Mountain Echoes

By Barbara Kingsbery

Local drivers were more cautious than usual last week when they noticed groups of driver education students observing motorists at the main intersection downtown. The youngsters watched drivers at the intersection and made notes of traffic violations for a class report.

It might be well for all of us to observe others on the local thoroughfare — and perhaps become more careful in our own driving.

Have you heard who has the sweetest mouth in town? It's Billie Guthrie!

In a hurry to return to her office Monday afternoon, Billie accidentally "gargled" her Chanel No. 5 cologne! She admitted she just didn't look to see what bottle she picked up — much to her disdain.

Billie was regretting she wasted so much of her favorite cologne. We are just thankful she didn't pick up a bottle of Drain-O.

One of the few recreational facilities in Santa Anna open to the public are the tennis courts at the high school. The courts are open to the public at all times — except during school hours. A new addition soon to be in operation will be lights at the courts for night time use.

The light poles and fixtures from the old Rockwood baseball field were moved and erected at the tennis courts, and a coin-operated light system is to be installed. Everyone in the area is invited to use the tennis courts during the summer — day or night — when the switches and coin boxes are installed.

Scattered showers during the past few days have left moisture measuring up to one inch in parts of the community. A hard shower in Santa Anna Monday afternoon left an unofficial one inch.

The Trickham-Cleveland area had showers Sunday and Monday.

The recent rains have helped pastures and fields where they have fallen but not put water in stock tanks and creeks or helped the general drought conditions that prevail in the entire area.

It's almost impossible to write any accurate report of the weather in a weekly newspaper. Before the NEWS is off the press on Wednesday there can be one or more complete change in the weather.

Rain fell in town — the cloud moving from south to north — Tuesday afternoon. We'll give a more detailed report next week.

Case of Rabies Reported Sunday Near Brookesmith

A calf suffering from rabies was reported this week according to a report in the Brownwood Bulletin Sunday. The calf, owned by Herman Boenicke who lives northwest of Brookesmith, was taken to a Brownwood veterinarian Saturday after it "had become aggressive."

Mr. Boenicke reported that the calf had bawled for three days and stood in an awkward position.

According to the Brownwood veterinarian, it had been about five years since his last bovine case of the disease.

A meeting of the directors will be held within a few days to elect officers for the coming year and to make

Season Ending For Baseball

The summer baseball schedule for Santa Anna teams will end on Tuesday, June 29, as the Little League Mets have their final game with the Coleman Tigers. The Tigers won the championship of the first half of play and are standing first for the second half, followed closely by the Mets, Dodgers, and Giants.

The Orioles are contenders for the championship in the senior little league and the Cats are the local representatives in the minor league. These two teams have final games on Monday night.

The Friday night game for the Mets will be held at Coleman instead of at Santa Anna. They will meet the Senators at 6:00 p.m.

Other games this week will be Thursday night (tonight) when the Cats host the Hawks at 6:00 p.m. and the Orioles go to Coleman for an 8:00 p.m. game with the Cubs.

Also participating in the summer ball program have been two teams of Santa Anna girls and two teams from Coleman. The team of younger girls is coached by Betty Sue Hipp, Glenda Barnett and Bernadine Culppepper and the older girls' team. Their games will also end next week.

Auto Accidents Injure Three Monday, Tuesday

Three people have been hospitalized this week in two separate auto accidents which occurred in the community Monday and Tuesday.

The Monday mishap was at Rockwood at 11:00 a.m. at the intersection of highway 283 and the Rockwood business route. A 1966 Chevrolet driven by G. L. Williams of Girard was in a head-on collision with a 1967 Oldsmobile driven by Donald E. Hampton of Odessa. W. K. Williams of Tatum, N.M., a passenger in his brother's car, was injured in the collision and was taken to the Coleman hospital by Hosch ambulance. Both vehicles were considered a total loss by Highway patrolman Al Chambers who investigated the accident.

Hampton had been visiting relatives at Rockwood and was enroute to Brady when the collision happened. The Williams brothers were enroute to Rockwood after camping on the river.

A three-vehicle accident late Tuesday morning sent two persons to the hospital with serious injuries. Mrs. Martin Baker of Santa Anna and Robert Moreland of Brownwood were examined at the Coleman hospital and transferred to Hendricks Hospital in Abilene.

Involved in the accident were Mrs. Baker in a 1956 Chevrolet, Moreland in a 1968 Chevrolet panel truck, and a 1971 Pontiac sedan driven by Judy Wilde of Ballinger. Miss Wilde was treated at the Coleman hospital for cuts and dismissed. Her mother, Mrs. Alice Wilde, and two younger sisters were not injured.

According to Mr. Chambers, the accident is still under investigation and will not be complete until the injured drivers can be questioned. The multi-vehicle mishap occurred at the entrance to Ranger Park east of town. Damage to the Wilde car was estimated at $1,000 and the other two vehicles were considered a total loss.

In Our Opinion

By W. T. HAYS

A PRIME REASON FOR RISING governmental costs in recent years is the rapid growth of public welfare programs.

There is no question that we should provide a minimum degree of security and a minimum standard of living for those who are unable to provide for themselves. This is the responsibility of civilized society and most everyone stands ready to do their part in this respect.

In recent years, requirements have been placed on the states that have burdened their resources in meeting the demands of welfare costs. Some of these have been forced on them by the federal government and other by the supreme court. The end result is that welfare is a greater financial burden than most states can meet.

Arguments for revenue sharing say that through this method, state funds will be increased sufficiently to carry their welfare burden, and that welfare should be administered from the state level, since they are closer to the problem and should be better able to see the greatest need.

There is no doubt that welfare should be returned to the states, but with it should be right to administer it as sees the necessity. As it is now, the states have to finance it and the federal government or the Supreme Court tells them who have to pay, or who has "a right to be on welfare."

If they are going to say how much is paid and who gets it, then they should foot the bill. Even with state administration, there are plenty on the rolls who should be working for a living. But since the Supreme Court and HEW have stepped into so many cases, the rolls have shot upward with many whose eligibility should be questioned.

The result is that a lot of people are living off a lot of other people who resent having to support them. I doubt that very many would resent legitimate welfare claims, but they do resent being penalized for having ambition and initiative so that some who don't have those attributes can live off of their labors.

People used to criticize and make fun of the old WPA, but those who were on it had to do some work for what they got, and through efforts many projects for the good of the public got done. Now they just sit home and call for their checks and commodities each month. They refuse to do common labor as being beneath them. You can't get one of them to mow your lawn on a bet.

Revenue sharing or not, there is more to the welfare problem than where the money is coming from. The psychological impact of growing up on welfare encourages staying on it when they are grown.

STATE Capital NEWS
By VERN SANFORD

Austin — Texas 1972 campaigns jumped off to an early start last week mid earthquake proportioned new rumblings in the long-running Securities and Exchange Commission stock manipulation case.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes announced he will run for governor, and called "loss of faith and confidence in state government" the No. 1 political issue.

Barnes termed the shadows cast by SEC's inquiry into stock trading of state officials one of the reasons for lost confidence by the public.

"I visualize the role of the governor as a much-aggressive role than it has been in the past," he said. Barnes, who is 33, added "a young governor with progressive ideas would be an asset" to Texas.

Barnes said he would aim to make the state Democratic party an "energetic force for sound government, not just a political tool to be used briefly every two years and then discarded. I want Texas to be strong in national affairs."

Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin, recovered from a March heart attack, announced he will file as a candidate for a fourth term.

"In the light of the scandals that have rocked our state government this spring — and the resulting investigation which my office has begun at the request of the Legislature — I feel it a question of duty to Texans to make the race," said Martin.

Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde reportedly retains interest in the governor's race.

Gov. Preston Smith still hints he may run again, brands federal handling of the stock case "political harassment."

OIL ALLOWABLE CUT — Statewide oil production allowable for July has been slashed 260,815 barrels a day from June.

New allowable was set by the Railroad Commission at 68.7 per cent of potential or a decrease of 6.7 per cent. Reduction is the third straight.

Market demand factor for the coming month is the lowest since 62.9 per cent allowable was set during part of August, 1970.

Maximum production is estimated at 3,367,115 barrels daily, but actual production will be closer to 3,273,750 barrels—slightly more than major buyers requested.

Eight of 14 major crude purchasers asked the same allowable for July, four sought less and two requested more.

Crude oil stocks were estimated at 108.4 million barrels, an increase of 1.1 million over the 1970 period.

CRIME FIGHT FUNDS APPROVED — Nearly $4 million in grants to aid criminal justice projects received Criminal Council Approval.

CJC will fund $2.5 million from federal money, with local governments contributing another $1.5 million.

Houston-Gulf Coast Building

Trades Council got the biggest state grant of $191,800 for New Waverly delinquency prevention program.

Other grants went to Texarkana Ark-Tex Council of Governments; East Texas COG, Kilgore; Waco; Alamo Area COG, San Antonio; Wichita County; McLennan County; Bexar County; Austin-Travis County; Harris County Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center; Central Tex COG, Belton; Grayson County; Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council, McAllen;

Edinburg; Waco Police Department; Fort Worth County juvenile defender project, Eagle Pass; Lubbock County; City of Dallas; El Paso; Cleveland; regional law enforcement radio communications system; Coastal Bend Regional Planning Commission; Texoma RPC; Heart of Texas COG; Alpine and Midland Independent School District.

COURTS SPEAK — Supreme Court upheld a Tyler court verdict awarding $5,000 accidental death policy recovery to a widow whose husband shot to death allegedly after committing adultery with the wife of another man.

High Court set July 14 arguments in a Dallas woman's damage suit claiming negligence by a private plane pilot in an accident which killed her husband four years ago.

Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed the life sentence in a Beaumont rape case.

Austin Court of Civil Appeals reversed a Houston trial court and upheld State Board of Examiners of Psychologist's decision denying Houstonian Joseph D. Farrar a license to practice psychology because his master's degree was not primarily psychological but educational.

AG OPINIONS — Minors can be tried for liquor law violations without notification to parents if court is unable to locate parents or guardians, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has said.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

- A trial judge has discretion to grant probation when satisfied the best interests of the public and the defendant will be served, and the defendant is not under burden to show eligibility for probation, though the judge may require appropriate proof.
- Board of Private Detectives, Private Investigators, Private Patrolmen, Private Guards and Managers has discretion to decide whether or not license of those within its jurisdiction will be denied because of a conviction for felony.
- Whether Parks and Wildlife Department executive can retire as a "commissioned peace officer" is a fact question to be determined by PWD on the basis of whether he was engaged primarily in criminal law enforcement activities of the department during 10 years. APPOINTMENTS — Raymond Vowell of Austin will succeed Burton G. Hackney as Texas Public Welfare Commissioner.

Governor Smith named W. A. Hughes of Decatur 235th district judge, Harry Hopkins of Weatherford 43rd district judge, and William B. Sullivan of Gainesville 235th district attorney.

Smith appointed Hugh O. Wolfe of Stephenville to North Texas State University Board of Regents.

LAND SALE SET — School Land Board will offer 594,132 acres of land in 869 tracts for July 6 lease sale.

For the first time, said Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, the Land Board has coordinated environmental planning with the Parks and Wildlife Department on all bays and inlets included.

PWD reviewed tracts in lease and reported any possible hazard to the environment if drilling is permitted. Proposed restrictions will be considered by the Land Board.

Other tracts included are submerged lands in the Gulf of Mexico cancelled from the May sale list due to U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' halting drilling on such tracts temporarily. Submerged land acreage is the largest offered for lease since June, 1965, when the state received more than $17 million for sale of lease.

CONVICTION "TAX" LEVIED — Cost of moving traffic violations and other convictions will go up under a bill signed into law and designed to provide funds for projects to improve the criminal justice system.

In addition to other taxable court costs, $2.50 will be charged in each misdemeanor conviction in justice of the peace or municipal court. County misdemeanor convictions will be charged an additional $5 in court costs, and felony convictions, $10.

SHORT SNORTS

Texas' first bale of 1171 cotton was produced on the Crispin Gamez farm near Pharr in the Rio Grande Valley.

An additional 400,000 workers and 100,000 employees will become subject to unemployment insurance program and tax for the first time on January 1.

Attorney General Martin warns consumers to beware of phony travel promoters who may take their money and run. Reprs. Rayford Price of Palestine, Price Daniel Jr. of Liberty and David Finney of Fort Worth are challenging House Speaker Gus Mutscher for re-election.

Texas will have 7.2 million registered motor vehicles this year, second only to California according to Texas Automobile Dealers Association.

On and Off Drugs

Drugs like LSD and speed trigger sensational trips. Drugs like isoniazid prevent and treat TB. The two drugs—and, usually, the people who take them—are words apart.

Thousands of Americans who have tuberculosis infections take isoniazid every day for a single year to avoid developing active disease. Those with active disease take the pills to become non-infectious within a very short time. Isoniazid has revolutionized the treatment of TB.

Psychedelic drugs have wrought their own revolution. But for some people these drugs are already on the way out. They have discovered they can blow their minds without using drugs.

Researchers at the Foundation of Mind Research in New York City claim that "sensory overload"—in which subjects are immersed in dissolving, swirling patterns of light and sound—can effect profound mystical experiences for normal individuals. Altered states of consciousness—all brought about without drugs—are reflected in vivid fantasies and profoundly moving sensations.

One method used at the Foundation involves a metal swing that suspends blindfolded subjects and has them dangle in space. Resulting sensations are physically disorienting and mind expending, says the researchers. Guided meditation in which subjects are given ideas or visual images, such as concentric circles or a picture of their body becoming smaller and smaller—can lead thru symbolic experiences of death and rebirth. After the experiences, subjects often paint and write in creative ways unsuspected beforehand, says the Foundation.

Simulated psychic trips are getting more and more attention these days. But there is no simulated way to fight TB without drugs. Your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association has no information about psychedelic experiences but does have the facts about drug therapy and TB. Check with them.

computed amount paid by the applicant for oats on primary livestock is $1.55 per hundred-weight and for secondary livestock is $2.06 per hundred-weight.

The computed amount paid by the applicant on grain sorghum will not be changed.

An extension of grazing and haying of CAP land and set-aside acreage under the cotton, wheat and feed grain programs has been granted to September 30, 1971.

This means that farmers may plant, if moisture permits, and hay a crop other than grain sorghums from the set-aside area.

Farmers have responded really well in the certification of their crops under the cotton, wheat and feed grain programs. To date approximately one half of the producers in the county have certified. If a farmer was unable to plant cotton due to the drought, he must certify to this fact by July 1. People who have planted grain sorghum and cotton have a date of August 1 as the final time to certify.

Farmers who have grazed or plan to graze their set-aside under the drought program are required to sign a special form to give the County Committee knowledge of the use being made of the set-aside.

The County Committee received on June 21 authorization extending the livestock feed and hay transportation program to September 30, 1971.

Assistance is to be made available only to those eligible livestock owners who furnish a financial statement and meet the requirements as set up in the regulations. A financial statement will not be required if the applicant previously submitted one under the current program and provided his financial condition has not substantially changed since that time.

Beginning July 1, 1971, the computed amount paid by the applicant on oats will be based on the 1971 oat loan which is 66c a bushel. The 420-million bushels is the estimated harvest now getting under way in the southwest and midwest wheat belt. This harvest has to be moved from growing areas to elevators and mills, also to ports for export.

Here's how Santa Fe has been getting ready for this big job.

At the start of the year we ordered 800 giant 100-ton covered hopper cars which are ideal for moving wheat, potash and bulk commodities as they can be loaded in twelve minutes and unloaded in about three minutes. During April we added 500 more to increase the order to 1300 cars, so we could have almost 10,000 giant hoppers ready by harvest. We also use box cars and other types of equipment to keep the wheat rolling.

And there are other ways we are ready for this big job. Last year we expanded and automated our Argentine Yard at Kansas City, which is a busy wheat terminal. Our data center at Topeka is prepared to keep constant check on cars to gain the best possible utilization of equipment. Diesel units have been added to our locomotive fleet and older units updated to move the wheat trains.

Now the harvest is starting and Santa Fe people, with their experience and dedication, are ready to handle this big transportation job. All together we are making our strongest effort to move this year's wheat harvest while at the same time keeping all other freight moving across our railway.

John S. Reed
President - Santa Fe Railway

"To efficiently move huge volumes of wheat at harvest time must depend on fast loading and unloading of cars by shippers, elevator operators and at port terminals. We must also rely on prompt inspection by government agencies. Through cooperation with everyone in the grain industry, Santa Fe is making an all out effort to move this year's wheat harvest without a serious car shortage."

Out-Of-The-Ordinary Outdoor Meals

Wishing the outdoor eating season would hurry up and get here? Here's a delicious idea with a touch of Oriental flavor.

- Teriyaki Sirloin Kabobs
- 2 lbs. boneless sirloin steak, 1-inch thick piece
- 1 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 2 cloves garlic, thinly sliced
- 2 1/2" slices of ginger root 6 sliced

frankfurter buns (optional) Cut meat into 1/4-inch wide strips. Make a marinade by combining soy sauce, sugar, garlic and ginger root. Place meat strips in a flat, oblong casserole and add marinade. Let stand for at least two hours, stirring occasionally. Thread meat onto skewers. Grill over hot coals. Or, if it's not quite warm enough for outdoor cooking, broil kabobs at 500° F., turning so they cook on all sides. To serve, eat from the skewer or place grilled kabobs, unskewered, in frankfurter buns. Yield: six kabobs.

Well, What Do You Know? fun, games and knowledge

by MARTHA GLAUBER SHAPP, Editor, The New Book of Knowledge

Do you know how lightning is formed?

Ever since Franklin's day scientists have been trying to discover how lightning forms. So far they know only part of the answer.

ELECTRIC CHARGES IN A THUNDERCLOUD

No one knows yet how a thundercloud develops a huge electric charge, but scientists do know that these charges exist. The top of a thundercloud is positively charged. The center is mostly negatively charged. The bottom part is usually negatively charged. But sometimes the lower rainy part of a cloud may be positively charged.

The cloud's electric strength is in the top and middle sections. It seems to be in this region that most lightning occurs.

(For a free booklet, "The Magic Carpet," illustrated in color from The New Book of Knowledge, send name and address to Martha Glauber Shapp, Box 47, Putnam Valley, New York 10579.)

When the charges are strong enough, electrons flow from the negatively charged section to the positively charged section. A rapid discharge takes place, which is seen as a flash of lightning.

Do you know what a monopoly is?

A monopoly is created by a business or company to control trade and do away with competition. A seller has a monopoly when he has substantially more of any product or service than all the other sellers combined. The monopoly allows him to set the price as high as he chooses and may make him careless about the quality of his product or service.

Why doesn't adhesive tape stick properly when it is too cold or too hot?

Most commercial adhesives work best at room temperature. If it is too cold, the adhesive will harden and lose its stickiness. If it is too hot, the adhesive will loosen. You may have tried to put on a band-aid after a bath and discovered it wouldn't stay on. The hot water made your skin temperature higher. It also formed a barrier between the adhesive and your skin. As soon as you are dry and your skin temperature is normal, adhesive works.

Rare Four-Mule Team Still in Use Locally

Editors note: The following is reprinted from the Abilene Reporter-News, dated June 6, 1971.

By DANNY LAMMERT
Reporter-News Farm and Ranch Editor

SANTA ANNA—"Ho, Buck; giddyup, Tom."
These commands and reprimands begin a typical work day for Bert W. Tabor one-half mile south of here. Most present day farmers begin by fueling with diesel or butane, by turning a key and by shifting gears and disengaging a clutch.

But then, instead of a 100-horsepower tractor, or even a 30-horse power machine, Tabor uses four mules abreast to form a common sight 50 years ago but now extremely rare in a mechanized agriculture age.

"Easy, Jane; move on, John!"
"We won't be stopping 'til dinner."

"I like them," Tabor states simply in explaining his tillage of 72 acres with actual mulepower instead of mechanical horsepower. "It's relaxing and, to me, it's life with life behind a team."

Tabor raises oats, sorghum, hay and other forage crops for his 12 to 15 head of registered Shorthorn cows. He raises and sells Shorthorn bulls as his principal source of income from the farm.

The 59-year-old farmer said that he also plants the farm's cotton allotment to keep the allotment and to use the cotton seed as feed for his cattle.

"The farm is worth more if I keep the cotton allotment with it," Tabor explains.

Not that he has any intentions of selling it "Dad bought this place for $125 per acre in 1925 and it's one of the best farms in the county," he adds.

County Agent News Column

I enjoyed going on a tour of the Cal-Tex Feedlots at Trent last week with Dale Herring and Bob Turner. We saw some 38,000 cattle on feed and one can't help but be impressed with the enormity of this operation.

Several Coleman County people were at the Ram sale in San Angelo last Friday. They were Clyde Thate, Jerry and Ralph Allen, James Padgett, Johnny and Norene Jamison and myself. The Rams, which I thought had a lot of quality in general, sold rather low with the exception of a few pens, reflecting the general pessimism of the sheep industry at this time. The Leaday ranchers purchased some good rams that should do them a lot of good.

Be sure and come out and see the 4-H Horse Show this Saturday at 9:00 a.m. at the Rodeo Grounds.

Coleman County is a horse loving area and the kids work real hard getting ready for this show. I think you will enjoy seeing these clean-cut youngsters show and ride their horses.

Today's hog wash: In the next century, it will be the early mechanical bird which gets the first plastic worm out of the artificial grass.

Tabor's father, the late J. W. Tabor, bought the farm, moving from Gouldbusk, another Coleman County town, so that his sons would be able to attend a high school at Santa Anna.

Tabor began his farming career with his father, renting and farming as much as 250-300 acres with nine Belgian and Percheron horses. These provided the two farmers with two sets of "four-up" and one extra.

"In those days, we would get up to milk 12-15 Jersey cows, feed a number of hogs, and then take the teams to the field, taking our dinner with us. In the evening we would come in to milk again and do the other chores. It kept us busy," Tabor recalls.

Tabor said that he had planned to go to college, after finishing high school, but the Depression made such a move difficult. Instead, he chose to help his father pay for the farm he'd recently acquired.

Tabor recalls that his father looked into the then new fangled idea of mechanized farming in the 1930's when a local implement dealer offered him an even trade of his plow animals for a tractor.

However, Tabor's father felt that his animals were worth more than the offer represented and he chose to keep them. The two continued to farm in partnership until the elder Tabor's death in 1956.

Mechanization for the farm was then again looked into, but Tabor gives a number of reasons for not doing so at that time.

During the mid-50s a large number of acres were being taken from production and placed into government programs. With these acres remaining idle, it was difficult for Tabor to obtain additional acreage to rent.

"The price of land had risen so much that buying land wasn't feasible at the time. It's less feasible now," Tabor said.

A second cause of Tabor's relying on the old, proven method was that his father's death left him with four mule colts, promising plow power for a number of years.

Tabor said the first-cost involved also discouraged the change. "I wanted new equipment which would have cost $10,000. The acreage I had to work wasn't worth such an investment."

"My four young mules could easily handle the farming I had to do. And, besides, I had two sets of almost every piece of mule-drawn equipment I needed — planters, cultivators, moldboard," he adds.

Some pieces of Tabor's equipment are more than 50 years old. In recent years he has used a reaper that his father bought new in 1915. Most of the equipment has never been stored in a barn but all of it still operational. Instead of tool bars, gauge wheels and wheel weights, the terms singletrees, collars and blind bridles are still in use on the Tabor farm.

Tabor speculates that if he were able to acquire additional land to work, he would probably have to seek another method of farming since his mules — ages 14-17 years — would not be able to handle many more acres.

"I feel the team will be good for my type of work until they are about 25 years old," he estimates.

Any move to be made then will depend on the availability of land and of new mules; and the expense involved in possibly using custom-hired machinery or in buying his own equipment.

Tabor insists on getting good, preferable new, equipment, if and when he makes the change. "Otherwise," he says, "if I'm going to be obsolete with a tractor, I'd just as soon be obsolete with my mules."

Tabor's mule-powered farming would probably make him a champion of the ecologists. Contributing no air pollution from exhaust pipes, the mules also do not pack the land they plow.

Most conservationists will agree that farmland tilled by horses or mules tends to be looser, more fertile and will more readily absorb moisture.

And one area farmer said he hadn't been able to plant a crop satisfactorily at the right depth with the right amount of covering soil since he quit farming with a team 30 years ago.

As one of Tabor's friends at the local barber shop — "where everything happens" — said, "it takes Tabor longer to plow an acre, but when he finished, the acre has been plowed good."

Tabor points out that he isn't against progress. "Why, if I could get more land to make it worthwhile, I'd like to drive a 3020 tractor," Tabor said.

The Tabor house has electricity and city water. Although he doesn't have a telephone, he said he would probably get one "one of these days."

Tabor lives with his 88-year-old mother. While he never married, he said he didn't recommend the single life. He said that when he should have been wife-hunting, he was busy on the farm helping his father.

He adds, with a twinkle in his eye, "I still might be able to use a housekeeper, some day."

Besides four mules, about 25 Shorthorn cows and calves, and about a half-dozen chickens, Tabor and his mother also have one Jersey milk cow. As Tabor explains, his mother "just can't keep house without a good milk cow and fresh milk and butter."

Tabor's World War II disabled brother, Eldon, also lives here and stays at the Tabor farm some of the time.

Tabor said the three of them have made a living from the farm, "not as good as we'd like sometimes, but I don't owe a penny to anyone," he adds proudly.

"I'd rather be a little poorer and content than rich and have to worry about keeping the hounds away from the door," he said.

In a reminiscing mood, Tabor said his father once told him that he had lived his life without ever pushing anyone and Tabor said he was now trying to lead a similar life.

This was one reason he gave that he would never try to obtain additional land from anyone if it would mean a hardship on them.

He said that he isn't a big church-going type but he does take his mother and personally believes in living a good Christian life.

"After all, good Christian people are all that's holding the world together," he adds. In defense of his slower, outdated method of farming as opposed to the faster, more complicated pace of mechanized farming, Tabor said, "I've worked hard the first half of my life and I don't want to work hard the second half."

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

Another Barn Burning?

Researchers of the National Federation of Independent Business are noting a quite perplexing trend.

This is the growing number of respondents to the organization's field surveys who volunteer some comment advocating that the federal government institute wage and price controls.

It is not much more than 20 years when the wartime OPA, or Office of Price Administration, was finally buried, presumably deep. Yet the ghost of OPA again stalks the land.

Paradoxically, in the early days of the Federation, a major campaign was launched to put the OPA out of business. This was in line with the almost unanimous vote by the members that OPA should be ended.

The red tape, bureaucratic interference and bumbling, not to mention outright graft, was the hallmark of the government's attempt to control inflation by controlling prices.

Youngsters who were not yet dry behind the ears, along with many people who had never successfully held a job in their lives, played a large role in the bureaucratic aggregation that tried to be the law giver, the policemen, and the judges of business.

And OPA was not without humor, either, like the time a regulation was published on the slaughter of "female steers."

Yet today there is a small but growing sentiment among independent businessmen for price and wage controls.

This is paradoxical, because the independent businessman is traditionally against any Federal interference. And any attempt at wage and price control is bound to bring down upon the economy hordes of half-baked theorists, busybodies, and all manner of motley persons clothed with the authority of the government.

The fact that any businessman would advocate such a program is perhaps the best evidence of the frustration that pervades the land.

Obviously, the solution to the current problems is to cut back government drastically, not increase it.

It is true that one can get rid of the barn by burning down the barn, but such methods do leave one mightily in need of a barn.

Trickham News Notes

By Mrs. Oscar Boenicke

The McClatchy reunion was held over the weekend at the Flag Ship Motel at Lake Brownwood. There were 66 in attendance and they reported a good reunion. Those from here were Mr. and Mrs. Bond Featherston, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley McClatchy, Mr. and Mrs. Oil Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Talmage McClatchy, Sr. and Mrs. Talmage McClatchy, Jr.

We lost another good friend last Tuesday evening when Mrs. Addie Wilson, 83, died in the Brownwood Community Hospital at 2:30 p.m., after a month illness. Funeral services were at the Mont View Methodist Church where she had been a member for 70 years. Burial was in the Trickham Cemetery. She will be missed by all that knew her.

After the funeral, visitors with the Oscar Boenickes were Rev. Chester Wilkerson of Winters and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Miller and Ina Windham of the Mont View community who all had dinner with us.

Bro. Wilkerson visited the Stacys in the afternoon. Carrie Stacy was in the Brownwood Hospital a few days last week for tests, but seems to be doing better now.

Roy and Inez Miller of Coleman visited her brother and wife, the Bernice McIvers. Inez's hip is not doing too well yet and she may need more surgery. They visited Monday evening.

One-half inch or more of rain was reported around Trickham Sunday evening and Monday evening, and it looks like we may get more Tuesday morning. We are very thankful for what we got. We got a little less than one-half inch.

Sherman and Dortha Stearns and Clint of Fort Hood came Sunday and spent Father's Day with his parents, the G. K. Stearns, also Mrs. May Sharp of Santa Anna spent the day with them.

BUSLOAD OF LOCAL CHILDREN TO SWIM LESSONS EACH DAY

Fifty-five Santa Anna children attended the first day of swimming instruction on Monday. The class this year is for non-swimmers and beginners. No advanced classes are being held.

Mrs. Elgean Harris, chairman of the Summer Recreation Association's swimming program, announced that 55 would be the maximum that could attend. A few children may be eliminated early in the session as they learn to swim, but there will be vacancies for very few others not already enrolled.

The bus leaves the school at 10:30 a.m. each morning and takes the children to the Coleman pool. The cost for the transportation and instruction is 20 cents a day per child.

Mothers who are listed as chaperones for this week are Mmes. Loyd Holman, L. K. Wardlow, Bob Burton, Don Clifton, Jack Brewer, and Donald Strickland. Each mother will be asked to ride the bus at least once during the three week period and are asked to contact Mrs. Harris to be assigned a day to accompany the group.

LETTER TO THE PUBLISHER

Santa Anna, Texas
June 22, 1971

Mr. Hays:

In your last "In Our Opinion" column the statement was made: "To cap other things, the United Presbyterian Church just voted to contribute $10,000 to the defense fund for Angela Davis..."

There has been so much reaction and because of such, six Black ministers have paid the $10,000, which does not correct the issue, but in one sense of the word, all Presbyterians are not guilty of supporting Angela Davis.

There may be cases where this Emergency Legal Aid Fund is needed, but in my opinion and in that of many other Presbyterians, Angela Davis neither needs nor deserves it. So for that reason many churches are protesting, and the local Presbyterian Church does not contribute to this fund.

New Plant Told For Texans, Inc. At Bangs Site

Texans, Inc., the largest industry in Bangs before a May 30 fire, will be rebuilt soon, according to Tommy Young, president of the firm.

The old site has been cleared and construction is to start right away. The new building will be located on the site of the old one, using part of the slab floor that was not destroyed in the fire. Plans call for the new building to be completed and the plant to be in operation by December.

The new building will have 15,000 square feet of floor space and will be a slightly different design than the old one. There will be some modern methods for dealing with ceramics and other changes that should improve the quality of the products, according to a report from Mr. Young. The new plant will employ about 10 additional people.

The fire, caused by lightning, totally destroyed the building and equipment which manufactured ceramic lamps, lamp shades and furniture. About 60 people were employed full-time with the firm.

The lay-off of workers has caused a great loss to the economy of the town, but workers are to be put back to work as soon as possible.

Accent On Health

Just last month, on May 14, the world medical community marked the 175th anniversary of the first vaccination against the dread disease smallpox.

Why would this be of interest to the average Texan today? Because one of the true victories for the science of immunology is now apparent.

The eradication of the disease organism that causes smallpox is now almost complete. It is now estimated that only six countries in all the world will continue to report the occurrence of this once dreaded disease by the end of 1971. That cheerful word comes from officials at the Texas State Department of Health.

During the first four months of 1971, less than 14,000 cases of smallpox were reported by 13 countries to the World Health Organization. Over half of these cases were reported by Ethiopia, with the balance spread out over scattered areas of Africa, Asia, South America, and a few cases in Europe.

Health officials now estimate that approximately 25,000 cases will be recorded in 1971. That marks a substantial decrease from the 131,000 cases recorded in 1967, the first year of the world-wide Smallpox Eradication Program.

Still, you continue to ask, how does this effect me? While smallpox is still considered a problem in some parts of the world, the disease does not at present occur in the United States. The last outbreak in America occurred in 1941 in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas.

In 1938, the United States recorded nearly 15,000 cases of smallpox. Ten years later, in 1948, less than one per cent of that number of cases was reported. Only 50 cases were diagnosed in the United States. For almost two decades now there have been no smallpox cases reported in this country.

So why should you continue to be concerned over a disease that is now almost eradicated? The answer is quite simple. The only way to afford you and your children 100 per cent protection from smallpox is to completely eradicate it from the face of the earth. This can be accomplished only through strict control efforts, and continued mass vaccinations. Universal vaccination is still the most reliable safeguard in prevention of this disease. "Accent on Health" is a weekly service of the Public Health Education Division of the Texas State Department of Health.
