Steers End Pre-District Schedule With Third Victory Over Big Lake

Morgan Scores Seven Field Goals—Visitors Called Best Team Here This Year, Glover Best Individual Player

Big Spring high school Steers closed their pre-district tournament campaign appropriately here Tuesday evening by defeating Big Lake for the third consecutive time this season. Friday and Saturday Big Spring will participate in the western half of district tournament at Colorado. Until then the Steers will remain idle.

Big Lake brought to Big Spring the best high school club seen here this season, with the possible exception of Athens. And with Big Lake came the best individual school boy cager seen here this year. He was the tall, rangy Glover who played a great game at the pivot position.

At no time in the game did Big Spring have what could be called a comfortable lead. Players turned in a fast but more or less erratic exhibition, and had Big Lake possessed the aptitude in making their shots count as did the Steers, results would have been very different indeed.

Morgan led the scoring attack for the Steers with seven field goals. White, was in the game here in a fast but more or less erratic exhibition, and had Big Lake possessed the aptitude in making their shots count as did the Steers, results would have been very different indeed.

Ross Gives Best Way Of Protecting Plants After Freeze

After having seen freeze treatment on evergreens, many home owners of the city apparently do not know the next step to take that would best for their plants, said W. S. Ross, local nurseryman, Wednesday.

"We would have suffered little or no damage at this time with ordinarily cold weather as the ground was dry enough to prevent a sap flow," said Mr. Ross. "That is what we must guard against from now until April 1. Keep the flower beds as dry as possible to prevent a growing condition. For relief at this time examine the plants by scraping the buddy limbs with a knife to see the inner bark. If it is dark brown or black scrape further until the inner bark shows green, then cut the plants back to the green work. It is possible that some plants will need cutting back to the ground. The plant will ordinarily recover quickly and grow very rapidly."

Transportation Report Urges Sweeping Reorganizations Of Railroad System Over Nation

Lines Taken To Task By Committee For Failure To Use Trucks And Airplanes—Recapture Clause Repeal Favored

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER, Associated Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK—A new era in transportation, with regulation concentrating on insuring the most efficient service at the lowest competitive cost, is envisaged in the report of the national transportation committee, published Tuesday night.

This report, the result of more than four months of work, most of which was under the direction of the late Calvin Coolidge, has been anxiously awaited by large investors in the nation's $220,000,000 railroad system, who invited formation of the committee to seek solutions for the vexed transportation problem.

Through Survey The committee's conclusions—based on one of the most thorough surveys that has ever been made of the nation's transport facilities by a disinterested, non-partisan body—find the outlook for the roads "far from hopeless," but assert that rates cannot be based on obsolete capital structures, nor can competing forms of transportation be handicapped for the benefit of the railroads.

The committee urges sweeping consolidation of the roads, on a regional basis, to eliminate vast and wasteful duplication of facilities and services, and that these groupings be enforced by government action where necessary, looking eventually to a single national system.

Capital Structures As an emergency measure, facilitation of re-organizations where necessary to reduce unwieldy and uneconomic capital structures is urged, by revision of bankruptcy procedure. No broadening of the lending powers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation is found necessary, although the committee points out that "adequate security" for loans does not necessarily mean "marketable collateral."

Railroad managements are taken to task for not using, rather than seeking to combat, such competing forms of transportation as trucks and airplanes, and are severely criticized for seeking government aid without having first coped with competition and otherwise having taken advantage of all possible economies.

Signed by Trio The report of the committee is signed by Bernard M. Baruch, who as vice-chairman succeeded to the chairmanship on the death of former President Coolidge; by Clark Howell, and Alexander Legge.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, while explaining that he was in substantial agreement with the greater part of the report, issued a supplemental memorandum, which he explained, "states my own conclusions in my own language, placing emphasis where I think it belongs."

Smith differed with the other members of the committee somewhat in his recommendations for emergency action. Both agreed that the recapture clause should be repealed, retroactively, and both agreed that re-organization should be facilitated, but Smith specifically proposed that a special debtor relief act should be passed with a special provision for railroads, its operation to be definitely declared to end on January 1, 1935.

Rate Making Revision The committee recommended prompt revision of the statutory rule of rate making, asserting that the old theory of trying to base rates on "fair return" on appraised value should be junked, and adding "we see no reason why the rate making rule should not say in plain English that the railroads are entitled to make a reasonable profit based on costs of efficient operation, and that they are not entitled to earnings merely to preserve present structures if over-capitalized."

Smith did not recommend immediate changes in rules of rate making.

The committee added to its emergency recommendations the suggestion that "adequate security" for Reconstruction Finance corporation loans does not necessarily mean "marketable collateral," all in plain English, that the railroads are entitled to make a reasonable profit based on costs of efficient operation, and that they are not entitled to earnings merely to preserve present structures if over-capitalized.

Big Spring will be host to a meeting of the Texas Good Roads Association here February 23 when objectives of the organization will be explained to citizens of this section.

The association they declare, is a non-political, non-partisan state-wide agency to support the development and maintenance of Texas highways. They oppose any move to divert from the highway fund any portion of the gasoline tax which goes for that purpose.

Nearly 4,000 applications for loans totaling $21,555,470 have been received at the corporation's headquarters here and at branches in San Angelo and Houston.

In addition to loans aggregating $3,706,480 already extended, $70 loans for $3,657,760 have been approved but not disbursed, Thomas' report showed.

Leadership Bid Not Made By President
Clear-Cut Party Policy On War Debts And Money Outlined
 By RAYMOND CLIFFER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK (UP)—President Hoover went back to Washington and the White House for his 17 remaining days in office, leaving his party a clear-cut policy on war debts and monetary stability but disappointing followers who had hoped for an open bid for the retention of party leadership.
 Mr. Hoover, in what was widely heralded as his "farewell address," called for international co-operation for economic revival, with possible use of war debt payments to the United States as a fund to aid central banks in stabilizing currencies on a gold basis.
 He derided the contention that the war debts in themselves are the dominant factor in the world depression, and made clear a belief that if Europe expects concessions on the debts, her nations must co-operate in stabilizing currencies, otherwise acting for economic betterment. He spoke before the Lincoln day dinner of the national Republican club.
 The world, he said, should try to find "a place for silver, at least in enlarged subsidiary coinage."
 An audience of 1,500 Republican listeners followed his comments on international affairs and party matters closely.
 The president referred to his defeat last November, and predicted the Republican party would be returned to power.
 "An organization that can show more than 15,000,000 adherents after seventy years—an irreducible minimum in the reaction from the worst depression the world has ever seen—is indeed testimony to the virility of the principles Lincoln enunciated," he said.
 "The Republican party will support the new administration in every measure which will promote public welfare. It must and will be vigilant in opposing those which are harmful."
 Leaders of both parties were reluctant to discuss the political part of the speech for quotation, but privately many interpreted it as indicating Mr. Hoover was ready to fight to maintain party leadership. Others, however, felt he had endeavored to avoid any statement that could be interpreted as an appeal to any faction of the party against any other faction.
 Mr. Hoover and his party were in New York less than seven hours. The city's greeting was cordial. A detail of 800 police and detectives guarded the chief executive. No untoward incidents occurred.

No Discharge In This War
 United States Steel, for years considered the soundest and safest investment in the country—and still, no doubt, a sound and safe as the best of them—voted a fifty cent quarterly dividend on preferred stock last week. It was the first time in 32 years the corporation had failed to pay the usual $1.75 quarterly. Some experts had guessed the payment would be a dollar, others said it would be nothing. The corporation had a $90,000,000 draft on its surplus last year, an operating deficit of $31,000,000. The incident serves to emphasize an important fact: no enterprise, no matter how wealthy or wise or tremendous, can rise above general conditions. Old man depression took the starch out of the big fellows along with the little.

It also answers the question ahead during the boom time, when stock values were pyramiding and mergers were coming into being at a dizzy rate, of what we were to do to curb the amalgamation and segregation of vast wealth. The answer is that recurrent stresses in the economic world will wring all the water out of the wettest stock, will humble the proudest corporation, will break up the most arrogant empire of wealth. The biggest corporation, like the tiniest individual enterprise, is subject to the inexorable laws of economics.

Harley Sadler And New Company Due In City Next Week
 They say there isn't anything new under the sun—but that old saying will have to be discarded now. Harley Sadler, West Texas' own showman, has a new idea in the presentation of modern plays. After closing at the end of last season, Mr. and Mrs. Sadler spent several weeks touring the amusement centers in the quest of new ideas, new plays and new actors and actresses, and to say that they have been successful would be putting it rather mildly. In the new cast of characters they have secured the services of the best they could find.

Plays were selected for their entertainment worth as well as for their fast moving plots and action. The vaudeville, and here is the big change in the new idea, is far beyond anything that has been presented in Big Spring by anyone. All the feature acts are worked in such a way as to carry you to the big time amusement places of the larger cities and were selected for their outstanding ability to entertain you, while some of the vaudeville acts have just finished seasons on the big time circuits both in the east and on the west coast.
 Mr. Sadler has spared nothing in his efforts to completely reorganize and build for West Texas a show that will overshadow any of his former attractions and has succeeded so thoroughly that you will surely have to agree that there is "something new under the sun."
 Mr. Sadler and his new show plays in Big Spring all next week at the Municipal Auditorium.

STUDENTS RAISE BABY FISH

SEATTLE (UP)—Biology students of the University of Washington have gone in for baby raising. Don't confuse that statement with the babies are fish, and their cradles are troughs.
 Each student cares for 5,000 fish. He watches the water for correct temperature, feeds them at certain times, with salmon eggs and corn meal, and then weighs them from time to time just as human babies are looked after.

Learned Indians Cannot Revert To Old Customs

SKEDDIE, Okla., (UP)—Young men of the Pawnee Indian tribe, whose reservation is at the confluence of the Arkansas and Cimarron Rivers near here, have organized to prevent college-educated members of their race from reverting to the blankets and tepees of their fathers.
 All members of the junior council are college graduates, and among the young braves are business and professional men.
 Advancement of the Indians, enforcement of law and order and better management of tribal affairs are objects of the organization. While Indian schools established by the government have been turning out hundreds of graduates annually, little effort has been made to follow up the Indians in after life. Many of them forsake the ways of the white man, and their education doesn't "take."
 It is principally to remedy this, and to make Indians of all tribes race-conscious and loyal to their own interests, that the council was formed.

 Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Kuykendall have moved back to Big Spring to make their home.
 Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Collins were given a surprise party by their friends Tuesday evening, in the form of an old fashioned quilting party. The going and coming was very informal, the responsibilities of school children intermingled with some. Hot chocolate, whipped cream and wafers were served at the close of evening.

All Fields Must Be Given Opportunity To Run Part Of Oil Supply Says Holmes

NEW YORK (UP)—The oil industry must provide opportunity to all existing fields to supply an equitable portion of the market requirements or else the consequences would be "the dissipation of all the world's larger reserves of crude oil and the other assets of the industry at a tremendous cost to every one concerned," I. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Co., said.
 His statement was made in support of the recent adoption by the American Petroleum Institute of a set principles upon which the industry may base its co-operation in administration of "market-demand" statutes.
 By failure of co-operative effort, Holmes said, "the inevitable result will be that the lowest cost production would be produced first—California, East Texas and South Texas; northern South America, Persia and two or three other sections of the world could alone for a time, by opening up the valves, supply nearly all the world, making it utterly impossible for pumping fields or any of the older fields to produce at all," he pointed out.

CHAPTER XXVII

For several moments there was no reply. Sheila, waiting tremulously, wished suddenly that she had not telephoned. But perhaps Jerry was not at home. That would be better. She glanced at her watch and saw that it was not yet 12 o'clock. If Jerry was not at home she could leave a message and he could call her later.

Yes, that would be better! Then all at once the wire became alive again. It throbbled with that exaggerated, yet padded sound of footsteps approaching the instrument at the other end of the connection.

Would it be the man she had just talked to or Jerry himself? Surely at this hour Jerry would be at the factory.

But it was not the butler's voice that reached her. It did not seem to be Jerry's voice either. A man's voice but a stranger's. He said, "Sheila? Well, how do you do?"

"Jerry!"

It was not a stranger, after all. It was Jerry himself. He spoke again but there was no cordiality in his tone. They were enmeshed in meaningless conversation.

"It's Sheila," she repeated absently. How could she be so inattentive? Of course he knew who was speaking. He had called her by name.

"Yes?" The same tone, noncommittal, faintly ironic.

"I'm playing at the Raymond Theater, Jerry." She laughed shyly. "I'd like to see you."

"Yes?" It was a question this time, not merely a rising inflection.

"Yes, I'm in 'Fine Feathers'."

"I believe I did notice an advertisement the other day."

"But could this really be Jerry speaking? Why, Jerry loved her. He had told her so. He had practically asked her to marry him. He hadn't actually said those words, Sheila admitted to herself, but he had been sure that he meant them."

She could not understand this change. Neither could she reproach him. Sheila sat there looking foolishly into the telephone transmitter. There was nothing more to be said, apparently. What should she do? She was completely miserable. She had given Jerry an opportunity to ask to call and he chose to ignore it. There was nothing now to be said.

And yet Sheila heard her own voice. "Jerry," she was saying, "we are leaving at midnight to-night. I'd like to see you before I go."

A long pause, throbbing. Then the reply came. "Oh, I see! Yes, that would be nice." He words were coolly courteous. "Where are you dining?"

Sheila told him in a voice that shook in spite of herself. Was Jerry going to invite her to dinner?

The show closed at a quarter of 11 and the train left at midnight. There would scarcely be time for her to see him. They could have only a few exchanged words at the stage door.

Usually Sheila dined in her hotel room but tonight she would change her plans. She said, "Here at the Grandmoor. In the grill."

There was another pause and then Jerry said, "I'll see if I can't drop around."

"Can you call me later at the hotel?" she asked. All pride had fled. Sheila was a woman in love, pleading.

"I'll try to."

She hung up the receiver with conflicting emotions. Jerry had not been cordial. Nevertheless she realized that he might not have been alone. Perhaps he had used that cool tone and manner because he knew someone was listening.

At any rate she was to see him again. She was to see Jerry with his tall, straight body, his laughing eyes, his crisp hair, gold where it touched his skin, his flashing smile. She would see him and bask in the sunshine of his admiration. She was loverly to look at than she had been a year ago. Her salary was better and her clothes were more expensive, more becoming. Jerry would certainly find her more attractive.

All afternoon her heart sang gaily. She longed for Jerry when she sat in her dressing room at the theater, craning her face with swift, practiced hands. She longed for someone to whom she might unbend her heart, someone who would understand.

chorus man, strolling by her door, circulated the report that Miss Shayne's voice was improving. He had heard her singing a love song, "as if she meant it, by Jove!" The matinee went well though to Sheila it seemed interminable. Eagerly she scanned the audience. The usual school girl crowd was on hand. They always came on Saturdays. Sheila liked to dance for such audiences. Wisfully she avoided those girls, their homes, their security, their friends and their parties. She knew that they envied her too and smiled a little bitterly. Well, life was like that.

After the finale she remained in her dressing room, almost afraid to leave. She was certain that Jerry would be there at the stage door waiting, yet could not face the disappointment if he should not be. She took a long time dressing, lingering over each simple act so that she was among the last to leave the theater. If Jerry was there he would wait for her. If he was not there what was the use of knowing it sooner than necessary?

She hoped so terribly that he would be!

At last she was ready to go. Her had, trim and neat with its unimpeachable Fifth Avenue air, was pulled down sideways over her head. Each curve of the dark hair was as it should be. Her tailored frock and fur piece was becoming. Her gloves fresh, her purses new and her pumps irreplaceable.

John, the stage doorman, sat with his chair tilted back against the brick wall, nodding sleepily. He straightened as Sheila passed, half rose and touched his hat.

"That was fine show this afternoon, Miss Shayne," he said. "We hate to see you leaving Spencer."

"Thanks, John. Sorry we have to go."

She felt suddenly warm and glowing as she stepped into the alley leading from her stage door to the street. A moment more now and she would know!

It took courage for Sheila to turn that corner. She straightened her shoulders slightly, moved forward. There was no one in sight.

Of course she had not really expected Jerry would come. Why had she even hoped that he would? What reason had she to feel this way? Sheila stormed at herself, scolding, yet knowing that the scolding was useless. Of course Jerry couldn't treat this way if he really cared for her! Of course she was making a fool of herself. She had forgotten pride and dignity when she had telephoned. Oh, yes, she deserved this humiliation. Every bit of it. She would never do such a thing again.

And suddenly her heart quickened. Hope, warm and comforting, returned. Perhaps Jerry would telephone her at the hotel. Perhaps he had called there already.

She walked on swiftly, head held high, her eyes bright with unshed tears. At a corner, startled, she heard her name.

"Oh, Sheila!"

"Oh, Sheila!"

It was the teasing voice she knew so well. Yes, it was Jerry Wyman suddenly beside her, his hat in one hand, his eyes shining, lips bowed in a bright smile.

"Sheila, were you running away from me?" he asked. Jerry had fallen into step beside her. The same Jerry she had known a year ago.

"Oh!" Sheila Shayne said softly. And suddenly she was a bright and very wonderful place. He raised her eyes to meet his. "Oh, Jerry!"

Lincoln's Habit Of Visiting Union Lines Was Nearly Fatal

MINNEAPOLIS (UP).—President Lincoln's habit of making unannounced visits to the union trenches during the war between the states almost cost him his life, one of the men who fought under "honest Abe" recalled.

On one such visit to fraternize with union troops, the president was a perfect target for rebel sharpshooters, said L. E. Carpenter, 84, Civil War veteran.

"It was in the Potomac campaign, in 1862, along about July 1," Carpenter related. "We were in the breastworks at City Point when Lincoln came out on an inspection tour. I was on picket duty. As the sun was going down, a figure came shambling along the breastworks, outlined against light. It was topped with a pig hat. A long coat swept nearly to the ankles. The hands swung loosely."

"The fellow was fully exposed. Rebel trenches—the advance picket lines—were only 200 yards away. Somebody hollered 'tell him to get down.' Then zing-g-g-g of a few bullets. A couple of Confederate pickets were sniping at him."

"Astounded, the man jumped into the breastworks. 'Why, it's the president,' someone exclaimed. That was the first we knew who it was."

"He sat down with us—a little knot of a dozen or so—and plunked his back up against a log. He told a lot of stories. 'they were awfully funny."

"When the coffee man came along, we asked if he wanted something to eat. He wasn't hungry, but he drank coffee with us out of tin cups."

"He talked lots about the rebels and about the union and slavery. When he left, he said 'boys, hold up the stars and stripes.' That was the last we saw of him there."

"The next time I saw him, he was lying in state in Washington."

Daughter Takes Place Of Justice Of Peace

SAN ANTONIO (UP).—Like father, like daughter—so when her justice of peace father was not at home the daughter held court and did the fining.

Such was the report of Herman H. Ochs, president of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, in a protest against mistreatment of motoring tourists.

Ochs said a Chicago motorist was escorted to the residence of a justice of the peace. The justice was not there "so his daughter held court out there by the side of the road and fined the man $15.25," Ochs protested.

"As a result, the man's feelings were hurt," Ochs said, "and he declared he would advise all his friends to steer clear of this county."

Lost Wedding Ring Is Birthday Surprise

RACINE, Wis. (UP).—As a surprise on her 70th birthday, Mrs. Augusta Krakofsky received her wedding ring which had been lost for 40 years. The ring, a heavy, old fashioned band, was dug out of a garden patch in Watford, Wis., where Mrs. Krakofsky lived as a bride. She had lost the ring, she said, while working in the garden.

Although the garden was cultivated nearly every year, the ring was not found until excavations for a new garage were made on the land.

LIBERTY, Mo. (UP)—Farmers here have formed the "Farmers and Merchants Anti-Theft Association" to combat chicken thieves. Rewards of $50 have been posted for conviction of any one stealing poultry from a member of the board has 124 million dollars of maturities in 1934, so this is just a preliminary gesture. The road can not possibly get out without help from somewhere.

Inside betting is that the application won't even be approved by the I. C. C. The R. F. C. is expected to reflect Roosevelt policies from now on even though no changes in personnel have yet been made.

Rails

You can expect the final report of the National Transportation Committee to be an innocuous affair. It will recommend repeal of the restructure clause and regulation of competing agencies. It will probably ignore the touchy question of whether the R. F. C. should continue to rescue drowning railroads.

The report is being written chiefly by Bernard Baruch. There will be no formal minority reports, although Al Smith nor Alexander Legee is entirely pleased with the way affairs have been handled. The committee's conclusions were pretty well outlined before it started to investigate.

R. F. C.

Al Smith raised Cain with the R. F. C. when he was here than anyone heard about.

A typical scene was staged in his hotel room. In a bathrobe he lectured the counsel of the corporation for hours on the futility of existing policies. Camera men were kept waiting outside. They wanted a serious picture and Al would not put on his clothes for it until he had his say. What he was aroused about particularly was red tape in corporation activities. His public and private expressions were indicated he would make things hum if Roosevelt named him head of the corporation.

That is not in the cards yet.

Lobbies

Lobbyists botched the job of trying to get a sliding tariff scale to meet depreciated currencies. They did not work together. Each industry had a different crowd on the job. They gave the appearance of a football team with all eleven men fighting for themselves.

Much more efficient was the lobby for the ocean mail contracts. By skillful work it saved its whole appropriation even though domestic air mail contracts were cut out.

St. Lawrence

The power company are supposed to have called off their dogs from the St. Lawrence treaty. The machinery is being fixed so it will be ratified in the special session of congress after March 4.

While New York State also appears to be pacified Senator Wagner has not yet fallen in line. He probably will later on.

Wheat

Recent years about a wheat famine in Russia were unjustified. The best Russian sources here confidentially say the Soviets do not now expect to import any substantial amount. They expect to break about even on domestic production.

The stories apparently were circulated by bullish wheat interests.

Notes

Mrs. Caraway has given up working cross word puzzles on the senate floor. She generally reads the newspapers now or listens to the debate. The move to call Al Smith in the Barry matter was dropped because Senators knew they did not have a case. That is the same reason why libel action was not pressed. There is also a legal question whether you can libel the senate. Treasury experts have been working nights figuring how the British lump sum payment idea would work out. That does not mean anything. Our officials want the information to combat the British contention. Congress has passed exactly one important bill this session, the Philippine Independence bill. It will take effect in ten years, maybe.

Mitchell Retains County Home Agent

COLORADO—The Mitchell county commissioners court voted to continue home demonstration work in this county and to employ Miss Emma Gunter in the capacity of agent.

The court had considered abandoning the activities after resignation of the agent, Miss Abbie Sevier, who recently married and moved away from Colorado. Miss Gunter has done work in this area previously.

Representatives of all communities in the county appeared before the court Monday asking continuance of the work, and Tuesday A. F. King, county judge, said by a vote, not unanimous, the court had agreed to do so.

The county has a farm agent also.

Poland

Students of European currencies report that Poland's gold supply being only thirty-four per cent of the National fund, a deflation of the zloty is probably due in the course of the next eight months. Germany is well aware of this situation.

Italy

New Yorkers who study Italy's foreign policy closely believe, Mussolini will avoid any change in Jugo-Slavia which might bring about a restoration of the old Austrian realm. Uniting in a common cause with Germany without regard to Italian policies is Jugo-Slavian threat of wide implications.

Japan

Bank specialists in Japanese financing are watching the apparently innocent "National Defense Study League." These are being organized throughout Japan with the intention of reaching, 20,000,000 young people. The movement represents a really desperate attempt by the military to combat radicalism and inculcate instead the militaristic spirit. The government is seriously alarmed by the 8,000 young people who were arrested as "communists" during the past year.

Cabinet

By a typographical error Senator Swanson was listed in our last release as "extremely likely to be offered war if his colleague Senator Glass refuses treasury." This should have been navy—not war.

For Disorders Due To CONSTIPATION

"I have used Black-Draught for a number of years and I find that it is about the best medicine I can take for headache, biliousness, a tight feeling and for gas and spitting up of my food," writes Mr. Bert Smith, of Carthage, Mo. "Taken in broken doses, Black-Draught will relieve this. It will also help (as a laxative) a cold and hoarseness. When I feel 'all down and out,' I take Black-Draught and in a few days am feeling all right. It is also good for bad breath and other little troubles of the kind when due to constipation."

Argument Over Technocracy Nearly Wrecks Rotary Club

Seathing Attack Upon Minister By Attorney Brings Defense From Another Clergyman

For awhile it seemed that the Rotary Club was bound for the rocks Tuesday, in a heated discussion on Technocracy that ended in a hot personal attack on the activities of ministers, and almost "broke up" the weekly meeting and the club. The whole program was planned in advance by a few members under the chairmanship of E. J. Mary, and they succeeded so well that a number of those not in the know were completely fooled.

Here's how it all started: Last week Rev. J. T. Thorns addressed the club on Technocracy, speaking seemingly in favor of it. The same subject was taken up at the meeting this week by Grover Cunningham, with a scathing attack on Technocracy as "Utopian nonsense." The highlight of his talk came when the speaker unveiled a real robot to show the audience what they would look like under the reign of Technocracy. He then proceeded to assail the activities of ministers who, in his words, "ought to stick to their business of studying the Bible and saving souls."

At this point Rev. Theo Francis jumped to the defense of the ministry and of Technocracy. In a clever story he brought in some of the notable inventions by members of the ministry, and went on to show that in the field of science, literature, art and education they have distinguished themselves.

Speaking from the viewpoint of Technocracy, Father Francis said that new ideas, even when of real benefit, have always had their share of opposition. "Archimedes," he stated, "discovered the Law of Displacement when he stepped into the bath tub, and so excited was he over the discovery that he rushed into the streets to proclaim it to the people, only to be told to go on home because he was all wet."

The joke was carried further by J. F. Hall, championing the cause. As a climax Rev. Thorns rose to defend himself and protest against the unlooked-for attacks of G. Cunningham, and when it looked as though the discussion had gotten out of control, and many of the members began to wonder what it might lead to, E. J. Mary explained the whole joke, stating that the whole idea behind the discussion was to show how little or nothing could start a big argument.

The day was observed as Crippled Children's day. A 25c sandwich lunch was served by Settles coffee shop in place of the regular meal, but the charge of 50c was made. Half of it goes to the crippled children's committee. The attendance team composed of Dr. Bennett, Theo Francis, E. Reagan, E. A. Kelley, Sam Eason, G. H. Hayward and Jesse Hall were called on to wait on the tables for the day, this team showing the lowest percentage of attendance for the monthly period.

Following were guests of the club: Jack Davis, S. P. Jones, "Randy" Randerson, visiting Rotarian, Abilene; E. W. Seitz, Washington, D. C.; J. M. Jones, College Station, Mr. Neff, of U. S. Department of Commerce radio station, Big Spring; Messrs. Howie and Tracht, Southwest Dairy Products company, Big Spring.

The secretary read a letter from the Fort Worth club extending an invitation to Big Spring Rotary club members to attend the 25th anniversary of Rotary meeting to be held in the Texas hotel, Fort Worth, February 17 at 12:15 o'clock. It was stated C. P. Anderson, International president of Rotary will attend.

Since both the president and vice president of the local club were included in the attendance team which waited on the tables, Secretary Max S. Jacobs presided over the meeting.

C. R. Scoggins, entertained the club with two vocal numbers, entitled, "Just A-ways' For You," and "Little Church in the Wildwood," accompanied by Mrs. Bruce Frazier, club pianist.

Next week's program will be in charge of Albert Fisher, chairman, G. H. Hayward and Chas. F. Landers, announced Elmo Wasson, program chairman.

Sports Editor Given 'Laying Out' In House For Critical Article

AUSTIN (UP)—House ire was roused by comment of Jack O'Brien, San Antonio sports editor, on the bills to revise the state fish, game and oyster commission. The house first voted to require him to appear before its committee on state affairs tomorrow night and testify to statements in his article, then, voted to postpone the whole matter indefinitely and expunge it from the House Journal.

Debate waxed warm. "He's not a good sport. He's a dastard coward of the first water" declared Rep. Walter Hones of Atlatson county.

"Half baked sports editor" was the term applied by Rep. George Parkhouse, Dallas.

Rep. Pat Jefferson on San Antonio defended O'Brien.

"I know him personally. He's a sports writer of national reputation," said Jefferson.

"Didn't he manage your campaign?" Some one asked from the floor.

"No," said Jefferson.

Rep. W. E. Pope, author of the bill to reorganize the game department also came to defense of O'Brien. "That poor fellow didn't know any more about what he was writing about than a hilly goat on the Rocky mountains knows about the Bible," said Pope. "We ought to give him an opportunity to show that his statement is founded on fact."

The article referred to the department revision bills as "dabchery and raiding" and a "sickening source of filth and rotteness." It urged hunters and fishermen to "beg, borrow, even steal transportation to Austin, Wednesday" to oppose the bills before the committee.

Lumberman Shaves Self With Five-Pound Axe

ASTORIA, Ore. (UP)—Rumors wandered in from Nehalem, Ore., to the effect that Leonard Wallis, champion ax man of the Northwest had shaved himself with a double-bitted ax. Local tongsists disbelieved the feat.

So, Wallis, strange and Paul-Yungon-like though it may seem, came here and, before a host of barbers, proceeded to shave a five-pound ax over his face, cutting but a handsome growth of beard on route.

His wife proudly avowed the "oversize-razor" maintained that "skin you love to touch" appearance.

Women Fliers Will Dedicate New Quarters

Betsy Ross Corps To Open National Base In Kansas

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Women pilots from a wide area will gather here March 18 for the dedication of national headquarters of the Betsy Ross Corps, new patriotic organization of feminine fliers who aspire to army service in time of war.

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, Atlantic flier, will be the guest of honor. Delegations will fly here from Tulsa, Dallas and elsewhere according to plans announced by Miss Dorothy Lyon national commander. Announcement also will be made of the first winner of the trophy to be given annually by the organization "to the American woman pilot rendering the most useful service to aviation and to her country during the year."

The city has donated quarters here and Dr. Frances Dickerson, Chicago woman physician, has given the organization an airport near Deland, Fla. Government ground school course materials have been secured for studying navigation, theory of flight, radio and other phases of flying. Members hope eventually to secure reserve officer status from the government.

Though Mrs. Opal Kunz of New York founded the organization only a little more than a year ago it already includes 200 members, has been secured for one-half of all the licensed women pilots in the country. Membership is limited to licensed women pilots above student grade who are American citizens. Student fliers are admitted as cadets and required to complete license requirements in one year.

Mail Vote Decides Swimming Meet Date

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—As a result of a mail poll, the tenth annual national collegiate swimming championship will be held March 24 and 25 at Yale University, it was announced here by Fred W. Lushing, chairman of the rules committee of the association and member of the physical education department at the University of Pennsylvania.

The entire membership was asked to vote on whether the title meet should be held this year or postponed until next. Despite the curtailment of athletic programs, most of the members voted to hold the meet this year.

Among the institutions favoring this year's meet were Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern, Rutgers, Harvard, Yale, Ohio State, Illinois, Columbia, New York University, Princeton and Pennsylvania.

RIOT AT RUMAMIAN SHRINE

Nine policemen and eight other persons were wounded when student members of Rumania's fascist Iron Guard attempted to place a marble cross on the grave of the unknown soldier in Bucharest. Police and gendarmes resisted them and a riot ensued. Priests and students are shown kneeling in the snow with the cross just before the trouble started. As a result of this and other disturbances Bucharest was placed under martial law. (Associated Press Photo)

Japan Determined To Occupy Jehol Despite World Opinion

Possibility Of Drive Into Tientsin And Peiping Cannot Be Ignored, China Prepared For United Action

By MILES W. VAUGHN
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKIO, (UP)—Japan will order occupation of Jehol provinces by her Manchurian army soon, despite world opinion, it appeared certain in the face of a prospect of unified Chinese resistance.

Possibility that the green-clad infantrymen of the Imperial Japanese army would push on beyond the great wall to occupy the cities of Tientsin and Peiping could not be ignored.

Developments at Peiping and Nanking, and a statement of acting Chinese Premier T. V. Soong that any attack on Jehol would encounter the united resistance of all China, indicated the likelihood of major military operations.

Informed sources declared the League of Nations and the United States must be prepared to use extensive military force if they hoped to carry out any subsequent efforts to enforce their viewpoints in the far east, if the league assembly adopted pending recommendations criticizing Japan's Manchurian program.

Veteran observers here had never seen Japan more united. The entire nation has adopted a "do or die" attitude. The national flag has been cast into the balance.

Prospects of extensive upheavals in the next few months increased. Japan unquestionably will reject the League's Manchurian recommendations, although an attempt may be to delay proceedings by suggesting revisions, amendments and reservations.

103-Year-Old Negro, Ex-Slave, Accused Of Being "Peeping Tom"

HOUSTON (UP)—Arrested as a "peeping Tom" suspect, Isom Creel, 103-year-old former slave, was freed after officers learned he peered closely at a window because he had lost his glasses.

Unable to remember where he lived, the negro spent the night at police headquarters. He remembers that "just before emancipation" he was sold by "Mister William Rice to Doctor Baines for $1,400."

He was the first person over 100 years old to be booked at the station. Officers raised a fund to buy him a new pair of spectacles.

White House Put To Music By Composer

NEW YORK, (UP)—Maury Madison, American composer, has just set the words of the last part of Lincoln's Gettysburg address to music. It has not yet been published, but Mr. Madison has added it to his collection of White House writing which he has put to song.

"Gettysburg" was played recently by Fred Rocke, organist at the Church of the Transfiguration (The Little Church Around the Corner).

Besides the Lincoln ode, Madison has set to music Mrs. Hoover's poem "Recollections of a Piece of Wood," which she wrote while the White House was being re-roofed. It is the saga of a piece of pine from the Maryland hills, which became a rafter in the White House, served its purpose for a century, then was torn out and thrown away to be burned. Its ashes scattered by the winds to its native soil.

Others of the "White House" pieces set to music by Madison are "My Shepherd Is The Lord on High," a poem written by John Quincy Adams; one of George Washington's two known poems entitled "My Poor Resolute Heart" written in 1847; "Lafayette, Champion of Freedom," a poem written by Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison; "The Great Adventure," a musical setting of Theodore Roosevelt's prose; and three poems by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, "Watch Fires," "The Open Door," and "The Quest."

I sincerely thank all my friends for the valuable assistance given me in securing the more than 14 million votes which gave me first place in the Merchants Trade & Win Contest.

—adv. Mrs. Merle Wasson.

Students Quit Exam Sessions

SYRACUSE, (UP)—Manufacture and sale of "cribbing machines" to Syracuse University students seeking aid in passing examinations has been charged here in an investigation of cheating among undergraduates.

For many years students of the College of Applied Science have followed the honor system in examinations. During a recent mid-year examination five engineers taking the course walked out of the exam room, declaring to the professor that they refused to compete against students cheating to pass the test.

There was a rigid investigation by the faculty, who discovered that in colleges not under the honor system cheating in examinations was apparently the accepted thing, with many ingenious methods used. Evidence was obtained that "cribbing machines" consisting of long strips of onion skin paper rolled at either end on match sticks, were sold for $5 to students. The entire course was outlined on the paper and students, by skillful manipulation in the palm of their hands, were able to find the answer to any question asked.

The five College of Applied Science students who walked out of the exam room were commended by the university administration.

Explorer Takes Two Years To Find Exhibit

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Descriptive of the diligent efforts put forth in gathering exhibits and displays for the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago was the collecting of data for the re-erection of a Jehol temple for exposition.

Dr. Sven Hedin, noted Swedish explorer, roamed two years in Mongolia before selecting an edifice worthy of reproduction.

The Lama temple picked by the explorer is the famous golden temple of Jehol, the original of which was built in 1767. It was impossible to "replant" the temple, so a Chinese architect was called upon to produce an exact model.

Skilled craftsmen then erected an exact replica—even to the intricate measurements.

The Jehol temple, resplendent with a roof of gold leaf, is 70 feet square and 60 feet high. It is crammed full, floor to ceiling, with gilded and carved images, goddesses, masks used in sacred dances, priestly robes and other priceless objects.
