SANTA ANNA, COLEMAN COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY NOVEMBER 8, 1935

NUMBER 45

"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

Contestants Are Doing Good Work

Our drive for new and renewal subscriptions is making some headway, but not in the proportions we expected. Only two have exemplified much interest. Two new ones have enlisted in the campaign this week. One of them, Mrs. Lightfoot, was nominated early in the campaign, but for some reason, failed to wade out in the field of work and properly demonstrate her intentions, therefore her name was not mentioned in the weekly reports. Mrs. Lightfoot has at last decided to try for some of the Big Pay being offered by the Santa Anna News for a few weeks work, soliciting new and renewal subscriptions.

Mrs. Mark Davis, known to most everyone in this territory prior to her marriage to Mr. Davis as Miss Ethel Whetstone, entered the race this week and will appreciate the help and encouragement of friends in this contest. Mrs. Davis is another deserving young woman, and this paper will back her up in her work.

Mrs. T. T. Perry has the matter very much under consideration, and with a little encouragement, we believe she would enter this contest and make a real contender. Mrs. Perry is a very deserving lady of the motherly type, and should she decide to enter this contest, the Santa Anna News would feel honored to have her identified as one of our contestants.

The game is yet young, and the field is not worked. Those working are among the best young women the county affords, but they have not yet got into the business sufficiently to roll up the business expected in this campaign.

The Santa Anna News has been lenient with our subscribers. Too many of them have been permitted to drag along and do most as they pleased because the editor was too faint hearted to insist upon payments when due. We tried stopping a few papers at expiration and were subjected to severe criticism, but in most cases those who appeared offended came back and re-enlisted and have kept up their subscription payments since. We are now inclined to believe that if we had "stood pat" and demanded our money when due, we would have come out better. So many people who have been good customers for years, always paid when they had the money and still accepted the paper and read it, it occurred to us that we were doing them a favor by sending it on to them during depression times, and we believed they would appreciate it enough to come in and pay for it when times would justify. Now we are informed by some of our delinquents complain, and inform them that they, the delinquent subscriber, did not authorize the paper to continue coming to them longer than it was paid for, and they do not consider the debt just, therefore they will not pay it. However, a large majority are coming in, paying up and apologizing for not being able to pay sooner, and express gratitude toward the editor and management for the courtesies extended them, and some are paying up considerably in advance. We certainly appreciate those who manifest the spirit of gratitude, and trust we will be able to continue to make our paper worthwhile to them. We are keeping a record, as complete as we are able to compile, of those who are grateful, also of those who manifest ingratitude, and in the future, if your paper stops at expiration, it will be due to our records, which does not justify taking a chance.

This message is different to any we have written before, but these times are calculated to try people and bring things right out of their souls that never were brought out before. We believe the Santa Anna News has been worth more than the price charged to any one reading it, and we cannot help becoming distressed when some indicate they do not care so and don't care to pay for it after we have labored like we have to publish it and send it to your address each week.

With a circulation of approximately 1,000 in 1930 we were supplying over 900 of them when we started this campaign in October of this year, and less than 300 of them were delin-

Mayes Named Chairman Of Parks Board

Wendell H. Mayes, editor of The Brownwood Banner, today was appointed chairman of the Texas State Parks Board by Gov. James V. Alford. Announcement of his appointment was received by United Press wire from Austin by The Bulletin this week.

Mr. Mayes, son of former Lieutenant Governor Will H. Mayes of Austin, will succeed D. E. Colp of San Antonio, who has been chairman for eleven years.

Judge O. C. Pouns Taken By Death

Brownwood, Nov. 4.—Judge O. C. Pouns, 74, retired teacher, attorney, newspaperman, and an extensive property owner, died at his home in Brownwood early Monday morning, death following an extended illness.

Judge Pouns was born August 4, 1861, in Daingerfield, Texas, and came to Brownwood in 1917. He served as county attorney of Morris county before coming to Brownwood, and was city recorder here for several years.

Judge Pouns is survived by his wife and five sons, Lyle B. Pouns, of Dallas; Stayton W. Pouns, assistant postmaster at Brownwood; Jim H. and O. C. Jr., both of Brownwood; and Joe B. Pouns, editor of the Coleman Democrat-Voice.

Funeral services were held at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Home Demonstration Club

The Santa Anna Home Demonstration Club met last Friday afternoon at the City Hall. The next meeting will be next Friday afternoon, November 15, at the City Hall.

Seven old members and four new members were present for the interesting program. New members were Mrs. Dick West, Mrs. Carl Ashmore, Mrs. Will Howard and Mrs. Jim Harrison. Beginning with the next meeting, the Club will meet at 2:30 o'clock instead of 3:00. All visitors are welcome.

Mr. A. T. Jackson of Austin

Field man for the Anthropology Department of the State University, was here Monday to look over the collection of antiques and curios belonging to Mrs. J. R. Banister. She permitted him to take several articles to display during the Texas Centennial next year.

quint. Ninety percent of the 300 are grateful enough to show some degree of appreciation, and offer words of commendation, but a paltry few can demonstrate their ingratitude in such manner as to make one wish he had never tried to accommodate a pale, until he has time to reflect and consider the better side of life.

This editor is just human, and when the accusing finger of criticism is pointed our way, it causes certain feelings to arise that our justified ire has difficulty to overcome without divulging a little spleen.

Now that is off our system and we are ready to proceed with the kind of stuff we like to write.

There are sufficient number of good people in this country with good intentions to justify continuing our efforts in publishing our paper, and rendering the service we have always wanted to and tried to render, and, on December 1st, all those who are not paid up and we have no evidence of their intentions to pay, will be dropped from our list, and we will serve in the future only those we can reach with a kindly and appreciated service. That much more just "crept in" but it was very timely.

We repeat that we feel fortunate to have such a splendid crew of young women working in our campaign, and will appreciate the friendly encouragement of friends in their behalf. The following are active, and listed according to their standing.

Mrs. Ruth Bowden has 122,000 votes. Mrs. William Sheffield has 165,900 votes. Miss Ruby Williams has 23,400 votes. Mrs. Lola Lightfoot has 14,000 votes. Mrs. Ethel Davis has 10,000 votes. Mrs. Davis entered after the votes were counted for this week. It is still not too late to enter.

Coleman Man Dies Suddenly

Coleman, Nov. 6.—Robert V. Wood, 74, pioneer and prominent in Coleman business and church life, died unexpectedly at 10:45 Wednesday morning. He had gone to the office of Dr. R. H. Cochran, complaining of feeling badly, and suddenly slumped forward in a chair, dying. A heart attack was thought to have caused his death.

Mr. Wood was born in Lowndes County, Miss., November 15, 1860, and came to Coleman June first, 1885, from San Saba. He was county clerk of Coleman county, 1894-1908; city clerk of Coleman, 1913-1927; and at the time of death was secretary-treasurer of the Coleman national farm loan association. He was prominent in the Presbyterian church.

Surviving are the wife, the former Anna T. Zivlev of Austin; one son, R. V. Wood, Jr.; and three daughters. They are Mrs. Guy Davis, Brownwood, wife of the president of Daniel Bakes college; Mrs. C. G. Cotton, in the trade extension bureau of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce; and Mrs. Jack Holloway of Coleman.

FUNERAL THURSDAY FOR MRS. HALMON

Funeral services were held from the Bangs Methodist Church Thursday afternoon at two o'clock for Mrs. J. C. Halmon, 52, who passed away just before six o'clock Wednesday afternoon, of injuries sustained when she was struck by a car October 13. She had received care in the Sealy Hospital until a week ago, when she was carried to her home at the County Line.

Julia Parker was born July 23, 1883, at Minden, Texas, the daughter of F. M. H. Parker, and was married to J. C. Herring in March, 1913. Mr. Herring passed away eight years ago, and three years ago she was married to J. C. Halmon and has lived in and around Santa Anna since that time. She had lived in Rusk county for many years.

She is survived by her foster daughter, Mrs. Willene Moore, who has been here since the accident, her father, F. M. H. Parker of Henderson, and the following brothers and sisters:

James T. Parker of Henderson, W. A. Parker of Dallas, and A. H. Parker of Houston, Mrs. Charles E. Gilbreath of Alice, Miss Susie Parker of Henderson, and Mrs. Lula Haynes of Santa Anna. Also were here for the funeral except her father and Mrs. Gilbreath and Miss Parker. Others from out-of-town who were here are Reese Moore, Mrs. Halmon's son in law, and Forrest Parker, Mrs. Vera Moon, and Mrs. Ethel Griffin, all of Henderson.

Services were directed by her pastor, Rev. B. E. Edmondson of Bangs, with Hosh Funeral Directors in charge of arrangements, and interment in the Bangs Cemetery. Pall bearers were Marvin White, Ennis Brooks, Bill Strange, Vance Mosler, Howard Mosler, and Willard Powers.

Mrs. Halmon was converted at the age of twelve years, and joined a Baptist Church, but joined the Methodist Church more than twenty years ago.

Mrs. E. E. Briggs and children came Wednesday and are visiting in the home of Mrs. Briggs' sister, Mrs. H. L. Lackey and family. Rev. Briggs is pastor of the Methodist Church at Newcastle and is in Brownwood attending the Annual Conference.

Winters Banker Lists 7 Rules for Success On Farm

Winters, Nov. 4.—John O. McAdams, president of the Winters State bank, gave Future Farmers of Winters high school seven rules for success as a farmer at their last regular meeting.

Qualities listed for success in farming were:

Be honest and do not think you can get anywhere without a lot of hard work.

Provide for a home with modern conveniences—running water, bath, refrigeration, kitchen sink and other improvements.

Raise a great deal of feed and keep a two-year supply on hand.

Keep plenty of livestock and poultry.

Practice a system of rotating crops to maintain fertility of soil.

Use tractors if inclined to be rolling.

Raise your "tractors"—work animals on the farm.

An eighth rule, without which all others would fail, he said, was added by Mr. McAdams—stay out of debt or have something to show for the debt.

Future Farmers then joined in a general discussion of tractor farming, the government reduction program and the ideal farm.

J. M. Williams is director of agriculture work at Winters.

Local Schools To Observe Holidays

The Annual Red Cross Drive will open next week, and continue for two weeks.

Prof. J. C. Scarborough is general chairman of the local unit, and has requested each church organization to appoint one lady solicitor to work during the campaign for membership funds. The solicitors are supposed to be appointed at the church or Sunday School services next Sunday morning, and meet at the Christian Church at 10 a. m. Tuesday for the purpose of organizing and starting out on the campaign.

Fifty cents per member is forwarded to the National Red Cross, the remainder is kept here for local purposes in case of hazards or distress. The regular membership price is $1.00, but some pay more. All above the 50c per member is kept at home for local purposes.

When they approach, for they will call upon you sooner or later. See the special supplement folded in this issue of the News for further information.

J. C. McKenzie At Baptist Church Sunday

Rev. J. C. McKenzie of Iran will fill the pulpit of the First Baptist Church here next Sunday morning and evening. Rev. McKenzie has been pastor of the First Baptist Church at Iran for several years, and members of the pulpit committee have received several interesting communications concerning him.

Y. W. A. MET TUESDAY

Members of the Young Women's Auxiliary met Tuesday afternoon at the home of the Counselor, Mrs. J. R. Lock, and enjoyed a program concerning the mission work in China. The program was conceded to be the best of the year.

At the close of the interesting discussions, Mrs. Lock, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Gosen, served delicious hot chocolate, cookies and candy to fourteen members and guests.

The organization, of which Miss Rosalie Niell is president, meets each Tuesday afternoon at the Lock home.

Bargain Days Are Here Again

See Announcement Elsewhere

We are making a full page announcement in this week's paper announcing our Special Bargain Day Subscription offer for this season. May we direct your attention to the special bargains offered, and remind you of the saving you can make by subscribing for your Daily papers thru this office.

For instance, you save 50c on each subscription by taking advantage of our special clubbing offer. If you wish to read a daily costing you $6.50 a year, just add 50c to the price and get the daily and the Santa Anna News weekly.

We take this opportunity to announce again that all who subscribe or renew your subscription with any of our contestants are entitled to the Bargain Day offers, and if you will call at this office with your receipt we will gladly send in your subscription to any Daily paper. If you have paid $1.00 for the Santa Anna News for one year then you will pay 50c less on the daily you want, thus equaling our special clubbing offer. Keep this in mind and bring us your subscription business.

FORMER ROCKWOOD LADY DIES IN OKLAHOMA

The remains of Mrs. Gladys Darwin, 36, were brought here last Saturday morning for burial in the Rockwood cemetery.

Mrs. Darwin died at her home in Ponca City, Oklahoma Thursday, October 31st. She was formerly Miss Gladys Lankford, daughter of Dr. J. M. Lankford, deceased, and step-daughter of Mr. R. L. Steward, prominent oil man and farmer of the Rockwood community.

Deceased is survived by her husband, J. C. Darwin and four children of Ponca City, Okla., her mother and step-father, and several sisters and brothers, and a host of friends in and around Rockwood, her former home.

Dr. W. R. Hornburg, pastor of the Coggin Avenue Baptist Church at Brownwood conducted the funeral services, which were held from the Baptist Church. Hosh Funeral Directors made arrangements.

Flower bearers were Mrs. Bill Steward, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. Evan Wise, Mrs. Carroll Lovelady, Mrs. John Steward, and Mrs. Denby Wise.

Pall bearers included Hilton Wise, Evan Wise, Carroll Lovelady, Jess Ashmore, Chick Rehm and Dean Ashmore.

Coleman County Pioneer Dies Thursday

Funeral services will probably be held in Coleman this afternoon for Mrs. Mary Snodgrass Dibrill, 80, who died at her home in Coleman Thursday afternoon at one o'clock. The widow of the late Rev. James B. Dibrill, she had been ill since Sunday night. Death was attributed to apoplexy.

The Coleman County Pioneer is survived by the following children: Judge J. B. Dibrill, Jr., of Coleman, Mrs. Bertha Johnson of Austin, Mrs. Marguerite Guthrie of Brownwood, Mrs. Ina Gay of Coleman, Mrs. Mary Gann of Denver, Colorado, and Mrs. Janie White of Coleman. One son, Frank L. Dibrill, preceded his mother in death.

County Wide AAA Organization In Progress

H. G. Lucas, representing the Agricultural program in these parts, under the AAA was here this week in the interest of a county wide organization to further the cause of the AAA program.

The writer did not meet Mr. Lucas in person, but his main theme, according to information, is to enlighten the public on the processing tax phase of the AAA program. Large manufacturers in the north and east are waging a hard fight to kill the processing tax, but are holding out for the protective tariff on their goods. The processing tax is the farmers' protection, and in our opinion, is just as legitimate as the tariff on goods manufactured in the north and east.

A county wide meeting is called for Thursday, November 14th.

Business Houses to Close Armistice Day

The News has been requested by the business houses of the town to announce the Grocery Stores, Dry Goods Stores, The Bank and other places of business will be closed next Monday, November 11th, the same being Armistice Day.

To us Armistice is one of the most deserved holidays observed in this country. We remember the sensational and memorable occasion on November 11th, 1918, when the news was spread over the world that the Kaiser of Germans had abdicated and an Armistice of Peace was signed. That was the most welcome message to come from over seas during the entire period of the war. Many mothers hearts were made to rejoice, as well as anxious fathers, brothers and sisters. Let's make it a real day of celebration and rejoicing.

The Lions Club joins in recommending a holiday Monday.

Lions Club In Busy Session

Many items of interest came before the Lions Club for consideration Tuesday at the regular weekly luncheon hour.

The Club voted to sponsor the Girls Scout program, endorsed and recommended to the Merchants to close Monday, November 11, Armistice Day, and also voted to underwrite and foster the lighting of the streets during the Christmas holidays, with the regular holiday decorations.

The Lions Club, being the only active civic organization composed of male citizens in the town, are confronted with many problems, many of which could be fathomed outside the Club, but the faithful Lions try to never turn down a worthy proposition that means the betterment of the community.

A committee of citizens will make a canvass of the business houses for donations to help pay the lighting bills, and the extra three colored bulbs which have been ordered.

ASSOCIATIONAL B. T. U. TO MEET SUNDAY

The Coleman Associational Baptist Training Union will meet Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Eureka Baptist Church, with the Eureka Training Union in charge of the program. Contestants for the State Contests will try out during the afternoon.

Mr. H. P. Wittkoski of Voss is President of the Association.

TRICKHAM H. D. C.

The election of officers of the Trickham Home Demonstration Club took place last Thursday when nine members and Miss Alice Glenn Young, met in the home of Mrs. B. W. McIver.

Mrs. P. E. Laughlin will serve the Club as President next year. Mrs. Watson Thomas, vice-president; Mrs. Jess York, Secretary; Mrs. John Pentecost, Council Member; Mrs. Walter Stacey, Reporter; and Mrs. Oscar Boenlecke, Parliamentarian, are the other officers.

Yard work was discussed, and plans were made for the foundation of a yard. Miss Young made some very helpful suggestions.

Double Funeral Monday For Wreck Victims

Double funeral services were held from the A. B. Hamilton home Monday afternoon for Mrs. Ernest Smith, and her two year old daughter, Bobbie Geralline, who were killed almost instantly at 9:30 Sunday morning when the truck in which they were riding was sideswiped by a loaded oil truck driven by R. B. Thompson of Brownwood. The wreck occurred on highway 16 seven miles southwest of here at the railing between two curves.

Mrs. Smith, the former Onella Hamilton, was born June 6, 1910 in Hill County, but has lived in Coleman county for several years. Rev. Richey, pastor of the Primitive Baptist Church conducted services here and at the Baptist Church in Rockwood. Hosh Funeral directors made the arrangements. Interment was in the Rockwood cemetery.

Flower bearers were Mrs. C. L. Northcott, Mrs. Ruby Evans, Mrs. Fulton Gardner, Misses Christine Brannan, Beulah Smith, Leona Talley, and Barbara Richey. Pall bearers were Johnnie Steward, Willie Steward, F. M. Bryan, Frank Bryan, Arthur King, Carroll Lovelady, Jack Rutherford, Buck Tull, B. A. McSwain, and Elmer Blackwell.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, her five year old son, Carven, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, four sisters, and two brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their two children were riding in the back of a farm truck and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, Jr. and their two children, Melba Earle, 6, and Wayne, 6 months, were riding in the cab. Mr. Johnson, owner of the truck, was driving. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Smith, sisters, had been called to the bedside of their mother, who was critically ill, having suffered a heart attack early Sunday morning.

The trucks sideswiped and the oil truck plunged through the railing and down the twenty-foot embankment on the left hand side of the road, and came to a standstill when it struck a tree at the bank of Horse Creek. The Smith family were thrown from the truck, and Mr. Smith, who was standing at the time of the impact, was least seriously injured. Carven, the five year old boy, is in the Sealy Hospital with a fractured left arm and leg, and severe facial cuts and bruises, some of which required stitches to close. Mrs. Johnson is receiving treatment for severe shock.

CLYDE W. RASBERRY

Clyde W. Rasberry, 38, farmer of near Santa Anna, died sometime Wednesday night of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at May with the Rev. Mr. Veatch officiating. Interment was there with White & London Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Rasberry was born in Comanche county, October 6, 1897, and lived there until January of this year, when he moved to 10 miles southeast of Santa Anna.

He is survived by his wife, his mother, Mrs. Leta Rasberry of Sidney, Comanche county; the following children, Dulane, Billie Mack and Jenette also survive, as do the following brothers and sisters: J. D. Rasberry, Key, Texas; Bill Rasberry, Sidney, Texas; Mrs. Ola Brown, Brownwood; Mrs. Eddie Ross, Texaco, Texas; Mrs. E. A. McDaniel, Odem; Mrs. A. D. Johnson, Merkel, and Mrs. J. O. Wagon, May.

Pall bearers: Bill McClure, Lawrence Wagon, Bob Wagon, Charles Wagon, Lance Wagon and Seaborn Floyd. (Brownwood Bulletin)

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all who rendered us aid or extended to us sympathy during our bereavement in the loss of our mother and mother-in-law, Mrs. Narelis Smith, who passed away October 23rd. Especially do we thank Dr. Sealy and Dr. Lovelady for their attention and kindness. Frank Fields and family.

WIN OR LOSE, BE A SPORT

What is a good sport? Is he one who turns up his nose and becomes angry because he has lost? No! A good sport can take every knock on the chin and still face the world with a smile.

It is not what you win nor the honor you receive, but the way the game is fought, the attitude that is taken toward the victory or loss.

When you do not win, believe the contest is judged fairly, and that your opponent surpasses you in ability. It is a great joy to win, but if you do not do it truthfully and honorably, your conscience will whisper to you, even in all your pomp and glory.

What a disappointment it is to lose! Sometimes, one feels a prejudice toward the individual who has gained all the praises. You should not feel that way. Learn to press down the jealousy which may surge into your heart. Be happy in the other person's victory and gain the friendship and respect of your classmates and associates.

Who is the best sport? The boy who, in a tennis game, loses and grows very angry, and says "He cheated," or the one who loses and says, "We played a fine game; you are a swell player; I am glad you won?" If you lose, do you want to smile and compliment your opponent and tell him you are glad? If you win, do you accept the honor graciously? It is not wise to brag about the victory which you have won.

ponent and tell him you are glad? If you win, do you accept the honor graciously? It is not wise to brag about the victory which you have won. To see a person bragging and "strutting his stuff" is disgusting.

Whether you win or lose, accept the decision smilingly and without conceit or jealousy and be able to say that you did the best you could.

It takes a good sport to say "I am glad you won." Try it sometime; it will make the winner think more of you. His first remark to his friends will be "He was a good sport."

SO BE A SPORT! —Sweet Sue.

SAHS PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS STRESSED

Everyone should strive to reduce the number of accidents in his home. More than one-third of all fatal accidents and nearly half of all accidental injuries are sustained in and about the home.

The American National Red Cross sponsored an annual Home Inspection Campaign from October 28 to November 2. During this week parents and children were asked to inspect their homes to make sure the following six things were being observed.

- 1. Stairways and steps are kept clear, repaired, lighted; porches and balconies have secure railings; toys and utensils are properly stored; a step ladder is available in the home.
2. Safety matches are used, kept out of the reach of children; bonfires are prohibited, fire places screened; utensils filled with hot liquids are kept away from small children.
3. The garage door or window is kept open when the motor is running; proper care of gas appliances.

4. Medicines are stored in labeled containers, necessary poisons are stored out of the reach of children; food removed from tin cans promptly after opening.

5. Electric cords and appliances are kept in good condition.

6. Sharp and piercing instruments and broken glass are used carefully or disposed of promptly. Immediate attention is given to all wounds. —Polly Anna.

SANTA ANNA TIES WINTERS 7-7

The game started off with Mayo kicking to Price on the 20 yard line. Price returned it to the 35 yard line where he was downed by Baker. The Mountaineers started their goal drive with Price carrying the pigskin; gain after gain was made through the line. The Mountaineers marched from the twenty yard line to the Winters ten yard line where they failed to push it over and tried two plays and fumbled on the 18 yard line where Jackson recovered for the Mountaineers. The Mountaineers again marched to the eight yard line but were unable to score and the ball went over to Winters who punted on first down to Davis on the thirty yard line. Davis fumbled and Price recovered and punted to Hodge on the thirty yard line. Hodge fumbled and Davis for the Mountaineers recovered and quarter ended.

Second Quarter Price took the ball and picked up twenty yards at right guard and that put the ball on Winters' ten yard line. Ashmore picked up seven yards at right guard and Price took it over four yards, standing up, for a touchdown. Price punted to Davis for extra point. Mountaineers kick to Blizzards on the twenty and Oakes stopped the shifty quarterback Hodge on the twenty for no gain. The Blizzards tried our line but it was like a stone wall; Mayo punted out of bounds on the Mountaineer thirty yard line. The Mountaineers tried the Blizzards line but failed to gain through it, and Price passed to Oakes, and Hodge for the Blizzards intercepted and was downed by Oakes. The Blizzards failed again to gain through the Santa Anna line and the ball went over to the Mountaineers on the Blizzards own ten yard line. Price pulled a fake punt with Ashmore taking the ball over left guard twenty yards and first down. They pulled the same play over and gained seven yards on it, and then the Mountaineers take the air with Price slinging the ball to Oakes twenty yards and a first down. Ashmore picked up three yards at right guard and was up with the score Mountaineers seven; Blizzards nothing.

Third Quarter The third quarter was played mostly in the Santa Anna territory, but Winters was unable to score. Both teams played heads up football in the third quarter; the quarter ended with Winters on Santa Anna's thirty-two yard line, with first down and ten to go.

Fourth Quarter On the first play in this quarter Hodge skipped around right end for first down; they tried the center of our line and failed but tried right end again and picked up ten yards. Hodge went over right tackle two yds for touchdown standing up. Hodge kicked the extra point. Hodge kicked to Oakes on the twenty and he returned it to the thirty, and Price passed to Oakes for twenty yards and first down. The little 117 pound Davis sprinted around left end with nice interference for sixteen yards. Santa Anna marched from her thirty yard line to the Blizzards' ten where Santa Anna drew a fifteen yard penalty for clipping. That made 4th down and twenty five to go when Price backed up and tossed a forty yard pass to Oakes over in the end zone, which was incomplete. Winters took the ball in the twenty yard line and marched to the fifty yard line in three plays but the Mountaineers stopped them there.

The stars for the Mountaineers were Price, Davis, Ashmore, J. T. Oakes, Jackson, Jones and Forehand. The stars for the Blizzards were Mayo, Hodge, Rountree, Dobbs, Woods, and Baker.

SAHS Home Economics Club Meets

The Home Making club met Wednesday, of last week. The club was called to order by the president. The secretary called the roll and read the minutes. Two new members names were added to the roll: Margaret McDonald and Kathleen McCormick. A short play, "Old Lucille!" was given. Lucille, a very careless girl, was played by Henrice Ashmore, and Mary, a very sensible girl, was played by Vesta Evans. Three of the boy sponsors were with us and also Miss Frances Jones visited the club. We were very glad to have them, and also our new members. —Reporter.

P. T. A. and Junior Class Sponsor Carnival

A large carnival for the benefit of the Santa Anna Band and the Junior Class was held at the high school on Thursday night, October 31.

Several booths were placed in the halls and an interesting program was put on in the auditorium. Sandwiches, pies, candy, and confetti were sold. Everyone seemed to have a very nice time and the Junior Class and P. T. A. would like to take this opportunity to express their sincere appreciation for those who gave their support and cooperation.

SAHS Halloween Party Given

Tuesday night of last week a group of high school students were entertained by Miss Charlotte Moseley in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Moseley.

Halloween colors were carried out during the evening in the entertainment which included games and contests. Refreshments of chicken salad sandwiches, olives, potato chips, cake, hot chocolate and marshmallows were served to Mary Lee Ford, Lenora Golston, Louise Oakes, Elizabeth Morris, Mary Dellinger, Marilyn Baxter, Todd Oakes, Jim Jones, Tommy Johnson, J. T. Oakes, Charlotte and Zelda Ruth Moseley.

SAHS MOUNTAINEERS WILL PLAY SAN SABA HERE THIS AFTERNOON

The Santa Anna Mountaineers will meet the strong San Saba team here this afternoon at 3:30. The San Saba team has not been defeated this year and has been tied by Winters only. The Mountaineers, tied by Winters also, will be fighting hard to beat San Saba.

The field will be in readiness for the first game of the season at Santa Anna. The dads of the football boys will be the special guests of the Mountaineers. They will sit together in a place reserved for them.

SAHS Chapel Is Held Tuesday

The assembly Tuesday morning was a business meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to elect a Fire Chief and an assistant Fire Chief. J. T. Oakes, a senior, was elected as chief and is expected to be a good one. J. W. Davis, a sophomore, will serve as assistant.

We shall have two fire drills each week until the pupils have had practice enough to get out of the building in proper time. Then we shall have only one a week for the remainder of the year.

SAHS JUST OUT

Dolphus Ashmore is smart. Ruby Moore likes kisses (candy). Jane Burden has a new pal. J. H. Slaughter likes Alice Jane Lovelady. Irene Stiles has a new permanent.

The junior class is writing editorials. Zelda Ruth Moseley has her hair combed differently. The freshmen and Mr. Prescott did not study their lessons for Friday on account of the Halloween Carnival!

The juniors lost their candidate for assistant fire-chief! A new recreation for girls! —Limping Jane.

SAHS Freshman Boy Is In Brownwood Hospital

High School and especially the freshmen are sorry to hear of the illness of Boyd Ramboll who is now in the Medical Arts Hospital in Brownwood. Each member of the freshman class has decided to send him a "get-well-quick" card. We hope that he soon will be able to be back with us.

SAHS Margaret McDonald: "Hollas tried to put him arm around me three times last night." Eva Dean Bledsoe: "Some arm."

OTHER PRIZES

A very Beautiful Diamond Ring, purchased from Emmett Day, Jeweler, where the ring is on display.

A large and beautiful Zenith Radio, the latest thing in the Radio Science. A 1936 unit, purchased from Geo. M. Johnson, and is now on display at his Radio Electric Shop.

Five candidates are now in the field. There should be several others and it is not too late to enter, however these can get the work done. Give them a boost and a word of encouragement. This campaign means a lot to Santa Anna, and all Santa Anna should lend a word of encouragement.

Following is the standing of the candidates at the third count Tuesday, November 5th.

Mrs. Ruth Bowden	182,700
Mrs. William Sheffield	166,900
Miss Ruby Williams	62,400
Mrs. Lola Lightfoot	14,000
Mrs. Ethel Davis	10,000

Mrs. Davis entered the contest after the votes were counted this week.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

The campaign is open and will continue in force until Tuesday, December 24, Christmas Eve Day, at 6 o'clock in the evening. Any white person over fifteen years of age of good character, living in Coleman county or any point on the eastern border of the county in the Santa Anna trade territory, is eligible to enter this campaign. Younger children can enter only with the consent of their parents or guardians.

No salaried employee of the News or members of their families will be allowed to enter or give out any information concerning the contest to contestants, or their friends, but the standing of contestants will be published from time to time for their benefit and information.

Candidates nominated who do not wish to remain in the contest can withdraw at any time, but there will be no trading or transferring of votes.

Votes are issued on both new and renewal subscriptions, but no votes will be issued until the cash has been received at this office.

All contestants who remain actively engaged throughout the campaign, making weekly cash reports, who fail to win one of the prizes offered, will be paid in cash, ten per cent of the amount they collect during the contest, but failure to comply with this restriction, he or she, will, at the discretion of the management, become disqualified and thereby forfeit all right to a prize or a commission.

The subscription price of the Santa Anna News in Coleman county is $1.00 a year, and no subscriptions will be accepted at this price outside of Coleman county except at Bangs post office just over the line in Brown county, where several people receive their mail who trade in Santa Anna. Votes will be given on foreign subscriptions when received at the regular price of $1.50 a year.

We reserve the privilege of amending or changing these rules any time during the campaign if we deem it advisable and prudent for the benefit of the News and the contestants, but no material changes will be made.

The main object of this campaign is to increase our circulation and we expect to use our every effort to do so.

This contest will be conducted honorably in every respect, each contestant receiving the same fairness of all others, for we personally will see to it that no unfair means will be used. We want you to enter this contest feeling you are going to get a square deal and after it is over we expect you to feel the same way about it.

Any erroneous statements made without foundation by any contestant to the detriment of other contestants will be sufficient grounds for the management to declare such contestant disqualified and have them withdrawn from the contest.

Special inducements will be offered for long term subscriptions and the contestants will do well to bear this in mind, as one long term subscription will mean many more votes per dollar than will the short term subscriptions. No subscription will be accepted for a shorter term than one year or a longer term than ten years, but one ten year subscription will equal forty one year subscriptions, so it will be well for contestants to begin planning early to get a few of their close friends to consider long term subscriptions. Extra copies of the paper will be furnished free and contestants should keep themselves well supplied with copies of the paper.

SCHEDULE OF VOTES

1 year $1.00	1000 votes
2 years $2.00	3000 votes
3 years $3.00	6000 votes
4 years $4.00	10000 votes
5 years $5.00	15000 votes
10 years $10.00	40000 votes

For subscriptions outside of territory add 50 per cent to above in cash and the same number of votes will apply.

SAHS—
Words That Are Misspelled More Than Others

Words that are used more frequently than others are very often spelled incorrectly. The small words which are essential in our speech are not so noticeable as those that are not used so often. Therefore, the small words are sometimes overlooked and misspelled. "Doesn't" and "until" are said to be among the most frequently misspelled words. There are many others such as "aren't" and "lapse." —Kay.

SAHS—
Mr. Lock: "What is log rolling?"

Emma J. Blake: "That is where one senator helps another get his bill passed if the other will do the same for him."

Mr. Lock: "In other words, you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours."

Mary Lee Ford: "O. K. Turn around."

Mr. Prescott: "So you are building you a new house, eh? How are you getting along with it?"

Mr. Lock: "Fine. I've got the roof and the mortgage on it, and I expect to have the furnace and the sheriff in before fall."

James Daniels: "My pa killed a horse with a broken leg."

James Dunn: "We usually kill them with a gun."

Mr. Scarborough: "What's the date today?"

Mr. Womack: "I don't know. Why don't you look at the news paper you have in your hand?"

Mr. Scarborough: "That won't do any good. It's yesterday's paper."

Charlotte Moseley: "Gee, my hands are greasy, because I had to help father work in the shop this morning."

Max Price: "What did you do?"

Charlotte: "Heid some nuts for him."

Max: "Who? Zeldi Ruth and Sarah Frances?"

Mr. Lock: "Are you sure that you are qualified to lead a jazz orchestra?"

Harold Howard: "Absolutely. I've had two nervous breakdowns, was shell shocked in France, and I live in an apartment above a family with twelve noisy children."

Dan Blake: "And where is your sister?"

Georgia Frances: "She just ran upstairs to change her ring when she saw you coming."

George Huss had become a golf professional. He was hired by a big department store to give golf lessons where he was approached by June and Roxie.

"Do you wish to learn to play golf, madam?" he asked.

"Oh no," June said. "It's my friend, Roxie, that wants to learn. I learned yesterday."

Mrs. Mitchell requested that Bill wear his linen suit out on a date. Bill, who had the gift of making rhymes, said:

"Old and haggard, pale and worn,
Wrinkled, shriveled, tattered and torn,
Bedragged and creased like an ancient mummer,
Is my white linen suit at the end of the summer."

Miss McCreary and Miss Hays were sitting at an open window. One was listening to the church choir, the other was listening to the noise of the crickets. Miss McCreary said, "How loudly they sing tonight."

Miss Hays in reply said, "Yes, and they tell me they do it with their hind legs."

Mr. Godwin: "What model is your car?"

Mr. Prescott: "It's not a model. It's a horrible example."

With a charming air of romance and pleasant sentimentality, the company was discussing how each married couple met.

"And where did you first meet your wife?" Mr. Dean, who was sitting in the corner, was asked.

"Gentlemen, I did not meet her," he replied solemnly. "She overtook me."

It is difficult to believe that with so many reminders of the last war before us that any nation like Italy would be promoting a war at this time purely to gain a few more miles of territory. Italy could take half the money the war will cost and buy most of Ethiopia.

A tip to these boys going away to college: It will never equip you to live without work.

THE NEWSPAPER GUY

I see a man push his way through the lines
Of cops where the work of the "fire fiend abides,"
"The chief?" I inquire—but the fireman replies,
"Gee, no. That's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man start on the trail of a crook
And he scorns the police, but brings him to book.
"Sherlock Holmes?" I inquire. Someone scornfully cries:
"Sherlock H—. No: he's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man sit in the seat of the great,
And they ask his advice upon matters of state.
"A diplomat, surely." But to my surprise
They tell me "he's one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll stand by the gates of gold,
And see a man pass through unquestioned and bold.
"A saint?" I'll ask, and Saint Peter'll reply
"No, he's only a plain honest newspaper guy."

Santa Anna News

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1935

J. J. Gregg, Editor & Publisher.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice, Santa Anna, Texas.

The local FFA Chapter was called to order by the President, Bill Mitchell, at the regular meeting Monday night, when the session was opened with the regular ceremony.

The treasurer and secretary gave their reports, and included the information that 44 of the Vocational Agriculture students have paid their FFA dues and will receive membership cards, which will soon be necessary for admittance to the Chapter Meetings.

A motion passed assessing each member a fine of five cents for missing a meeting, with the fine to be paid within one week from the date of the meeting. This was done to increase the income of the Chapter—either in the treasury or attendance at the meetings.

The group agreed that the President should appoint refreshment and entertainment committees, and the following were appointed: Refreshment, J. W. Davis, Chairman, Jack Price and Ray Lovelady; Entertainment, George Huss, Chairman, John Gregg and H. L. Lackey.

A membership drive has been inaugurated, and the goal is 75 percent of the enrollment of the three agriculture classes.

FFA

Better Customers.

Farmers' Need

Farmers should recognize that by itself, adjustment of agricultural production can improve farm income to only a limited degree. There are strong reasons for continuing adjustment, in order to reach and maintain a balance both between agriculture and industry as a whole, and among the several branches of agriculture. But when this balance is attained, further improvement in the income of farmers will depend on the increased activity, income and purchasing power of industrial groups.

FFA

Your Winter's Meat Supply

The cold spells that have been coming lately, although mild, have reminded many farmers that "hog killing" time was approaching. Farmers who have hogs in sufficient number to supply their winter's pork demands are fortunate as there are not as many available as usual. Although the market price is attractive, the cost of pork to consumers will make it profitable for farmers to again kill, cure, smoke and can their hogs. It would even pay a farmer to go into the market and buy his hogs for killing because of the wide spread between the wholesale and retail price of meat.

Those who are unable to secure hogs for killing, and those who have them, will find it advantageous to butcher calves, steers and also lambs for home consumption. It is also suggested that the fall culling of poultry should provide a lot of canned chicken for winter and spring consumption.

Methods of killing, curing and smoking meats as well as the making of sausage, head cheese and other meat products are well known to many farmers who have made it a practice for many years to provide meat for home consumption. Every county agent in the Southwest has had special instructions in these matters and will be glad to give advice. Every home demonstration agent knows how to can meat. In addition, the Extension Service at College Station, Texas, Stillwater, Okla., Baton Rouge, Louisiana, Little Rock, Arkansas, and State College, New Mexico, have special bulletins on the subject of killing and curing meats. These are free to farmers, and those who desire to know the latest methods should write the Extension Service of their own State. Bulletins will be sent immediately.

We suggest that it is not too early to begin making preparations for killing and preparing for the winter meat supply. Everything needed should be secured and put in order. The place for killing and for hanging the carcass should be selected and necessary tools and apparatus put into place. Knives should be sharpened; scalding vats put in order; barrels and casks for salting down should be procured and thoroughly cleansed; the cutting table made ready and the smokehouse put in order. Sit down and list the things needed and the things necessary to do, and then make ready. Cold snaps come unexpectedly and often last but a few days. Do not take chances of being unprepared and thus delay your operations and spoil costly meat.

Butter Producing Record

Shattering the all-time United States butter-producing record, Carnation milk farms near Seattle, was recently officially credited by the Holstein-Friesian Association with the production of 1,328.8 pounds of butter fat, equivalent to 1,661 pounds of butter, over a 365-day period.

With the butter-producing championship, the phenomenal cow also became world-champion combination milk and butter producer, with a total of 35,886.9 pounds of milk.

The test period ended September 30. Her mark exceeds that of the present holder of this record, Calamity Nig, a cow owned in Illinois.

FFA

When Poultry Is Profitable

Like everything else, poultry is profitable only when the cost of production is less than returns. Some flocks are more profitable than others because they produce more eggs per hen. This may be due to the difference in feeding and care or it may be the result of selection. Well bred flocks culled for production are far more profitable on the same ration as other flocks to which little attention has been given.

This is a year in which feed-stuffs are plentiful and reasonable in price, yet there is a shortage in production of eggs and in the production of fryers. For a time, at least, we may expect profitable prices. Next year, if poultry flocks are increased, there may be a different story. Right now, however, the outlook for poultry is bright and those having good flocks will find it profitable to give them the best care possible.

FFA

How to control weevil in flour and cereal is a problem that faces every housekeeper in the southwest. Cereals and meal may be spread thinly in pans so heat will penetrate easily, then places in an oven heated to 140 degrees and kept there ten minutes. The heat kills both the weevil, the larvae and the eggs but an oven thermometer must be used since if the heat is greater it will scorch the cereal and if less it will not kill the weevil. After the cereal is heated, it should be sifted by shaking gently through a fine sieve to remove the dead weevil and worms. Do not rub through the sieve.

The best way to destroy the weevil in flour is to place the flour in a container which can be closed tightly, such as lard cans and sirup pails. Leave a little space below the lid and place in a saucer on top of the flour. Into the saucer pour carbon disulphide (high life) at the rate of one teaspoonful to each gallon capacity of the container. Put the lid on quickly and allow the flour to fumigate for not less than 18 hours. It may stay a longer period.

Carbon disulphide is both inflammable and explosive so it is best to do the work out of doors. Care should be taken not to breathe the fumes, and, of course, all fire and matches should be kept away.

The carbon disulphide in no way injures the flour for food. The flour should be sifted to remove dead weevil and worms after it is fumigated and if this is done in the open air, the odor will pass off.

After cereals or flour are treated, they should be placed at once in containers which have been scalded and sunned so that there is no weevil or weevil eggs in them. It will be no use to treat the cereals or flour if they are put back in the same container without sterilizing it.

If the cereals or flour are kept in an air-tight container that is free from weevil, they will not again become weevily but care must be taken that the cereals or flour do not become damp and musty or moldy.

BERMUDA BLUES

By KAY KENNEDY ND all I had to do, J. G. told me, was to keep the boy from getting engaged. "There have been two already this winter," he confided, "and it upsets his mother. Besides, paying them off is beginning to run into money. Now, down in Bermuda with you, he can have a change from all this Broadway stuff and perhaps get some sense."

"How about the boat—you know, shipboard romances?" I protested weakly. "Nothing to it. Jack can't even see a canoe without getting seasick. He'll be in his berth five minutes after they pull up the gangplank and you won't see him until you hit the island."

That, at least, was a break, and I looked forward with a lighter heart to the trip. After the kid got to Bermuda he'd been so busy playing golf and swimming he might not have time for romance. I promised myself grimly that he'd get so tired every day he'd be in bed by nine o'clock, and glad to get there. So it was settled. Or so I thought.

While the steward was arranging our luggage in the cabin, Jack pulled a bottle out of his pocket. "Some medicine a doctor pal gave me for sensikness," he explained. "Swears it's a sure cure."

"I wouldn't take it if I were you," I said quickly. "I've been travelling for years and never have been sick yet—that kind of stuff only upsets you."

Jack looked at it dubiously. "Oh, well, couldn't make me any sicker than I usually am," and he tipped the bottle to his mouth. "I watched him anxiously at dinner that night. He looked all right, so I kept urging food on him and finally sold him the nastiest looking piece of pastry I could see on the tray for dessert. It almost threw me just to look at it, but Jack finished cheerfully and turned to his coffee as the 'ballroom dancers,' provided by the line for the entertainment of the passengers made their appearance."

"Gee, what a swell looking gal," chirped my charge. "I've seen better," I said. "As a matter of fact, she was extremely pretty, but I thought it advisable not to mention that I thought so. After the exhibition, Jack made a bee-line for her table before I could say a word, and asked her to dance. Either the boy was a very good dancer or the girl was so expert she made him look that way, because pretty soon every one was watching them. After a tango that looked pretty professional to me, I caught his attention and dragged him down to the cabin."

"She's going to play deck tennis with me in the morning," Jack informed with a look in his eye that I didn't like. "That medicine is certainly the goods—never felt better in my life."

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER IV.—Through a misunderstanding, at a stopping place...

CHAPTER V

Friday.

SLEEP trapped him as that confusion had—without warning...

First remembering the transport of Barry's short fondness in his arms...

But what the dickens had been all the trouble last night? All that momentous entanglement with chivalry and speechlessness...

He got to his feet and breathed deeply, as if the contained, dusty air of the room were that of a mountain pasture in spring...

"I got in late," said Hal, feeling his blandness penetrated by that brown, scholarly look...

"You slept in there?" Kerrigan said curiously.

"Yes," said Hal quickly. "Why?"

"Then that can't be the room the trains run through," said Kerrigan, gruffed.

"No," said Hal, laughing.

"Let me tell you if every train's charged through here was hauling pay loads, stocks are a buy at any price."

"I only missed the number on one train; that was because I was scared his backwash was going to suck the bedclothes off me."

"Fine," said Hal. "Gosh—well, fine, as I said. How's yours?"

"Kerrigan's look was amused and curious. 'Like the bottom of a crock'."

Kerrigan's Look Was Amused and Curious. "Like the Bottom of a Crock."

stowing luggage when Barry came out the door—refreshed, immaculate, fully awake. She didn't look for him nor show any trace of consciousness...

He stayed on the roof purposely until she should get in. She came toward the car without looking up; and when she was close under him at the door, he said, "Hello there."

Even as his smile widened, Hal's memory hurried back to last night to make certain there was nothing he'd overlooked. It was she who'd made it so serious, her eyes held in alarm, her head carried as if there were something to be brave about.

He was about to vault down from the roof when something drew his eyes to the high stoop. Crack stood there, drowsing in his amiable half-dream of something satisfactory and private as he hoped for Hal's look.

"Morning," said Hal, and swung himself to the ground.

"Morning," said Crack quietly.

"Sleep good?"

"Fine, thanks," said Hal. "You?"

"Fine, thanks," said Crack.

Listen, d—n it, Hal chafed himself; there's no special meaning in that tone of his; it's just his way of saying things. "Good," he said aloud, without looking at Crack.

Hal thought of her as he had left her last night, head up, hands behind her back, one satin leg a little bent; and he remembered suddenly that she had been crying when he came in. The memory pricked him—like the quick recollection of a promised kindness which it is too late to perform.

They drew up before the shining white-lie luncheon toward which Mrs. Pulsipher had thrown a yelp of hungry approval, and Hal sidled out to stand by the door. Barry leaned forward to get up, and Doctor Calligari, held in the crook of her arm, was brought closer to Crack for a moment that she seemed to like; he bared his teeth over an ugly, rising growl. "Doc!" she dog in quick censure. Hal took the dog from her. And when he met her eyes, they had in them the hurried end of last night's solemn alarm.

D—n it, I don't want her to take back what she said, Hal told himself inside his closed mouth; I don't want her to be loved with me. All I want is...

Crack gave an uncomfortable laugh as he got out, and a faint blush deepened his old-fashioned youthfulness. "I guess that pup don't like me so very well," he said. He smiled shyly at Hal, as if half-hoping for some other explanation from him; but then his eyes drifted lazily away again, undisappointed.

The morning lay hot and long over the flat croplands of Indiana and Illinois. Rasputin ran like an aristocrat, granting an aristocrat the privilege of metallic song in a change of traffic light. And before Mrs. Pulsipher could come to the fidgeting preliminaries of luncheon, they were crossing the Illinois river into Peoria.

Barry saw the sign on a cafeteria in a side street. "Air Cooled and Conditioned." And there was a chorus of grateful exclamation and a scrumpling into jackets as the almost-dried draft went up the sidewalk. Down in the bright bustle of the cafeteria itself, Sister Anastasia suddenly sneezed, then looked at Barry with a pretty expression halfway between amusement and apology. Barry's hand went to her arm, her clear face lighted with quick, humorous sympathy. Kerrigan took the dead cigarette from his lips and, with an air of awkward courtliness upon his bulk, said to her, "We'll all catch the Russian gripe in here. Sister, allow me to take you somewhere else."

"Oh no—thank you," said Sister Anastasia, her eyes grateful and still amused, her diction trying carefully to elude the accent that touched it.

It was an enchanting voice—in its gentleness of grace and inner assurance that still, as Barry had said, kept you from using the word humble. Hal smiled in pleasure as he watched her. And since Barry would not meet his eyes—not actually avoiding them but seeming to know of no use in meeting them—he had double welcome for an impulsive tenderness, brought his tray of lunch to the empty place beside the nun.

She spoke only when she was spoken to; but the restrained ease of what she said, the smooth, quiet cadence she gave to each sentence made it delightful to go on prompting her. They talked of nothing much that Hal remembered clearly; how long she had been in America, the pleasures and imperfections of crossing the ocean, the view from the Empire State building, the world eminence of American cities in degree of summer heat. And then Hal had an innocent, urgent desire to see her bluish—a little, once, to see what she might have been like as a young girl with a first beau. And he said:

"Have you heard, Sister, that California is a place where the fruit has no flavor, the flowers no scent, and the ladies no charm?"

"No," she said, looking at him in guileless interest. "I've not heard that. Is it true?"

"I don't know surely, because I've never been there," said Hal, without concealing his pleasure in her. "I've tasted oranges from there which were sweet; and I've been told that their orange blossoms at least have the scent they do in other places. As for the last part of the saying, I know it will not be true when you and Miss Trafford get to California."

For an instant Hal was afraid he would have to be ashamed of himself; Sister Anastasia glanced quickly away; but then he saw she was looking toward the other end of the table where Barry sat, her head turned from them, intent upon whatever Kerrigan was telling her. The nun turned to him again, a contained, soft smiling in her look.

"It is a long time since I've heard anything like that," she said in tranquil simplicity. She looked down at her plate, and Hal's pleasure leapt for the faint running-up of warmth under her cool, immaculate cheeks. Then she said, very softly, "Miss Trafford is beautiful—inside, too."

Hal was two places behind Barry in the line at the cashier's window. A spectacular woman, past her twenties, leaned beside it, waiting until the cashier should be free again. She wanted a spotlight to tone down the heavy mascara on her eyelashes, the bold make-up of her lips, the revealing tightness of her bright dress. She watched Barry steadily, unaware of being caught; her resentful eyes moved from detail to detail, calculating the composition of each effect; her petulant mouth, loosely at rest, indicated neither approval nor envy. Hal was watching the woman's whole, unconscious interest when Barry paid her check.

Barry looked down at Doctor Calligari, flicked his leash to start him up, then raised her deliberate glance to the woman's face and smiled. Hal could see Barry's profile, clear and candid, and she spoke her low, friendly "Hello." The woman's sudden eyes cheered quickly and artless dimples came at once beside her efficient smile. As if she recognized Barry, she said, "Hello, cuteness."

"Hot out," said Barry.

"Hot is right," said the woman. "Keep out the sun."

"Will," said Barry, a quiet sort of thanks in her smiling; and her easy, long-legged walk took her toward the door, the woman's look following her in contented approval. Now, why did she do that? Hal asked himself in uninvited, consciously unreasonable irritation.

He caught up with her outside the door to the street that seemed baked, not only by the sun but by a fanatic furnace just under the pavement, too.

"Going to walk the Doctor, or sit in the car," he said.

even before he'd finished. "All right," she said inconsequentially. "What about?"

"Not on the main street of Peoria at two o'clock in the afternoon," he said.

"Why not?"

"You know d—n well why not!" Barry looked at him unsympathetically but without anger, and her low, steady voice said, "In the first place, I wouldn't've asked if I knew why not, and in the second place, throwing d—ns around doesn't help me understand you."

"Oh h—!" said Hal, more in vague disgust with himself than anything else.

"That's not necessary, either," she said.

"Barry, what's the matter?"

"Not a darn thing—with me," she said.

"Oh," he said; and they walked for another ten paces or so of silence. Then, as an accusation, he said to her, "You didn't know that woman you spoke to down there. Why did you speak to her?"

Barry waited an instant before she said, still not turning to him, "Because I liked her looks; because some day I may have to put up with what she has to put up with, and I hope people speak to me without thinking they're smart, or wanting something."

"Barry!" said Hal, in the quick authority he would have used for the dog.

"You asked me," said Barry. Her eyes and brows disclaimed responsibility for her reaction. "I supposed you wanted me to tell you."

"Barry," said Hal, with forced restraint, "tell me something else. Is last night gone clean out of your head? Did it mean nothing to you after I'd left"—and he added with not wholly convincing bitterness—"like an idiot."

She looked round at him, the clean, long arches of her eyebrows raised. Then, not as a question but ironically, to be sure, that's what he'd said, she repeated, "Like an idiot."

He watched her without speaking, almost wishing her eyes would at least do him the small honor of anger or defiance, not stay in their cool, remote composure that had nothing, one way or the other, to do with him. Then, just as some change began somewhere deep in her blue look, she turned her head and seemed to walk a little faster, as if she saw where she had to go.

Hal looked ahead too and said, with dissatisfied assurance, "I didn't mean 'like an idiot' and you know it."

He thought it was because her ankle had started to turn that her shoulder came slightly against him. But then her hand caught his, brought it half-way up, and pressed the back of it briefly against her jacket, over her heart, before she gave it back to him. And still she looked straight before her—a grave look, at nothing that was in the street ahead.

In the calm knowledge that flashed into abrupt, reckless command of his spirit, that then indeed became his spirit, his whole living conviction, he stopped her walking, with his hand at her elbow. She let her body half turn to his hold of her, but not her head. That didn't matter; she would turn her face to him in another sure, plain moment. "Barry," he said, "I love you. You know that, too."

She glanced down at Doctor Calligari, as if she were trying to think of something that would show how sorry she was for him. And when slowly she faced Hal at last, her eyes were soft with grieving helplessness.

THE WORLD FOR GOD

"There is none other Name under heaven given," Acts 4-12. We have never known a person who accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as a Savior and who found it necessary, later, to exchange Him for something else.

This is a remarkable fact, especially when it is considered that the Lord Jesus Christ has been prescribed as a Sovereign remedy for all human ills for about two thousand years.

Philosophers elevate Him as the greatest example of a living philosophy. Business, big and little, exalts Him as the Model on which trade and commerce must be conducted. Everywhere one goes, either in the Church or out of it, Jesus is admittedly the Christ.

Lots of people who take merchandise back to stores do so because they did not properly examine it when it was being bought. Others take it back because they "change their minds" and the change involves the return of the satisfactory, but no longer desirable merchandise.

But no one has ever made a mistake in accepting Jesus as a Savior.

That's a great record, an achievement never attained by anyone else or by anything else. One hundred per cent good—is Jesus.

God's world produced Jesus, the Christ. Let us make our private world God's world and make it truly a World For God.

"Always Thinking of Himself"

"Always thinking of himself" is a frequent criticism. Yet the man is wise who thinks a good deal of himself. Suppose we each devoted ten minutes a day, to thinking about ourselves, as some people are said to devote ten minutes to setting-up exercises.

We might inquire, What's good about me? and What's bad about me? What old habits can I break and what new habits can I cultivate that will make me a more agreeable and useful person? Am I wasting too much time? Do I talk too much? Am I spending too much? Am I doing as well as I can, or am I drifting?

Some people make it their business to know all about others, living and dead. In a question-and-answer game they can win against a roomful of people. Let them think more about themselves, in order that they may understand themselves.

We see plenty of room for improvement in our friends and neighbors. This one is lazy, that one is mean, and the man down the street is stupid. This woman neglects her children, and that woman is sulky.

What about you? You know what people criticize in you. You know your faults. Don't excuse yourself by saying that people must take you as you are.

A dirty man can always find a dirty restaurant where a dirty waiter will serve him. Dull, lazy people find dull, lazy friends. But there isn't much satisfaction in it. We all want the respect of clean, ambitious people. We can get it if we make ourselves agreeable to them.

Mussolini takes the attitude seemingly that he can whip the world. We remember another European ruler had that idea some twenty years ago but things didn't turn out like he thought they would. The trouble is, Mussolini is too close to his problem to get a fair view of it. If he could look at it from this distance he might think differently about it.

We are in favor of the type of inheritance tax that will take 98 per cent of the inheritance away from the daughters of American millionaires who persist in rushing to Europe and marrying some foreign title. We would not think of saying that these foreign titles marry for money alone but we can't recall ever having heard of one of them marrying a poor girl.

That's a great record, an achievement never attained by anyone else or by anything else. One hundred per cent good—is Jesus.

God's world produced Jesus, the Christ. Let us make our private world God's world and make it truly a World For God.

Then there is the person who when an opinion or a preference is expressed by someone in the group immediately votes intolerantly a radical dislike or disagreement. Such a person, if they have many friends, is going to have to possess a world of counteracting and acceptable graces. Few persons like to have their own opinions and preferences, which they have ventured to express, trampled ruthlessly and intolerantly under foot.

1935 Red Cross Poster

The compelling appeal of the most famous of Red Cross world war posters has been adapted by the distinguished artist Lawrence Wilbur in the 1935 Red Cross roll call poster.

"The Greatest Mother in the World" was the title given to the original creation of Alanzo Earl Foringer, eminent mural artist and illustrator of New York. The poster gave the keynote of the Second war fund drive of the Red Cross, and millions of copies were distributed throughout the nation.

In submitting a design for the 1935 poster, Wilbur, who has painted a number of posters for the Red Cross, placed the shadowy, heroic figure of mercy in the background, with the practical Red Cross nurse succoring a sick and wounded child in the foreground. "Still the Greatest Mother" is his title.

The posters are distributed through 3,700 Red Cross chapters and 9,000 branches in an appeal to every man and woman to join as a member during the annual roll call.

NOTICE

To The Public

Due to the fact that the prices of high quality raw materials such as we use in the manufacture of our bread and sweets, we are forced to advance the price of our bread slightly. The advance is not enough to hurt the purchaser, but will help us maintain the high quality of our merchandise. We have advanced the price of Bread to 9c a loaf, this as you will notice is a very slight increase. We are not making this advance to make a profit, but merely to enable us to make a legitimate profit and at the same time give our patrons the same high quality Bread that they have been getting in the past.

All raw materials have advanced and we were forced to do the same—but after the slight increase in price.
