Stenholm Finds S.A. Students Interested In Variety Of Issues

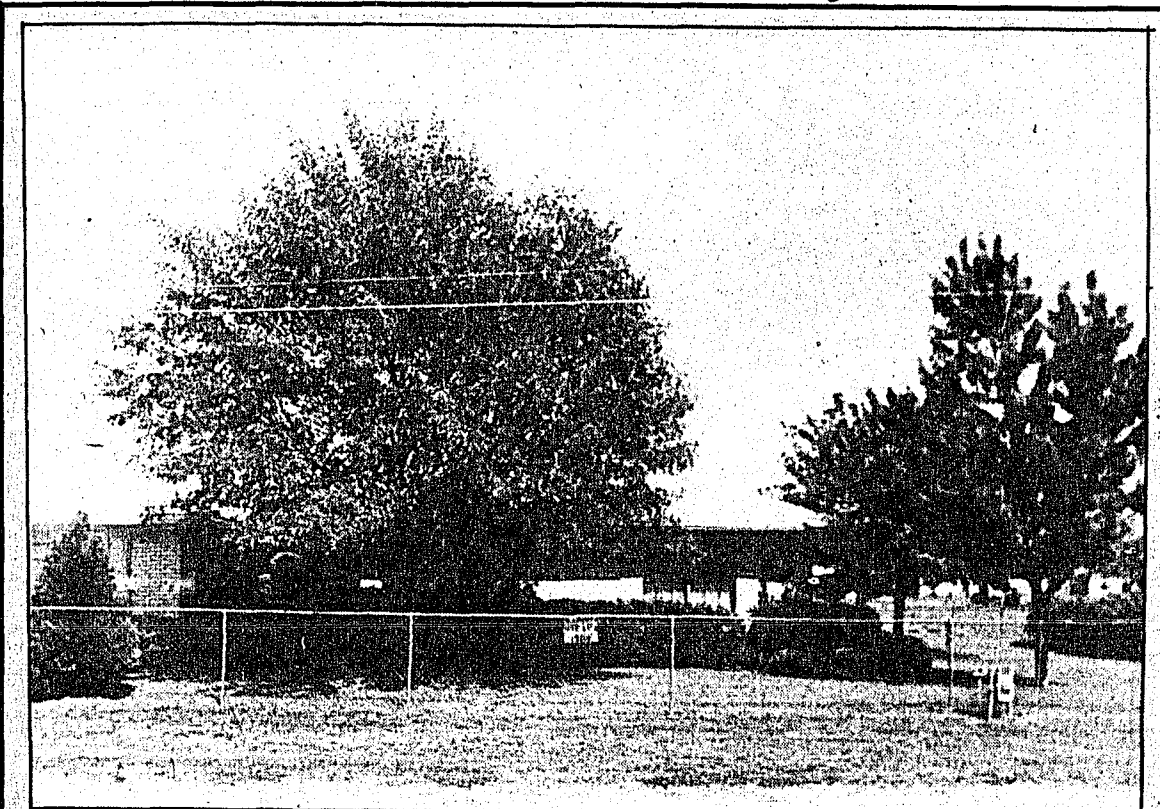

United States Congressman Charles Stenholm spoke to Santa Anna students at the high school auditorium during a recent visit in Santa Anna. He told them of his work as a U.S. Congressman and how a typical day in congress shaped up beginning with his arrival at his office at 7:30 a.m. and breakfast at 8:00 (sometimes as many as 3, depending on his schedule of visitors and/or business breakfast meetings. He generally holds a staff meeting at 9 a.m. and attends committee meetings beginning at 9:30. House sessions start at 10 and run until 6 p.m. on most days. Receptions are scheduled for 6 p.m. and he frequently has official dinners to attend from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. As many as three or four weekends a month are taken up for travel on congressional business, accompanied by his wife, Cindy, and by aide Jayne Schoonmaker.

Stenholm related to the students that the vote on the Persian Gulf War had been the most difficult he had cast - not because of the right or wrong of the issue - but because of the possibility of large numbers of American lives that could be lost in the conflict.

The congressman took questions from the floor and found that the students were interested in a variety of issues. Among the questions posed to the congressman were some concerning the national debt, responsibility for cost of the Gulf War, pollution of the environment, abortion, salary and honorariums, death penalty, student loans, lottery, rural hospitals and flag burning.

Santa Anna Pride Of The Month

The "Pride of the Month" honors for April go to Mr. and Mrs. Luther May whose lovely home is located at 603 S. Jefferson. The spacious yard is always neatly manicured and landscaping is beautiful without being overdone. When this picture was taken, the back yard was one solid bouquet of bluebonnets. The "Pride of the Month" is chosen by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce to promote pride in our community and surroundings.

County Schools May Gain Under News Finance Bill

AUSTIN - Here's how the public education finance bill signed into law Monday morning will affect Coleman County school district.

These figures supplied to lawmakers prior to their vote on Thursday do not necessarily reflect the final impact on each school district.

The computer projections are based on a number of assumptions, including the tax rate a district might set and the student population projected for each year.

In addition, the local property tax rates listed are not official rates but have been adjusted to reflect actual tax collections per $100 valuation.

Revenue shown is total revenue - state, county, and district - for each pupil. Pupil count is based upon average attendance. All figures were supplied by the Texas Education Agency.

Although the exact impact on various districts has been disputed by opponents of the plan, the TEA computer printout shows a positive impact on Coleman County School. Projected district per-pupil revenue totals follow.

Coleman - Currently $4,457 per year at a tax rate of $1.52, changing to $5,231 at a tax rate of $1.52 in the 1991-92 school year and by 1994-95 changing to $6,379 at a tax rate of $1.52.

Santa Anna - Currently $5,247 per year at a tax rate of $1.09, changing to $6,042 at a tax rate of $1.09 in the 1991-92 school year and by 1994-95

Surveying: Sometimes taxable, sometimes not

School's nearly out for the summer, and many families who are anticipating a move will be putting their homes on the market.

Homeowners who have their property surveyed must pay sales tax for the service. Sales tax is due when property boundaries are determined and the location of existing buildings or other lot improvements in relation to the property boundaries is figured.

But not all surveying is taxable. Examples of tax-free surveying services include topographical surveying; aerial surveying; tree surveying; and construction staking and surveying to determine how a structure will be situated on a site.

Capitol Comments

By State Representative
Bob Turner

(WEEK OF APRIL 8-12) — Last week the House had the opportunity to be addressed by Russian Cosmonaut Valentine Lebedev (through an interpreter). He addressed the importance of cooperation between Russia and the United States, not only in the exploration and peaceful utilization of space, but in world problem solving, as well.

On Friday of this week the Senate and House will meet in joint session, and be addressed by Carlos Salinas de Gortari - President of the Republic of Mexico. For this occasion, I asked Mr. and Mrs. Raul Martinez of Brownwood to be my guests. Mr. Martinez has a business, "Motivation, Education and Training," located in Brownwood.

Today, the House passed SB 115 by Sims (Berlinga) which makes it a crime to interfere, without the owner's consent, with animals used in agriculture, research, testing, education, or on exhibition, or with vehicles, building, premises where animal records or animals are bred or kept. The American Association of Medical Colleges reports that in the last five years over $4.5 million and 33,000 hours of labor have been lost to demonstrations, break-ins, vandalism and similar incidents at medical schools. This increases the costs of biomedical research which, in turn, increases health care costs. Researchers are being threatened and harassed, and some even have left the research field. Animal-rights-type incidents involving agriculture have been increasing throughout the country. This bill, however, will not affect the legitimate actions of the majority of animal rights groups that do not break the law when trying to express their views.

As I write this, school finance seems to be providing on-going, heavy debate and concern for school districts of the 65th District and the State of Texas.

The week before, House Bill 6 by Representative Seidbids was passed by the House and provided some relief in the area of product Liability Reform, a real help to independent and smaller retailers and wholesalers.

In the next few weeks, we will be considering legislation in such areas as: HB 875 - allowing a teacher in an ISD to also serve as trustee in the same school district; HB 1465 - limiting school board members to not more than 4 years; HB 1295 - doing away with franchise tax and replacing it with a corporate income tax - just to name a few.

I welcome your comments and suggestions and urge you to write or call on any issue of interest to you. My address in the State Capitol is: P.O. Box 2910, Austin, TX 78768-2910 and my phone number is (512)463-0644.

Absentee Voting Open City & School Board Elections

The absentee voting period began Monday and will continue thru April 30 for the local City and School Board Elections. Emergency absentee voting can take place until election day, May 4 for persons meeting certain requirements due to illness, accidents, or death in the family, any of which occurring after April 25.

Absentee voting in the City election is taking place at the City Hall and school board absentee voting at the school administration office.

In the City elections, Mayor Gale Brock is opposed by Susie Voss. Jim Spillman is seeking re-election to the city council and is joined on the ballot by Danny Kellar, John Morris, Norman Asher and Craig Terry. Two places on the council are to be filled by the election.

Sharon Guthrie, Barbara Simmons and Eddie Jones are vying to fill two places on the Santa Anna school board.

MONEY TALK

Kay Bailey Hutchison
TEXAS STATE TREASURER

Editor's Note: Texas State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison answers questions about personal finance and state government. These questions are compiled from timely issues of concern facing Texas and Texans. Answers, however, are not intended to replace the advice of reputable financial advisers or other professional counselors.

Q. I received a letter in the mail from a company indicating that it had found $350 in unclaimed money in my name. The company offered to retrieve it, but charge me a finder's fee. Is this legal?

A. In recent weeks, we have received several inquiries such as yours. Under state law, so called "their finders" are entitled to a fee of up to 10 percent. However, that law applies only to money or property in the Texas Unclaimed Money Fund. There is no such law regarding unclaimed funds in county coffers. We have received information that a company is charging as much as 50 percent to retrieve county homestead exemptions refunds for property owners. I do not want people to fall prey to exorbitant fees such as this because it is a free service that county or state government can provide.

If you have money or property being held by the Treasury in the state's unclaimed money fund, my office will provide service, searching the records and returning the money, for free. And it's never too late to claim it.

If you have any questions, please call our toll-free line at 1-800-654-3463, or write the Texas Treasury at P.O. Box 17728, Austin, Texas, 78760.

If you receive a card and are not listed in the state records, call your county tax assessor-collector to see if you are entitled to a homestead exemption which you have not requested or if you are on any other county list.

I would like to take this opportunity to say thanks to all those who loved my sister Marie Hellman, as I did.
Thanks to all who expressed their love and concern at the time of her passing and who were truly good friends to her during her eight years in Santa Anna.
Lucille Teeters & Son,
Tommy Blanton

Library Notes

Check It Out

By Betty Key

The library has been given a hardbound copy of Valley of Horses by Jean M. Auel. This is the second book in her Earth's Children Series. As far as I can determine, our library does not have a copy of book one, The Clan of the Cave Bear. There may be a paperback copy that someone has out, I am not sure. We have a new copy of The Mammoth Hunter which is book three of the series. Book four, Plains of Passage is just out and can be found in book stores. I am told Ms. Auel is in the process of writing another in the series. A friend of mine, who has read Plains of Passage says that Ms. Auel has to write at least one more book because she left the main characters at the beginning of another adventure.

It would be nice if our library could have the complete series some day, but for now, enjoy the books we do have.

All these are well written novels with an interesting story line. Ms. Auel has done a great deal of research so that she can recreate the prehistoric world as it really might have been.

There is one thing that I don't not care for in this series — I wish that what happened "between the furs" was not described in such detail. Maybe I am getting old, but I believe what some of the characters do in bed should be left to the reader's imagination. I solved the problem by skipping a page now and then. For the most part, these are excellent books.

You are invited to read these and other books available at your public library.

Come by and CHECK IT OUT!

Hospital Applies For Grant For Physician Recruitment

Facing a critical financial crisis, the Board of Trustees of Overall-Morris Memorial Hospital has made application to the Health Care Financing Administration for a Rural-Health Care Transition Grant. The announcement was made Monday by Glen D. Bunn, Chief Executive Officer.

The Federal Grant, if approved, would assist the hospital in the field of physician recruitment for Coleman County over a period of three years and up to $50,000 per year.

According to Bunn, the hospital meets the criteria of the grant program because (1) OMMH is currently being paid as a rural hospital under Medicare Prospective Payment System; (2) OMMH is a non-Federal, not-for-profit short term general acute care hospital; and (3) OMMH has less than 100 beds.

Bunn said that is the grant is approved, the funds will be used for guarantees of new physicians for Coleman.

Bunn hopes that Overall-Morris Memorial Hospital will be one of approximately 100 hospitals for which the Department of Human Resources will be making awards from this solicitation for grants.

For some time now it has been necessary to dip into reserve funds to meet hospital expenses. According to a report issued last week, those reserve are about depleted and it appears that without financial assistance from source, the facility can only operate about four more months.

Overhead has been reduced and some more cuts can possibly be made but Medicare regulations and requirements limit reductions, as the hospital is required to meet certain levels of service, regardless of the patient load.

Efforts have been in progress for some time to secure more doctors, which would be helpful to the hospital operation.

In a report published in the Coleman newspaper last week, it seemed apparent there is some thinking along the lines of possibly trying to establish a hospital district so that taxes could be collected to help operate the hospital.

This, of course, would be matter that would have to be taken before the voters.

Police Report

Chief of Police Carlos Torres has filed the following report concerning police activity in the city during the month of March.

He reports 35 calls that required police action.

Five arrests were made; 3 for shoplifting; one for DWI; and one on a warrant from Coleman.

Two Thefts are being investigated. On another theft case, the owner of stolen property was contacted and they decided not to file charges if the stolen items were returned. The property was returned to the owner.

Torres reported writing 8 tickets and 2 written warnings.

He worked one traffic accident, and investigated two charges of harassment.

Others calls or complaints broke down as follows:

Suspicious persons 3; loud music 2; animal abuse 1; animals running loose (cows and goats) 5; assist motorists 2; hotrodding 2; car fire 1; prowler 1; suspicious vehicles 1; welfare concerns 1; medical alarm 1; inquest 1; smoke alarm at residence 1.

NEVER PREACHED

There never was a sermon delivered or preached that had a chance of beating a good example.

Welfare Office Will Sponsor Family Fun Day Saturday

The Coleman County Child Welfare Office in conjunction with KC Hobbies and Crafts will be presenting the county's first "Fun Day" Saturday, April 20, at Coleman Rodeo Grounds. All proceeds from the Fun Day activities will go to the Child Welfare Office.

Appraisal Board Report Shows Tax Collections Down Slightly

The Coleman County Appraisal District board of directors met Monday, April 8, for the monthly session at the district office in Coleman. Barbara Kingsbery, chairman, led the session.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and monthly bills and accounts were approved for payment. Chief Appraiser Bill Jones reviewed the budget status and financial report.

Jones reported that tax collections for the eight taxing entities in Coleman County were over one hundred thousand dollars for the month of March, being 85 percent of the current taxes. The collections for the year are slightly below the same time last year.

The 1992 budget was discussed and changes made. The proposed budget will be reviewed and approved at the May meeting and submitted to the taxing entities during that month.

Other board members attending the meeting were Jack Knox, Dwight Nanny, Max Horne and D.G. Allen.

About 55 percent of adult Iraq's cannot read or write.

ANXIETY

Teen's Grooming: Obsession — Or Growing Pains?

By Jerilyn Ross
 Anxiety Disorders Association

Q: My teenage son spends an awful lot of time getting ready to go out. He's unable to make sure it isn't my imagination, I timed him one morning and found that he spent a half hour combing his hair. When I commented on this, he said he wanted to look good. What do you make of this?

A: A certain amount of "butterflies" or nervousness is normal before making a speech, and often, it is this response that gets us "up" to do a good job. However, if your husband's anxiety is so intense that he can't give the speech, or if thinking about it distracts him to the point that it interferes with normal activity, he may have a social phobia. People with a social phobia have extreme anxiety about behaving in a way that might cause embarrassment, and they go to great lengths to avoid these situations. Social phobia is often dismissed as "nerves," but about 1.5 percent of the population suffers from a social phobia that would benefit from treatment. These phobias are highly treatable with psychotherapy, medication or a combination of the two.

Questions for Ms. Ross or requests for information about anxiety disorders should be sent to the Anxiety Disorders Association of America (ADAA), 6000 Executive Blvd., #200, Rockville, MD 20852-3801. Ross is president of ADAA and associate director of the Roundhouse Square Psychiatric Center in Alexandria, Va.

A: The key question is whether the haircombing is part of a pattern. By itself it is probably no big deal. Teenagers are often extremely concerned about their appearance, and your son may merely be going through some of the common teen struggles with self-esteem. Although much teen behavior seems excessive to parents, most of it turns out to be a short-lived annoyance.

If the lengthy exercise in grooming is just one manifestation of a need to be "perfect" and if your son can't get on with his normal activities because of this, it could be a sign of an obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD). Individuals with OCD feel compelled to perform some ritual to relieve anxiety about a specific concern. If your son refuses to leave the house because his appearance is "wrong" or everything isn't perfect, it would be a good idea to consult a therapist.

Cooking Lean

High-fat foods are on a "diet" these days. Throughout the supermarket are many low-fat versions of familiar foods. However, there also are many foods that are naturally low in fat. Yet we often turn them into high-fat foods by the way we prepare them. For example, we drown our popcorn in margarine or butter and top low-fat salad with rich dressing.

Health experts recommend that we limit the amount of fat in our diets. There are a couple of good reasons for doing so, says Mary Helen Gunkler, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal.

First of all, research shows that heart disease and elevated blood cholesterol levels may be related to high-fat, high-cholesterol diets. Secondly, fat contributes nine calories per gram—over twice as many calories as carbohydrate or protein foods. So, low-fat cooking and eating can be well worth the effort. Here are some low-fat cooking techniques to try out in your kitchen:

- Avoid deep-frying or pan-frying in excess oil. Instead, stir-fry meats and vegetables in minimal oil. Try low-fat cooking methods, too, such as broiling, poaching and steaming.
- Throw out the fatty drippings. Baste meats with wine, unsalted broth, tomato juice or fruit juice.
- Place meat on a rack when roasting, broiling or braising.
- Cook foods in a non-stick skillet using vegetable cooking spray.
- Make broth for soups and stocks lower in fat. Just chill and skim off the fat.
- Choose lean varieties of red meats and trim excess fat before cooking. Also, substitute poultry and fish.
- Try nonfat or low-fat yogurt in salad dressings and dips. Low-fat sour cream and cottage cheese also are available.
- Serve dried beans, peas or lentils as low-fat protein sources. They also provide complex carbohydrates, including fiber.

Many of our higher fat preparation techniques are simply habits ingrained over years of cooking. So, developing new habits may be challenging. Gunkler suggests moving gradually into low-fat cooking. With just one change each week, you'll be an expert at low-fat cooking in no time at all.

Debt collection services are taxable

Bill collectors can collect more than debts. They can also collect state and local sales tax for their services.

Even if they're collecting debts for a company which isn't based in Texas, sales tax is due on their service if two conditions are met: the creditor is doing business in Texas and the debtor's last known address was in Texas at the time the debt was assigned for collection.

There was a good turnout this year with most bikers riding at least 50 miles and two walkers who walked 25 miles. Participants were treated to blizzards at Dairy Queen at the conclusion of the day's activities. Club members thank everyone who helped support their activity. Riders are, back row: Missy Marshall, Nathan Starr, Phillip Dodgen, Scotty Dowdy, David Beam, Anna Pearce and Kristi Beam. # High-Tech Texas Has Deep Roots In Agriculture

By Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry
April 1991

From the Superconducting Super Collider in Waxahachie to Sematech in Austin, high-tech enterprise has placed Texas on the cutting edge of new and exciting industries. Economic sectors that were just a dream a few years ago now are diversifying and expanding our economy.

This economic transformation clearly is remarkable. Yet, it shouldn't blind us to the tremendous contribution still made by our most fundamental industry—agriculture—not only to our economy, but to our lifestyle, our values and even our outlook. To be sure, today's high-tech industries are being built on the strong foundation laid by agriculture, by farmers and ranchers who long have been and continue to be innovators of technology.

Farming and ranching is now our state's second largest industry—providing work, either directly or indirectly, for one out of every five Texans. Today some 186,000 farms and ranches—more than in any other state in America—dot our landscape, generating $11 billion a year in sales and pumping more than $32 billion into the Texas economy.

In fact, we now are the nation's top producer of four leading mainstream commodities: livestock, cotton, wool and mohair. Our annual livestock sales total nearly 50 percent of our state's agricultural income. We generate 16 million pounds of wool a year and raise 90 percent of the country's Angora goat population. Last year, we produced four million bales of cotton—one-third of the entire U.S. production.

It should come as no surprise, then, that Texas is the second largest agricultural producer in America, behind only California. Our food and fiber system is one of the most vital in the world, and the quality of our goods and products is unbeatable. Truly, we stand head and shoulders above all others when it comes to the production of good and wholesome commodities. However, too much of what we produce is being sent out of state for processing. Others are adding value to our commodities and profiting as a result.

The unfortunate fact is Texas now lags far behind the rest of the world in treating, preparing or refining what it produces. For instance, two-thirds of all foreign imports entering our country are processed goods. Nationally, 20 percent of all commodities are taken to the processing stage in the state where they are produced.

But in Texas, that number is 8 percent. We ship 92 percent of all Texas-grown commodities to others for processing—meaning we also send them our jobs and dollars that otherwise would go into Texans' pocketbooks.

It's time we changed all that. It's time we increased our exports not only of raw commodities, but of processed goods. It's time we kept our jobs and our opportunities at home. As your new, Commissioner of Agriculture, I am committed to doing just that by working with farmers and ranchers—with business and industry as a whole—to increase our in-state processing and our agricultural export trade.

Let me give you an example of the potential in adding value to our commodities through processing. If Texas processed an additional 5 percent of its raw products, an estimated 30,000 new jobs in agriculture and manufacturing would be created. Income would increase by $500 million, and our state's economy would enjoy a $2.5 billion boost.

The possibilities are remarkable, the potential striking. Agriculture, this most renewable of resources, continues to have the capacity to create new jobs, to nurture economic growth and to serve as a pillar of strength for our economy.

In the coming months, I plan to discuss some of the new initiatives we are developing at the Texas Department of Agriculture to seize the opportunities in our food and fiber industries. At the department, we are dedicated to helping mainstream producers reap the benefits of their hard work and, at the same time, bolster the statewide economy.

How Can You Protect Yourself Against Telemarketing Fraud?

Know as much as possible about the products or services you are considering buying, says National Futures Association (NFA), a self-regulatory organization for the nation's commodity futures industry.

In conjunction with two federal agencies and the Alliance Against Fraud in Telemarketing, NFA published Swindlers are Calling, which gives you the steps to take and questions to ask when you receive a telephone sales call.

"Insistence on an immediate decision" is a tip-off that the caller could be a crook, says the brochure, which also lists 10 ways to avoid becoming a victim. Remember, if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

For a free copy of Swindlers are Calling, or for more information about NFA, call toll-free 800-621-3570; in Illinois, 800-572-9400.

Whon News

By Mrs. Tom Rutherford

Seemingly we cannot report any rain in our vicinity for the week. But from reports from other places, the rain is really falling. Talking to Graham Fitzpatrick collecting his news., The past few days he had a cousin to pass away at Leander, somewhere around Austin. Mrs. Fitzpatrick's brother of Brady called Graham. They went for the funeral service. Lightning struck the chapel or building and did some damage. So moved the service to the church auditorium. The rain continued to fall when the service was over, They could not get to the cemetery for the water and the grave was filled with water. So it isn't dry everywhere.

TEXAS SENATE WEEK IN REVIEW

AUSTIN—The Texas Legislature finally passed public school finance reform legislation late Thursday, April 11, with a court master deadline on Monday, April 15. The bill is ready for the Governor's signature. (Signed Monday) The Texas Supreme Court ruled the state's current funding system unconstitutional in October of 1989. The Legislature attempted to solve the funding crisis in four special sessions in 1990, but the last attempt was ruled unconstitutional by the courts and the April 1 deadline was instated. Lieutenant Governor Bob Bullock praised Senator Carl Parker of Port Arthur as the conference committee report on Senate Bill 351 was finally adopted by the full Senate. The Senate vote was 21 ayes to 10 nays, and the House vote was 92 ayes to 57 nays. The bill is scheduled to go into effect September 1 pending acceptance by the courts.

The Senate also passed landmark environmental legislation on Thursday. Senate Bill 1099 sponsored by Senator Steve Carraker of Roby, relates to permitting of hazardous waste facilities. The legislation allows more citizen participation, and provides new siting requirements for hazardous waste disposal. The legislation now goes on to the House.

The Senate and House met today in Joint Session to hear an address by President Carlos Salinas de Gortari of Mexico. President Salinas was met on the front steps of the State Capitol by Governor Ann Richards, Lieutenant Governor Bob Bullock, and Speaker of the House Gib Lewis, and escorted to the Governor's office where they met briefly in private, before going to a reception with the members of the Senate Hispanic Caucus, and members of the House Mexican-American Caucus. President Salinas was then escorted to the House Chamber where he addressed the full Legislature. The address was given in Spanish with copies of the speech given to all participants. This is the first time a President of Mexico has ever given an address to the Texas Legislature. He was in the state to discuss free trade agreements between the United States and Mexico.

The Senate stands adjourned until 11:00 am Monday, April 15.

America's Artist: Norman Rockwell

Norman Rockwell's professional career spanned more than 60 years, and his tremendously popular paintings portrayed ordinary Americans immersed in their everyday lives.

Born in New York City in 1894, young Rockwell showed an early talent for portrait painting. At 13, he enrolled at the Chase School of Art and later attended the National Academy of Design, where he and two other students signed a vow in blood never to make more than $50 a week and to strive for the highest in art. At 16, Rockwell entered the Art Students' League, and while there, he became a commercial artist and illustrator.

In 1916, after five years of free-lancing with little success, Rockwell submitted a magazine cover to the Saturday Evening Post. It was accepted, and from that time on he was counted as first rate among American illustrators. In fact, he ultimately was best known for the covers he painted for the Post.

Rockwell's early cover paintings often featured children, elderly people and dogs in amusing situations, and he continued to draw similar subjects throughout his career. His specialty was the typical American in the everyday situation. He adored small-town life, and often treated his subjects with touches of nostalgic humor. The American public could relate to Norman Rockwell — he truly seemed to know them.

Rockwell's painting process was fairly complex. He made preliminary sketches, a complete full-size charcoal drawing from life and a smaller color sketch; then traced the charcoal drawing onto the final canvas. The actual painting would take anywhere from two weeks to two months. Rockwell wore bifocal lenses, divided perpendicularly, so that he could look alternately at the models and the easel. During this stage, his wife would read to him.

Though loved by the public, many art critics dismissed Rockwell's work as lacking artistic merit and authentic social observation. One New York Times writer commented on this unfair criticism, "Is it because Rockwell is so commercial? If so, would you say that the work of Michelangelo, Franz Hals, and Velázquez is also not art? They did their stuff to order for the Popes, Medici, burghers and princes... Is it because Rockwell enjoys detail? If so, where does that put Vermeer, Durer and Holbein? Is it because he puts the light of beauty ('sweetness,' if you like) into the tired and commonplace? And if so, where does that leave Raphael, Correggio, Botticelli and company?"

In 1977, Rockwell was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom — the nation's highest peacetime award — by President Gerald R. Ford. Rockwell died on Nov. 8, 1978, in Stockbridge, Mass.

Once asked what he would rather do, see and be more than anything else in the world, Rockwell answered succinctly: "Paint, Fine Paintings, and Great Painter." America would say he achieved his goal. tl

(NU) - When I was eight I saw my grandfather fly. He soloed one night without benefit of plane or wings at the Odd Fellows Lodge in his home town, Natural Bridge, N.Y.

That was probably the best spot in the village to stage his maiden flight, the Odd Fellows Lodge. After all, half the exciting events of Natural Bridge took place there: the turkey suppers; pancake breakfasts; talent shows; Santa's visits; Grandpa's poker nights; bingo nights where my grandmother once cackled off with the $50 jackpot.

The Odd Fellows Lodge yawned big enough to pack in everyone who lived in the village. And some winter nights I believe all 300 of them — loggers, farmers, mill hands, print-dress housewives — all of them squeezed into that Lodge.

They steamed the windows, danced 'til the floors groaned. That Lodge played host to most of the action that hamlet could muster.

And one winter night it witnessed — it brought about — my grandfather's solo flight.

I heard the shouts through my icy bedroom window. "The Odd Fellows Lodge's on fire. C'mon. Your grandpa's up there with the firemen."

When I reached the scene, I could see my grandfather and two other men wrestling with a hose. They directed a towering white plume toward the flames.

Grandpa held the nozzle, hands clamped on its brass handles. His back was arched, and he leaned against the two men behind him. His boots dug against a curb for leverage.

And noise! Engines screamed; pumps whined. And from the bowels of the Odd Fellows Lodge, the voice of a great fire roared.

Grandpa seemed but a speck amidst the hubbub. He shrank to even less significance when the hose quit. That water-pressured snake that had fought the fire crew fell limp in their arms. Grandpa's hose crew, as one, shouted to the men at the distant truck to feed them more water. "Need pressure!"

Women, Rebekahs they're called, shrieked and all jumped back as a fiery chunk of roof whumped into the ground. Grandpa's hose team retreated. A shout to Grandpa from the truck. "That damned pump's gone. We're finished."

Now, only Grandpa and one other man held the flaccid hose. The nozzle drooped over grandpa's forearm pointed toward his feet. I saw my grandpa's brow glistening with sweat and spray. Grandpa's partner dropped his length of hose in resignation.

That was when grandpa took flight. The errant pump kicked into action. Water surged down the hose like a plane down a runway.

Graphic Via News USA

I heard men scream his name. I saw him look back at the hose as it hardened and the hardness slithered toward him. I grit my teeth as I watched him set his jaw, arch his back again, clamp his fingers over the handles of the nozzle, aim it from his belly toward the sky. Then I sucked my breath as the hose coiled beneath him, gathered its strength for a second, then flung him high into the air.

His arms flailed. His coat flew open like a sail. His hat tumbled end over end. One boot shot toward the Lodge. The other clung to his foot as his legs pedaled in search of land. He came to earth face first, spread-eagle in a snowbank.

The hose reared and thrust its nozzle 'round in search of the next victim. The crowd gave it a wide berth and raced to Grandpa's rescue.

He sat on his haunches, dazed, pawing the air, blood trickling from his nose. From the bodies pressing around him I saw a familiar hand dab a handkerchief under his nose. My grandmother.

I heard the pump's voice die and saw the renegade hose fall limp once more.

My grandparents displayed great respect for each other, but in the many years I knew them, I never saw them hug. That night on the snowbank, bathed in the glow from the fire that would consume their beloved Odd Fellows Lodge, comforted in the body of their friends, brother Odd Fellows and sister Rebekahs, crowded 'round them, they hugged. My grandma wrapped a blanket over his shoulders. He lay his head against her breast and they held each other.

It was a wonderful sight. It was a wonderful flight.
