BACK TO SCHOOL CARNIVAL CANCELED

The Back-to-School carnival originally planned for the coming Saturday has been canceled due to lack of participation. This word comes to us from Pam Smothers who says the organizers felt that the two or three groups who had indicated they would participate would not be enough to warrant the trouble and expense. They do appreciate those who indicated their interest.

budget. Some of the problems began with House Bill 72 a few years ago and were added to by the recent legislative session that placed more mandates on the schools without providing means for funding and will continue to deplete the schools' reserve funds unless the legislature takes steps to provide funding for its mandates.

The proposed tax increase of 66 per hundred dollar evaluation would mean an increase of $18 tax on a home valued at $30,000.

Mountaineers Scrimmage At Stephenville Friday Night

Head Coach Doug Dallas and his Mountaineers are set for their first scrimmage of the season at Stephenville Friday night at 7:00 when the local team will face the Stephenville J.V. squad.

Dallas, who has spent 23 years in the coaching and teaching profession, most recently at Eastland, arrived on the scene in Santa Anna early last spring in plenty of time to take the Mountaineers through their spring conditioning, is shown in the above picture with his football coaching assistants Kirk Chastain, Monty Jones, and Dean Bass. Bass is by no means new to the Santa Anna staff, having coached and taught here for several years and in fact, is a former SAHS Mountaineer himself. Kirk Chastain is a former Brownwood High School Lion, and all-state player. He was All American during his college years at Howard Payne University. He comes to Santa Anna from the Temple ISD.

Monty Jones, a native of the Owens community in Brown County graduated from Early High School. He, too, played football for and graduated from Howard Payne University. He has worked in the Comanche, and May schools and comes here from Brooksmith where he coached last year.

Chastain and Jones have known each other since they were youngsters and since coming into the coaching profession have always had the desire to work together. They found the opportunity to do just that here in Santa Anna on Dallas' staff, and he is evidently happy about the situation.

Coach Dallas is very optimistic about the Mountaineers after having seen their abilities since spring. He definitely feels they will be a team to be reckoned with in district play and quite possibly beyond.

school district. The school board unanimously approved the increase at last week's meeting in which they adopted the budget for the coming school year.

The adopted budget with a bottom line figure of $1,682,302 and estimated revenues of $1,552,302, will leave a deficit of $130,000 after having been trimmed from the original plans which would have left a $182,000 deficit. The deficit will have to be covered by reserve funds.

According to Superintendent Gerald Brister, the Santa Anna School district finds itself in the same shoes as many more in the state as they have to dig into their reserve funds to meet their operating

Thoughts From Our Pastors

G.W. McFadden
Northside Baptist Church

Fellowship refers to the likeness in nature among members of the family of God. It transcends racial, social, economic, and sexual differences and unites them in worship and service of Christ.

The true nature of Christian fellowship may be clarified by contrasting the use of two German words. The first, Gesellschaft, refers to people thrown together without deep ties, such as all the people riding the same bus. The second, Gemeinschaft, refers to those with intimate ties of family or community.

We need fellowship of a community of believers who love, encourage, and pray for one another. This sense of belonging is more important to our spiritual well-being than we realize.

II Thessalonians 3:1 "Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you." - As I close, may I say that our prayers and plans are to be a help and not a hindrance to the community. As the scripture states, that the word of the Lord may have free course.

Library Notes

Check It Out
by Alice Anna Spillman
A few weeks ago we asked for your evaluation of the summer reading program just completed. Please take a few minutes to talk with one of the children who participated. There have been some good comments, but we also solicit your criticisms. Review of a project promotes improvement.

For example, yesterday I clipped newspaper columns that were written this year. One very important contribution to the library was missing from the reports. Mrs. Charles Hosch had taken the time during her garage sale to call and contribute books. Some of these are not ordinary. Some are quite old and may be collector's items. Among the books contributed were excellent nature books, A Gallery of North American Game, with beautiful prints; A field guide to birds, The Sportsman's Encyclopedia and Animals You Can Never Forget from Reader's Digest. There are some volumes of music, poetry, and literature. Most of these will go on the shelves of the new library, when we have moved. The library appreciates this gift and I regret my failure to recognize it earlier.

Mrs. Frances Strauss (Ethel William's sister) continues to enrich our library. In fact this latest gift will be some of the best art material available.

There are two series of books; one the Time Life Library of Art. Each book concerns one of the major artists and their time period. The other series investigates art by the so called schools such as Early Renaissance. AND there are color slides for illustration. If you are interested come by my house and see these until we have a place to display them at the library. Are you looking forward to that time as much as the library board members and staff!

A Mountainside Viewpoint

By Polly Warnock

With all the current news about the trouble schools are having meeting their budgets and the especially hard times facing the small schools of Texas, if some solutions are not found to the problems, one begins to wonder how it would be without schools like ours.

As we enter this time of the year with the excitement of a new school year and all the hoopla of football season and the anticipation of another SAHS Homecoming, we know why we love the small schools like ours. The comradeship that can be found nowhere else, and the sense of belonging that just isn't there in large city schools.

One of my special friends who received her high school education in one of those large schools, never ceases to be amazed at the excitement created by our annual high school homecoming. She just can't understand the closeness these people feel for one another after all those years. Of course, she can't! She never experienced the small school atmosphere. What can we possibly have in common after that length of time, she wonders. What we have in common is that bond that is felt only by those who have attended a small school. It's hard to explain, it's just there.

Maybe it comes from knowing the families of fellow students and classmates, and even the teachers. Knowing the heartbreaks, and the joys of each other and even going through them together. When one hurts, we all hurt. When one laughs, we all laugh. Maybe what I am saying is, in a sense we are family!

We do know that, here in Santa Anna anyway, our students receive a good, solid education. At least the opportunities are there for those who choose to take advantage of them. One former student who is now engaged in an honors program at the college level, reports that most of her fellow students in the program graduated from small high schools. That should tell us something about the value of small schools.

When this writer and her husband made the decision to move back to Santa Anna seventeen years ago, it was a hard decision to make, because of the job opportunities that were ours in Houston. But after having visited our neighborhood high school on occasion, with its 8 foot chain link fence surrounding the campus, the decision became easier to make, to move our children to a small school. One had to obtain a pass at the gate at that Houston school to enter the campus and return that pass to the gate guard after completing your visit. The pass had to be stamped by the teacher or school administrator in charge of the area in which you made the visit before you could leave without a security check.

We learned later that security guards had even been placed in the halls of the buildings. And this was in a "nice part of town".

Now, it seems, some of our state legislators are telling us that the large school offers more for the student. But offers more of what, we might ask. Many school administrators feel that mandates placed on schools by the legislature are a way of putting the small schools out of business. This at the same time when a recent nationwide study reported on national television only last week shows that the small school student, in most cases, becomes the more rounded, better adjusted citizen of society.

Maybe education does not all come from books. Maybe, just maybe, we learn some very worthwhile lesson of life by just being small town people; who we are, and where we are.

One of our legislators said in a column printed in this paper last week, we can "look for our local schools and local control of our schools to become further ensnared in the tar baby of State and Federal Bureaucratic reforms."

Jim Parker also suggested the changes that would truly affect a cure for some of our schools financial woes would include total elimination of all non-academic activities. If that were to happen, would we be fully educating people or would we be producing robots?

That same nationwide study I mentioned also found that the student athlete, or those involved in other extra-curricular activities, were, on the average, the achievers, the leaders, and in the top percent of their classes scholastically.

An educator I have a great deal of respect for, once made the statement, "I would rather see a well

County Cancer Society Unveils Memorial Project

The Coleman County Cancer Society is the recipient of a beautiful Georgia blue granite permanent marker that will be placed at Over-all-Morris Memorial Hospital in Coleman.

The marker which stands 5 feet high and measures 3 feet wide was donated by Martin Memorials of Coleman for a special project for the Coleman County Cancer Society. At the top left of the stone is the red sword emblem of the American Cancer Society. The heading on one side of the stone reads "Wall of Honor" and on the reverse side is found the heading, "Wall of Memory".

Any person, living or deceased, or any business firm may be listed on the marker. Victor Cardenas, county chairman for the American Cancer Society, emphasizes that listings are not necessarily for cancer victims although many names of victims will undoubtedly be placed on the stone. Many names will be placed on the marker as supporters of the Cancer Society.

The initial engraving and labor to set the stone have been donated by Brenda Forbess of Martin Memorials. Cardenas says that since the labor and services are being donated at the local level, the funds raised through the project will go directly to the American Cancer Society.

Commissioners Raise Cost Of Vehicle Registration As They Cope With Financial Woes

As they met last week to try to cope with the financial woes of the county, the Coleman County commissioners decided after much consideration, to raise the cost of vehicle registration by $10 per vehicle. This puts them in company with most of the counties in the state who have had to face the same chore. There are only 47 counties in the state now that do not collect the extra road and bridge fee the commissioners tacked onto the cost of registration.

The extra fee will go into effect

Once the stone is dedicated at a special service in the fall, cost of the engraving of additional names will be underwritten by Coleman County State Bank.

All funds received will go to support research to find cures for cancer, to educate people about the symptoms of cancer, and to help make life a little easier for victims of cancer.

All names turned in before September 10, will be engraved on the stone before the dedication. A donation of $100 to the American Cancer Society for each line of 21 spaces and letter entitles the donor to have names of his choice inscribed. A $300 donation will allow for three names to be inscribed across the face of the marker.

Mr. Cardenas also indicated that there is a possibility for a similar project to be undertaken in Santa Anna if enough interest is shown.

This is not a first in this area as the McCulloch County Cancer Society already has a similar stone placed at Heart of Texas Hospital in Brady. The two projects, however, are the only two in the state at this time. Officials of the Brady Unit of the American Cancer Society report the response there has been excellent.

For more information, call Victor Cardenas at 636-4318.

COOLING OFF is young John Turney, son of Mark and Marsha Turney. John was found trying to stay cool on a recent sweltering hot day. Wouldn't it be nice if we who "are a little older" could find it so simple to seek out a cool spot?

Some Advice For Beating The Hazards Of Heat

Summer traditionally is a time for fun in the sun. The Texas Medical Association warns that hot, humid weather may pose severe health problems, ranging from the less serious heat fatigue or heat exhaustion to the potentially fatal heat stroke.

To avoid heat-related illness, drink plenty of water and juices, bathe or shower frequently with cool water, and use fans and air conditioners liberally. When outside, wear light-weight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothing; cotton is best. Avoid vigorous activity during the hottest part of the day, noon to 4 p.m., and wear a hat or use an umbrella when in the sun.

In hot weather or during strenuous exercise, the body cools itself through perspiration. Cooling occurs when perspiration evaporates from the skin. However, when challenged by long periods of intense heat, the body may lose its ability to cool. Hyperthermia is the result. Poor ventilation, improper clothing, and the lack of fluids can contribute to this.

Heat fatigue, the least serious of heat-related illnesses, causes weakness. Symptoms include cool, moist skin and a weakened pulse. The person may feel faint or dizzy.

both history and English along with a specialization in reading. Suzan is scheduled to graduate in May.

Reece McIver is a first year student at Texas Tech University where he is studying journalism. He has just completed the a summer semester and will soon be starting the fall semester. Reece is also working out with the Red Raider football team.

A spring graduate of Santa Anna High School, he is the son of Terry McIver of Santa Anna and Orabeth Magin of Dayton, Ohio.

Kallie Gray is a second year student at Texas Tech University. Her course of study is in art education. She has just completed a summer semester and is ready to begin the fall session.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray, is a 1988 graduate of Santa Anna High School.

Michael Hartman is a second year law student attending Texas Tech University school of law. A 1983 graduate of SAHS, Michael received his degree from Angelo State University in 1987. His parents are Eddie and Ann Hartman.

When snowy owls fly south for the winter, they head for places that remind them of the empty open tundra back home. Apparently, a big-city airport fills the bill, because more snowy owls congregate at Boston's Logan airport than any other spot in Massachusetts. According to International Wildlife magazine more than 100 of the birds have been identified and tagged since the early 1980's. The airport grounds offer the birds an ample diet of rodents and small birds

Local Lady Winner At Lampasas Quilt Show

Patsy Isenhower of Santa Anna recently won several awards at the annual quilt show sponsored by Keystone Square Museum at Lampasas, August 11-13. There were approximately 90 entries in the show.

Mrs. Isenhower's quilt, Tennessee Waltz. Won the First Place prize for pieced quilts and was second for the Judge's Choice. The lovely quilt was first in the People's Choice category for contemporary quilts.

Our congratulations to Patsy who is active in local quilting circles, working much of the time with the Methodist quilting ladies.

Mild hyperthermia can cause heat cramps -- muscle spasms in the abdomen, arms, or legs after strenuous activity. With both heat stress and heat cramps, body temperature usually remains normal.

Heat exhaustion, caused by the body's loss of water and salt, is a more serious warning that the body is overheating. Symptoms include thirst, giddiness, weakness, profuse sweating, loss of coordination and appetite, and nausea. Body temperature often is elevated, but usually no higher than 101 degrees.

Heat fatigue, cramps, and heat exhaustion may be treated in several ways. Victims should lie down in a cool place, preferably air-conditioned, and drink water or fruit and vegetable juices. Alcohol and caffeine should be avoided. Victims also should shower, bathe, or sponge off with cool water. If left untreated, heat exhaustion can progress to heat stroke.

Heat stroke can be life-threatening, and immediate medical attention is required. Heat stroke usually is preceded by headache, dizziness, nausea, confusion and even convulsions. The victim may be flushed, but may not be perspiring. The pulse generally is strong and rapid, and the body temperature may reach 104 degrees Fahrenheit and keep rising. The person may lose consciousness. In this situation, keep the victim cool, but do not attempt to render aid. Expert emergency attention is required for suspected heat stroke.

Prevent serious heat-related illnesses by making sure the proper precautions are taken. With sound judgment and an ounce of prevention, the summer can remain a time of fun and leisure for everyone.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is based in Austin and has 116 component county medical societies around the state. The Association represents 80 percent of the state's physicians, and its goal is to improve the health of Texans through the professional and personal development of members.

New activities are being added daily and there will be something of interest for all ages. Last year's popular events will be retained of course, but there will be much, much more at the 1989 fair.

Invasion of Washington

On August 24, 1814, the British army marched unopposed to Washington, D.C., and camped a few miles from the nation's capital. Detachments of British troops entered the town, captured and set fire to the Capitol, the White House and nearly every federal building.

No American officials were hurt or captured in the raid. President Madison and his Cabinet having fled to rural Virginia.

The destruction was completed on the morning of August 25, and a summer storm compelled the British to leave the town that night.

Madison, with some of his officers, did not return to Washington until two days later. ll

OF SAFETY

The Emergency Lifesaver Tag

Playing tag may take on a whole new meaning in schoolyards this year. Now, children can wear special tags that may save their lives.

A tear-resistant cloth tag has been made to be sewn into children's clothing or laced into their shoes. It can quickly identify a child to help ensure a fast reunion with parents and speedier treatment from emergency room physicians. The tag identifies the child, provides parental phone numbers and contains medical information.

The tags are part of the Back-to-School Lifesaver Tag and Safety Program from the makers of Snuggle Fabric Softener. Six million free tags are in specially-marked boxes of Snuggle Dryer Sheets. The tags are made by Lifesaver Charities, a nonprofit organization that educates and protects children.

As part of the Safety Program, noted child psychologist Dr. Lee Salk has helped develop the interactive "Safety Book" from Snuggle* that parents and children can read together. Dr. Salk stresses that parents should teach children how to make responsible decisions by explaining why certain choices are more safe than others. He advises parents to walk children through familiar scenarios that are in the book to help them understand which choices are safe. Among the situations he covers are:

- Identifying authority figures whom children should obey, such as the crossing guard, or whom they should turn to in emergency situations, such as when they miss the school bus or get lost in the supermarket.

Tiny tags can make a big difference in the lives and health of thousands of children—maybe yours.

- Explaining why certain strangers should be ignored, and why stray dogs should be left alone.

- Understanding the consequences of potentially dangerous activities, such as using home appliances like the stove, climbing to high places or chasing after balls that roll into the street.

- Teaching why parents should always be informed as to their whereabouts, even if they are accompanied by a friend's parent or another familiar and "safe" adult.

Every June 21st, a night baseball game is played in Fairbanks, Alaska. It begins at midnight, but because of the summer solstice, no lights are needed.

Cheerleaders Ready For School Year After Learning New Routines At Camp

The Santa Anna High School cheerleaders were in San Marcus from July 31 through August 3rd taking part in a camp sponsored by the Universal Cheerleader's Association.

Dianne Simons attended the mascot camp and worked on how to entertain the crowd and help the squad instill school spirit.

All the girls worked very hard and it paid off. They came home with several awards including one "excellent" ribbon won by Deanne. She also came home with 2 "superior" ribbons and a spirit stick. Other awards given the squad were 5 "superior" ribbons, and the trophy for most improved team.

The press: full court

and one-on-one.

Charging. Dodging. Challenging. Guarding. One side on the offensive. One side on the defensive.

When the press faces off against public figures, it sometimes seems like a sporting event. But it's more serious than that. Because often, at the heart of the issue is the First Amendment. And its guarantee of a free press.

Some say the rights of the press should be taken away. They say the press goes too far. Sometimes even the press questions how far is too far.

Others say the rights of the press protect the rights of the people. Your right to be informed about things that affect your life and your right to decide.

The debate will continue.

But one thing is for sure. You won't always agree with what the press has to say.

And it's your right not to.

Appraisal District Lowers Budget For New Year

The 1990 budget for the Coleman County Appraisal District was approved Monday, August 14, when directors of the group met for the monthly session and public hearing. The district office provides property and mineral appraisals and tax collection for eight entities in Coleman County.

The new budget totals $235,830, a decrease from the current year. In addition to decreasing the operation costs slightly, there is expected to be a surplus of funds at the end of the current year. Money remaining at the end of each year is refunded to the entities in proportion to their payments for the district services.

Chief Appraiser Bill Jones reported that tax collections are continuing to be greater than the previous year, with delinquent tax collections bringing the total to 100 percent or more of the total figure for 1989.

It was announced that new state legislation mandates each appraisal district have an Agriculture Board to serve in an advisory capacity to assist the Chief Appraiser with land use and market values of farm and ranch property in the county. The three-member group will be appointed by the Chief Appraiser within a few months.

In routine business, minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and bills and accounts were approved for payment.

Barbara Kingsbery, chairman, led the meeting that was attended by all members, being Jake McCreary, Lang C. Martin, Dwight Nanny and Richard Johnson.

The next regular session will be Monday, September 11, at 5:00 p.m. at the Coleman office.

Eighty million years ago, when most of Texas was covered by a warm shallow sea, a submarine volcano was formed at Pilot Knob, Texas, in the countryside approximately 15 miles east of Austin. At 710 feet above sea level — some 200 feet higher than the surrounding countryside — the knob is visible for miles. It's visibility made it a guidepost for traveling Indians and explorers thousands of years before anything was known of its violent origins.

Dream Day Remembered

Aug. 28 marks the fifth annual Dream Day, commemorating the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech delivered during the Aug. 28, 1963, March on Washington. Attended by an estimated 250,000 people, the March on Washington was one of the most influential events during the civil rights movement. The march led to the prompt passage of the Civil Rights Bill of 1964.

"Dream Day is an opportunity for all of us to say 'we are one America,'" says Dee D. Smith Simmons, founding president of the Chicago-based Global Committee Commemorating King Days, which sponsors Dream Day. "Some of us have overcome, and through efforts like the Dream Day celebration, perhaps more of us will be motivated to do the same."

Participants are encouraged to wear black and white on Aug. 28 to show support for racial harmony and cultural coexistence.

Apologizing for a nasty remark is like unscrambling an egg.

The youth of First United Methodist Church have recently completed work on a pair of signs. These signs, one located at the east end of town near the cotton gin, and the other at the west end of town across from Dairy Queen, are composed of the names and addresses of local churches. These signs took a lot of hard work by the young people and everyone who helped on the project deserves a big thank you. Youth director Kendall Davison expresses a special appreciation for Rusty Fleeman who spent much extra time and work on the project.

Delta Omicron Members Attend State Board Meeting

Several ladies from Santa Anna were in Corpus Christi on August 12 and 13 attending a state meeting of ESA. Those making the trip from Santa Anna were Bernadine Watson, District VII president and District VII coordinator Donna Bradley, Coyita Bowker, Debbie Wheatly, and Jeanette Driskell.

The ladies attended workshops that Saturday, with discussions being on Collegiate Memberships, Associate Memberships, Stress, and Listening. A business meeting was held on Sunday morning, in which District VII was recognized as being 100% in reporting. The local Delta Omicron Chapter of Santa Anna, with Jeanette Driskell as chairman, received an award for donating to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Creative Animals Solve Transportation Problems

Baby strollers...what wonderful inventions for mothers on the go!

In the animal world, however, inventive mothers and babies must manage the problem of transportation as best they can. We checked with wildlife manager Ray Sutton at the International Wildlife Park to learn how some creatures cope.

"Baby anteaters frequently catch rides by hanging on to the mom's tail and lower back," he said. "Bears, wolves and cats usually transport their newborns by grabbing them at the scruffs of their necks."

Squirrels and mice, on the other hand, grab their babies by the underbellies to move them from one hidden location to another.

A baby polar bear, tired from too much swimming, may bite its mom's tail and tag along as she swims through frigid waters.

What ingenious solutions to a common problem! If you have a question about wildlife that you would like to see answered in this space, write to GNUS YOU CAN USE, 601 Wildlife Parkway, Grand Prairie, Tex. 75050.
