Three Bales Of New Crop Ginned Here

Two By Same Farmer Produced From Gallo-way Variety

Three bales of cotton of the 1932 crop have been ginned in Big Spring.

Two bales were ginned Friday, the third Saturday.

C. T. Watson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who was gathering a premium fund, was in a quandary as to division of the premium. The custom here has been to award 60 per cent of the fund for the first bale and 40 per cent for the second.

J. C. Clanton of Luther was the first to reach a local gin with a bale of the new crop. It was ginned at the Guitler plant and weighed 390 pounds.

J. B. Mansfield of Luther reached town with a bale about an hour after Clanton but his bale was ginned before that of Clanton. Mansfield's bale, ginned at the Planters company plant, weighed 483 pounds, was sold to the Planters Gin company at 8 1/2 cents per pound, with $5 premium and ginned free.

Saturday J. C. Clanton brought in his second bale. It was ginned at the Guitler plant and weighed 535 pounds.

Mr. Watson said Monday afternoon he would call Mr. Clanton and Mr. Mansfield together and let them decide upon division of the premium fund.

The two bales gathered by Mr. Clanton were raised from Gallo-way's Thoroughbred Variety of seed. The seed was furnished by the Thoroughbred Cotton breeding industry located here this year. Several thousand acres planted to this seed will furnish planting seed to be ginned in a new plant being erected eight miles north of here on the Lamesa road. The new gin will be ready for operation in a few days.

This cotton was grown for a number of years at Cordell, Oklahoma, and has become very early maturing cotton, evidence of which was shown in the fact two of the first three bales ginned here were produced from it.

Planting seed will be shipped from the Galloway breeding farm over a wide territory in the western section of the cotton belt.

Those posting premiums for the first two bales in cash or merchandise are J. & W. Fisher, Wolcott Motor Co., Jones Dry Goods Co., J. D. Biles, A. P. McDonald, A. M. Fisher Co., G. F. Wackers Stores, E. B. Kimberlin, Sam Fisherman, Big Spring Hardware, Willard Sullivan, Wilson and Clark, Scott and Bugg, A. Williams, Victor Melinger, Hollywood Shoppe, J. C. Penny Co., O'Rear's Bootery, Maurice Shoppe, Carter Chevrolet Co., South Scurry Drug, White House Grocery, Ritz Theatre, Burton Lingo, Hokus Pokus, Planters Gin Co., Cunningham and Phillips, Linck's Food Stores, Allen Grocery, State National Bank, West Texas National Bank, First National Bank, and two others who signatures were illegible. Other firms and individuals have indicated willingness to come in on premium lists.

942,793 Counted; Report Complete In 197 Counties

VOTE AT 4 P. M.

Sterling 471,824
Ferguson 470,969

Sterling's Lead 855

Total Tabulated 942,793.

All counties reported; 197 complete.

After reaching a lead of 3,429 votes at 11 a. m. Monday Governor Ross Sterling lost ground to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as scattering returns from incomplete counties came in.

Mrs. Ferguson had taken the lead from him for a second time on the 8 p. m. Sunday report, by 493 votes. She first had the lead on the report of 11:30 p. m. Sunday, by 3,190 votes and swelled this to 4,782 at 12:30 a. m. Sunday.

Sterling came back an hour later to lead by 2,601 votes and kept ahead until 8 p. m. Sunday.

Monday morning at 9 o'clock Sterling's lead was 3,007. At 11 a. m. it was 3,429.

By 2 p. m. Monday the margin had been cut to 1,675 votes and an hour later the governor had lost 300 more to the wife of James E. Ferguson, according to the Texas Election Bureau bulletin.

Total vote tabulated at 3 p. m. Monday was 940,009. This was 1,834 more than the number tabulated at 2 p. m. and Mrs. Ferguson gained 300 votes on the hour.

From 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday 14,114 votes were tabulated and Mrs. Ferguson gained 1,632.

The Texas Election Bureau reported at 11 a. m. that the four largest counties whose returns were then incomplete were Dallas, Fort Bend, Leon and Victoria.

Dallas was giving Sterling a heavy majority. Fort Bend went for Ferguson in the first primary, 1,872 to 461 for Hunter and 1,173 for Sterling. In July Leon gave Ferguson a majority of 1,716 to 555 for Hunter and 824 for Sterling. Victoria county polled 1,936 for Ferguson, 450 for Hunter and 969 for Sterling in the first primary.

Total vote for the three counties in the first primary was: Ferguson 3,514 for Ferguson, 1466 for Hunter and 2966 for Sterling.

Home Talk by Betty

Well, the Klan did it once. The depression just about did it this time.

Thought a good deal of Sterling anyway, but our respect for him is higher now than ever. Why?

Because, the face of personal misfortunes and the undeniable fact that there was a strong public sentiment for a change—turn the ins out—he refused to back up in the middle of the game, even when many of his friends so advised, and got out and staged one of the hardest and most energetic campaigns any man has ever made for the Democratic nomination.

His personal campaign since the first primary, showed that he had bowed his neck, overcome a natural dislike for public speaking and set his head to win if humanly possible.

No one denied when the first primary results had been tabulated that Sterling was confronted with one of the mightiest fights any Texas governor has ever had for a second term.

As aforesaid, the difference between the Ferguson vote of two years ago and that of Saturday can be directly charged to the depression.

Which goes to show the lack of logic the average voter uses when he starts making his ballot. There is no denying the improvement in the cotton market in the past two weeks helped Sterling, just as bad conditions in the past two years hurt him.

But, as Sterling said himself the other day, he of course had no more to do with cotton prices going up than he had with any prices going down last season.

Exception to this was the rise in the price of crude oil in Texas as directly due to declaration of martial law in East Texas.

And now, if Mr. Sterling continues to lead in the run-off primary voting, and receives the nomination, you can put this down: Jim Ferguson will continue for a few years to wield strong political influence.

But, if he can't win, with his wife, in this year he might as well give up hopes of ever again getting his hands on the state government.

This was a made-to-order Ferguson year. Because his basic stock-in-trade political is the very unreasonableness which the depression brought on, and the ease with which prejudices of unreasoning people can be aroused.

As was the case two years ago Sterling gained lavishly in the last two weeks of the run-off campaign.

As one of our friends of the Ferguson camp said the other day, we've got to live together after these elections. We tried during the campaign to be fair to both sides in the news columns of this paper. We took for ourselves the right to our own editorial opinion, and granted the same right to every individual and organization. We stood unalterably against Jim Ferguson and the things he has and does represent. We shall continue to do so as long as he figures in Texas politics.

But, if by some unexpected turn in events, Mrs. Ferguson should gain the nomination you'll see us walking up to the Lick log in November, gritting our teeth, hoping Six trucks of hogs were forced to turn back by 200 pickets a half-mile west of Sioux City. Pickets near Dakota City dumped a load of hogs when a farmer insisted on driving through the blockade.

Next authentic report of election developments was provided here in an extra edition of The Herald, which carried the total vote tabulated at 4 p. m. Sunday.

Three out-of-town papers circulating here Monday morning carried as many different reports on the governor's race. One contained the 5 p. m. Sunday total, another that of 7 p. m. and the third the 8 p. m. total, which gave Mrs. Ferguson a lead of 593 votes.

A second Herald extra Monday morning had the 9 a. m. total, with Sterling 3,007 ahead.

Grand Old Man of Texas
Out of Picture

THE "GRAND OLD MAN OF TEXAS," Dr. Oscar Henry Cooper, slipped out of the picture at his home in Abilene. He was a native Texan. He was 79. He was known as the father of the public school system of Texas. He was known and recognized for his creative genius in establishing a sound educational system while state superintendent of education. He had been president of two Texas institutions of higher learning, Baylor of Waco and Simmons of Abilene. He was born on a plantation near Cambridge nine years before the war between the states influenced his education greatly, inasmuch as it freed him from the routine study of classroom and allowed him to delve, independent of instructors into books dealing with poetry and drama. His father was a product of the University of Pennsylvania, his mother was the daughter of Col. John Arthur who migrated from Virginia before the middle of the 19th century. He was educated at private schools; at Marshall university, one of the pioneer schools of Texas; he entered Yale when 15 and was graduated with honors with the class of 1873. It is said that the victory of the friends of higher education in establishing the University of Texas bill was his in two ways. His name was a household word in Texas where the rudiments of education had obtained a foothold or recognition. He was a modest man; he was a manly man; he was an honest man, and one of the greatest of the sons of Texas in civic life and everywhere that the influence of high integrity and high ideals and noble patriotism counted. He built his monument as he came along. He battled for the education of the children of the alleys and the cities and the barefooted youngsters of tenant farmers in the rural world. He lived a long life well. He did not accumulate a great fortune. He was never money-mad. He placed honor and integrity and love of humanity above the glitter of the yellow gold. Texas lost a public benefactor when the face of Dr. Oscar Henry Cooper disappeared from the living picture.

Country Club Golfers Defeat Sweetwater Players 34 To 10

Home Linkamen Go Into First Place In Race For Sand Belt League Honors

The Big Spring Country Club linkamen stamped themselves as championship contenders in the Sand Belt Golf Association by swamping the hitherto pace-setting Sweetwater team 34 to 10 Sunday afternoon on the local course.

The surprising one-sided victory shot Big Spring into first place in the league standing with a total of 297 points, 12 ahead of Sweetwater, Colorado, a match behind the leaders, remained within striking distance with a total of 285.

J. C. Southworth, bespectacled Sweetwater star, won a gruelling duel from Shirley Robbins, Big Spring, 1 up in the top pairing, but gigantic G. R. Porter came through in the second match to engulf Whitley of Sweetwater 5 up and 3 and give Big Spring low ball 1 up.

Obie Bristow, playing his first match on the local ladder in several weeks, came out on top over Charlie Nix, Sweetwater star playing in No. 3 place, and Theron Hicks, hard-bitting left-hander on the local ladder, won from Shaw Sweetwater, 3 and 2. Big Spring took Alkins 4 up and 3 to play Doc Akins, Big Spring, went to the 21st green to beat Ed Hennig, Sweetwater coach, 1 up, and Hayden Griffith, Big Spring, won a close battle with A. C. Lovorn, Sweetwater, 1 up. Akins and Griffith were carried to the 22nd hole before taking low ball honors.

Dr. C. T. Baxley won from Beall, Sweetwater, 1 up, and Cecil Watson, Big Spring defeated Luther Watson, Sweetwater, 6 up and 5 to play. Baxley and Watson took low ball 2 up and 1 to play.

to 4. Shanty Hogan's homer with two on base had put the New Yorkers ahead in the final frame, but the Bruins came through in their half with two runs to keep their winning streak intact.

Kiki Cuyler knocked in four Chicago runs, including the final game-winning tally. In the third he singled to score English and Herman and to give Malone a lead. In the eighth he hit a home run far over the left field bleachers for the third Cub run, and his fly to Ott was responsible for Guda's final tally.

Pat Malone and Herman Bell were the starting hurlers, Bell pitching the Cubs to two runs in the seven innings he pitched. Both were due to Cuyler's hit which took a bad hop over Cuyler's head.

Malone likewise was in form until the ninth when Ott singled after one was out and both he and Terry were safe on a fielder's choice. Hogan then hit his home run, a long drive into the left field stands, giving New York a 4-3 margin.

Luque was pitching the ninth when Koenig singled with one out. Guda, batting for Malone, also singled. Gibson took Luque's place and Bill Herman dropped a double in right that sent Koenig home, tying the count. English was purposely passed, filling the bases. Cuyler then fled to Ott in short right, but when the throw to the plate was wide, Guda scored the winning run.

CINCINNATI—The Reds and Phillies divided a double-header, 2-1 and 3-2 Sunday, giving Cincinnati the long end of a three-game series.

Good pitching marked both games. Ray Benge was credited with winning the first for Philadelphia after he relieved Holley in the seventh with men on first and second and held the Reds hitless to the end.

In the second game, the Reds tied the score in the sixth inning on a pass, Hendrick's single to right and Herman's fly to center.

Then in the eighth Crabtree singled to center, took second on Hendrick's sacrifice, went to third on Herman's infield out and scored the winning run on Hafe's single to right.

ST. LOUIS—The eccentric Dizzy Dean, who recently asked to be used in more games and was granted his request pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to victory for the third time in five days in the second game of Sunday's double-header with Brooklyn, 6 to 4, after Paul Derringer won the first one for the Red Birds, 4 to 1.

The double defeat sent the Dodgers into third place in the National League race, behind the idle Pittsburgh Pirates, while the world champions passed up the Boston Braves, also idle, and went into a virtual tie with Philadelphia in fourth place.

The Cardinals bunched four hits in the sixth inning of the first game for four runs to clinch victory for Derringer who held the Brooklyn players scoreless until the ninth.

Dean went eight innings for the BEAUMONT—Beaumont regained the lead in the Texas league Sunday by beating Longview, 14 to 3 and 10 to 0. Dallas, tied with the Exporters Saturday night, split a double-header with Galveston.

Schoolboy Rowe, who has been sold to Detroit, pitched the first game for Beaumont. He allowed six hits, struck out eight and took his eighteenth victory of the season. Tom Conlan and Bob Hyman working for Longview, both being hit freely. The Exporters hit five homers, Hank Greenberg getting his thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth of the season.

Art Herring held Longview to five hits in the night-cap. Lefty Griffin went the route for Longview, the management leaving him alone after the Exporters shelled him for seven runs in the first two innings. Paul Easterling hit his thirty-second homer of the year off the luckless Griffin.

GALVESTON—The Galveston Buccaneers knocked Dallas out of a tie for the league lead here Sunday when Lefty George Darrow set the Steers down with six hits to gain a 1-0 verdict over the veteran George Murray in the first game of a double-header. Darrow was credited with the loss of the second game when he essayed an iron-man stunt in starting it. Dallas won the second game, 5 to 4. He allowed but five hits until he was pulled in the second game, but three of the four men he walked scored to keep him in trouble.

The first game was a pitcher's battle throughout, with the Buccaneers scoring their lone run in the first inning on two hits. After that Murray was easily the master of the Galveston batters.

Tony Governor saved the game for Darrow with a backhand slab off Radcliffe's drive in the ninth inning when it seemed labeled for a home run against the flagpole. He made two other sparkling catches.

HOUSTON—Gene Rye and Elmer Hanson were the big shots here Sunday as the Houston Buffs smacked down the Tyler Sports, 7 to 1. Rye clouted two homers over the right field wall, driving in a total of five tallies, while Hanson gave up only five in chalking up his sixteenth victory.

Joe Medwick also was in the spotlight with three hits in four trips.

A double-header will be played Monday night to make up for the first game of Sunday's double bill, the first game being rained out.

"Now," a fan who prefers that his name not be published writes, "that the smoldering season is practically over I am sure you would welcome this all-star selection, based upon this season's play with such teams as Coahoma, White Collars, Tigers, and Couden entering into the selection.

Several of the players were Standouts. Albert Garcia at third base, Fierro at catcher, and Miller Harris in the outfield were cinches. Les Walker is an easy choice for shortstop, not because I think him to be a major league prospect, as an earlier contributor suggests, but because there were not any shortstops playing in the sandlot circles. Juan Garcia and Terrazos of Couden are both about the same at first base, but I suppose the former should get the place as he played in more games.

"Pop" Payne, Bob Potter, Shorty Walden, Bill Brown, and Rubin were all good pitchers but Brown and Payne were the best. Lois Madison of Couden and Beryl Cramer of Foran are my choice in the outfield along with Harris. Second base was as vacant of stars as the shortstop's berth. I saw you play one nice game and then the next day you made four errors. (Writer's note: Is our face red?) This boy Devaney was a good fielder so I will give the place to him. The batting order would be: L. Madison (Couden) cf; J. Garcia (Tigers) 1b; A. Garcia (Tigers) 2b; Miller Harris (Couden) rf; Beryl Cramer (Foran) lf; Devaney (Coahoma) ss; L. Walker (Coahoma) ss; Fierro (Tigers) c; Payne (Tigers), Brown (Coahoma) p.

Calcutta Pool tickets for the Country Club tournament are now on sale, and enthusiasts who wish to purchase one can no doubt easily find a salesman. The tickets, you know, sell for one dollar each, and the holder of such lucky names as Charlie Quada, Frank Ross, Obie Bristow, or Shirley Robbins will no doubt find themselves several dollars richer after the auction.

Incidentally the rolling stone, Mr. Bristow himself, once again graces our boulevards. He has not made complete plans for the opening of fall practice, but will no doubt have activity on no later than next week.

Obie will be an entry in the Country Club play, but golfing enthusiasts that he is he never allows his links game to interfere with his football. Last season he played only one round before the tournament opened, but qualified with a 71, and then was eight under par for the first three matches.

Fall practice, for some reason, has already opened in San Angelo. Lettermen reporting to Coach Harry Taylor are Dolk, fullback; Biffie, field; and McGlothling, halfbacks; Gregg and Schukard, ends; McLendon, tackle; Callaway, guard; and Carruthers, center.

Incidentally Blondy Cross' abusive outbursts have fallen upon another's shoulder this time, and the object of his scornful remarks is none other than Procy Anderson of Abilene, whom he terms the most consistently incorrect scrivener in West Texas. For a time, Mr. Cross says, he thought he deserved that honor.

The referee problem at the Casino ring was solved Thursday night when Ray Simmons stepped into the breach. The oil man handled the fighters admirably, and proved himself capable by detecting a low punch in the preliminary round of the Black Knight and Pancho Menendez, the Mexican. Menendez bounced off the ropes and landed one just below the negro's beltline. Instantly Simmons warned the brown-skinned fighter for hitting low. The Knight sunk to the floor, evidently hoping to secure the decision, but Ray shouted

WASHINGTON—After losing three straight here, the Detroit Tigers turned a furious batting barrage on the Washington Senators Sunday and won the final game of the series, 15 to 7.

The Tigers rounded three Washington pitchers for 21 hits and were never in danger after the fourth frame during which they made six runs.

Webb started the attack in that inning with a single to left. Walker forced Webb and scored on Rogell's double to center. Rhlei roled to Weaver, but on a slow play at third everyone was safe. Hayworth then shot out a single, scoring Rogell and sending Rhlei to second.

Monte Weaver, who had been trying for his twentieth win of the season, retired at that stage. Coffman, his successor, started by walking Bridges. Bluge threw out Schuble, but Rhlei scored on the play. Gehrmger walked to fill the bases. Stone finished the hitting for the frame with a double which cleared the bags.

Brown who finished the game hitler, was touched for 12 safeties in four innings.

A bright spot in a dreary day for the Senators came in the sixth when they shelled Bridges from the mound. During the Senators' last trip to Detroit, Bridges held them hitless through eight and two-thirds innings and allowed konly one safety throughout the game.

They won this game, 10 to 1. Tate broke up the second game when he poled one out for a round trip with one out and the score tied in the last half of the eleventh.

CHAPTER XXXIX

Mona raised startled eyes. "When you are gone?" she repeated. "My dear, do you believe for an instant that I shall live forever?" His tone was light but for all that Mona knew he was aware of that which had been concealed from him so carefully. He knew he had been given only a year to live.

For a moment neither spoke. Then the man said cheerfully: "Since life is short and time is fleeting there are several things I would like to do. The first is to see you as frequently as possible. I want to take you about to show you off if you don't mind the phrase—to provide you with gifts I want to meet your family, too. I'd like to feel that this rather abrupt move of mine has benefited them in some way. Of course," he added hastily, "I know you are doing everything for them you can think of. Perhaps I can think of something more."

"You are so kind," replied Mona uncertainly. "But you haven't promised to do the one thing I want most. Will you arrange things for Barry?"

He glanced sharply toward her. "Change my will, you mean?" She nodded.

Townsend looked away. "One thing at a time, my dear," he said. "It came into the girl's mind that not once had he ever called her "Mona." "One thing at a time," he repeated. "Today let's drop in to call on your family."

He moved forward to give the order to the chauffeur but Mona stopped him. "Maybe I'd better telephone first," she said, trying to hide her confusion. "You know it will be a great event for Mother."

"Why, of course. We'll telephone first," he spoke to the chauffeur then. "Jackson, will you stop at the next corner?"

Mona addressed her husband in the presence of the family. With a little tact they had succeeded admirably in presenting a picture of completely happy married life. Even Ma's sharp eyes failed to detect any variance from the usual picture of domestic harmony.

Ma, in fact, was deeply impressed by Mona's "fine man." She would scurry about, serving the inevitable tea in thin cups now, at Mona's demand for lemon. Once the Townsends stayed to dinner and Mona was pleased and even touched to observe her husband's ease in the stuffy little dining room where the obviously "company dinner" of hot and heavy foods was spread before him.

Then came the "grand day" as Mrs. Moran expressed it when the family piled into the big car and was whisked away to Long Island. Moran had, in a conversation with his son-in-law, mentioned his fondness for claims such as those served in the old days at City Island.

"Sure, and it makes no difference to the man because we aren't swells," Ma, struggling with her new hat slightly askew on her graying hair had told Mrs. Callahan after the return from the revelry. "Everything you could think of, bill for the waiter. And such style!"

Christmas brought a bewildering load of gifts to the Townsends. "You are so good!" Mona murmured as she moved about her sitting room one snowy mid-December afternoon, tying gifts with gay ribbons and cards and addressing Christmas cards. "Anybody who has money could order gifts for people but you select them! You even sit here helping tie them up and plan to deliver them yourself."

Her voice faltered slightly. Yes, her husband was, as she had told Ma long before, a good man. There was only one thing he had failed to do and that was to make up his quarrel with Barry.

"All this is fun," Mr. Townsend replied. "I like it." He was seated by the fire and moved a froth of tissue and scarlet cord from the Mona was to discover that her husband fitted in with the life of the Moran household beyond her most optimistic expectations. After that first visit when Ma had hurried into her new silk gown and, with a single sweep, cleared up that trash of Kitty's from the dining room table, when Dad had apologized for his lack of a shave and Mona herself had tried not to show her nervousness, the Townsends came often to the Third Avenue flat.

It seemed strange, indeed, to Mona to learn that her husband, with his splendidly erect carriage and distinguished air, was really little younger than her father. The two men had, it seemed, skated on the same park pond long years before.

Kitty admired her brother-in-law and told Isabel Flynn she was almost tempted to call him "John."

That was the name by which townsends. Then he turned in his path. He had risen and was pacing the floor. "My dear, I'll do as you wish. I'll release the boy's funds. I'll see Garretson right after Christmas."

"You mean you'll make everything all right?"

The man stopped and sighed. "Can anyone do that, Mona?" he replied in a low tone. "No one but you, I fancy. However this is my idea."

He sank into a chair again and, clasping his hands, looked at the glass. "You recall," he began, "the terms of our bargain. At the end of a year you were to be free to remain or go to Reno. Suppose we leave it this way. You decide—oh, not today or tomorrow but take your time—which it shall be. Reno or—well, not Reno."

"In any case the terms shall stand. In my will you are to receive your share with certain stipulations. Whether it's Reno or not you shall be heir to the larger part of my—let's call them assets."

"If you decide, however, to pass Reno by I will, as you put it, do the right thing by Barry. Possibly even more than what might be termed the right thing."

Mona rose, her face flushing. "You mean," she began but did not go on. The meaning was clear enough.

Her husband bowed. "That is precisely what I mean, my dear. Take your time. At the end of your reflection on the matter be my wife. Forsake the Reno plan. We'll go to Europe, around the world—"

"But—but—" said Mona, still helpless.

"Do I need to tell you," her husband continued, "that I am fearfully, tremendously, deeply in love with you? I have been ever since the day I first saw you at the Savarin. The day I was lunching with Garretson. But of course I thought you knew I love you!"

(To Be Continued)

He had met them indeed. Kitty, spying the big car, had literally swarmed aboard, introducing him to the other girls as her "brother John." "Brother John" thereupon had been taken inside and driven to the 30th street motion picture house where the chauffeur had been instructed to secure tickets.

Mona, drinking tea, now, gazed at the fire. She remembered Barry had told her that the one thing he missed most in the tropics was the cheer of an open fireplace filled with snapping logs.

"Barry always liked a good fire," her husband said unexpectedly. He had placed another package in the basket which on Christmas Eve was to go to the Moran household. Then he continued. "I suppose the gift you'd like most this Christmas is for me to do something about Barry, eh?"

Mona looked at him in amazement. "I'd like it, of course." She swallowed with difficulty. "But don't do it for me. Do it for Barry. For yourself. I've really nothing to do with it as I see it."

"As you see it," murmured Mr.

RECENT HAPPENINGS
Scorchy, finding he is shy a few dollars of his fare east by plane accepts an offer of fifty dollars from a light promoter to box six pounds. Assured that the match is for points only, he is surprised when Spider Martin tries to knock him out. Scorchy retaliates as the bell ends the first round.

Preparing For The Shock
SCORCHY, YOU'RE ALL WRONG! SPIDER WAS ONLY SWINGIN' HARD FOR EFFECT. HE WASN'T TRYIN' TO HIT YER! THIS BOUT IS ONLY FIFTEEN POINTS I TELL YER!
O.K. MR. COBB. ANY ERROR? I'M SORRY.

THE 30-SECOND WARNING WHISTLE FOR THE SECOND ROUND.

HOMER HOOPEE
NOW YOU GET THIS! WHEN HOMER FIRST CAME INTO THIS JUNGLE HE WAS CAPTURED BY THESE NATIVES AND THEY WERE GOIN' TO KILL HIM—KILL HIM, UNDERSTAND THAT! THEY WERE GOING TO BURN HIM ALIVE! HE PULLED SOME SLEIGHT OF HAND TRICKS AND THEY FIGURED HE WAS A GOD! THEY MADE HIM THEIR KING! IT MAY BE FUNNY TO YOU, BUT IT'S SERIOUS TO THEM!!

Instructions
WHEN YOU GRABBED OLD HOMER BY THE HAIR YOU INSULTED NOT ONLY THEIR KING BUT THEIR "GOD"—AND "SISTER" YOU NEVER WAS CLOSER TO THE PEARLY GATES THAN BEFORE WE GOT YOU IN THAT CASE!

WERE IN A TOUGH SPOT! WE'RE IN THE MIDDLE OF THE JUNGLE, CAPTURED BY IGNORANT SAVAGES—THERE'S JUST ONE REASON WE'RE ALIVE, AND THAT'S HOMER! IF WE GET OUT ALIVE IT'LL BE DUE TO HIM! SO GET THAT IN YOUR BEAN AND LAY OFF MAKIN' ANY MORE PASSES AT HIM, SAVVY?

AND INCIDENTALLY THERE'S ANOTHER LITTLE—ER—MATTER I WANT TO TAKE UP WITH YOU—AND I DON'T WANT TO HEAR ANY YELLIN' OR HOLLERIN' ABOUT IT EITHER—

NO, MR. COBB. DON'T FORGET, YOURS FELLER!
