Library Dream Finally Realized After several years of planning and fund raising, and many hours of volunteer labor in renovating a building on Wallis Ave. that had been donated for use by the Santa Anna Public Library, a dream has been realized: The library is now situated in the new location. Last week was a big week for librarian Ovella Williams and all the volunteers who have worked so hard to get the new building ready for the move. Although some books and other items had been moved previously, the big move took place on Wednesday of last week and was accomplished in less than one hour with the goes out to those who have labored so faithfully. Rep. Bob Turner Explains Lottery Revenue And Public School Funding

In a weekly newsletter, entitled Capitol Comments, which I supply to every newspaper in the 73rd District, I have explained numerous times how the lottery revenue is utilized and how school funding in Texas is allocated. I personally have no idea what the Governor promised about the lottery revenue, since I opposed it anyway, but am quite sure that her intent was that the monies realized from the lottery would help finance public education in Texas, which it is currently doing. I would like to give you a brief summation on public school financing and the sources of those funds, which includes the lottery revenue. I think you will find this information instructive, enjoyable and should provide coffee shop conversation for several days, at least. Public schools in Texas received $7.8 billion dollars from the State of Texas in 1992 and will receive $8.6 billion during 1993. This money is from all state sources and is applied only to public schools, not junior colleges, or the University System. This does not include local tax dollars, but is only state money. Of these funds from the State, $6.6 billion came from General Revenue funds in 1992, with $1.2 billion coming from dedicated tax sources. In 1993, some $7.3 billion will come from General Revenue funds, while $1.3 billion will come from dedicated tax sources. So, you can readily see that approximately 85 percent of all public school funds come from General Revenue funds, while approximately 15 percent come from dedicated tax sources. As you know, the lottery profits go into the General Revenue fund, so therefore, it is obvious that a large portion of the lottery money currently goes into public education funding. Were we to remove the lottery funds from the state government the money would have to be replaced in like amount or the other activities which are funded through General Revenue, like senior citizen activities, prisons, higher education, et al, would have to go unfunded. Regarding Dedicated Funds versus General Revenue Funds, I would like to make the following observations since watching the process from the inside. Dedicated Tax Funds go directly to the Comptroller and to the State Treasurer and are earmarked directly to the agency for which they are dedicated. This provides little or no actual oversight from those of us whom you elect to watch over and spend your tax dollars. Further, it requires very little accountability from the state agency which receives these funds. Whereas, the dollars that are given to state agencies from the General Revenue Fund go through the regular budgetary process. The agency brings their budget requests to the House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Finance Committee every two-year cycle. The agency must justify the funds they request, identify what they will be used for and give an accounting for the previous twoyear funds given them from General Revenue Funding. This provides a maximum amount of oversight by those of us the taxpayers have elected to moniter the proper, judicious spending of state funds. Dedicated funds are entrusted to the agency heads and there is minimal amount of supervision or oversight from your elected officials.

Your elected representatives, the Legislature, only have control over approximately 18 percent of the State's total budget and expenditures, when the dedicated funding and federally mandated elements a General Revenue fund, and dedicate removed. I have a major problem those funds to any single agency of with Dedicated Funding and personly feel that for us to ever get a handle on the state budget and state spending we should have only General Revenue Funding, requiring each state agency to through the justification and accountability process of the two-year budget before elected legislative members. Then, the voters can hold those who are elected to the State Legislature accountable. Accountability is not possible at this time.

This is a lengthy explanation of the process of how public school funding and state funding is handled, but knew of no short cut and still make it understandable.

You missed a miracle on Wednesday afternoon. In less than one hour, a group of boys and girls moved books for a whole library. David Robinett, Ray Findley and Montie Guthrie brought a group of seventh graders to the old library. They pitched in with whole heart. humor and joy. Santa Anna should be proud of their behavior. Say thank you to one of these young adults: Tony Abernathy, Lupe Castillo, Josh Daniel, Albert Dixon, Michael Donham, Beth Eisenhower, Yolando Frausto, Chris Guerrero, Rene Guerrero. Aaron Guthrie, Ebby Johnson, James Keeney, Kristen Keeney, Chris LaCasse, Chris Lewis, Jason Lewis, Josh Lewis, Amanda Lishka, Nancy McKissack, Maricele Siller, Kayce Strength, Shane Taylor, Shane Watson and Zane Zabel. What have you done for their community lately?

Mrs. Ovella Williams, librarian, Betty Key and I packed the books. M. L. Guthrie, Jr., Joe Green and David Key moved the rest of the furniture. In less than two hours the job was done. It really was a miracle. Thank you all.

Of course, when you come into the new library there is chaos. Sacks and boxes are everywhere. Building supplies are around and there are empty spaces. If you would like to work, there is plenty to be done. After books are on the shelves, we need help in cataloging. The file was made many years ago. At least 2/3 of the books are different. Please come by and check out books anytime. We can locate most of the things you want.

Recently a lady said she couldn't read well because of an illness. There is an almost free service from the service of the blind. They provide tapes of many books and magazines. The library can provide information. Some people in Santa Anna use the service and like it.

By the way, audio books can be bought cheaper than the $17 once asked. Some grocery, drug and discount stores carry tapes in plainer packages from $4.99 to $8.99. Even paperbacks cost that much. It would be good to relax with a good story and a glass of tea or listen on the way to and from work. Those would be good graduation or birth-

Santa Anna Native Receives Recognition In Dallas Newspaper

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article about Santa Anna native, Mary Ford Fields, was printed in "The Dallas Morning News" and sent to the SANTA ANNA NEWS by Sylvia Pelster. In her letter, Pelster says those alumni of Santa Anna High School who now reside in the Dallas-Fort Worth area have much admiration and respect for Mary Lee. Pelster is the former Sylvia Ann Everett. Her grandfather was John W. Parker, one of the earliest settlers of Santa Anna.

Main Street losing mainstay

It's 1 p.m., and Mary Ford Fields finally has found her

As president of a large North Dallas homeowners organization, Mrs. Fields has received an unsolicited packet of promotional leaflets from Dallas Area Rapid Transit, and she's fit to be tied.

Like most of her other telephone communications with governmental agencies, the call to DART headquarters is short and sugar free. "I can't believe you sent me all this material without ever bothering to talk to me first," Mrs. Fields said to the DART official on the other end of the line. "You've just spent $5.20 to send me something I have no intention of passing out to my group. And besides that, the mailing list you included are people who don't even live in my neighborhood.

Mrs. Fields said she might show up at the DART board meeting that night to let board members know how their agency's money was being wasted and then hung up. After the dust settled, she smiled. "I don't know what I would do if I wasn't giving somebody hell," Mrs. Fields

A lot of elected officials, government bureaucrats and company executives in this city have spent years wondering the same thing. For more than 40 years, Mrs. Fields has operated a telephone answering service in downtown Dallas. For most of those years, her home base has been

· From her small office in the Praetorian Building, she uses her antiquated telephone switchboard to handle hundreds of calls for her clients daily, talk to countless people who have grievances with the city and ring up numerous highprofile people to air her concerns.

"I got a call from Mary one time, and she was really taking me to task," a Dallas City Council member said recently. "Then she put me on hold to answer one of her client's calls. And darned if I didn't wait for her to come back on the line."

That seems to be the way it is with most of the people who get caught in Mrs. Fields' wake. First, they are curious who this person is. And then they are curious if what she is saying is true. "I think people listen to me because I don't beat around the bush," she said. "And I always try to have my facts right."

Many of her beefs with the municipal government through the years have focused on the continuing decline of the downtown area. She was on the phone constantly to the city building inspection division a few years back because vacant retail storefronts along Main Street were becoming receptacles for windblown newspapers, empty wine bottles and graffiti. "It got so bad that I could hardly get to the door of my office building," Mrs. Fields said.

It is ironic that a positive new chapter for Main Street is being written at the same time that Mary Ford Fields' longtime relationship with the downtown thoroughfare is coming to a.

While construction crews are outside tearing up Main Street to make way for the ambitious Dallas City Center redevelopment project, Mrs. Fields is in her office packing up her few remaining belongings and preparing to move on. The new owners of the Praetorian Building aren't making enough money from rent to keep the place open. So all of their tenants except the retail stores on the ground floor have been informed they will have to leave.

Southwestern Bell already has told Mrs. Fields it wants her 38-year-old switchboard for its pioneer museum, which will be opening in June. The 557 switchboard is the type you see in all the old movies where operators take metal-tipped lines and punch them into holes beneath the callers' blinking light — a far cry from the pushbutton, call-forwarding systems of today.

Although her departure from Main Street happens this week, there will be no closing of her telephone answering service or end to her involvement in government affairs. Mrs. Fields simply will set up shop at her home.

But things won't be the same for downtown Dallas. A couple of years ago, The Dallas Morning News published an article on Mrs. Fields and other longtime businesses downtown titled "Main Street Mainstays." Few of the people featured are still there today.

In our race to rebuild downtown and reshape its image, I hope we don't lose all of the characters like Mary Ford Fields who gave color to the central city and made it interesting. And while I am at it, I also hope Mrs. Fields likes this column. Because if she doesn't, I am sure I will hear about

Her budget as State Treasurer is down by 8%, yet she still earned more for the taxpayers than ever in the state's history.

As a small business owner, she will fight taxes and push 4. for more spending cuts. Her #1 priority is reducing the federal deficit by cutting spending, not by raising taxes.

She's for across-the-board cuts in the 4. $300 billion the Federal government spends for overhead and has a plan to save $1 trillion by limiting the growth of spending.

Kay is a strong supporter of term limits and oreform of Congress.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - The Senate, trying again to end the state's school finance crisis, last week approved a compromise funding plan that would give high-wealth school districts several options to share their property taxes.

Senators approved the legislation 25-6. A House vote was expected at least two days before the session ends May 31, and Gov. Ann Richards has indicated that she will sign the measure when it reaches her desk.

The Senate action came five days before the June 1 deadline set by the Texas Supreme Court for revamping the $15 billion-a-year school finance system.

The share-the-wealth proposal would shift $400 million to $600 million a year in property tax revenues from 109 high-wealth districts.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock predicted the plan — which originated in the House — would meet with the court's approval.

"We have adopted the House plan, which I believe will meet the court order that threatened to close our schools," Bullock said.

Sen., Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, chairman of the Senate education committee, also was optimistic. "I absolutely believe this comes as close as humanly possible to meet the test (of the court),'

Bill Provides Five Choices These are the five choices that high-wealth districts would have under the equalization plan:

■ Send property tax revenues to the state to pay for educating students in low-wealth districts.

Contract with specific lowwealth districts to help fund their educational programs.

■ Set up a new taxing district that includes the property of the highwealth and one or more low-wealth

Consolidate voluntarily with one or more districts with less property wealth.

■ Transfer some business and commercial property to the tax rolls of low-wealth districts.

approval of voters in the districts. If, by October 1993, a district did not select one of the options or voters reject one of the options, the district would be forced to take the last choice, giving up some business and commercial property.

Tough Penal Code Anti-crime legislation designed to keep violent offenders in prison longer and curb stealing and drug use was approved last week by the Senate. The House is expected to approve the measure.

The two-bill package will streamline and toughen punishments in Texas' criminal laws. The legislation also calls for construction of 20,000 cells in a new system of state jails for nonviolent convicts.

Under the bill, the penal code will mandate that the most violent lawbreakers — people convicted of murder, aggravated robberies, rapes, kidnapping and assaults with weapons - must serve at least half of their sentence. They now must serve only a fourth of their sentence.

"Hard work and perseverance have paid off," Lt. Gov. Bullock said after the package passed. "This legislation will do more than anything that has been done at anytime in the last 20 years to make Texas a safer place to live.'

been a success," Sharp said.

The games were expected to bring the state $461 million during the two-year budget cycle ending Aug. 31. State proceeds hit $580 million in mid-May, and the profit now is projected at $731 million. The first three options require 58 percent higher than originally estimated, Sharp said.

'Harmless Tax' Bill Passed

The Senate has approved a bill that would end the state's practice of paying its employees' share of their Social Security taxes. The bill, by Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, would save the state $29 million over the next two years.

Bivins said employees "would be held harmless" because their pay would be increased to offset the Social Security taxes. However, new employees would not receive the same benefit.

The state began paying employees' share of the taxes in 1983 as a way of giving them a benefit that, officials assumed, would not be taxed, Bivins said. But it turned out that federal income taxes did apply, he said.

Other Highlights

m The Senate sent a bill to Gov. Richards last week that would allow Texas, Maine and Vermont to dump radioactive waste at a site in a majority. Hudspeil County, about 90 miles east of El Paso. An aide said the governor likely would sign the bill. Maine and Vermont each would be charged $25 million.
