

Fliers Missing Between Berlin And Moscow

Consistent with its announcement county financial aid will not be asked hereafter in highway construction projects...

Meeting the county's sole obligation in the project now, the Tom Green county commissioners' court next Monday is to take up the securing of 100-foot right-of-way asked by the state.

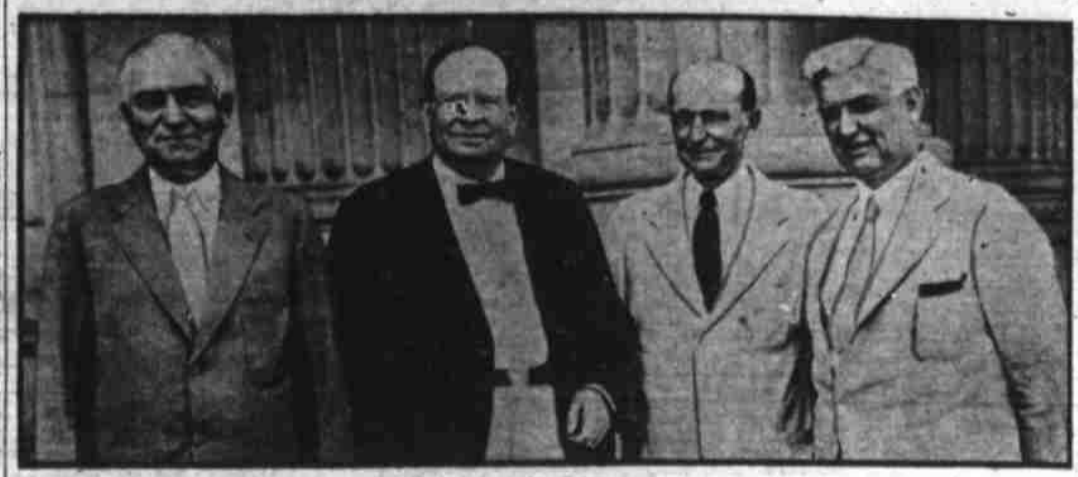

But, Culberson Deal, manager of the San Angelo Board of City Development in a telephone conversation Wednesday to Big Spring said "we're going to get the right-of-way, or else."

The state several weeks ago offered our commissioners' court the grade and drainage structures on No. 9 if the county would furnish the right-of-way.

There is no secret about the fact that the court does not wish to act until after the primary election because of reactions they fear at the polls.

Now, we have no bone to pick with the individuals on the present commissioners' court. Fact is, we've told the member representing the precinct in which we happen to reside that we were going to vote for him for re-election and we will.

Compliments Are Accorded Carnival Here

Visitors Here For Various Features Express Appreciation

Echoes from the recent "Carnival of Values" are still being heard. Letters received by the Chamber of Commerce voice favorable comment concerning the three day celebration held June 30, July 1 and 2.

W. H. Dean, Brownwood, had praise for the gun club shoot, and expressed the opinion that inclement weather cut down on the crowds. Howard Peters, spokesman for the Abilene motorcycle brigade, complimented officials on the motorcycle events in which his team participated.

City Manager Spence said the three wells would be capped and held in reserve. He said the action was taken because the towers were not only "unsightly but dangerous because of rotting timber."

Work now underway in the park is showing its first fruits with the blossoming of several beds of flowers. Previously the park had been washed out four times by flood waters, each time after planting or working.

The idea we should have always is to do that which will be of greatest benefit to the greatest number. It is the rank and file not this class or that class that must determine by expressing its sentiments in all public matters and thus get action.

Marriage-Divorce Contest Goes To Cupid Here For First Half Of Year; Fewer Fines Paid, Few Suits Filed

Although business at the court house and city hall is not as flourishing as it once was, figures at the half way turn of the year hold the usual amount of interest.

County court, too, shows some decrease with its seventy-one cases since New Year's Day. Forty-three of these were of the criminal variety, while twenty-eight fell under the civil class.

Records at the City Hall show that $12,837 has been expended in building since January 1. January showed $3,338. February totaled $1,345. March increased to $1,555.50. April jumped to $2,832. May slid back to $1,327.50, but June mounted again to $2,421. July has approached the thousand mark already.

State taxes collected since the beginning of the year amount to $67,175.50, of which, according to Tax Collector Loy Acuff, $10,938.28 came in on the half and half payment plan in June. County taxes aggregate $74,397.35 for the first six months with $10,782.02 in on the half and half plan. School taxes amount to $36,543.85 and $6,575.83 has poured in on the split payment offer.

Mary Jane Dickerson Humble, 80, wife of P. A. Humble, who died at 2:45 a. m. Thursday at her home, near that of her daughter, Mrs. A. H. Bugg, was to be buried in New Mt. Olive cemetery here following funeral services from the Goliad Street Baptist tabernacle with Rev. H. C. Goodman conducting the service and Rev. B. C. Hinchburg and H. C. Reddock assisting.

Funeral arrangements were in charge of the Charles Eberly Funeral Home.

Thousands Of Acres Inundated By Guadalupe River Floods In DeWitt County; Water Is Rising

THOMASON (AP)—Thousands of acres of farms in DeWitt county were inundated by the Guadalupe river Thursday. It was feared property damage was heavy.

The river was a mile wide in places. It reached 24 feet, the flood stage, at 8 a. m. and was still rising. Residents of low sections were warned to evacuate.

Mr. Thomason returned to Big Spring Wednesday night and gave to his constituents an account of his work as a member of congress. A crowd at the courthouse lawn demonstrated its approval of his record in the national house as representative of the 16th Texas district, the nation's largest, with applause that broke out at frequent intervals.

Mr. Thomason, who is opposed for re-election by Dan M. Jackson, returned to Texas Tuesday, in Stanton Colorado Tuesday afternoon and left here Thursday morning and left to speak at a picnic and rodeo. He was to go from there to San Angelo.

Woodward, who last week took the rostrum here following a speech by Mr. Thomason's opponent and ably represented Thomason, declared that although he did not believe in life tenure in all offices he held the position that representation in congress by an honest, able man becomes more efficient and useful with the years and that Mr. Thomason was entitled to be re-elected.

John Garner recently was elevated to the speakership of the house, he said. "Not only because of his sterling character and ability but more especially because of the experience gained during 30 years in congress was this honor accorded him."

Mr. Woodward praised Mr. Thomason for his efforts toward erection here of a federal building and for work he did in behalf of the Texas & Pacific Northern application, pointing out that Howard would have been the only county in Thomason's district that would have benefited directly by construction of the road.

The crowd applauded when Woodward declared that "we are going to tell Dan Jackson to return to Richmond, Virginia, his real home, and be happy in his republican associations."

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—It was reported Thursday that France and Germany had agreed on a formula setting the "war guilt" issue by writing into the treaty which closes the reparations conference here, a phrase to the effect "it completely replaces all previous reparations agreements."

The reported compromise on this formula is said to have been matched by an agreement by Germany to make final reparations payment just under 3,000,000,000 marks, equivalent to about $750,000,000.

Presbyterians Men To Meet This Evening

Jean Harlow Weds

Jean Harlow, platinum blond of the films, is shown with her husband, Paul Bern, movie executive, after their marriage in Beverly Hills, Calif. Bern gave his wife a $60,000 home as a wedding gift.

WASHINGTON (AP)—William G. McAdoo said after a conference with John Garner Wednesday that he had promised to speak in California during the campaign. He predicted the Democratic ticket would carry California.

McAdoo expressed gratification at Al Smith's announcement he would support the party ticket, describing other talk as "Republican propaganda trying to stir up trouble."

Some reports had it that McAdoo threw California's votes to Roosevelt because Smith blowed his nomination in 1924.

Big Spring and Howard county voters who will not be here July 23 for the first primary, may now cast absentee ballots, County Clerk J. I. Prichard said Thursday.

Ballots of this type may be cast until July 19, a ruling declares. Resubmission ballots to be used in connection with the regular ballots will arrive in Big Spring the latter part of the week, it was thought.

DALLAS (AP)—Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the Democratic committee, said Thursday that a million and a half ballots had been mailed counties to be used in the special eighteenth amendment re-submission election.

Tally sheets and other essential forms also were distributed. He said he expected the ballots to reach their destinations in time for the use of absentee votes, which must be cast not later than July 19.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house appropriations committee Thursday approved President Hoover's recommended $100,000 fund to provide horseward transportation to provide for the return of some fine catches, but on their return they waited on the other side of the Concho river below Christoval four hours before the waters were down sufficiently for a state truck to pull the car across.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wade spent the week-end on a fishing trip near Junction, meeting Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lay there. They reported some fine catches, but on their return they waited on the other side of the Concho river below Christoval four hours before the waters were down sufficiently for a state truck to pull the car across.

Ship Carried Enough Fuel For 21 Hours

Considered Possible American Pair May Have Passed Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, round world fliers, were missing between Berlin and Moscow Wednesday. They were unreported at noon Eastern Standard time, but they had full tanks when they took off from Berlin at 3 p. m. Wednesday, enough fuel to remain in the air for 21 hours.

Flying officials here inquired of points on the route from Berlin but no word of the Americans was received.

There is a possibility that they passed Moscow in the night unobserved, but keeping onward to Omsk, 1,600 miles east where their fuel supply awaited. It is assumed they knew the way.

Kazan, three hours flying time from East Moscow, reported the plane not sighted. Omsk was without good communication with officials and word of their arrival might be delayed in reaching Moscow.

If the pair went straight to Omsk at a speed of 140 miles an hour, averages between Harbor Grace and Berlin, they should arrive some time in the forenoon Thursday.

There is a possibility that they might have been forced down where Berlin had forced Moscow where territory is such as to make an emergency landing possible.

Children's Home Representative In City This Week

A woman with an interesting story called at The Herald office today, and began talking about babies. She is Mrs. Hazel Taylor, of Fort Worth, who is an investigator and field agent for the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society of Fort Worth, one of the oldest institutions of the kind in the state which was established in 1902 by the Rev. I. Z. T. Morris and was conducted by him until his death.

Mrs. Taylor will be at the Crawford hotel for the next few days, and is ready to accept contributions and to discuss babies with any one who may be interested. The Texas Children's Home and Aid Society is an independent organization, without endowment but with a well equipped home in Fort Worth, and is doing its work with the support of gifts made by friends of helpless babies everywhere. Mrs. Taylor has been associated with the home for several years, and at the present is meeting with a generous response from people who desire to have a part in carrying on the splendid work in which she and her associates are engaged.

Two Killed In Mine Accident

Huge Piece Of Coal Falls, Blocking Passage In Diggings

GREENBERG, Pa. (AP)—Two miners were killed, seven injured, and ten entombed by falling coal in a mine of the John Carr Coal Co. Thursday.

It was said one of the injured was ill.

It was understood whether any of the entombed men were hurt. Reports said a huge piece of coal fell, blocking the passage.

C. S. Williamson, of Texas Military College of Terrell, is in Big Spring in interest of his school.

Mr. Williamson states that prospects look good for the coming fall term, which opens in September. Mr. Williamson will go to El Paso and other points in northwest Texas before returning.

Radio In The Public's Life

By M. H. Aylesworth
Pres. National Broadcasting Co.

THE AMERICAN people have a better opportunity this year to acquaint themselves with the issues involved in a national election, and to set upon their own conclusions, than in any previous presidential campaign.

During the months preceding the election, the various candidates will personally speak to the voter in every part of the country, from their offices and homes, at public gatherings, and through the millions of homes by radio. They will lay down their platforms before the entire electorate of the nation. They will make their pledges and argue their points before a vast audience in an amphitheatre of three million square miles.

Between now and November 8, the citizen who wishes to do his patriotic duty and cast his ballot intelligently must necessarily engage in a great deal of thinking. A flood of claims and counter claims on many complex subjects will be put before him, and he must weigh them and make his decision. He must analyze each statement, and decide for himself what is best for the nation.

The difficulty, of course, lies in the fact that the average man is not fully conversant with the details of such subjects as tariffs, various forms of taxes, certain aspects of international relations, national financing and other complicated affairs of state.

With this difficulty in mind, the National Broadcasting company is now conducting regular non-partisan programs over the air, in an effort to acquaint men and women everywhere with the facts about government, in its various forms, and to explain and interpret, as well as to clarify, the issues which the voters must settle with their ballots.

It is imperative, especially at a time like this, that everyone should take an interest, and an active interest, in government. If the public does not express itself at the polls, after intelligent study of the situation, then the public can not complain if its wishes are not fulfilled.

Therefore it is to be recommended that all who may do so should read their newspapers and magazines carefully and thoughtfully, and listen attentively to the many excellent speakers on the radio, who will discuss national affairs.

Among the foremost of these are the eminent students of government and economics speaking every week under the auspices of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, an impartial, non-partisan organization. The series on "You and Your Government" which they are presenting every Tuesday in co-operation with the American Political Science Association and the National League of Women Voters is exceptionally illuminating.

Other programs of great value heard regularly are presented by the American Taxpayers League, the International Radio Forum, the Foreign Policy Association, the National Security League, the National Radio Forum, the American Bar Association, and by such trained observers of national and world events as William Hard, David Lawrence and James G. McDonald.

The men and women on these broadcasts are informed upon matters of state and local, as well as national and international, importance. A few hours spent with them and supplemented by reading and thought, will help immeasurably in clearing the picture.

It is the duty of every citizen to keep informed about his government and to exercise the right to a voice in that government.

Flood Waters At Camp Mystic
Local Girl, Counsellor At Camp, Relates An Account Of The Recent Guadalupe Rampage

By ELLAH MAE FORD
In West Texas four or five inches of rain seems like a cloudburst. This fact makes it almost unnecessary to say that Modesta Good and I were first elated over the sight of the water running over the bridge when we crossed to the mess hall for breakfast Friday morning. However, after breakfast, when this small stream, Cypress Creek, which ran into the Guadalupe, had risen so much that we could not cross to our cabin on the hill it did not seem quite so much fun. Still it was exciting to see huge logs and trees coming down the river. Watching the camp's diving boards and raft float away lessened the fun, though.

For safety's sake all the campers were kept together that morning in recreation hall, a rather large building on higher ground than the other camp buildings. It had rained steadily for two nights and one day and we knew that there was lots of water up in the hills above us that would be coming down. More than half the campers were under fifteen years and one little girl was very proud of her seven years.

A short time after one o'clock lunch was served in the mess hall. Before everyone had finished we saw the water rising rapidly toward the front of the building. Dr. Linda C. Simpson, camp director, gave orders for everyone to go out through the kitchen to the recreation hall. By the time the mess hall was emptied the four cabins had capsized and were floating away. No sooner had we reached the recreation hall than we saw the water leaping across the golf course, located on the point between Cypress Creek and the river.

Gets Serious.
When this wave of water carried a car parked on the road beside the golf links heading into the river we realized quickly how serious matters were becoming and we knew that Holcomb Dam, located a fourth of a mile above camp, had broken. Because of this the water was now encircling our recreation hall, quickly, so another order was given to leave. This time we went to the keeper's cabin at the very foot of the mountain. Before the last person was out the water was almost at the back of this building, which was at least a hundred feet long. Until after five Friday afternoon, campers and counsellors anxiously watched this boiling turmoil of waves which seemed to have no intention of receding and each wondering if we would soon be climbing the mountain behind us. At least fifteen or twenty girls had lost all the belongings in the cabins which had floated away. No one had any idea of the water rising so high, for such a thing had never happened before in the history of the country. Others could see only the roofs of their cabins and could imagine the conditions of their possessions.

Before daylight the water dropped and counsellors began to salvage such as they could from water soaked trunks. It did not stop raining and that night the river rose again. Although it did not rise so high, it did not start receding until three o'clock, which hour seemed at least twenty-four from seven the evening before. Never before had I been concerned about the falling and rising of water, but nothing was more important than Grey Daylight.

Daylight eventually came Saturday morning, but there was nothing in the sky but gray clouds and more gray clouds, and the rain still poured down. In the early part of the afternoon Major Harrison from Randolph field circled camp in an army plane and dropped a note saying that he was hunting for people in distress and would get to us as soon as the roads were passable. This was our very first communication from the outside world, and although we needed nothing, we all felt better.

Thanks to four wonderful colored people, two men and two women, who never became excited in the least, we had wonderful, nourishing food during the three days we were marooned.

The danger had passed, by Saturday afternoon, but it still rained and rained as though the sky would never be empty. We all decided that the Gulf of Mexico would be like a desert, if it kept on raining like this at Camp Mystic. The breaking of three dams above us had caused the sudden rush of water and we knew that the water would never get that high again.

The recreation hall was very amusing and very interesting to us. Mattresses were lined up and down each side; in front of the fireplace hung clothes of every description, shoes, and blankets; in one corner of the hall were stacks of dishes and a table where food was served, for the mess hall was ruined; campers and counsellors were running around bare-footed while shoes dried; two dogs and two cats of the camp's were busby investigating the situation; the girls were painting spoons and playing ball; older campers and counsellors were playing cards; some were grouped around the piano; everyone was trying to help someone else keep up her courage. I brought to my mind the pictures I had seen of places where the Red Cross or Salvation Army comes to relieve the flood sufferers, except that we were not suffering in the least, just having a fit to get out. I could not help laughing, for being a participant in a flood had never entered even my dreams.

Sunday morning the sun was fighting hard to shine through, and each time that it did our spirits were greatly revived. That afternoon Major Simpson, the director's husband landed his plane near the camp and took our messages to our parents to San Antonio to send them off. Before dark news came that all but one crossing was passable and that by morning we could go to Kerrville. In spite of such good news, it was not a very lively crowd that dragged themselves to bed Sunday night for strain was beginning to tell.

Monday morning dawned with the sun shining, everyone was elated

DO YOU INHALE?

"We've spilled the beans" in the smoker's interest

Do you inhale? "You've spilled the beans!" said the cigarette trade when first we asked this simple question—a question which long had been treated with silence that would "shame a Sphinx!"

Why? Wasn't the subject vital enough to pursue? Or, was there a hidden reason for the general avoidance of the question by others?

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has chosen to raise this question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do—and so, in the smoker's interest, Luckies have not feared to "spill the beans."

Geo. Byers, U. S. A. Navy Life Guard To Spend Summer At Hillcrest

A. D. Horton, proprietor of the Hillcrest Swimming Pool, announces that he has secured the services of Geo. Byers, of San Francisco, Calif., as life guard and swimming director for the summer.

Mr. Byers has his life-saving certificate from the U. S. Navy and is considered, Mr. Horton said, an especially fine teacher. He will give class or individual lessons.

Reuben Croffman is also a life guard at the pool. So many people have been using the pool at night that life guards are now on duty practically day and night.

The pool has been drained and refilled according to the Texas Swimming laws and the water treated accordingly.

For Congress

COL. P. L. DOWNS (above) of Temple, a candidate for congress-man-at-large, Place 2, was here last week campaigning. Col. Downs, a member of one of the oldest families of Texas, is known throughout the state. His immediate ancestors came from North Carolina in the early 50s and settled at Downsville, a few miles south of Waco. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Finckay Downs, died before he was two years old and he was reared by an uncle, Col. Wm. A. Fort, founder of the First National bank of Waco. Fifty years ago he went to Temple to enter the banking business. He had entered Texas A & M College at the age of 15 and was there and in Vanderbilt university interested in journalistic activities. He was a printer's devil as a boy and although engaged throughout the years in banking, farming and other activities, has never ceased to be interested in the press and its activities. He has never before sought or held public office, although at various times having been importuned to seek various ones from city alderman to governor of the state.

LEAD YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXXIV
Dan was beside her. "Why, no," he said in a startled voice. "That isn't what I mean at all. I wouldn't go any place without you, Cherry. You know that!"

"But you said you wanted to get away from all this. I don't see how we could leave. There's the lease on the apartment—"

"That's just it!" he insisted. "Leases—bills—always something to force you into a rut! That's what I hate, Cherry. That's what I want to get away from!"

"I don't see how things would be different anywhere else."

Dan stood before the window, a mutinous figure. He rubbed a hand through his hair, pushing the locks away.

"Oh, I suppose you're right. But, Lord! I wish something would come along to stir things up. I'm not used to this sort of life. I've always pushed on somewhere else when things got too tame."

The girl said nothing. Phillips turned and saw her brush her eyes with a handkerchief. He crossed the room and put a hand on her shoulder.

"Listen, honey," he said. "You know I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Why, I wouldn't do that for the world! Just forget I said anything. I'm just a tramp I guess—a no-good who doesn't realize when he's well off. You won't think any more about it, will you, Cherry? Promise me you won't!"

"But, I want you to be happy, Dan!"

His arms were around her. "Why shouldn't I be happy? I've got you, haven't I? Say, I guess I'm just about the luckiest guy on earth. And don't think I don't realize it! That crabbiness doesn't mean anything. Come on—I'll help with the dishes!"

He was unusually cheerful throughout the rest of the evening. After they had finished the kitchen work they rode down town to a motion picture. Dan talked more than usual. It was only occasionally that he seemed to forget and lapsed into silence. Then Cherry saw the brooding look return to his face.

She could not persuade herself that whatever was troubling him had vanished so easily.

If Dan was worried he gave no indication of it during the next few days. He was punctual at meals, talked of his work and seemed interested in Cherry's recital of each day's events.

There were more letters from Cherry's mother, Mrs. Dixon. She reported she had gained four pounds. She and her husband were considering a drive into Maine with some friends for a short stay. The letters consisted chiefly of trivial bits of news. There had been a touch of hot weather but now it was gone. Mrs. Dixon hoped Cherry and Dan were both well.

There was a card from Dixie Shannon, bearing a Canadian postmark. Dixie wrote that she was having a glorious vacation and would be sorry to return home.

August proved to be as agreeable as July had been hot and unpleasant. Cherry, reading in newspaper society columns that Gretchen Alden and her mother were extending their stay at Lake Louise, that other acquaintances were summering at Newport, attending the racquet meet at Saratoga or visiting distant resorts, was not in the least en-it out. Miss Vall said if I'd bring it over to the hotel tonight she'd read it."

"You're going to take it to her tonight?"

"Sure. You see I don't know how long she'll be in town. It depends on this business deal, she says. Gosh, Cherry, suppose she likes my story! Wouldn't that be great? You see she knows a lot of editors and she might be able to put in a word for me! You know just sort of—well, ask them to give me a chance!"

"She should like it, Dan. It's a fine story!"

Phillips grinned. "Oh, you're prejudiced," he said. "But if Brenda Vall thinks I can write, believe me, I'll show them!"

Dinner was over hastily. Dan spent an hour dressing with scrupulous attention to detail. He put on the suit that had just come from the cleaners. It was the gray tweed, the most becoming one he owned. He selected a blue tie and knotted it meticulously.

Cherry teased him as he stood before the mirror, trying to make his hair lay the way he wanted it. "Anyone would think you were calling on your first sweetheart," she told him.

"Say, I guess you know what this means to me!"

"Of course I do, Dan." She touched his arm gently. "It means a lot to me, too. But I'm so sure of you, Dan, I don't need a Miss Vall to tell me you're going to be a great author!"

He laughed at her, kissed her hastily and was gone.

Brenda Vall adjusted the shoulder of her black lace frock. It was a very low cut frock, designed for sophisticated surroundings. She touched the stopper from a slender perfume bottle to the lobes of her ears and to her lips. Then she stepped back, surveying herself in the mirror.

The effect must have been satisfying. She was a tall, rather slender woman. The black of the dress contrasted strikingly with the mass of auburn hair that waved about her face and was fastened in a knot low on her neck. There was too much of that hair for the sleek, fashionable outline but it was undoubtedly distinctive. Brenda Vall was not beautiful. There was about her, however, a manner that invariably brought her attention. Perhaps it was the craving Brenda Vall herself had for attention.

She selected exotic costumes, wore her glorious hair in a way that was definitely not fashionable, challenged the world to look at her—and it did!

There came a ring from the telephone in the next room. Miss Vall hurried forward.

"Yes," she said crisply. Immediately her voice changed. "Oh, it's you!" The words came softly. "Yes, of course. I've been waiting for you. Won't you come up?"

The room had been furnished as a living room. Hastily Brenda Vall pulled a small chair nearer the chaise longue that stood near the window. She adjusted the pillows, stepped back and eyed them critically.

A moment later she was opening the door.

"Good evening, Mr. Phillips," she smiled. "It's so good of you to come. I've been wondering what I was to do with myself this whole lonely evening. Won't you come in?"

Dan entered. He seemed a trifle embarrassed. "I hope you don't mind," he said. "I took you at your word and brought that story for you to read."

"But I'm delighted! Here—won't you take this chair? You'll find cigarettes in the box. That's right. Make yourself comfortable."

She sank to the chaise longue, laid the manuscript casually on a table behind her.

Miss Vall raised a cigarette in a long ebony holder to her lips and expelled a curling wreath of smoke. The gray-green eyes narrowed.

"Later," she said, "I'll read your story. Just now I'm interested in you. You know, Mr. Phillips, I think that I like you very much."

HOME TOWN

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) currency - just start the printing press. I believed it unsound. But, the bonus bill as amended before being passed by the house I believe was sound economically and would have done much to return prosperity to the country.

Visits Here

Judge William Pierson (above) Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, was here yesterday, meeting old friends and acquaintances and making new ones.

ered the world's greatest political scientist. I attended sessions on the ways and means committee hearing on the bill. "I voted for the bill as amended first, because it was sound economically and second, because it provided for payment of a just debt that ought to be paid as soon as possible, especially when so many of those entitled to it need it so badly."

Over Come Low Prices "In addition to the economic soundness of the bill as worked out in committee I considered the fact that it would have helped the people by overcoming low commodity prices with more currency in circulation. We must either get commodity prices raised or bring down the dollar. Notes you make several years ago are payable in gold coin or its equivalent. You can't pay them on the present prices of commodities. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation raised more than two billions in two days and there was no kick."

"I adjusted service certificates had been paid in full it would have brought $375,820.96 in cash to Howard county, six millions to this congressional district and 97 millions to Texas."

"I heard General Frank T. Hines of the veterans bureau say that 83 per cent of the half borrowed last year on the adjusted certificates had been put through legitimate channels of trade and commerce."

"One of the most indefensible features of the whole bonus question is that when they loaned the veterans 50 per cent of the face value of their certificates they loaned it at 4 1/2 per cent interest. Then they went to New York and borrowed the money at 1-2 to 3 per cent to loan to the boys."

"We've had some great Democrats beginning with Thomas Jefferson, coming down to Grover Cleveland, and Woodrow Wilson, whom I believe the historians of tomorrow will list as one of our greatest men of all time. But since Wilson we have had no ticket comparable to that of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Garner. I confidently expect them to be swept into office by a record majority."

"The country is tired of an administration that knows only big business. We are on the verge of a crisis in this country. Ten million men are out of jobs. Farms and homes are being foreclosed. Ninety per cent of business are at least badly bent. There is plenty of cotton and wheat and money and yet people are starving. I believe we are going to have a change because our ticket is for the plain people. Franklin Roosevelt is a lot like Teddy, whom I always considered more of a Democrat than a Republican because he never played to the power trust or Wall Street. John Garner is one of the most rugged characters I have ever known. Tears almost came to my eyes the other day when I read the telegram from his old mother in which she said 'you were a good boy, you've been a good man. You deserve it all. I'm praying for you.' His history in congress is outstanding. Seniority in congress is everything. John Garner deserved to be elevated to the speakership. I haven't agreed with him on every bit of legislation and have voted in some instances against his wishes but of the practical side of government he knows more than any in the country."

"I hadn't intended to leave until next week but I went to Garner and he said, well you've got an opponent down there and this relief bill is all tied up. Go on down and tell the people what you've done and I'll pair you on the vote on the relief bill."

"You who have heard me in other campaigns know I never deal in personalities. As to the plain record of a candidate, however - that is always admirable."

"Fifteen or eighteen years ago Dan Jackson lived in El Paso. He happened to be an intimate of A. B. Fall. You've heard of Fall. So Fall took him to Washington and got him a job under Harry Daugherty. You've heard of Harry. He has been on the Republican administration payroll ever since and has drawn $90,000 in salaries. He has never paid a poll tax in Texas in six years. Hasn't identified himself with any West Texas enterprise. His candidacy is just a G. O. P. trick but it is a little strong to get by with, I believe."

"Dan Jackson knows that when Roosevelt and Garner are sworn in he will lose his job. They won't keep any of that Harding crowd in office."

making a profit on the transaction. Why, they won't have a red penny left when 1945 gets here. Whether they pass this cash payment bill or not that interest rate ought to be reduced.

Need The Money "These boys will never need that money worse than they do now and I challenge my opponent to meet me in public debate on this question."

"Maybe those boys were ill-advised in marching to Washington to demand payment of the bonus. When they got up there they said they wanted jobs more than anything else. A few days ago just at sunset 12,000 men swung into Pennsylvania avenue, around the White House and up to the capitol. Lots of them had on their old uniforms. Their sept was soft and not as it was fifteen years ago when well-soled shoes clinked upon the pavement. In that 'army' there were 247 men upon whose breasts was the distinguished service cross. Some of the men had with them motherless children. Three days after the house passed the bonus bill the senate chose to debate it at night. The vote was taken at 10:30 p. m. As soon as the vote was completed and it was shown the bill had been defeated a young fellow named Walters, from Oregon, stepped to the front of the capital, saluted the flag and said 'boys, we're lost! But, we must be good citizens and good men and they'll finally do right by us. Now we'll all join in singing America.' Fifteen thousand men joined in that song and a few minutes later as the column disappeared down the avenue they were finishing the strains of 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile.'"

"Dan Jackson can hop on me all he wants to for voting for bonus payment. I don't care what happens so long as those boys are peaceful and I expect to stay with them until the lower regions freeze over."

"I understand," said the speaker, "that Jackson has jumped on me for two things, the bonus and prohibition; that he used the razor, but not the bonus here and prohibition out there."

"Two years ago the party declared for the 18th amendment and I told you that I expected to vote as my party, and its members, had directed. I'll never break a promise and I voted right down the line according to that platform and nobody was deceived."

"I looked in the records and found that Andrew Mellon just after the war paid railroads, 7,000 contractors the DuPont interests and other big interests more than two billions in cash, not in adjusted certificates, as adjustments on losses they held they suffered when the war ended. But they dragged the soldiers along to Jan. 1, 1925. Then the compromised and issued insurance certificates at $1 per day for home service and $1.25 per day for foreign service, payable in 20 years, or in 1945."

"I'm going to continue to stand by the party. The prohibition question is coming back to the people. The platforms of the two parties are about the same, insofar as returning prohibition to a decision by the people is concerned. 'I'll never vote to bring back the open saloon in Texas. But I am not foolish enough to say that conditions are bad. It is never unwise to let the people act themselves and I hope and pray that from the people will come a plan that will settle this question for all time; and then let's stand by it and uphold the integrity of the law.'"

"Other matters reviewed by Mr. Thompson included the following: I hope I am not partial to Big Spring. I have never failed to respond when you have called on me. I hope to come back here sometime within the next two years and be present when the cornerstone is laid for what I believe will be the finest federal building for its price in Texas. I'm not going to make any guarantees. Plans for the building are complete and I hope a contract will be let soon. I'm going to do my level best to see that done by fall. But the Republicans are in until March 4. I've found that their promises are like pie crust, especially their promises to Democrats and especially to Texas at this particular time. I'm afraid we won't, therefore, make much headway until after March 4."

"We've had some great Democrats beginning with Thomas Jefferson, coming down to Grover Cleveland, and Woodrow Wilson, whom I believe the historians of tomorrow will list as one of our greatest men of all time. But since Wilson we have had no ticket comparable to that of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Garner. I confidently expect them to be swept into office by a record majority."

"The country is tired of an administration that knows only big business. We are on the verge of a crisis in this country. Ten million men are out of jobs. Farms and homes are being foreclosed. "Dan Jackson knows that when Roosevelt and Garner are sworn in he will lose his job. They won't keep any of that Harding crowd in office."

Mr. Thompson said that he introduced an amendment which would provide that only American citizens could be employed on highways built with 132 millions appropriated in a recent measure for highway construction. "And, any time an effort along that line is made they can have my vote to put a complete ban on that section of Texas has known for many a year."

United Store Manager

LESTER L. FARBER, above, is before joining the staff of the new manager of the United Dry Goods Stores. He came to Big Spring from Pampa, where he was in charge of a United Store. Mr. Farber has lived in West Texas for the past 26 years, much of the time in business in El Paso street.

The citizen who helps to breed divisions among the people that prevent them from uniting as one body to put over matters of mutual interest is a harmful citizen. Chicago has a list of public enemies. This town and all others, for that matter, has a list of public enemies of a different type. But sometimes it makes our heart grow sick to think that the facts bear out that perhaps we have more than our share of that type."

Any man who approaches the matter unbiased, without attempting to apply any prejudice or selfish motive to it, will favor Howard county taking full advantage of the state's offer on No. 9. But when a few inject those prejudices, those selfish motives, those desires to tear down, to rule or ruin and when the great masses of the citizenship remain speechless, neutral is potent than the influence of the few destructive ones controls the situation."

Big Spring and Howard county, for all of the economic depression she may be experiencing, is today at the very threshold of the greatest opportunity for substantial, sensible expansion that any town in this section of Texas has known for many a year."

Whether Big Spring and Howard county profit by these opportunities rests not with the government in Washington or Austin or in our own court house and city hall; not with the state highway commission; for it already has come almost all the way to help us. No. Whether we do take advantage of our opportunities rests with the citizenship as a whole."

Barstow Sheriff Seeks Source Of Burglars' Tools

Sheriff F. I. Dyer of Barstow has notified local officers of tools left behind by burglars in an attempt to bank the Monday night. Dyer listed larger items, which he believed to be stolen, in hope that they may be returned and prove aids in apprehending the criminals. He asked that local jobbers be checked to see if the following are missing from here: one Landa oxygen tank, No. 4361, one Prestolite tank, No. 33809, one acetylene cutting torch with rubber hose connection, one Aero-Davis gauge, and one Harris California company gauge.

Hearing Delayed On Protests Of Cotton Figures

AUSTIN (AP)—Absence of a quorum on the grievance committee of the board of regents of Texas University caused postponement of a hearing scheduled for Wednesday when it was planned to consider charges against A. B. Cox, director of the university's bureau of business research. The Texas Cotton Cooperative association protested to the regents against information purported to have been disseminated by Cox. The association complained against the code Cox used in obtaining information he based the survey of the cost of marketing cotton.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Richard Spann and son, Edward, have returned from Abilene, where they spent several days the guests of friends.

he returned and in 30 minutes borrowed $0 millions for banks in Chicago which had closed. I'll bet if some little bank out here wanted to borrow it would have to put up ten-fold security. "The minute they opened the spigot 90 per cent that money went to the international bankers. And then speaking of frozen assets, that became frozen again."

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
The Democratic Platform; A Return To Woodrow Wilson

CHICAGO, June 30—On Wednesday night when the platform was read to the convention there occurred one of the most remarkable changes of mood which I have ever seen in a great popular assembly.

BARBER PRICES REDUCED!
Hair Cuts ..... 25c
SERVICE BARBER SHOP
Lola Madison, Prop.
First National Bank Bldg.

The rancors of factionalism were for the moment forgotten and the delegates suddenly felt happy and at peace with themselves and the world. They were doing what they had evidently long believed without daring to say it, and the sense of relief at being delivered from the bondage of their fears acted upon them like a strong cool wind after a sultry day. They became hopeful, good natured, and generous, and when Al Smith appeared before them they gave him a reception which, though it had no political significance, had in it a note of lusty human liking for him as a man.

The Resolutions Committee has done the best job done in any national convention for at least twenty years. It has written a platform which is brief because in the main it is honestly intended that it should be candid, and while it contains some ambiguities and some vote-catching devices and some inaccuracies, it is more honest, more clear headed, and more courageous than the platform of any major party since the end of the war. Its authors were really aware of the fact that the country has become very impatient with the ordinary buncombe of politics and will respond to plain speech.

The basic philosophy of the platform was supplied by a group of older statesmen who have survived from the Wilson administration. The main themes of the platform are those of the Cleveland and Wilson Democracy; they represent a revival of what can with fair accuracy be described as old-fashioned American liberalism. There are exceptions here and there, but in its central inspiration the platform conforms more closely to the kind of individualism which Woodrow Wilson called the "new freedom" than it does to the kind of collectivism which progressives like Senator La Follette believe in, and in certain of its moods Governor Roosevelt himself.

Thus the platform starts with a declaration for drastic economy and for a balanced budget to maintain the national credit and a sound currency. It does not contemplate a currency inflation in the spirit of Bryanism or an expansion of governmental activity to create a new social order as Progressives with a collectivist philosophy advocate. The general attitude is favorable to retrenchment and laissez-faire, to competition among small producers rather than to planned and centralized establishments. The intention is to repeal government favors rather than to increase positive government activity. The power of the government invoked to protect the small producers, the small depositors, the small tradesmen, so that they may work out their own salvation. A communist would say that the ideal of the platform is not conservative but in the exact sense of the word reactionary, that what the platform looks to is a return to the simpler, freer capitalism of a generation ago.

It is a truly Jeffersonian platform not merely as to liquor but in its economic philosophy. It is a platform which Gladstone and the Victorian Liberals in England would have understood: Its ideals are the peace, retrenchment, and reform of the pre-war world, of that simpler world for which though it may be irrevocably gone, most Americans instinctively yearn. Therefore, the platform should prove to be very popular with the voters and rather difficult to live up to.

For example in dealing with the banking problem one looks in vain for any far reaching commitment to reconstruct the banking system. The platform confines itself to suggesting that depositors in suspended banks be helped to realize more quickly on the assets, that national banks be more rigidly supervised, that security of filiates be abolished, and that speculation be frowned upon. There is no suggestion that our banking system is archaic and needs to be radically reconstructed. Yet surely if the crisis has taught us anything it is that a new national banking system is imperatively needed. Such a new banking system cannot, however, be established within the framework of the old states right philosophy.

The platform is the handwork of men composing the right wing of the Roosevelt following. The only important exception is the prohibition plank, which in all its fundamentals was dictated by Al Smith and adopted because the wet sentiment was irresistible. It is a platform which comes from men like Senator Cordell Hull and Colonel House rather than from Senators Wheeler, Dill, and Huey Long. It would seem to indicate that in the determination of party policy it is the Wilson rather than the Bryan tradition which is just now dominant.

Texas Topics

By Raymond Brooks

AUSTIN—This year Leader Jim Ferguson's cry to the pack to make the campaign a fast of personalities has not been heeded. Instead, Gov. Sterling has firmly been leading the campaign out of the political mud to the higher ground of what has been done for the state, or started, and what can be done in taking the load from the lower back of Texas taxpayers.
Maybe they don't do $11,000,000 bookkeeping in pen and ink any more, but one of the Sterling campaign documents is a reproduction of an old-fashioned ledger sheet showing how the anticipated $11,000,000 deficiency already has been cut down to less than half a million dollars.

And elsewhere, the numerous economy reforms and efficiency measures amply assure elimination of the rest of the deficiency. As proof, despite a year's moratorium on taxes, and a new semi-annual taxpaying system, the treasury has brought the payment of its warrants up to within less than a month of the current issuance of the warrants.
Former Gov. Dan Moody will take the stump in the three-week final stretch of the governor's race, in carrying forward his traditional battle against James E. Ferguson's ever returning to political power in Texas. Mr. Moody will speak at Cameron on July 4, and then he and Gov. Sterling will speak from the same platform in Dallas next week. Gov. Moody was present and made a stinging onslaught against Fergusonism in the opening of Gov. Sterling's campaign at Waco recently.

University regents have decreed that membership in secret political organizations shall be ground for exclusion of students from the university; and participation in publishing or distributing anonymous political propaganda, such as is termed "the Spark," will cause the expulsion of any student from the university.
Friendships of the old days stood Chealey W. Jurney in good stead. He came back—or wrote back from Washington—to file his name as a candidate for congress. His former boss, U. S. Sen. Royal S. Copeland of New York, and other New York and Washington men subscribed over half the contributions his first expense statement showed.

It takes an able campaign to get New York and Washington contributions for a Texas political race.

The legislature in its last appropriation bill wrote in provisions that, if followed, will prohibit any office-holding candidate for any office using state stationery, stamps, stenographic help, or the time of any state employe in his campaign work.
One employe of one state department was busy campaigning for a candidate who was running against his present employer. He was, according to the story at the capitol, summarily shifted back into the discharge of the duties for which he was being paid by the state.

Crude Output Drops Sharply

Texas Production Off For Daily Total Of 867,828 Barrels

TULSA, Ok. (UP)—Crude petroleum production in the United States dropped sharply last week, the Oil and Gas Journal reported. Daily average flow from the nation's wells was off 51,367 barrels to a total of 2,098,514, the lowest figure in several months.
Oklahoma set the pace in the curtailment. Production in that state declined 39,920 barrels to a daily average of 386,515. The decline was accounted for principally by the producers running most of their oil the first part of the month. Their allowances exhausted, they were forced to pinch in the last week.

California's production continued to drop under the impetus of price increases for crude in proportion to the degree of curtailment. Daily average production in the state was off 8,500 barrels to 451,500.
East Texas, where a more drastic proration order went into effect last week, recorded a slight rise, the daily average rising 1,114 barrels to 333,006. Total production, however, was off 336 barrels to 867,828.

SEVENTY-FIVE SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE OLD GOLD COOLEST SMOKE

Scientists of Two Leading Universities Check Tests That Prove Old Gold Best

Scientists of two leading Universities have checked the tests described on this page and their findings corroborated in every detail those of the New York Testing Laboratories.

Samples of each lot of cigarettes tested have been sealed in airtight bottles:

1. For scientists who may wish to check the tests.
2. To refer to in later years to see what effect the tests have had in improving other brands up to the Old Gold pure tobacco standard.

To any scientific or technical authority, the signed report of these two scientists will be sent on application to F. Lorillard Company, Inc., 119 West 40th St., New York City.

THE EVIDENCE OF SCIENCE

"This is to certify that in 75 repeated cool tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands... measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B.T.U.s. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

- Old Gold averages 112 B.T.U.s. Cooler than Brand X
- Old Gold averages 155 B.T.U.s. Cooler than Brand Y
- Old Gold averages 156 B.T.U.s. Cooler than Brand Z

"To further verify Old Gold's coolness, the temperature (Fahrenheit) of the smoke of each cigarette brand was checked and Old Gold's smoke was found to be definitely cooler than the smoke of the other three brands."

LABORATORY CHECK PLACES O. G. FIRST, EASIEST ON THROAT

"O. G.'s Finer Tobacco and its Freedom from Added Flavorings Make it a Definitely Cooler Cigarette," say Noted Authorities

"Conclusive evidence that Old Gold gives a cooler, smoke... cooler than any of the three other leading cigarette brands... has been obtained through the most accurate heat-testing method known to Science," it has been announced by the New York Testing Laboratories.

"Seventy-five repeated tests of the four big brands confirmed this finding," G. Brinton Jack, Jr., Director of the Laboratories, asserted. Mr. Jack emphatically stated that the tests were initiated by the Laboratories solely as a matter of scientific research, and entirely without the participation of cigarette manufacturers.

"Accurate temperature records made of the smoke of each of the four cigarettes completed the proof that Old Gold is definitely cooler than the other brands," Mr. Jack asserted.

"It is not our province in this report to speculate on the reasons for Old Gold's cooler smoking qualities," Mr. Jack stated. "But we are told that Old Gold is a cigarette of the finest and purest tobacco quality... without artificial flavoring. This alone might well account for its coolness and mildness, since low grade tobacco, or tobacco containing oily flavorings, has a tendency to burn into hot and irritating fumes." He continued:

"These tests required eight months to complete. We purchased hundreds of cartons of the four leading brands through regular retail channels, and each brand was represented in each of the 75 tests. We employed the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, recognized by scientists throughout the world as the most accurate method of measuring the heat given off in the combustion of any organic substance."
