FFA Class Constructs Baseball Bleachers

Watching baseball games at the local field has been more-pleasant this summer thanks to SAHS agriculture teacher Gary York and his Ag Mechanics class who did the welding construction of the metal bleachers they are shown here standing on. The bleachers were built as part of the group's community projects and were completed before school was out for summer. York is pictured at left front with members of the class who helped with the construction, Cory Halmon, Joey Cheaney, Michael DeLeon, and Johnny Lawhon. so many children my arms were still sore the following morning. An old woman cried as she hugged me and said, over and over, "Amerika...Amerika..." A little girl thrust three wilted tulips into my hand as I passed. A World War II veteran, wearing at least 10 rows of medals across this tattered suit, broke from the crowd, grabbed me and kissed me on both cheeks. All the other Americans were enjoying identical experiences.

All of us were more emotionally exhausted than physically tired when we finally broke away from the celebration late in the evening of May 9.

We'd just helped a nation that-only a short time ago was our enemy--as its people celebrated the 50th anniversary of the end of a war that killed more than 20 million of its citizens. A country that in the late 1940s closed its doors to the west and neglected the welfare of its own people and its satellite nations to the utmost as it threw its economic and industrial might into preparing for a war against the United States.

I won't say the threat of a conflict has been totally erased, because fears built by almost 50 years of mistrust have to still linger deep in our minds. · But, at least the doors have been partially opened in the past few years. From what I saw during four days in May 1995, I think doors will continue to open, although we'll hear an occasional creak and groan.

I also know I came away from Moscow after the most exhilarating experience of my long career with the U. S. government. Those little children I had held didn't feel any different than my own grandchildren. The people didn't appear much different from my own trymen, albeit there was evidence everywhere that life has not been good to them.

Unfortunately for the Russian people--although they had helped win the most horrible war ever fought, they lost in the long run because the communists took total control of their lives. Recovery from that loss will take years and. most probably, decades.

As I prepared to go to bed on May 9, I felt about 10-feet tall. I realized that through a quirk of birth I was a representative of the richest, friendliest and most powerful country on earth.

I was one very proud American!

Thoughts From Our Pastors

James Ford Assembly of God

Always a Way

In Luke Chapter 19 verses 1-9 we read of a man of very little stature that wanted to see Jesus. Instead of looking at the multitude and saying there is no way because of my size, he began to look for a way. He ran ahead of the crowd and found a tree. This tree was a way to see Jesus if he took advantage of it, but first Zacchaeus had to climb it. It did no good until he climbed it. Many times we do not take advantage of the things the Lord gives us to use and if we do, we only use a little of it. Zaccheaus had to climb high enough to see over the crowd or the tree would of done him no good. He climbed high enough to draw close to Jesus and for Jesus to see him. When we make an effort to draw close to Jesus He will always draw close to us. Zaccheaus made the effort. he gained the privilege of having Jesus come to his house and visit. Zaccheaus was very joyful because he had found Jesus and was a changed man. Jesus still changes people that come to him. Zaccheaus He proved there was a change because although he was very rich, he was willing to give half of what he had, and if he had received any thing by false accusation he would restore it fourfold. This made Jesus very happy and he said unto him, "This day is salvation come to this house, or to you."

We know that Jesus will help us find a way when we seek him with all of our heart. In Rev. 3-20 he said, Behold I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door I will come in to him, and sup with him and he with me.

This is a good time to think about living closer to the Lord. Let us look for the way to get closer. There is a way, it may not be up a tree but there is a way. Let us all look for it.

Rockwood Club Has Stew Supper

Contributed We didn't get to put our flags at the cemetery Tuesday morning, but the sun came out that afternoon, so we got to have our stew supper that night.

We are all proud of the nice rains we got, but think we were just as proud to be able to have our supper and get some visiting in with friends.

We had a nice turnout with about 33 homefolks and visitors in attendance.

Those from out of town attending were Billie Eckles of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Royce McIver of Santa Anna Rural, Bro. and Mrs. Jeff Dean and Sara of Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Schrader of Lohn and two of Johnnie Stewards grandchildren from Coleman.

Homefolks present were Mr. and Mrs. Roland Duus and Robert, Claudia Rutherford, Coleta Pearson, Vivian Steward, Mr. and Mrs. Jack? Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Patino and four sons, Johnnie Steward, Mr. Crosley and Clay, Minnie Bray, Vera Wise and Mr. and Mrs. Jr. Brusenhan.

We are always glad to have visitors, so "ya'll" come anytime.

High Tech Fabrics To Look For

By Carol Katzer County Extension Agent

Family & Consumer Sciences During the last few years several high tech fabrics have been introduced, which are very different from our old familiar fabrics. Supplex nylon fabrics are crossing over from activewear to other markets such as designer evening dresses and better women's market.

Fabrications include knits and wovens, such as circular knits meshes, ribs, stripes and solids, textured and blistered double knits, iridescents and jacquards.

Polyolefin, in a fine denier continuous filament called Telar, is being used with silk for saris in India, bathing suits, fine wovens for blouses and dresses, brushed knits, sweatshirts for hiking and boating. Polyolefin is also targeting tights. and blue jeans.

Therma Stat, a hollow core fiber, is designed for cold weather conditions to provide thermal efficiency and moisture control. It dyes beautifully and was originally designed for highly specialized activewear. BTU high-teach polyester fiber provides warmth, good moisture transportation and reportedly has the hand of cotton. It is being used in active sportswear, tops, dancewear and aerobic wear.

Some newer developments in wool include Papertouch Cool Wools, wool gauze, matte finish wools, Eco-Wool and Sirospun, a wool yarn wrapped in nylon to give more strength and at the same time to be sheerer and softer with a lower Microfiber hosiery should filter down to the mass market this year. It has a soft sensual hand. Twice as much Lycra spandex is used with microfiber nylon than with regular nylon hosiery which provides better fit and increased comfort.

And for your protection, Akzo Industrial Fibers announce the development of Twaron 2000 microfilament for ballistic protection. Phifer Wire Products, Inc. now offers woven vinyl-coated polyester fabrics for use in safety vests. The highly visible "rocker red" fabrics are available in three weights.

Container Gardens: Everything Including The Kitchen Sink

Small or awkward spaces, poor soil and unsightly objects are all common problems that can easily be transformed into assets through. container gardening. A windowsill, patio balcony or doorstep can provide a productive garden site when you use containers.

Wherever you have space for a container you have a spot for a garden. Though it may not be as ideal as a backyard, a container garden can be every bit as striking as a full-sized suburban spread.

Current lifestyles have greatly increased the popularity of raising plants in containers. Container gardening is adaptable and small scale. Practically all TEXAS GROWN annuals, including vegetables and many perennials, are perfectly suited for life in a planter, as are many shrubs and small trees.

The elderly and physically challenged can also enjoy container gardening. Gardening fosters an interest and enthusiasm for the future and improves confidence and self-esteem. Positioning pots on shelves and elevated structures makes plants accessible to those in wheelchairs. With proper modification, the benefits of gardening can be available to everyone.

Your container garden may consist of one container or a cluster of pots. Place containers of varying size and shape in groupings around the area, in windowsills, edging a bleak stairway, in tight corners and along the tops of walls. Strategically locate attractive container groupings near your front door. This creates interest and visually guides visitors toward the en-

Be creative when selecting planters. Anything capable of holding soil and providing adequate water drainage is up for grabs--brass and clay pots, buckets, halved whiskey barrels, old wagons, tin tubs, even an old kitchen sink. Use large containers when possible to achieve a strong visual impact, and decrease the frequency of watering.

Mobility is the greatest advantage of container gardens. You can move them at a whim, rearranging the garden to fit your decorating scheme. Proper placement of container plants furnishes an effective disguise for unpleasant sights like drains, electrical boxes and untidy work areas. Grouping three or four sizable containers planed with densely growing shrubs fashions an excellent visual and physical screen. Climbing vines in containers offer coverage for bare walls and fences, obstructive columns and open overhead structures.

Plants in containers also can be moved indoors during cold spells so go ahead and indulge in those tropical favorites.

Select containers large enough to accommodate the size and growth habit of the TEXAS GROWN plants you choose. Use a lightweight, porous commercial soil mix. Soilless potting mix allows you to keep the soil moist without drowning the roots. Yard dirt often contains soil-borne diseases and drains poorly.

Water and fertilize your container garden regularly. Slow-release fertilizers provide continous feeding for several months. Diluted liquid fertilizer applications during the active growing season also are benefi-

A very important event, in addition to the Texas Revolution, occurred in 1836. women captives were taken by the Comanches. Fehrenbach stated, "Parker's Fort had begun an ethnicracial war in which there would be no more moral boundaries than territorial ones between the races on the Texas prairies."

Another important event was the Council House fight of 1840. Thirteen Comanche chiefs and twenty other Comanches, including women and children, were killed when fighting broke out during a peace - council between the Comanches and Texans in San Antonio. Mirabeau Lamar, the President of the Republic of Texas known for his anti-Indian policies. had ordered the Comanches held captive until all white Comanche captives were returned to the Texans. The Comanches, consistent with their preference to fight to the death rather than become captives, resisted arrest. In addition to the thirty-three Comanches killed. thirty-two women and children were thrown into jail, seven whites were killed and ten were seriously

The retaliatory raids on Linnville and Victoria were led by the Penatuhkah war chief Buffalo Hump. The raiders were intercepted by a Texan militia led by seasoned Indian fighters and defeated at Plum Creek. All the plunder was lost and over eighty warriors were killed.

The Council House fight and the retaliatory raids were very significant to the Penatuhkahs for several reasons. Muguara (Mukewater Creek, according to the late Roy Holt, historian in the area, was named for this chief), the principal chief of the Penatuhkah band, and the other important chiefs killed at Council House were Penatuhkahs. This resulted in a loss of established leadership for the band.

Buffalo Hump took control for the retaliatory raids but was defeated and lost many warriors and all the plunder. This defeat probably cost him the role of principal war chief and Santa Anna and Santa Anna emerged to fill the role. The Penatuhkah band, formerly friendly toward the Texans, became their bitter enemies. San Houston renewed his efforts to peacefully resolve the Indian problems when he returned as President of the Republic of Texas in 1841. Peace was not restored until he concluded

Thinking about heading out to the lake this summer for some fishing and water skiing?

Taxes

You'll pay a state boat tax of 6.25 percent on outboard motors and on boats that are not longer than 65 feet-if they are used primarily for non-commercial purposes. There is no local boat tax.

If the boat is propelled by paddle, oar, pole or your feet you won't pay the boat tax, but you will owe state and local sales taxes of as much as 8.25 percent on the purchase price.

Boats subject to sales tax include pedal boats, aqua cycles, canoes. kayaks, rowboats, rafts and vessels bought for commercial use.

You'll also pay sales taxes on boats you rent or lease.

Boat Repairs

Battery Taxes and Fees

When time comes to replace the boat's battery, you'll pay sales tax on the purchase price.

What you may not know is that the boat dealer must also collect a fee from you that is separate from the sales tax. The fee is $2 on a battery up to 12 volts and $3 on a battery rated at 12 volts or more.

The fee is not a part of the purchase price and is not subject to sale tax.

Fees collected on the sale of batteries are used by the state to recycle the lead and acid in batteries and the cases which are usually made of hard rubber.
