SULLIVAN TO BAER - A Pictorial History of the Heavyweights

V. FITZSIMMONS VS. JEFFERIES—1899

Another great slugger made ring history as Jim Jeffries, the boxer who looked like a grizzly bear, knocked out Bob Fitzsimmons to win the heavyweight title in 11 rounds at Coney Island, June 9, 1899, in a bloody battle.

Fitz (at right in picture) was 37 years old but still a great warrior, though his seconds said he weighed but 157 pounds to Jeffries' 200. With Jim Corbett in his corner, Jeffries ploughed into Fitz for six rounds, taking everything the spidre-chanked Cornishman threw at him, cutting Bob's eyes, bringing a stream of blood from his nose with the occasional left hook he landed.

Fitzsimmons, wrestled down in the second, weakened in the 10th and Jeffries, a roadman with victory in sight, floored him twice. Starting the 11th, Jeffries caught Fitz on the chin with another left. Old Bob's hands dropped, and as they did Jeff whipped a right uppercut to the chin that crashed the champion helpless to the canvas. Fitz was a 2 to 7 favorite.

SPORT SLANTS

After a lapse of a year the Southern California Trojans are going to make an effort to regain the I. C. 4-A, track and field championship which they held in 1932, 1932 and 1933.

The SPORTSMAN

Some remote ancestor fished in the world's dim dawn and he cast a spear that is ever most of us yet. Thanks to many people are seeing queries nowadays. You've noticed the symptoms. They walk around in a daze or stare at the wall. But it's nothing serious and complete recovery follows a few trips to lake or stream.

The team boasts two pole vaulters, Earle Meadows and Bill Setlyn, who have done 14 feet or better. Against Stanford Meadows won the event and actually cleared 14 feet 6 1/8 inches only to have the bar jiggle off after a split second.

Francis Benavidez is well recommended with a 4:17 effort. The only team which appears to have the strength to press the powerful Trojan is Brutus Hamilton's University of California Bears.

Henry Moncre Little, of William and Mary college, is one of those versatile athletes who is constantly seeking new fields to conquer.

Having topped eastern intercollegiate broad jumpers last year by winning the indoor title and then taking the long jump at the Penn relays, Henry decided to take a fling at tossing the javelin.

He tossed the spear 206 feet 10 1/2 inches at Franklin field recently to win the event over a fine field which included "Hop" O'Dell, Manhattan college's I. C. 4-A javelin-throw champion.

From Texas, Oklahoma In the quarter mile John McCarthy will be one of the favorites with a mark of 47.5 seconds, the time he set off in defeat last Allen Blackman, Stanford's captain and last year's winner of the I. C. 4-A, 400-meter.

Then there is Kenneth Carpenter, who tossed the discs close to 162 feet for his best mark. Three broad jumpers have done better than 24 feet. Headed by Al Olson, with a leap of 24 feet 8 1/2 inches, the trio includes Paul Jungkeit and Marvin Crawford.

The speedy little veteran, Foy Draper, is counted on to score in the sprints, while in the mile

The Big Demand of Truck Buyers Today is for Economy

IT PAYS 3 WAYS TO BUY CHEVROLETS

Today, when every wise buyer of trucks is particularly interested in getting dependable transportation at lowest cost, the money-saving advantages of Chevrolet Trucks have a particularly strong appeal. Truck buyer after truck buyer is discovering that it pays three ways to buy Chevrolets. You, too, will get better haulage service at lower cost by buying a Chevrolet Truck because of these triple economies:

1. Chevrolet Trucks sell at the world's lowest prices. 2. They use less gasoline and oil because they are powered by six-cylinder valve-in-head engines. 3. They give longer, more dependable service because of the extra quality which Chevrolet builds into every part of its products.

A BEER SECRET

I never knew till now!

TIME was when I thought ALL beers were alike, BUT that was before I DISCOVERED Schlitz. BELIEVE me, mister, THIS beer is miles AHEAD of the rest IN clear fresh aroma IN full mellow flavor AND especially in FRIENDLINESS the NEXT morning.

I KNOW why, too, because I'M a curious guy AND full of questions. ENZYME CONTROL does THE trick—wait, please, DON'T let that big word SCARE you. ENZYMES ripen every GOOD thing you ever eat. THEY bring apples to THEIR fullest goodness, BUT an enzyme hasn't MUCH sense. Once it HAS a job well done IT goes right on and RUINS its own good work. THAT'S why there are DOZENS of over-ripe AND under-ripe apples TO every good and PERFECT one.

BEER would be a matter OF luck, too, and it OFTEN is, if these little ENZYMES were not STRICTLY controlled. SCHLITZ knows how TO control them by TEMPERATURE and TIMING and blending OF ingredients. THIS is why Schlitz SMELLS so good TASTES so good and is so GOOD to you.

THIS is why it's the beer THAT made Milwaukee FAMOUS and this is WHY Schlitz goes to ALL the trouble of PROTECTING its rare FLAVOR from light by PUTTING the beer in BROWN bottles.

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous Since 1819.

Kiwanians Campaign For Traffic Safety And Benefits For Youth

SAN ANTONIO — Safety campaigns to decrease automobile fatalities and the training of youths in broad social programs to meet emergencies, were suggested today as responsible public activities for Kiwanis clubs in the U. S. and Canada. These recommendations were made at the closing session of the 38th annual convention of Kiwanis International being held here. Reports in 1934 showed a new high peak of deaths, totaling 35,500, which is a 13 per cent increase over 1933. This year the death rate will be higher unless safety precautions are taken immediately, it was stated. The cause of accidents was laid to faster cars, increased travel and in the U. S. to repeal of prohibition. Kiwanis clubs are to study traffic codes and inspect regulations, urge adequate examinations for drivers' licenses, develop safety propaganda and erect danger and warning signs. Training of youths in the handicrafts and promoting hobby shows, music, drama, literature, painting, etc., are suggested juvenile activities. Agencies such as the Y. M. C., Junior Red Cross, Girl and Boy Scouts will be used in broad social programs for citizenship education, naturalization work for the foreign born, adult education, night schools and the providing of recreational facilities.

Music "Kiwanis recognizes music as a necessary concern of every human being," declared Thomas L. Huswell, of Atlantic City, N. J., chairman of the music committee. "Kiwanis strives to bring music into the lives not only of its members but every person in communities where there are clubs." He predicted that before many years have passed Kiwanis will have substantially raised music appreciation. "Kiwanis musical activities extend into various communities in hundreds of ways," Mr. Huswell said. "Promising but impetuous young musicians are sponsored and financed, boys bands are organized and trained, musical festivals are promoted and prizes given. Municipal orchestras, bands and choirs are given financial and other help. There are over 150 high school bands, drum corps, etc., in the U. S. and Canada today. Hundreds of drum corps and glee clubs have been secured instruments, instructors, uniforms, prizes and given other general assistance. "A total of 461 Kiwanis municipal bands are organized and given concerts and musical entertainments and national music week is observed each year," he said. "On One's Own "The thing that is going to do more than anything else to save the present emergency in civilization is a rebirth of the ability of people to do things for themselves," declared Carl E. Endicott, of Huntington, Ind., a past president of the service organization. "We have alienated and are alienating ourselves from the spirit of the pioneer," he said. "Those who have studied history will agree the pioneer stands for human progress. The stay-at-home never contributed toward that end. The coward never starts, the weak die on the way; and only the strong survive. "In these days, when life has largely become a matter of successful conquest, we have annihilated space, we have made conquest of the air, we have gone under the sea. Mechanical and technical genius has been developed to a point of almost perfect efficiency, and while it by no means is representative of final achievement, it has done much to rob life of its virility. In former years we had physical heroism and intellectual virility, but now everything is made comparatively easy for us by modern inventions. Our minds are readily brought in contact with the great fundamental minds scattered throughout the world. The means of transferring knowledge have increased. The definiteness and accuracy by which we can become informed and keep informed of world events have been increased. But we have become almost helpless in being able to aid ourselves," he said. Entries closed today for the 7th annual championship golf tournament to be held on one of the best courses in the southwest, the Willow Spring club. For a number of years rivalries have developed internationally and today's meet will bring golfers together from all parts of the continent. Willow Springs is a 72-par course and clubs will enter either two or four man teams.

Creek Pollution Caused By Large Sulphate Content

Acquisition of chloride and a high sulphate content from soil and rocks over which water flowed was given as a probable cause of pollution of Beans creek, 20 miles below town during March by V. M. Ehlers, chief state sanitary engineer. Cattle on the D. H. Snyder and Lay Powell ranch refused to drink the water. V. M. Ehlers, chief sanitary engineer of the state department of health, pointed out the possibility of pollution from this source to Snyder and Powell in commenting on samples sent by the two. Report of W. D. Staples, Sweetwater, who also collected samples from the sewage disposal plant here, the creek on the Snyder and Powell property, and from 7 mile lake west of here, also tended toward that view. Raw sewage effluent sample taken from the outlet after the sprinkling filter showed chlorides at 390, sulphates at 142, and dissolved solids at 180 degrees 70. Sample from the Snyder property showed chlorides at 6420, sulphate at 2970, and dissolved solids at 180 degrees 13,850. Sample from the seven mile lake showed chloride 15,450, sulphates at 11,950, and dissolved solids at 180 degrees 44,800. Possible causes of the pollution were listed by Staples as: Rain flushing out dry lake beds on March 21 with .79 inch hard rain, waste water from refinery, effluent from disposal plant, and an emulsion of algae grown in creek bed below the disposal plant. Ehlers in his letter to Snyder and Powell: "You will note from the analysis this water is very highly mineralized. It appears that the chlorides of sodium and magnesium account for a very large part of the total. These chlorides together with the high sulphate content could be picked up from the soil and rocks through which the water flows." Powell, Snyder and the city each had samples taken after cattle had refused to drink the water to ascertain if the disposal plant were responsible for the pollution. Snyder and Powell said the condition was first noted in 1932, which is after the plant was installed.

Within The Gates Not Banned In N. Y.

BOSTON—When the city of Boston banned Sean O'Casey's play "Within The Gates" this winter, they struck fear into the heart of at least one person, either citizen or visitor. A copy of the play in book form was found in the baggage rack after an American Airlines Condor had landed in Boston last week. The person who owns it may claim it at the New York Traffic office where there are no ordinances prohibiting its presence. Connecticut maintains its claim to the nation's apple-pie title by baking pies and snipping them via American Airlines to Washington, D. C. Six weeks' old twins and a ninety-two year old civil war veteran have flown American Airlines routes in the past month. Air travel shows rapid growth. American air transport lines carried approximately 6,000 passengers in 1926 and 550,000 in 1934. Regularly operated air transport routes in the United States cover 24,084 miles.

Germany with a tighter rein than Wilhelm ever dreamed of using. And Nicholas lies underground somewhere in a Russian forest, one of the first victims of the catastrophe that swept his country.

The contrast between what happened to these three monarchs and what happened to George V—of England is amazing, and it is not the result of mere chance. It is not even the result of the difference between winning and losing a great war.

The fundamental reason why 2,000,000 people stayed up all night in London to hail the opening of their king's jubilee, while the other three realms are broken and kingless, can be found in the different ways in which the ruling classes of these countries met change.

In Russia, in Germany, and in Austria-Hungary there was only a blind inflexibility. The hammering of war and social discontent could not bend the rules of those lands; so, finally, it broke them completely. The ruling classes there could learn nothing, not even in the face of catastrophe, and so they were swept away.

In England, on the other hand, there was flexibility. The war and its aftermath brought far-reaching changes; instead of resisting them blindly, the nation's rulers—from the king on down to the industrial magnates and the politicians—had the sense to meet them halfway, adapt themselves to them, and help the nation follow a new course.

As a result, George V still has his throne, and his 25th anniversary finds a tremendous outpouring of national enthusiasm for his person and for the things which he represents.

At a time when change is upon the whole world, this study in contrast is a useful and instructive thing.

The old-time cockiness, she says, has vanished. The collegians have been doing some thinking, in these trying years, and they know what they're up against. Having a greater awareness of reality, they have also more determination; they have ceased to look for soft snaps and are looking for a chance to be of service, instead.

The change is about as whole some a thing for the country as a whole as could be imagined.

There are certain things which set the modern, progressive city apart from a host of places with a

"let-it-alone" policy. In other words, if two towns the same size have different services to offer, you will judge the town by those services. If one has paved streets and the other dirt roads, you will want paved streets. If one has a slip shod sewer system and the other a modern disposal plant, you will want the more sanitary arrangement.

Big Spring has reached the stage where it now needs an additional service. Certainly it will be a forward step which will set this town apart from other towns that do not recognize the importance of adequate garbage disposal service. Moreover it will be a great stride in behalf of a more sanitary condition.

It stands to reason that 2,000 families cannot individually be as efficient in disposing of their garbage and trash as would be one central agency.

Equally as important as getting garbage away from the house is disposing of it in the right place. Under the present catch-as-catch-can system, there is little telling where trash and garbage haulers will dump the refuse. Many times it is only slightly removed from a residential section. Offer it is in a deep ditch adjacent to a city street. Needless to say this is a deplorable condition.

Henry Howell, San Marcos News columnist, has a hunch that Rep. Thomas J. Dunlap of San Marcos may be a beneficiary when the next session of the legislature convenes. "We don't know Rep. Dunlap's intentions," Howell wrote, "but we do have it on good authority that he has been casing around town looking for a vacant lot."

Dunlap has no cow, so Howell surmised that the lot was not for grazing purposes but to build upon and remarked: "He (Dunlap) has returned from a session of the legislature which gained publicity through the marriage of its saloons."

Clean Out Kidney Poisons

Wash Out Your 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes If kidneys don't pass 2 pints a day and get rid of more than 2 pounds of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult, which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort.

This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make pure your kidneys empty 2 pints a day. There's a big health secret in Electrical refrigeration. Constant temperature under 50° safeguards food. Then it is safe for the family health. NO WOMAN will serve food to her family that is the least bit tainted—if she is aware of it. But often it is impossible to tell whether food is as fresh as it ought to be. Food may look all right, it may smell all right and may even taste all right, yet might be unfit to eat and even harmful to health because it has not been refrigerated properly. Only a bacteriologist can detect the early stages of spoilage. BE SURE WITH AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR. It is not practical to inspect every bit of food with a microscope, nor even necessary if food is kept at a low enough temperature to prevent the growth of bacteria. Years of experience have proved that a temperature of 50 degrees or less is required to keep perishable foods fresh and wholesome, and that temperatures over 50 degrees might allow food to spoil. The modern electric refrigerator is designed to safeguard the food you serve your family by maintaining a constant cold of less than 50 degrees, even on the hottest days. It is entirely automatic and removes all doubt as to whether milk, meat, left-overs or other foods are perfectly fresh, even after they have been kept several days. Latin Pupils Stage Interesting Exhibition Of Early Roman Objects Made By Caesar Class And Others

Members of Latin class 1 and 2 of the high school have made many original objects as a class project, to show Roman life. Miss Lillian Shick and the students have placed these on display in the Latin room and invite mothers and friends of the school to view them.

They will be exhibited through Tuesday of next week. Most unusual of the many objects are the carvings of wood and soap showing Roman buildings, such as the Coliseum, Etruscan chariots, shoe German huts, fortifications, catapults, huts on wheels, fountains, slave whips.

There are also maps of Caesar's campaigns, plans of Roman residences; dolls dressed as gladiators and Roman mothers; parchment scrolls of letters and proclamations written in Latin; ink and charcoal drawings.

Miss Shick is especially proud of the exhibit because the ideas were original with the pupils. One made a chariot from a tin can, another used wood and copper for the catapult. The students themselves are of the opinion that these are well worth a trip to the high school to see.

These Pink Snakes Were Not Imagined

How legends start! Mrs. J. M. Morgan was watering her flowers Tuesday morning when she saw a coral snake—no, two of them—sticking their heads up out of the ground. She jumped back and screamed, then decided to investigate.

Instead of being snakes, they were tadpoles, a rare variety. They had pushed through the ground and were resting their extremities on the concrete coping of the bed. What gave them the snake appearance was a film of mushroom gray over their tips that looked like a mouth and a black goey stuff that formed eyes and, on one mushroom, stood up like a snake forehead—if snakes have such a feature. And they were pink—a horrid, ugly pink.

Mrs. Morgan summoned Mr. Ross and all her neighbors. They were a sight worth seeing. She kept them damp and covered from sun, but in spite of that the heat shriveled them by afternoon.

The news spread to school and some of the school children came to see them. One of the visitors said in the afternoon to Mary Margaret Williams, Mrs. Morgan's grand daughter: "Did you see that monster in your yard?" Thus legends originate.

Pretty Shower Is Given Pete Morgans

Mrs. Kathleen Williams was hostess for a shower complimenting her brother, Peter J. Morgan and his bride, Tuesday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morgan.

Vases of snapdragons and roses with sprays of honeysuckle from the garden made the rooms very attractive.

Many lovely gifts were brought by friends and sent by those who could not attend. Kathleen Elizabeth Williams, daughter of the hostess, played several piano selections.

The gifts were left on the hall table and were brought in on the table by the younger brothers and the time was spent in admiring and passing them around.

Coffee and sandwiches were served by the hostess, assisted by her mother and her sister, Mrs. Willis Taylor of Wewoka, Okla., to the honorees and the following:

Mmes. L. L. Freeman, Ed Mosely, Anna Mae Luehring, Ben Miller, Messrs. and Mmes. Harry Nall, Frank Burch and son, Frank Lee, Andy Tucker; Messrs. J. M. Morgan, Freddie Watts, James, Eddie and Frank Morgan; Kathleen, Mary Margaret and Rose Elinor Williams.

Those sending gifts were: Messrs. and Mmes. L. D. Jenkins and son, who are visiting in Louisiana; Bonnie White, W. D. Williams, Tom Currie, Ray Wilcox, Ed Merrill and daughter, Abe Bailey, T. E. O'Keefe; Mmes. Alice Lock, John Decker of Menard, Len Sheeler, J. B. Nall, Herbert Stanley; Misses Louise Sheeler, Lillian Nall, Carole Shultz, T. E. Jordan and family and Mr. Gillespie.

North Ward P.T.A. Enjoys School Picnic

The North Ward P.T.A. sponsored "An All School Picnic" at the City Park Tuesday afternoon, May 21st. Trucks and cars were furnished by the parents to take all the school children.

She also presented Misses Carden, Hawk, Creath, Stevens and Mrs. Patrick with beautiful compacts, gifts of appreciation from the North Ward P.T.A. for their splendid cooperation the past year. Miss Stevens' mother also presented her with a beautiful slip.

A picnic lunch, consisting of sandwiches, salad, potato chips, pickles, fruit, ice cream and cake were served to 200 parents and children.

Senior Play All Set For Tomorrow

Many Comedy Roles Promise Laughter And Good Time

By ROBERT HAILEY In the general run of events it is customary to save the best things for the last. For that reason the last character sketch to be given in connection with the senior play, "Apple Blossom Time," to be given tomorrow night, the two best characters; namely, Cal Pickens as portrayed by James Vines and Mickey Maguire as played by J. R. Dillard.

These are the most comic comedy roles in the play, and the two popular senior boys will do more than justice to the roles. Cal Pickens is a slow-going, lazy usual small-town type constable. He likes to brag about himself but generally is unable to do so because of the sharp-tongued Polly with whom he believes himself to be deeply enamored. Cal's loud mouth, his attempts at love-making and his spasmodic outbursts against the way he is treated at the hands of Polly are good for many laughs. James Vines is, as any high school student will vouch for, the very best person to portray a role in which lots of characterization is needed, and he is in, one might say, "his element" in this role. As a country-lick who is as inefficient as possible, James Vines is good for a multitude of laughs.

Although the above do not at all exhaust the many individualities of the role of Cal Pickens, it is equally necessary that Mickey Maguire receive due attention. J. R. Dillard who is in this role is a veteran of last year's junior play and for every laugh he was good for last year he is worth three this year. Here, again, is a natural and as he is in the role of Mickey, the little Irishman who always butts into a conversation, he is able to go the limit. More laughs are condensed into his few lines than in those of any other character, excepting perhaps Cal Pickens. Mickey is an old pal of Betty Ann and he and Spud McCloskey come to visit Betty Ann and stay to work at a neighbor's farm. Both of the boys get a crush on the same girl and from there on lots of laughs are present for Mickey certainly gives everyone a fit in his love-making.

Those who do not see these two important comedy characters will miss the treat of their lives. And they are not the only good characters in this amusing play.

"Apple Blossom Time" will be given on May 24 at the City auditorium. Admission will be 75c for everyone and there will be no reserved seats.

Chapter Six
DOUBT

"But all the doors were locked!" Alison said.

"True," replied the stranger. "But he may have left by the pantry window while we were down in the cellar."

Alison smiled.

"You know, you're an extraordinarily comforting person!"

"Good! Then let's assume that little Herbert's gone. What about getting ourselves some coffee?"

"I'll go and see if I can find some," agreed Alison.

"Come on, then."

Her shaken self-respect was still sore. She looked at him and said quickly, "You haven't come, I'm all right now, honestly."

"I know you are but I'd rather," she gave way meekly, a little surprised at yielding, for she was by no means a meek person; but there was a note of authority in his voice which was not easily defied. A search of the kitchen yielded one small crust of stale bread which had been sampled and rejected by mice, an assortment of empty gin bottles and a strong smell of cheese. The oil-stove was empty and the only kettle had a large hole in the bottom.

"Nothing doing." His laughter had a happy, friendly ring to it but now he drew no answering smile from her, for Alison was looking at the big white clock upon the wall.

"It's past twelve..."

"I shouldn't worry," he argued. "Your father's probably hung up from your house."

"I haven't one. I'm only staying the night at Warley's." He spoke absently as though he was puzzling over a problem.

"Warley? But—" she stopped. He had certainly said quite distinctly that he had come out for a stroll but Warley was at least six miles away and on a pouring wet night—

He had looked at her sharply and must have guessed her thought, for he said, "I like walking in the rain."

"Six miles?"

"I know. I wasn't thinking. I—I walked farther than I meant." Catching the sudden doubt in the girl's eyes he added: "I wanted to look at this house—I'm an architect, you see, and there's some idea of buying the site so—I thought I'd take a look at it."

"By lantern light?" Alison thrust shrewdly.

"You don't believe me?"

"I'm afraid I don't!"

"Then how's this—?" He was watching her with a rather queer, intent look now. "I came down to burglar this house."

"You're a burglar?"

"Professionally; though I vary it occasionally with a little murder and writing anonymous letters, or blackmail."

"I don't believe it!" His voice, his clear eyes, his honest, blunt, large features made it absurd.

"You don't? You know, you're hard to please!" He gave a broad, engaging grin. "I give you your choice of two perfectly good stories and you won't accept either!"

"What are you really?"

"Seriously? I told you—I am an architect. I'm staying down at Warley for the night and strayed up here because I—happened to be thinking rather deeply. How's that?"

"All right!" She laughed. "I must believe you! But what are we going to do about it? I mean, we can't stay here all night, can we?"

"I'm not going to leave you here alone," he objected.

"I'm not staying. I'm going to find the nearest house and get on the telephone."

"At past midnight? You'll never get anyone to wake up. Besides, we're miles up on the Downs here."

"Well, I'll walk into Warley then."

"Six miles at midnight in that?" He pointed to the window where the rain was beating steadily.

"You'd end up with pneumonia."

"I shouldn't. Anyway, I'd rather—" She could not put into words that deep, uncomfortable conviction that something must be far wrong.

The Boy Who Made Good

WHAT D'YA KNOW ABOUT THAT! I JUST TOOK A BROWN HACKLE AND THREW THE HOOK ON THE SECOND LEAP.

I'LL BET I'VE TAKEN EVERY KIND OF ARTIFICIAL FLY IN MY TIME. WHY BEFORE I WAS THREE YEARS OLD I WAS HOOKED WITH A CAHILL AND A SILVER DOCTOR.

I'VE SWALLOWED SIX GRIZZLY KINGS AND MORE THAN A DOZEN PARMACHEENE BELLES.

LAST SPRING I TOOK A MONTREAL WITH DOUBLE HOOKS; I HAD QUITE A TIME GETTING RID OF IT AND MY MOUTH WAS SORE FOR A MONTH.

WHEN I WAS A YOUNGSTER I USED TO HAVE A LOT OF TROUBLE LOSING SOME OF THOSE FLIES. NO ONE USED BARBLESS HOOKS THOSE DAYS. NOW, I CAN GET RID OF A FLY IN FIVE OR TEN MINUTES.

GOSH! I'VE GOT TO HAND IT TO YOU, I WISH I COULD GET A CRACK AT SOME OF THOSE SWELL FLIES, I'M SO SLOW SOME OTHER TROUT ALWAYS BEATS ME TO IT, I NEVER SEEM TO HAVE ANY FUN.

"It hadn't thought of that," she admitted. And with a smile, "You know you are truly a comforting person!"

"My job!"

"What do you do then?" She was curious to know; she could not quite place him. But he did not seem to hear and before she could repeat the question he said: "By the way, it might be a sound idea to tell me your name."

"Rede. Alison Rede."

"Mine's Guy—Westurn." There was a pause between the two words as if he had hesitated to tell her and she looked at him with sudden curiosity.

Man Still Go Down To Sea In Ships, But It's Different Now

GALVESTON (UP)—Men still go down to the sea in ships, but not in the manner they once did. Sailors still "sail before the mast," but the mast is a sturdy 100-foot matter of girders and costs more to build and install than many an old wind-jammer cost overall to build and launch. The forecastle, or "fo'-sle," in the old sailing ships, got its name as a joke—the crowded, filthy hole where the exhausted men lived. Nowadays, the co'c'sle is "aft" and the sailors have modern tiled shower baths, good food served in a saloop kept spotlessly clean by a steward who serves their meals in shining china. Mighty changes have come about on the sea. The language is much as it always has been. Sailors still use marlin-spikes, but for splicing wire cables instead of ropes. The dreaded belaying pin has its place in the carpenter shop tool rack. Occasionally it still is used as a defense weapon, even as in the days when Joseph Conrad made the sea romantic. There are old men who can tell of sleeping with ice in their bunks on the North Atlantic. To them, work on modern freighters is play. They work four hours and are off for another eight. Pindick, once the sailor's game, is disappearing. Many modern youths, with fraternity pin or keys on their city dungarees, keep the watch on deck awake with spirited stories. The sailors lie in their bunks—which have good lights, electric fans and adequate ventilation—aid read such books. When they go ashore in Havana, Colon, Hong Kong or Marseille, they do their share of night-club roistering. But they also pay a visit to the YMCA or one of the seafarers before sailing time.

Home Loan Bill Prospect Bright

There is now before President Roosevelt an appropriations bill of $1,750,000,000 to relieve distressed home owners, Garland A. Woodward, HOLC attorney, said here Thursday.

The bill, previously passed by the house and senate, will become effective immediately upon signature. From the time the President signs the measure, according to Woodward, home owners eligible to loans will have 30 days to get in their applications to the Am- arillo office.

Requirements for loans will be practically identical with those under the old set up.

Woodward stressed the importance of home owners applying within thirty days for the loans.

Problems Of Buyers To Be Emphasized

COLLEGE STATION, (UP)—Problems of street buyers will be emphasized and typical cotton transactions will be demonstrated as a part of the course of the twenty-sixth annual session of the summer school of cotton which will open at the Texas A&M college June 4 and continue through July 13.

Prof. J. B. Bagley, head of the department of textile engineering of the college, will have charge of the school.

The school was planned to prepare young men to enter the cotton business, to train cotton growers to market their cotton intelligently and profitably and to assist cotton buyers to become more familiar with low-grade and off color cotton and to judge staple. It will offer instruction by professional cotton men with years of experience as teachers.

Grading, stapling and cotton trade procedure will comprise the subjects to be taught. Facilities of the department of textile engineering, including the cotton mill, will be available for instructional work. Lectures will be given daily covering subjects of general interest.

Publisher Appointed Berger City Manager

BORGER, (UP)—L. S. McCann, owner and publisher of the Hutchinson County Herald, county seat weekly, has been appointed Borger city manager. McCann replaces Stewart D. Shirk, who was appointed to the office on April 3 when the new city commissioners took office.

The determined stand for candidates favoring lower utility rates that McCann maintained before the election was credited by Mayor John R. Miller for the publisher's appointment as city manager.

ACROBATIC ARTIST

Little Miss Betty Jo Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adams, provoked continual applause from the Lions Club Wednesday noon with a series of acrobatic dance numbers. She executed difficult routines with apparent ease and seemed never ill at ease for a new surprise. She is a pupil of Mrs. Martha McCusky.

DON'T CALL HIM GEORGE! CALL HIM PORTER

CHICAGO—When a smiling gentleman takes over your luggage at your board your western railroad train this summer, pay particular attention to him. He will likely be a veteran of the rails who could, if he would, tell many exciting tales of travel in the west. Stories that deal not with rugged mountain peaks nor vast stretches of sage brush—but unique adventures in his own domain, the sleeping car. From the days of the pioneer sleeper with its wood-burning stoves and candlelight illumination, the sleeping car porter has ministered to the many and varied needs of the traveler. People? He's met and served them all. He could tell of the time that visiting royalty complained of a draft, or of the occasion when Jesse James—! He could tell you that even in this modern age of air conditioned trains, indirect lighting, and a multitude of other comforts and conveniences, the porter is a busy man. Today's traveler requires just as much service as his father, and his father's father. We talked with a few of these veterans recently. One had it figured out that during his 52 years of service on western railroads he has traveled the equivalent of 23 trips around the world or more than 6,000,000 miles. Another's father worked on the Chicago-Denver run for forty five years and knew the James boys, Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill Hickok. Still another had forty-five years of service to his credit without a single complaint or demerit mark. They also told us with envy of Porter Daniels who had had a sleeping car named after him—after he had died in service of his country. "George" is most distasteful to these men. They'd rather be called "porter." And to our supreme mortification we realized how often we had erred in the past in asking the porter to make up our berth—berths are made "down," not up. Tip? The sovereign of the sleeping car accepts with equal affability my dime and my neighbor's dollar. To them the tip comes as a sincere expression of gratitude for services well performed. Incidentally, the largest tip in the history of this profession was recently given when a wealthy married and left $15,000 to three sleeping car porters—men who had served him on frequent trips across the country.

Committees Confer On Garbage Disposal

Several committees from civic and service organizations were to confer at 4 p. m. today in interest of asking the city to install an adequate garbage disposal system. Petitions were to be on hand for signatures and are to be presented to the commission when public hearing on the proposed budget is held Friday evening in the municipal court room. The system is not included in the proposed budget. City Manager E. V. Spence was to address the gathering today.

Sign-posts

IMAGINE YOURSELF on an unfamiliar highway at night in the country. You want to go to Allison. You come to a forked road. No signs! Which way? You turn left and come to a cross-road. No signs. You turn right. You come to a town. It proves to be Liberty. You go back to the fork and turn left. A mile or so farther on you come to another cross road. A sign pointing right says "Allison three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles—spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements!

Advertisements are sign-post. They are information. They save you from wandering aimlessly from store to store. They keep you advised of the newest products; of the latest values. They save you time, and put greater buying power in your dollars. They assure you of quality and service in merchandise, for only honest goods honestly advertised can stand the spotlight of publicity.

The Ways and Means Committee doesn't like Richberg's ingenious scheme to enlarge interstate commerce power by applying the new NRA to all state businesses that "affect" interstate commerce. Yet if that proposal is turned down the NRA will be without inclusions and Richberg may quit. A favorable decision from the Supreme Court would be a godsend to Richberg just now.

Ital must be sold for a song. And his wife seeks a loan from the RFC for development of the source of the family fortune—a gold mine in the west.

Precedent—
If President Roosevelt wants to know why industry fears future uncertainty—or professes to—several industrialists have a specific case for his study. It concerns the proposed merger of two great steel corporations in the Middle West. They obtained the blessing of the Federal Trade Commission, a fairly cynical body, for their marriage. The Securities and Exchange Commission approved their financial setup. No protest was interposed during months of negotiations with these agencies. But without any warning the Department of Justice slapped them down with a petition to bar the merger as a violation of the anti-trust laws. The lower court upheld the corporations on every point and the government has 60 days for an appeal.

It appears to be only a routine proceeding. No great New Deal principle is involved. But practical men around the White House pray that Attorney General Cummings will drop case. His action will be significant in that it will set a precedent for the administration's attitude toward industrial consolidation in the period of prospective recovery.

Godsend—
The report that Donald Richberg was yearning to return to law practice was thrown out to soften Senatorial ire and grease the way for NRA. Richberg's stay depends upon passage of the big recovery act. If it flops he will retire, but if it passes you may expect him to give reluctant consent to sacrifice himself on the altar of the public good. Richberg and NRA are tied together.

Disillusion—
A few weeks ago the railroads were all pepped up at the prospect of real legislative help from Congress. Anything seemed possible when the Senate voted after years of indifference to bring competing forms of transportation under the wing of the Interstate Commerce Commission. But the House has done nothing about it and the chances are that it won't.
