"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

SANTA ANNA'S FIRST TRADES DAY A SUCCESS

Santa Anna's first Trades Day for this season was what we term a success. Several hundred people were here Tuesday from over the territory, and some trading was done.

We don't know how to estimate the crowd that was here, but evidently more than one thousand people came to Santa Anna Trades Day who would not have been here if it had been just an ordinary day and the merchants report a satisfactory business. Some say it was even better than expected.

The business interests of the town are sold on the idea of a Trades Day twice a month, and we hope the people in the surrounding territory will join in and become sold on the idea.

There were several on the trading yard most of the time during the day, and what time the editor could be out there, it seemed to be a jovial bunch of fellows.

Swapping, selling, joking and a general good natured crowd were present, and the prize awards were thankfully received.

It is the purpose of the business interest of Santa Anna to have two Trades Days per month, each second and fourth Tuesday, and we hope to make each succeeding day better than the preceding ones.

Begin now to prepare to have something here to trade next Trades Day and be here with your family.

F. C. WOODWARD SELLS INTEREST IN STORE

F. C. Woodward has sold his interest in the Santa Anna Mercantile company to his partner, Miss May Blue. Mr. Woodward and Miss Blue organized the Santa Anna Mercantile company 22 years ago and have been partners in the business ever since, and it is said, there has never been a discord in their business relations. They were associated in business five years prior to the forming of the partnership that was dissolved last week.

Mr. Woodward has not determined what he will do in the future, but after a few weeks rest in all probability he will enter some other line of business in Santa Anna.

Auction of Jewelry to Begin Saturday

Mrs. C. W. Terry, formerly Mrs. Comer Blue, owner of the Mrs. Comer Blue Jewelry Store, and her brother, R. E. Mitchell of Dallas, came Wednesday to prepare and sell the stock of jewelry, novelties, fixtures and suchlike at auction.

The sale will begin Saturday afternoon at 2:30 and will be continued twice daily until the stock is sold.

Mr. Mitchell is an auctioneer of long experience, and remembers selling a stock of jewelry here for Mr. Keeth fifteen years ago.

When this stock is sold and the business finally wound up, it will be the end of a jewelry business of more than twenty years duration in Santa Anna.

T. A. CRUMP BURIED HERE

T. A. Crump, 77, died at the home of his daughter in Lubbock early Tuesday morning and was brought here for burial Wednesday.

Thursday morning we have not received much data, therefore we cannot give more than a brief mention of the funeral. Deceased was the father of our fellow townsman, C. A. Crump, and lived in these parts several years ago, and has a number of friends here who remember him in a kindly way.

According to information at hand Mr. Crump had been in poor health for several years, having suffered a partial stroke of paralysis a few years back. The funeral services were held at the cemetery Wednesday morning at 10:30 conducted by Pastor M. L. Womack of the Presbyterian church.

You will save money by buying your new fall coat at Mrs. Shook's. New coats arriving every few days.

TARIFF LAWS MUST BE MODIFIED SAYS SENATOR CONNALLY

HOUSTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—America's tariff laws must be modified if this country is to continue to maintain its foreign trade, Senator Tom Connally, member of the foreign relations committee of the senate told members of the Houston foreign trade club.

Senator Connally declared that some 40 nations have enacted tariff measures in retaliation for the American tariff act, and this has resulted in a cessation of foreign trade.

At the same time Senator Connally declared that should a democratic administration be voted in the coming general election, steps will be taken to amend the present tariff laws, either through horizontal reduction or reciprocal agreements.

There are objections to an amicable settlement of the liquor question. The prohibitionists would be reduced to the status of a party without an issue.

Mountaineers Ready For Coleman Blue Cats

Team Putting on Last Year's Speed and Power

Last Friday afternoon the Mountaineers went through a hard scrimmage for about an hour in the mud. Two teams of about equal strength were chosen by the coach and they went at it with the zip of a real game. The score was 20-6 at the end of the game.

Several of the boys showed up exceptionally well during the scrimmage. Leon Ward ran for a touchdown and the pass for extra point was good. J. W. Zachary fumbled a kick-off and then ran it back about 45 yards before being brought down. Clovis Fletcher showed his old driving power by making long gains through the line and making a touchdown that way. Scott Wallace and Edwin Neill scored after catching passes. Dexter Walthall threw the pass to Edwin for the lone score of the losing team. Several of the new players learned a lot of football and show that they will be ready for action against our ancient football foes next Friday.

All the practice this week will be spent in rounding the team into a cooperating unit that works together. Blocking will be one of the major things to be practiced. The new boys yet have to learn the niceties of making a play work.

The boys are glad that the girls have their Pep Squad organized and will be at Coleman giving them their support. They hope there will be a large crowd of people to go along to boost them in their play.

Word has come from Coleman that the price for admission is 35c for adults and 25c for the Pep Squad and other high school students.

A TEXAS CREED

(By W. L. Stewart in the Junction Eagle.)

I believe in Texas—in the green and golden glory of our prairies, our forests, our hills, mountains and our valleys—in the versatile variety and richness of our soils—in the beauty of our country life—in the Davis Mountains and canyons—the State's playground—in our 254 counties, contributing a kindly combination of admirable agriculture, happy horticulture, delightful dairying and profitable poultry farming, while our cities are known around the world for their industries and commerce.

I believe in Texas—in our Texas language—in our Texas measures of manly merit and womanly worth—in our Texas institutions—in our Texas people—in our pioneer history and present citizenship—in our patriotism in both peace and war—in our love for law and justice—in our unflinching loyalty to education and religion, always furnishing more than our share of the Austins, Houstons, Reagans, Hoggs, Fannins, Lamars Baileys, Culbertsons, and a host of others, in State and National world crisis of civilization.

I believe in Texas—in our sterling standards of christian character—in our proud principles of honor in public and private life—in our diversity of resources—in our Texas made products—in our progressive present and our forging future—"The Largest State"—"The Lone Star State," once a republic—"The Land of a Million smiles"—Texas!

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF BROWN COUNTY CITIZEN CELEBRATED

(Daily Bulletin, Sept. 24.) Alfred Brown, who lives in the northeast section of Brown county and who has been a citizen of this county over forty years, was 100 years old last Sunday and a number of his friends gathered to celebrate the day with him. The following account of the celebration and data on the life of Mr. Brown has been given The Bulletin by one of his acquaintances and friends:

"Last Sunday was a great day in the life of Uncle Alfred Brown, one of the oldest citizens in Texas, living six miles northeast of May. He, with fifty of his friends, celebrated his one hundredth birthday. He has been sick since last November and could not sit at the table with his friends but it was arranged so that he could look through the window at the feast. One of his life long friends, H. M. Killion, sat at his bedside during the meal and assisted him, while he joined his friends in the celebration.

"Uncle Alfred was a soldier under Robert E. Lee and participated in the battles of the Wilderness, Gettysburg, Antietam, siege of Richmond and the battle of Chancellorsville. He was wounded several times. Two of his brothers died for the Confederate cause. He was at Appomattox when Lee surrendered, but did not take the oath required of soldiers in the Southern army. Reconstruction never reached him.

"After the war Mr. Brown returned to his home with a broken arm, resulting from a wound. During the trying days of reconstruction he was an active member of the Ku Klux Klan. In politics he is a democrat and has never failed to vote since he came of age until this year.

"Uncle Alfred married Miss Miranda Brown in Georgia before the war. To this union were born eight children, two boys and six girls, only one of whom is living, Mrs. M. R. Crooks, at whose home he has lived the past forty years.

"Mr. Brown came to Texas in 1870 and settled in Williamson county, later moving to Brown county. He has been a member of the Baptist church more than seventy years. Despite his advanced years, until last November, Uncle Alfred has not been feeble and his mind is still active for a person of his age.

CARD OF THANKS

May we express our sincere appreciation for the tender words of sympathy and the floral offerings sent to us when the Death Angel claimed our infant sons. Even this sorrow grows less bitter when the hand of such sympathetic friends is pressed in yours and we learn to see Him in all things. May God give you his richest blessings.

Mr. and Mrs. Pitzer Hayes and Family.

High School Farm Boys Enroll for Vocational Agriculture

(By J. M. Binion)

Forty boys of Santa Anna High School have enrolled for Vocational Agriculture. All of these boys live on a farm or have a farm handy where they can carry on supervised practice work. Among the forty are boys from Rockwood, Shields, Coulbousk, Cross Roads, Junction, and almost all the nearby communities. Boys from Tricham and Whon are noticeably absent so far but they may come in later.

The boys are divided into two classes of about 20 each. One class is at present giving its time to a study of outlook material in regard to cotton, cattle, hogs and other farm and livestock products, while the other class is beginning a study of Coleman county feeds for Coleman county livestock.

MORELL WILSON

Morell Wilson, a familiar figure on the streets of Santa Anna almost since the town started to build, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. R. Ward, Sunday and was buried here Monday afternoon.

Morell was a dwarf, afflicted from early childhood and never developed in size and strength. He was never able to do a days work at manual labor in his life.

Morell was born Sept. 12, 1881 in Bell county, Texas, and moved to Santa Anna in 1891 with his parents, and made his home here until he died. He had a pleasing personality, a kind word for every one he came in contact with was a likable fellow and had many friends. His natural life was fifty-one years and thirteen days. After the death of his parents he made his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ward. The funeral services were held at the Ward home Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. M. L. Womack, pastor of the Presbyterian church. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ward and Mrs. A. T. Dick both of Santa Anna, and two brothers, D. D. Wilson, of Vernon, Texas and Eugene Wilson whose home is in Arizona. All but the latter were at the funeral.

Little Morell, whose nickname was "Chick", will be missed in Santa Anna. The many friends of the family will join in extending sympathy.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our good friends for the kindness shown us in the recent sickness and death of our brother, Morell Wilson, for the beautiful floral offerings and the kind words of sympathy. We sincerely hope when the death angel places its fatal finger upon your brow, you will not suffer physical pain and mental anguish as he did. We thank you.

SUBSCRIBERS GRADUALLY COMING TO OUR RESCUE

The editor wishes to acknowledge receipt of several new and renewal subscriptions during the month of September. Many of our subscribers are delinquent on our books, and a number of them have requested us to continue sending them the paper on the promise to pay later and we have trusted you. You have been paying us for years, and we believe you will continue to do so as soon as your circumstances will justify, and this is just a little reminder to the effect that, we certainly need the money.

We remember reading a little ditty one time that ran something like this: "In Holland the women knead bread with their gloves on; in Germany the children need bread with their clothes on." But unless a number of subscribers come to our rescue pretty soon, the editor of this paper will be needing bread without a blame thing on. Do you get us?

Fred W. Turner has been designated by Wilbur C. Hawk, President of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, to serve as Governor R. S. Rockwood Couple Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

The splendid home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ashmore of Rockwood community was the scene of happiness and merry making last Tuesday, September 27th.

The occasion was the celebration of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ashmore. According to data received at this office last week, this venerable couple were married at Grainger in Williamson county, Texas, September 20, 1882. Their family record is remarkable, indeed, in that eight children, six sons and two daughters were born to this good couple, each grew to manhood and womanhood and are now raising families of their own, there being 36 grand-children and 2 great-grand-children, and no deaths have yet occurred in the entire family. The family now consists of almost fifty beings and not a one missing caused by death. How grateful they should be.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashmore had with them each of their children and most all of their grand-children and the day was indeed a pleasurable one for all those present. According to the list at hand those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Ashmore and baby of Sulphur Springs Mr. and Mrs. Joe McIlvain and children, Rockwood; Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Ashmore and family, Santa Anna; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ashmore and family, Rockwood; Miss Jessie Lee Ashmore of Eldorado; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Ashmore and children of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ashmore and children of Brownwood; Mrs. Belle Caldwell and daughters of Rockwood, and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ashmore and children of Eldorado.

The home was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and other attractive decorations. The luncheon and dinner were bountiful and greatly enjoyed.

Visitors other than the family were Mr. and Mrs. Tom King, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur King, "Dad" Rutherford and wife of Rockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McIlvain of Big Spring, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crum of Santa Anna, Mrs. W. C. Black and Mrs. Jim Carter of Whon, Miss Geneva Atkinson of Cross Cut, Mrs. J. W. Wise and Miss Linnie Blackwell of Rockwood and Mrs. O. C. Lovelady of Whon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashmore have lived in their present home for more than thirty years, and probably most all of their married lives, and have a number of friends who will join in extending to them their very best wishes for many more wedding anniversaries in the future. Mr. Ashmore is now 76 and Mrs. Ashmore is 75 years of age, and both are enjoying reasonably fair health.

Court Writ Bars Ferguson from Ballot

Mrs. Miram A. Ferguson's chances of having her name certified by the secretary of state for the November ballot as Texas Democratic gubernatorial candidate was further dimmed Wednesday, by the Attorney General department's opinion.

District Judge W. F. Robertson of the 126th district court granted a temporary injunction restraining Mrs. Ferguson, her husband, the Democratic executive committee, the secretary of state or other officials from certifying her name on the ballot.

The Attorney General's department in a statement prepared by Homer DeWolfe, assistant attorney general ruled that the authority of the secretary of state to certify names for the ballot had been taken from her and placed in charge of the 126th District Court of Travis county, therefore, her chances are slim to have her name certified for the ballot.

This is the result of a suit filed in the district court by attorneys of Governor Sterling, contesting the August 27th election, in which the Governor claims he received a majority of the legal votes cast in said election.

The proposition is now muddled up to such a mellofahness, just what the outcome will be is a matter of speculation.

AS MAINE GOES SO GOES THE U. S.

The huge Democratic victory in Maine—the election of a Democratic Governor and two Democratic Congressmen—was only possible because thousands of men and women in the Pine Tree State who have heretofore voted the Republican ticket joined with Democrats in repudiation of the Hoover Administration.

For the first time the unseasoned Warwicks in charge of Mr. Hoover's campaign seem to realize the extent of the revolt within the Republican party against the Hoover Administration and the Republican leadership, but without any apparent realization of the causes that led to the revolt. They have assumed that the disaffection was brought about solely by the depression, when as a matter of fact, there were many contributory causes, such as the repeated failures of the Hoover Administration to meet the problems that have arisen out of the depression; its reckless extravagance, expending five billion dollars a year for the first two years of its existence; they recall the infamous Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, enacted after the Wall Street crash had given warning of the cataclysm and which had almost destroyed the export market of the United States.

They remember the false hopes held out to agriculture, and how the attempt to stabilize agricultural prices by gambling in the wheat pit cost the taxpayers nearly a half billion dollars; also the effort to mislead the public on the volume of unemployment, and they recall the many absurd alibis that have marked the failure of these devices.

Following the many attempts to deceive the electorate concerning the facts, the untrained and unpracticed leaders of the Hoover campaign attempted a further deception through propaganda to the effect that Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance had turned the tide in his favor.

The Maine election put a quietus upon this claim, because it showed that the antagonism to the Hoover administration had not decreased but, based on the election claims of both parties, and on the final result, had actually increased.

Democratic leadership from the first has realized the extent of the Republican revolt and has understood the reasons therefor—the failure of Republican leadership, Governor Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance made this plain when he said: "I shall not use the words 'Republican party,' but instead, day in and day out, 'Republican leadership.'" He realized that the enlightened rank and file of the Republican party is in harmony with the rank and file of the Democratic party in efforts to salvage the country.

Doubtless, Republican leaders, from now on, will undertake to win back the members of their party in revolt, but it ought to be apparent that they have no real chance of success. Practically every major spokesman for the Administration so far is discredited by his own acts or utterances; the candidate is discredited by his record. Millions of Republicans, victims of previous deceptions, are in no mood to be again deceived by glittering promises or misrepresentation of facts. They have determined to rid themselves and the country of an administration that has brought only disaster and suffering to the masses of people.

The overwhelming Democratic victory now in sight this year will not be merely a partisan victory but a victory of, for and by the people.

FEEDING PREJUDICES

Most of us who consider ourselves broadminded are anything but that. Otherwise, how can we account for the fact that we are seldom interested in reading the "other side" of the question?

We read almost exclusively such books, periodicals, and newspapers as we know in advance will generally coincide with our own views. Few Republicans subscribe for a redneck Democratic newspaper, or vice versa. People take church papers only of their own denominations. Capitalists take few labor papers and laboring men would hardly look at one that reflects the capitalists viewpoint.

In other words we have more or less confirmed opinions on nearly every subject and do not admit that there may be some virtue in the contentions of the other side.

As a recent writer has said, "The only facts we can tolerate are those we already know." We read, not to really learn something new, but for the purpose of confirming ourselves in our present beliefs and prejudices. (Exchange.)

As we live, so must we die. Think it over.

NORMALCY IS RETURNING

There is no lack of capital or investment in this country, bank vaults are bulging with it. On the 15th of September the government called for a loan of $1,150,000,000, at a very low rate amount required was subscribed by banks and other agencies.

Does that look as though our government is going to collapse, or that the country is going to the bow-wows?

Does it indicate a lack of confidence in our governmental system?

There are abuses, of course—expensive ones—but they are to be found in every government on the globe, and will always be found as long as mankind is as at present constituted.

We are the strongest country in the world, we have inexhaustible riches yet to be developed, we are a hardy people capable of withstanding and surmounting the most formidable of difficulties, and we have the will power to wrest success from failure where others would go down in a deluge of disaster such as has engulfed us for the past three years.

The trouble with many of us is that we are too impatient. We expect the turn to come overnight. We want to jump from poverty to riches with one bound. And it can't be done.

Have patience, although it has been sorely tried. Pursue your daily tasks with confidence in the future, and you will not be disappointed.

Normalcy is returning as steadily as any reasonable person can expect.

Now that the bathing season is about over, a considerable portion of our population will have to begin wearing clothing again.

Life is short at best—and too long at worst.

VIRTUE OF PATIENCE

One of the greatest aids to worth while accomplishment is the quality of patience. This applies to laying the foundation for a career in any profession or business. The person who depends upon the short cuts and quick action devices frequently meets with bitter disappointment if not disgrace.

This is particularly true with reference to the accumulation of wealth, as many misguided individuals now behind prison bars can regretfully testify. Many men who go wrong through speculation with other peoples' money do not set out deliberately to be criminals, but they think they see an opportunity to make a killing and take a chance. They intend to replace the appropriated funds if they win but they usually lose in the end. Some instances are related by a recent writer on thrift:

One man used money not his own in what he considered a sure-thing real estate deal. The venture failed and one more was added to the suicide roll. Another lost in playing the market and then stole from his firm to recoup his losses and lost again and went to the pen. Innumerable cases like these might be cited.

On the other hand, the patient plodder who builds upon a sound and honest foundation frequently achieves success which is denied the spectacular plunger. In fact, patience is generally one of the surest aids in the accomplishment of any worthy purpose. (Exchange.)

Down in Tampa, Florida, they know how to get rid of the communist menace. They catch 'em, flog 'em, tar and feather 'em, and then kick 'em out. Very effective and recommended for application in some other communities.

THE AUTOMOBILE'S DEFENSE

Dallas News: If the automobile were gifted with intelligence and the faculty of speech it probably would defend itself in about these words:

I have quickened commerce, speeded up industry, facilitated reciprocity between communities and States. I have in a large measure transformed the industrial world.

I gave the motor to the flying machine. Lindbergh would never have been heard of but for me. I furnish power for many machines helpful to man.

If I take part in an accident it is the fault of him who handles me. I am a servant, and move only at the command of my master. It is the carelessness, recklessness, foolishness, of drivers that cause accidents.

I am not responsible for the maniac who says, "I'll take a chance," then sends me forward at a speed and under conditions never necessary except in the effort to save life, not to destroy it.

Even as it is, and in spite of the recklessness of some who drive me, I save more lives than I destroy, because I take those injured in any way to where they receive treatment; or I take the physician to the patient who would die without his aid.

I am not brutal or indifferent to human life; I do not set the speed at which I go; I do not "take a chance;" it is not I who says, "I'll just see how quick I can turn that curve without turning over;" and then goes over. I do not say, "I'll see how close I can come to that fellow changing a tire and give him a scare;" I do not say, "I'll just run a race with that fellow who wants to pass me." The one who drives me does all this.

SMALL SNAKE HAS MARKINGS OF HUMAN FACE

J. C. Hill of Glidewell Heights today was showing a small rat snake he caught Monday at his place, telling of the peculiar markings on top of the snake's head resembling a human face.

The snake was gray with brown-black splotches of coloring. It was about 15 inches long and had a sharp pointed tail, indicating it was of the non-poisonous species.

The markings on top of the head resembled the eyes and nose of a human face with a cross in the lower part of the head resembling a human mouth. A white mark down the back of the neck resembled a necktie hanging down.

Ex-Texas Ranger Writes of Early Pioneer Days

By Ex-Ranger S. P. Elkins, Tishomingo, Oklahoma.

In the fall of 1870, Capt. J. M. Swisher raised a Ranger Company for pioneer protection against the Indians. The need was occasioned by the constant depredations of the Indians on the white settlers of Texas.

The "Austin Intelligencer" of that date says that great excitement prevailed in Austin over the outrages perpetrated by the Indians. The Governor issued a call for 100 volunteers to take the trail of the savages. I joined this company and we started west. We were stationed at Camp Colorado, on Jim Ned Creek in Coleman County until winter when we moved down on Home Creek. We had a picket station of fifteen men at the mouth of Concho Creek in Concho County. There was one Ranch about twelve miles from the picket station. It was owned by Rich Coffee. Mr. Coffee kept a large force of men hired for protection from Indians and Bandits; as he was not near any settlement and there was nothing in the country but wild cattle, buffalo, Mustang horses, wolves, and a few panther and bears. The Kiowa and Comanche Indians often made raids through there then would go on farther east where the Ranches were closer, killing the settlers and stealing their livestock.

The Pioneers of Texas had many hardships to undergo before their homes were finally made secure. Most of them had come west seeking freedom from the over crowded conditions which mostly prevailed in the old states. They selected these rolling prairies because of the plentifulness of game and the vast expanse of land to be had for the homesteading. Soon the Indians began snooping down upon them so they had to set about finding means of protection. They built stockades around the ranch houses, with port-holes cut on all sides of the house so that when the Indians attacked them, they could see and shoot from all sides. The people of those days had much to think of. There were no neighbors near to lend a helping hand.

In some localities where the settlers were close enough together, they would have preaching, maybe once a month. Every body went armed all the time, and men wore their pistols the same as their clothes. They would take their families and go to meeting; take their guns along and stack them in a corner 'til meeting was over. They were glad to see each other, as their isolated lives made them lonely. Each time as they shook hands in farewell, they would feel that perhaps it was for the last time. When a stranger came along he was always welcomed, and made to feel at home; no charges for his accommodations, as they were always glad to see any one.

When a man left his family he never knew whether he would find any of them alive when he returned. Early in November 1870 there was a raid made on a ranch in Brown County, Texas in which four members of the family were killed and over a hundred head of horses driven off. The father was in the woods cutting rails when he heard screams from the house. He started running as fast as he could, but didn't have a gun with him, and the Indians had surrounded the house. The mother and children were brutally killed, while the father had to stand by and hear their screams.

The news came to our camp and we started after them. The trail led west towards the plains. About fifteen miles from camp we struck the trail of the Indians horses which we followed as fast as possible. It was a difficult trail to follow because the country through which it led was filled with wild mustang horses, which crossed the trail of the Indians constantly. This delayed us for some time as the scope of country over which the horses roamed was a large one. The weather being dry and the ground hard made the trails hard to separate.

Then we struck great herds of buffalo; we could see thousands of them at one time; that also bothered us for at best the trail was hard to keep over the wide prairies which were covered with thick mesquite grass. We came to places where they had camped on high points; and in other places where in crossing mountains they had pushed their horses down from high cliffs, where we could not get our horses to go, and would have to hunt for a better way down.

On the sixth morning we struck the buffalo herds again which again threw us off, and obscured the trail of the Indian horses. Most of our boys were walking and leading their horses trying to pick up the lost trail. Some of them were off to one side shooting buffalo, when they came close to the ones who were walking. One of the horses became frightened and jerked loose and ran away. The last we saw of the horse he was going in a long lope headed for home, with his owner, Mr. Stover following him. We had no time to take a back track for any purpose, so we didn't see Mr. Stover again 'til we reached camp again some days later. He was left about a hundred miles from camp; no houses; no roads, nothing to eat except what he killed. We traveled all that day and camped that night; always heading towards the northwest, and the mountains. The next loading the pack mules and getting ready for another hard day the captain took one of the men and went to scout out the trail. He was looking over the prairie with his field glasses, and spied the Indians about ten miles away. Two of the Indians were after a buffalo and the balance of the band was driving a bunch of horses. Capt. Swisher sent the man back to tell the boys to come on. We started, Ranger style, all strung out across the prairie, every man get there if his horse holds out long enough. The two Indians who were after the buffalo were off their horses, cutting some meat from a buffalo they had shot, and didn't see us 'til we were about a quarter of a mile from there. They rushed to their horses and set out to catch up with their band. All the Indians started in a mad flight to get away, abandoning the horses they were driving as well as camp supplies. The riding commenced then, we had to run for several miles before catching up with them. There were only three of us in the running fight. The boys were scattered three miles apart. We ran the Indians about fifteen miles when they took cover in a cave in a cedar brake at the mouth of a canyon. We dismounted, hid our horses in the thick cedar brush, and started into the ravine after them. The rest of the boys came up and we scattered, part of us going to the top of the mountain, and the rest of us spread out in the canyon. One man was left with each bunch of horses. We had looking every way, but not seeing gone about two hundred yards anything, when suddenly the bullets began to pour down upon us. We left it with them for a little while until we could reconnoiter and get them located. We finally saw them under the ledge of a rock at the top of the mountain. The fight lasted all day, but when night came the Indians slipped out and got away, leaving all their horses, saddles, blankets and two dead Indians. We had one man shot near the mouth of the cave. I was near him at the time, and pulled the arrow from his thigh. We tied a handkerchief around the wound to stop the blood, and he fought on all day long without complaining. He was a Mr. Brown who lived on Jim Ned creek near Camp Colorado. Mr. Brown did not belong to our company, but had volunteered to go with us on that scout. There was also a Mr. Golston with us who was also a volunteer.

Well it was dark and cold, and all of us were worn out and fifteen miles from our pack mules; we had had no food nor water all day, so we started back to where we had left our supplies, and it was late when we heached them. The next morning we gathered up all the horses and things left by the Indians, and started back to camp, a long and hard journey of about a hundred and fifty miles. The fight was on the eleventh day of November 1870, on the 13th it began snowing, snowed all day and all night. We waked up in the morning all covered with snow and nearly frozen. As we were on the prairie with no wood we saddled up and started for camp, but the snow was so deep we couldn't travel, so we had to camp for two days. The snow had drifted five or six feet deep in ravines and gulches. We made camp on the south side of a hill where there was some scrub cedar timber. We made a shelter by tying the tops of the little cedars together and spreading a blanket over them. Then we had enough of a wind break to build a fire. At night we raked the ashes out and spread down our blankets and fared pretty well.

When we got back to camp the ranchmen all gathered in and we had a big time. We had some good times and some bad times. There was plenty of game, such as buffalo, antelope deer, and a few bears and panthers but it soon got old seeing the same thing all the time.

The first three months we were out the government furnished us rations. Our bread was hard-tack, full of worms, weevils and spiders, and we killed our own meat. The next three months our rations got misplaced and we did not have a bite of bread for twenty-two days. We went to Comanche town, Texas and found one box of crackers; then went back to our camp on Home Creek in Coleman County half starved in the dead of winter.

Captain Swisher took four of us and started to Fort Mason after supplies. The second day out we met a train of government wagons with a company of United States Soldiers bringing us rations so we were all right again. Our camp was located where the Fort Mason road crossed Home Creek.

I was discharged in 1871, and went to Palo Pinto County, Texas; settled on some vacant land and started a hog ranch. I put some new ground into cultivation, as I had to keep hands hired for protection from the Indians. We always took our guns to work with us as we never knew when we would be attacked. One of my men was shot by some traveling man who had spent the night with me. They mistook him for an Indian. I saw that kind of business wouldn't do so I quit and went back to the settlements.

In 1874, Captain Perry of Blanco County Texas raised a company of Rangers for Frontier service and I joined in with them. We were stationed in Menard County, Texas, with headquarters at Menardville. We stayed there some time but had no fighting to do. One day six outlaws came into Menardville and shot up the town. The sheriff came to our camp and asked for help to subdue them. Captain Perry detailed six of us to go and we had no trouble in capturing them as we found them all asleep. We were next moved out on the San Saba river near the Raganan mountain. We kept a picket on top of the mountain and our horses in the valley, so that the Indians could be seen if they attempted to steal the horses. One day the picket discovered a trail through the shinook brush and followed it 'til he came to a cave. He heard something growling inside the cave, so he came to camp and got permission to shoot a bear. Most of the boys followed him up the mountain to have some fun. The shinook brush was very thick on the side of the mountain, and about as high as a man's head but there was a clear spot in front of the cave.

We boys had all gathered here ready to shoot the bear when he was run out. One of the boys threw a rock into the cave and we could hear something growling and popping its teeth; another rock was thrown into the cave and in a thought out rushed a javelin or muskdog and darted through the crowd. It was so quickly done and with his teeth popping all the time that we all fell over in the brush and gave him room. We couldn't run for the thickness of the brush. Our scare was soon over however since no one was hurt, and we threw another rock into the cave. Out came another javelin and he was killed; another stone was thrown and out came the third one, which we quickly dispatched, and so ended the sport.

I stayed with Captain Perry's company only a few months when I was detailed to go with Major John B. Jones as part of his escort; seven men were taken from each of the six Ranger Companies on the Texas frontier for escort duty. We traveled all the time from one company to another; the companies being about a hundred miles apart.

On the third day of July 1874, there was a battle on the Laso Valley Ranch in Menard County, between Major Jones and about twenty-eight men, and about a hundred and fifty Indians. We lost two men killed and two wounded; thirteen horses killed and wounded.

In November of this same year we had another fight with the Indians in Menard County, in which we killed six Indians and captured one. We took our prisoner to Austin, and he was sent from there to state prison as a public enemy. The fight was a running fight of about fifteen or twenty miles. The Indians ran into two of the boys who had been sent out to kill a beef; they rushed to camp and reported. The horses were quickly run in, and we were soon after them in hot pursuit.

There was a man with us in this fight by the name of Scott Corley. Several years before, his people had all been killed by the Comanche Indians, in Keoch Valley, Palo Pinto County. Scott, who was a small boy at the time was taken captive. He was later recaptured by a friend. This gave him an undying hatred for the Indians, and a blood-thirst for Comanches. He fought them hard and close at every chance.

In 1877 I moved to McCullough County; there were about one hundred and fifty in the county and about a hundred of them lived in Brady City. This was a very dry year and everything was scarce. I hauled two loads of corn a hundred miles, as soon as I got them home the people would want the corn for bread. We would take our wagons and go west to the buffalo range where we killed and dried meat for the winter.

In 1879 the buffalo were killed or driven from the Texas Plains. There was a bounty on the hides and the tallow was also valuable; so the white man's greed stopped at nothing short of extinction. There were eleven hundred white hunters on the field at one time. The Indians left Texas on the heels of the buffalo.

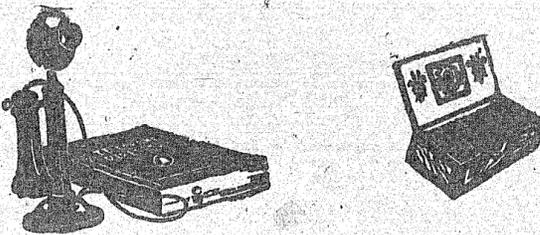

(The Brown County family above referred to was named Williams. Mr. Brown was a brother to Uncle Peter Williams, who was one of Coleman County's pioneers.)

SOME COMPARISON

Germany is taking steps to lighten the tax burdens upon industry. That will promote increase production, place more men to work, make everybody happier.

In the United States we increase the tax burdens upon everybody, cripple industry, keep men out of employment, make everybody miserable, and all because politicians have to have a constantly increasing number of political jobs for their henchmen.

Will our political system ever advance beyond the kindergarten stage?

WHY SUCH PROCRAS-TINATION?

Why is it necessary for President to take a club to the government farm relief agencies in order to induce them to stop dilly-dallying and take action toward relieving the distress that prevails among the farmers and ranchers of the country?

Congress provided the money for loans for this purpose and placed it at the disposal of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The corporation is ready to hand it over to the several agencies created for its disbursement.

The agencies should be making the loans NOW, when aid is most urgently needed, but instead, only a dribble is reaching the farmers and stockmen.

Relief funds were quickly available for the banks, railroads and big corporations.

Why such procrastination where the farmer is concerned?

Tell some people they are wise ones, and they will love you. Tell them the truth and they will murder you.

Presby'rian Church

Recently the Presbyterian Church issued a statement in regard to music in the church. Formerly the people and especially the children were encouraged to get away from sedate, dignified music, and us songs lively in tempo, simple and repetitious in harmony, calculated to make singing spontaneous. Theoretically this seemed advantageous, but actually the churches have been brought to realize that they were deliberately training their children away from church services of worship.

The dignified sedate music can never be replaced in the churches. It has depth, meaning and feeling that is not surpassed.

The Presbyterian Church opens every Sunday morning service with the doxology. It brings the spirit of worship in its words and music. Although sung many times few people know about its author.

Thomas Ken, a bishop in the Anglican Church (Episcopal) in England wrote it. He was chaplain, first to the Princess Mary at The Hague, and afterwards to Charles II of England. He was a great lover of sacred music, a skillful player on the lute, and played at musical societies. His Greek Testament it is said would open of its own accord to the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

The doxology is a part of his evening hymn, written for the students in Winchester College. At his own request, Ken was buried under the last window of the chancel of the church at Frome just as the sun was rising.

The words when sung turn our minds to why we are worshipping God.

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow, Praise Him, all creatures here below; Praise Him above, ye heavenly host, Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

The invitation is extended to all who are not church members elsewhere to come and worship with us.

Next week another hymn will be discussed. M. L. Womack, Minister.
