SERIOUS INDICTMENT OF UNESCO

By Rosalie M. Gordon

(Editor's Note: Rosalie M. Gordon is editor of All-American Books, All-American Book Digest and America's Future.)

There is a growing demand that the United States get out of the United Nations. It stems primarily from the fact that our involvement in the UN prevents us from running our foreign policy in our own interest and in the interest of free men everywhere. But there is an equally important reason why we should disentangle ourselves from this collection of communist, socialist and half-savage nations. The UN is more than merely its Security Council and its General Assembly. It is also a collection of alphabetical agencies which pose a serious threat to the internal security and institutions of the United States.

One of these alphabetical agencies is known as UNESCO — the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Perhaps you have noted a growing awareness, even among certain more alert schoolmen, that patriotism has been and is being downgraded among American school children. There are numerous forces behind this insidious trend, but one of the most effective has been this UN outfit called UNESCO. It issues a series of booklets with which it has flooded American public schools. They are beamed especially at kindergarten and grade-school teachers. No matter what fancy words are used to describe this activity, it is of course an attack by an international body on the minds of American youngsters.

The purpose of the attack is to turn them away from parental influence, from the teachings of their churches and temples, from loyalty to and a patriotic pride in America and American institutions and traditions. The idea is to make them what is called "world-minded"—to kill any feeling of national pride. They are to be taught not to be good American citizens but citizens of some kind of world government dreamed up by the UNESCO bureaucrats. This may seem a strong statement, but one of these UNESCO booklets instructs American teachers not to use any words or pictures that might make children feel a special love for the United States. The teachers must work to counteract family influences and are told to "correct many of the errors of home training" so as to prepare the child "for membership in a group... the first of many such social identifications that he must achieve on his way"—to where? To becoming a free American citizen? No, "on his way to membership in the world society."

Recently, we had confirmation, from an unexpected source, of the type of attack which flows from this UN agency called UNESCO. Mr. John M. Larson of Washington, D. C., wrote a letter to Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Mr. Larson was a member of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, which acts in an advisory capacity to our government and our delegations on matters concerning this UN offshoot. The purpose of Mr. Larson's letter was to resign from this UNESCO commission—and he gave his reasons. He talked about the sort of literature issued by UNESCO to influence our minds. He said it "had very little substance, and what little it does have appears overtly or covertly to be slanted away from the spiritual and ethical beliefs and traditions of the United States of America toward the sterile conceptions of a nebulous one-world government or federation which is built upon atheistic foundations."

Mr. Larson found "grave errors of omission and distortions

John Will Vance Buried Monday

Funeral services for John Will Vance, 67, well-known Coleman County rancher, were held at 2:00 p. m. Monday in the First Methodist Church of Coleman, with the Rev. Marvin Bledsoe, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Shields Cemetery.

Mr. Vance died unexpectedly about 10:00 p. m. Saturday night while treating one of his sick registered Polled Hereford calves. He was the owner and operator of the Vance Golden Hoof Hereford Farm in the Shields community.

Mr. Vance had been in ill health only a short time, of a heart ailment. Mrs. Vance was working with him at the time he was stricken Saturday night. A Coleman doctor rushed to the Vance home but Mr. Vance died before he could get there.

Mr. Vance was born Nov. 2, 1894 and had been a resident of Coleman County since 1904. He had been a resident of the Shields Community since 1906. He attended schools there and was graduated from A & M College in 1916. He was a veteran of World War I.

The veteran rancher and prominent civic leader was active in the Coleman First Methodist Church and many other activities of the county. During recent years his ranch gained much prominence in the show rings of the nation and in cattle sales over the Southwest. Mr. and Mrs. Vance had entertained many dignitaries, guests of the State Department, in their ranch home the past few years.

He was a charter member of the Coleman Rodeo Association and was a member and had served in official capacities of most of the county-wide organizations.

Survivors include his wife; one son, Kenneth of Roswell, N. M.; one brother, Clyde of Amarillo; three sisters, Mrs. W. T. Stewardson and Mrs. Lee Tatum, both of Santa Anna and Mrs. C. Conner of Fresno, Calif.; and two grandchildren.

Sue Pritchard is Gold Star Girl In Garza County

Sue Pritchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pritchard of near Post, formerly of Santa Anna, was honored as the 1961 Gold Star Girl of Garza County Saturday night at the Achievement Awards program, held in Post.

Miss Pritchard also received Achievement Medals in Foods-Nutrition and for three years 4-H work.

Walter C. Holt Seeks Re-Election As Commissioner

Walter C. Holt authorized The News to announce his candidacy for re-election to the office of Commissioner of Precinct No. 2, Coleman County, this week. His name appears in the Political Announcement Column elsewhere in this issue of The News.

Mr. Holt said he would have a statement to the voters of Precinct No. 2 later in the campaign. In planning an intensive campaign he said he would attempt to contact every voter in the precinct during the campaign and would appreciate your vote and influence very much.

of perspective" in UNESCO literature. He noted that this UN agency plays upon the desire of peoples for a peaceful solution of their conflicts. It pretends to supply a foundation for these hopes but "when its claims are investigated they are found to be empty as well as a convenient cover for its real activities." Then Mr. Larson laid it on the line: "The foundation of UNESCO is atheistic and materialistic... Rather than being genuinely concerned with the intellectual and moral development of men through education, UNESCO makes cynical use of those whom it professes to be serving and helping."

This is a serious indictment from a man who spent two years on the inside of UNESCO's activities. It is one more reason, among numerous others, why so many Americans are coming to believe that we should quit milking the American taxpayer for the support of the United Nations, and disentangle ourselves completely from this harmful alliance.

Political Column Begins This Week

A column announcing the candidacy of citizens of this area who seek election to public office begins with this issue of The News. The column appears on Page 4, near the Classified Advertisement section.

All candidates of the area — county, district and state — are invited to place their announcements in the column.

Several years ago the Texas Legislature passed a law whereby most of the county elective offices would be for four year terms, with some of them to be elected each two years. Offices to be filled in the 1962 elections include District and County Clerks, County Judges, County Treasurers, District Attorneys, County School Superintendents, County Surveyors, Commissioners from Precincts 2 and 4, and Justices of the Peace.

The First Primary Election will be held throughout the State of Texas on Saturday, May 5. For all offices not settled in the first primary, the Second Primary Election is set for Saturday, June 2nd.

There will be other elections in 1962 also. There will be the election of City Officials and School District Officials. An election will be held early in January in the Coleman County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1, and there is likely to be other elections during the year.

In order to be a qualified voter in any election, you must pay your poll tax unless you reached the age of 60 years prior to January 1, 1961.

We feel it is very important for everyone to be a qualified voter and to cast your vote in every election that concerns you in any way. We urge you to pay your poll tax before the deadline — January 31, 1962.

Poison Found In Local Yard

About three weeks ago two pieces of bread covered with some kind of a jelly substance were found in a local yard. This was about the time several dogs in the northwest part of town had been found to be poisoned.

The bread was sent to Austin for analysis and found to contain strychnine poison.

The home where the poison was found has a little girl about three years old living there. There are other small children in the neighborhood.

What kind of a person would do such a thing? In the opinion of your editor there is not much lower type of person to be found.

All parents are urged to be on the lookout for such as this and if anything is found that looks suspicious, call the law enforcement officials immediately.

Trend to Higher Motoricides Continue

Austin — The Texas Department of Public Safety said today the latest traffic death figures for the state confirm a trend toward a higher motoricide total for 1961 than 1960 when 2,254 fatalities were counted.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director, said "It has already become a certainty that the November toll this year will be higher than last year."

He explained that the department has received preliminary reports of 106 motoricides for the month, compared with only 90 for a comparable period in November, 1960.

"This confirms our analysis of a month ago when indications were that 1961 traffic fatalities, when final reports are in, would run one percent above the 1960 toll — or some 20 or 25 more deaths than last year," Garrison said.

The DPS director reported that as of noon Friday, November 24, a total of 1,957 traffic deaths had been reported to the department, compared with 1,930 during the same period in 1960.

"This represents an increase of 27 deaths or slightly over one percent," he said, "and presents all of us with a stern challenge to hold the line during the month of December."

"Now that we know we have lost ground in November, we can only look to an intensified program of traffic safety next month to save as many lives as possible. And this will not be an easy job, because the toll of 218 deaths during December, 1960, was low for that month of the year and we will have to beat that in order to halt the trend toward a higher death toll for 1961."

Garrison said field commanders of the DPS have been instructed to utilize their patrol manpower as effectively as possible to "bring about the maximum voluntary compliance with traffic law quickly."

This will be done, he said, by arranging working schedules as selectively as possible in terms of time, location and violations. He added that supervisors have been instructed to have their men look for and detect those serious traffic law violations which are causative factors in fatal accident experience, giving particular attention to high speeds, driving under the influence and other hazardous violations. In addition, said Garrison, they have been instructed to utilize radar as extensively as possible, as well as road checks for drivers licenses and detection of hazardous violations in concentrated areas.

"While these measures are being implemented by this department," he said, "it follows that we must again call upon motorists to join in this all-out drive for a safer 1961 by obeying the laws and rules of safety."

Sec. Dillon Pays Tribute to Many Volunteer Workers

Washington, D. C. — Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon today paid tribute to the volunteers of the U. S. Savings Bond program in a special message climaxing the program's 20th anniversary year.

The message appeared as a public service newspaper ad, the 12th in a monthly series in which the Treasury has expressed appreciation to various volunteer groups and institutions for their service in Savings Bond promotion since 1941.

Secretary Dillon's tribute pointed out that the volunteers "and other Americans who have bought and who are, in increasing numbers, continuing to buy bonds, can take pride in a very real contribution to the strength of our Nation. To all those who have, over the last 20 years, invested their time and their money in the welfare of their country, I say thank you and well done."

"Our task, however, is not over. It is, in a sense, just beginning. As we enter upon the future, such patriotic efforts become increasingly more important. I do not have to remind you of the peril to freedom in the world today. By purchasing bonds, and by encouraging others to do so through state, county and local volunteer Savings Bond efforts, Americans contribute significantly to our defense against the peril."

About Your Health

Austin — Now that school days are routine and winter is starting to push fall aside, there will probably be the usual increase in communicable disease common to children.

Thousands of unnecessary cases of communicable diseases, and deaths, could be prevented every year in Texas, if all parents would only realize the danger of the common cold.

Colds, especially a child's cold, should never be neglected.

But how many times have you heard a parent mention that Junior or Susie "have the sniffles" but they "seemed" well enough to go to school.

And what's more they will continue to go to school as long as they're able to walk, and only when they become seriously ill does the careless parent call the family physician.

But by that time a good many children in Junior or Susie's classroom have become exposed, thus setting up a chain of sickness and time lost from school.

And with the threat of the various types of flu hanging over the State, the common sense protection of keeping a child home when he or she is not feeling up to par makes more sense than ever.

A child who is sent to school feeling tired, perhaps because of inadequate meals, is handicapped. He not only lacks the aptitude for learning, but he is running the chance of falling prey to disease germs.

A youngster who is allowed to go to school suffering from a cold or the flu, runs the risk of serious complications. These troubles may develop into pneumonia, or if his resistance is low, signs of tuberculosis may appear.

However, when a slight illness is promptly and properly cared for, the child is usually well in a day or so.

The teacher can also be alert to notice if a child isn't feeling well. Of course, she is not expected to diagnose disease, nor is it her province to give health examinations, but she can recognize the common signs of pallor, a cold and fever.

For his own protection and of other children in the classroom, a sick child should not be allowed to stay in school. (A weekly feature from Public Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health).

Signup for 1962 Wheat Program Now Underway

Five reasons were given by the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office November 15 for wheat farmers of the county to sign up for maximum acreage diversion in the 1962 wheat stabilization program.

Chairman of the county committee, Vernon Bullard, cited these reasons:

1. It is financially attractive;
2. It is a form of insurance protection against loss of crop;
3. It is a source of immediate cash;
4. Through conservation, it improves cropland; and
5. By helping reduce the cost of farm programs, it improves the image of Agriculture to all America.

The county official stressed that, unlike previous programs, where, if a farmer's wheat acreage was within his allotment, he would be eligible for price support, the 1962 wheat stabilization program further requires that the acreage taken out of wheat production must be used for conservation. The farmer must fill out the proper form and participate in the wheat stabilization program in order to receive 1962 wheat crop price support and the stabilization payment.

Use Christmas Seals on All Holiday Mail

Why does your tuberculosis association ask you to "Use Christmas Seals on all your holiday letters and packages?"

Because these brightly-colored little stickers help to remind others that their help is needed too.

Because the happy family scene depicts the gift of good health which everyone should share.

Because no home is safe until all homes are safe.

Because approximately 2,300 more Texans will be told by their doctors in 1962, "I'm afraid you have active tuberculosis."

When you use Christmas Seals on your mail, you add a note of good cheer and a note of serious purpose as well. These Seals are traditional expressions of community spirit, of the help we all give each other.

Christmas Seals work for you and your friends and family all through the year. They help to find people who have TB and don't know it, to pay for research in prevention and treatment. They help in education and in rehabilitation, in finding and closing the gaps in TB control.

If you haven't already done so, please send in your Christmas Seal contribution today. And use Christmas Seals on all your holiday letters and packages. When you do so, you help to protect your own good health as well as the health of your community.

A LIFETIME YEARNING FULFILLED IN ATHENS

A yearning of a lifetime was being fulfilled for me, when our plane landed at the historically illustrious City of Athens. The travel agency there who had charge of my reservations is called: "Hermes En Grece," and the man who met me at the airport, was a typical Greek. He carried himself very erect and was extremely polite and spoke impeccable English.

My reservations in Athens were at the King's Palace Hotel and it was all that the name implies. It is an immense hotel and ultraluxurious throughout. I soon found out that I needed a map or a guide in order to know my way about, for I was continually having to ask for directions, to any special section to which I wished to go.

Never in my life have I felt so few in years and so inconsequential as I did in Athens, standing beside those stupendous ruins 3,000 years old and marvelled at the glory that once was ancient Athens. Ancient Athens renowned for its military powers; its unexcelled attainments of physical perfection; muscular strength and artistic skill, all of which have left indelible reminders that astound the world of today. For the first time since I had arrived in the Far East, I had been privileged to join a sight-seeing group. Our first stop was at the gigantic ruins of the Temple of Jupiter, where devastating time nor destructive wars had failed to obliterate the evidences of the tremendous artisanship of men who planned and constructed this immense marble edifice and carved the colossal marble columns that still stand as a warning to the world, as to omnipotence of God in dealing with an idolatrous people. Jupiter, known also as Olympus Zeus, was the supreme god of the Greeks and Romans, and the father and ruler of all their other mythical gods and goddesses. He was said to hold thunderbolts in his hands, and there was a great statue of him at Olympus, which was regarded by the ancients as one of the Seven Wonders of the World. Not a trace of it has been left, although it was carved of ivory and gold and was of tremendous size. However, from descriptions of it another one has been erected. As far back as 776 BC there are records of Olympic Games, held at Olympia, for the entertainment of their God Jupiter. These games were revived in the nineteenth century by the modern world, which holds them every four years as did the Ancient Grecians. The last Olympic Contests were held in 1960 in Rome, Italy.

We were conducted by our guide from the Temple of Jupiter to the great marble museum with its beautiful marble Corinthian columns, inside and out. We soon shifted our gaze from the magnificence of the fantastically decorated dome ceiling to the many displays of statuary, most all of which dated back to the century before Christ. Our lecturer was a charming and scholarly Grecian lady, who took great pride in running her fingers over these marble likenesses of the athletic ancient Greeks, and calling our attention to the amazing reproduction of the anatomies so exceedingly muscularly developed. Many of these statues had lain at the bottom of the Mediterranean Sea for years, where they had been thrown from ships by the Roman conquerors of Athens, when they found they were so heavy, the boats were about to sink.

The Romans had visions of placing these beautiful statues they had taken from the captive Greeks, in their Roman streets and museums.

One of the most unique experiences on this tour of Athens, as far as I was concerned, was a visit to one of the ancient and most celebrated Greek Orthodox Churches. The walls of this church were ornamented with vividly colored and brilliantly lighted tapestries, paintings, and other unusual handicraft decorations. From here we were taken to the smallest cathedral in the world. It is very old and is built in the form of a cross. It was erected in the fourth or fifth century AD. A huge painting of Christ fills the entire dome ceiling, and as you look upward, He seems to be looking down at you.

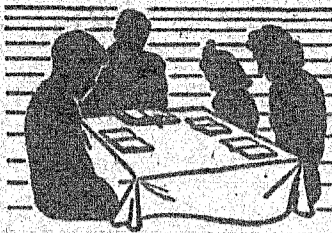

The crown jewel of ancient Athens was the incredibly beautiful Parthenon, which was made of pure marble. It stands high on the top of the Acropolis, which is a picturesque hill of solid rock, located in the very center of the ancient city, and inaccessible on three sides. After climbing to the top on the high rocky approachable side, stepping on and off of sharp stones that completely demolished the thick soles of my walking shoes, I would consider that side almost impenetrable. There are ruins and partial remains of many temples, theatres and fortresses on top of the Acropolis. I stood in awe before the amazing size and grandeur of the celebrated Parthenon, which was built in honor of Athena, the patron saint of this ancient idol-worshipping city. Athena's gigantic statue, covered in gold and precious gems, stood in the center of this temple, where kings and statesmen paid her homage. Hundreds of exquisitely sculptured figures adorn the outside walls of the Parthenon. Grouped around the famous ruins of this marble edifice are partial walls and columns of the Erechtheon, Temple of the Vestal Virgins, the Theatre of Dionisius, where Greek philosophers gathered; among them, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Xenocrates and other notable ones.

The Hill of Democracy stands a short distance from the Acropolis. On this hill was the beginning of the democratic governments of the world.

We climbed to the Hill of the Muses at the end of the wonderful old Roman Road and looked down on the city below with its crowded buildings sloping down to the beautiful blue waters of the Aegean Sea; the other three sides of the city are encircled by mountains, which are usually draped in mist and crowned with glistening snow. Directly in front of us we had a marvelous view of the Acropolis, which seems to be standing in majestic aloofness from the sordid manipulations of the busy city below. To our left was Mars Hill made famous by the courageous address of Paul, the Apostle, who dared to stand before the noted philosophers of that day. Before him stood the white marble temples with all the splendor of that day, bristling with Pagan idolatry. What magnificent faith he displayed, as he told them of the "Unknown God" which they honored with a temple and whom they unwittingly worshipped.

Today's MEDITATION from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room
THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Read John 14:1-7.

Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. (John 14:1.)

When my mother, in the evening of her life, asked me to go with her on a pilgrimage throughout India, I rejoiced. I had been trained and brought up on the lovely tales of Hinduism.

But as we went from place to place, I asked my mother, "Mother, where is God?" Thus my long search for God began.

One day a Christian friend called me. He was to have an eye removed the next day. He asked me to read to him from the Bible. I read the words of John 14. Those words became so real to me in the midst of my friend's situation that I asked him, "Can you not pray to this Jesus? ask Him?"

We spent all night in prayer. We shed tears of gladness because we felt God's presence with us, tears of sorrow because of our failures.

The next day the surgeon examined my friend's eyes. In astonishment he said something had happened and the operation would not be necessary.

Through this experience I came to know that Jesus is alive, and that I could have access to God through Him. Life took on new meaning. How wonderfully any person can go forward with Christ!

PRAYER:
Our Father, we thank Thee for Thy divine love manifested toward us in Thy Son Jesus Christ. Lead men everywhere to believe in Him that He may become their light. In His name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christ is the world's light — and my light!

National Debut For Debbie Sue As March of Dimes Poster Child

Debbie Sue Brown, a five-year-old winsome young lady of Clarkston, Wash., who is annoyed because she must wait a few years before marrying the boy next door, was selected this week as the 1962 New March of Dimes Poster Child.

Debbie Sue won out over hundreds of small children, afflicted with birth defects, arthritis or polio—health fields embraced by the program of The National Foundation—March of Dimes. The Poster Child lives a life both exciting and glamorous. If physical condition permits, there usually are visits to the White House, to Senators, Governors and other prominent persons as well as radio and television appearances during the New March of Dimes in January.

She will star in a January TV special, "The Scene Stealers," and her picture will appear nationwide on thousands of March of Dimes posters, coin collectors, and mail appeal envelopes.

Debbie Sue, high-spirited and active today, although doctors once believed she wouldn't survive the open spine with which she was born, lives in a valley of the Clearwater Mountains near the banks of the Snake River.

She is brown-eyed and blonde, the daughter of Jack C. Brown, a state highway surveyor, and Barbara Brown, who has a younger daughter, Carla, one year old.

Debbie Sue's birth defect of an open spine was not immediately apparent. But a few days after birth her grandmother, Mrs. Fred Bening, a registered nurse of nearby Orofino, Idaho, recognized that a serious disorder was present; and the parents then drove 400 miles at heading pace to Seattle's Children's Orthopedic Hospital. (The mother collapsed on arrival and was herself hospitalized.)

At the hospital the parents were told that Debbie Sue's spinal defect was of such severity that the infant probably could not live beyond three months. If she were alive at six months, however, she was to be brought back.

"We drove home sadly," Mrs. Brown relates, "trying to adjust ourselves to the tragedy of losing our beautiful baby. But our spunky Debbie Sue had no idea of leaving us at three months. At eight months, we returned to Seattle where her spine was mended. When she came out of surgery, she was so mischievous that she succeeded in wrenching free from the blood-transfusion tube and the needle used for intravenous feeding. Doctors told us she must lie face down on the night train riding home. Instead, she insisted on sitting up, giggling without end and keeping all the passengers awake."

The Asotin County Chapter of The National Foundation—March of Dimes promptly offered assistance and, since 1958, it has financed much of the cost of Debbie Sue's treatment, braces, medicines and the check-up trips to Seattle, the breadth of the state away. Happily, in her case serious crippling has been averted.

At least 250,000 infants are born yearly in the United States with birth defects—some even more severe than Debbie Sue's. The National Foundation, with March of Dimes financial support, is seeking the answers to this largest unmet childhood medical problem in the nation today.

When the 1962 New March of Dimes National Poster Child isn't scooting around the Lewis and Clark countryside with Daddy on his motorcycle, she plots how to provoke a proposal from Stevie, the six-year-old next door. Although it will be some time before she can consider marriage, Debbie Sue's idea is to get her man committed now.

Carcass Contest To Highlight Ft. Worth Stock Show

A new carcass contest — first in the Southwest — and new cattle competition highlight the pages of the 1962 premium list of Fort Worth's 66-year-old Southwest Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

W. R. Watt, president-manager, said the new premium list is going out now to thousands of former exhibitors. The 1962 Southwestern Exposition is scheduled Jan. 26-Feb. 4, with entry deadlines of Dec. 20 for cattle, sheep and swine; Jan. 2 for horses, and Jan. 15 for poultry, rabbits, ducks, geese, turkeys, pigeons, and game and exotic birds.

The Fort Worth "first" will be a carcass steer contest worth $3,210 in prize money, counting breed association awards. Hereford, Shorthorn, Angus and Red Angus will compete. A refrigerated case on the Stock Show grounds, specially designed for the Fort Worth event, will display a complete half of all four champion breed carcasses, plus retail cuts from the other half.

Consult County Agent Before Building

College Station — If you are planning any new construction on your farm, you'll likely profit if you check with your county agricultural agent. He can tell you about the farm building plan service that is available from Texas A&M College and can show you what plans are available, says W. S. Allen, extension agricultural engineer.

The plans are for typical farm service buildings and homes which are recommended for the many different farm situations throughout Texas. The plans were developed over many years on the basis of research and field experience.

Agricultural engineers at Texas A&M say most farmers build no more than one building of any one type during their lifetime. Therefore, reliable information is necessary to help plan and construct the most suitable building for any one specific purpose.

In selecting plans, the entire farm operation and the probable use of other buildings must be carefully considered. Any building that does not permit the use of labor and equipment, or that does not do the job for which it is needed, should be remodeled, Allen says. Consideration should be given to the flexibility and possible future needs when selecting a plan for a new building. Also, a visit to another farm where a building similar to that planned is in use would be time well spent.

A catalog of over 600 building and equipment plans is available from your county agent. He can advise on selection of the plan that will most nearly fit your needs. Plans can be obtained by the county extension agent free of charge.

TAX-MAN SAM SEZ:

The Certified Public Accountants in Texas are making a concerted effort in many sections of the state to get all the high school and college students trained in how to prepare their income tax returns. Internal Revenue Service prepares an excellent course, called "Teaching Taxes", that can be used by teachers from one day to three weeks in training students.

Thousands of Texas teachers and more than 150,000 students are receiving this training each year. The Certified Public Accountants, however, are asking the principals to provide the income tax training for all their students. The CPA's believe (based on their professional experience in preparing tax returns) that every high school graduate needs this fundamental training in our American way of life. The students will be paying taxes for the rest of their lives and they should know how to keep records and how to prepare their income tax return.

Nutria Promoters Found Guilty of U. S. Mail Fraud

Austin — Fraudulent statements concerning the amount of money that can be made from nutria production has brought conviction in federal court to two men in California.

The case involved a criminal prosecution for fraudulent use of the United States mails in the sale of nutria.

It has been pointed out by the Texas Game and Fish Commission that nutria propagation has been widely advertised in Texas as an animal useful in reducing the amount of undesirable vegetation.

As a result of the import of nutria into the state, it has become a pest in a large area along the Texas coast.

Research Aids In Developing House Plans

College Station — Extensive research has been done in recent years on Southern housing. Researchers have been trying to find out what people want in a house, why they want it, how much space is needed and how to plan for it. They have also considered the materials, type of construction, details of construction, soil, site and numerous other factors related to housing.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have begun a series of joint publications designed to give these research findings to homemakers and home builders.

First in this series is a plan for a moderate-sized home. Three bedrooms, living room and bath were planned around the needed storage units. Space in the house was planned for moderate clothing needs with two persons per bedroom. Central linen storage was placed at the end of the hall servicing the three bedrooms and a bath.

For the kitchen, a U-arrangement was selected. A dining area, laundry area and children's play area were selected to go with the kitchen arrangement.

The purpose of the plan is to show the contractor or home builder how research data may be utilized in the development of a desirable floor plan. Working drawings for this study plan have not been developed by the researchers, but may be developed by any competent engineer or architect. Unlimited possibilities exist for adapting this plan to personal preferences.

A copy of this plan may be obtained from the local county agent. Ask for a copy of L-543, "Moderate-size House Plan for Southern Living."

13 Festive Foods On USDA's December List of Plentifuls

College Station — Cooking, baking and festive eating get into high gear in December. It's a month for entertaining lavishly at times and informally on many occasions.

Thirteen versatile foods suited to either big dinners or quick snacks are listed on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's December list of plentiful foods. By using them extensively, Texas homemakers can serve tasty, attractive meals that reflect joys of the season, suggests the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A perfect Yuletide trio — turkey, cranberries and broiler-fryers — share top billing on the December list. Also to be available all month in abundance are pork, apples, fresh grapefruit, pecans, almonds, honey, vegetable fats and oils, peanuts and peanut products, pinto beans and rice.

The supply of each exceeds normal trade needs. Producers, processors and distributors will do everything they can to encourage full use of the abundance. Plentiful foods usually are more economical than items in tight supply.

Take turkeys and broiler-fryers for example. This year's turkey crop of 107 million birds is the largest on record — 26 percent more than a year ago. And prices on live turkeys have been at near-record lows. The same is true with broiler-fryers. Marketings are running 7 percent more than a year ago. Storage holdings in September were 40 percent higher. And prices paid to producers in mid-September hit a record low.

Visitors in the Roy Home home during the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. Sanford of Waco and Clint and Jane, students at McMurry College in Abilene.

Use our convenient Lay Away plan for your Christmas gifts, wrapped free in our all red Holiday package. Tots 'n Teens, Coleman.

Austin — With nearly 30 percent of the state's population over 65 years old, the State Welfare Department's tandem medical care program for Old Age Assistance recipients will be a significant solution to the problem of providing nursing service and medical treatment for all aging oldsters.

Welfare Department institutes its program of nursing home care for OAA recipients January 1. Program will affect every old person who has to rely on nursing-home care, whether he be indigent or financially self sufficient. Rating of nursing homes which apply for payments under the plan should result in a general upgrading of nursing home standards.

Despite efforts of nursing home operators' associations and Health Department officials to define this difference, there has been some public confusion about the difference between nursing care and custodial care. Relatives seeking homes for old folks are not always able to determine whether nursing care offered is sufficient for their kin's needs.

Introduction of state and federal money — about $8,000,000 a year — is certain to result in more and better homes for the aged.

The $23,000,000 Blue Cross policy for Texas' 220,000 OAA recipients — also effective January 1 — may pave the way for more thorough medical protection for old folk.

Policy sets a precedent, as no other insurance company has ever provided such extensive coverage for people over 65. If it does not prove too costly, other companies may offer similar coverage for elderly people on an individual basis.

MORE MILEAGE FROM TOURISTS

Gov. Price Daniel's "Texans for Tourists" group will get together to discuss passage of a legislative appropriation for advertising the State's numerous attractions. Although the Legislature passed a voter-approved Constitutional amendment to allow for tourist promotion in 1958, no funds were allotted for this purpose.

While the Texas Highway Department distributes attractive brochures through its eight state border stations, nothing has been accomplished on a national basis.

Meanwhile the state is losing money on tourism. The 8,600,000 out-of-staters who came here last year contributed $23,000,000 to the state's tax till. They spent $427,000,000 while here. This was a drop of one million visitors from 1960 and a drop of almost two million from 1959.

Other states consider tourist advertising a sound investment, figuring they get hundreds of dollars in return for each dollar spent on advertising.

CHEAT OR ESCHEAT

Governor Daniel told the special House Committee investigating escheat laws that emphasis in his fight to include banks "has been in the wrong place."

He said that instead of battling to get banks to turn over money in dormant accounts, em-

Statement was made after State Bank Commissioner J. M. Falkner testified that dormant and inactive accounts "make it easier" for would-be embezzlers. He said it's easy for bank officers or employers to manipulate dormant accounts. Falkner stated that "a few" state banks have even tried to make charges against dormant accounts, converting the money to profit, but that his department has been successful in stopping such procedures.

The State Commission has no jurisdiction over the practices of national banks within the state. It is his understanding, however, that many national banks do make service charges against inactive accounts.

Falkner estimates that between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 lie dormant in state banks, and from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 in the national banks located in Texas.

VETERANS LAND SUITS UP

State attorneys still are trying to recover more than $500,000 paid for land under the Texas Veterans Land Program some seven years ago.

Austin District Judge Herman Jones heard pre-trial arguments in four civil suits from State Assistant Attorney General J. Arthur Sandlin and John D. Cofer, Austin attorney who represents Brady land dealers B. R. Sheffield and L. V. Ruffin. In addition to the land dealers, 54 Brady veterans have been named as defendants.

Jones took the motions under advisement.

JUVENILE PAROLE PROGRAM UNDERWAY

Now that the five most populous counties — El Paso, Dallas, Tarrant, Bexar and Harris — have agreed to provide office space, travel expenses and secretarial help for regional officers working in the Texas Youth Council's Juvenile Parole program, the council is ready to consider hiring a state director to coordinate the program.

Council hopes to hire five officers in time to pick a director when its board meets December 14. Bexar County parole director James Lewis has been mentioned frequently as a possible prospect for the post, which combines heavy responsibility with a $7,200 annual salary.

BUILDING ON THE RISE

Residential permits issued in October ran 42 percent above the 1960 figure for the same month.

Apartment construction is largely responsible for this rise.

A total of 101,079 construction permits were issued last month: 60,658 for residential; 40,421 for nonresidential, and 10,496 for alterations and repairs.

Alterations and repairs on residences were up 19 percent.

CATTLE DISEASE

Texas Animal Health officials feel that the Federal inspectors at the border are not using tight enough controls to be absolutely certain that no diseased cattle enter Texas.

Fever tick, long ago eliminated in Texas, is the big fear of cattlemen. Last month, 17 herds of Mexican cattle were held up by Federal inspectors for dipping when they were found to have ticks upon arrival at the export pens.

Hunters Urged to Practice Safety

College Station — Deer are plentiful this year and there is also an abundant supply of hunters. Which will kill you? Ed Cooper, extension wildlife specialist, warns that a lot of hunters will be shot unless common sense safety rules are followed by everyone in the field.

Can you imagine how it would feel to be hit by the slug from a deer rifle? Or perhaps even worse, how it would feel to be responsible for shooting one of your hunting companions? In either case, the prevention is much easier than the cure, advises Cooper.

Hunting safety rules are so simple that many hunters don't bother to practice them. Every year scores of hunters fall victim to gunshot wounds, and the excuses follow the same old pattern. "I didn't know the gun was loaded." "Well, he looked just like a deer in that thick brush." And so it goes, every year.

Many hunting accidents could be prevented if hunters would follow the simple rule of "Don't shoot unless you would bet your life that you know what you're shooting at." Another cardinal rule of hunting is, "Don't leave your stand until everyone quits hunting." Every step taken through the brush raises your chances of being mistaken for a deer, and this could prove fatal.

Always assume every gun is loaded — until you have opened the action and looked for yourself. Before you fire a gun, make sure it is in good working order and the barrel is clear, warns Cooper.

Then there are the people who manage to shoot themselves. Climbing fences with a loaded gun, leaning one against a tree or car, or throwing a loaded gun into the car are ways to add your name to this list. The remedy for these potential accidents is simple: don't do these things and don't hunt with people who do.

There is no open season on people. Use your head and don't violate that rule, and don't let one of your friends "poach" on you, Cooper concludes.

No Smoke When Leaves Composted

College Station — There is a safe and practical way to handle the leaves which are now falling and cluttering lawns and gardens. Why smoke up the neighborhood and create a fire hazard by burning the leaves? asks W. F. Bennett, extension soil chemist, when a compost pile "will solve the problem."

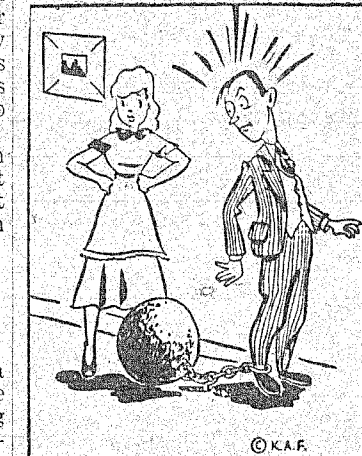

Making a compost pile is a simple operation, explains Bennett. Scrap lumber or a few feet of net wire and four posts are the only materials needed. Start with a six inch layer of leaves and for every four square feet of enclosure, sprinkle one-half cup of commercial fertilizer, such as 8-8-8, over the layer of leaves.

In areas where soils are acid, the chemist suggests adding a cup of lime to the fertilizer.

After the fertilizer is added, apply a 1/2 to 1 inch layer of soil then continue adding layers of leaves and soil until the pile reaches the desired height. Bennett explains that the top layer should be left somewhat saucer-shaped so it will hold water. In three to four months, the leaves will decompose and become excellent material for use next summer to increase the organic matter in flower or vegetable garden soils or as a mulch for flowers, shrubs or vegetables.

Heavy accumulations of leaves left on the lawn, Bennett points out, can damage the grass especially when they are wet. They may also be responsible for more disease problems. Leaves should be removed and the extra time required to put them in a compost pile will return big dividends, concludes the chemist.
