

THE AMERICAN WAY

HOME-GROWN BOMB
By Rosalie M. Gordon

(Editor's Note: Rosalie M. Gordon is editor of All-American Books, All-American Book Digest and America's Future.)

With Congress back in Washington, one of the big subjects may turn out to be your money—how much of it the politicians will take and spend. There is talk of a government spending budget for fiscal 1963 in the fantastic sum of 100 billion dollars—which is 10 billion dollars more, just to run the government, than we spent last year on clothing, recreation and building construction! The big excuse for all this spending, of course, is national defense. Everyone, including the heavily-burdened American taxpayer, wants the United States to have the strongest possible defense. But is this tremendous increase in government spending really due to national defense? A comparison of the spending for 1962 with 10 years ago tells a very different story. In round figures, the government spent 45 billion dollars on national defense in 1952. This year it will spend about 54 billion dollars. That's an increase of nine billion. But the overall spending by the government this year is greater by 22 billion dollars than it was 10 years ago. In other words, entirely aside from national defense, the government is spending this year 13 billion dollars more than it spent 10 years ago.

Heavy as is the tax-take, the government still spends more than it collects. It borrows the difference. This makes the deficits—the red ink in the federal budget. These deficits must be added to the government debt which is pushing close to the 300-billion mark, and this means an ever-increasing interest charge on the debt—an interest charge which must be met every year out of your taxes.

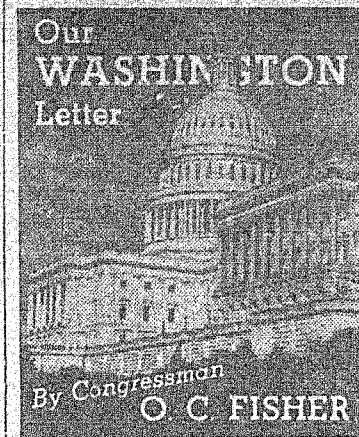

The raid on the American taxpayer for spending that has nothing whatever to do with national defense is bad enough. But it has an even more serious aspect. This kind of wild and irresponsible spending can wreck our free system much more effectively than can Khrushchey's bombs. A recent careful study for the National Bureau of Economic Research says Americans are not saving enough. The report points out that in order to keep our free-enterprise system in good health and producing more of the abundance it has produced in the past, savings by the people are absolutely essential. To put this another way, savings are the life-blood of the free, capitalist system. It cannot live without them because it is from the savings of the people that come the funds for investment in new industries, and for the expansion of old ones. The savings of individual Americans, invested in new and old industries, is also a prime factor in keeping our system free. Individual savers (investors) provide a free capital market. Otherwise, the government steps in—and then we have the austerity, the scarcity, the one-notch-above-poverty for everyone of socialist and communist systems.

This is where our home-grown bomb appears, in the form of incredible and increasing government spending. It is this vast spending by the government which keeps people from saving enough. You can get all kinds of reasons from New Frontier economists for people not saving, but they never get around to the real reason because it would reveal immediately the fallacy in their philosophy of "let the government do it."

First, there is the whole idea of the socialist welfare state, of which we have adopted already a goodly portion. If you can sell people the idea that the government will take care of them in their old age or when they are sick, clearly they won't bother to save money for these contingencies.

Second, when taxes to support this welfare state and other wild spending schemes take anywhere from 20 to 90 cents of everybody's dollar, it is impossible to save as much as one should.

Third, when the government consistently spends great sums of money and borrows large parts of it—as it has been doing for 25 out of the last 32 years—

THE NEW SESSION of the Congress, coming as it does on an election year, is sure to be a lively one. The President's State of the Union message outlined a number of domestic proposals that are sure to provoke controversy. His reference to our defense posture was reassuring and his reaffirmation of our determination to protect Berlin at any cost was timely and unequivocal.

While promising to offer a balanced budget for the next fiscal year which begins next July, the President's message bristled with plans for new and expanded programs which if enacted will do violence to most any budget plan.

It will be the responsibility of the Congress to take a long, close look at nonessential spending measures and then attempt to cut the cloth to fit the pattern. Holding the line will not be easy, however.

IF A BALANCED BUDGET is to be achieved there are several steps that should be taken. Among these are: (1) unpack the Rules Committee; (2) repeal the depression-patterned Depressed Areas Act, which has already become quite a boondoggle (for example, under this program $435,000 is being expended in 16 Mississippi counties to train people how to drive farm tractors!); (3) repeal the unsound features of the multi-billion dollar housing bonanza bill enacted last year; and (4) cut two or three billion dollars out of foreign aid, confining it in the future to Nations on OUR side and only where it is clearly to our self-interest.

Such a program would be progressive and would put America on the high road toward fiscal soundness and realistic planning.

If after enacting these needed reforms and a few other essential measures plus the necessary annual appropriation bills, the Congress would pack up and go home, American taxpayers could it causes inflation. Inflation means that no matter how many dollars a person earns, each dollar constantly buys less and less, is always losing some of its value. So people spend rather than save because they want to get as much for their dollar as they can before it loses more of its value.

Government spending is a time-bomb that can blow up in our faces unless we find a way to deactivate it.

breath a sigh of relief. The American people want and are entitled to a breathing spell.

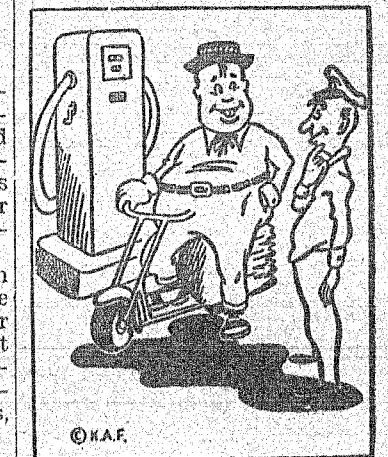

THE TEXAS DELEGATION will be quite different this year without Sam Rayburn, Paul Kilday and Frank Icard. That means three new faces from the Lons Star State. Wright Patman of Texarkana is now the dean of the delegation, having been elected in 1938. Next in seniority is George Mahon of Colorado City, whose service began in 1935, followed by Bob Poage of Waco and Albert Thomas of Houston, both elected in 1936. I am next in order of seniority, having been elected in 1942, thus making me 5th in seniority in the 22-member delegation.

milking quarters, chicken houses, barns and other enclosed livestock buildings where insulation is necessary. Tests simulating an animal falling or being pushed against the panels proved that the panels can withstand heavy or repeated blows by livestock.

Buildings constructed with these panels would be easy to clean and disinfect because the inside of the building is free of studs and the interior surface is extremely smooth. Joints are sealed with a caulking compound. The finished panels are light gray in color, but they may be painted.

Wall Panel Developed for Farm Buildings

College Station — An experimental wall panel, made of a 2-inch layer of plastic sandwiched between half-inch layers of reinforced portland cement, has been developed by the USDA for use in constructing farm buildings.

These panels are light enough to be handled by two or three men and are cast with holes for bolting to wooden posts set 3 feet apart. No special tools or equipment are needed to erect a one-story building with the panels, the USDA says.

According to USDA scientists, an experimental panel building constructed at Beltsville, Md., nearly two years ago has shown no signs of weathering. They estimate the panels will last more than 20 years.

Cost estimates indicate the panels are more expensive than concrete blocks for building of equal size. Total building costs would be comparable, however, because a panel building can be erected about four times faster than a block building.

The panels are suitable for Austin — Substantial progress has been made by the Legislators toward enactment of Gov. Price Daniel's program.

Lawmakers seeking re-election this spring are diligently at work. They want to be home by the filing deadline... Feb. 5.

Loans: House of Representatives sent a much-amended loan regulatory bill to the Senate. Bill would set up tight supervision over those who lend in amounts less than $1,500. Exceptions are banks, credit unions, savings and loan associations and various kinds of cooperative credit groups.

Those exempt from the regulatory law would be limited to 10 percent interest per year. All loans over $1,500 would likewise be held to 10 percent.

House bill allows a 3 percent per month charge on loans under $100... 2 1/2 percent on the part of the loan from $100 to $200... 2 percent on $200 to $500... and 10 percent on the part of the loan between $500 and $1,500.

When interest allowed on a loan over $20 is less than $4, the lender can charge $4 in lieu of interest.

Rural Roads: Senate passed the proposal by Sen. Neville Colson of Navasota to cut the spending on farm-to-market road construction-improvement by $17,500,000 a year. This amount will be used for construction of secondary and primary highways.

A House rural bloc on the Agriculture Committee favored a smaller reduction. They preferred a ten year graduated cut... to reach the goal set by Governor Daniel, Texas Farm Bureau, the County Judge and Commissioners Association and the Texas Good Roads Association.

Tourism: Large crowds turned out for the Senate and House committee meeting on these bills: (1) to appropriate $300,000 for advertising for tourists; (2) for expansion of the juvenile parole system; (3) and for repairs to the San Jacinto Monument.

Opposition came largely from advertising people who felt the Highway Department isn't the proper supervisor of an advertising program.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S RACE BEGINS

Former Secretary of State Tom Reavley of Austin was the first candidate for Attorney General to pay the $1,000 filing fee at State Democratic Executive Committee headquarters.

This is Reavley's first statewide race. The former Nacogdoches County Attorney was appointed Secretary of State in 19-55. He now practices law in Austin.

Wagoner Carr of Lubbock, two-term Speaker of the House of Representatives, already has announced as a candidate.

Although Carr lost the 1960 race to Will Wilson, he polled a half million votes.

The Lubbock lawyer says his platform has one basic plank, "strengthening our legal framework where needed, and more vigorous enforcement of those laws, once enacted."

Les Procter of Austin, who resigned his office as District Attorney, is expected to make a strong bid for the Attorney General's job.

Procter won prominence as prosecuting attorney during the veterans land scandals.

Rep. Tom James of Dallas, the fourth announced candidate for Attorney General, is busy with legislative duties.

"TOURISTS" READY TO TRAVEL

Formation of the Texas Tourist Council became official at a luncheon here which honored state representatives. Council urged appropriation of $300,000 for out-of-state advertising.

Tourist Council elected as its president James Gaines of San Antonio. Vice-presidents are Glenn Alexander of Corpus Christi, Everett Fulham of Lubbock, Ed Leach of Galveston, Charlie Meeker of Dallas, T. P. Newhall of Greenville, John Ben Sheppard of Odessa and John Simpson of Austin. Ed St. John of Austin was elected secretary.

Speaker James A. Turman told the 500 luncheon guests that the old joke "it is easier to pick a tourist than a bale of cotton" is about to go stale. He said Texas must let the rest of the nation know what it has to offer.

TEXAS CALLED BOOK DESERT University of Texas Chancellor Dr. Harry Ransom told members of the Texas Commission on Higher Education that the State of Texas is laboring under the label of "the book desert of the United States."

Dr. Ransom made the statement in support of a plea from

Veterans Holding NSLI Policies May Get Disability Rider

More than three million veterans holding National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) still have the opportunity of buying a low cost total disability income rider for their GI policies, P. J. Mims, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco said today.

This rider was first offered to veterans in November of 1958. Since that time nearly 800,000 of the 4.5 million policyholders eligible have applied for the rider. Those policyholders who have bought this rider and who become totally disabled from any cause before age 60 and while their rider is in effect will receive a monthly income of $10 each for each $1,000 face value of their policies.

Payments will continue for the duration of the disability regardless of its length.

The rider ceases to exist after age 60 and no payment is made for disabilities incurred after that age.

The premium cost of the rider varies with the policyholder's age, type of policy and its face amount.

Veterans whose age at nearest birthday is 40 or less may get the rider without physical examination. Those older are required to submit to a physical examination by either VA physicians or their own local doctors. VA medical application forms must be used.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from any VA Contact Representatives.

More states in the United States have names which originated from Indian words than from any other language.

Dr. F. L. McDonald, President of Lamar State College of Technology, for a more realistic appropriation recommendation for libraries in Texas' 19 state colleges.

Reappointed to the State Board of Examiners for Teacher Education were: Dr. Glenn Barnett of the University of Texas; Mrs. Kate Bell of Houston Public Schools; Dr. Arvin N. Donner of the University of Houston; Dr. Frank Hubert of Texas A&M; Dr. Herbert LeGrone of Texas Christian University; Dr. Emmett D. Smith of West Texas State College and Mrs. Florence Vaughn of Tyler Public Schools.

The Board also appointed a 16-member Junior College Study Commission on Budget Procedures and Reporting. This to comply with a bill for appropriations to public junior colleges in the summer session of the 57th Legislature.

SHORT SNORTS

Assistant Attorney General Bob Eric Shannon of Brownwood has been appointed Chief of the Attorney General's Insurance, Banking and Securities Division.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson won a judgment recovering more than $423,000 for the State in a suit alleging fraudulent sale of land in Kinney County to the Veterans Land Board.

Agriculture Commissioner John White predicted that the growth of the European "Common Market" will have a major effect on Texas farm economy. He said Texans will export some 25 percent of their $800 million cotton crop this year.

Accreditation standards was a much-discussed topic when 1,200 Texas school administrators met here last week.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN.

Female Baldness

Ladies, are you losing your hair?

Baldness among males has been such a common thing for so many years that most men accept it as inevitable and try not to worry much about it. But in recent years dermatologists have reported a steady increase in women patients whose hair is thinning and falling out. Why? The reasons are obscure. Some blame cheap hair dyes and ponytail hair styles, while others believe emotional upsets or air pollution are involved. Pregnancy sometimes causes loss of hair, but it almost always grows back. Improper use of home permanents may play a part.

An article in Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, points out a few facts that every girl and woman should know regarding hair care. Remember that hair loss often isn't permanent, and, in general, observe a few simple rules to help keep the hair normal and healthy.

Good general health is most important. Keep fit, get enough sleep and eat a balanced diet.

Brush moderately, forgetting about the old rule of 100 strokes daily, unless you have long, thick hair.

Shampoo regularly, once a week for most women, oftener if your hair is oily.

Don't dry your hair by rubbing briskly with a towel. Use a dryer, but avoid overheating.

If you have dry hair, shampoo less frequently and avoid bleaches. Use permanent waves less often.

Don't comb your hair constantly through the day. Avoid the ponytail style. It pulls your hair out.

If your hair is falling out more than normally, tell your hair dresser and ask him to be gentle.

Don't be misled by claims for creams, tonics, medications, which purport to grow hair. They can't.

If hair loss increases, don't panic. It often is temporary. If there is a definite thinning, consult a dermatologist. He might be able to help.

About Your Health

Laboratory services offered by the Texas State Department of Health have come a long way since a State chemist and bacteriologist first began work at the tail-end of the Nineteenth Century.

Since then, needed services have been added as the State grew and progressed. During the same period of growth, many local health departments installed their own laboratories to meet the needs in their areas.

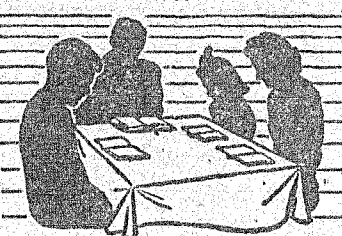

During World War II the demand for decentralization of laboratory services, especially serology tests, was enhanced by Selective Service Commission. Quicker results were required on venereal disease serological tests because sending the samples all the way to Austin and waiting for results often took several days — delaying the draft program in some areas of the State.

Also, personnel at the local laboratories became aware of the need for greater standardization among the regional laboratories.

For these reasons, a system of regional laboratories was established. As financing became available the number of laboratories and services provided were expanded, until today there are 22 laboratories located outside of Austin serving nearly the entire population of Texas. Areas without regional services continue to submit specimens for testing to Austin.

The bulk of regional laboratory services include serological studies, water and milk bacteriology and some identification of disease organisms related to communicable disease control.

Read Luke 24:13-26. Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. (Matthew 25:40.)

In the book In the Steps of the Master, the English author H. V. Morton tells about walking up the hillside of the Mountain of Temptations. There Morton saw ten Greek monks living in a hut built into the rocky mountain-side. According to the tradition, this was the cave where Jesus fasted. The monks offered Morton bread, for every stranger who comes to the cave is treated as if he were the Lord Himself.

The wandering Christ is standing at the door today, for He is walking the roads of this world. Evil may cross our paths, and sometimes we are tempted to believe that evil is the ruling force in the world. This is not so. Christ is among us, and He is love. He comes as the truth and the life. He comes to each of us. We must do as did the monks on the Mountain of Temptations, offer our neighbor love and concern as if he were Christ Himself.

PRAYER:
O God, ruler of the world, we give Thee thanks that Thou has sent us Christ, who walks the roads of the world today. Help us to receive Him and recognize Him in our fellow men when they come to our door. Give us humble and obedient hearts to glorify Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christ walks with us each day as we do His work.
— Ture Dahlqvist (Sweden)

Biologics production — manufacture of vaccines — and rabies identification, except in Houston, are performed solely in the Austin laboratory.

Standardization is maintained among the regional laboratories with frequent seminars and training sessions in Austin and by standardization tests. Syphilis serology is tested for instance, by samples distributed for examination which have been coded, so that the central laboratory knows in advance which are positive and which are negative.

Scores are recorded. Each laboratory must maintain a certain percentage of correct examinations.

Additional regional laboratories are planned for the future. (A weekly feature from Public Health Education, Texas State Department of Health.)

New Publication On Home Decorating Available

Colleg Station — Thinking of redecorating all or part of your home? If you are, you would do well to read a recent publication of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. This bulletin, B-971, deals with the beautification of windows and glass walls, important parts of any room.

There are few set rules for window decoration, but window treatments should help control light and heat as well as enhance the beauty of the room in which they are used. Each window or group of windows challenges its owner to make it contribute to the comfort, utility, beauty and joy of the home.

How is this accomplished? By utilizing the basic art concepts of harmony, proportion, balance, rhythm and emphasis.

When choosing draperies, consider the room, proportions, exposure, view, walls, floors, furnishings, accessories and the amount of surface which needs to be draped. Remember that the walls and floor form the background, which is the basis for pattern and color selection. A room's location also plays an important role in the selection of color. South and west rooms are usually more pleasant when done in cool, quiet tints, while north and east rooms are better in the warm colors.

Valances or cornices can make windows that are too tall or too narrow seem shorter. They may also be used to cover and conceal the rods and fixtures at the top of draperies. Lighting fixtures may be installed behind them to add soft lighting to the room. There are myriads of combinations for decorating rooms and each person must choose the one that is most pleasing personally. Before you make your choice, however, see your local county home demonstration agent and get a copy of B-971.

Tom Durden of the Liberty Community spent Saturday night with Jamie Lee Morris. Sunday afternoon his parents came for him and visited in the Morris home.

Beware, even in cold weather of rattle snakes. Sunday afternoon Loyd Rutherford and Bruce Estes were on their horses checking the cows south of Whon, and rode upon a large rattle snake, apparently sunning himself. He crawled back under a large rock. They were sure they had found a large den, but no matter how hard they tried, they never seemed to get but the one snake to come out, and they killed it.
