opening shot of the war for independence. A mile long parade of colorful pageantry was witnessed by more than 30,000 persons, including state dignitaries and many persons prominent in civic and official life of Texas and the Southwest. Pictured top above is a float entered in the parade from San Antonio, representing an early day sewing bee. In the center is reproduced the challenging "Come and Take It" flag carried into the battle by the colonists, and the cannon. Below is an entry in the "Run Away Scrape" section of the parade. The historical observance opened at Gonzales will be continued through the year in celebrations in San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth and other Texas cities, and in the magnificent exposition to be opened in Dallas next June.
