Mills, Hurley Oppose Public Works In Bill

Garner Plan Provisions Would Provide Few Jobs, They Say

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Secretaries Hurley and Mills told congressional committees today the huge expenditures for the public works sections of the Garner relief measure would give comparative little employment.

Mills contended that the issuance of bonds to carry out the projects would "break down the sound financial policy that has been pursued since the beginning of our government."

Hurley contended that the rivers and harbors work was chiefly mechanical and would employ only 63,442 men.

Railroad Misses Receivership By Only Few Hours

NEW YORK, (UP)—The $151,000,000 St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co. was saved from possible receivership by a matter of a few hours when the road at the last minute obtained the consent of more than 90 per cent of its consolidated mortgage 4 per cent bonds to put into effect a refinancing plan.

The bonds, of which $20,727,750 are outstanding, are due today. Under the refinancing plan, the road will meet the maturity half with cash and the balance in a new issue of 5 per cent bonds.

After a four hour directors' meeting yesterday, the following statement was issued: "At the meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co., held yesterday, the depositary reported the holders of 90 per cent of the outstanding first consolidated mortgage bonds had deposited their bonds under the refunding plan. The board, therefore, declared the plan operative and authorized the officers of the company to make it effective."

Member Of Prominent Big Spring Family Flees After Failure To Get Banker To Open Stanton Vault

Unemployed for several months and worried until his unusually genial manner had obviously changed, Clinton Hair, 28, of Big Spring Thursday morning attempted to hold up the First National bank at Stanton and thirty minutes later was killed by a bullet fired from a pistol in his own hand.

Hair, son of J. J. Hair, pioneer citizen and retired banker of Big Spring, had lived here all of his life and had many friends who were intensely shocked by the fatal episode.

Hair died from a wound through the heart fired from a Lugar pistol he drew from his pocket as Sheriff Mill Yater and three deputies overtook him 10 miles south of Stanton on the Houston pike.

Sheriff Yater said Hair stopped the Ford coupe he was driving just as the sheriff's car came alongside of it, on its left. As the sheriff shot "halt" Hair jerked a gun from his right hip pocket and the weapon began firing as it left the pocket, said the sheriff.

Three bullets went through the top of the car, one struck Hair at the top of the right ear and came out through the top of the skull. Two more were fired through the right door of the coupe.

Justice of the Peace Adam Koni of Stanton returned an inquest verdict of death by gunshot, self-inflicted.

With Sheriff Yater were Chief Deputy Morris Zimmerman, Frank Gray, lumber company manager and Les Thompson.

Hair rented the Ford coupe from H. T. Moore, who maintains a taxi and auto business with headquarters in Gully's cafe here. It was rented at 6:30 a. m. Thursday. He had rented a Ford sedan Wednesday and several Stanton people reported he was seen there Wednesday.

At about 7:30 a. m. Hair walked into the First National bank at Stanton and asked John B. Lewis assistant cashier, who sat at a desk in the front of the building when Jim Tom, the cashier, would be down to the bank.

Lewis said he told Hair Mr. Tom would be down in a few minutes.

George Davis, who happened to be in the bank, saw Hair go to Lewis, who was behind the cage where Mr. Lewis had gone to begin filing some checks, when Hair walked to the teller's window and drawing a German Lugar pistol ordered him to open the vault.

Mr. Lewis said he told Hair he could not open the vault because of the time lock. Lewis and Davis walked around into the front lobby of the bank and the three were standing near a side door when Ed Woodward, who has an office in the back of the bank building, entered through a rear door.

Woodward entered the bank Mr. Woodward said he heard the men talking but that it did not occur to him a hold-up was being attempted. He walked into the lobby and Hair turned and ordered him to throw up his hands, said Mr. Woodward.

As Hair turned Mr. Lewis ran out the rear door. Woodward locked the side door behind Hair as he dashed out after Mr. Lewis. They ran eastward along the side of the bank building, said witnesses.

Mr. Lewis ran into a shoe shop next door north of the bank. Davis ran to a lumber yard and French Gray, manager there, called Sheriff Yater at the court house.

Drives Away Hair jumped in the coupe, parked at the corner, and dashed out of town southward.

The Sheriff with Zimmerman Gray and Thompson, heavily armed with rifles and shotguns, were in pursuit in about five minutes after Hair drove away.

The Sheriff said that every person they passed told them "he'd just ahead of you," when he described the car Hair was driving.

Hair closed all gates behind him, said Yater. He had just closed one when the officers sighted his car as it went around a clump of bushes and across a draw from the officers' car. Yater drove thru the gate without opening it. He said he did not believe Hair saw them until they were almost alongside of his car.

Sheriff Yater said he shouted to Hair to halt and Hair stopped his car as Yater stopped his on the left of the coupe.

Almost simultaneously with the sheriff's command to "halt" Hair turned and fixed his eyes on the sheriff, said that officer. He never took his eyes off Yater as he jerked the gun from his right hip pocket and not until he slumped over in the seat, mortally wounded.

The officers said it appeared the weapon started firing as Hair gripped it. As he brought it out of his pocket one or two bullets went wild, then they saw Hair had shot himself, said Yater. He slumped over toward the right and two bullets were discharged directly through the right door, one through the glass, the other below it.

Les Thompson said he took Hair's foot off the clutch and the sheriff said he took the pistol out of his hand when they reached

Macks Slam Homers For Double Win

Senators Victims; Philadelphia Nears Third Position

PHILADELPHIA—The Athletics used the same method to win both games of a long drawn out double header from the New York Yankees Wednesday and wound up only a half game out of third place. The scores were 8-7 and 7-6 the first game going 16 innings.

A homer by Max Bishop with one on base and one out in the sixteenth won the opener, the longest game so far in the major league season and Jimmie Fox's eighteenth circuit drive of the season, coming with one aboard in the seventh, supplied the winning runs in the second contest.

The first game started out as a duel between Charley Ruffing and Leroy Mahaffey and was carried into extra innings when the Yankee pitcher hit a homer in the ninth inning.

Left Grove replaced Mahaffey in the ninth while Ruffing finally yielded to Walter Brown in the twelfth but neither team could make a threatening gesture until the final inning.

The Athletics got off ahead in the second game when they found George Pipgras for four runs in the first inning and Roger Cramer hit a homer in the second but the Yanks forged ahead in the sixth with a four run rally, topped by Arndt Jorgens' homer.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Collier Parris of the Lubbock Journal has nominated Frank Rose, that smiling, friendly Lamesa golfer, to capture the West Texas Golf association tournament at San Angelo a week from today. Rose, you know, teamed up with E. C. Nix to turn back Charles Qualis, the Post postmaster, and Shirley Robbins, pride of the Big Spring Country Club, earlier in the week. Rose holed on No. 6 thirty-five yards from the green, and on No. 13 from the edge of the putting surface. The last described shot was good enough for an eagle.

We differ from Mr. Parris. Rose is a nice golfer on the Lamesa course, but E. C. Nix can beat him there. He is, however, not the one that will win the San Angelo tournament. Bobby Burns of Wichita Falls, a Mr. Pope from Abilene, and a fellow named Gregory from San Angelo are our three nominations. Were the play conducted on any golf course in the Sand Belt we would immediately about "Shirley Robbins," but he and Rose and the rest of the big shots over here in the country of sand greens are liable to fare poorly down on the Concho eighteen. Charles Qualis, for instance, has several times failed to qualify for the championship flight on grass greens.

Other predictions of ours that you can take or leave: Gus Moreland to win the River Crest Invitational tournament (that was easy); Miss Ethel Wilson to take the British Women's Amateur; Helen Willis Moody to win the French tennis singles; Gregory Martin to take the men's singles. If you're thinking that we select setups ponder on this one: The Athlete Eagles to place in the national scholastic relay; That George Moriarity will not be blamed for the Memorial Day battle, and that Manager Lew Fonseca of the Chicago White Sox will draw a heavy reprimand; that Elmer Helbing of Fort Worth will win third place in the national 100 yard dash; and that somebody from California wins first; Mrs. Dye Gaut of Memphis, Tennessee to win the women's Southern Golf tournament.

As yet we have received no response from the gentlemen who purpose to organize and conduct a Howard county baseball league. We are distressed over our failure. A baseball league is a nice way to loaf away a hot, sultry afternoon, especially if there is a shady grandstand.

The Country Club linksmen are making ready for their invasion of the Sweetwater links this Sunday. Adequate preparations are in order, for the Nolan county nibble wielders are doing right well, thank you, and intend to do better. Ed Hennig and Charlie Nix are burning up their home courses with 70's and better, while J. C. Southworth is to be remembered as a championship flight golfer. Bristow will probably not be on hand for the match, thereby weakening the local ladder somewhat. Cecil Wasson will probably take his place on the team.

Robbins may beat Nix, and then he may not. Porter should handle Hennig, we can not fancy anyone shooting a 70 regularly as Hennig did with no more experience and with no more practice. Southworth, we believe, will beat Coffee or Stephens, or whoever is playing.

They dissected the slow curves of their nemesis, Ray Moss, for 18 hits, of which six were clustered in the sixth inning to net five runs for a lead after battling at a 1-1 tie, while Fabian Kowalik kept the Buffs under control with seven hits.

When Ed Carroll, lanky Galveston right-hander, shut them out with four hits to take the opening game 8 to 0 for the Buccaneers.

Carroll pitched his strongest game of the season and the only man to reach second base was Hank Greenberg who went there when Balley threw wild to first after raking his ground ball.

Von Papen Asked By Hindenburg To Form Cabinet

BERLIN, (UP)—Franz von Papen, German military attaché at Washington just before the United States entered the war, was commissioned by President Paul von Hindenburg to form a government replacing that of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning. Von Papen, who was sent back to Germany by the United States government for his war-time activities, is spokesman of the right wing of the Catholic party. He has already encountered the veto of the nationalists, their organ, Deutsche Zeitung, having condemned his conciliatory attitude toward France. Von Papen was instructed to form a "cabinet of national concentration," which would entail representation of various parties. Russia and Germany are pledged to submit disputes to a commission.

Spanish War Veterans To Gather Soon

Sweetwater Host June 12-15; Chuck Wagon Dinner Planned

SWEETWATER — With details of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention cleared up, civic leaders are making plans for the entertainment of the annual encampment of the Spanish American War Veterans, June 12-15. Indications are that there will be an attendance ranging from 600 to 800, with a motorcade originating at Houston and gathering delegates from all towns enroute where there are Veteran camps.

Sweetwater's Gypsy Girls will be in evidence as entertainers, and the famous Sweetwater Legion Band will furnish both popular airs of today, as well as familiar songs in the war days or '98. The Business and Professional Women's Club will handle registrations and assist in the reception of visitors. A number of dances, teas, a memorial service, etc., will make up part of the entertainment.

Outstanding as an entertainment feature will be the chuck wagon dinner tendered visitors on Sweetwater Creek, 3 miles south of town, where a menu of barbecued beef, son-of-a-gun, black coffee, pickles and onions prepared by men who have learned the art of chuck wagon cooking from long years of actual experience will be served the visitors. This dinner, while provided by the Sweetwater Board of City Development is sponsored by the cattlemen and ex-cattlemen of Sweetwater, who are forming an organization known as the Sweetwater Chuck Wagon.

This organization, while independent of other civic organizations of the city, assists in and features real chuck wagon entertainments. They expect to have a fully equipped chuck wagon and will soon elect a wagon boss, horse wrangler and cook. It is their aim to provide entertainment for themselves and families as well as to assist in entertaining conventions and meetings that may be held in Sweetwater, and at the same time to perpetuate an institution in the chuck wagon that served such a strong part in the development of the cattle industry in West Texas.

The Sweetwater Chuck Wagon, with Sweetwater cattlemen, will visit and entertain at the Texas Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo in Stamford, in July.

East Texas Wells Cut To 54 Barrels

AUSTIN, (UP)—Allowable production of East Texas oil wells today was cut from 59 to 54 barrels per well per day, effective Wednesday.

The field was producing 337,000 barrels daily according to the last report made to the commission May 27. The field limit is 325,000 barrels daily.

The new well limit set by the State Railroad Commission today, is effective until 7 a. m. June 16. The commission set a hearing for June 20 to hear testimony on which new field orders will be based. The field limit now is 325,000 barrels a day, effective until July 1.

A report showing 5,779 producing wells in East Texas formed the basis for today's order. It was estimated East Texas producers are being completed at the rate of 20 a day, so there will be a total of approximately 6,114 producers by June 15.

Prevention Of Cancer

(Tenth and last of a series of articles on cancer prepared by the State Medical Association).

The prevention of cancer depends upon the avoidance or correction of various forms of chronic irritation or inflammation which evidently favors the development of this disease.

Cancers of the mouth, for example, are caused by a combination of bad teeth, tobacco and chronic infection. The importance of good dentistry and a clean mouth in this connection is obvious.

Most cancers of the skin develop in other abnormal conditions of the skin which have preceded them. The correction of such conditions will largely prevent the occurrence of skin cancers.

The majority of cancers occurring in the breast organs of women are preceded by chronic inflammation due to injuries received at childbirth or to some form of infection. The proper repair of such injuries and the treatment of such infections will do much to prevent this type of cancer in women.

In connection with the breast, there is one practical precaution to be taken which will give considerable protection against cancer in that organ: every definite tumor occurring in the breast should be removed. Such a tumor is always questionable. It is never possible to be certain that it will not become cancerous if it is not already cancer; and its local removal and microscopic examination is therefore the safest procedure. Permitting such a tumor to remain without attention may result in an entirely avoidable disaster.

A periodic physical examination by a physician who is familiar with the predisposing causes of cancer will do much to prevent the occurrence of many cancers.

The preventable types of cancer, comprising possibly one half of the total number of cases, and causing about one third of the deaths, furnish the most hopeful field for the diminution of suffering and the reduction of mortality from this devastating disease.

Authorities said yesterday following discovery of the body the man made a statement implicating the third member of the hunting party and that this led to the sheriff's trip to Angelina county.

SAN ANGELO—Virgil Reynolds, 29, Bangs, died last night of injuries received when his automobile jumped the track and crushed him during races here yesterday.

CHICAGO—The body of a man about 35 years old who was "taken for a ride," shot five times and left on the highway at Burnham, notorious "moonshine suburb" near the Indiana state line, was still unidentified today. A New York tag label led police to believe he might have been an imported killer.

MOUND, Minn.—Funeral services will be held today for Edward Everett Taylor, 75, grandson of President William Henry Harrison who died Sunday.

LAWTON, Okla., (UP)—A five day sham war, training in actual military maneuvers for 2,000 officers and soldiers, was started today at Fort Sill.

The men were divided into two groups, the reds and the blues. The reds will attack the blues and their artillery support. The battles will be fought over the military reservation and across the forest reserve.

Both armies will be aided by a balloon squadron. The fighting will be climaxed June 3 and 4, when the combatants hold target practice with actual service ammunition.

The thirty-eighth infantry and flight 3, sixteenth observation squadron will participate. RICHMOND, Va., (UP)—Hiram Thompson, Los Angeles motorcycle racer, was killed when his machine collapsed in the first race of a memorial Day program here.

Rebuking Mr. Hoover

IT IS QUITE probable that a great many Americans will agree with the spirit, if not with the letter, of John Garner's advice to President Hoover. In a caustic statement last week the speaker of the house recommended to the President that the presidential mouth be kept closed for thirty days. He commended the example of Calvin Coolidge, whose silence was golden.

It was the speaker's contention that the President, under the spur of necessity, is talking entirely too much for the country's good. The spur in this case is the necessity of getting up steam in his campaign for re-election. If the President would cease talking so much about the depression and the need for courage and confidence, his silence would have a salutary effect on conditions in Mr. Garner's opinion.

To the extent that conversation alone remedied any fundamental condition Mr. Garner's contention is right. Everyone with an ailment likes to talk about it with his friends. The talk never removes the cause or abates the ailment, but the patient gets a good deal of consolation out of talking it over. Perhaps that is what is eating on Mr. Hoover just now. He has an ailment—a disinclination on the part of the American people to continue

LEAD YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY DIXON, pretty, 19, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DUKE SMITH, a bank robber, who has escaped jail and the city editor wants Dan to find INEZ MALLOY, Smith's sweetheart, and get an interview. Dan and Cherry drive to the apartment where Inez is staying. He enters. When he does not return Cherry grows nervous and follows. She becomes frightened, runs up a stairway and a shot strikes her arm. Cherry faints and recovers consciousness to find herself in a strange room. Dan has bandaged her arm temporarily. He takes her to a doctor's office and later drives her home. While Dan is trying to explain to MRS. DIXON what has happened Cherry's father arrives. He is very angry, brandishes a newspaper and demands, "What's the meaning of this?"

There was nothing Dan Phillips could do but obey. "Certainly I'll go," he said quietly. "Good afternoon."
 With a quick glance at Cherry he turned and left the room. They heard the outer door close a moment later.
 Walter Dixon's blustering manner diminished slightly. "Have you called Dr. Knowles?" he asked.
 "I'll do it now," his wife flustered. "I'll do it myself." In the face of her husband's wrath Mrs. Dixon was always a pathetic figure—nervously eager to set things right, always at a loss how to accomplish it. Through 24 years of married life it had been the same. She had lived with no other purpose than to keep the wheels of the household moving noiselessly and when they did not she was helpless. So concerned was she over what Walter might think of a situation it never occurred to her to think about it herself.

 "I've tried to, Walter! Oh, this is so dreadful. I just can't believe it. I can't believe our Cherry could do such things!"

 "Yes, Walter. Of course."

 When Mrs. Dixon re-entered the room she found her husband pacing back and forth before the fireplace.
 "So this is what we're coming to!" he burst forth. "Younger generation! I've heard of it all. Wild life—scandal—it's in the newspapers every day! I supposed our daughter had been protected from all this. She's had expensive schools—travel—and now see what happens! I can't understand it. Alice, frankly I can not.  He called to her as she was going through the doorway. Cherry turned.
 "Remember this is the last time you're to see that young man! Never again—you understand me?"
 "Yes, father."
 The eyes were rebellious. The

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V
 "What's the meaning of this?" Walter J. Dixon demanded. His accusing eyes were on his daughter.
 No one spoke; for an instant no one moved. Dixon was a tall man—just under six feet. He was sturdily built though not "heavy." His handsome features, usually set in a mold of frigid dignity, were alive with anger now. Older than his wife, Walter Dixon looked younger. The silvered hair lent distinction rather than age. The blue eyes snapped, turned from his daughter to his wife.
 "Cherry" was just explaining. Mrs. Dixon began timidly. "It was an accident—"
 "Accident? For my daughter to be found in an underworld rendezvous? In a shooting scandal? Accident—is that the name you have for it?"
 He swung toward the girl again. Cherry put out a hand.
 "Can I see what the paper says?" she asked.
 "Here—read it! Read it and let me hear what you have to say for yourself! Look at your picture—inserted over every cheap news sheet in the city—"
 There was the photograph of Cherry beneath the glaring headlines. It was a photograph made a year before during commencement at Miss Rathburne's School. Cherry wore a gown of floating ermine and broad-brimmed picture hat. She was like a charming fairy dream come to life. The face, sweetly serious, beneath the hat brim was child-like in its innocence.
 Certainly it was incongruous to see such a picture beneath the dirty black type, "Society Girl Inserted in Shooting."
 Directly beneath Cherry read: "Miss Cherry Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Dixon of Bartop, Sherwood Heights, and prominent in the city's younger social group, was injured when a gun was discharged in an apartment at Taylor avenue today.

 "Some mystery surrounds the shooting which was believed to be accidental. It was reported by Patrolman James Dougherty, called to the address by residents of the building. The bullet struck Miss Dixon's arm leaving a flesh wound."
 There was more but the blur before Cherry's eyes prevented her from reading it. The newspaper fell from her hand.
 "Excuse me, Mr. Dixon. My name is Phillips. Dan Phillips." The young man had been standing in the background. Now he came forward. "I'm to blame for everything that happened this afternoon. Cherry—Miss Dixon was with me. The doctor said the wound isn't serious. Think it will heal easily. We didn't suppose the newspapers knew about it."
 At the sound of the stranger's voice Walter Dixon stopped stock still.
 "Cherry was with you?" he repeated. "May I ask your name again?"
 "Phillips. Dan Phillips. I'm with the News."
 "He's been wonderful, Father," Cherry put the words in eagerly. "He did everything for me. Took me to the doctor's office and then brought me home."
 Her father waved the girl to silence. "And so my daughter spent the afternoon with you?" Dixon exclaimed. His cheeks had grown almost apoplectic in hue. "Well, young man, what have you to say for yourself?"
 Dan hesitated. "I was just telling Mrs. Dixon," he began, "when you came in. It was inexcusable for me to let Cherry go to a place like that. I should have known better. I know how you must feel."
 "Will you please come to the point and say what you have to say?"
 The brusqueness of the older man's tone caught Dan off guard. "Why—why of course!" he answered. "Cherry and I had lunch together. As we were leaving I had word from the office that I was to look up a friend of Dude Smith, the bank robber who escaped this morning. Cherry drove me to the address and waited in the car. It took longer than I had expected so after a while she came inside. Somehow the gun went off and hit her arm. She was in the hall. When I got there she had fainted. We carried her into the nearest room and then as soon as she was able I took her to a doctor's office. The bullet didn't go very deep. It hurt her pretty badly for a while and the doctor said she should have quiet and lots of rest. I'm not trying to excuse myself, Mr. Dixon. It was the worst kind of thoughtlessness."
 "You said you are a member of the News staff?"
 "Yes sir."
 "Then, Mr. Phillips, will you please take yourself back to your guttersnipe News office? And if you ever darken the doors of this house again I'll have you thrown out! You can tell your editor he'll hear from me later."
 "Father, please!" Cherry's anxious face was pallid but her eyes were blazing. "You mustn't say such

Leap Year

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6) clared there was nothing to be done for the injured arm. It had been properly dressed. There was no reason to be alarmed. The doctor said he would call the next day and change the dressing. Meanwhile Cherry should have rest. She seemed nervous and upset. It was the shock no doubt.

Cherry stayed in her room the rest of that evening. Sarah brought her dinner on a tray but the girl refused food.

When her mother came upstairs a little later she was shocked at the girl's tear-stained face and swollen eyes. She wanted to comfort her but Walter Dixon had ruled Cherry was to be left alone in disgrace.

"Mrs. Dixon murmured something about trying to get some rest and disappeared.

Sarah proved more sympathetic. Ever since Cherry's babyhood the Irish woman had cared for her, nursed her through childhood illnesses, fretted and scolded and worshipped the girl.

"A fine storm your father's in!" she confided. "I've never seen him worse. Law, but you'd think he'd be praisin' the good Lord you was 'n't hurt worse than you was!"

Cherry's head was turned so the woman could not see her eyes. Beneath Sarah's drab uniform there beat a romantic heart.

"That young man," she said slyly. "I saw him from behind the curtain. A fine up-standing boy he is. And with a way about him, Do-do you think you're in love with him, Miss Cherry?"

The girl did not look up. Her voice was muffled by an arm thrown over her head. "Father said I—mustn't see him—ever again!"

"Go—go," he Monosyllables were monotonous. Sarah shook her head. "Cleverly, becoming love's young tragedy. Cherry's words came chokingly. "I can't bear it, Sarah. I can't bear it!"

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Wagner Bill for relief and public works provides a golden opportunity for prompt national cooperation. The bill is a compromise among the various projects advanced by Mr. Young, Senator Robinson, Senator Wagner himself, ex-Governor Smith and the President. It is a self-respecting compromise which they can all accept without feeling that they have sacrificed seriously the essential principles for which they have been contending or that they have lost sight of their common aim.

On the main point at issue, the bill provides that three-quarters of the Federal credit to be pledged shall be devoted to self-liquidating projects. Of the remaining quarter, which is to be spent directly on public works, it can fairly be said that a part, such as that to be devoted to flood control and the Hoover Dam construction, represents a wise national investment, and another part, to be spent on public buildings to replace structures on which the government pays rentals, may, if properly administered, represent a real saving of public money. When it is considered also that these 500 millions for public works include 195 millions which Congress would authorize anyway, the moderation of the Wagner Bill is manifest. It is true that these public works are to be financed by borrowing, and not on the pay-as-you-go principle, but providing the budget is otherwise brought into balance, the government credit ought not to suffer at a time when the supply of liquid capital is so large.

Those who strain at this gnat will later be forced to swallow a camel.

The bill should be accepted in substance by the President for the Administration and by Speaker Garner for the Democrats in the House. It should be accepted by the financial community and by public opinion generally and Congress should enact it promptly without acrimonious debate, destructive amendments, filibustering and all the other devices of confusion and delay. Each one of us will be making some concession on his part, but this is no time to be finical and stubborn.

Apart from the merits of the bill itself, it can be said, I think, that the country would benefit more at this moment by a good demonstration of its capacity to agree on something than by anything else that could happen in Washington. What has been most disturbing to confidence in the last few months has been the increasing doubt as to whether the government in Washington could govern. Here is a measure which provides relief and, in addition, honestly seeks to meet the public demand for positive action towards a resumption of work. It combines in an harmonious program the ideas of the principal leaders of both parties. If there is to be cooperation in this crisis, this is an excellent chance to co-operate; if there is to be leadership, this is an excellent opportunity to follow the leaders. In a democracy where nobody must expect to have things just as he would like them, the Wagner Bill is as statesmanlike an adjustment of conflicting opinions as we are likely to see.

A prompt agreement on the principle and cry.

Sympathetically Sarah raised a corner of her apron and wiped a tear from her own eye.

For two days Cherry remained in the house. She moved about, a silent, melancholy figure. At the dinner table she scarcely ate, spoke only when a question was addressed to her. Dr. Knowles came and treated the sore arm. He reported to Mrs. Dixon that the arm was healing rapidly but that her daughter's general health troubled him. Cherry seemed depressed—a bad sign in youth.

As much of the time as possible the girl stayed in her own room. Sarah was her only confidante and news that led her to her decision it was from Sarah she heard the news that led to her decision—a decision that changed everything.

T. Hardy And Alice Dawes Are Married

Scions Of Pioneer Families United By Methodist Minister

Miss Alice Dawes and Tyree Hardy were united in matrimony Thursday morning in the study of Dr. J. Richard Spann, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city.

The bride was attractively gowned in a white sports ensemble and carried a corsage of white roses. Only members of the two families were present. Hill Dawes, brother of the bride, arrived last night, in time to attend the ceremony.

Immediately afterward the young couple left for a honeymoon which they will spend in Dallas, Galveston and New Orleans.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dawes and a popular member of the younger set and one of the city's beloved musicians. After finishing high school here, she attended school at West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon where she was graduated. She taught piano and public school music in the college for three years after her graduation. During the past year she has taught music at Hurley, N. M. in the public school.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Lula Hardy of 505 Gregg street and a very promising young man. He has attended the University of Arizona but did most of his work at A. & M. College where he finished the veterinarian course offered by the school in 1929. He was given the post of veterinarian at the State Experiment Ranch at Sonora, soon after his graduation and has been there ever since. The Ranch is under the supervision of A. & M. Both young people were born and reared in Big Spring and have known each other since childhood. Their marriage unites two of the pioneer families.

From the honeymoon trip they will go at once to the Ranch at Sonora, where they will make their home.

Young Girl Models Sculpture

Elnora Guthrie, Sister Of Mrs. Milburn Barnett, Has Promising Career Ahead Of Her

Many towns claim among their residents painters of lovely pictures or portraits, but few can boast of a resident with real talent for sculpture—especially a resident only 16 years old.

That Big Spring is among those fortunate in this respect is another testimony of its versatility in art.

Elnora Guthrie, a sister of Mrs. Milburn Barnett, is the young sculptor in question.

Elnora does not remember when she did not draw. She began by making the kinds of colored pictures which attract children. As she grew older, line and composition interested her more than color. She studied in Fort Worth under Miss Greathouse and last year she went to Los Angeles and attended the high school at Venice, where she studied art under Mr. Weinbriener. He recognized her talent for sculpture and began to develop that. Since that time she has been more and more interested in this form of art.

Lives With Sister

Last fall Elnora came to live with her sister, Mrs. Barnett, who is her guardian, and entered the Big Spring High School. She has taken an active part in the artistic activities of the school and has unselfishly given of her time and talent to all her classes.

Among her contributions have been drawings for the Latin classes of the old goddesses. That of "Medea" is an view in one of Mrs. Stegner's rooms. She has sketched many historical figures for the museum, such as Napoleon, Frederick the Great, George Washington and Benjamin Franklin.

She is also working on a bust of Washington for the West Texas Memorial Museum.

Those who attended the fine arts program given last week during the closing exercises of school, remember the beautiful, modernistic screens which were used in the one-act play, an allegorical play by Edna St. Vincent Millay. They represented a huge flower and an electrical storm. They were used with black and silver screens to form the setting for the play which Miss Nell Brown so splendidly directed.

These screens were designed and drawn by Elnora, in keeping with the spirit of the play.

In Mrs. Barnett's living room are two statues which Elnora carved. One is a crouching lion and the other a tiger in repose. The lion Elnora cast herself. She studied lions in all poses, studied their anatomy and even their expressions. (She is very fond of all animals, from stray cats to the wilder members of the species.)

When Elnora has finished high school—which she expects to do next spring—she plans to attend college and then go east to study. Although she dabbles in various forms of art, oils, pen and ink and pencil drawing, her interest is now mainly in sculpture. When she goes away to study that will be her life work.

Crude Output Shows Slump

51,937 Barrels Per Day Less; Oklahoma Declines Most

TULSA, Ok., (UP)—Crude petroleum production slumped in virtually every field in the United States last week, the Oil & Gas Journal reported today.

Daily average production declined 51,937 barrels to 2,169,325 barrels.

Oklahoma was pace setter in the decline, the state's output dropping 31,705 barrels a day to a total daily flow of 398,615 barrels.

Seminole and Oklahoma City fields registered drastic reductions under current curb orders.

Texas fields reported moderate declines. The state's flow was off 2,320,443 a day to 876,365 barrels. East Texas reported a 3,317 barrel drop to 334,763 barrels.

California production declined 14,000 barrels a day to 490,000 barrels.

Slight reductions were noted in the Rocky Mountain area, eastern and gulf fields.

The decline was regarded by oil executives gathering here for their annual meeting of the American petroleum institute as a bullish market factor.

Some believed a general crude price advance would come between June 1 and July 1. Storage has been reduced by more than 7 percent compared to the corresponding period last year. Although demand for crude oil is less than this period last year, consumption of gasoline and oil continued as a favorable market factor.

Do you inhale?

Three little words that "upset the apple cart" in the cigarette trade

Do you inhale? Can any question be simpler? And yet—what a furore it has created! The cigarette trade feels that the public has been let in on a sacrosanct secret! "You've upset the apple cart," they say.

Whysuch anxiety? Certainly the public doesn't fear the question—for everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!
