Coleman Development Co. Contributes To S'Anna Project

The Board of Directors of the Coleman Development Company met Monday with Rodney Musick of Santa Anna regarding a pending Comanche Indian project proposed by a new non-profit organization in Santa Anna. Mr. Musick made a presentation to the Board regarding the plans proposed for an Indian museum in Santa Anna as well as other cooperative projects proposed by the city of Santa Anna with the Comanche Nation.

Development Company Board of Directors felt the project would benefit all the citizens of Coleman County as well as the citizens of Santa Anna. During the discussion the members of the board of Coleman Development Company expressed a desire to continue to assist in any way possible to further the continuing improvement in community relations between the citizens of Coleman County.

When contacted about the meeting Rod Musick, Director of Special Projects for the Santa Anna group, expressed his appreciation of the interest shown by our neighbors. He said he was looking forward to working with them on this and other projects for the benefit of Coleman County. As far as the Comanche Museum project, Musick says "Things are going real well and we see some great things ahead for our area."

Musick adds that State Rep. Bob Turner has been a great help and his interest and service on the board of directors for the group is opening doors for the Santa Anna Historical Development Organization. Congressman Charles Stenholm is presently helping by trying to push some paper work through that will establish a non-profit status for the organization and thereby make it eligible for grants and other funds.

To quote Mr. Musick, "We are 100% optimistic about the future of our project and the area."

Council "Resolves" Personnel Problem

Following an executive session of the Santa Anna City Council last Friday, Mayor Gayle Brock made the statement, "The personnel matter concerning Mr. Deriel Warnock has been discussed and resolved by the City Council in the executive session. Section 2g of the not make an appearance before the council.

The Council met on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9 in the meeting room of the Coleman County Telephone Cooperative for its regular scheduled monthly meeting.

Present for the meeting were Mayor Gale Brock, and councilpersons Danny Kellar, Emmitt Simmons and Jim Spillman. Others present were Tommy Jackson, Billie Mercer, Carlos and Sherry Torres, Alys Pelton, Frances Cobler and Pearl Wilson.

Frances Cobler presented the council with a petition from local citizens wishing for Mr. Warnock's immediate dismissal.

A motion was made and passed to accept the resignation of councilwoman Karen Morris.

The ordinance to close a portion of Avenue A and North 7th Street was made and carried.

The City will cast all 125 votes allocated for the Coleman County Tax Appraisal District Board of Directors to Barbara Kingsbery.

City Hall holidays were set as Thanksgiving--Nov. 25 and 26; Christmas--Dec. 23 and 24; and New Year's--Dec. 31.

The council agreed to have Mayor Brock handle the selection of long distance telephone service for the city.

It was reported to the Council that electric heaters had been placed in the armory's bathrooms and a heat lamp in the kitchen to cut down on the gas expense for heating during the winter. The Senior Citizen's Nutrition Center will continue to be held at the armory. The mayor informed the council that the ESA Sorority will sponsor "Mile of Nickels" in December to help support the local nutrition center.

The revised budget was accepted as presented. The revision shows the decrease in the cost of auto, property and liability insurance and the sale of city equipment.

Tommy Jackson is in charge of work assignments for the city crew. He reported that the work is continuing as usual. Currently the city crew is working on the water pump Lake Brownwood that Feather Bay had.

Barbara Kingsbery will cover for City Secretary Alys Pelton while she is on leave.

The next regular council meeting is scheduled for December 14.

Texas Open Meetings Act authorizes certain deliberations about officers and employees of a governmental body to be held in closed session. Therefore, no further comment will be made by the council or its members regarding this issue other than stating that the issue has been resolved."

On Monday, City Secretary Alys Pelton confirmed that Mr. Warnock is no longer employed by the City of Santa Anna and the council has made no decision concerning his replacement as Superintendent of Operations.

Mr. Warnock said he was sorry the incident took place but it was just one of those things that happen before you think when you are antagonized. He had informed the City Council and Chief of Police Carlos Torres several months ago about other unpleasant visits he had received from Leland Thompson. Thompson, in the matter before the council, accused Mr. Warnock of striking him after, he claims, he complained of work he felt needed to be done to the street in front of his residence. Mr. Warnock says there is more to the story but it would serve no purpose to continue the ordeal and he is not going to play the media game.

Warnock has expressed his appreciation of the Mayor and City Council for the way they handled the unpleasant decision they were forced to make in light of threatened litigation by Thompson as brought to the Council by his daughter, Sherry Torres. Mr. Thompson did

Santa Anna Brother & Sister Make Their Mark At McMurry

Jason Dean, McMurry Indian

Julie Dean, Indian Band Member

The McMurry Indians beat the Howard Payne Yellowjackets 35-7 last Saturday in Brownwood to end their football season ranked 18th in NAIA Div. II. Oddsmakers had HPU topping the Indians, but apparently they didn't realize that McMurry had too many guns to overcome. This was the first time in years that McMurry could boast of a winning season, let alone be ranked. The Indians, 8-2 for the season, missed a playoff berth by one place in the rankings and Coach Joe George felt the fact his team is not well-known nationally hurt them in the ranking.

Coach George is quick to say that former SAHS Mountaineer Jason Dean is one of those "guns" that gave HPU some big problems and is a big part of the reason for McMurry's success this year. Jason plays guard on offense and according to George does an outstanding job at his position. It was obvious to my husband and I as we watched them play Saturday, that Dean was definitely an asset to the Indians. In fact, it was Jason who opened the hole through which a McMurry back dashed for the first TD of the game.

Coach George says every game this year for McMurry after getting in quite a bit of playing time last year as a freshman. He calls Jason one of the team's "mainstays" and adds that not only is he a "very good football player, he is an outstanding person." "We are proud to have him at McMurry," he said.

Stats are not kept for Jason's position, but Coach George says if they were, the stats would be quite impressive.

George says that Dean is the kind of football player that will work hard to continue to improve and players such as he will be the reason the Indians will be back in playoff contention again next year.

As a senior at Santa Anna in the 1990 football season, Jason was named All-District 1st team offense and defense, All-Area on defense, and honorable mention All-State on offense. Along with his athletic prowess, Jason graduated third ranking student of his class in the spring of 1991.

A member of the band and a cheerleader, Jason's sister Julie was there cheering for him when he was numbered among the Santa Anna Mountaineers from junior high through her junior year at SAHS after which he began his career at McMurry.

This school year Julie has once again been in the stands each week cheering for her brother, this time as a member of the McMurry band. According to Band Director Jim Williamson, he met Julie at last year's McMurry Homecoming and found she was interested in becoming a member of his band.

She graduated SAHS last spring and has been at McMurry since the fall semester started. Williamson says he has gotten to know her and is very pleased she made the decision to attend McMurry.

Williamson commented that Julie is one of those very cooperative band members always ready to work hard to put on a good performance and she has been an asset to his band program.

Julie served as cheerleader at SAHS all four years of high school, played basketball, served on the student council, annual staff and played alto sax in the Mountaineer Band.

Another interesting fact about the brother and sister is that they are both studying toward degrees in Criminal Justice with hopes of careers in the F.B.I., D.E.A. or others in that field.

Both Coach Joe George and Band Director Jim Williamson were complimentary of support the two student's have from their parents Roddy and Debbie Dean who have also been in the stands each game.

The couple was always there for their children during activities at SAHS and that constant support has followed Jason and Julie to McMurry, where both are making their marks as the kind of students of which any school could be proud.

Check It Out

By Alice Anna Spillman

The state of New Hampshire has an organization of craft artisans. There are a series of shops who stock their creations. Luther and Janet May participated in the shop near "Golden Pond". Yes, that was the site used in the movie of that name. Luther created beautiful articles using real flowers. He always picked Polly's purple flowers (filaree) that grows in our yard. Now you have a chance to buy one of Luther's creations. He has made bookmarks to sell and make money to buy new books for the library. Do come by and admire these. Remember that every flower was picked, pressed and placed with a pair of tweezers. One must be an artist with patience, skill and eye for beautiful and a very steady hand to create these. Princess Grace of Monaco created pictures using this medium. A special thanks to Luther for planning this project for the library.

Last week the library needed help and Nell Myers came to the rescue. She willingly worked an extra day. By the way, she tells me that a friend of her sister's made the pilgrim couple that is now on our table. The friend did special research on the colors that I admire. Check it out.

Cam Slagle has given a big boost to the shelving work. She has finished two large boxes of books. The pile of books is almost gone. We all appreciate the way Cam is always so willing to help.

Dr. Kathy Pearce came by to leave a sack of young adult books. She and her family have given many books for children. She reports that daughter Erica hopes to work in the library at college. Have any of you boys and girls considered library science as a career?

If you read the Abilene Reporter News, there have been stories about George Meason, a 79-year-old Odessa, who came to West Texas on the Orphan Trains. The fictional story about one of those trips touched my heart and still does. This story was in a magazine, was a Reader's Digest Condensed book and TV movie. If you missed these I've taken the condensed book to the library. Survivors or their relatives are encouraged to contact the Orphan Train Heritage Society of America, P. O. Box 496, Johnson, Arkansas: 72741-0496, the Santa Fe Railroad was the reason that Santa Anna moved from the gap of the mountain. There could have been an orphan train stopped here. Are any of you out there?

Please watch for several days that the library will be closed over the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. Get a supply of books early in the week.

Selecting The Best Nutrition When Eating Out

By: Carol Katzer, CEA-H.E.
It is estimated that Americans will spend $236.5 billion while eating out this year, but how will they know which meals are more nutritious? The average American eats out 3.8 meals per week of 198 meals per year, according to 1993 National Restaurant Association Foodservice Industry Forecast figures. Also, Americans are purchasing more take-out foods to eat off premises of the restaurant.

So, knowledge of factors such as ingredients and preparation methods are still essential in making healthier choices. Also, if you are on a special diet such as diabetes diet or just want to eat healthfully, knowledge about serving size from each of the six food groups--breads, vegetables, fruits, meat, milk and fats--is essential.

Many of the restaurants are offering heart-healthy choices designed by a heart of the menu. These foods are low in fat, saturated fatty acids, cholesterol, sugar and sodium. Some of the fast-food restaurants are offering information about the nutritive value, including carbohydrate, protein, fat, calories, sodium and cholesterol content of the food items on the menus.

Many restaurants are even providing nutrition education bulletins on topics such as the dietary guidelines, healthy eating tips as well as selection of healthier food choices just to attract customers.

Here are some tips for healthy eating out experiences:

*Develop healthful mind set and can-do attitude.

*Determine frequency of eating out--how often, where, when and what's ordered.

*Balance higher-calorie restaurant food with lower-calorie choices the rest of day and exercise.

*Pre-plan for what you will eat before eating out.

*Ask the server about preparation methods, ingredients used and added fat.

*Ask about portion size.

*Make special requests such as a luncheon portion for a dinner meal. Or, ask for a doggie bag to take extra food not eaten home.

*Enjoy the non-food pleasantries of restaurant dining.

*Remember, alcohol provides extra calories, plus increases your appetite. So, if you are trying to control your caloric intake, then select either tea, coffee, water, skim milk and juice.

Dear Editor

My dad and I were recently in Santa Anna and I believe it was you we spoke with in the newspaper office (I think we were there 10/25). My dad grew up in and around Santa Anna and graduated from Santa Anna High School in 1937. His name is Quinton Hudler.

I'm writing to inquire about the possibility of locating a 1937 high school annual for my father since he never got one. I was hopeful that you might know where to get one or get one reproduced even if it was just a photocopy.

Perry Reminds Texans Of Simple Rules To Ensure A Safe Thanksgiving

AUSTIN--As cooler weather and holiday festivities approach, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry reminds Texans to review and practice safety measures around the house.

"With all the holiday activities, it's easy to get distracted and that's when accident occur," Perry said. "But if we just take a few minutes to remind ourselves of the safe way to do things, we call all have a happy holiday season."

Fire safety becomes important as people use fireplaces, put up Christmas trees and decorate with candles. Before building a fire, make sure your chimney is clean and in good repair. Check the roof and gutters to be sure they are clear of debris such as leaves or other items that might catch fire.

"This is a great time to teach your children safe habits," Perry said. "Talk to them about proper use of fire and matches. Review the family plan for getting out of the house in case of fire. Practice safe habits yourself, like wearing protective eyewear when cutting firewood. Your child will learn by watching you, which will support what you tell them."

Food is an important part of all holidays, especially Thanksgiving, and simple precautions can prevent problems. The temptation may be to leave Thanksgiving dinner out for people to munch on all day, but that can cause problems.

"The 4-C's rule is an easy way to remember safe food preparation," Perry said. "If you follow these steps, your holiday dinner will be enjoyed by all."

Clean everything--hands, utensils, cutting boards, counter surfaces, dishes and dishrags--between every step of food preparation. This is especially true when handling raw meat, poultry or seafood to prevent any bacteria from being transferred elsewhere. Cook foods thoroughly, following recommended temperature instructions, since bacteria are killed by proper cooking. Chill the food. After cooking, perishable foods should be chilled rapidly and leftovers stored at temperatures below 40 degrees. Cross contamination can be avoided easily by washing hands after handling raw foods and before handling cooked foods or those served fresh. Preparation of raw foods should be kept separate from any areas where cooked or fresh foods are handled.

Holiday baking required a lot of eggs. Again, potential problems can be avoided by checking to make sure eggs are not cracked before you buy or use them.

"As farmers or ranchers, anytime we move into another season, we have to do certain things to prepare--whether it's getting equipment ready or making sure you have enough hay to get through the winter," Perry said. "We also need to pause and take inventory around the house. Now's the time to make sure the house is ready for winter and to review safety precautions for this time of year. An ounce of prevention will yield pounds of holiday fun."

are being held in a state account while attorneys for the senator determine whether they are legal, a spokesman said last week.

"We want to make sure that it's fully researched and done legally so that you don't run into conflict between state and federal law," said David Beckwith, a spokesman for Hutchison.

A letter has been sent to the senator's supporters soliciting contributions to combat "the political inquisition in Austin."

Nearly $50,000 has been collected in recent weeks, Beckwith said.

Meanwhile, the grand jury investigating Hutchison subpoenaed two new witnesses, including the Austin lawyer who kept the books for her 1990 race for state treasurer.

The lawyer, David Herndon, who also oversees Hutchison's state officeholder account, was questioned by grand jurors last week. Mike Toomey, an Austin lobbyist and former member of the House of Representatives, also appeared before the panel.

Richards Picks Lottery Panel
Gov. Richards last week named two lawyers and a religious leader to head the Texas Lottery Commission.

Jan Fisher, an Odessa lawyer in private practice and a former Ector County judge, will chair the newly created commission.

Other commission members include:

■ Anthony J. Sadberry, a lawyer from Cypress in Fort Bend County. A graduate of Georgetown University School of Law, he is a former assistant attorney general.

■ Richard Daly of Austin heads the Texas Catholic Conference and serves as a trustee of St. Edward's University.

The new commission was created by the Legislature earlier this year and will take over operation of Texas' highly successful lottery from Comptroller John Sharp.

97 Districts Share Wealth
All but one of the 98 school districts that are required to share some property wealth under the new school finance law have won voter approval to either send a check to the state, educate students in other districts, or a combination of both, according to the Texas Association of School Boards.

The Tuloso-Midway district decided to transfer some property from its tax rolls to the Corpus Christi district.

Dr. McKutcheon visiting classroom after speaking at assembly

Speaker Gives Native American Perspective During School Assembly

A speaker at a school assembly Monday told the Native American's perspective on the first Thanksgiving, how the Indians offered friendship and furnished the food for the feast.

Dr. Ken McKutcheon, a professor of English at Tarleton State University, also interjected the Indian's view of Columbus whom they see as a murderer. "That is not to say that his bringing two worlds together was not a great time in history," he said, "but the fact remains that he did bring about the murder of native Americans."

speakers who will bring minority perspectives to issues of discussion in other assemblies. School counselor Montie Guthrie says future speakers will bring minority thoughts concerning the issues of drug education, careers and possibly other subjects.

McKutcheon went on to discuss aspects of Indian life such as family values and the closeness the Indian people feel with nature and the lessons it teaches. The speaker, who is part Cherokee Indian, brought out the fact that the Indian tradition is to live in harmony with everything (animals) that is different. "From studying animals,

We learn much about life and morality," he said.

He said the events of history and experiences we all live are what make us the people we are today.

He theorized, "Life is about two dogs and one bone. Its how we resolve our differences that make us who we are."

Dr. McKutcheon is a native of Bronte and a graduate of Harvard University. He is one of several

NEWS

IS EDUCATION READY FOR 21ST CENTURY TEXAS?

In 1941, when George Sessions Perry wrote his rollicking portrait of the past and present of his native state, he called it "a world in itself".

May 5, 2025 will be his 115th birthday. If he were to return to Texas then he would find the kinds of colleges he attended (Southwestern University in Georgetown and the University of Houston transformed and his state more of "a world in itself" than he ever dreamed it could be.

At least that's the opinion of experts like Steve Murdock, a Texas A&M professor and chief demographer for the Texas State Data Center, and others. Rapid population growth is changing not only the face of Texas but its educational institutions as well.

When Perry was born, Texas had a population approaching 4 million. It's about 17 million today and is expected to reach more than 22 million by 2025. Most of this expected growth will come from minority ethnic groups.

This is not surprising in a state that always has had a proud ethnic heritage. The Indians, Spanish, Germans, Poles, Mexicans, Anglos, Blacks and at least 25 other racial and cultural groups have made the state the great melting pot of humanity that it is.

As Dr. Murdock points out, however, these same ethnic groups, plus Asians, immigrants from South America and other parts of the world, are contributing to the greatest population explosion in the state's history. As a result, Dr. Dudley Poston, a Texas A&M sociologist, says the state must plan now to build hundreds of new public schools and increase the number of senior colleges by one-third.

This growing ethnic diversity in the population may require changes in the subjects being taught from kindergarten through college. In six Texas cities (Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, El Paso, Laredo and Corpus Christi), Anglos already are in the minority. In many communities across the state, minority students outnumber Anglos in the public schools.

The trend is national. Among the nation's largest cities (those with more than 100,000 population), 51 have populations in which minorities are the majority. These include Hispanics, African-Americans, Asians and American Indians.

By 2025, demographers say there will no longer be any ethnic majority in Texas. According to the 1990 Census, almost 40 percent of this state's population already is made up of these minorities. And while English is expected to remain the dominant language, one in four Texans today speaks the tongue of their ethnic heritage at home. A decade earlier, only one in five spoke something other than English at home.

Spanish always has been a second "mother" tongue in Texas, and it is taught in most public schools, colleges and universities. The Census Bureau says that 3.4 million Texans speak nothing else at home. Surprisingly, 57,000 residents say they speak Vietnamese at home, 48,000 say Chinese is their home tongue, and 26,000 speak Korean.

Texans, who have never claimed to be linguists, had another surprise when they answered questions for the Census. From Indian dialects to German, 169 different languages were recorded as being spoken by residents in their homes.

Will schools have to take another look at language instruction, world history and cultural heritage in planning curricula for the new century? It's a question that educators are asking for more foreigners arrive.

Some 130,000 newcomers arrive in Texas each year—80,000 for them foreigners. These immigrants alone will add nearly 5 million to the state's population by the year 2030.

Educating the children of these new residents is a major concern to those responsible for the state budget. There are other problems, too. These newcomers have to be housed, assured jobs and medical care, and many other public services. For example, new highways will be necessary to handle the 15 million additional automobiles the population growth will add to present roads.

Dr. William Mobley, president of Texas A&M, is confident that education, as it has in the past, will provide the answer to whatever problems the new century will bring.

"Education," he says, "is the solution to the major problems of state and nation—problems such as crime, welfare, unemployment and an under-educated work force in the emerging knowledge-based society."

He believes it's also the answer to dealing with population growth.

Lamb Showmanship Clinic Saturday

A lamb showmanship clinic will be held on Saturday, Nov. 20 beginning at 9 a.m. at the Coleman Rodeo Grounds and will be conducted by Sam Kuykendall, Menard County Extension Agent along with several Menard County 4-H members.

The clinic will give instructions on proper dress, attitude, lamb placement and working with the lamb to present it's best qualities.

The clinic will also discuss grooming and care before and at the stock show. Each person may bring one lamb to work with while at the clinic.

This clinic is an absolute must for beginners but will benefit every lamb participant in Coleman County.

Parents are strongly encouraged to attend and to take advantage of this opportunity to ask questions that you might have.

TIPS ON STAYING SAFE AND SOUND WITH NATURAL GAS.

For more than 80 years, Lone Star Gas has been providing safe, dependable energy to its customers. By following a few simple rules, you can help make sure you and your family stay safe and sound with natural gas:

- Always have qualified service people install, regularly check and maintain all gas heaters and appliances, following the manufacturer's instructions for installation, ventilation, and operation.
- Always use a gas appliance only for its intended purpose. An oven, for example, should not be used to heat a room.
- Always keep flammable materials and substances away from gas heaters and appliances. Remember, a pilot light is constantly burning.

IF YOU SMELL GAS

- 4 Do not strike a match or do anything else that might cause a spark.
- 5 Go to the nearest telephone and call Lone Star Gas Company. Wait until we have found the cause of the gas leak before returning to your home.

If you smell gas while you're outside, contact Lone Star Gas immediately.

WTU Announces "Holiday Delights" Now Available

The 1993 "Holiday Delights" cookbook is now available at your local West Texas Utilities Company office. This year's cookbook is a recipe collection of past favorites to use for entertaining, baking and gift-giving. Each recipe features a nutritional analysis for each serving to help if you are watching calories, cholesterol, fat, sodium, etc.

The holiday season brings with it thoughts of baking and food preparation. WTU has a few tips to offer during this time of year. Food safety is particularly important during the holidays when traditionally larger quantities of food are prepared. Here are a few food safety precautions to follow:

- *Thaw turkey in the refrigerator or in cold water, never at room temperature, to prevent bacterial growth;
- *Do not oven-roast meats at temperatures below 325 degrees. Temperatures below 325 degrees are not high enough to destroy bacteria that may develop in large cuts of meat or turkey during long cooking periods;

- *Cooked food should never be left at room temperature for more than two hours, including preparation time. Refrigerate promptly;
- *Refrigerate cream, custard or meringue pies and any food with a custard filling, such as cakes, cream puffs or eclairs, just as soon as they have cooled slightly. Follow the same precautions for salads and sandwiches made with salad dressings containing eggs or milk products;

- *Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Hot foods should be kept at 140 degrees until served. Cooked cold foods should be kept at 45 degrees or lower.

By planning ahead and following these food safety tips you can help ensure your families' health during the holidays and the rest of the year.

Remember to stop by WTU for your free cookbook.

Capitol Comments

by BOB TURNER
State Representative - District 73

This week I am returning to the subject of the environmental movement. One of the most important issues we face in agriculture and rural Texas is the rising influence environmental groups have on the shaping of public policy. How have these groups, with interests that can be so damaging to our state and nation, been able to influence policy making? A major part of the problem is the fact that many of our well-intentioned friends and neighbors have joined and contributed to environmental and animal-rights groups because they feel it is the right thing to do. Who could say they don't support saving a given species from extinction? Who is against preserving beautiful and scenic areas from degradation? Not even the strongest critics of the environmental movement could disagree with motives as high sounding as these. The problem is that none of it is as simple as the public relations and ad campaigns that the multimillion dollar budgets of these groups would have you believe. You should be familiar with the major environmental groups that influence public policy, either directly or indirectly. I will give you some basic information about three of the major groups in the United States.

One of the largest and most influential environmental groups is the Sierra Club. Founded in 1892, it is also one of the oldest of the environmental groups. According to the 1993 Earth Journal the Sierra Club's annual revenue is $38,000,000, with a membership of 648,000 nationwide. Only 38% of its revenue is from membership, the rest comes from "other" sources. It has a magazine, a newsletter, and books available concerning issues of interest to its members. The Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund is an affiliate of the Sierra Club. The SCLDF's $9,000,000 annual revenue is used to "provide legal representation to environmental organization" according to The Environmental Sourcebook. The Sierra Club actively seeks to influence public policy through lobbying. Its affiliate, the SCLDF, influences policy through the courts and litigation.

Together, the Sierra Club and its Legal Defense Fund form a well-funded, well organized and professional organization that effectively influences policy decision at both the state and national levels.

The National Audubon Society is another group that seeks to influence public policy concerning the environment. According to the 1993 Earth Journal, the Society's annual revenue is $37,000,000 (only 35% of which was raised through membership). It has 600,000 adult members and 550,000 students involved in something called the "Audubon Adventures program". It also has a magazine, a newsletter and books available for its members concerning its areas of interest. The National Audubon Society is another "old" environmental group that was founded in 1886. It has over 500 fairly autonomous chapters throughout the United States according to The Environmental Sourcebook. Audubon is another well-funded and professional organization that is effectively influencing policy decisions at all levels of government.

The Nature Conservancy is probably the richest of all the environmental groups, and the least public about its activities. Not much is known about TNC's affairs, and the organization doesn't appear to be after publicity. With an annual revenue of $172,990,000 (according to the 1993 Earth Journal) it doesn't need to. What we do know about TNC is of vital interest to you in the 73rd Legislative District. According to The Environmental Sourcebook, TNC has "developed a natural heritage database with information for species and habitats in each of the fifty states..." Those of you who watch Congress know that the National Biological Survey is a program very similar to this, but it will be run by Federal Bureaucrats. The thought of a giant computer database with information about what bugs and animals inhabit your land and where they live on your land should scare you, because it sure does scare me. The Nature Conservancy is also heavily involved with the Balcones Canyonlands Conservation Plan in Travis County. If you not aware of what the BCCP is or how it will affect your property rights, you need to educate yourself as soon as possible.

All of these groups have chapter in Texas. All of these groups have affected public policy decisions in Texas in the past and will continue to try to do so in the future. You must make yourself aware of the issues being debated and how they will affect you and your private property in rural Texas. It can affect those who don't own property as well because many of our rural economies depend so heavily on agriculture. Read everything you can on the subject of environmental regulation and legislation, but pay close attention to what the media is really saying. Look at where their information is coming from. Chances are if it involves the environment, the information you are receiving has been given a "spin" by someone from a multi-million dollar, tax-exempt group that has a vested interest in scaring dollars and sense from John Q. Taxpayer. Encourage your friends to ask these groups about their policy on property rights before they join or contribute to them.
