

Howard County Oil Hearing Opens

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Reiteration by Judge W. R. Ely of the highway commission of that body's determination to improve economic conditions while building a connected system of improved roads in Texas should cause many Howard county citizens to think seriously of the idea of voting road bonds to care for paving our two state-federal roads.

The highway commission already is requiring contractors to employ local men. If we could vote bonds in the next sixty or ninety days and speed the letting of the dirt contract on No. 10, a lot of farmers could have employment every day for quite a period.

Judge Ely said the remainder of the commission will not, of course, concern to our providing the bonds for No. 9 without taking care of No. 10. The commission will, however, go ahead and build No. 9 first and take up No. 1 later. It is the commission's duty to look after the interests of the entire state. That is why it wishes very much to see the Howard county section of No. 1 paved if it is the most important road not only in Texas but in the entire south.

A very fair proposition has been made this county and we ought to take advantage of it for two reasons, viz: to put Howard abreast with other progressive counties in road improvements and to improve business conditions by reducing unemployment.

The most gratifying feature of our football victories of Friday over Mineral Wells was the last-minute positive fight put up by the Steers. They displayed the stuff it takes to win when they repeatedly repulsed serious threats of the Mountaineers.

Now, let's pour it on the Eagles!

Although it is used right now with the most important backs of its history, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce is being forced to operate on a shortened budget. We do not, of course, feel that this year's membership fees should surpass or even equal those of previous years when general business conditions were more prosperous on the surface at least. But the degree to which members have untaxed subscriptions we hardly feel is justified.

Every dollar put into the organization, especially in this particular time, will come back in one form or another with dividends.

In this connection the following dispatch from Washington should be of interest:

WOMEN, GIRLS SEEKING WORK

More than a dozen women and girls applied to The Herald Monday for the extra clerk's position mentioned in Sunday's edition. The rate of demand for employment by women continues to be several thousand per cent greater than that among men who are apparently practically all employed. We have on file the names of about 20 women and girls, many of them in desperate need of employment. Any person having any kind of employment for them is urged to communicate with The Herald at once.

Series Of Explosions Fatal To Four Laborers

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 22 (AP)—Four men were killed here early today in a mysterious fire and a series of heavy explosions which shattered the second floor of the brick building in gof the Carl J. Weber Manufacturing Company. Authorities said the first explosion came from a still which apparently was used for alcohol cutting.

Although the Weber company was listed as a manufacturer of boiler compounds and iron preservatives, firemen said they found evidence in the ruins that an elaborate distilling layout had been set up in the place.

Three of the bodies found were unidentified. The fourth was identified as that of William Siegel, 50, of Detroit.

BARON DIES

MUNICH, Bavaria, Sept. 22 (AP)—General Baron Ludwig Von Gersattel died today after an operation at the age of 73. He was one of the foremost German cavalry leaders and during the World War commanded the Third Bavarian Army Corps. He was on Field Marshal Waldersee's staff in the China expedition in 1900.

Jones Shoots Under Par To Capture Lead

National Amateur His Chance At Fourth Crown In Year

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP)—Staggering in after Bobby Jones had set the pace with a 69, one under par, Harrison B. (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul, the defending champion took a disastrous 83 today, 13 over par, for the first 18 holes of the qualifying test for the National Amateur golf championship.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP)—Starting his final battle to sweep the golf boards for 1930, Bobby Jones shot a brilliant 69, one under par, to take the lead in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying play for the National Amateur golf championship today.

Jones took the lead away from 18-year-old Sidney W. Noyes, Yale freshman, who carded a sensation- No. 1 low. The commission will, however, go ahead and build No. 9 first and take up No. 1 later. It is the commission's duty to look after the interests of the entire state. Election Bidders Stop In Big Spring

Because of a wager on politics, Lloyd "Mule" Hayes, footsore and weary, and Hubert C. Stinson, Sanger to El Paso via "the little red wagon" arrived in Big Spring Sunday afternoon.

The wagon is parked in front of the Crawford Hotel. Draped over it is a painted placard—a confession that Hayes maintains is an honest one.

"Ma made a mule out of me," he reads. The whole story is that Hayes is "pulling" for Stinson just because he pulled for Miriam A. Ferguson in the run-off primary. It is just another election bid being paid in full. Stinson chose Ross S. Sterling, and for that bit of strategy is doing the riding in the four wheel conveyance.

More Sweet Oil Is Sought By Col-Tex

Railroad Commission In Ft. Worth To Take Evidence

FORT WORTH, Sept. 22 (AP)—Problem of increasing the outlet of light oil from Howard and Glasscock counties without decreasing the outlet for the sour oil from deeper sands, marked the opening of the hearing by the Texas Railroad Commission on proration in the area. The hearing is being conducted by Commissioners Terrell and Smith, and by R. D. Parker, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division.

The problem arose from request of the Col-Tex Refining plant at Colorado for an increase of 2,400 barrels in its sweet oil allowance. The plant is not equipped to care for the sour oil. The increased runs were asked by the refinery as an emergency aid. It was made by Warner Clark in behalf of the California Company which is a half owner in the refinery.

Rumored Sale Of Refinery Not Verified

Rumors that the Great West Refinery, located northeast of Big Spring, has been purchased by the Harry Sinclair interests, were rife in Big Spring today.

Puffing, and probably blowing, a special train bearing Big Spring football fans will gallop out of the local harbor one week from today in the coach of the morning. On the interior of this length of connected cars will be 20 youths—Big Spring youths, big fellows, little fellows and mediocre fellows. And upon this 20 will be pinned the hopes of Big Spring. The hopes to defeat the Abilene Eagles in the second Class A game the Steers engage in. It is no secret that probably eight out of ten Big Spring fans looked for the Steers to bow to the Mountaineers in the first clash of the season played at Mineral Wells last Friday. It is no secret that Boyce House of the Ranger Times and this writer were the only ones to pick the Steers to come out on the winning end of the struggle. It is no secret that the Herd whipped the water carriers more ways than it takes to get over a detour. Their chances to cap from Dewey Mayhew's nest of Eagles looks brighter daily. Through their baptism of fire with one victory, the Steers are in an ideal frame of mind to add another to their list. Big Spring should see to it that the 200 necessary for the special train come quickly. It should be no effort at all to obtain this many, and then additional ones for the short trip. Captain George Gentry can inform you as to the correct proceedings. See that he does.

Chuckaluck Ford was the outstanding individual in Ranger's win over the Brownwood Lions. He picked up gains yard by yard in the same manner that he holds five nose around at the Ranger. Fire Station—Chief George Murphy's hopes for gallant followers of the gridiron. We have often wondered what would happen should a conflagration develop in the thriving city during football practice. But that is neither here nor way out yonder. The thing is the football team that Ranger snared from Mineral Wells will be good for those short line gains against any team in the district. Pudge, hard as a landlady's smile, in wonderful shape. The Bird fellow should develop into an all-state back this season, if he hasn't done so already. Incidentally, Mineral Wells is still chafing under the deal. We ourselves—and we might be prejudiced—think it one of the boldest moves ever made by a Texas football team. But we presume it doesn't matter.

The Great Grimes has gone. San Angelo has lost Old Leatherneck. Out of that great forward wall of "game little Bobcats" the big one has removed his presence, hid himself to more lucrative points. He won't be in a Bobcat uniform this year. He has withdrawn from school. And with him he has taken one of the greatest assets Bill Bissett boasted of. In our opinion, the Great Grimes was one of the best linemen in the district. It is a certainty he was one of the biggest. Perhaps a little old—but what does that matter?—he played battled his way through last season and left behind him an array of beautiful line work. Bissett will miss him. Why shouldn't he?

It seems the Abilene Reporter-News just can't keep the records straight. We don't intend to remind the Abilene scribe again that it was Kidwell that galloped across the goal line to tally the second touchdown against the Water Hole. We don't intend to keep on telling him it was Neal that slung the pass. Sometimes we honestly believe the orange blossoms that showered down on Mr. Anderson not so many weeks ago had thorns, and 2,166 barber shops paid $14,614.45 these thorns punctured that por-

Tommy Armour Winner Of Tourney

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22. (AP)—Proponents for a more drastic par had another example for their cause today as Tommy Armour, the great Irish stylist from Detroit, pocketed first prize money in the $10,000 St. Louis open golf championship. Leading an even more spectacular brigade of fat busters than has slipped up any course this year, the Jipked Scot posted an astonishing total of 276, an even dozen strokes under par, to win the championship. Two strokes behind him ranked Walter Hagen, still seeking an elusive 1930 championship, while the rest of the leaders had a general all around high hat opinion of old man par, who was chased into his dugout so consistently during the 72-hole tournament that probably the lowest scores of the season were hung up on the tally sheets.

Par for the championship on Sunset Hill Country Club course stands at 72, perhaps two strokes higher than it should be. Yet in the four 18-hole rounds, 20 players broke 70 while four others tipped up the course with brilliant 66s or six strokes under par. Seventy-one and par 72s were so numerous that they failed to elicit more than yawn out of the gallery. Golfers with low enough scores to win most any tournament had a hard time crowding into the money.

Chicks Take Fourth Fray From Felines

Harry Kelly Due To Take Slab Against Cats Today

BY GAYLE TALBOT JR., Associated Press Sports Writer. FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 22. (AP)—Still two down but feeling better, the Memphis Chicks were full of fight today as they prepared to engage the Fort Worth Cats in the fifth game of the eleventh annual Dixie series.

By defeating the Texas League champs, 4 to 1, before more than 11,000 fans yesterday, the Chicks managed to stay in the running after dropping three straight. They hoped to knock off the Cats again today and carry their rivals back to Memphis for the sixth tilt Wednesday. Should the Southern Association titillate square the series at three-all, a coin would be flipped to decide the site of the deciding battle.

Manager Doc Prothro of the Chicks was expected to send Harry Kelly back at the Cats today, while Dick Whitworth loomed as Frank Snyder's choice. The pair hooked up in the second game at Memphis, Whitworth getting the decision, 4 to 1. Tony Weiler was another possibility for Memphis.

Fort Worth's hopes for a fourth straight victory yesterday received a set-back five minutes before game time, when Lil Stoner, star of the Cat staff, reported unfit for duty. The husky right hander, who largely was responsible for his club's climb to the Texas league title, reported that his arm felt "dead" and expressed doubt he could pitch again this season.

Steers Split Oilbelt Lead With Doggies

Mineral Wells, Brownwood Living In Cellar After Clashes

(Editor's Note: This review of the past week in Oil Belt football was written by the only sports writer who witnessed both conference games.)

BY BOYCE HOUSE, Sports Editor, Ranger Times. They're off in the Oil Belt district.

Big Spring and Ranger have the honor of being tied for the top and Brownwood and Mineral Wells are at the bottom. The remaining six teams in the district have not yet engaged in conference play.

The Ranger Bulldogs, smarting under the sting of last year's unexpected loss to the Brownwood Lions played with great determination against an eleven much inferior to last year's Brownwood club. The result was a 32-0 victory for Ranger. Dan McCarty, Bulldog speedster, gained 232 yards from scrimmage. Captain Thomas, 160-pound guard, was the outstanding man for the losers.

CONNIE MACK HIS 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

No. 7—Building The "Greatest Team" The greatest master minds of baseball, Mack and McGraw, were pitted against each other for the first time in the world's championship of 1905, signaling the dawn of a new era in the game.

Boston had played an unofficial "world's series" with Pittsburgh as a post-season barnstorming stunt in 1903, but the first legal battle between the two major leagues for the title was conducted two years later under regulations which since have governed the competition. Peace had been declared and the ancient National League accepted its new rival on an equal footing.

Contrast the financial picture of the first modern world's series with the million-dollar spectacles to which the American baseball public became accustomed in post-war boom days!

The total attendance for the five games played by the Giants and Athletics was 91,723, an average of about 18,000, as compared with the record of 63,000 at the Yankee Stadium in 1928.

The total receipts were $68,435, of which $27,384.20 was split among the players, each Giant collecting $1,142 and each Mackman $832.

Unassisted Triple Play Honors Taken By St. Louis Player

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 22 (AP)—The 1930 baseball season has sneaked under the wire with an unassisted triple play, one of the game's rarest accomplishments.

The feat was achieved yesterday by first baseman Wood of the Polish National Alliance Club of South St. Paul, in the Minnesota state amateur tournament.

Amateur Meet Attracts Many

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 22. (AP)—Amateur golfers of every age, size and shape gathered here today for the first 18-hole round of the 36-hole qualifying test of the 34th Amateur championship. They come from every section of the United States including one faraway territorial possession, Hawaii, and from England, Scotland and Cuba.

Today's field numbered 168, but tomorrow night only 32 will be left to go into the match play consisting of two 18-hole rounds Wednesday and 36-hole clashes through Saturday when the champion will be crowned.

In 1902, Bender was the most important pitching addition, second of the "Big Three" was to be completed later by Jack Coombs. Andy Conkley, product of Holy Cross College, also joined the curvy corps.

Boston nosed out the Athletics in a close race in 1903 and the Red Sox, again skillfully managed by Jimmy Collins, repeated in 1904, but Mack regained the upper hand in 1905. Plank, Waddell and Bender pitched great ball all season, but just before the world's series the Ruben wandered from the reservation and was still A. W. O. L. when the big battle began.

Mack never forgave Waddell for "throwing him down" at this important juncture. The eccentric shipped to St. Louis, even though he still had a lot of stuff left in his pitching arm. In fact, Waddell took particular delight in beating his old team-mates. In 1908 he set an American League record by striking out 16 of the Athletics.

The champion Athletics of 1903 were on the decline and Mack soon was forced to undertake one of his famous reconstruction programs. The team dropped to fourth in 1906, but braced and finished second to Detroit in 1907, done somewhat to the acquisition of Jimmy Collins, former Boston manager and one of the best third basemen of all time.

Again the team slumped, finishing sixth in 1908 and Mack ripped it apart. He combed the colleges, sandlots and minor league for young talent.

The result was the formation of Mack's greatest team, if not the greatest baseball machine of all time. The Athletics of 1909, already sensational, were runners-up to Detroit again. The following year they embarked upon a campaign of triumph unrivaled by any American League team until the famous Yankees of post-war six-digit days battered their way six times to the top.

Captains Aggies Hutto, Brown Doubles Champs

Dunnagan, Bishop Fall Before Pair 6-1, 7-5

Tom Hutto and Rayburn Brown took over the doubles championship of Big Spring by defeating Curt Bishop and H. B. Dunnagan in the final 6-4, 7-5. Perhaps an hour later, Dunnagan walked off the courts and Brown was in the finals along with Bishop his opponent of the summer meet. Brown won the first set 9-7 and was leading in the second 2-1 when his opponent defaulted.

With both teams playing rather listless tennis that was at times enlivened by brilliant shots scattered impartially throughout, the quartet Hutto and Brown defeated the pair of favorites at the net. Bishop, seeded No. 1 in singles because of his deadly volleying, lost point after point at the net and Dunnagan, placed at No. 2 because of his lobbing attack was seldom able to place the ball over the heads of the pair of giants. Brown's service featured the play, the tall Southwestern captain serving ten aces during the duration of the contest. Bishop and Dunnagan came up from 2-4 to tie the match in the second set but after breaking through Hutto's service no make the game 5 all, faltered and lost the remaining games rapidly. Brown and Bishop won for the point that won the title.

The singles test between the former stars of Southwestern and Texas respectively found Brown at his old game of running his opponent all over the court until at last he had beaten down all resistance. Dunnagan ping-ponged his way into a deuce set and for a while threatened to wear out the summer champion, but Brown dropped back to his chopping attack and Dunnagan defaulted after losing the third game of the second set.

Brown's victory assured another chapter of the rivalry between himself and Bishop, and practically clinched the fall championship for the blonde-haired defending (Miss) Bishop, whose greatest asset is his volleying that is sometimes sensational and sometime otherwise, has never been able to defeat the Southwestern star. Brown won the final match of the summer tourney in straight sets 6-4, 6-4, 6-0.

Jack Sharky Is Set For Campolo

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Jack Sharky, Boston sailor man, hopes to take apart Victorio Campolo Thursday night and see what makes him tick.

The Giant Argentine heavyweight is the one big question mark among the heavyweights. The bouts he has fought so far in this country have failed to afford the experts with a satisfactory indication as to his prowess but his match with Sharky at the Yankee Stadium should decide his status once and for all.

With nothing in particular at stake, Sharky may be depended upon to fight one of his good battles and if he does, Campolo may go the way of Willis, Delaney and Loughran, all of whom found Sharky entirely too tough and ready. Sharky will give away gains of weight, height and reach to the South American but nevertheless looks like a good 2 to 1 shot to win.

News Briefs

VENICE—There's a new golf course on the Lido, made of sand dunes, sod from St. Andrews itself and water hazards galore. It's a fifteen minute ride by motor launch from Venice.

NEWARK, N. J.—Thomas A. Edison, a new aviation fan, is amazed by a windmill plane that goes up and down almost vertically. For the second time in four days he visited the airport and asked questions from drinks of hot milk from a vacuum bottle. "By gosh," he exclaimed, "you have them now so they'll do anything but chew tobacco."

MESSINA, Italy—A mechanical lion 12 feet high, which will be atop a clock on the tower of the Messina Cathedral will lift up its head at noon and roar. An eight-foot cock will crow at sunrise and sunset.

VIENNA—If a scientist views the situation correctly, 60 per cent of the women in Europe between the ages of 20 and 30 are destined to remain unwed. He gave his opinion to the International Sexual Reform conference.

Camps

EVER notice how much more improvement the boys of all camps than after a summer camp?

There seems to be as much good reason for a board of education to acquire property for and to run a good public camp for boys and girls as there is for running a day school building.

Many youngsters now spend more waking hours in camp than they do in school.

There is a good reason for this. There is good evidence that health gains are made during a summer in camp that are not attained by a year of schooling.

There is also evidence that happiness depends more upon the spirit of companionship and loyalty which is developed in camp than upon the literature and music of the school.

It is not the worthy use of the camp as a school building.

I am especially impressed with the character and atmosphere of the camp which results. There are no artificial barriers between the boys and girls of different camps.

Germany's Hard Times

If you think times are hard in the United States, try the times in Germany.

A recent news dispatch from Ruth Finney reporter points out that of 40,000,000 German men and women of voting age, nearly one-third are dependent on public funds for food and shelter.

Wage reductions are proposed for German industry, but skilled workers only average $16.25 a week, and the unskilled workers get around $10.

This makes our own depression look like a beautiful prospect.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Knowledge, a Check To Communism

FROM two widely separated points of the world compass come simultaneous reports of new revolutionary machinations on the part of agents of the Third International.

In Cairo the Egyptian government, for the fourth time since 1928, has arrested individuals sent into the country to recruit pupils for the College of Communist Propaganda in Moscow.

At the same time a police raid on a Communist gathering place in Shanghai disclosed documents identical with orders recently intercepted in Central China, which indicate that the weight of Moscow's authority is back of the stubborn efforts of Chinese Communists to capture the city of Changsha.

Both Egypt and China are regarded among revolutionists, as likely fields for Communist advance, and both, accordingly, are being assiduously cultivated.

The next 12-month period, however, is likely to bring more such disclosures. The present world-wide economic depression is made to order for the propagandist of Communism.

SUFFERING OF NINE YEARS NOW ENDED

Prominent Farmer's Wife Had Tried Every Kind of Treatment She Could Hear of But Got No Relief Until She Took Argotane.

"Argotane has really worked wonders in my wife's case," said J. H. Caps, residing on rural route 2, Lubbock, Texas.

"For almost nine years," continued Mr. Caps, "my wife suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia, and during the past four months, especially after she had an attack of influenza she had been growing steadily weaker and hardly able to get around at all.

"She had tried everything imaginable with no results until I got Argotane on the recommendation of a personal friend who had used it with good results. She had been suffering with very bad kidney trouble and pains from the small of her back and it was almost impossible for her to get a good night's sleep.

"We tried doctors, but she continued to suffer. Her stomach would cramp and she had something awful after eating and she had severe headaches. Her nerves seemed to give way and she had been unable to get out of bed for some time.

"But it is all different now since she was induced to try Argotane, and after taking three bottles I can truthfully say she feels better in every way than she has in at least nine years. Her sleep is sound and peaceful and it is such a relief to be able to eat what she wants without suffering those terrible pains afterwards. We feel grateful and are truly too glad to tell others about the medicine that has done so much for my wife.

General Argotane may be bought in The Spring at Collins-Rose Drug Store.

HOLLYWOOD Let's be kind and call him Jack, which isn't his name.

Nearly three years ago, he was being acclaimed as a sure winner because of a fine performance in one of those "ten best pictures" of the year.

He could have had almost anything he wanted in the way of movie roles. His manager thought he was the best bet in the business.

But he looked without Jack and Jack's weakness.

The Jack became what is commonly known as a lush. He liked the stuff and drank it freely, and would eat fat on the way to Hollywood as a matter of course.

CHAPTER 13 A WORTHLESS CHECK

Lanterns flicked in the witness stand and the jury looked at the first witness.

The first witness was a man in a dark suit and a light-colored shirt. He looked nervous and his hands were shaking.

"What time was that?" eagerly asked Penfield.

"At what time was that?" eagerly asked Penfield.

"Did you recall whether or not Jack Winslow left the card room before Ferguson told you of finding Dr. Kane's body?"

"Sure, he went upstairs to get his check book."

"At what time was that?" eagerly asked Penfield.

"Did Dr. Kane join your party?" "No."

"Did Jack Winslow give you a check for his losses?"

"I had pulled from the water by James Murray, his manager, and others who watched the leap from a motor boat. At the medical center surgeons said he was dead of a fractured spine.

Murray was held on a technical charge of homicide. He said Terry had made the leap under contract with the party. This was denied in a statement issued by the News which said that Terry had offered exclusive rights to pictures of the leap and the paper had accepted and had the papers of a reporter at the scene. Terry, whose home was at exit tanning, Pa., made a profession of stunts such as leaping from one airplane to another, walking slack wires between loft buildings and landing from airplanes going at high speed.

Leap Kills Daredevil

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Norman J. Terry, 24-year-old professional daredevil, was killed yesterday in a 213-foot leap from the new Fort Lee bridge over Hudson river.

Thousands of motorists and pedestrians saw him leap from the center of the span, shoot downward feet first until near the surface of the river, then flatten backward, striking the water with terrific force, breaking his spine.

Terry mounted the partly completed structure late Saturday night and hid himself to elude watchmen who would have prevented the jump. He wore a bathing suit, trousers and gymnasium shoes. About his waist he had a corset-like arrangement to protect his ribs and a wooden device was fastened to his back to protect his spine.

Making his way along the narrow catwalk to the middle of the cable span, Terry poised for a moment with a large banner in his hand. Holding the banner above his head to act as the feather on an arrow and keep him perpendicular in jump.

household, next on the witness stand, was, distinctly married, or so the coroner thought, by the patches of red on each cheek, but while he attributed the over-brilliant color to rouge, Lucy's head felt light from the fever consuming her.

"Well, Miss Smith," The coroner's voice echoed loudly in Lucy's ears. "And what were you doing on Monday night, say between the hours of ten p. m. and two a. m.?"

"Please, sir, sleeping."

"Did you see Dr. Kane?" he inquired after a second's pause.

"I was in the hall when he got out of the elevator with Mr. Winslow," she responded. "Mr. Winslow told me to be sure and put plenty of clean towels in his bathroom, so I carried more in there. Dr. Kane had gone downstairs again."

"Penfield bent forward and gazed with disconcerting intensity at Lucy. "Are you quite certain, Miss Smith, that you were not disturbed in the night; for instance," as a frightened look crept into her eyes; "didn't you hear some woman crying?"

"N—no, sir." She spoke through chattering teeth. "I always sleep with my head under the bedclothes, and when I sleep, I sleep. So help me, Mr. Coroner, I didn't hear nothing, not a thing on Monday night."

Penfield listened to the girl's torrent of words with a skeptical air. "Remember, Miss Smith, you are here to tell the exact truth."

"I'm telling it to you." Her agitation was increasing. "If you crucified me, I couldn't tell you nothing different."

The evidence against Jack Winslow continued to pile up in tomorrow's exciting chapter. Is he guilty?

Hot and Bothered By the Mike

Words By GILBERT SWAN

Sketches By GEORGE CLARK

This minister... representative of a nation noted for its stolid calm... held an elaborate sheaf of notes... but his hand trembled so nervously that he could not read his own words

Amusing stories of very famous men who have quaked with fear when made to stand before a microphone and broadcast to unseen audiences

Prince Albert de Ligne of Belgium... had an enthusiastic listener in the form of a little daughter... She wanted him to speak to her... He did, told her to go to bed.

Will Rogers, audience-broker, was meddled on the air... until they gave him an audience in the studio. Then he became himself again.

STAGE FRIGHT is an old malady. And everyone has heard of folks who were camera shy. Complexes and phobias have become as common as measles with the popularity of the newer psychology.

But to date no name has been invented for the strange behavior to be observed in the big radio broadcasting rooms. It might be termed "microphone panic," or possibly just "mike madness."

And the bigger they are the harder they have often fallen.

World figures—diplomats, foreign celebrities, national statesmen and even the performers of the stage and screen have been known to behave most singularly once they were barricaded in the little broadcasting room with only a microphone and an announcer between them and "that great unseen public" that you hear so much about.

"That great unseen public" has many a laugh coming at the expense of men who are world figures.

For the average man, whatever his station in the world of affairs or of public entertainment, is still quite caused to "do his stuff" in a theoretical vacuum. The reactions are widely varied. Men who have faced vast audiences and swayed them with a fiery phrase tremble like stage amateurs upon their first appearance. Others, accustomed to facing crowds, forget time and place while prancing about as though on a platform, ignoring the fact that the microphone must receive first consideration.

Thus, anyone who has ever watched Rudy Vallee perform, for instance, will have noticed that he seems to be caressing the little instrument of sound conveyance, with his head nestled against it as though relaxing on a comfortable pillow.

ON the other hand, I have it from the "inside history" of the Columbia station that one of the ranking foreign ambassadors, whose name is deleted because of the confidential nature of the occurrence, was called upon to speak at a Sunday afternoon "Conclave of Nations" program broadcast from Washington.

A number of other features preceded his appearance before the "mike" and, having been advised to arrive early, he had been sitting around for some 10 or 15 minutes waiting his turn. As the minutes went by he appeared to grow more and more restless, perching on the edge of his chair and glancing frequently at his notes.

A few moments before he was to begin, a studio assistant came to him and whispered that he would go on at a given signal. Suddenly the mike was shoved before his very nose and the first words the "unseen audience" heard from this world famous figure were "Well, is it my turn to talk now?"

So embarrassed was he at discovering that this had gone out to the listeners that he stammered and stammered for several moments before swinging into his talk.

Will Rogers, with years and years behind him as a public performer and national clown, presents an interesting case of "audience psychology." When Rogers was first broadcast, a station arrangement was hooked up in his western home because business affairs kept him there. And the story goes that the two maiden efforts, while fair enough, were not in the true Rogers style. They were so-so, and that was about all.

Not so many weeks ago he was brought on to New York. Some smart studio psychologist figured out that Rogers was accustomed to having an audience laughing with and at him while performing and that this greatly added to his inventive ability as well as to his method of delivery.

An invited audience of some 600 persons packed the broadcasting room to the doors. Many of his old cronies from the days when he appeared in Ziegfeld shows were brought around for a reunion.

Rogers went on in high good humor. When he spun his funny lines, the 600 laughed and frequently applauded. Within a couple of seconds the "trouper" that is in all good theatrical folk had made its appearance. It was one of Rogers' most successful broadcasting performances, and he has been at ease ever since.

President Hoover... had to be broken of finger-tapping... which sounded like hoof-beats over the "mike."

CHARMINGLY human little moments often creep into broadcasts of famous people and the novelty of the "voice on the air" has its home as well as its public connotations. A wife or father or sister may be so accustomed to having a husband, son or brother appear in the public eye that it gets to be a monotonous commonplace. Having heard speeches time and again, they might not turn out to listen were a talk given in a public hall or theater. But they all tune in to hear "how he sounds on the air."

And this is the story of something that happened the first time that Prince Albert de Ligne, ambassador of Belgium, talked to that "great unseen public."

Before he left his ambassadorial quarters to make his bow to the American public, he left his wife and little daughter at the embassy. Like most children, his own little girl is quite a radio fan.

"Daddy, say something to me," she pleaded. And so he promised that somewhere in his speech she would get a message.

Half an hour later a celebrated foreigner was making a typically dignified address. Suddenly just before he closed he made a brief apology to the public.

"Now," said he, "I hope you will all pardon a personal word. I made a promise to my little daughter who is listening in on her daddy over at the embassy. I said I would have a message for her and here it is. 'It's time for you to go to bed now.'"

Admiral Byrd, who faced the terrors of the Polar region with a smile and a slap on the

Prince Alfonso of Spain... wanted to shout over the "mike" when told that the hoof-beats was nation-wide.

Senator Hiram Johnson... only on a great storm at the "mike"... he uttered involuntarily as though he was a horse.

GETTING warmed up to his subject, the senator began to appear. Quite oblivious of the fact that a very sensitive instrument was in front of him, he began to shake his finger at the "mike." Once or twice he tapped it—a slight matter which might possibly sound like an approaching hurricane.

But when he doubled up his fist and began to swing wildly, there was more than slight anxiety about the place. Suppose he should, by accident, hit it and knock it over! But fortunately back to his fellows, grows most serious-visaged and self-conscious in the face of so harmless an instrument as the "mike."

Anyone who observed him speaking into it in the introductory scenes of the remarkable film record of his exploits must have noticed how he dodged from looking into the camera lens and how uncomfortable he frequently appeared, often rocking up and down on the balls of his feet, though presumably at the wheel of a ship. News reels also caught something of this in scenes from his public broadcasting on the occasion of his welcome.

The young men who have control of the National Radio Forum at Washington will tell you, on the side, that Senator Hiram Johnson of California puts on a most amusing show when faced with a "mike."

Senator Johnson, as most of the nation knows, has more than a passing reputation for table thumping and fist slapping. In the heat of a controversial argument he will swing wildly in the air and shake a menacing finger by way of emphasis.

Well, it so happened that the senator went on the air with a speech concerning the London treaty and why America should reject it. He warmed up with about 180 words a minute, as against the normal rate of about 100 or 120.

Alister MacDonald... had to walk up 12 flights before broadcasting... He deprecated skyscrapers in his talk.

all the swings were misses, and a sigh of relief passed across the room. The senator mopped his perspiring brow and left the room, quite unaware of what had almost happened.

A favorite story of "amateur broadcasting":

THE Prince Alfonso of Spain, the first cousin of the king, it will be recalled, was a passenger on the recent Graf Zeppelin flight. Arrangement had been made for a broadcast from the Spanish embassy.

Just before he went before the "mike," Harry Butcher of the Columbia forces took him aside.

"You realize, of course," explained Butcher to the royal novice, "that we have the entire country linked. When you make your address it will carry over the entire nation. It will be carried 3000 miles out to the Pacific Coast."

The prince tried for a moment to grasp the extraordinary distance covered.

"In that case," remarked the prince, "I presume I shall have to shout, shall I not?"

During the winter, a minister from one of the more stolid countries whose reputation for calm unexcitability is considerable was called in on the Conclave of Nations series. He arrived with an elaborate sheaf of notes in his hand. But when he stood up to read them, his hand was trembling so nervously that he could not read his own words. He fell in time for a moment with his head down and sat down on the trembling hand, transferring his speech to the other. Soon the hand was shaking as badly as the rest.

In his perplexity the speaker looked wildly about for a second. Then he laid the papers flat upon a desk before him and sat on both his hands.

Naturally, the office staff had to keep a straight face while he presented this ludicrous picture of sitting there before the "mike," both of his hands tucked solidly under his legs so that they could no longer shake. He finished, almost petrified from nervousness and embarrassment.

And, until this moment, no one in the "great unseen audience" knew the difference.

SENATOR BORAH, though he animated the National Radio Forums and has a profound respect for the radio as a means of reaching the public, has a hearty dislike for the microphone.

The senator is another "audience man." The "mike" provides him with little inspiration. While admittedly one of the better radio speechmakers, his dislike in speaking to a funny-looking piece of metal has been shown in more than one speech.

One of the broadcasting surprises of the year came when James J. Davis, secretary of Labor, suddenly burst into song during a talk and showed the country that he had a first-rate tenor voice. It was the first time in history that a cabinet officer had gone into competition with the songsters of the air.

The late team of Moran and Mack, "Two Black Crows," had a method of broadcasting that always attracted studio attention. Having a "team act," with their lines typewritten before them, they kept linking up devices for being comfortable and at the same time close together.

Finally they perfected a plush-covered stand with two large grooves. Each stood in a groove, with the typewritten lines in front of them. And most comical they appeared.

Alister MacDonald, son of the British premier, caused more than a little comment when he made his initial broadcast. Those who tuned in on the visiting celebrity may have wondered at his antagonistic commentaries on skyscrapers and metropolitan life.

But just behind the scenes one could find an explanation. It so happened that young MacDonald was scheduled to talk on a Sunday. The elevators, for one reason or another, happened not to be running. So he had to climb some 12 stories to get to the broadcasting room. He arrived out of breath and in ill humor. All of which he reflected in his speech.

President Herbert Hoover had to be cured of a habit of tapping his fingers on a desk while he made his speeches. Reading from a script in front of him, the president did not realize that the sensitive "mike" magnified this tapping to the sound of hoof beats on a race track.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Oakland, Cal.
Did Christ die as a substitute for sinners?
No. For if He did why do sinners still die? If, however, you ask whether Christ died in behalf of sinners and not as their substitute, my answer is an ever-lasting yea and amen!

Punishment is only punishment when it is just and none can be punished for another's wrong without the impeachment of justice. But experience shows there is abundant suffering of the innocent for the guilty. This is not punishment in the commonly accepted sense. It is the fruit of that love which feels another's sin and woe. And Christ is its supreme example. He died because in Christ God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son, the mighty instrument of God's redeeming grace.

For the sake of Divine love and its active manifestations in saving efficiency our Lord endured that Cross, despising its shame, and made it radiate the heart of His Father to all mankind. Thus conceived and born, Christ's death, which should not be separated from His entire life of ministry, sorrow, sacrifice and triumph will set bring the world to His feet.

Pittsburgh, Pa.
The Book of Acts states that the disciples sold their property and brought the proceeds to the apostles for distribution to whomsoever had need. If I understand correctly this was communism. Why was it discontinued and how does it compare with communism in Russia?

The Communism of the early Church characterized its new relationship in Jesus Christ. The fraternal impulse of these primitive Christians prompted them to share their benefits with brethren more needy than themselves. This practice was purely optional and by no means universal. Consider the words of St. Peter in the fifth chapter of the Acts and the tenth verse. We further read that the more modest of John Mark had his own home in Jerusalem. Acts 12:12. A statement which implies that he did not share with his brethren.

Such generous devotion was testimony to the spiritual experience of Peter and his associates in the New Testament. It is important that it was regarded as commendable. The sixth chapter of Acts notes that difficulties arose about the distribution of goods and other resources.

Difficulties were a splendid opportunity for the spiritual growth of Peter and his associates. It is because of the different circumstances of Christian lands, various lands, never being the same, that truth of Christianity is a man in which is the sharing of one's bounty with a brother in need. Founding reports express the Apostle Paul's view that in the "charity of Christ" men should share with one another. In the material life, however, the sharing of goods is not a matter of principle, but a matter of opportunity.

What is the state of Protestantism in Germany since the revolution of 1918? Is there any book on this question which you can recommend?
The German Churches have been disestablished but not completely abandoned. Some territorial communities for instance Saxony, have adopted the episcopal form of government. The Evangelical Church of Prussia, which is the predominant partner of German Protestantism, rejected the episcopate. But its various bodies have united in an organization the common functions of which are limited.

Many of the pastors and people cleave to the old order of the State Church. But their more vigorous leaders are earnestly seeking to meet the demands and discharge the tasks of a new day. Principal Alfred E. Garvie, an infatigable friend of Germany's Christian institutions, reports that the younger clergy face the future with intelligence and courage.

Several outstanding volumes have written books you can read to advantage. Among these are the works of Dr. Otto Lieberich on "The Century of the Church" and Dr. Eric Stange on "The Church as Organism". These books breathe the ecumenic atmosphere which a gradually overcoming international prejudice and separation so far as

Cardinals Odds To Win Series Mount Upward

Cubs Move Into Second Place as Robins Lose

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer.
Odds in favor of St. Louis capturing the flag are lengthening as the Cubs were able yesterday to defeat the Robins at St. Louis. The New York Yankees, who were the favorite to win the pennant, were defeated by the Boston Braves, 4 to 2. A home run by Gabby Hartnett with Curt Darnall on base was required to win for Chicago as the Braves won the contest. The victory left the Cubs 2 1/2 games behind the Yankees and the Yankees' lead over the Boston Braves, 4 to 2.

Pittsburgh reported two trainings to ruin Baseball's season with a 7 to 6 victory. The game was a close affair, with the Cubs leading 4 to 0 in the first inning, but the Yankees, who were the favorite to win the pennant, were defeated by the Boston Braves, 4 to 2.

Herald Rental Ads Bring Tenants "On the Run"

The only regret that most users of Herald Rental Ads have, is that they only have ONE vacancy to rent to the people who want to rent their place.

The other day Mrs. J. D. Hill placed an advertisement about her 3-room apartment at 1201 Johnson "near the High School."

The apartment was rented... "and how." There were ten applicants in two days.

If you have a vacancy, don't wait for a tenant to "happen along"—place a Herald Classified Ad now.

Altus Bank Closed By Director's Order

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 22. (AP)—The First National Bank of Altus closed its doors today by order of its board of directors.

Affairs of the bank, established in 1902, were in the hands of E. J. Becker Jr., of Clinton, national bank examiner.

W. M. Ingram, active vice president, expressed hope that the bank could be reorganized.

The bank was capitalized at $60,000 and its statement of June 30 showed deposits of $37,961.

The decision to close was reached this morning at a special meeting of the board, which issued a statement signed by its members and by Becker.

Chauffeur Steals Milk To Save Starving Baby

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22. (AP)—Robert Stanton, 21, an unemployed chauffeur, was free today after convincing the police he stole two quarts of milk in an attempt to save his 5 month old baby from starvation.

Dormick Serlewick yesterday morning saw Stanton take two bottles of milk from the rear steps of his home. After taking the milk, Stanton started to run, but Serlewick intercepted his flight and overpowered him. During the scuffle both bottles were broken.

Arrested, Stanton spent several hours in jail before convincing police he stole the milk for his sick and undernourished baby. His wife and himself had gone without food for two days, he said.

After verifying Stanton's story, the dairy company and Serlewick refused to prosecute.

Young Man Decides Not To Drown Self; Falls In Accidentally

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Frank Seldner, tired of life at 31, went down the lake yesterday to commit suicide, and almost drowned. He was poised for a leap into the waves, but changed his mind after feeling how cold the water was. He started back along the pier and accidentally fell in. A policeman saved him, for which Seldner expressed gratitude.

Minnesota Bank Held Up; $1,200 Taken Away

MONTGOMERY, Minn., Sept. 22 (AP)—Two gunmen held up the First National Bank of Montgomery two minutes after it opened for business today, forced three clerks and a customer into the vault and escaped with about $1,200. They overtook approximately $5,000 hidden in the vault.

Six Million Dollar Bank Ordered Closed

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—The State Auditor, Oscar Nelson, today ordered the withdrawal of deposits from the First National Bank of Chicago because of depletion of the bank's reserves. Reorganization plans are under way, he added.

Drama Of Identification Is Unfolded In Ritz Headliner

Unfolding a real mystery of identification mingled with a very poignant human drama, "Road to Paradise" will open at the Ritz theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Loretta Young plays the dual role in this First National Vitaphone picture, and does it with a wistful charm and tenderness which stamp her as one of screenland's leading actresses.

The story concerns a girl who has been raised by a couple of crooks, played by George Barrard and Raymond Hatton. She has always wanted her father. However, when they discover one day the daughter of an old and wealthy family who bears a striking resemblance to her, they conceive a plot which, if she will participate in it, will make her independent of the small clothing and office jobs which always follow-up because her employer gets too fresh. She in turn is tempted in order to send one of the crooks to a sanitarium for his lungs.

The plot moves into the attempt against operation of a Public Theatre, the Paramount, here on Sunday. Abilene city officials attempted to padlock the theatre doors here yesterday, but were stopped by a temporary writ of injunction granted by District Judge W. R. Chapman an hour before scheduled opening time.

A resolution empowering the police, "with as many deputized citizens as may be needed," to padlock the show was passed by the city commission last Friday in secret session. Theatre attorneys got wind of the proposed action Sunday noon. Hearing on the injunction has been set for next Saturday morning in 104th district court. Meanwhile the city will continue prosecution of the manager and employees under a city ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows. Four cases have been set for trial this week.

Abilene City Dads Fail To Lock Theater

ABILENE, Tex., Sept. 22 (AP)—Continuing its six weeks battle against operation of a Public Theatre, the Paramount, here on Sunday, Abilene city officials attempted to padlock the theatre doors here yesterday, but were stopped by a temporary writ of injunction granted by District Judge W. R. Chapman an hour before scheduled opening time.

A resolution empowering the police, "with as many deputized citizens as may be needed," to padlock the show was passed by the city commission last Friday in secret session. Theatre attorneys got wind of the proposed action Sunday noon. Hearing on the injunction has been set for next Saturday morning in 104th district court. Episcopal Leader, Bishop Leonard, Dies

GAMBIER, Ohio, Sept. 22 (AP)—The death of Bishop William A. Leonard of the diocese of Ohio deprived the Protestant Episcopal church of one of its most noted leaders.

Bishop Leonard, who had presided over the Ohio diocese for 42 years, died at his summer home here yesterday from heart trouble and the infirmities of old age. He was 82 years old.

The end came after a courageous fight. His death had been expected momentarily since Friday night, but he appeared to rally and regained consciousness several times before he succumbed. He had been ill since last June when he was stricken while preparing to leave for Mt. Vernon to consecrate a church. It was the first time in his 42 years as a bishop that he had failed to keep a confirmation appointment.

Bishop Leonard was the oldest active bishop in the church, both in age and in point of service and twice was titular head of the church.

BAPTIST MINISTER DIES

MONROE, La., Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Manly E. Weaver, 64-year-old Baptist minister of Monroe, died yesterday after a brief illness. Dr. Weaver had held numerous positions in Louisiana and Texas. He is a native of Alabama. An interment will be at Blocton, Ala.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

G. F. Redlich, Minneapolis, Minn., nationally famous Rupture Appliance Expert, will demonstrate without charge his unequalled method at... BIG SPRING WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24 at the DOUGLASS (date from 11 A. M. to 4 P. M.)

Dr. C. F. Redlich says: "The 'Perfect Rupture Shields' hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expert adjustment device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

"IF YOU WANT TO HAVE IT DONE RIGHT—SEE REDLICH." Doctor J. W. Weaver, for many years in charge of the Physical Education of the students of Yale College, has recorded 75 per cent cures with this system. Mr. Redlich is internationally known and speaks English, German and Spanish.

Practical Use Is Found For Cosmic Rays

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor, PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 22 (AP)—The latest marvel of science—discovery of a practical use for cosmic rays—was revealed to the Nobel Prize winner in physics and president of the California Institute of Technology.

They are used in a new kind of barometer and promise he said, to extend the science of weather forecasting.

The discovery was largely due to a trip far into Canada toward the North Magnetic Pole from which Dr. Millikan returned a few days ago.

When science discovers something new, he remarked, man is sure to find a use for it. But finding a use for cosmic rays astonished even members of the National Academy, for this radiation is still one of the mysteries—so new that scientists disagree about its origin. The rays seem to come from outer space, and are so powerful that they penetrate about 200 feet of water and many inches of lead. X-rays are pigmies by comparison. Yet cosmic rays pass straight through man without being noticed. They are detected with electroscope.

Dr. Millikan, one of the leaders in proving their existence equally upon mountain tops, in balloons and deep in earth, believes they come from the tremendous energies expended in creation of matter somewhere in space.

Some other scientists hold they can come only from annihilation of matter, probably at millions of degrees in the hot centers of stars where substance is packed tightly at densities undreamed of on earth.

Dr. Millikan said, "we ourselves have though the evidence satisfactory that these rays are other waves of frequencies a thousand times and more than those of the hardest X-rays, but others have thought that they might not be other waves at all, but high speed electrons."

If they were the latter they would of necessity be influenced by the earth's magnetic field, and should be stronger near the magnetic pole than at low altitudes.
