Program Announced For West Texas Press Meet

Convention To Convene Here On August 19

Program for the annual convention of the West Texas Press Association to be held here Friday and Saturday August 19 and 20 was announced Thursday.

In the annual address of President Charles A. Guy, editor and publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche and Journal is expected to make some important suggestions that likely will be given considerable thought by the membership.

James M. North, editor of the Fort Worth Star Telegram will act as toastmaster at the annual banquet Friday evening.

Most of us occupy our minds chiefly with the governor's race. We'd do well to pay some serious attention to the issues to be threshed out in the next session of the legislature.

Redistricting of the state into congressional, state senatorial and state representative districts will be an important matter.

It was not a question with them of placing congressional representation on the basis upon which it is supposed to exist.

Big Spring Enters West Texas Civic Beautification Contest

Big Spring has entered the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Inter-Community Beautification Contest.

The entry was sent in by C. T. Watson, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, which will sponsor the contest in Big Spring through a local beautification committee of which Edmund Notestine is chairman.

The purpose of the contest is to promote the beautification of the West Texas landscape and appearance of West Texas communities by stimulating competition between the cities in beautification and cleanup activities. The 1932-33 contest will close at the Big Spring convention at which time the reports will be filed and judged, and the awards made. A silver loving cup is being offered to the winner, and the name of the winning town will be carried in twelve subsequent issues of the official publication of the West Texas Chamber—West Texas Today.

Home planting and beautification activities will be given fifty per cent value in the judging. A local yard and garden or pretty homes contest is suggested as a means of conducting this part of the activities. Another means is a painting and repair and clean-up activities. Ten per cent each will be given to city property beautification, and county and rural beautification activities.

Chairman Houston Harte San Angelo of the West Texas chamber's beautification committee, reports that the following cities have already entered the 1932-33 contest: Abilene, Amarillo, Anton, Benja-min, Big Spring, Breckenridge, Fronte Denton, Graham, Hamilton, Hamlin, Midland, Odessa, Oton, Pecos, Plainview, Post, Quanah, San Angelo, Slaton, Spur, Stamford, Sweetwater, Vernon, Weatherford.

The following committees has been named to have charge of the local end of the contest: Edmund Notestine, chairman, Mrs. F. M. Purser, Cecil Collins, W. S. Ross, E. V. Spence, W. L. Beatty, Will Olson, Raymond Lyons and S. P. Jones.

Movie Operators End Dispute Over Wages

SAN ANTONIO (UP)—The wage dispute between theater operators here and 35 union stage hands and projectionists ended Wednesday with the announcement a one-year contract had been signed.

The men were returning to their posts in the seven theaters today.

W. J. Keller, operators' business agent, said the contracted wage scale was "about the same as before."

The strike started four months ago. Bombing of several theaters which led to injuries of several persons were blamed by police as result of the differences between the owners and employees.

Don't Watch It!

Suffering From Heat Mostly Psychological, Dr. Cline Says

DALLAS (UP)—People who want to keep comfortable during hot weather should not watch the thermometer, Dr. Joseph L. Cline, United States meteorologist here, advised today.

"Ninety-eight per cent of the worrying and suffering over hot weather is mental, or psychological," said Cline. "We actually have an almost ideal climate, even in the hottest months, with few heat prostrations and weather that is the finest possible for health."

Dr. Cline, for 30 years official weather watcher here for the government, works in his 16 floor office in the Cotton Exchange building without fans and he drinks uncooled tap water from a faucet. He believes only weather observers and persons in the cotton market or ice business should watch the thermometer. For the rest of us, don't read the thermometer and think of cool places and refreshing breezes.

Sheriff Jess Staughter Thursday was in Odessa attending the forty-sixth anniversary celebration of the founding of Odessa. The event is being commemorated by a two-day jamboree, featured by an extensive rodeo, including "jackrabbit roping."

for LOVE or MONEY by CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MONA MORAN, receptionist in a well known law office, goes with her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARRELLI, to a popular supper resort, the Halcyn Club. Mona lives on Third avenue, supports her invalid father, mother, little sister, KITTY, and her two brothers, BUD.

STEVE has been mysteriously absent from New York for three years. Now he appears, well dressed and prosperous. With no thought of impropriety, he has ordered a gown and wrap sent to Mona which, after much indecision, she decides to wear.

At the office that day Mona had met BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, but refused to dine with him. However she cannot dismiss Barry from her mind. Mona is pleased at the improvement in Steve's appearance and manner but does not think she is in love with him.

Bud Moran comes to the Halcyn Club to see BUCK HARKINS, the proprietor, who has underworld connections. It appears that Bud is becoming involved with gangsters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

"Why, it's Lottie!" Steve exclaimed, directing Mona's gaze across the room.

It was indeed Lottie. She had not seen her friend, apparently, for she was not looking at them. Lottie sat at a wall table on a platform slightly raised above the rest of the floor so that she could watch the floor show (when it began) over the heads of the other diners. Just now she was eating busily and regretting her companion quite mercifully.

Her escort was a bored looking youth with sandy hair, dinner coat of moose and rather distinguished. The evening was not pleasing him. But, looking him over, Mona observed that this young man belonged to that group of society that never is by tradition and precept pleased. He lived to be bored and Lottie would serve for company as well as anyone else.

"Great heavens, the girl is having breakfast!" Mona added, amused. But Mona was not really amused at finding Lottie here, ready at any moment to join them. Steve's interest in Lottie rather irritated Mona. Half an hour before he had been making love to her.

"Breakfast!" repeated Steve, his eyes on Lottie and humor reflected in his tone.

Lottie had just finished a huge half grapefruit sunk in a silver basin of ice and was about to attack an omelet when she spied Mona and Steve.

She waved a fork gaily at their table and called—much to the chagrin of her escort—"Hello, Mona, darling! And Steve! Why, where—when in the world did you get in—"

"out?"

How could Lottie behave so! The innuendo in the other girl's voice meant that Lottie believed, or pretended to believe, that old story that Steve had been in prison. It was gossip that had died away three years ago. Perhaps Lottie thought it rather cute to pretend that she believed it. Privately Mona knew Lottie was as convinced as Mona herself that the gossip was not true.

The evening began so pleasantly was rather. How could Lottie say such a thing? She was rarely thoughtless and never malicious! Why was she here at all, with so many other places in New York to go?

"Oh, I've been around for a week or so," Steve was replying cheerfully, unperturbed by the implication in Lottie's greeting.

"Yes? Mona didn't tell me," Mona didn't know. I couldn't manage to get in touch with her until today.

Lottie raised her coffee cup to her lips and remarked, "I'm making no headway at all and I'm keeping the bill very low."

Flushing, the young man rose stiffly.

"Mr. Parker, Mona, Jimmy, Miss Moran, Mr. Saccarelli. We thought Mr. Saccarelli was dead—or something. Now all at once he comes to life again!"

Young Parker bowed distantly, disinterestedly and sank again into his chair. There had been discussion between him and Lottie all evening. It was clear that Lottie believed she had gained a point.

"Jimmy is never very happy here," she went on coolly. "I like this place though. Don't you, Mona?"

"Yes. But we've only been here a few minutes."

The orchestra began its low wailing. "Let's dance," Steve said abruptly.

Mona rose gratefully. She remembered that she had always liked to dance with Steve. In the three years of absence his feet had lost nothing of their skill. Their steps fitted as perfectly as they had in times gone by.

"You dance as wonderfully as ever, don't you?" he said softly.

"You're a wonderful partner."

Steve. Been dancing much?"

"Not at all. Except in my mind with you."

They were dancing dreamily and rather perfectly, swaying slowly, dipping in unison. They might have been the only couple on the floor. The leader of the orchestra watched them admiringly, followed their steps with careful attention. Mona and Steve might have been professionals who had practiced together for years. Their faces were rapt, their feet in perfect accord, their bodies swaying.

"Remember that contest at Cleveland?"

"We didn't win it, Steve."

"I didn't, but you did. And how I punched the guy who took the case cup home!"

"The judges gave it to him though, Steve."

"Then the judges were blind."

"Oh well!" Steve smiled and was again lost in the spell of the dance.

Beyond the tables there was a paneled wall, half concealed by palms. Mona and Steve danced across the tiny floor nearer this wall. Suddenly the paneled wall resolved itself into a door. It must lead to a private room—the manager's office, most likely.

As Mona watched carelessly the door opened. A dim figure, all hunched against the light within, appeared in sharp relief for a brief instant. Mona gasped.

It was Bud!

The boy slid almost furtively across the carpeted space which led to the outer door. His hat was in his hand. His almost stealthy steps made it plain to observers that he was an intruder rather than a participant in the expensive frivolity of that gay room.

"Why, why—?" Mona cried, pausing and started. She stopped short, bringing Steve up to the side of the tiny floor in dismay.

"I just saw Bud coming through that door!" Mona explained swiftly. "It must be the office or something. What business could Bud have here? He told me he was working tonight." Her lips curled. "He said he'd be in Fordham!"

"Bud—here?" Steve gently persuaded her to dance again for people were watching them. "Are you sure it was Bud? Yes, that's the office of the club owner, I believe. Maybe Bud's job brought him here."

"From Fordham?"

"These fellows have a hundred interests. Bud might have come on an errand or a delivery. They aren't the sort to trust things to the mails or messenger boys."

Mona stiffened. "What things?" she asked, her lips tight.

"Oh, Mona!" Steve laughed helplessly. "How should I know? Any thing? It might be a pound of a favorite kind of cheese. Night club owners never eat the food from their own kitchens, you know. Suppose it was Bud—what of that? Why are you so—'led, dear?"

The girl's lip quivered. "I—I am worried about him. Terribly worried, Steve. He doesn't work regularly. He is so mysterious. Always broke, too, and we need the money. I can't help worrying about him. I don't like Bud's being here. Aren't clubs of this sort run by gangsters, Steve? I'm afraid it means that Bud's gone—or going—wrong!"

"I see!" Steve's own face became serious. He thought a minute. "You've been seeing too many movies, Mona," he announced. "All that is screen stuff. Don't worry about it any more. We'll telephone to Bud after awhile and you'll see that he's all right. You may have been mistaken but if it really was Bud I'll take a hand in it."

Steve spoke confidently. How could he know that the plan he was outlining was precisely what Buck Harkins, in his tiny back room office, was scheming for Steve to do?

Five minutes at the telephone had given Buck "the dope" on Steve. He had all the information he wanted. Buck knew where Steve Saccarelli had been for the past three years, what his interests were, and in exactly what way those interests might coincide with Buck's own.

"I'll teach that double-crosser to take what's coming to him!" Steve threatened as he explained to Buck what he had just heard about Steve.

"I just saw Bud coming through that door!" Mona explained swiftly. "It must be the office or something. What business could Bud have here? He told me he was working tonight." Her lips curled. "He said he'd be in Fordham!"

"From Fordham?"

"These fellows have a hundred interests. Bud might have come on an errand or a delivery. They and his mission in New York. "You don't say!" Chlo, exclaimed, shaken from his usual lethargic mood to actual interest. "Saccarelli's in the legal end of the game, eh? And stepping out with the Kid's sister! Say—it looks like a clean-up, don't it?"

Dallas C. of C. Magazine Calls Pro Law Failure

DALLAS—National prohibition is a failure the magazine Dallas, official organ of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, said today in an editorial which forecast early repeal. The magazine advised control of liquor traffic by local option.

"The 18th amendment some years ago was termed 'the noble experiment,' but we are now rapidly realizing that it was but another experiment that failed," the magazine said.

Directors of the chamber said they had not been shown the copy before publication. Some expressed surprise but declined to comment on the article.

J. Ben Critz, executive vice president and general manager of the chamber, said he prepared the editorial purely from a commercial and business standpoint.

"I wrote the editorial with the view that prohibition is not a moral issue," said Critz, "but one of economics and business."

Failure To Approve Redistricting Bill Introduced By P. B. Metcalfe Cause Of Considerable Expense

AUSTIN—All the uncertainty, campaign expense, and campaign blunder of 26 candidates' races for congressman-at-large, and the three two-man races in the second primary for the three places would have been saved if the legislature had adopted a congressional redistricting law, as the bill upon which Rep. Penrose E. Metcalfe of San Angelo spent weeks of conscientious, disinterested work at the last session. Mr. Metcalfe, when he comes back in January, will reoffer the congressional redistricting measure. The legislature, freshly mindful of all the unnecessary expenditure of effort and money, and the generally unsatisfactory situation of having to elect a congressman from the entire state, no doubt will pass a bill then. That will leave three to be nominated in August without districts, and practically without jobs after a brief two-year term. So not even the voters will have profited much by the failure or refusal of the legislature to do its duty in the past.

It is now reported that Mrs. Helen B. Moore of Texas City was defeated, in the final count, for renomination, instead of having won, as was first reported. Her defeat was stated verbally at Austin. Assuming this is correct, in the absence of early official reports on the house races, it apparently decreases the woman membership of the house from four to one. Mrs. Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas apparently has been renominated, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. N. R. Strong of

1883 A Safer Year Than 1932 Walter Largent Recalls Thriving Boom Days Of Colorado When Money Was Plentiful And Life Safe

"The city of Colorado was a far safer place in 1883 than any West Texas town is today in spite of the reputation of the old West," declares Walter Largent, ex-cowboy and veteran grocery man, who moved to Colorado shortly after the Texas & Pacific R. R. was built, while he was a boy nearing his teens. "Every man wore six shooters in those days and there were frequent fights, but a woman was safer on the streets than she is today, he continues. Colorado, which got its start as a ranger camp, was then a boom town of about 25,000 people. The future predicted for it was so promising that a mule car had been ordered to cover the great distances, although the business houses extended not much farther north on one street than the court house is today. The mule car arrived and traveled along the street now followed by the Bankhead highway to the park beyond the present cemetery. The park held small deer, a bobcat, a buffalo, several deer, a lobo wolf and a few other native wild animals in captivity. The mule car was the delight of all the small boys in town because it refused to stay on its tracks and ever so often the men had to get out and put it back again. No fences. The only fences in the country in those days were drift fences; the drought of '86 which bankrupted Colorado's many wealthy ranchmen taught them too late the value of fenced pastures. Cattle wandered south in search of grass. For instance, the Largent family had arrived in Colorado with about 2500 head. After the drought they located 1400. Mr. Largent says that whole families moved in those days. With his family were his great-grandmother, his grandmother, an aunt and three cousins and three uncles in addition to his mother. They first located three miles south of

Shires Retired On Full Salary

BOSTON (AP)—Emil E. Puchs, president of the Boston Braves, on Wednesday announced Arthur (What-A-Man) Shires, first baseman, whose release was announced by the club Tuesday, had been put on the voluntary retired list. Shires, injured in a collision with Joe Stripp of the Brooklyn Club earlier in the season and since unable to maintain his former pace will be paid his full salary and, in addition, will be placed in the hands of a physician. The agreement must have approval of Commissioner Landis.

Startling Changes In Styles Made At Patou's Style Show

BY MARY KNIGHT. PARIS (AP).—Jean Patou revived "leg of mutton sleeves" in his fashion display for the fall and winter season, opened before a capacity audience. Patou brought back lower belts than now hug the hips. He put hats squarely on fashionable heads. "I sought simplicity of lines," the fashion designer said. "First, I suppressed the form fitting gowns of yesterday; second, I dropped waists and belts to the hips; third, I decided that hats must be worn straight, and no longer hung on the ear by a miracle of equilibrium." Patou's belts do not appear to encircle the waist. They are hung higher in front and lower in back. His newest colors were: tea rose, green, and brown, with many robes of two tones of equal quantities copied from the modes of the middle ages. Evening gowns were longer, many of lace, all varied décolletés. Helen Willis Moody, viewing the winter or autumn, favored dark gray sports ensembles and was particularly impressed by the "glorification of skiving trousers, no longer loose bags but as carefully tailored as riding breeches. Patou favors accordion pleated vests for evening gowns and wraps. Patou, tall, dark, and handsome, was an infantry captain during the world war. His edicts on the mode are awaited every season with something like hysteria on the part of the feminine world.

Babe Didrickson Captures 80 Meter Hurdles To Break Second Record; Tolan Wins

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, American girl winner of the javelin throw, came back with her second world record performance when she won the first heat of the 80 meter hurdles in 11.8 seconds in Wednesday's Olympics. This beat the mark of 12.2, set by Miss Sychrova of Czechoslovakia in 1928 and created a new Olympic mark for the event, held for the first time in the games. The crowd gave Miss Didrickson an ovation as she raced from behind to beat her teammate Simone Schaller of Pasadena by a foot in a close finish, with Marjorie Clark of South Africa third. Evelyn Hall romped to victory in the second 80 meter hurdle race. Tolan's time was 21.2 seconds, a new Olympic record, slicing two tenths of a second off the best mark made in the record breaking trials Wednesday. It was another sweep for the United States, the second of the day, as George Simpson finished second, Ralph Metcalfe third, Arthur Jonathan of Germany fourth, Carlos Latti of Argentina fifth and Bill Waters of South Africa sixth and last. Wins Going Away Tolan was going away. He came with a terrific rush down the straightaway after the sweep around the turn, finishing two yards in front of Simpson. Metcalfe was off poorly and never able to make up lost ground in the final drive, despite a powerful effort. Tolan's time was the fastest ever made around a turn for the 200, the work record of 20.6 having been registered on a straightaway. Tolan's triumph as the new world's sprint king climaxed a day in which the United States won all four men's track and field championships at stake. The Americans blasted out Olympic records in three finals and surpassed the listed world record in one, in addition to which an American girl, Babe Didrickson, lowered the women's 80 meter hurdles world standard to 11.8 seconds. Miller Wins Pole Vault Bill Miller of Stanford won the pole vault in a great duel with Nishida of Japan by negotiating 14 feet 1 7/8 inches, a fraction over the official mark of 14 feet 1 1/2 inches, but short of Bill Graber's performance of 14 feet, 4 3/8 inches, made in the final American tryouts. Graber's debut today was a big upset. The Olympic record in the discus throw was surpassed six times before John Anderson, giant American, set a new standard of 162 feet, 7-8 inches, far outdistancing the old Olympic mark of 155 feet 3 inches. Another American, Henri Laborde, finished second. George Saling of Iowa led his American team mates, Percy Beard and Jack Keller, to the top in the 110 meter high hurdles final in 14.6 seconds, just short of the record of 14.4 Saling set for Olympic competition yesterday. Pick Up 70 Points For the day the United States picked up the amazing total of 70 points in four events and boosted its team total for four days of competition to 151 points overwhelming all other nations. Tolan took matters so easily in the closing drive of his qualifying heat that he was nearly caught napping by Wright of Canada. Tolan anticipated Wright's last rush just in time to speed up and save the last qualifying place by a foot. With a great closing rush, Saling won the 110 meter high hurdles championship for the United States. It was 1-2-3 for the United States in the high hurdles as the judges, after much deliberation, placed Percy Beard second and Jack Keller third, in a blanket struggle for the place. Saling's time was 14.6, equalling the old Olympic record but slower than the new mark of 14.4 set by the Iowan in the semi-finals. Beard, the lanky Alabama boy, appeared to have the timber-topping race won as he romped into a clear lead, only to stumble over next to the last barrier. As this mishap occurred, Saling forged quickly in front and broke the tape with a good four feet over his American rival Keller, who started slowly, was a close third. The triumph sent the Stars and Stripes up all three staffs atop the Olympic periscope, the first sweep for any nation, and the huge crowd let loose a terrific roar. George Jefferson and Bill Graber, United States finished third and fourth in the pole vault. The first 1500 meter trial was won by Glenn Cunningham, Kansas star, in a 3 minutes, 56.6 seconds. He broke the tape 20 yards in front of Jerry Cornes, British star, who took matters easily as did Luce-Newton of Finland and Edwards of California, third and fourth, all qualifying for the final scheduled tomorrow. The Argentine, De Rosso closed with a fast sprint but failed to catch Edwards by two yards. The great Harvard miler, Storrowood Penrose Hollowell, qualified easily in the second 1500 meter race, coasting easily down the stretch stride for stride with John Lovelock, young New Zealander, who got his chest over the line first in 3:58. King of Canada was third Harry Larva of Finland, the defending champion, circled most of the field on the last lap to take the fourth qualifying place.

The third American in the 1500, Frank Crowley came through handily in the toughest of the three trial heats, slowing up in the stretch to take fourth place after the main battle had been decided on the last turn, where Dr. Otto Peitzer of Germany walked off the track. Roccali, Italian ace, won the heat in 3:59.4, with Eino Purje of Finland and E. Ny of Sweden the other qualifiers.

"What would taste good for dinner tonight?" How many wives have asked that question... and how many brides of the future will ask it... of indifferent husbands, right after breakfast or lunch? Hopefully at first, almost desperately after a time, and finally as part of a dull, daily soliloquy. For every wife discovers that a man with a newly satisfied palate is a total loss as a source of inspiration for future meals. Nevertheless, it's an important and trying matter, this business of planning the menu. There are cook-books, of course, but better than that, why not find out what's new in the markets? Pick up your newspaper—that will tell you. There's news about food—in the advertising of local markets and stores, and in that of the nationally known producer of tempting things to eat. Here's a new way of buying and serving chicken, for example, and one that's no trouble at all. Or a ham, with a new and piquant flavor. It may be that artichokes have just come to market—the first of the season. Or berries, or fruit, or corn on the cob. The advertisements in your paper tell you these things, with the prices, and where you can buy them. Here is inspiration for many a meal, without dragging weary feet from store to store, looking for what would taste good tonight.

ditional congressmen, and two of the three new congressional seats should have been given West Texas. The house passed a fair measure but the senate killed it because two congressmen were not given East Texas.

If West Texas does not look after her own welfare her rights will not be protected.

George B. Terrell, who lives in Cherokee county, near the Louisiana border, is opposing Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock in the August run-off for congressman-at-large, Place 1. Mr. Terrell as the Lubbock Morning Avalanche, Mr. Parrish's home town paper, points out, must have been figuring himself "in" on the 10,000-a-year job quite awhile before the rest of us began to think about it—judging from the records of the legislative vote at Austin.

*Mr. Terrell was a member of the house of representatives when the redistricting problem came up. As a member of the house he consistently voted against every bill calling for redistricting, the Avalanche points out.

The Avalanche continues: "He probably figured to himself that 'I used to be Commissioner of Agriculture and everybody knows my name. I know politicians in every section of Texas who'll be on the firing line for me and last, but not least, my name is Terrell and it's a cinch for a Terrell to get votes on his name, whether he has any qualifications or not.' At any rate, whatever he figured, Mr. Terrell voted against the rights of West Texas to added congressional representation. To all intents and purposes, he didn't care what the law said in regard to redistricting. He saw a chance to 'let George get it' in regard to a congressional seat and voted accordingly."

SUMMER CHILD'S FROCK

PATTERN NO. 752
This is the sort of frock that fits the "ladies of fashion" will simply "live in" during the summer season. Its simple, short-sleeved style makes for cool comfort in warm weather.

There's a touch of hand-trimming too, in the stitching around the collar and cuffs matching the color of the print. A crisp cotton frock in blue and white dots could have a white collar edged in blue stitching. Or a gay green and yellow print might be trimmed with a yellow collar and green stitching.

Designed in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 requires 2 yards of 36-inch material or 1 7/8 yards of 39-inch material for dress and collar of same fabric. For contrast 3/4 yard of 36-inch material or 39-inch material for all sizes.

Simplified illustrated instructions for cutting and sewing are included with each pattern. They give complete directions for making these dresses.

All you have to do to obtain a pattern of this attractive model is to send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins.

Kindly be sure to write very plainly on each pattern ordered your NAME and ADDRESS and SIZE.

New Fashion Magazine, chock full of the latest Paris style news, together with color supplement, can now be had at ten cents when ordered with a pattern and fifteen cents when ordered separately.
