Santa Anna's Pride Of The Month

The Pride of the Month honor actually goes to two ladies, Katherine Homer and Opal Cope, who reside in a duplex apartment unit of the Santa Anna Housing Authority, on North 3rd Street. Even though the Authority provides yard care, such as the mowing of the grass and the trimming of shrubs, the ladies are not satisfied to let it go at that. They tenderly care for flowers beds around their building which hold an assortment of lilies, daisies, geraniums and others. There are containers of geraniums, caladiums, and two lovely large Boston ferns on either side of the adjoining front porches. The large tree in front is surrounded with a bed of colorful periwinkles and dyanthus. In their back flower beds the two also raise vegetables along with flowers. Our hats are off to the ladies who show such pride, when it would be so easy to just let someone else take care of the yard and leave it bare of anything else. The Pride Of the Month is chosen each month by a committee of the Santa Anna Chamber of Commerce.

Council Again Deals With Sewer Farm & Animal Control Problems

Santa Anna City Council met at 7:00 June 8, 1989 in the Mountain City Community Center. Mayor Brooker called the meeting to order with Councilmen Quinton Daniel, Derriel Warnock, Jim Spillman and Susie Voss present. Others present were Joe Smith with First Southwest Company, Laura Thornton, Todd Bolts, Greg Lane, Rusty Wells and Alys Pelton. Minutes were read and approved.

Mr Smith was asked to come to the meeting to give the council some financial advice on how to make improvements to the sewer farm. Mr Smith told the council that they basically had two choices. The first would be a State loan with 8% interest. This would be the fastest way. The other choice would be a FMHA loan with 5% interest with a possible grant if certain conditions are met. A lengthy discussion was held. Councilman Spillman suggested that the council hear from Fred Teagarden, consulting engineer of San Angelo, before a decision is made.

After an executive session, Mayor Brooker stated that the city would check into life insurance before making a decision on the hospitalization insurance. Bills were paid and the meeting was adjourned.

The police report to council shows that 65 calls were answered during the past month and 25 tickets were written. One adult male was filed on for discharging a firearm within the city limits. Two adult males were charged with public intoxication. One male charged with theft over $20 but under $200. One adult female was charged with harboring a runaway child; and one adult male charged with burglary of a building. Cases filed in Juvenile court were: one juvenile male—runaway, and one juvenile male with burglary of a building. One theft and one criminal mischief was settled out of court by police officers. The report shows the use of the Coleman City jail five days in the month of May.

Another meeting was called for Monday night to again address the sewer farm issue and for an executive session for employee evaluation. At that meeting the Council heard from Mr. Teagarden who presented his plan for solving the sewer plant problems and the council agreed to start procedures to obtain a loan for updating of the sewer farm to come into compliance with state laws.

In other action Monday night, the council hired an animal control officer, in anticipation of solving the loose dog problems that have plagued the city. The animal pound facilities will also have to be updated before they can expect to retain animals there. That work is to begin soon.

In the

Didn't It Rain ----!

That was the comment heard over and over the past couple of days since the bottom fell out of the clouds on Saturday evening and the rain came down in torrents. Although we locally did not see the havoc that was wreaked in some neighboring communities the wind did blow and the rains did come down!

In some areas, trees were uprooted by the wind, creeks and streams were running out of bound and flash flooding was all around us, though here in Santa Anna we fared pretty well with just lots of wonderful rain. We received 4 1/4 inches on Saturday night and then again early Tuesday morning almost a half an inch fell.

In rural areas around Santa Anna the Saturday night rainfall was reported at anywhere from 2 1/2 inches to 6 inches in some locales and stock tanks are full.

It has been reported that Lake Brownwood received two feet of water, and Lake Coleman 4 feet. A discouraging note was that Hords Creek Lake did not rise at all.

Reports from Coleman showed anywhere from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 inches of rain on Saturday night.

At this writing the sky is still looking like more rain is possible. If it comes, we will continue to be thankful. Here in Coleman County, we always welcome rain as we never know when the next might fall!

Rodeo Group Planning Reunion For All Former County Students

Something new has been added to the Coleman Rodeo plans for this year. The Rodeo Association has made plans for the first ever Rodeo Reunion and will be hosting a reunion for all former students of all Coleman County schools. The event will be held in conjunction with Coleman's annual PRCA Rodeo, July 6,7,&8. The reunion is scheduled for Friday night, July 7 and activities will include a barbecue and "socializing" prior to watching the rodeo performance and dancing afterwards at the rodeo dance.

The reunion will kick off with the barbecue dinner at the Breeder-Feeder building located at the rodeo grounds at 6:00 p.m. The meal will consist of barbecued beef and sausage with all the trimmings and will be prepared by Association members.

Following the meal, the group will move to the rodeo arena where special seating will be reserved for reunion participants. The rodeo will begin promptly at 8:00 p.m. and will end at 10:15 to 10:30. The reunion participants will then proceed to the open-air pavillion where they will "cap off the night" by dancing under the stars to the Country and Western music of Jody Nix and his band. For those needing a break from the non-stop music (this band does not take breaks) the Breeder-Feeder building will be available to reunion goers. This will offer you restrooms as well as a place to sit down, catch your breath and visit a while.

Discounts on rodeo tickets are available if you purchase advance tickets using the order form found inside the Santa Anna News. Advance tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12 years of age. These tickets must be purchased in advance in order for the Association to know how many to prepare for. The order form must accompany all ticket orders. Completed forms must be received no later than June 25. Your tickets may be picked up at the South end of the Breeder-Feeder building after 5:00 p.m. on July 7. If you are unable to attend the barbecue meal but purchase advance tickets to join the

Services To Begin Friday

Lucy Havens Continues Cowboy Camp Meeting With Longtime Friend At The Reins

The 23rd annual Cowboy Camp Meeting will get underway Friday evening June 16, and continue through Sunday June 25 at the Flying H Acres between Santa Anna and Coleman. Rev. Buck Hatfield of Snyder will be the opening night preacher.

The founder and director of the camp, Little George Havens, as he was affectionately known, was called home to Glory by His Lord on October 26, 1988 and this will be the first year he is at the Great Round-up in the Skies, of which he often sang. It was his desire that the camp meeting continue and had designated his good friend and chief wrangler of many years, Bobby McMeens, to take the reins, along with a board of directors and advisors, and keep making plain the gospel trail in both song and sermon.

Shown here with Lucy Havens, widow of the late Little George Havens who was founder of the Cowboy Camp Meeting held annually between Santa Anna and Coleman, is Bobby McMeens, new director of the camp meeting. It was the wish of George Havens that McMeens take over the reins of the Camp Meeting. McMeens has been associated with the Havens Camp Meeting since its beginning 23 years ago. He has often provided special music along with his Christian Corral Ranch group from New Braunfels. Christian Corral Ranch is home for children which has been operated by McMeens for the past 21 years.

The unique camp meeting, like those early-day, gospel preaching Cowboy Camps, located in a pristine & natural setting, is situated on a table land overlooking a beautiful valley, where once roamed buffalo, and Indians made their camps. The buffalo-wallows, the corn-crushing, bread-making stones, the smoke-signal rock formations, the chiseled arrow remnants can still be seen only a few yards away. Also seen are the horse drawn carriages, surreys, buggies, wagons, and various articles once used by our pioneer forefathers throughout Texas.

The central attraction is the massive tent under which the daily and nightly services are held under the leadership of evangelists including, Rick Ingle of Denton, Rev. Buck Hatfield from Snyder, and Rev. Joe Price of Dallas. Camp musicians will include Tommy and Cleo Justus, Bobby McMeens and his Christian Corral Ranch group. McMeens has written a song and recitation to honor the early-day circuit rider preacher, as well as the Cowboy Camp Meeting preachers and singers through the years. Buddy Lee will be playing his harmonica. The bon-fires, after the main services, are always enjoyed by the campers and those who wish to linger for the after-glow.

On the two chuck wagon nights, both Saturdays, a western type chuck wagon supper is served at six o'clock. Those attending will like to bring a salad, a dessert or a vegetable dish to add to the fare.

Dr. Rick Ingle will be a featured speaker at the Cowboy Camp Meeting. He will be speaking June 20-23.

Evangelist Rick Ingle has conducted over 1,000 revival campaigns across America. Five of the top 10 churches in the 14 mission Southern Baptist Convention have been led by Rick Ingle.

Dr. Ingle's conversion story,

"FROM A GHETTO GANG LEADER TO THE PULPIT" has been broadcast world-wide, on every continent and beamed over the Iron and Bamboo Curtains in several languages. He is the author of seven books.

DR. RICK INGLE

Evangelist Ingle graduated from Eastern Baptist College, Immanuel Baptist College and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He holds both the Doctor of Divinity and Doctor of Literature degrees.

Dr. Joe Price will be directing the music and there will be many special featured singers during the meeting.

The public is invited to all the services. The evening services begin at 8:00 and the morning services begin at 10:30.

Lake Sealy Running Over

Just when we felt the rain report was complete and had the paper ready to go to press, it began raining again and we received another 1 3/4 inches of rain over Tuesday night. Tommy Blanton tells us that for the 3rd time in the eighteen years he has been Santa Anna Water Superintendent, Lake Sealy is full and running over.

Brown Bomber Remembered

Joe Louis, widely known as the "Brown Bomber," began his career as the world heavyweight boxing champion on June 22, 1937. Louis knocked out James J. Braddock in eight rounds at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

Exactly one year after that bout, Louis met and defeated Germany's Max Schmeling at New York City's Yankee Stadium. Louis' victory over Schmeling, a first-round knockout, is considered one of his most historic. The defeated Schmeling was touted by Nazi Germany as an example of its best, and in an earlier matchup, he had handed Louis his first professional defeat.

Louis, whose real name was Joseph Louis Barrow, set a record as the longest reigning heavyweight champion. He retired on March 1, 1949, after successfully defending his title 25 times and scoring 21 knockouts. Only his service in the U.S. Army may have prevented him from achieving an even more remarkable record, for the "Brown Bomber" was unusual in his willingness to risk his championship often and against any opponent. ll

The word "tulip" comes from the obsolete French word "tulipan" which originated from the Turkish word "tulband" which meant turban. The flower was so named because its shape, color, and texture resembled a beautiful turban (Oriental head covering consisting of a sash twisted about the head).

Think for a minute about how you could possibly make a good thing like whipped cream even more spectacular. The American Dairy Association suggests embellishing it with grated lemon peel, vanilla, almond or rum extract, melted jelly or preserves, instant coffee, hot chocolate powder or cinnamon, to name just a few.

Thoughts From Our Pastors

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the absence of a message from one of our local pastors, we hope you will find inspiration from the following.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER
Michael A. Guido
Metter, Georgia

One morning a little fellow stopped at a corner store and looked at the candy on display. His mouth began to water and he pressed his nose to the glass.

But the owner shouted, "Hey, kid; don't lick the window."

There are many people who stand outside the storehouse of God's provision, looking in and longing to make His good things theirs.

But you don't have to stand outside licking the window. The Bible invites, "Taste and see that the Lord is good."

In Him you'll have a life that can't die, a rest that can't be disturbed, a hope that can't be disappointed, a happiness that can't end, and resources that can't be exhausted.

So come in, won't you?

A biologist one day watched an ant carrying a piece of straw. It seemed like an awful burden. But when the ant came to a crack too wide to cross, it placed the straw across it, and walked on it to safety.

What a lesson. The burden became a bridge.

That was true in the life of John Bunyan. He was sentenced to prison for twelve years. What a burden. But it became a bridge. While there he wrote the greatest and best work of his life - Pilgrim's Progress.

Got a burden? It's not there to hurt you but to help you. Commit it to the Lord, and your burden will become a bridge to blessings.

A man held a gun on the cashier of a bank in New Mexico, while his girlfriend scooped up stacks of money. They were arrested following a car chase, and then they discovered that only the outside bills were real. The ones inside were fake bills.

Isn't that just like sin.

Sin promises you thrills. But get past the first one or two, and it produces ills. It promises you the fruit of life. But when you come to eat it you find that it's green or rotten - it's never just right. It never satisfies.

But the Lord saves and satisfies. Like David said, "Because the Lord is my Shepherd, I have everything I need."

Library Notes
Check It Out

by Alice Anna Spillman
One of the real pleasures brought by the summer reading program for the library is observing the number of people who are willing to give of their time and effort. Here are some of the people who assisted last Thursday. Carmen Donham and Letha Martin checked out the books. It is not a regular work day for Mrs. Martin, librarian, so she, too, is a volunteer. Patsy Starr registered the children. Betty Key, Imogene Powers, and Jean McClellan led games and stories. Junior leaders who helped with checking out books, blowing up balloons, pinning on name tags, running errands, helping with younger members, and showing enthusiasm in helping were Amy Eilberbe, Laura Howze, Misty Bradley, Chanda Simmons, Vicki Ford, Esther Patino, Joey Cheaney, Tom Guthrie, and Missy Bryce. Glenn Donham was our photographer. Most of these boys and girls have been coming each summer and now are old enough to be leaders for the younger children. We hope this year's newest members will be our future leaders.

Erica and Anna Pearce with Tammi Starr assisting shared the joys and responsibilities of their goats and rabbits. Most of the audience preferred the soft, loving bunnies.

Gale Brock talked about chickens. She showed her English Silver laced Duck Wing Cornish Game hen, Silver Seabright rooster, and Dominique hen. Pedro, the rooster almost stole the show with his crowing.

Kim Hubbard and Geneva Garrett had brought some brown, blue, green and tan eggs. Some of the children thought only Ester bunnies brought colored eggs!

The person who gave the greatest physical effort was Willard Allen. He lifted each boy and girl on or off his horse, Maybe. I wish you could have seen the joy and excitement on the short rides.

Two people who helped transport the animals were B.D. Brock and Lewis Miles Guthrie.

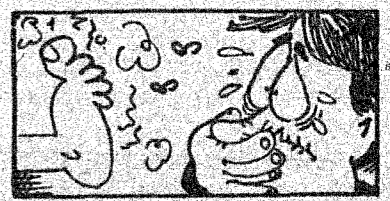

The Coleman County Telephone Cooperative and Santa Anna Housing Authority furnished the meeting places. Won't it be nice when we can meet in our new library with plenty of space for our programs?

You see that it takes multitudes of people to have a reading program. Everyone seemed to be happy to give of themselves. That's true joy!

Man Who Sent Halley's Into Spin Honored

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the reprint of an article which appeared recently in the Abilene Reporter News and written by Bill Whitaker, a columnist for that newspaper

Among other things this session, the Legislature honored John Roy Day for his "hard work, perseverance and indomitable spirit" in the West Texas oil fields. But I think it's time we acknowledge the man's true claim to lasting fame.

Back when he was growing into manhood down around Santa Anna, it was John Roy who made the legend-capped mountains north of town quake with thunder, and it was John Roy who made Halley's Comet burn and spin wildly out of control threatening all life below.

Now in his 96th year, Mr. Day lives with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Day Jr., in a comfortable home in southside Abilene. The tall, white-haired gentleman spends much of his time in a small room dominated by a large, colorful Magnolia Petroleum Company sign.

Although he's done everything from service early-day automobiles in Santa Anna to deliver mail around Blackwell Mr. Day spent a good part of his life manning the mighty oil rigs as a tool dresser, working for Magnolia (now Mobil) on wildcat wells near towns you won't find on any ordinary map.

The resolution honoring Mr. Day, introduced by State Rep. Bob Hunter, touched the Santa Anna native. "It's a grand thing," he said. "It caught me by surprise."

What's more surprising, however, are the ingenious pranks cooked up by Mr. Day as a young man, like the time he and a friend rigged up a cannon from oil field pipes atop the famous Santa Anna Mountains, making enough racket to wake up old Chief Santanna himself.

But John Roy's best idea came when he and a buddy decided to play off fears concerning Halley's Comet in 1910. Lots of folks figured the bright, heavenly object would slam into the earth, burning or gassing to death both man and beast.

To whip up these fears further, John Roy and his cohort crafted a 6-foot-high kite that, with a good burst of wind, could carry behind it a cleverly crafted assemblage of kerosene-soaked rags high above Santa Anna.

And when all this was lit up one cloudy, windy night when the real comet couldn't be seen, the fiery image darting about the heavens caused a frightful stir in town, prompting one terrified soap salesman to frantically race his horse-drawn buggy home.

"I heard later he didn't even hitch the horse, he just ran into the house and got under the bed," Mr. Day said. "His wife, he made her crawl under the bed, too."

No doubt, it must have been a fine evening for forging legends.

Country Creatures Visit First Reading Program Session

There were several "Country Creatures" visiting with the children who attended the first of the Library Summer Reading Program sessions. CREATURE FEATURES is the theme for this year's program and several local people brought friendly country creatures to show the children as they met for the first session last Thursday morning at the Telephone Cooperative.

Willard Allen's horse, "Maybe" was a favorite as the children were permitted to pet the animal and those who wanted to were given rides. Allen talked to the children about horses.

Erica Pearce and Anna Pearce, assisted by Tammi Starr, brought several rabbits and goats for the children to enjoy and Gale Brock brought a pen of chickens which included her English Silver Lace

Duck Wing Cornish Game hen and a Silver Seabright rooster. Pedro, the rooster almost stole the show with his crowing. She explained to the children about the different kinds of chickens and eggs. Kim Hubbard and Geneva Garrett brought some brown, blue, green and tan eggs. Some of the children thought only Easter bunnies layed colored eggs!

The children participating in the program were given the opportunity to check out books from the library. Each child should keep a list of all the books they read. Certificates and ribbons will be awarded at the end of the summer. Children who missed the first program can pick up their reading logs at the library and begin reading books any time.

The next Creature Feature program will be Thursday, June 22 at the Telephone Cooperative meeting room and will feature "tiny creatures". The group meets at 9:30 a.m. every other Thursday through June and July.

Local Sales Tax Figures Still Down

According to a report from State Comptroller Bob Bullock received this week, sales tax collections in Santa Anna are still down from this time last year.

Across the state the figures were up 14% over last year and here in Santa Anna the figure is down by 15% for the year's total to date. The collections in April, which were represented in the current report, shows a 55% decline for that reporting period. Santa Anna's check was in the amount of $1,240. For the same period last year, the city collected $2,760 for its share.

Father's Day Founder Felt As We Do; Father's Deserve Their Day Of Recognition

June is the month of graduations and roses, and it is also the month in which we honor fathers. Father's Day is popularly celebrated in the United States and Canada with special greetings and special gifts.

The idea for a Father's Day was suggested 80 years ago by Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, who felt that men like her own father deserved a day of recognition and gratitude. Her father, William Smart, a Civil War veteran, had been widowed when his daughter and five sons were very young. Realization of the difficulties he must have had raising his young, motherless family on a farm in eastern Washington and appreciation for his constant devotion to his family, sparked Mrs. Dodd's desire to honor all fathers.

As a joint venture between Mrs. Dodd, the Spokane Ministerial Association, Spokane Ministers Alliance and city YMCA, the first Father's Day was celebrated in Spokane on the third Sunday of June—the month of her father's birth—in 1910. The actual date for her first Father's Day observance was June 19.

Among the first notables to endorse Mrs. Dodd's idea was the orator and political leader William Jennings Bryan. He complimented her on the inspiration of Father's Day and remarked that "too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the relationship between parent and child."

The observance of Father's Day did not spread rapidly, but as celebrations were increasingly publicized, a growing number of cities and states began observing the event and a national movement was formed to have Father's Day proclaimed a national holiday. In 1916, President Woodrow Wilson took part in a Father's Day celebration by pressing a button in his Washington office that unfurled a flag in Spokane.

Congress did not give Father's Day national holiday status until 1972, when President Richard M. Nixon signed a congressional resolution establishing Father's Day as a national holiday to be celebrated on the third Sunday in June each year. Father's Day is also celebrated in at least 20 foreign countries, although not necessarily on the same day as in the United States.

The rose is the official Father's Day flower. A white rose for remembrance and a red rose as a tribute to a living father.

This year, Father's Day is Sunday, June 18.

Their mother tells us that her older daughter, Cynthia (Mrs. Ben) Hill, a graduate of Angelo State University with a degree in nursing, is now employed by Howard College of Big Springs, as a LVN instructor at the Lamesa campus. Her husband, Ben Hill, a former band director in the Santa Anna schools, has been employed for the past several years in the O'Donnell ISD.

Fawns Found In The Woods Should Be Left Alone

AUSTIN: Each year during May and June an unfortunate scenario is replayed by well-meaning Texans. A white-tailed deer fawn curled up in a hiding place looks so alone and helpless, the discoverers often succumb to temptation and "adopt" the animal. This is done in the belief that the fawn has been abandoned or its mother killed. This is almost never the case, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials. Biologists point out that female deer often leave their fawns unattended, but are usually close by. Adopting a fawn is usually counterproductive, because deer become difficult to provide for and can be dangerous. It also is a violation of state law. The only persons allowed to possess live white-tailed deer in Texas are holders of scientific breeder's permits, according to Law Enforcement Division officials, and these deer may not be taken from the wild. Anyone discovering a newborn fawn in the woods should move quietly away without handling or further disturbing the animal. The best policy is to have domesticated animals for pets and leave wildlife in the wild.

RABIES REPORTED IN BANGS

According to a report published last week, there has been a case of rabies found in Bangs. The year's first reported rabies case in the area, came after a kitten, recently bitten by a skunk, died last week and its head was sent to Austin for testing purposes. Tests showed the animal did have rabies. All the pets at the home in Bangs were then destroyed and the family members are undergoing rabies preventative inoculations.

Abilene has had a number of cases of rabies in recent weeks.

Officials caution against stray animals wandering in the street.

According to information from the Bureau of Public Health in Austin, there are two types of rabies, dumb and furious.

Furious rabies in a pet can be recognized by certain specific signs. At first the animal infected with the virus will act strangely. There will be a departure from normal habits — either the animal will be unnaturally withdrawn or abnormally affectionate.

Following this stage which lasts about two days, the animal usually wanders far. This is the time most of the damage is done, the public health official said. The animal will bite everything in its path, thus endangering people and other animals.

Dumb rabies differs in that there is no roving around or mad period. Paralysis, usually in the lower jaw, is the first recognizable symptom. This soon spreads to the limbs and vital organs, resulting very shortly in death.

A month ago, Dr. Kieth Clark, director of Zoonosis Control for the department of Health in Austin, confirmed that rabies—especially in wild animals—is on the rise in Texas.

Although local veterinarian, Dr. Kathy Pearce has stated she knows of no confirmed cases of rabies in the Santa Anna area, she warns that all pets should be vaccinated as soon as possible if they have not yet been.

Tips On Talking With An Adolescent

Good communications can help build good relationships.

Talking with your teenager could be even more enjoyable for both of you if you heed a few helpful guidelines:

- Show respect. Show your young teenager the same courtesy and interest you would show your adult friends.
- Be brief. The time to stop talking is before your youngster stops listening. Try not to lecture.

- Be aware of the tone of your voice. Often it's not what you say but how you say it that conveys your message—how loudly, softly, quickly or slowly you speak.
- Be specific. Strive consciously to communicate in simple and specific terms.

Two informative booklets on communicating with an adolescent are available free of charge. They are: Helping Youth Decide and Helping Youth Say No. The Helping Youth Decide booklet is also available in Spanish. To receive one or more of these booklets, write to: Responsible Living Program, P.O. Box 1176, Alexandria, Virginia 22313.

Preparations Begin For 1990 Census

The Census Bureau will soon be sending 31,000 temporary workers into neighborhoods across the country to complete collection, checking and rechecking of housing unit addresses in preparation for the 1990 Census.

Census Day is April 1, 1990. About 100 million questionnaires will be delivered to housing units nationwide by late March 1990. Accurate address lists are vital for prompt delivery and to monitor the return of completed census forms through and beyond Census Day.

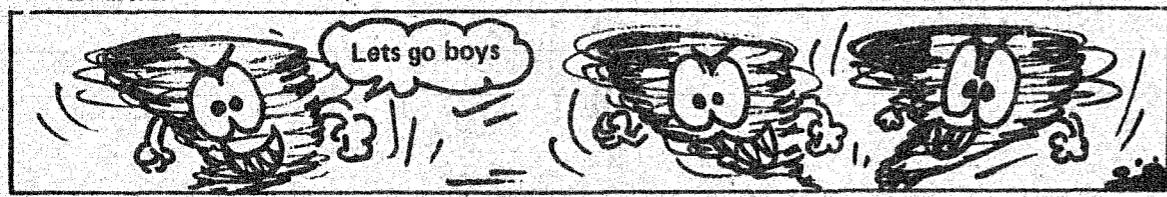

In mid-May census employees begin working in selected large cities to verify residential address information and the number of housing units at each address. This operation will end in late June.

Another address check will begin in mid-June and last for about eight weeks. During this period, temporary census workers will visit small cities, towns, suburbs and rural areas to list residential addresses for these areas.

Finally, a third operation, called Advanced Post Office Check Reconciliation, will be conducted in many small cities, towns, suburbs, and rural areas. In this operation, census workers go through neighborhoods verifying those addresses that were added or marked as duplicates or undeliverables during an earlier address listing check completed by the U. S. Postal Service. Census employees also will update the address list and check for any additional living quarters.

All Census Bureau workers will display official red, white and blue identification badges. Residents are asked to cooperate with them. Public cooperation will mean a better, more accurate and complete address list will be available for the delivery of the 1990 census questionnaires.

OUR HERITAGE

Jazz: America's Music

Jazz music is regarded as America's greatest contribution to the performing arts. The music has grown from its slave roots in 19th century New Orleans to be studied and performed the world over.

It is said that great art grows out of struggle, and the story of the birth of jazz is a story of struggle. Beginning in 1817, white slave owners allowed their black slaves to give public performances in an empty New Orleans lot called "Congo Square."

The Congo Square slave performances originated as displays of "vodun" (or voodoo) drumming developed from African rituals. The displays were accompanied by "the frenzied chanting of the women and the clanging of pieces of metal, which dangled from the ankles of the men," according to an early observer.

Over the next 80 years, New Orleans blacks adopted European instruments and incorporated the melodies of the city's white residents into their own music. Black marching bands began altering the way they played traditional marches, improvising solo parts to the music, and by the turn of the century, the basic elements of a special music were in place.

The new musical style began attracting large audiences in New Orleans and became the popular dance music of white socialites. When a group of New Orleans musicians traveled to Chicago to perform their new style of music in 1915, the local musicians' union became angry and spread the word that the New Orleansians were playing nothing but "jazz" music. Their efforts to associate the music with a word considered vulgar at the time only served to double the audiences for the musicians from the South, and the name "jazz" stuck.

Over the next 15 years, New Orleans earned its title as "the birthplace of jazz," as the bands of trombonist Edward "Kid" Ory and cornet player Joe "King" Oliver brought fantastic musicians like Ferdinand "Jelly Roll" Morton up through their ranks. Important jazz communities also developed in New York, Chicago and Kansas City, Mo.

One jazz musician born in poverty near Congo Square, where slaves had first been allowed to put on public musical performances, became interested in music while spending time in a reform school. Through the brilliance of his playing, Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong eventually helped bring jazz international recognition and came to be regarded as an American ambassador of good will, eventually appearing with his band on every continent.

As a vital musical style, jazz continues to be infused with innovations and changes. But while the music changes and grows, it will remain as the one truly American art form. ll

AN AMERICAN CLASSIC

Cheeseburgers of the Stars

Whether your mealtime guests include old friends or the likes of TV celebrity Pat Sajak, country western star Hank Williams, Jr. or Miami Dolphins football player Tom Toth, fire up the broiler—it's time for cheeseburgers.

The great American cheeseburger turns 54-years-old this spring, and no other single sandwich enjoys such popularity. At-home, the burgers rank in the top-10 dinner favorites, with consumption increasing 7 percent since 1983. In restaurants, cheeseburgers win hands-down as the lunch entree most often served and are second only to pizza as the most popular dinner item.

The appetite-appeal of cheeseburgers begins with the cheese, burger and bun, of course, but it's the embellishments that make them personal favorites.

The rich and famous are no different from the rest of us when it comes to craving cheeseburgers, but when it comes to the choice of condiments, cheese, bread and the way the burger is cooked, they assert their creative differences.

Onion Lovers Unite

For some, it's the onions—raw or cooked—that make the burger. The ideal cheeseburger, according to Pat Sajak, host of "Wheel of Fortune" and the CBS late-night talk show that bears his name, must be "topped with Cheddar cheese and lots of raw onions, so I can watch the guests wince."

Sandy Duncan, of NBC's "Hogan Family," on the other hand, likes her cheeseburger with "everything." Translated, that's a juicy burger, topped with Cheddar cheese, mustard, catsup and piles of grilled onions.

Former Presidential candidate Sen. Paul Simon (D.—Ill.) prefers his cheeseburger the All-American way: "Cooked to medium and topped with raw onions, catsup and American cheese."

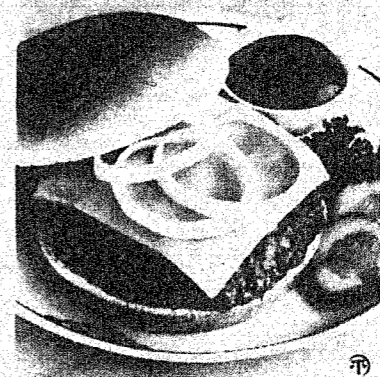

Even the celebrated guru of American gastronomy, the late James Beard, loved onion-spiked cheeseburgers, according to his longtime associate, Clay Triplette. "Mr. Beard frequently ate cheeseburgers for lunch, grilled or broiled, topped with Swiss cheese and a thick slice of Bermuda onion, on Italian bread." Big, Bountiful, "Bocephus"

Then there are those celebrities that like cheeseburgers with...personality.

BIG, hearty, no-nonsense cheeseburgers are the order for Miami Dolphins right offensive guard Tom Toth. He says that a half-pound burger with Mozzarella and American cheese, bacon, lettuce, onion, pickles, catsup, mustard and mayo on a Kaiser bun suits him just fine.

A bountiful helping of cheese is a must for Bon Appetit magazine Executive Food Editor Jan Weimer. In fact, two types of cheese—a soft cheese, such as Mozzarella, and a blue-veined cheese, make a favorite combination atop a very rare burger, served on a homemade bun with grilled onions.

Country music entertainer Hank Williams, Jr., has dubbed his favorite the "Bocephus Burger." ("Bocephus" is the nickname his father gave him when he was just a baby, and the name by which Hank's fans still know him.) And what makes the "Bocephus Burger"? "A sesame seed bun, with mustard on one side, mayo on the other, and very important, melted garlic spread on both buns, a medium-rare burger, topped with Swiss cheese and a dash of Tabasco," Williams explained.

Cooked to Perfection
Coach (aka Bill Kirchenbauer) from the popular television comedy "Just the Ten of Us," is another cheeseburger lover who knows what he likes.

For the Coach, a perfect cheeseburger begins with a burger made of lean ground beef mixed with finely chopped onions and bread crumbs (before cooking), covered with a thick slice of Muenster, American or both, perfectly melted. Then, he "throws on" mustard, mayo, catsup, lettuce and tomato. But a word of caution, warns Kirchenbauer: "It's advisable to wear a shower curtain when you eat!"

For Ken Hom, renowned Chinese cooking authority and author of Ken Hom's East Meets West Cuisine, you'd expect Oriental flavors to be standard fare. But you'd be wrong.

Hom says he has two cheeseburger favorites, depending on his mood. Both begin with a burger made with chopped onions added to the ground beef before cooking. When he wants a "comfort food," this juicy burger is cooked medium-rare and topped with Cheddar cheese and a fried egg. Other times, when lighter fare is in order, the topping is Cheddar cheese—and salsa!

Irrepressible piano player, Sonny (Paul Kreppel), from the television comedy show "It's a Living," likes his cheeseburgers with a little Italian flair. His specialty Italian Burger is a medium-rare burger smothered with lots of Mozzarella cheese and topped with tomato paste. Please note, says Kreppel, "the cheese has to drip off the sides of the burger to be truly appreciated."

Fred Savage, the young family member Kevin of "The Wonder Years," is very particular about his cheeseburgers as well. Kevin likes his topped with melted American cheese, catsup, mayo, onion and pickle, served on toasted sourdough bread.

And from the man who is so often quoted...according to Webster in his Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, the cheeseburger is simply "a hamburger topped with a slice of cheese." To each his own, but most would agree a broader definition is in order.

Stress and depression may also cause daily headaches. Talking to your doctor about problems on the job or at home can help you find healthier ways to deal with tension-causing situations.

Some headaches are aggravated or triggered by physical activity; others, such as migraines, occur periodically. Migraine headache pain can be severe, and is sometimes accompanied by upset stomach and vomiting. Your family doctor can prescribe medication to reduce the frequency and duration of migraine headaches.

Most headache problems can be treated simply and safely. Early evaluation, however, is all-impor-

Headache: Five Signs To Watch Out For

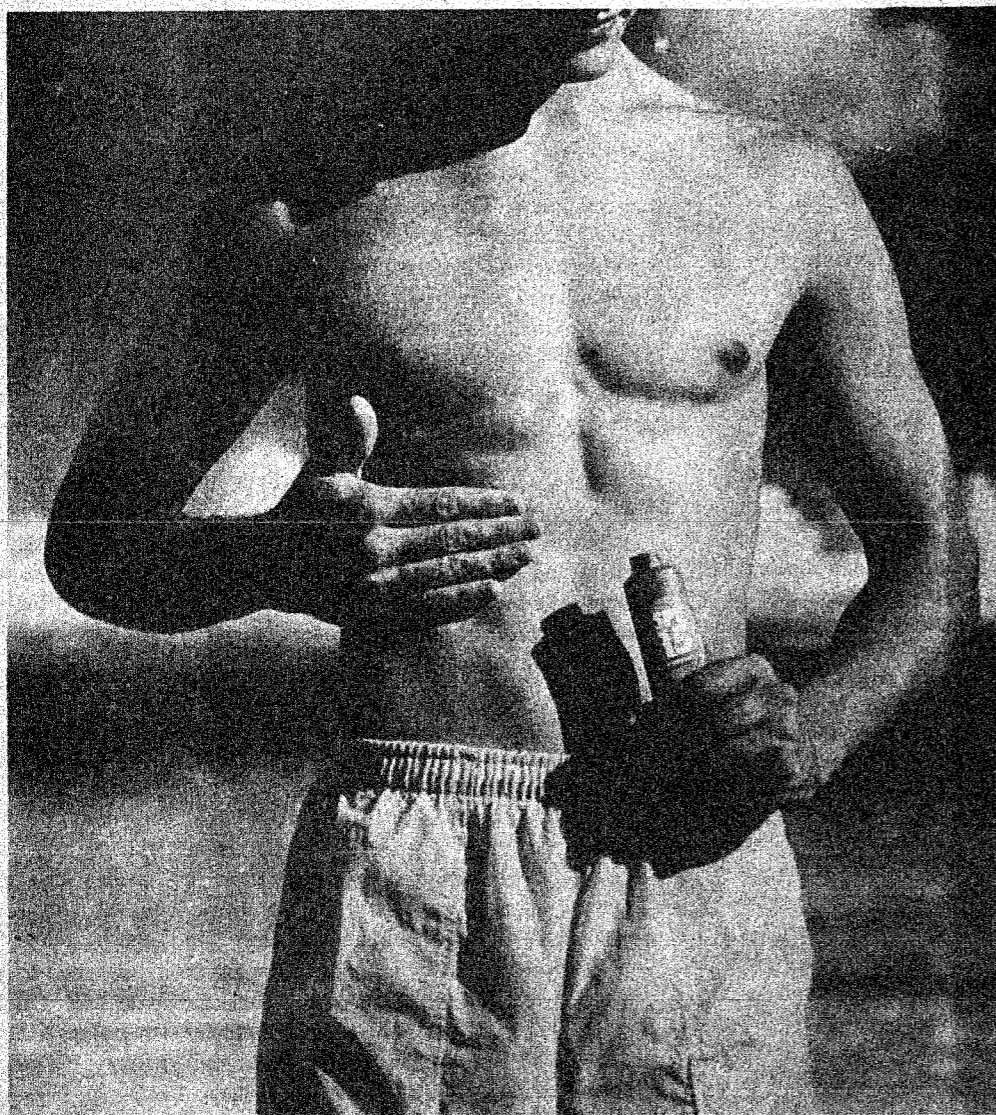

How do you know when a headache is a cause for concern? A recent program by family doctors has produced some guidelines that may help you determine when it's time to see a physician. Signs to watch out for are:

- Daily headaches.
- Progressive worsening of the headaches.

- Use of pain relievers on a daily basis.
- Loss of time from work or social activities.
- Headaches caused by physical activity.

Daily headaches can be triggered by a variety of causes, many of which are not serious and can be controlled effectively with simple pain relievers such as aspirin or acetaminophen (your family physician will suggest the medication that's best for you). If you're a chronic headache sufferer and experience a change in

How To Rub Out Skin Cancer.

Just rub in some sunscreen. Using a sunscreen of SPF 15 or higher will help protect you from harmful sunrays that cause skin cancer. So will wearing hats, covering your arms and legs, sitting in the shade, or going indoors.

In short, almost anything you do to reduce your exposure to the sun will improve your chances of avoiding America's most common form of cancer.

So when you go out into the sun, play it safe. And don't get burned.

Many of the flights we make could be prevented if someone like you would keep drunk drivers off the road. Be concerned.

When you're out with friends, decide who will drive, and that person won't drink. Also, if you are with a drunk friend, don't let him get behind the wheel.

Drunk driving isn't someone else's problem. It's yours as well.

The Job Interview: How Good Are You At It?
By Jeffrey G. Allen

A job interview is essentially a screen test. Getting hired depends a lot on the "actor factor." Train yourself to know your lines, perfect your delivery and dress for the part and you'll probably get a job offer.

Here's a question you might be asked to determine your suitability for the job. It shows up on many interviews: "Is there one particular trait or skill you possess that should lead us to consider you above all other candidates?"

You should think about your answer to this question in terms of your particular abilities and how they apply to the target job. Then tell and sell.

Are you a fast typist or programmer? Do you have the ability to make people respond favorably? After scripting your response, always add that you have the drive to take on this job and do it well. You might even say you would excel at it.

Consumer Groups Storm Local Grocery Stores!

Stores point finger at newspaper

Today saw one of the largest consumer responses of the week to offers made by local grocery stores for discounted prices. Across the city, shoppers were redeeming coupons cut from the local paper in record numbers.

"We know any offer we make will be highlighted most by the newspaper," commented a grocery store spokesman. "Our goal is simply to inform the consumers that these discounts are available. We are confident they will respond if they see it in the paper." His statement was backed by recent Consumer Data Service reports that indicated grocery store ads triple volume on counted items and double volume on regularly priced items. It also revealed grocery ads are read by well over 70% of newspaper readers.

Grocery store representatives unanimously agreed that newspaper advertising was the only way to get immediate consumer response. One grocer remarked, "Most people read the paper, and a bunch of those readers clip our coupons. It's that simple." His comments reflect the well-known Manufacturer's Coupon Center report which stated that over 80% of all families use coupons.

"When consumers want more for their money, they always go to the

A Special Brunch For A Special Dad

Father's Day is the day that Dad should get to do whatever he wants, whether it's spending the morning on the golf course or lazing in bed until noon. But it doesn't matter if Dad's worked up his appetite on the links or just reading the Sunday paper, his day will get off to a great start with a surefire "Dad-pleaser": Ham 'n Eggs Brunch Bake.

This hearty dish starts with a simple Bisquick dough as a base. A savory ham and cheese egg mixture on top makes an all-in-one brunch dish that turns ordinary ingredients into an extraordinary meal.

Ham 'n Eggs Brunch Bake

- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 Tbsp margarine or butter
- 1 can (6 3/4 ounces) chunk ham, drained
- 1 medium tomato, chopped
- 2 cups Bisquick baking mix
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 cup shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
- 1/4 cup milk
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 tsp salt
- 1/4 tsp pepper
- 1/4 tsp dried ill weed, if desired
- 2 Tbsps shipped chives

Heat oven to 350°. Lightly grease rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches, or 12-inch pizza pan. Cook and stir onion and margarine in 10-inch skillet until onion is tender; remove from heat. Stir in ham and tomato. Mix baking mix and water until soft dough forms; beat vigorously 20 strokes. Pat dough in pan with fingers dipped in baking mix, pressing dough 1/2 inch up sides. Spread ham mixture over dough; sprinkle with cheese. Beat milk, eggs, salt, pepper and dill weed with hand beater until foamy; slowly pour over cheese. Sprinkle with chives. Baked uncovered 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown. Garnish with tomato slices if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

Men We All Admire

1989 National Hero Award Winners

Are they actors, rock stars, athletes, men with incredible physiques or fabulous faces?

Interestingly, the results of a recent poll of over 10,000 Americans indicate a new respect for the caring individual.

Eight men ranging in age from 16 to 78 and engaged in every kind of endeavor were voted heroes. The common thread was not fame or money; in 1989, "you've got to have heart," stated social psychologist, Judith Waters analyzing the results.

Winners of the first Prince Matchabelli National Hero Awards were:

Ronald Reagan, Leaders; Greg Louganis, Sports; Marvin Hamlisch, Music; Edward Rensi, Business; Michael Gottlieb, Lifesavers and Crusaders; Jim Henson, Arts and Entertainment; Trevor Ferrell, Kids; Martin Luther King, Jr., Legendary.

"When you consider that one of every four children under the age of 18 now lives with a single parent, the need to identify current American role models, people to pattern themselves after, becomes even more important," said Raymond Batiatico, president of Prince Matchabelli.

Since Texas has led the nation in beef cattle production for many years, and in more recent times has become a leader in feedlot operations and meat processing, research emphasis of livestock scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) is strong in meat production, processing and marketing.

Station scientists in recent years have perfected a way to greatly expand the supply of tender beef. Electrical stimulation of carcasses improves tenderness and other desirable characteristics by 20 to 30 percent. When applied to leaner carcasses, this technique has full potential to make beef cuts totally acceptable to consumers.

It works best on bull beef, mature cows, or other carcasses inclined to be tough, and has little or no effect on already tender beef. About 25 cents worth of electricity can add $50 to a carcass value.

Electrical stimulation is now widely used by packing plants. Technology transfer of this technique was so rapid and complete that by 1984 about 85 percent of all U.S. produced block beef was electrically stimulated, using the TAES procedure.

Everyone wins from use of this new technique. The consumer benefits from an expanded supply of nutritious, more palatable food at a competitive price. The producer, processor, and retailer also have more meat products of increased desirability to market.
